It is therefore evident our foreign trade is concentrating in that part of the city, and, as the growth and development of our commerce depends largely upon our facilities, it is incumbent upon us to free them from all unnecessary burdens. The close competition in all branches of trade and the small margin of profits renders it necessary for business men to carefully consider every item of expense attending their respective industries, and to choose those localities which afford the best and cheapest facilities for the prosecution of business.

There can be no doubt but that the tax laid upon business in the shape of ferry tolls has been a great drawback to the development of East Boston. Business that could be carried on to better advantage there than in any other part of this city has been driven away on this account. Business men have been deterred from establishing themselves there because of the expense of ferriage. It is estimated that a special tax of ten cents is imposed upon every ton of goods which passes between the city proper and East Boston. This is a very serious item to manufacturers, who are obliged to reduce the cost of production to the lowest possible point.

When the statistics of our foreign trade are considered, it argues well for the capabilities of East Boston that, notwithstanding all drawbacks, the natural advantages of the place have been sufficient to attract so large a proportion of our commerce, and it is believed that the effect of freeing the ferries will be to greatly increase the commercial importance of the place. If this be so, it is, of itself, a sufficient reason for abolishing tolls, for, in matters of this kind, the whole community share in the benefits arising from increased business.

The prosperity of Boston depends upon the success of its commercial and manufacturing interests. Whatever tends to hinder the development and extension of these interests retards in a corresponding degree the prosperity of the community, and conversely whatever is done to promote these interests conduces to the common good.

While the committee believe that the strongest argument in favor of free ferries is to be based upon the effect of the measure upon the business interests of the city, they are not unmindful of the fact that it would be but an act of justice towards the inhabitants of East Boston to furnish them with the free facilities for communication with the city proper which are enjoyed by the residents of other outlying sections of the municipality. In their case, the ferries take the place of the bridges and avenues with which the other sections of the city are supplied at the public expense. It is, or should be, the policy of the city to furnish free means of communication between all parts of the municipality. The citizens of East Boston are taxed for supplying others with what they themselves are not provided with.

At the best, they are placed at a disadvantage, for the ferries, even under the best management, cannot afford equal accommodations to streets and bridges, and when the expense of tolls is added to the inconvenience of ferries the effect must, necessarily, be prejudicial to the development of the district. This is apparent when the statistics of the growth of East Boston are compared with those of other parts of the city.

Your committee believe that if tolls are abolished the effect will be to render East Boston a more desirable location for purposes of business and residence. A large amount of property which is at present unproductive will be brought into the market. An equivalent to the cost of maintaining free ferries will be found in the advanced valuation of property, for experience in other cases has shown that the removal of tolls has been followed by an advance in taxable valuation.

The cost of running the ferries for the last five years has averaged $165,000 per year. Assuming that the valuation of the whole city for the present year will be $700,000,000, the cost of maintaining the ferries will be 23-100 of a mill on the above valuation. The committee are of the opinion that the petitioners are not asking for any exceptional privileges. They believe that in recommending the abolition of ferry tolls they are advocating a measure of public utility.

They have carefully considered the subject with regard to its bearing upon the interests of the whole city and not of East Boston alone, and they have unanimously arrived at the conclusion that free ferries will be conducive to the general prosperity.

They would therefore respectfully recommend the passage of the following order.

NEHEMIAH GIBSON.
CLINTON VILES.
CHARLES H. B. BRECK.
WILLIAM J. BURKE.
CHARLES H. REED.
PETER S. ROBERTS.
RICHARD ROACH.
THOMAS O'CONNOR.
Committee.

Ordered, That on and after the first day of October, 1877, the tolls on the East Boston ferries be abolished, and the said ferries be run free to the public travel.

The order was read once and laid over.

PAVING REPORTS AND ORDERS.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Paving:

Report and order to pay Elizabeth G. Smith $40 for grade damages on Eliot street, Jamaica Plain. Order read twice and passed.

Order to pave Charles street from Cambridge street to Leverett street with small granite blocks; estimated expense $30,000. Order read twice and passed.

Reports and order to sprinkle streets as follows: Brookline and Longwood avenues, cost not exceeding $90 per month. Order read twice and passed.

Reports and orders for brick sidewalks in front of estates of Henry Souther, 435-441 Third street, and Mercantile Wharf Corporation on Atlantic avenue and Mercantile street. Orders read twice and passed.

POLICE.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Police:

Reports recommending the confirmation of the executive appointment of Sergeants Timothy A. Hurley and William H. Fotler and Thomas Ryan to be lieutenants of police, and the non-confirmation of the appointment of Hugh McEleany to be a police officer. Report accepted, and said nominations confirmed and non-confirmed, as recommended.

Report on petition of Boylston Mutual Insurance Company et al., that special care be taken in enforcing the law relating to the retail sale of fire crackers—That they have instructed the Chief of Police to enforce the provisions of the statute relating to the keeping, selling and storage of fireworks in this city. Accepted.

Report that it is inexpedient to grant the request of Sewall, Day & Co. et al., that a hearing be given to Walter L. Clark, late a Lieutenant of Police, in relation to the charges against him. Accepted.

REPAIRS ON WARREN BRIDGE.

Alderman Thompson submitted the following from the Committee on Bridges:

Ordered, That the Committee on Bridges be authorized to expend the sum of $1500 in repairing the roadway, sidewalks and draw of Warren Bridge; said sum to be in addition to that already authorized, and to be charged to the appropriation for Bridges.

Ordered, That Warren Bridge be closed to the passage of all vehicles Monday, July 16, and remain closed until the repairs thereon are completed.

Severally read twice and passed.

STEALING FLOWERS FROM PUBLIC GARDEN.

Alderman Clark offered an order—That, in conformity with the terms of the rewards as authorized by an order passed by the Board of Aldermen and approved by the Mayor, May 22, 1877, there be allowed and paid to Nicholas W. Johnson the sum of $25 for the detection and conviction of George Warren in the Municipal Criminal Court, for stealing flowers from the Public Garden on the 17th day of June last; said sum to be charged to the appropriation for Common, etc. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

PUBLIC PARKS.

On motion of Alderman Clark the order for the Treasurer to procure a loan of $660,000 for the purchase of not less than one hundred nor more than one hundred and fifty acres of land or flats, on the Back Bay, for a public park was taken from the table.

Alderman Clark—I now move to amend the order as follows:

Substitute "$450,000" for "$660,000"; strike out the words "or more than one hundred and fifty" after the words "one hundred" (acres), and all that part relating to the price of the land to be purchased, and the city agreeing to assume and pay all betterments, etc.

That leaves the order authorizing the Treasurer to make a loan of $450,000 instead of $660,000, for the purchase of only 100 acres instead of 150; and it also leaves the betterments precisely as the act provides—that any parties owning lands benefited by laying out a park there shall be assessed a betterment.

The amendment was adopted, and the order, as amended, was put upon its passage.

Alderman Clark—I do not propose to make any speech upon this subject. The order is simply to take one hundred acres for the purpose of abating a nuisance, and I have already stated that the land can be filled solid to grade seventeen, and I have given the amount for which that can be done. The question has also been asked what it will cost to cover this land with loam. I have taken the pains to inquire what it will cost to cover this one hundred acres with loam twelve inches deep, if it were necessary to cover the entire area. I find that we can cover the entire area with loam twelve inches deep for $108,900, provided the whole area is covered. It is presumed that not more than one-half of this hundred acres would be required to be covered with loam, and if we cover only fifty acres, it will of course cost but half that amount, or $54,450. But it is supposed that a large amount of loam will be obtained by dredging there, so that the actual amount of loam required to be purchased will be very small, probably not more than 25,000 or 30,000 wagons. I find another thing which surprised me greatly, and that is, the street sweepings and ashes, for which we receive about fifteen or twenty thousand dollars a year, selling it for five cents a load and carting it over to South Boston, and giving the proprietors of the Boston wharf the benefit of that nominal price; and that they can be used in filling this territory, instead of throwing them away as we are today. In 1876, 184,193 cartloads of ashes, dirt, etc., were collected; each cartload contains forty-two cubic feet, and therefore they collected some 35,815 cubic squares, which can be used for filling, thereby saving an expense of $107,445 for filling, at $3 per square, which, deducted from my estimate of $705,000 as presented at the last meeting, leaves $597,555; add to this $54,450 for loam, and we have $652,005 as the total cost of the park. Now, it is estimated that enough ashes and street sweepings are taken up to fill this entire area in three years, which is a matter of pretty serious consideration. By buying this territory at ten cents a foot we can fill it in three years with the sweepings of the streets and ashes which we dispose of at a nominal price, so that we shall get the entire area filled for a trifling amount. There is no occasion to go into a lengthy argument. It is not necessary. I merely state that I have a petition signed by some forty or fifty of the best physicians in Boston, which I will read.

The Alderman read the petition, signed by Dr. E. H. Clarke and other physicians, representing that the condition of the territory in question demands immediate attention, and that necessary steps should be taken to abate the nuisance.

Alderman Clark—Those are among the most eminent physicians in the city. This whole matter has been gone over pretty thoroughly; it has been shorn of all the objectionable features raised against it, so far as I know, and all questions in regard to its cost have been answered. The cost of making it appear like the Public Garden fifty years hence I cannot state. The price of the purchase is fixed; the cost of filling to grade seventeen with good clean gravel has been given, and the cost of covering the entire territory with loam twelve inches deep has been stated; and provided the whole is carried out in that manner, it would cost a great deal less than $1,000,000. But in three years, as I have shown, that entire territory can be filled by taking the ashes and street sweepings. The most eminent engineers and physicians advocate this as the only way to abate the nuisance. Taking the sewerage out of it will not do it, but will leave this large area to be uncovered with the tide twice a day, and send forth its bad smells as it does at present. A good many parties who signed the remonstrance against parks have signed a petition in favor of having this project carried out. I believe it will be the abatement of a consummate nuisance, and that this is the only way it can be abated. It is due not only to the people residing in that section, but in all sections, as it will abate a great public nuisance.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The Public Park question appears to be narrowed down to abating a nuisance on the Back Bay. The object of the Alderman is not so much for the purpose of affording park facilities, but to abate the nuisance arising from the Stony Brook sewage; and the strangest thing to me is that the Committee on Sewers are not asked anything about it; but the report of the Committee on Sewers has not been acted upon, but had lain asleep upon the table for the last five or six weeks. We hear nothing from the gentlemen most competent to give these reports what is the most proper method of abating that nuisance. That report was made by the Committee on Sewers a month ago, but nothing has been done with it; and the whole object of it was to meet the very question which the Alderman says his order will meet. He proposes to expend according to his own estimate; they propose to spend $75,000 to accomplish the same object. The Board of Health was asked to report what can be done to abate the Back Bay nuisance, and here it lies upon the table; they are the only persons competent to do it. I will go as far as the Alderman opposite in doing anything to abate that nuisance. Whatever the Board of Health or the Committee on Sewers recommend as proper to be done to do away with the nuisance arising from the drainage from Stony Brook, and make it less intolerable to the people of the Back Bay, I will do. The Alderman gives us his figures, but I should much prefer having an estimate from the City Engineer as to the number of squares to be filled, the area to be filled with loam, and the area to be covered with a pond, the cost of building driveways, walks, and all that will be required to put it in such a condition that people can go there and enjoy it as a park should be enjoyed. If it is a mere question of health and drainage, the report of the Committee on Sewers should be adopted, and the opinion of the Superintendent of Sewers should be asked. I noticed in the last debate that it was not intended to make the loan this year; that they were going to wait until the Legislature authorizes a thirty-year loan. Pass this order for $450,000, and you will be obliged to issue a ten-year loan. The Legislature cannot make an ex post facto law and change a ten-year loan to a thirty-year loan. I can see no necessity for authorizing the Treasurer to issue scrip for $450,000 if we are to have power to make a thirty-year loan, for it will be of no use. I should like to have further information about this question, and I hope this Board will know definitely the exact amount this Back Bay park will cost. We have the exact price per foot mentioned in the order, but we have no estimate from the City Engineer what it will cost to fill it, as we had in the report of the Committee on Parks. The park recommended by the committee covers but eighty-five acres, that of the Alderman covers one hundred acres of water to be filled up. If I should make an estimate I should put it somewhere in the neighborhood of millions, and not four or five hundred thousand dollars. It is better to have an official estimate than to rely upon the figures of individuals. I presume the noses are all counted and that the order will pass this evening; but I hope the Board will know the cost of this park and the amount of money to be expended under this order.

Alderman Clark—My estimates were obtained from the City Surveyor and Engineer, and the figures can be relied upon. I am not competent to estimate the cost of filling either 100 acres or twenty-five squares. The question was asked what it will cost for the loam, and I had an estimate by the City Engineer and City Surveyor, with the result precisely as I have stated. The figures are not imaginary. Any one here knows that in the area of 100 acres one half at least would be used for walks and a water park, and therefore the cost of loaming would be reduced one half at least. The filling with ashes and street sweepings was something I did not think of before, but I am glad to have thought of it. I understand it has become a very serious question, what shall be done with the ashes collected here in the winter time. Here is a place to deposit and put them to good use, viz., abate a nuisance, and in a few years make that territory a fine section of the city. It is not presumed that if we wait a fortnight longer we can tell what it will cost to make this land like the Public Garden; but I have given the figures of what the filling will cost. The simple construction of the sewer will not abate the nuisance. No doubt $75 will abate a part of this nuisance, for it is not presumed that it can be done entirely without doing something with the sewage matter which now comes upon the flats, no more than it is going to be abated by simply diverting the sewage from the flats. I hope we shall get upon this question tonight. As the Alderman says, I have no doubt the order will pass. I believe the Board too much in earnest to refuse to pass this order.

Alderman Viles—A great deal has been said in regard to the report of the Committee on Sewers on this nuisance—what it can do, and what it cannot do. Before we act upon this question, I should like the Board to visit this location in company with the Superintendent of Sewers, and let him explain what he can do. He says he can take all that sewage from Stony Brook and carry it into Charles River, and relieve all that district of the nuisance. If the Board will set a day, we can examine not only this sewer, but the site of the proposed park.

Alderman Clark—I don't deny what the Superintendent of Sewers can do; but the simple taking of the sewage into Charles River does not remedy the evil. You have a bog hole there, and the removal of the sewage does not remedy the evil. That is only a part of the scheme. You cannot get rid of the nuisance until the sewage is removed and the territory filled up. The Committee on Sewers recommended this sewer three years ago, and it is part of my plan. When the sewage is taken out and the area filled, you will be rid of this trouble and not before.

Alderman O'Brien—I call the attention of the Board to a very important fact. This question has been considered by the most important commission ever appointed in this city, and here is what they say about it. The report on the sewerage of Boston (City Doc. No. 3 of 1876, page 15) refers to this Back Bay region as follows:

"Between Dorchester Bay and Charles River we have a surface a thousand rods long, about half as deep at its widest part, and only six feet above extreme high tide. If this territory should be largely occupied by houses of an inferior class, thorough sewerage, at best a difficult matter, would be made even more so."

That is what that commission, composed of the most talented engineers in this country, say of the Back Bay Basin, and the difficulty of remedying this evil.

"A reservation of land, therefore, especially with an open water basin, as proposed by the late Governor Andrew, could not fail to be of great benefit to the city in a sanitary point of view."

You see that is precisely the fact. Sewerage will not remedy this nuisance. It penetrates every house at the South End, and every dwelling house to the Brookline line. I am surprised that the city of Boston hesitates year after year to abate this nuisance. We might visit this spot with the Superintendent of Sewers, but I don't believe we would get any information that would enlighten us more than the Sewerage Commission have done. In recommending this $75,000 he has no idea of filling up the land; but in building that sewer you make a still greater nuisance. Charles River is a nuisance today, and if you run Stony Brook into it you will make a still greater nuisance. He merely recommends this as a temporary measure. Besides building this sewer he says you will have to dredge the territory, and if you dredge it and build the sewer you will have to spend at least $150,000. If you intend to lay out that part of the city as it ought to be, if you intend to preserve the hundred millions of property at the South End, you must resort to some other expedient than this temporary sewer, for after all it is only a temporary relief. Perfect sewerage is difficult at all times. Our City Engineer says he would not sleep in a room connected with our sewers, with all the most approved plumbing connected with them. I do not believe this territory will be put in the condition it ought to be until this improvement is completed.

Alderman Thompson—As I have stated before, I would like to know what this improvement is to cost, and what it is proposed to do there. If you vote for the park what is to be done with the sewer? and if we carry out the suggestions of the Sewer Committee, are you going to have the park with the sewage emptying into it? The plan seems to be imperfect. Then the Alderman says it will cost $150,000 for the soiling and loam.

Alderman Clark—One hundred and eight thousand dollars.

Alderman Thompson—I was desirous of voting for this improvement, but wanted some information before doing so. The engineer gives me the cost of filling at about seventeen cents per square foot, which will amount to $775,000 on the hundred acres. The cost of soiling the same will be about fifteen cents per square foot, which amounts to $675,000. Add that to the $450,000, and we have $1,900,000, simply for the filling, the soiling, and the cost of the land. I really desire to see something done to abate the nuisance on the Back Bay; I want to do what is the best thing for the city; but I want to know the cost of the improvement, and in that view I offer the following as a substitute for the order before the Board:

Ordered, That the Park Commissioners be requested to select an area not exceeding 100 acres of land or flats on the Back Bay, west of Parker street, suitable for a pond, land and water park; and to submit to the City Council a plan thereof, together with estimates of the sums required for the purchase of the said lands or flats; also to suggest an outline of such improvements as would be necessary to convert said area into a public park, and, if practicable, to submit also the approximate cost per acre of such proposed improvement.

Alderman Clark—I hope the substitute will not be adopted. It simply means delay. It will take six months to make a plain estimate of the cost of laying it out in driveways. That is the work of years. It is not to be the work of five years. Meantime we suffer from this nuisance out there which ought to have been abated years ago. I think the Alderman wants to vote for the order, and will, if the substitute does not prevail. My figures were obtained from the City Engineer. The Alderman makes them different. If filled solid and covered with loam one foot in depth for 100 acres, it will take 217,800 loads, containing twenty cubic feet each. The price per load, as paid last year, was fifty cents, making the cost of the loam $108,900. I will agree to do it at that price.

Alderman Gibson—We have now got this down to a point where we can afford to support it. I was opposed to taking in the entire scheme; but we have got down to the Sodom and Gomorrah, where no private man will put his hands into his pocket to improve it for fifteen years. It is in the best part of the city. I don't believe gentlemen will be willing to sell it for less ten years hence. This mudhole certainly lies in the direct line of prosperity. The land can be bought for ten cents a foot, and many of our heaviest taxpayers indorse it. People want employment, and if we can put three or four feet on that land we will soon realize in taxes a large portion of what we spend. In fifty years from now you cannot buy that land for $1.50 a foot. We can shoulder this scheme and carry it, and it is the best investment we can make, and individuals will build and settle there in a few years.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Long ago a gentleman on his way to Tarsus had a change come over him, and was suddenly converted. The men and women were very much surprised at it, I have no doubt, but no more than I am at the sudden conversion of my friend. I looked up to him for encouragement. He always had a kind word for me. He was in a position toward me like the li boy who stood behind his little dog and patted him on the back while he was fighting. But he has changed his mind, and gone in another direction. I thought from his speeches he was opposed to anything of the kind this year; that he only went for articles of prime necessity this year, and that parks could be deferred a little longer. But he sees something in the Back Bay to improve upon, and it is useless for me to fight this question any longer here. The one necessary vote, for which this question has been sleeping and slumbering and sighing for three or four weeks, has been found, and the Back Bay Park is to be an accomplished fact, so far as the Board of Aldermen is concerned. I hope the Alderman will stick to his resolution if any amendment to the Back Bay Park is tacked on by the other branch. I remember a few weeks ago we introduced an order to pave Columbus avenue with either asphalt or granite blocks, and the order was referred back because this Board wanted to know the exact amount which it would cost, when it was known that it would not exceed $65,000. Those who voted for parks now voted to recommit that order to obtain information. Here is an important question upon which there is a difference of estimate of fourteen or fifteen hundred thousand dollars, and we are told it is useless to discuss the question. If we are to spend anything, we should know what is the approximate cost of filling, grading, laying out in walks.

Alderman Gibson—It is no new thing with me. Ten years ago I advocated buying this section and making a reservoir to take the sewage into Charles River and flush the sewers. If you let in fresh water from the river and close it up at high water and open it at low water you will sweep out the entire sewers of the South End clean every twenty-four hours. That is why I go for this park. I think a round million will make that a fine locality such as people will go to.

Alderman O'Brien—Before this subject was discussed in this Board, the Alderman from East Boston expressed himself in favor of making a water park on the Back Bay to remedy this nuisance.

Alderman Burnham—I propose to vote against this order; so there is no doubt about my position. I agree with what has been said about entering into this scheme without sufficient information. I am surprised at the course this matter has taken. How much nuisance are we to abate by taking one 100 acres and leaving another 100 uncovered? If we are to do anything for the interests at stake let us do it well. In investigating the intercepting system I have learned that the proposed sewer can be made available for that system, and the sewage from this district turned into it. In the remarks I made before I gave some figures from engineering sources showing that $25,000 spent in covering over the deposit would make it livable for one or two, or three or five years. No objection would be urged that we were making Charles River objectionable; but after the dredging this deposit would be ten feet under water.

Alderman Clark—I am glad to hear the Alderman say this sewage can be taken out into the intercepting sewer before a great while. No one will suppose that this territory can be sweetened by filling in the land unless something is done by sewerage. When the land is filled, private individuals will carry on the improvement. It would be delightful if we could figure up to a dollar what the improvement of this territory will cost for the next hundred years; but it cannot be done.

Alderman Gibson—I do not know what it has cost to fill up the Northampton and other districts that the city was compelled to take. Suppose the State should oblige us to take this land and fill it up, it would cost fifty cents a foot, whereas we can buy it now for ten.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Those districts were taken by acts of the Legislature passed in accordance with the petitions of the city of Boston. The Legislature has never compelled the city to take any of those districts.

Alderman Thompson reminded the Board of Alderman Gibson's former position on the subject, and read the speech made by him on June 11 in regard to the articles of prime necessity which should first receive attention.

Alderman Gibson replied that that was said in connection with this whole chain of parks.

Alderman O'Brien thought the adoption of the amendment would be trifling with the whole subject.

The substitute was rejected—yeas 4, nays 8; Alderman Burnham, Fitzgerald, Thompson and Viles voting yea.

The order as amended was passed—yeas 8, nays Yeas—Aldermen Breck, Clark, Dunbar, Gibson, O'Brien, Robinson, Slade, Wilder—8.

Nays—Aldermen Burnham, Fitzgerald, Thompson, Viles—4.

A motion to reconsider, by Alderman Clark, was lost. Sent down.

EXCURSION TO WATER WORKS.

On motion of Alderman Slade, the order for City Messenger to arrange for a visit of the City Council to Sudbury River, on Tuesday, July 10, next, was taken from the table and passed in concurrence—yeas 11, nays 1; Alderman Fitzgerald voting nay.

The order to invite the Water Board, Engineers and reporters on said visit was taken from the table and passed in concurrence.

MUSICAL EXHIBITIONS.

On motion of Alderman Thompson, the order to notify the School Committee that in future the consent of this Board must be had for the participation of school children in musical exhibitions, etc., was taken from the table and indefinitely postponed.

SALARIES OF EMPLOYEES IN PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

Alderman Viles offered an order—That the City Solicitor be requested to give his opinion to the City Council in regard to the power of the Board of Directors for Public Institutions in establishing the salaries of the officers and employes of the several institutions under their charge. Passed. Sent down.

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman O'Brien.

CITY OF BOSTON

Proceedings of the German Council

JULY 6, 1877.

Meeting on July 6, 1877, at the office of the Mayor, Boston.

Present: Mayor, Aldermen, and members of the German Council.

Report of the Committee on the German Council.

The Committee on the German Council has the honor to report that it has had the pleasure of receiving from the German Consul, Herr von Schlegel, a copy of the German Municipal Code, which has been translated into English by the Hon. Mr. [Name], and is now in the hands of the Council.

The Committee has also had the pleasure of receiving from the German Consul a copy of the German Municipal Code, which has been translated into English by the Hon. Mr. [Name], and is now in the hands of the Council.

The Committee has also had the pleasure of receiving from the German Consul a copy of the German Municipal Code, which has been translated into English by the Hon. Mr. [Name], and is now in the hands of the Council.

The Committee has also had the pleasure of receiving from the German Consul a copy of the German Municipal Code, which has been translated into English by the Hon. Mr. [Name], and is now in the hands of the Council.

The Committee has also had the pleasure of receiving from the German Consul a copy of the German Municipal Code, which has been translated into English by the Hon. Mr. [Name], and is now in the hands of the Council.

The Committee has also had the pleasure of receiving from the German Consul a copy of the German Municipal Code, which has been translated into English by the Hon. Mr. [Name], and is now in the hands of the Council.

The Committee has also had the pleasure of receiving from the German Consul a copy of the German Municipal Code, which has been translated into English by the Hon. Mr. [Name], and is now in the hands of the Council.

The Committee has also had the pleasure of receiving from the German Consul a copy of the German Municipal Code, which has been translated into English by the Hon. Mr. [Name], and is now in the hands of the Council.

The Committee has also had the pleasure of receiving from the German Consul a copy of the German Municipal Code, which has been translated into English by the Hon. Mr. [Name], and is now in the hands of the Council.

The Committee has also had the pleasure of receiving from the German Consul a copy of the German Municipal Code, which has been translated into English by the Hon. Mr. [Name], and is now in the hands of the Council.

The Committee has also had the pleasure of receiving from the German Consul a copy of the German Municipal Code, which has been translated into English by the Hon. Mr. [Name], and is now in the hands of the Council.

The Committee has also had the pleasure of receiving from the German Consul a copy of the German Municipal Code, which has been translated into English by the Hon. Mr. [Name], and is now in the hands of the Council.

The Committee has also had the pleasure of receiving from the German Consul a copy of the German Municipal Code, which has been translated into English by the Hon. Mr. [Name], and is now in the hands of the Council.

The Committee has also had the pleasure of receiving from the German Consul a copy of the German Municipal Code, which has been translated into English by the Hon. Mr. [Name], and is now in the hands of the Council.

The Committee has also had the pleasure of receiving from the German Consul a copy of the German Municipal Code, which has been translated into English by the Hon. Mr. [Name], and is now in the hands of the Council.

minutes of the meeting of the German Council, which was held on the 6th of July, 1877, at the office of the Mayor, Boston.

The meeting was presided over by the Mayor, and the following members of the Council were present: [List of names]

The first item of business was the report of the Committee on the German Council, which was read and approved.

The second item was the report of the Committee on the German Council, which was read and approved.

The third item was the report of the Committee on the German Council, which was read and approved.

The fourth item was the report of the Committee on the German Council, which was read and approved.

The fifth item was the report of the Committee on the German Council, which was read and approved.

The sixth item was the report of the Committee on the German Council, which was read and approved.

The seventh item was the report of the Committee on the German Council, which was read and approved.

The eighth item was the report of the Committee on the German Council, which was read and approved.

The ninth item was the report of the Committee on the German Council, which was read and approved.

The tenth item was the report of the Committee on the German Council, which was read and approved.

The eleventh item was the report of the Committee on the German Council, which was read and approved.

The twelfth item was the report of the Committee on the German Council, which was read and approved.

The thirteenth item was the report of the Committee on the German Council, which was read and approved.

The fourteenth item was the report of the Committee on the German Council, which was read and approved.

The fifteenth item was the report of the Committee on the German Council, which was read and approved.

The sixteenth item was the report of the Committee on the German Council, which was read and approved.

The seventeenth item was the report of the Committee on the German Council, which was read and approved.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Common Council,

JULY 5, 1877.

Regular meeting at 7.30 o'clock P. M., Benjamin Pope, President, in the chair.

MISCELLANEOUS PAPERS FROM THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Report of Paymaster of State Aid. Placed upon file.

Petitions were referred in concurrence.

References to Committee on Finance, viz.: 1. Of a report and order to add $4600 to the appropriation for Survey, etc., of Buildings, and for employment of temporary assistants, as therein set forth.

2. Of a report and order to provide for ventilation of Common Council chamber, at not exceeding $3000, as therein set forth.

Severally concurred.

Request and order for the Trustees of the Public Library to contract with Justin Winsor as Superintendent of the Library, at not exceeding $4500 per annum. Order read twice under a suspension of the rule, on motion of Mr. Pope of Ward 14, and passed in concurrence. Subsequently a motion to reconsider, by the same gentleman, hoping it would not prevail, was lost.

Request and order to obtain the opinion of the City Solicitor as to the powers of Directors for Public Institutions in establishing the salaries of their officers and employes. Order read twice and passed in concurrence.

Reports and orders to authorize permits for wooden buildings to be issued, viz.: To Eastern Slate Company, rear of Cambridge street, Ward 4; to Highland Street Railway Company, 813 Shawmut avenue. Orders severally read twice and passed.

Order to pay N. W. Johnson $25, for detection and conviction of George Warren, for stealing flowers from the Public Garden. Ordered to a second reading.

PUBLIC PARKS.

An order came down for a loan of $450,000 for the purchase of not more than 100 acres of land on the Back Bay for a park and streets connected therewith, at a price not exceeding ten cents per foot, etc.

The question was upon giving the order a second reading.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5—This is a pretty large sum of money, and as the order has been before no committee, I move its reference to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I hope that reference will not be made, but that the matter will be discussed by members of the Council, and after they have passed upon the expediency of making the appropriation will be the proper time to refer it to the Finance Committee. The order will lie over one week under the rule, and then, if it is passed we can refer the subject to the Committee on Finance; but this does not seem to me to be the proper time for the reference.

Mr. Sibley—In the Joint Rules of the City Council I find article 17—

"When application shall be made for an additional appropriation to be provided for by transfer or loan, such appropriation shall not be made until the application has been referred to and reported upon by the Committee on Finance."

It seems to me that this thing should be laid before some committee, and that is my object in making the motion. If we pass the order it looks to me as though it will be out of the hands of the committee, for then we shall have passed it. I hope it will be referred.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—The gentleman neglects to state that this matter must first be passed upon by the City Council, who are to decide whether they will ask for an appropriation. If we vote in favor of it then it goes to the Committee on Finance. If it be referred before it is passed the committee will have nothing to say. It seems to me that this matter ought first to be discussed and passed upon by the Council, and then be referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—The order makes a direct appropriation, authorizing the Treasurer to borrow the money under the direction of the Committee on Finance. Under our rules, it seems to me that the gentleman's motion is the proper one to make.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I still hold to my opinion, that unless the majority of the Council pass the order it is not proper to refer it to that committee. If the order is rejected there will be no necessity for referring it to the committee. The question first is, Does the Council wish to establish a park? and when that is settled the matter can be referred to the Finance Committee to provide the means.

Mr. Sampson—This is an order directing the Treasurer to borrow money, and will require a two-thirds vote, and I ask the ruling of the Chair whether it can be passed before reference to the Committee on Finance without a suspension of the rule.

The President—It is in the hands of the Council to refer to the Finance Committee if the Council so decide.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—The gentleman from Ward 17 forgets that there may be considerable discussion upon the order; that its shape may possibly be changed by amendment, or that it may never get to the stage of a second reading. Undoubtedly, if the Council once pass it to a second reading, or give it a second reading and say that it intends to pass it finally, either in its present or a modified shape, under our joint rules before it is finally passed it must go to the Finance Committee. This is a matter in which there is considerable public interest, and it may, perhaps, be discussed at considerable length before it is finally passed; and to send it to the Finance Committee now, before there has been discussion upon it, will be merely putting it asleep until after our vacation. I should hope that it would not be referred to the Finance Committee without they intend to report within a week; and even then, if the order is rejected the committee will have been put to the trouble of holding a useless meeting. I think the committee will be safe to let it take its regular course.

Mr. Coe of Ward 13—It seems to me that the gentleman from Ward 13 is correct—that the Finance Committee have nothing to do with this subject until it is finally settled by the Council and the Board of Aldermen. Suppose we refer it, and the Finance Committee report it back to this body; and suppose we amend it by increasing the appropriation, it would have to go to the committee again. I hope the Council will not refer it to the Finance Committee, but keep it before us until we pass or refuse to pass the order.

Mr. Sampson—I think the gentleman last up is in error, as well as the gentleman from Ward 13, and that the gentleman from Ward 9 is correct, and that it may be referred to the Finance Committee on the first or second reading. I ask the ruling of the Chair whether it must not be referred before it is finally passed.

The President—The Chair thinks it would, before it is finally passed.

Mr. Sampson—Then I think the motion is right.

The President—The law provides for a loan, and it is not absolutely necessary that the order should go to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—Under the rules it will have to lie over one week. If the gentleman's theory is correct the Council have nothing to say about it.

Mr. Sibley—This order seems to be very conclusive, comprehensive, and to come to the point. It is for a loan of $450,000, and the object is stated. I see but very few variations in it, and I think every one understands it. But it has been before no committee. If this order is passed, directing the City Treasurer to borrow that money, the Finance Committee will have nothing to do but to walk up and advise what is the best way to hire the money. I would amend my motion by adding that the Finance Committee be instructed to report within four weeks, according to the rules.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—It don't seem to me that it is hardly in proper shape to send it to the Committee on Finance. I may be mistaken, but I think we don't know whether we want $450,000 or $650,000. It seems to me we have got to fix upon some plan or some amount; and if we send it to the Finance Committee we shall cut off all other plans or amendments we may wish to have. It seems to me the reference will be taking a different course from what matters of this kind have usually taken. If it is to be sent to the Finance Committee, I hope it will be at some later stage than it has reached tonight. I am satisfied that there is going to be a good deal of discussion upon this, which, it seems to me, should be had before we send it to the Finance Committee. I fully agree with the gentleman that it should go to the Finance Committee; but it seems to me that this is not the proper time.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 11—In my experience in this Council I have never known a proceeding like that proposed by the gentleman from Ward 5 in regard to this order. It would seem as if this order should be passed or rejected by this Council before it went to the Committee on Finance. They have nothing to do with the subject until the order is passed or rejected. If it is rejected, there is no need of referring it to the committee; and until it is acted upon in its present shape, there is no need of referring it to any committee. If the order is passed, then, in the regular order of business, it will go to the Finance Committee, for them to see where the money can be raised.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—The reason for referring an order of this kind to the Finance Committee is that they may consider and report whether the city has resources by which the money can be raised. If, for instance, we wish to make an appropriation of six hundred thousand dollars, it is wise, before making the appropriation, to take the advice of those to whom we have intrusted the matter to say whether we can make the loan or not. The only question for the committee to consider now is whether the city of Boston can raise $450,000, and how it shall be raised. But if we change the order, and make the amount $650,000, then the reference will be of no effect, for they will have said nothing about $650,000, and we will have to send it back to them to see where we can raise $650,000. A reference to them will be a useless waste of time. This is a matter which is to be discussed here upon its merits, and in the Finance Committee the question will be how the money shall be raised.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I am somewhat surprised at the statement of the gentleman from Ward 11, who is a member of the Finance Committee. Here are two orders for additional appropriations on our programme which came down to be referred to the Committee on Finance, and we have concurred. It is the rule of the City Council that when money is asked for, the subject is sent to the Finance Committee first, and is then acted upon by the Council. The motion of the gentleman from Ward 5 is proper either at this stage or the next, for before the order is passed it must go to the Finance Committee; and the only way to avoid it is to suspend the rule.

Mr. Thompson—Undoubtedly the motion is a proper one, but circumstances materially alter cases. We all know there will be considerable discussion over this order, and that questions will be raised as to the amount. In the opinion of some gentlemen the amount is too large; in that of others it is not large enough. Would it be wise to refer it now—which would be perfectly proper and parliamentary under our rules—when we will almost necessarily be compelled to refer it again?

Mr. Sibley—I don't know as I understand the English language, but I believe I do. [Mr. Sibley again read joint rule 17.] Is there anything more plain in the English language than that? This is a loan of $450,000 asked for; and how are we going to get around the rule? It must be made by transfer or loan.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—It seems to me the question raised here in regard to the other two orders on the programme does not apply here. Committees have decided upon them, but we do not know how much we need. We have not made up our minds. I think we had better discuss it here, get what amendments are likely to be put upon it, and when it is passed will be time to send it to the Finance Committee; and if we kill it there will be no need of sending it to them.

The motion to refer to the Finance Committee was lost.

On motion of Mr. Flynn of Ward 13, the yeas and nays were ordered, and the order was passed to a second reading—yeas 32, nays 26.

Yeas—Messrs. Brown, Burke, Clarke, Coe, Crocker, Danforth, Day, Duggan, Felt, J. J. Flynn, Jackson, Kidney, Loughlin, McClusky, McDonald, Mowry, Nugent, O'Connor, Pearl, Perham, Pratt, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Shepard, Spenceley, Thompson, Thorndike, Vose, E. R. Webster, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—32.

Nays—Messrs. Barnard, Beeching, Blanchard, Blodgett, Brintnall, Cannon, Doherty, Fagan, D. A. Flynn, Fraser, Hibbard, Howes, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), McGaragle, Morrill, O'Donnell, J. H. Pierce, Pope, Reed, Roach, Roberts, Sampson, Sibley, Stone, Upham,—26.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Barry, Cox, Cross, Dee, Fernald, Ham, Hiscock, Mullane, O. H. Pierce, Ruffin, Smardon, Souther, Warren—13.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Order to refund $186.20 to Joseph F. Dearborn—the dividend on policies of insurance of city on estates on Emerald and Middlesex streets, and paid by said Dearborn. Passed in concurrence.

Order requesting Street Commissioners to lay out Ninth street, South Boston, on the conditions therein set forth.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I should like to hear from some one on the committee how much that street extension is to cost.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—If the abutters give their land, the cost of building that street will be somewhere in the vicinity of $15,000 for the filling. The provisions of the order compel the abutters to give the land and build retaining walls, and the city will do the filling.

The order was passed in concurrence.

PRINTING AT THE PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 presented the following:

OFFICE OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS } FOR PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS, }
July 2, 1877. }

To the Honorable the City Council: Gentlemen—The Board of Directors for Public Institutions would respectfully represent that for a long time they have been deeply impressed with the great importance of providing some means of teaching such trades as might be practicable to the boys in the House of Reformation, at Deer Island. The want of room has been the great obstacle. The removal of the children to the Marcella-street Home has afforded room to a limited extent, which has been availed of for the purpose of introducing printing. A teacher has been employed and a printing office of limited capacity has been furnished, and a most encouraging and satisfactory beginning has been made. What might have been deemed an experiment seems already a success. The boys take a great interest in the work, learn rapidly, and will soon be able to make the printing office an important auxiliary to the institution, affording them a means of livelihood when they shall enter upon the duties of life outside the institution. They are now able to execute much of the work of the city in a satisfactory manner, as we believe. This board would most respectfully, but earnestly, request the City Council to instruct the Committee on Printing and the Superintendent of Printing, and the several departments of the city, to forward to the office of the Board of Directors such orders for printing as may be required by them and can be executed by the boys at the island. The board would also ask that the Committee on Printing be instructed to make such provision, in any contract for printing which they may make, as will allow any and all work which can be satisfactorily done at the island to be given to the institution. The board believe that the amount which can be saved to the city will not be inconsiderable, while the advantages of the office will be great, and a priceless boon bestowed upon the boys under our care, who can be taught the art of printing. Believing that the honorable Council will heartily cooperate with the Board of Directors, I am, gentlemen, your obedient servant.

SAMUEL LITTLE, President.

Referred, on motion of Mr. Flynn of Ward 13, to the Joint Committee on Printing. Sent up.

PETITIONS PRESENTED.

By Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—Petition of Michael Doherty for refunding of taxes.

By Mr. Hibbard of Ward 17—Petition of Bridget Develin for compensation for injuries received on North Market street.

Severally referred to Joint Committee on Claims. Sent up.

By Mr. Day of Ward 4—Petition of Edward Lawrence and 700 others for the abatement of a nuisance in the Charlestown District. Referred to Joint Committee on Health. Sent up.

CHELSEA BRIDGE.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9 submitted a report from the Committee on the Judiciary on the order authorizing the Mayor to procure releases from certain corporations of all claims on account of the construction of Chelsea Bridge, recommending the passage of the accompanying preamble and order in lieu of the order referred to the committee:

Whereas, The city of Boston is authorized to reconstruct the portion of Chelsea Bridge which it is bound by law to maintain, and is also authorized to make solid certain portions of said bridge, it is hereby Ordered, That his Honor the Mayor be authorized, in behalf of the city, to procure from the Oriental Coal Oil Company releases of all claims which said company may now or hereafter have against the city by reason of the reconstruction and filling in of said bridge with a width not exceeding sixty-six feet, whether such claims arise by reason of the filling and occupation of the flats now adjacent to the present structure of said bridge, or by reason of the alteration of the grade of said bridge; and that the Mayor be also authorized to procure from said company an agreement that the city may occupy with the slopes of the aforesaid filling the land of the said company beyond the location of said bridge, as widened, so far as may be necessary or convenient for said slopes, and that the said company will maintain the sides of said filling without expense to the city; and that the Mayor be further authorized to release to said company all claim of the city upon or to land or flats on either side of said bridge, beyond said width of sixty-six feet, and also to release said company from any claims for betterments which might be assessed on it by reason of the reconstruction of said bridge.

Preamble and order passed to a second reading.

MYSTIC VALLEY SEWER.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3 submitted a report from the committee on conference with a committee of the other branch in relation to the difference on the matter of the order for the construction of the Mystic Valley sewer, recommending the passage of the following in lieu of the order upon which the branches disagree:

Ordered, That in the construction of the Mystic Valley sewer the Boston Water Board be authorized and instructed to have the work done by day labor, and that the board be recommended to employ no persons in the construction of said sewer who are not citizens of Boston.

Order read twice and passed. Subsequently a motion to reconsider, by Mr. Kelley of Ward 3, was lost. Sent up.

THANKS TO FOURTH OF JULY ORATOR.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20 offered an order—That the thanks of the City Council are due and they are hereby tendered to the Honorable William Wirt Warren for the very appropriate, interesting and eloquent oration delivered by him before the municipal authorities of this city, on the one hundred and first anniversary of the Declaration of American Independence, and that he be requested to furnish a copy of the same for publication. Read twice and passed. Sent up.

NUISANCE IN CHARLESTOWN.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3 offered an order—That the Committee on Health be requested to give a public hearing in relation to the nuisance now existing on the westerly portion of the Charlestown District, and also to report to the City Council what action, if any, should be taken by the City Council in order that said nuisance may be abated. Read twice and passed. Sent up.

THE VISIT TO SUDBURY RIVER.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6 offered an order—That the City Messenger be authorized to invite the members of the Joint Standing Committee on Water of 1876 to attend the visit of the City Council to the Sudbury River Water Works on the 10th instant. Read twice and passed. Sent up.

COST OF THE BACK BAY PARK.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10 offered an order—That the Committee on Finance be instructed to obtain estimates of the actual cost of the land, and also of the filling, and also of the sub-soiling of the Back Bay Park, so called, embraced in the order passed to a second reading at this meeting, and report at the next meeting an order providing the means.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—It must be obvious to any one that the object of this order is to bring the matter before us in some definite and tangible shape when it comes before us for discussion and final disposition. It is for the Finance Committee to furnish us with estimates of the cost of the proposed park, thus enabling us to see exactly, as near as possible, what it will cost, ascertain if an appropriation can be made and a loan effected, and in all respects to furnish this branch with as certain, definite and reliable means of information in regard to the matter as possible, so that we can discuss it intelligently and understandingly. I have asked that it may go to the Finance Committee, because, as is perfectly understood, it must go to that committee some time, and it seemed better to give it to them than to the Committee on Parks, although very possibly the Committee on Parks can give us that information. I have no objection to its going to both committees, but it must go to the Finance Committee and I have no doubt they can furnish us with the information sought for. It will occasion very little delay, as they will report to the next meeting. The object and purpose of the order is to get information of a reliable character, so that when this matter comes before us for discussion we can have some certain, definite information and data to talk upon, and vote understandingly.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—There certainly can be no objection to the order; but the proper committee to obtain the desired information is the Committee on Parks. It is the purpose for which they were especially appointed, and they are prepared to furnish the information now. I would have no objection to the reference to the Committee on Finance if it could be considered as the final reference to them. But it is not, for when we came to act on the original order, we must refer it to that committee again. The reference of a subsidiary order cannot take the place of the reference of the original order. I would ask the ruling of the Chair upon that—whether the reference of this matter to the Finance Committee would make it necessary afterwards to refer the original order to that committee before its final passage.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—One single word, before your Honor rules upon the point. I would call your Honor's attention to the concluding lines of this order, asking the Committee on Finance to report an appropriation. If they do that I do not see the reason for its going to that committee again, as the order covers the whole ground, although drawn very hastily within the last few moments. I am almost of the mind of the gentleman from Ward 5, who introduced the motion to refer it to the Finance Committee, as it has to go there some time. I think there is some force in the argument he made, that whenever an application is made for an additional appropriation it must go there some time; but it does not seem necessary to send it to them again.

Mr. Thompson—The gentleman has somewhat turned attention from the point to which I called the attention of the Chair; and I will call your attention to the concluding lines of the order, which provide that the Finance Committee shall report an appropriation sufficient to cover not only the cost of buying the land, of subsoiling, but also of filling. That is not the question before the Council. The question is whether we shall make a sufficient appropriation to purchase the land. In discussing that it will be necessary to know what will be required to put the park in complete shape; but the order now before us does not contemplate making an appropriation for that purpose. That will be for this or some future Council to decide afterwards. All that the Finance Committee have to consider is, Can the city of Boston raise $450,000 for the purchase of the land? The order we have acted upon has nothing to do with the filling; and the concluding lines of this order refer to something which is not contemplated now. We cannot tell how much will be necessary to complete the park. The City Government may say it is not necessary to carry it out at once; they may say it is expedient to take advantage of the times and make this appropriation for the land and stop there, and that that is all they want to do this year. Now let us confine ourselves to the matter before us. The first question is, Will we appropriate a sufficient sum for the purchase of the land? Upon that we want some information, and the proper committee to give it is the Committee on Parks. The Finance Committee is composed of gentlemen whom I respect, and I would have no objection to referring it to them, except that they want it referred to them. I do not see for what reason they want to step out of their position in this body. The proper committee to report the facts is the Committee on Parks. If they report false facts, then your duty is to take that duty from their hands. The Committee on Parks will give all the facts.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I cannot see what the Finance Committee have to do with the filling or grading. That is entirely out of their province, and I cannot see why that matter should be referred to them. Their province in this matter is that when the appropriation is to be made, or any money is to be expended, they are to furnish the means. I cannot see what they have to do with making estimates of the cost of filling this land. We had a committee appointed for that purpose, and I should favor having all matters within their province referred to them. I do not believe in taking out of a committee's hands matters for which they were specially appointed.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—It would be discourteous to take this matter from the committee appointed at the first of the year to consider this matter and refer it to the Committee on Finance. They have given this matter a great deal of attention and can furnish the City Council with many facts more readily, perhaps, than the Finance Committee can. I move to amend by striking out "Committee on Finance," and inserting "Committee on Parks."

The President—The Chair thinks that is not the proper way to amend the order, as the reference to a standing committee takes precedence over a reference to a special committee.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—I put it in that way to save time. Several gentlemen stated that they know all about it. The gentleman from Ward 9 knows all about it, and the Committee on Finance cannot bull-doze or deceive him. But every gentleman knows that some committee must give us the cost. The order provides for $450,000; but no one believes you can take a piece of land at random and that the price will foot up exactly that amount. The Finance Committee can figure it up and tell how much it will cost, and then give us separately the cost of the land, filling, sub-soiling, etc. I presume the Committee on Parks can do that, but the object of the order is the economy of time and to save sending it to the Finance Committee again. The rules do not state explicitly at what stage of the application it must go to the Finance Committee; but it must go there some time. You cannot avoid that. Gentlemen who desire an appropriation for public parks seem to have a fear of the Finance Committee. They cannot help its going there. This order did not emanate from any committee, and certainly it is not for any interest one way or the other.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I would ask the Chair to reconsider his ruling with regard to the admissibility of the amendment of the gentleman from Ward 13. I believe the Chair ruled that the amendment was not in order. I would suggest whether it would not be proper to rule that when the question is taken it must be first taken upon the reference to the Finance Committee. Joint rule 47 says—

"When a motion is made to refer any subject, and different committees are proposed, the question shall be taken in the following order: A standing committee of the Council; a select committee of the Council; a joint standing committee; a joint select committee."

That does not say that a motion to refer shall not be in order except when made in this way. I conceive that a motion to refer to any committee would be in order; but the question should be taken first on the Joint Standing Committee on Finance, and afterwards on the Joint Select Committee on Parks; otherwise, if the Council are not ready to refer this matter to the Committee on Finance, we should reject it altogether.

The President—The gentleman is correct. The Chair intended to rule that the reference to the Committee on Finance takes precedence of the reference to the Committee on Parks, one being a standing and the other a special committee.

Mr. Sibley—Does not the order for $450,000 appropriate the money?

The President—It is an appropriation—a loan.

Mr. Sibley—Then rule 17 says such money shall not be appropriated until it is referred to the Committee on Finance. Now is that rule of any effect or not?

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—Will the Chair entertain my amendment now?

The President—The gentleman's amendment will be put after the reference to the Finance Committee is decided.

Mr. Flynn—But I understood the Chair to rule that it could not be entertained.

The President—It can be put after the other reference is decided.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—It seems to me there is no precedent for asking the Committee on Finance to consider questions of this kind. They are a committee on finance alone, and are not to go into the work of other departments. If you want to build a new schoolhouse it is referred to the Committee on Public Instruction; if you want to know anything about health matters, it is referred to the Committee on Health; if you want to know anything about parks, it should be referred to the Committee on Parks or the Park Commissioners. I believe there is no precedent for requesting the Finance Committee to go outside of matters relating to finance.

Mr. Barnard of Ward 24—We have a committee of the City Council who always give us full information when we request them. We have hardly had any report from them recently, and I would move its reference to the Committee on Retrenchment.

The President—The Chair thinks that motion not in order now.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—The order requires the committee to report an order for an appropriation. No gentleman will claim or argue that an order for an appropriation can be sent to any other than the Finance Committee. If you refer it to any other committee, so much of it as relates to the appropriation must be stricken out. In view of all the facts which have been published within the past three months I do not think it necessary to send it to the Park Committee. If the Finance Committee go to the proper heads of departments they can get estimates of the work and the amount necessary to be appropriated. It seems absurd to send it to any other committee so long as the law provides the way in which the appropriation shall be made. After the Finance Committee report at the next meeting, if the Council desire to send it to the Committee on Parks for further information—or if the information furnished is not reliable—it can be referred to another committee. It does not bind any one. I say, in all frankness, that I am not in sympathy with those who are against parks or for them. I do not know whether I shall vote for the purchase of this land on the Back Bay or not; but in discussing any question, nothing is more desirable than first to define the thing about which we talk and then we can discuss it like intelligent men. We want to know how much it will cost and how and when we can secure a loan, and the Finance Committee can furnish us with as much information as any other.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—The gentleman's order is ill-timed and not in order at this time, for the reason that he anticipates that the Council will purchase the land, and he wants the Finance Committee to show what the cost of filling will be first. The proper time to show that is after an order is passed to take the land. What right have they to make a calculation and submit it without first knowing whether we are going to purchase this lot of land?

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 9—It seems to me that the gentleman who offered the order in the other branch gave the estimates. He said the figures were obtained from the City Engineer and can be relied upon. If he has had the City Engineer survey this land I do not know what more we shall get than he has already stated. The committee would probably go to the same gentleman and get their figures. I think we had better let that matter alone until we decide this question, and therefore I move that the order lie upon the table.

Mr. Sibley—I hope this motion to lay on the table will not prevail. The gentleman from Ward 9 tells us the Finance Committee have nothing to do with such matters; the joint rules, article 17, tell us they have. Which knows best? I would ask the ruling of the Chair as to the meaning of rule 17.

The President—The Chair rules that the order offered by the gentleman from Ward 10 is in order, and it will be for the Council to decide.

Mr. Perham of Ward 23 moved the Council adjourn. Lost by a division—10 for, 33 against.

Mr. Thompson—I hope the motion to lay on the table will not prevail. I understand the question is not on a motion to refer, but on an original order to instruct a committee to do thus and so. I wish to ask your ruling whether the order cannot be amended by striking out the name of the committee named therein, and inserting the name of another committee,—that being the motion of the gentleman from Ward 13.

The President—The Chair thinks that in substance it is in order to refer, and the Chair proposes to put the question in this form: Shall the words "Committee on Finance" stand as a part of the original order? And if that is rejected, the Chair will put the question, Shall the words "Committee on Parks" be inserted?

Mr. Sampson—Would it be proper for the Committee on Parks to make a recommendation for an appropriation?

The President—The Chair thinks that is not within the province of the Committee on Parks.

Mr. Danforth of Ward 10 moved to strike out all reference to the appropriation.

The President ruled the amendment out of order while the motion to table was pending.

The Council refused to lay the order on the table, by a division—18 for, 25 against.

Mr. Reed of Ward 17 called for a division of the question, favoring a reference of one portion to the Finance Committee and the other to the Committee on Parks.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—I move to amend by striking out so much as calls for a report upon the ways and means. There has been a misapprehension underlying the debate upon this question. The order now before the house is one thing; the order which the Council refused to refer to the Committee on Finance is another thing. I see no reason why the Finance Committee cannot be requested to furnish this information, as well as any other committee; and I do not see why any committee should be requested to do so at this stage. I simply rose to call attention to the fact that one portion of the rule will not be satisfied by referring one portion to the Committee on Parks and another portion to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Barnard moved the indefinite postponement of the order, which the President ruled not in order.

Mr. Pratt's amendment (to strike out the clause relating to the ways and means) was adopted—23 for, 15 against.

The Council voted to strike out the words "Committee on Finance" and insert "Special Committee on Parks."

The order as amended was read a second time and passed.

Sent up.

Subsequently Mr. Thompson moved that the order for the loan of $450,000, which had been passed to a second reading, be referred to the Finance Committee, to report at the next meeting, stating as a reason, that since the question had been ordered to a second reading, it could be finally acted upon as soon as the committee reported; whereas, if the reference had been made on Mr. Sibley's motion, a week's delay must ensue, under the rules, after the committee made its report, before final action could be taken; and as the order just introduced by the gentleman from Ward 11 showed that there was a desire to commence the annual vacation in the minds of some members of the Council, a week's delay might be of importance.

The President ruled the motion out of order, as the main question was not before the Council.

THE SUMMER VACATION.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 11 offered an order—That, when this Council adjourn on Thursday evening next, it be to meet on the first Thursday in September next at 7½ o'clock P. M.

Laid on the table, on motion of Mr. Flynn of Ward 13, who thought they might not get through the business by that time.

EXCURSION.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20 offered an order—That a committee, consisting of the President and five members of the Council, be a committee to make arrangements for an excursion of the Common Council during the month of July; the expense attending the same to be borne by the members participating.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8 asked what right they had to appoint a committee on any matter and ask the members to pay their own expenses. The order was denied a second reading.

THE SHAWMUT-AVENUE FIRE.

On motion of Mr. Sampson of Ward 17, the order for a special committee to inquire into causes of fire and loss of life at corner of Shawmut avenue and Pleasant street, and what means should be taken for protection in similar buildings, was taken from the table and indefinitely postponed.

WIDENING OF COMMERCIAL STREET.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6 called for a report from the Joint Committee on Streets on the widening of Commercial street, in pursuance of an order passed a fortnight ago.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—Since the order was put in by the gentleman a fortnight ago the committee have not been called together and the members on the part of the Council are unable to give any information.

Mr. Fraser—I offered the order asking the committee to report at the request of a great many citizens of Ward 6, knowing that the subject had been before the Committee on Streets a very long time. It places property owners down there in a very bad position. They are unable to lease their property to any advantage, or do anything else with it, to say nothing about the great disadvantage they labor under by having the Union Freight Railway occupying the sidewalk. For that reason they requested me to offer this order. I believe it has been before them ever since the commencement of the year, and it is a very strange thing to me that they cannot give the people a decided answer or not, when it is argued that no time is more appropriate than this to appropriate $450,000 for a park. I think they should give us some information.

Adjourned, on motion of Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen,

JULY 9, 1877.

Regular meeting at four o'clock P. M., his Honor the Mayor presiding.

JURORS DRAWN.

Sixty-eight traverse jurors were drawn for the April term of the Supreme Judicial Court, to meet on July 24th, instant.

EXECUTIVE NOMINATIONS.

Coal Weighers—John E. A. Mulliken and William H. Porter. Confirmed.

Police Officers, without pay—Charles G. Bennett, Colman O'Neil, Waterman K. Pryor. Confirmed.

PETITIONS REFERRED.

To the Committee on Paving. Petitions for edgestones in front of estates of Aurelia B. Robbins on Ashland street, near Park street, Dorchester; Aaron D. Williams, on Swett street; Margaret Curless, on Washington street, between Chauncy place and School street, West Roxbury; Thomas J. Allen, on Elm and Ashland streets, Ward 24.

Petition for edgestones and brick sidewalk in front of estate of Robert Ring, on Orleans and Maverick streets.

Petition for brick sidewalks in front of estates of Richard Lonergan, 214 K street; William Veech, 415 East Eighth street.

J. L. Martin et al., Horace Draper et al., and Warner & Richardson et al., against laying a track of the Metropolitan Railroad in Dartmouth street.

Metropolitan Railroad Company, for a location in Centre street from Eliot square to Cedar street.

L. Prang et al., that the city defray a portion of the expense of sprinkling Centre street, Roxbury; Pratt & Co. et al., that Walnut street, Minot street and a portion of Neponset avenue be watered by the city; Charles A. Dean et al., for crosswalks on Eliot square, Roxbury; Nathan Weston et al., that King street, Ward 24, be graded and put in order; J. A. Tucker et al., that Eustis street, between Dearborn and Adams streets, be macadamized, etc.

M. Ellis & Co., for leave to move a wooden building from Webster street to Maverick street, Ward 2.

To the Committee on Police. George Burwell, for leave to project an apothecary's mortar in front of store corner of Church street and Granville place; Thomas H. Plant, for leave to project a lantern at 493 Tremont street.

To the Committee on Market. Z. B. Bird et al., for leave to transfer lease of stall 23 New Faneuil Hall Market to Increase E. Noyes.

To the Committee on Health on the part of the Board. Petitions for leave to occupy stables—George F. Parker, old wooden, one horse, Gerrish street; Thomas Harmon, new wooden, one horse, Ashmont street; H. C. Derby, new wooden, ten horses, Winship avenue; Thomas Carey, new wooden, two horses, on passageway near Codman park.

To the Committee on Sewers. Richard Wallace, for a sewer in Commercial street, Ward 24, between Dorchester avenue and Pleasant street; George W. Rice et al., for a sewer in Maple street; J. Homer Pierce, trustee, et al., for sewer in Myrtle street, Ward 20.

To the Committee on County Buildings. Edward Avery and 150 others, lawyers, for an enlargement of the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court, Civil Session.

To the Committee on Lamps. Peter Fay et al., that Avon place be lighted with gas; William Meagher et al., that Eaton court, Roxbury, be lighted.

HEARINGS ON ORDERS OF NOTICE.

Sewers. Hearings were had on the expediency of constructing sewers in India street and Avon place. No objections, and severally recommitted to Committee on Sewers.

Highland Street Railway Company. A hearing was had on petition for location of tracks on Dartmouth and Boylston streets.

Moody Merrill, president of the company, explained the route, which is to take in the Institute of Technology, Natural History Rooms, Art Museum, and churches on the Back Bay, and will be an accommodation to a large number of persons at the Highlands and in the South End. He read a letter from Charles H. Parker of Trinity Church, in favor of the location. Mr. Merrill then called his witnesses.

M. D. Ross, one of the original petitioners for the laying out of Columbus avenue and other streets intended to make a means of easy access from the West End to the educational institutions on the Back Bay, said the whole original plan of that territory was modified to carry out that idea. He thought the location would be a great convenience to all parts of the city.

Jonathan Preston favored a track there, but had no preference for any company. The advantage of easy access to the Art Museum and other institutions will be very great to all sections of the city.

The Mayor read the remonstrances of B. W. Dunklee and Horace Hunt against the location of any street railway tracks in Dartmouth street, north of Columbus avenue.

Mr. Merrill said they did not wish to lay a track where there is any great objection, and he had held off from building the temporary location in Chandler street hoping to get a location in Dartmouth street, to be used by both the Highland and Metropolitan companies; and the same to be made permanent if, after the completion of the Columbus-avenue Bridge, it is seen there is no objection.

George P. Baldwin said he had strong objections to a permanent track in Dartmouth street. It will be really dangerous on the bridge; accidents are frequently occurring and will be more frequent if cars are there. The citizens do not object to a temporary track. Students going to the schools on the Back Bay are well accommodated at present.

Mr. Merrill desired it to be understood distinctly whether the location, if granted, is to be permanent or temporary, so that they could not be accused of getting a stepping stone to a permanent location.

Alderman Clark suggested that both the Highland and Metropolitan roads put Huntington avenue in order and lay their tracks there, which will be a benefit to them and to the city. He doubted the expediency of granting a permanent location in Dartmouth street.

C. A. Richards, president of the Metropolitan road, did not like the way Mr. Merrill had left the Metropolitan matters; he wanted Mr. Merrill's arguments to be considered in favor of the Metropolitan location. He had several letters from residents on Dartmouth street, repudiating the assumption of Mr. Martin in opposing the tracks. He understood that a testimonial was to be got up and paid for by the late opponents of tracks on Columbus avenue; and so it will be on Dartmouth street. He was willing to accept the location as temporary, if required to; but there must be a permanent location there some time, as it will be needed.

Mr. Merrill again explained his position and belief that a permanent location is needed.

Alderman Robinson asked Mr. Merrill what would become of the companies if he and Mr. Richards should shoot one another.

Mr. Merrill replied that he had no doubt the companies would go on in the same manner as at present, and with their present amicable relations.

The subject was recommitted to the Committee on Paving.

Metropolitan Railroad Company. A hearing was had on petition for leave to construct three tracks into their new car-house on Tremont street.

C. A. Richards, president, explained that the tracks were simply to enter the new car-house, formerly the skating rink.

No objections. Recommited to Committee on Paving.

South Boston Railroad Company. A hearing was had on petition for leave to reverse their curves and track connections on Sixth street, between O and P streets. No objections. Recommited to Committee on Paving.

Middlesex Railroad Company. A hearing was had on petition for a turnout track on Malden Bridge. Charles E. Powers, president of the company, explained the location asked for. There is only one occupant, a Mr. Barry, who is affected, and he does not object. No objections, and recommitted to Committee on Paving.

SOLDIERS' MONUMENT.

A communication was received from the National Lancers, tendering their services as escort on the occasion of the dedication of the Army and Navy Monument. Referred to Joint Special Committee on the Army and Navy Monument. Sent down.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

Alderman Fitzgerald presented the following:
Honorable Mayor and City Council of Boston—We, the undersigned citizens of Boston, ask leave to call your attention to an evil for which the law has provided a remedy not yet improved. Apprenticeship having departed, never to return in its ancient form, something else should take its place and give to our youth an opportunity to learn a trade. Youth should have placed within their reach such practical instruction as will enable each of them to become master of some chosen trade, art or occupation. Every youth, rich or poor, is, we believe, as much entitled to be taught a good trade as to have an education in our public schools. Youth, shut out from occupations which would insure their early independence, are denied employment for want of skilled knowledge, and the public deprived of sources of prosperity to take the place of what it has lost by the decay and consequent disuse of the former apprentice system. We are the more earnest in recommending this matter to the prompt action of the Government at this time, that a thoroughly organized system of mechanical appliances, machinery and implements for instruction, arranged by one of our citizens, whose thoughts have been devoted for years to the subject, can now be provided at little or no cost to the public treasury; and the experiment, if experiment it be, tested under circumstances more favorable than are likely to recur. The details of the plan can be better explained before your committee; but the plan itself is substantially that approved by the Social Science Association, and universally indorsed by the press. It has received the sanction of many distinguished educators, during the past year, as a substitute for the former system of our fathers. It proposes that the youth, when he has completed his common-school education in any of our public or private schools, may enter a developing school based on the fundamental principle that human nature alone, as developed and shown in its best products, should be the model and guiding star for all educational efforts. Development means self-development, guided by well-developed instructors. The developing school would be so arranged as to give all the pupils a general idea of all the different trades, arts, or callings, so that they, in a short time, with the superintendent, could ascertain the kind of business for which they were best adapted, or for what trade, art, or occupation they show the greatest natural genius. As soon as it is ascertained what kind of business the pupil is best fitted for by nature and inclination, he would be recommended and sent to the school shop where that trade was taught, and would be more thoroughly instructed in two years, and become a better mechanic, than in six or seven years under the old system of learning a trade. In the school shop the pupil would advance from a lower to a higher degree of instruction as rapidly as good workmanship and thorough knowledge would justify. Each pupil would be taught to draught and make each part, and also put together and finish every machine that was constructed. We also believe that schools established on this plan would be self-sustaining in a very short time. Our city, from its position by the sea, at the centre of a network of railroads extending over the continent, its economical steam power, abundant capital, with numbers now out of work having no trade, is preëminently fitted for various industries which only require skilled labor at moderate wages to be profitable. From our conviction that this subject merits your consideration, and that the time has arrived for taking the initial step in technical instruction, fraught, as we believe, with the restoration of our past prosperity and with our future progress, we respectfully pray to be heard.

Edward B. Hale, Thomas C. Amory, S. P. Rugles, Elizur Wright, John M. Clark, Wendell Phillips, William Gaston, William Clafin, W. S. Kingsbury, Alpheus Hardy, Moses W. Pond, L. Miles Standish, Charles F. Barker, C. A. Bartol, James L. Little, Rufus Ellis, F. A. Collins, Charles G. Greene, Samuel Little, John P. Putnam, John Newell, William P. Sargent, George W. Chipman, Job Lockwood, Alonzo Josselyn.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The petition partially explains itself. It is a very important question in connection with the subject of education, and one that is occupying the attention of the educators of the country at this time; and that is whether we should not educate the hand in connection with the head; whether the education of the head alone is the kind of education we should give our youth to make them practical and thorough citizens. I find that it has been discussed by our Board of Trade here and by various school teachers and others; and it is for the City Council to establish this kind of work in connection with the School Board. I understood that a gentleman of this city, who has devoted his whole time and fortune to the subject, will contribute a large amount of machinery and other things necessary to meet the wants of this new system, and it is for the City Council to say whether these school shops shall be established. I move that the petition be referred to a joint special committee, to give the parties a hearing and report back to the City Council.

The petition was referred to a joint special committee, and Aldermen Fitzgerald, O'Brien and Clark were appointed on the part of the Board. Sent down.

FREE FERRIES.

The report and order in favor of abolishing tolls on the East Boston ferries after Oct. 1, 1877 (City Doc. 64), was considered under unfinished business, the question being on the passage of the order.

Alderman O'Brien—When the city purchased the East Boston ferries in 1870 and commenced running them, I considered that free ferries was only a question of time. The fact of the city taking possession made these ferries a highway controlled by the city, over which our citizens have a right to pass, and all highways should be free, if all sections of the city are placed on an equality. The act giving the city authority to purchase, section 7, says—

“Upon the completion of said purchase the said City Council shall consider and determine whether the interests of said city will be best promoted by maintaining said ferries thereafter free of tolls; and in case they shall decide the same in the affirmative, then the city shall maintain and operate, or cause to be maintained and operated, the said ferry thereafter free of all tolls, and with facilities for travel not less than those now furnished by said company, or those which now are or hereafter may be by law required.”

Mr. Newton Talbot, the present able Chairman of the Board of Street Commissioners, who has given more attention to our highways than any other man, when a member of this Board referred to the purchase of the East Boston ferries as follows: “We have purchased the East Boston ferries and reduced the tolls, thereby relieving our citizens who have occasion to use them from the exaction and annoyances of a corporation over which they had no control. In my judgment these ferries should be made absolutely free; for I can see no defensible reason why our citizens should be charged a fee for crossing this avenue more than in using any other within the city. If an investigation was to be made, I have no doubt that it would be found that the expense of building and maintaining the avenues that connect other outlying districts with our city equals, if it does not exceed, the cost of purchasing and running these ferry boats.”

It will be seen that free ferries is no new question. The act giving the city authority to purchase also forced the city to consider and determine whether the inhabitants of East Boston should have a free highway to the city proper and back to their homes. It appears to me that the time has arrived when this question should receive a favorable consideration. Thirty thousand inhabitants of East Boston demand it; two-thirds of all our export and import trade demand it; and I believe that the best business interests of the city demand it.

The report of the committee and the argument of the counsel of the petitioners cover the ground so well, there is very little to be said on the subject. For a long time I have been convinced of the necessity of free ferries, and I shall not hesitate to record my vote in their favor. It is not many years ago when there were but a few scattered houses in the East Boston District. It has now grown up to be a thickly settled locality, numbering about twelve per cent. of our population. With its splendid water-front, it is a portion of the city that should be connected with Boston proper by either bridging the channel, tunnelling the channel, or, if these schemes are too expensive and more difficult to carry out, by free ferries—the most available and cheapest highway that now presents itself. I do not believe in forcing the citizens of East Boston to pay toll if business calls them to the centre of the city, or forcing citizens who have business in East Boston to pay toll over the only highway that connects the city proper with twelve per cent of her citizens. On the same principle tolls should be collected on the South Boston Bridge, on the Charlestown bridges, and on the numerous bridges over tide water, that we have been forced to build to connect us with the suburbs, or with neighboring cities and towns. On the same principle the railroad trains should pay for every time they pass under the bridges that we have been compelled to build over their tracks; but who would think of putting such restrictions on our trade and travel?

Boston, unlike many other cities, takes complete possession of all the accepted streets and avenues and highways of the city, and the expense of taking care of them is assessed equally on all alike. Under our present system it is our duty to provide means of communication with every section of the city, if the growth of population and increased business demands it. If we tax the citizens of East Boston for widening our streets, for keeping our streets, avenues and highways in repair, and for laying out new streets, there is no good reason why we should make them pay tribute before they can use them. The day of paying tribute has passed, or ought to have passed, and all citizens should be placed on an equality. Boston has outgrown her natural boundaries. We have forced our citizens across the channel that separates us from the mainland, and every citizen should have the privilege of going where he pleases, within the city limits, without toll or tribute of any kind. There is a feeling in the heart of every Bostonian that resists discriminating and unequal taxation of any kind. They have inherited this feeling, and this is nothing more or less than taxing a section of the city for a highway when the burden should be borne equally by all sections. It is not to be wondered at if the people of East Boston resist it and demand redress. If the abutters on Washington and other streets were taxed for the expense of paving and keeping them in repair—if the people of Charlestown and South Boston were taxed for bridging the channel that separates these sections from the city proper—if railroads were taxed for the bridges we have to build for their accommodation,—then we might say to the people of East Boston, you must pay toll and maintain your ferries. The fact that the channel that separates us from East Boston is wider and more difficult to bridge or tunnel is no reason why we should tax them for ferries because other means of communication are more expensive. If a citizen of East Boston has business at City Hall, there is no good reason why we should make him pay tribute before he can transact his business—if he has business at the Custom House, the Post Office or the Court House, there is no reason why we should make him pay tribute before he reaches his destination—if he is called upon to serve on a jury, to act as an assessor, to attend to city business as a member of the City Council, there is no reason why we should make him pay tribute before he can attend to these duties any more than the citizens of the Highlands, South Boston and Charlestown. If he desires to visit our Public Garden or places of amusement, for recreation or pleasure, there is no reason why we should make that section of the city pay a tribute that is not exacted from other sections. The ferry now run by the city is a highway as much as any other highway in the city, and all highways should be free. Boston, almost an island, has outgrown her natural boundaries. Years ago the water almost circled the city, and with high tides crossed the neck that connects us with the mainland. We either had to put a limit on our growth or build bridges connecting us with different points across our water line. The city proper has been thickly settled for a long time, and is more thickly settled today than any other city in the country. We have forced our citizens to provide homes in the suburbs, and these homes were selected according to the circumstances that surrounded them. When the mechanics and laborers and working men were forced from Fort Hill, Purchase street, Atkinson street, Federal street, Sea street, Broad street and the lanes and alleys in this neighborhood, to make room for our increasing business, they could not locate in the costly mansions at the South End and the Back Bay territory. They were compelled to locate in South Boston or East Boston, because in these districts of the city they were within easy reach of their business, and they found homes within their limited means. To attend to the business they were compelled to perform, early in the morning and sometimes late at night, no other sections of the city were so well adapted to their wants, and we ought to be thankful, when our business so increased that we were compelled to pull down the tenements of the poor and erect costly warehouses in their place, that we had East Boston and South Boston to fall back upon, where they could find a comfortable home, and it is our duty to provide them with avenues of communication to these homes, free from any tax whatever, except such taxation as all our citizens share alike, the rich and the poor, according to their means. East Boston is largely populated with mechanics and working men, and these are the men that are the source of all our wealth. They may not pay large taxes, but it is their labor that builds up the city, and it is our duty to look after their wants as much as the wants of the wealthiest sections of the city. The remark that is sometimes made that East Boston does not contribute largely in the way of taxes; that the city proper will have to bear the greatest part of the burden of free ferries, should have no force whatever in the consideration of this question. Wealth centres in certain localities in all large cities. Four wards of the city, 6, 10, 11 and 12, hold about one-half of our taxable wealth and valuation, and contribute largely to defray the expenses of the city; but what would these wards be without the able-bodied, industrious, and hard-working men, who find a home in East Boston, South Boston and Charlestown, and who cannot reach these homes unless we bridge the channel or ferry the channel that separates them from the wealth of the city. The city has wisely bridged the channel that separates us from Charlestown and South Boston, and keeps these bridges in good running order. To do so requires large expenditures of money, and I consider the money well expended. South Boston is a very important section of the city, with its already crowded population of 60,000 inhabitants, and the numerous bridges connecting South Boston with the city proper are not more than sufficient to accommodate the trade and travel with that section. These highways are a necessity, and should be maintained. The expense is but trifling compared with the advantages to all our citizens, directly and indirectly. The city has wisely increased expenditures for bridges with all sections, because it facilitates trade. If they had not been built you would not find in South Boston and Charlestown so large a population or so much taxable property. In order to give the Board some idea of the amount of money expended for bridges, I have obtained from the Auditor a statement of the cost of bridges for the past twenty-five years, as follows:

1851.....	$5,697.71
1852.....	10,156.92
1853.....	3,256.52
1854.....	11,502.21
1855.....	15,596.27
1856.....	70,616.74
1857.....	103,752.98
1858.....	26,147.29
1859.....	57,736.54
1860.....	21,075.64
1861.....	13,546.63
1862.....	10,457.51
1863.....	10,074.74
1864.....	13,657.39
1865.....	18,405.72
1866.....	15,855.45
1867.....	49,766.07
1868.....	51,038.57
1869.....	32,967.05
1870.....	566,858.06
1871.....	422,027.35
1872.....	101,485.83
1873.....	168,122.42
1874.....	88,740.43
1875.....	257,804.36
1876.....	289,984.23
Total.....	$2,436,340.63

It will be seen that from very small beginnings twenty-five years ago, amounting to only $5697 in 1851, the financial year ending that date, the expenses have been gradually increasing, amounting to $2,436,330 in all. Of this amount there has been expended during the past seven years, while the city has had charge of the ferries,

$1,895,022, or an average of $270,718 per year, of which East Boston has had to pay her proportion. I wish to call the attention of the Aldermen to that fact. The running expenses of the East Boston ferries are always held up to us at a very large figure; but I wish to call their attention to the fact that we have expended for bridges during the seven years that the city has run the East Boston ferries $270,718 per year, of which East Boston has had to pay her proportion. I repeat, Boston has outgrown her natural boundaries. We have increased in wealth and population so rapidly that we have been compelled to build costly highways across the channel that almost surrounds Boston proper, to accommodate our increasing population, and we have been repaid for this expenditure ten fold by the increase of population, the increase of taxable property, and the facilities it has given us to attend to our business. East Boston has been rather neglected, because the impediments have been greater to overcome, but after running the ferries for some seven years, and creating this highway, I believe the time has arrived when the ferry should be free, and no more tribute exacted, in justice to the people of East Boston and the citizens who do business with that section. What our merchants, our manufacturers and traders most want is not only good and cheap communication with neighboring States, but also good avenues to our suburbs and neighboring towns, wherever there is a consuming population. We have expended millions to connect us with the West, to encourage and increase our trade. Why should we neglect communication with our citizens? why should we place impediments in the way of a section of our city that has many natural advantages for business and that interferes with its growth? Is not our home trade of as much importance as trade far off? Are not our own manufacturers, our own workmen, our own citizens, as worthy of encouragement as the producers in States thousands of miles off? I do not look upon free ferries as a matter wholly in the interest of East Boston. A large portion of our import and export trade, about two-thirds, centres there. A large number of the merchants and business men of the city proper are about as much benefited as the citizens of East Boston. Every facility should be given to distribute the costly importations that arrive at that point, and it appears to me that there is no point where communication should be more free. The Cunard Steamship Company propose to increase their water front, because the five acres they now own is not space enough to do their large and increasing business. This successful steamship company see a future for East Boston that even our own citizens fail to appreciate. The railroad lines that make East Boston a terminus have scarcely room enough to do their large and increasing business as now located. The Boston & Albany Railroad established an elevator there some years ago, and it is just the place to establish storehouses and elevators for the reception of the leading products of the country. We find there a water front adapted to the largest class of steamers and sailing vessels, and if Boston capitalists had invested a small portion of their capital in utilizing that water front, instead of sinking their money in building Western railroads, they would be far better off today. When capitalists now propose to make improvements, why should not our improvements keep pace with private enterprise? Is not this increased trade worthy of some encouragement? The Cunard line of steamers will be benefited by free ferries, but has not the Cunard line done considerable for our city? Is not a line that has stood so faithfully by our city worthy of some encouragement? Why should every bale of goods, and every box of fruit, and every crate of crockery, after paying duty at the Custom House, be compelled also to pay toll before it reaches its destination in the city proper? We not only want the best terminal facilities for our import and export trade, but these terminal facilities should be connected with free avenues for the proper distribution of goods. In order to import largely or get a fair share of the importations of the country, we must sell cheap to compete with other cities. A very slight difference in price will turn the balance of trade against us, and all tolls and exactions over highways only tends to block trade and put a limit on our business. The canals of New York have always been run at a great expense to the State, and no New Yorker, no matter how remote from the city, ever expects them to produce a revenue, because they know the benefit that indirectly comes from them in the distribution of the products of our soil and the importations from abroad. This cheap communication with the interior of the country has made the city of New York the great commercial port of the country, and more than repays the interior of the State for the outlay. New Yorkers admit that it would be better that the canals should be made free and run at the expense of the entire State, than that the commerce of the city of New York should suffer, and this is believed to be their ultimate destiny. We, however, exact a toll on our imports and exports while passing through our own municipality. If these tolls on our ferries have checked the progress of our manufactures, if tolls on our ferries are a drawback on the commerce of the port, if tolls on our ferries are a special tax on a portion of our citizens, and have checked the growth of a section of our city, as I believe they have, why should they not be abolished? It is only a short time ago when a business that would employ at least one hundred men was about to be established at East Boston, but the tax on the ferries turned the balance in favor of Cambridge. It is very easy to ascertain to what extent we have increased in wealth and population from the census returns at different periods, but we do not always know what we have lost by placing impediments in the way of doing business. In the matter of free ferries we must give up our sectional prejudices. We must take a broad and liberal view of the subject under consideration. If East Boston has the best water front in the city, if it is a desirable place to establish manufacturing business, we should do all we can to promote its growth, because such a course adds to the prosperity of the entire city. When the ferries were purchased in 1870, the order passed the Board of Aldermen by a vote of 11 to 1; and the Common Council by a vote of 42 to 13. Since then the question of free ferries has been gaining strength every year, has never been lost sight of, and it only shows that right and justice will prevail sooner or later. It now comes before us indorsed by our leading business men, and by some of our wealthiest citizens. It has also been indorsed by every member of the committee, and this is an indorsement that few important measures receive, requiring the expenditure of so much money. To the credit of the Alderman from the Brighton District [Alderman Breck], a district far removed from any direct benefit resulting from free ferries, he joins his associates in recommending the passage of this order. The feeling that animates him should animate every member of this Board. Exactions and tolls that retard the growth of any section of the city are inurious to the entire city, and improvements that promote the prosperity of any section add to the prosperity of the entire city. If we remove the nuisance that now stands in the way of the growth of the Back Bay territory—make it attractive instead of a plague spot—costly mansions will arise on the ashes that it is proposed to fill up this section with, that will more than repay for the outlay. The nuisance on the South Bay and the Roxbury Canal also must not be forgotten. I feel that if this improvement is not made this year, it must come in the future. This spot must be redeemed, because it would not be human to neglect the tenements of the poor that surround this section. Their homes should also be made attractive and healthy, for if you consult the death rate in the wards that surround the South Bay territory you will find that it is much larger than any other part of the city. You may call these improvements parks, but as they exist today both the Back Bay and the South Bay are nuisances of the worst kind, and I am surprised that any member of the City Government hesitates about commencing the work to redeem them. Sewerage alone will never do it. We should also remember, when necessity demands these improvements, that the great corporation of the city of Boston never stands still. In the wealthiest city of its size on the continent there has lately been too much croaking about a depression in business that every one knows is but temporary, and has already passed. It was only a few weeks ago when a wealthy citizen died, leaving a property valued at about $10,000,000—its real value could not be less than $12,000,000—and every cent of this money was accumulated here, as he started in life poor. Another citizen died a few weeks ago whose property, it is estimated, will amount to $3,000,000 in twenty-five years from this time, besides paying large annuities to relatives, all of which has been left as a gift to the poor of the city. He also commenced his business life by pulling a handcart through our streets, and every cent of this money was made in this city. We are not standing still, and the members of this Board were not elected to come here as mourners over a dead city, and that is about all we have been doing for the six months we have been in session. Improvements must go on and free ferries also. The prosperity of the city is as much assured today as it has been any time during the past century. Individuals may fail in business, private corporations may fail, property may be changing hands, but the corporation of the city of Boston is progressing every day, and will grow and prosper in the future in spite of any drawbacks to individuals and private corporations. I hope that this Board will follow the lead of their committee; that every vote will be given for this order; that free ferries will be an established fact next October, and that the last vestige of tolls and exactions on our highways will be blotted out. Every citizen should demand a free highway to his home and be satisfied with nothing less.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Have the committee considered whether the city has power to free the ferries under the act of 1869?

Alderman Viles—As a member of the committee, I do not know that anything has been said in regard to it. We talked about freeing the foot passengers and taking toll for the teams, and we found we could not do that; but we found nothing against freeing the ferries.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I asked the question in good faith.

Alderman O'Brien—I thought something like that might come up, and in the first extract I read was something that covered that objection.

The Alderman read the extract again.

Alderman Fitzgerald—But Section 11 of the act—

Alderman O'Brien—It leaves it entirely in the hands of the city.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Section 11 of the act says—

“If the said City Council, instead of adjudging to maintain said ferry free of all tolls, as provided in Section 2 of this act, shall adjudge and determine that it is for the best interests of said city that the said ferry shall be maintained free of tolls for a term of not less than ten years next succeeding said purchase, and thereafter upon such rates of ferriage as may then be adjudged by said city, then, and in such case, the said city shall maintain and operate, or cause to be maintained and operated, the said ferry, for and during a term of not less than ten years next succeeding said purchase, free of all tolls, but in all other respects as provided by Section 5 of this act, and may thereupon apportion not exceeding one-half part of the cost of such purchase, upon the said estate benefited, with the same powers and under the same limitations as hereinbefore provided respecting such assessment.”

I merely asked if they have considered that matter and got the opinion of the City Solicitor upon the question whether, having once determined that the ferries should be operated as they were when the East Boston Ferry Company had them—that a fare should be charged—and having adopted that course, if the City Council can now adopt free ferries? I ask it in good faith, so that we shall do what is legal. I shall vote for the passage of the order, but I merely ask that question of the Committee on Ferries—if the opinion of the City Solicitor has been obtained on that question. I was in the Council in 1872, when this subject came up, and I know that this question was raised.

Alderman Viles—The opinion of the City Solicitor on this question was not obtained, to my knowledge; but the opinion of Judge Curtis was obtained some time ago in regard to freeing the foot passengers and charging teams, and he stated that that could not be done, but that we could free the ferries.

Alderman Fitzgerald—This question has been before the City Council for a number of years, and I have no doubt if it does not pass this year it will be before the City Council next year, and the year after, and the year after that, until finally these ferries shall be free. The people of East Boston and those who take an interest in the commerce and shipping of East Boston are determined that the ferries shall be free. A great deal is to be said upon one side of this question and the other, and no question has so puzzled me as this. On the one side the citizen of East Boston says he has a right to free access from his home to City Hall equally with the citizens of South Boston and Dorchester; that is, East Boston forms a part of the city of Boston and he has a right to be furnished with means of getting from his home to transact his business with the city authorities, with the courts and with business men here equally with the people of South Boston. The gentleman, on the other side, who opposes free ferries, says, When you were going over there you knew that tolls were to be charged; you knew you would have to pay your two cents fare; you accepted the situation, and you have no right to complain. These are the arguments upon one side and the other; and in addition to that, it is said the expense of taking care of and lighting the streets, the police arrangements, schools, etc., in East Boston, is more than what East Boston actually gives in the taxes upon real estate and personal property. If that argument were to be used in improving every street of the city of Boston, if the extent of improvement on every street was to be measured by the amount the people on that street paid, many people who today pay immense taxes should pay nothing in taxes, because the streets are not paved or lighted. The reason is apparent to everybody. We have adopted a plan that every citizen shall contribute of his means and property for the public good; not for the improvement of a particular street, but for the protection of the property and lives and convenience of the citizens of the whole city. That is the argument upon which we found our system of taxation; and that is why we say to a man who lives upon an unaccepted street, which is not graded or lighted—whose property is assessed at four or five thousand dollars, and who has to pay fifty or sixty dollars in taxes—“You must pay your share for the common good.” If the argument made use of—that East Boston gets more than she gives—were correct, then the reverse would always be correct—that those who get nothing in their streets should pay nothing at all in the shape of taxes—so that argument goes for nothing. East Boston says the ferries are nothing but a floating bridge; that they have a right to free access from one side of Boston to the other—whether it be by bridge, tunnel or ferry is immaterial to them. I presume they would prefer a bridge. I say I was puzzled, and I am puzzled how to act upon this question. But the one thing that determines me in this question is this—I see this question made a political hobby of at East Boston. It matters little to what party citizens in East Boston belong, common cause is made against any Alderman who dares to oppose free ferries, and there is sufficient political influence in East Boston to kill any Alderman or destroy any official who dares to vote against free ferries. It has been made a political hobby of for the past five years, and some Aldermen who sat here and voted conscientiously against free ferries, who might have been of great benefit and use to the city, have been defeated on that account. The arguments are as strong on the one side as the other. I do not make this plea for myself, for I don't care whether I am re-elected or not.

Alderman O'Brien—If you will excuse me a moment, I wish to say that the only time free ferries came before the Board of Aldermen, every Alderman voted in favor of free ferries; so that East Boston could not have made a martyr of them.

Alderman Fitzgerald—But I say it is and will be made a political hobby of. According to the report of the committee, the expense, divided among the citizens, is not going to be an immense amount; but it will be $200,000 or $250,000 a year at least. I think it will be more than that. Free ferries will necessitate the employment of additional steamers and hands, and it will cost more than that. It is just as well that what people pay in the shape of tolls today shall be paid in the shape of taxes. It will amount to the same thing in the end, and it will give more satisfaction. I shall vote for this order, but not because I intend to get rid of the croaking. My friend [Alderman O'Brien] spoke about the croaking. He was the first croaker in the Board of Aldermen. He offered a resolution, which I will read to show that he was one of the first croakers in this Board:

“Ordered, That a special committee of five on the part of the Board of Aldermen, with such as the Council may join, be appointed to consider and report on the alarming increase of municipal expenditures and municipal debt; and,

"First—To devise some means to reduce taxation, and to ascertain if the expenditures of the different departments of the City Government cannot be reduced from ten to twenty-five per cent., without detriment to the public service; and if it is not the duty of the City Council, when incomes have become so much reduced, labor so poorly rewarded, and property of all kinds so much depreciated in value, to instruct all heads of departments to make this reduction.

"Second—To request the new School Board to cooperate with the City Council in this movement to reduce expenses and taxation, or show cause why such a reduction cannot be made, as the belief has become very general that we are expending too much money on our schools without a corresponding benefit.

"Third—To ascertain if by some different arrangement of the Sinking Funds the overburdened taxpayers cannot be relieved, and if the credit of the city would suffer if the interest on our actual debt only was raised by taxation every year, instead of the interest on our gross debt, a tax deemed oppressive by many citizens.

"Fourth—To consider the expediency of instructing our representatives in the Legislature to put a stop, if possible, to the lavish expenditures of money for prisons and insane asylums, now believed to have exceeded all reasonable limits in the erection of very expensive buildings, and to watch more closely the expenditure of money by the State, as the city has to pay forty per cent. of the State tax."

This was one of the first resolutions introduced by the Alderman. If that is not croaking about the poverty of the city and the over-burdened taxpayers, and instructing not only ourselves but the School Board and even the gentlemen on Beacon Hill that they must look out, or they will go beyond the limit, I don't know what croaking and lamentation is; and I don't know where it is to be found if it is not in this series of resolutions offered by the gentleman at the first meeting of the Board. I believe, as I did on the park question, that the city is unable to make certain expenditures, but in this case I think the citizens are obliged to support the ferries. The support of the ferries is to come out of the people of East Boston by paying two, three or five or fifteen cents, as the case may be, and it comes out of their pockets; and it is one that should be distributed among all, because it is for the interest of all, and because it will take away this vexatious question from the City Council, and for one year, at least, give rest to the citizens of East Boston. What they will want next year I don't know—I believe they want a high school—but this will give them rest for one year at least.

Alderman O'Brien—In reply to what the gentleman said about croaking propensities, I would say that since I have been in this City Government I have felt, and now feel, that every department in this City Government is run at too large an expense. I have felt, and now feel, that the expenses with which every department in this City Government is run interferes with our public improvements; that it has a tendency to keep us almost standing still. One reason why those resolutions were offered was because the extravagant expenditures in some of our departments interfere with sewers, parks, free ferries and all the improvements we have got to make in the future. That is where I want economy. For instance, the harbor expenses of the city of Boston: If any one will consult the Auditor's returns he will find $185,000 expended for steamers in Boston Harbor alone within a very few years—I believe not more than three or four—an expense that never was known before, even when the commerce of the port, in the number of vessels, was twenty times greater than it is today. If he takes the Department of Health he will find an expenditure of $120,000 a year, which has had an existence of only two or three years. I believe that amount could be cut down one-half, and all the work of the department done as faithfully as it is today. I contend that in our School Department, as compared with other cities, we expend fifty to seventy-five per cent. more than any other city in the country does. I believe that five or six hundred thousand dollars a year could be saved from the different departments of the city of Boston, and that would almost complete all the great improvements—or pay the interest on nearly all that we have in contemplation. That was the reason why I offered these resolutions early in the year, and I think it would have been better if the City Council had adopted them. Take the Danvers Insane Asylum, for instance. There is an institution built by the State that cost over $2,000,000, merely to accommodate 600 patients, forty per cent. of which the city of Boston will have to pay; and forty per cent. of that sum ought to have built the whole institution. I say that every Representative who goes from Boston to the Legislature ought to be instructed to look after the expenditures in the Legislature. If every Boston Representative had looked after the expenditures in the Legislature we would not have expended $2,000,000 for an insane folly. That is the reason why that resolution was offered early in the year.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I agree with the Alderman in part. We pay good salaries. I went with him in the reduction of salaries down to a decent limit. But, Mr. Mayor, if we have expended large amounts on our streets, what has been the result? We have one of the best kept cities in the Union, so far as the streets are concerned. Go to any city in the Union, and none can excel the city of Boston in the cleanliness of its streets and the way in which they are kept. If we have paid large salaries to teachers, we have the best schools and the most intelligent class of people of any community in the United States. If we pay good salaries to our officials, we have the most honest officials of any city of the United States. That is the result of it. It is a great deal better to have good teachers and honest officials with good salaries—not too high—than to have a grand system of boulevards and parks.

Alderman Robinson—I was not aware that this subject was coming up tonight, as I understood at our last meeting that the Alderman from East Boston withdrew his motion to assign it for debate at this meeting. I have not been able to give much attention to the subject, except to read the document I received and the arguments of the counsel. While sitting here, a little matter of history occurred to my mind. One of the republics of ancient Greece was called Locris, and if I recollect aright, it was the first nation that had a written constitution and code of laws. These Locrians were prosperous, and the republic lasted for a period of 400 years, but they had a very singular custom, or rather one very singular fundamental law, namely, that any person who introduced a new law, or an innovation upon the acts of Locris, came in with a rope around his neck. If the law passed, he received all the honors that could be given to a person who introduced a new law; if it did not pass, he was strangled upon the spot—so that there was very little change in the laws of that republic. I do not think that will apply to the Alderman from East Boston. If ever a person came with petitions representing a better body of men, I don't think it was ever seen in this city, and I don't believe anybody would pull the rope on him for introducing that motion. If East Boston is a component part of the city I can see no reason why she is not entitled to all the rights and privileges of a part of the city of Boston; and if a bridge or tunnel cannot be made from our side of the water to those who live on the East Boston side, I do not see why a floating bridge should not be established there—admitting that East Boston is a component part of the city. In new countries—for I came from a new country in the State of Maine—when a new settlement is made beside a river, while it is sparsely settled, a ferry is run across the river and sometimes they haul it back and forth by a rope, and of course they charge a certain amount of toll. By and by population and wealth increase, and they charge only strangers; and finally they build a bridge and then a turnpike. By and by they pass a law to let citizens go free over the ferries and charge only strangers; and then by and by those ferries and turnpikes, after some little discussion in town meetings, are made free, tolls are done away with and nobody is charged anything. And in regard to this, it so appears to me, after listening to the arguments of Alderman O'Brien, that, taken as individuals, East Boston and Boston proper, so far as dollars and cents are concerned, it makes but very little difference; for if those tolls are paid by the teamsters, it comes out of the merchant or other person who engages the team to carry the load across. Consequently, that merchant or the party who hires the team pays that money, and it comes into the city treasury minus what is left out for running the team. Now, I say that the merchant does not cross the ferries once a year with his family; but what that man takes out to pay for this ferrriage reduces the amount in his pocket, and his family feels that very small amount in a greater or less degree. So I say it makes very little difference whether it costs $175,000 or $200,000; whether the city pays it in taxes, or whether it is paid by toll. But the only thing on the other side is the objection, the more you untrammel commerce the better a community thrives; and as East Boston, with its immense water front, is destined to be one of the greatest shipping points in the country, anything we can do to remove toll—be it ever so light—makes considerable in the aggregate, although at first it does not seem to amount to much. But I say it will help commerce so much. Wherever commerce has been untrammelled, here or elsewhere, it has gone on to prospering and has prospered. I have also heard the arguments used against ferries, namely, that the moment free ferries are established, a large portion of the people living out in my ward, removed from the water, will come down every holiday and Sunday and occupy every part of the boats and continue there almost all the day, and that there will be no power to drive them out, because the ferries are free; that people will not only come from Boston, but from outside of Boston, and sail backward and forward in the beautiful breeze hour after hour. Now I don't believe that, because sometimes men, as well as children, tire of new toys. It may do very well for a few times, but that will pass away. People can enjoy the same beautiful breezes on the Boston wharves today that they would get in going back and forth on the boats. As I said, I did not know it was coming up; but, after listening to the arguments of the Aldermen, I shall vote for the order.

Alderman Burnham—I would like to detain the Board for a moment. The Alderman [Alderman O'Brien] made an entertaining speech, and the arguments he offered seem almost unanswerable. But he made one statement which seems worth a little consideration on the part of this Board. He said this matter ought to be considered without any sectional views or prejudices being brought to bear upon it. Now I suppose there is no denying that this is a sectional measure. But there is also no denying that it is a matter which affects the interests of our city as a whole. I recognize both these facts, and therefore I say that in granting the prayer of these petitioners you do more than to simply satisfy their request. You thereby acknowledge that sectional interests may be so interwoven with the great whole as to make it proper for the whole to bear burdens in taxation by which, as a result, one section or part may be more largely benefited than another at the expense of the whole. The Highland District, the Dorchester District, the Brighton District, the Charlestown District, the South Boston District, all have wants that may be properly called sectional, and in their supply as sections these districts receive a local benefit. But this is no reason why they should be denied their petitions, especially when it can be shown that the granting confers a benefit on the whole. Mr. Mayor, there is great force in the complaints that these sections of the city where some of us reside make, viz., that they have to battle too hard for the supply of their wants, because of this cry of sectional interests, raised so readily as a barrier to all progress. Just note how that cry stopped the completion of the Broadway extension, and has been holding it for years in its present unfinished condition. Could it be completed, the city as a whole would be benefited to an extent it cannot be until it becomes an avenue instead of being only a bridge across a channel. Now, in these matters East Boston should have no jealousies toward South Boston, or South Boston toward East Boston, or any one section toward any other. The question is, What will promote the growth and business of the whole city? Will this one thing now before us do it? So far as it goes, if it will I care not how much free ferries are of benefit to East Boston—if I can see that free ferries will promote the business of the whole city—the growth of the whole city—then I go for free ferries, and am twice glad that East Boston is to be benefited thereby, and do not believe any other section will be injured. If free ferries promote business, help Boston to compete in trade, accelerate railroad and marine commerce, then we can afford free ferries; then we ought to have free ferries. Boston has done a magnificent work in the past five years toward making herself the city for business; but she has more to do yet, and I believe this petition of her citizens from East Boston for a ferrriage open and free to all is another thing to add to her worthy deeds, and should be granted. Why? Because to take off this burden on her commerce and manufactures you do an act to advance the general business and prosperity of our city as a whole. The committee say they have carefully considered the whole subject with regard to its bearing upon the interests of the whole city, and not of East Boston alone, and they have unanimously arrived at the conclusion that free ferries will be conducive to the general prosperity. I believe their statement is fair and true, and accepting their conclusions, I trust this Board will unanimously pass the order introduced.

Alderman Clark—I do not propose to make any speech upon this question. I merely wish to state that in 1872 the question of freeing foot travel and charging for teams on the ferries was before the Board, and it was decided by competent legal authority that that was illegal and could not be passed in that shape, and no member of this Board has had an opportunity to vote upon this question since 1872, and consequently no one has had the opportunity to vote against it and no one has lost his seat in consequence of it. I should have voted for free ferries in 1872 if I had had an opportunity. I can see no reason why East Boston should pay for our bridges and be required to ferry themselves to and from the city. We have charged them heavily for the bridges to South Boston and over Huntington avenue and Dartmouth street, and we ought to charge them heavily for two other bridges over Beacon street and Brookline avenue, for if bridges are needed anywhere it is over those streets. These large expenditures have necessarily increased with the growth of the city, and our surroundings are such that we must necessarily spend more or less each year in the construction and maintenance of bridges. East Boston is a place of considerable importance to the citizens of Boston on this side of the water, not on account of its political influence, but its commercial importance. We have the best deep-water accommodations there, and the bulk of our exports come to and go from East Boston. As it seems to me that this order is going to pass this Board unanimously, I would merely suggest, Mr. Mayor, that in case this order goes into operation on the first day of October, there will be a deficiency of $100,000 on that date; while if it goes into effect on the first day of January, the deficiency will be $80,000, which the Auditor thinks he can stand. I do not propose to make a motion. That matter was brought up in the Finance Committee today, I understand, and very likely an amendment will be offered in the Common Council. The estimates were made up on the receipt of tolls for the entire year. I merely state that for the information of the entire Board, but have no motion to make. I hope the Board will pass this order unananimously, for I believe the people and taxpayers are unanimous upon this subject. It is not often that a measure comes before this Board with such an array of capital behind it as this petition has.

Alderman Gibson—I propose to say but a very few words upon this important measure. The ferries were purchased in 1869, and in 1870 this measure passed the Board of Aldermen unanimously. Now, we have some credits due us which have not been mentioned by the gentlemen who have spoken. For five and twenty years we have borne our share of taking care of about five thousand feet of streets, which has been a considerable bill, and probably it would amount to as much as the capital we now ask the city to invest. Taking the improved condition of the ferries and the amount paid for tolls, with what we have contributed to the maintenance of the streets, we have fully borne our share, and are entitled to some credit for those expenditures. While this seems to be a generous act on the part of the city, it must be remembered that we have carried that whole expense for twenty-five years, and in addition to that have contributed our proportion of the expenditures in other sections of the city. As it seems to be the opinion of the Aldermen that this amendment should be made, I would move to substitute "January 1, 1878," for "October 1, 1877," as the date when tolls should be abolished.

The amendment was adopted and the order was passed—yeas 11, nays 0.

Alderman Gibson stated that if Alderman Thompson had been present he would have voted for the measure.

A motion to reconsider by Alderman Fitzgerald was lost. Sent down.

PAPERS FROM THE COMMON COUNCIL.

Petitions were referred in concurrence.

A request from the Board of Directors for Public Institutions that a portion of the city printing be done at Deer Island by the inmates of the House of Reformation came up referred to Committee on Printing. Concurred.

In accordance with the report of the committee on conference of the other branch, an order came down to authorize and instruct the Boston Water Board to cause the work on Mystic Valley sewer to be done by day labor, and recommending said board to employ thereon none but citizens of Boston.

Alderman Breck submitted a report of the committee on conference on the part of this branch, recommending the passage of the above order, which was accepted and said order passed in concurrence.

Vote of thanks to Hon. W. W. Warren for his oration on the 4th inst., and asking for a copy for publication. Passed in concurrence.

Order for Committee on Health to give a public hearing on the subject of the nuisance of Mill Pond flats in Charlestown. Passed in concurrence.

Order to invite the Joint Committee on Water to accompany the City Council on its visit to Sudbury River conduit. Passed in concurrence.

Order for Committee on Common, etc., to consider the expediency of placing a fountain in Madison square. Passed in concurrence.

Order for Special Committee on Parks to obtain estimates of the actual cost of filling, grading, loaming and subsoiling the proposed Back Bay park. Passed in concurrence.

REPORTS OF CITY OFFICERS.

Inspection of Lighters. Quarterly report for July 1—Receipts, $501.50; expenses, $12.50; divided by incumbents $489. Sent down.

Auditor of Accounts. Monthly exhibit for July 1, being three monthly payments of the financial year:

	Amount of Appropriations.	Expended.	Balance.
Total App'ns.	$10,267,258.00	$2,535,571.40	$10,918,923.27
Bal'ces. from 1876 77	2,886,389.53	Less prov. for	22,914.25
Totals.	$13,153,647.53		$10,896,009.02
Revenue	277,932.89
	$13,431,580.42

Fires and Alarms. The report of the Fire Commissioners of the number and character of the fires for June was received. Sent down.

Inspector of Buildings. The semi-annual report of the Inspector of Buildings was received and sent down.

POLICE.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Police:

Report recommending that the Executive nomination of Edward F. Moody to be a police officer be rejected. Accepted, and said nomination rejected.

Report recommending that the Executive nomination of James D. Horgan to be a police officer be confirmed. Accepted, and said nomination confirmed.

PAVING REPORTS AND ORDERS.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Paving:

Reports and orders to pave Beach street from Harrison avenue to Federal street, estimated expense $12,000.

Schedules of cost of sidewalks on Alpine and Bickford streets, with orders for assessment and collection of the same. Orders passed.

Report and order for hearing on Monday, July 30, at four o'clock, on petition of Highland Street Railway Company for leave to run their cars to the northern depots. Order passed.

SEWERS.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Sewers:

Reports and orders for hearings on Monday next on expediency of constructing sewers in Garden street, between Phillips and Myrtle streets; in Walnut street, West Roxbury, southerly from School street. Orders passed.

Reports and orders for the construction of sewers in Wesley street; in Washington street, between Boylston and School streets, West Roxbury. Orders read twice and passed.

HEALTH.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Health on the part of the Board:

Reports that leave be granted on the usual conditions to occupy stables by George A. Wilson, Palmer street; Mrs. B. J. Pope, Howard avenue; William Boyd, Notre Dame street, Ward 23. Severally accepted.

Report of leave to withdraw on the petition of Mrs. S. W. Jones, for leave to keep a hospital for invalids at 80 Dover street. Accepted.

CLAIMS.

Alderman O'Brien submitted the following from the Joint Committee on Claims:

Report of leave to withdraw on petition of John Raddin for compensation for a set of wheels and rubber cushions furnished for steam fire engine No. 7. Laid on the table, on motion of Alderman Slade, who said he had been requested to make the motion.

Report of leave to withdraw on petition of Mrs. A. E. Porter to be compensated for personal injuries caused by an alleged defect in Dudley street. Accepted. Sent down.

OCCUPANCY OF PARTS OF STREETS FOR BUILDING PURPOSES.

Alderman Breck submitted a report, in accordance with an order previously passed, recommending the passage of the following:

An Ordinance

for the occupancy of streets for building purposes.

Be it ordained by the Aldermen and Common Council of the City of Boston, in City Council assembled, as follows:

Section 1. Every person wishing to occupy or use any portion of any of the streets for the erection or repair of any building upon land abutting thereon, shall make application therefor to the Inspector of Buildings, who, subject to the direction of the Board of Aldermen, shall have power and authority to grant permits for the occupation or use, for building purposes, of such part of any street, and for such length of time, and under such limitations and restrictions, as may be required by any ordinance, or by the public convenience; and all such permits may be revoked by the Inspector of Buildings at any time when the holders of them fail to comply with any rule or regulation under which they are granted, or when, in the opinion of the Inspector of Buildings, the public good require such revocation. And the part or portion so allotted, if any, and no other part of said street, shall be used for laying all the materials for any such building or repairing, and for receiving the rubbish arising therefrom. And all the rubbish arising therefrom or thereby, shall be carried away by the person or persons so building or repairing, at such convenient time as the Board of Aldermen or Inspector of Buildings may direct; and in case of neglect or refusal so to do, it shall be removed by the Superintendent of Streets, the Chief of Police, or the Deputy Chief of Police, at the expense of such person or persons.

Section 2. In all cases the space so allotted shall be enclosed with a sufficient fence, which shall be continued during the whole time such occupation exists. And a lighted lantern or lanterns or some other proper and sufficient lights shall be fixed to some part or parts of such fence, or in some other proper manner. And said lights or lanterns shall be so kept lighted from the beginning of twilight every evening, through the whole of every night, during said occupation.

Section 3. Any person licensed or permitted as aforesaid to occupy any part of any street while erecting or repairing any building, shall provide a safe and convenient passage around or over the same for public travel, and shall be responsible for any injury sustained in consequence of any neglect so to do.

Section 4. Any person violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be liable to a penalty of not less than two dollars nor more than fifty dollars for each offence, and to a like penalty for each day's continuance thereof.

Section 5. In the month of July, 1877, and annually thereafter in the month of February, there shall be appointed by the Inspector of Buildings, subject to the confirmation of the Board of Aldermen, a suitable person, who shall have charge of the permits granted for the use or occupancy of any part or portion of any street for building purposes, who shall hold his office for one year from the first Monday in April of the year in which he is appointed, and until his successor is chosen and qualified, or he is removed. The duty of such officer shall be to see that the laws, ordinances, orders and regulations now or at any time in force respecting the use and occupancy of any street or part thereof for the purpose of erecting, altering, or repairing or removing any building are observed and enforced, and he shall be under the general direction of the Inspector of Buildings.

Sect. 6. Said officer may be removed by the Inspector of Buildings, with the consent or approval of the Board of Aldermen, for malfeasance, incapacity or neglect of duty, and a vacancy may be filled at any time for the unexpired term. Said officer shall receive such compensation for his services as the City Council may from time to time determine.

Laid on the table and ordered to be printed.

LICENSES.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted reports from the Committee on Licenses as follows:

Wagon Licenses Granted—George H. Bailey, 19 Princeton street, Charlestown; John Reardon, 83 Arch street; C. Allen, for a wagon license at 28 Hanover street; James M. Bennett, New York & New England Freight Station; Warren W. Mausfield, Field's Corner, Dorchester.

Junk Collectors Licensed—Michael Meaney and eight others.

Pawnbroker Licensed—G. W. Stackpole, 45 Green street.

Billiard License Granted—Thomas J. West, 758 Washington street.

Intelligence Office Licensed—Mary T. Finn, 35 Bowen street.

Amusement Licenses Granted—Great London Circus, to exhibit in East and South Boston and Charlestown during July; A. W. Ullven, to erect and use a fandango swing between O and P streets.

Dealers in Second-hand Articles Licensed—Harris Goodman, 14 Salem street; Rose Silverman, 64 Salem street; M. Levi, 142 Kingston street.

Auctioneers Licensed—Martin Adams, 153 Meridian street; Charles H. Bacall, 35 Congress street.

Severally accepted.

Report on petition of Perry & Richardson with an order—That the City Clerk be directed to refund to Perry & Richardson, keepers of a billiard saloon and bowling alley at No. 90 Court street, the sum of $73, being an excess of license fee, over $4, paid by them for a license issued April 17, 1876, the day when the existing law authorizing a charge of only $2 for each billiard saloon or bowling alley passed and took effect; said sum to be deducted from amounts received by the City Clerk for billiard licenses. Order read twice and passed.

REGISTRY OF DEEDS.

Alderman Wilder submitted a report from the Committee on County Accounts, on petition of William I. Bowitch et al., recommending the passage of an order—That the Committee on County Accounts be authorized to prepare a classified index of estates sold for non-payment of taxes from 1868 to 1876, inclusive, at an expense not exceeding $800; to be charged to the appropriation for the County of Suffolk. Read twice and passed.

BUILDING PERMITS DURING RECESS.

Alderman Wilder offered an order—That during the recess of either branch of the City Council, the Joint Standing Committee on the Survey and Inspection of Buildings be authorized to permit the erection of wooden buildings of larger dimensions than is authorized by the ordinances relating to wooden buildings, upon such terms and conditions as they deem advisable. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

MARKET.

Alderman Slade submitted a report from the Committee on Market in favor of approval of transfer of lease of stalls Nos. 97 and 99 Faneuil Hall Market by Nathan Robbins to W. B. Smith. Accepted.

TRANSFERS OF APPROPRIATIONS.

Alderman Clark submitted the following from the Committee on Finance:

Survey and Inspection of Buildings. Report of report and order of Joint Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings for $4600 additional appropriation for that department, with said order in a new draft making the appropriation —. That the Auditor of Accounts be and he hereby is authorized to transfer from the Reserved Fund to the appropriation for Inspection of Buildings the sum of $4600, and that the Inspector of Buildings be authorized to employ such number of temporary assistants as may be necessary to complete the work of the department; provided, that the expense attending their employment and all the salaries and expenses chargeable to the said appropriation shall not exceed the total of the original appropriation and the sum to be added to the same by the provisions of this order during the present financial year, viz., $18,600.

On motion of Alderman Fitzgerald, the order was amended by adding—

“Provided, the amount of compensation to be paid each inspector shall not exceed the rate established therefor by the City Council.”

As amended, the order was read twice and passed—yeas 11, nays 0. Sent down.

Ventilation of the Council Chamber. Report on report of Committee on Public Buildings, in regard to ventilation of Common Council Chamber, with an order—That the Committee on Public Buildings be authorized to provide better ventilation for the Common Council Chamber by the introduction of the method proposed by F. Tudor & Co., on file in the office of the Superintendent of Public Buildings, at a cost not to exceed the sum of $3000, and that the Auditor of Accounts be and he hereby is authorized to transfer from the Reserved Fund the sum of $3000, to constitute a special appropriation for that purpose. Order read twice and passed—yeas 11, nays 0. Sent down.

VACATION FOR FIRE-ALARM EMPLOYEES.

Alderman Burnham offered an order—That the Board of Fire Commissioners be authorized to grant a vacation of two weeks to the employes of the Fire-alarm Department without loss of pay, providing the same can be done without detriment to the service. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

SCHOOL FURNITURE FOR ST. JOHN.

Alderman Fitzgerald offered the following:

Whereas, There having been received from the trustees of the Board of Education of St. John, New Brunswick, a communication representing that among the losses of the great fire in that city was nearly all the school furniture used by the public schools, and there being in the store room of the public buildings department of this city, old school furniture of odd sizes and patterns which will never be brought into use; therefore it is expedient and practicable to offer to the city of St. John for a nominal sum, a certain amount of this furniture, much needed in its present emergency.

Ordered, That the Superintendent of Public Buildings be and he is authorized to offer to the city of St. John, New Brunswick, old school desks belonging to the city, to the number of 600.

Read twice and passed. Sent down.

POINT SHIRLEY RAILROAD.

Alderman Clark from the Committee on Streets on the part of the Board offered an order of notice for hearing on Monday, July 23, at four o'clock, P. M., on petition of Alpheus P. Blake and Edward Turner, trustees, for the assessment of damages caused by the location of Boston, Wintrop & Point Shirley Railroad. Passed.

RELOCATION OF WESTERN AVENUE IN BRIGHTON.

Alderman Breck offered an order—That the Street Commissioners be requested to relocate Western avenue, in Brighton, between Charles River and the bend in said avenue west of and near North Harvard street.

Alderman Breck—This being rather an unusual order, requires some little explanation. In widening Western avenue in Brighton, the Superintendent of Streets has met with an obstruction in the shape of a building which is upon the line of the improvement. The owner of this building claims that he owns the land necessary to be taken to widen the street. This order should have come in the shape of a petition to the Street Commissioners; but the five men necessary to sign such a petition could not be found—owing to their liability to be called upon for damages, in case the land did not belong to the city, if this order passes, then the city is liable for the damages in full. The matter has been before the Street Commissioners for some time past, and has been a source of trouble and annoyance to them. They want to find some way out of it, and they thought the only way was to bring this order before the Board. I have had no time to look into the matter; but as the chairman of the Street Commissioners is here he can explain it better than I can. I should like to have it disposed of today if possible, because the Superintendent of Streets was obliged to discharge all his men out there this morning—sixty or seventy. A large number of them came to see me, but I did not know what the trouble was.

Aldermen Wilder and Clark both desired to hear an explanation from Mr. Newton Talbot, chairman of the Board of Street Commissioners, and on motion he was requested to make a statement.

Mr. Talbot—This order comes under a statute of the Commonwealth by which a street or road that has been already laid out may be relocated. In order that it may be relocated, it must be petitioned for by a town or by five or more citizens of a town; and the town or citizens, in petitioning, take the responsibility for the damages, I believe, to the extent of the expense incurred for plans and advertising, and also the property, if it is taken, if they cannot maintain the relocation. This street was formerly a turnpike and was laid out as a public street by special act of the Legislature in 1867 or 1868, I think, and was thrown upon the town of Brighton to build. The street is mostly across a marsh, and was built about twenty-five feet wide. The location was sixty feet wide. What the citizens of Brighton desire is that it should be relocated according to the original laying out. If this is done and the city maintain the re-location, of course there will be no damages. If we go on and widen the street, we thereby assume that we don't know where the location is, and act as if the property belonged to persons who are encroachers. A large portion of the abutters have given releases according to the plan of re-survey; there are others who have not done so. Mr. Warren, who was counsel for Brighton in the matter, thought that there should be relocation rather than a widening. So far as I know no one desires to petition and thereby take the responsibility for the expenses arising, under a petition for a relocation.

The order was read a second time and passed. Sent down.

COMPENSATION OF DEPUTY SEALERS.

Alderman Slade offered an order—That there be allowed as compensation to each Deputy Sealer of Weights and Measures in this city the sum of three dollars per day for each working day's service, the same to be certified to the Auditor by the Sealer of Weights and Measures upon a monthly pay-roll to be approved by the chairman of the Committee on Market, said compensation to begin with the date of the commencement of their respective services.

Alderman Slade moved that the order take its second reading; but it appearing that there was no appropriation for the expenditure, the order was referred to the Committee on Finance. Sent down.

THE CHARGES AGAINST POLICE SERGEANT CLARK.

Alderman Clark moved to reconsider the vote whereby the Board accepted the report of the Police Committee, that it is "inexpedient to grant the request" of Walter L. Clark, for a hearing on the subject of his discharge from the Police Department.

Alderman Clark—I do this because charges have been made against one who has been a very efficient officer, and which he and his claim to be utterly false. I believe every officer has a right to and should have a fair hearing before the Board of Aldermen or the Police Committee, when charges of such a nature are made against him, viz., taking bribes from liquor dealers in his official capacity. This officer came to the Board of Aldermen with a petition signed by some sixty people in the neighborhood of Station 10—Sewall, Day & Co., Joseph Houghton and others. Inexpedient to grant a hearing seems to me to be a most unheard-of report. In my experience on the Police Committee, when charges were made against a police officer a hearing was granted, giving him a chance to prove the charges untrue. Here was a sergeant of police charged with taking bribes, and he wants an opportunity to show that they are false; unless he can have that opportunity he is branded as a dishonest man, and he can obtain no position of trust again. It is nothing but justice to the accused party that he have an opportunity to be heard.

At the request of Alderman Burnham, Alderman Clark read the petition, which was for a hearing, and if the charges are disproved, for a reinstatement on the force. Alderman Clark said that reinstatement was not the question, but it was to give Sergeant Clark an opportunity to prove, if he can, that the charges are false; and if he cannot prove them false, so much the worse for him.

Alderman Robinson—The committee had that matter under advisement some two months. Everybody knows how difficult it is to prove the taking of a bribe. One says he paid a bribe; another says he did not receive a bribe. Now, we found four different instances of this. The question of investigation was simply this: there was enough, as I understand, to satisfy the committee and his Honor the Mayor that bribery had been done by four different parties. We did not wish to say anything at all about it, but let it quietly drop. The Mayor was perfectly satisfied, and the committee agreed with him. The committee cannot make any objection to the petition to the Board of Aldermen; but the reinstatement rests entirely with the Mayor. The committee have all the information they could probably get. My feeling was that we did not wish to mention anything about it.

Alderman Fitzgerald—This seems to be an extraordinary way to bring this matter before the Board. You, sir, are the judge of when you shall discharge or retain any officer, and with you rests the responsibility, and it is nobody's else business. Some two or three years ago a captain of police was dismissed from the service. His friends came to the Mayor and asked for an investigation. He said, "It is sufficient for you to know that I know enough about you to warrant my discharging you; it is in the interest of the public good, and I will give you no hearing." He got no hearing, and has had no hearing to this day. He was discharged and not told why. I presume that when you discharged this man you had sufficient reason in your own mind to justify you for so doing; and I do not propose, by any vote of mine, to say that what you have done in the discharge of your official duty is wrong, more especially when the man does not belong to the force, and more especially when any report we make does not reinstate him. If there is to be any investigation, the more manly way would be to go to you who discharged him and ask you to look into this matter. Now, it is said the object is not to reinstate him, but to find out whether you were right, and what you did was correct; not that he shall get on the police force, but that you were wrong in what you did. Now, I understand that the charges made against this man are simply—"I gave you so much money at certain times." The man who receives the bribe simply says, you did not give me money; I deny it." It is simply assertion and denial. While I was in the Legislature I was for a number of weeks on a committee to investigate the State force. Some thirty or forty witnesses were called and testified to giving money to certain individuals. Neither knew the other; but each testified that he gave certain amounts of money to a certain person at certain times. Each accused person came up and swore he never received the money. Now, the probabilities are that the forty persons are right and that the one man was wrong. In cases of bribery no one is present except the man who gives and the man who receives; and if five or six persons tell the same story about the same kind of a transaction with one individual, especially in the execution of a law like the liquor law, the probabilities are that the five or six men are right and the one man is wrong. The law is so peculiar that I venture to say it would demoralize all the saints if they came to execute it, so great is the temptation to bribery and corruption. The simple question is, whether the Board will reopen this case and hear witnesses after you have decided; because you, sir, had the right to discharge this man without consulting the Committee on Police. It is whether we shall have a special investigation to decide whether you are wrong.

Alderman Clark—The question is whether this man shall have an opportunity to prove himself innocent of the charge of bribery. No man should go out to the world as guilty until he has had an opportunity to prove himself innocent. This man is willing to put his character against those who charge him with taking bribes, and he is as much entitled to belief as they are. It is hardly fair to a man of his position to have his character sworn away by half a dozen liquor dealers doing an illegal business. I admit that you, sir, have the right to discharge men from the force; but I claim that every man should have an opportunity to prove himself honest until he is proven guilty. This man claims that he has had no hearing, either before the Mayor or the Committee on Police. He simply asks to be heard and prove himself an honest man, instead of being branded as a felon, for a man in his position who will take money is no more than a felon. It is nothing more than right that he should have an opportunity to prove himself, without any reference to his being reinstated upon the force.

Alderman Burnham—I think the gentleman last up labors under some misapprehension in regard to the condition of this matter, and perhaps the chairman may have led him into it by his explanation of the action of the committee. The Board must bear in mind that here is a petition to open a case upon which the committee have taken no action. So far as the committee considered it, it was more as individuals than as a committee. It never came before the committee in any shape that the committee could say that they approved of this man's discharge or sanctioned the charges. After hearing the whole matter the committee threw the whole matter upon the Mayor, he having the power and having exercised it according to his own convictions of duty. Consequently the committee did not feel like opening and having a hearing upon a matter with which they had nothing to do. It seems to me that the hearing properly belonged to some tribunal other than the Police Committee.

Alderman Viles—Was Sergeant Clark ever before the committee?

Alderman Robinson—He was not, sir.

Alderman O'Brien in the chair.

Alderman Fitzgerald—This is not a matter for this Board. The Police Committee have nothing to do with the discharge of this or any other police officer. That is a matter for the Mayor. If the Mayor investigates charges against the police and finds sufficient to warrant a discharge, he can do it, and the Committee on Police have nothing to do with it, unless he pleases to ask their advice. In questions of confirmation by this Board the Police Committee has power; but in discharging, the Mayor is absolute and upon him rests the responsibility. If a matter like this is opened, it will be but the beginning of a series of investigations. The place for a discharged officer to go is to the Mayor, and it seems to me it is acting in an insulting manner to come before this Board.

Alderman Clark—The Mayor has a right to discharge the whole Police Department for cause, or without cause. If no reason had been assigned, there would have been no occasion for investigation. But this man is charged with having violated his trust while holding a responsible position; with having received bribes from half a dozen parties and allowing them to go on selling liquor. He denies the charge, and courts inquiry. He does not ask the committee to keep it secret, and says he can prove himself innocent. He says, Give me an opportunity to prove that I am an honest man; I don't care whether I am reinstated or not.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I have no doubt the very publicity like that would defeat investigation. Public investigations of charges of bribery and corruption defeat the very object in view; and the only way of getting at bribery obtained by persons who have power and authority over others is to separate them and not let the person who pays the bribe see the one who receives it; and the truth will be told. That is what defeated the public investigation at the State House. You have a public investigation and those people will not come here. The fact that they are in the liquor trade does not detract from their character. There are just as decent men in the liquor trade as in any other, and the Alderman's insinuations are uncalled for. I have known some very respectable, decent men who have paid bribes to certain men in connection with the trade, and they never would come before an investigating committee and tell of it. This case is but one of many which have come under my knowledge during the past year. If the Mayor pleases he can look into the matter; but it is not for us. I reiterate that it will be simply a fight between the Board of Aldermen and the Mayor, if the reconsideration prevails and the matter is recommitted to the committee.

Alderman Gibson—I hope we shall not reconsider. It has slipped out of our hands altogether. There don't appear to have been any official charge of bribery against him. After a man is discharged we don't have anything to do with him. If people charge him with taking bribes he can go to the courts, and if the parties are responsible he can get redress. When railroad and other corporations get satisfactory evidence that any of their employes are taking money, they are discharged, and no reasons are given. If these parties swore they paid that man money and he says they did n't, the public will not believe one man against twelve. If a man commits a crime he is not going to admit it.

Alderman Robinson—The committee made no charges. They only said it was inexpedient to give a hearing. Suppose the sixty men on that paper should testify that he did not take the money, would that prove him innocent? There was sufficient evidence to satisfy the Mayor, and the committee were in accord with him, that there were sufficient grounds for removal. The committee did not wish to injure that man or any other.

Alderman Burnham—I sympathize with the Alderman in regard to this man's character; but the committee have had nothing to do with this matter. I wash my hands of it; I am innocent of it. I was asked by the Mayor to consider a certain matter, and expressed my opinion; but my opinion was not that the man should not be discharged. It was that the whole matter rested with him and he should assume the responsibility of removal in accordance with the powers granted by the City Government.

Alderman Breck—I believe the Mayor acted in perfect good faith. It was after much thought and consultation with the committee. I do not care to shirk my responsibility. I think the reasons were sufficient for the Mayor to discharge him, and it was not for any one else to know why he did so.

Alderman Clark reiterated his belief that the man should have a hearing, and disclaimed any intention of insinuating against liquor dealers as such; his remarks were intended for those who are doing an illegal business. It was a notorious fact that the man was discharged for taking bribes from parties carrying on an illegal business.

Alderman Robinson said he had never mentioned that notorious fact, and did n't believe the Mayor did. In reply to Alderman Viles, he said it was customary to investigate charges, where there is a chance to bring the parties together.

The reconsideration was lost—yeas 3, nays 8; Aldermen Clark, Viles and Wilder voting yea.

PETITION FOR WORK.

Alderman Clark presented a petition from Florence J. Battie, 304 Bolton street, and John J. Nevens, Second street, representing that they were in need of work. He said it was handed to him after the last meeting and he presented it by request. Referred to the Committee on Paving.

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman Wilder.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Common Council,
JULY 12, 1877.

Regular meeting at 7½ o'clock P. M., Benjamin Pope, President, in the chair.

The Council was called to order at twenty minutes before eight o'clock, and on motion of Mr. Felt of Ward 18 the roll was called, with the following result:

Present—Messrs. Barnard, Beeching, Blanchard, Blodgett, Brown, Burke, Clarke, Crocker, Cross, Danforth, Day, Duggan, Fagan, Felt, Fernald, J. J. Flynn, Hiscock, Howes, Kelley (Ward 3), Kidney, Loughlin, Pearl, J. H. Pierce, Pope, Reed, J. B. Richardson, Roberts, Ruffin, Sampson, Shepard, Sibley, Smardon, Souther, Spenceley, Thorndike, Upham, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster—37.

Absent—Messrs. Barry, Brintnall, Cannon, Coe, Cox, Dee, Doherty, D. A. Flynn, Fraser, Ham, Hibbard, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 6) McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, Morrill, Mowry, Mullane, Nugent, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Perham, O. H. Pierce, Pratt, M. W. Richardson, Roach, Stone, Thompson, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—35.

MISCELLANEOUS PAPERS FROM THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Report of fires and alarms for June; semi-annual report of the Inspector of Buildings; quarterly report of the Inspector of Lighters, and Auditors' monthly exhibit for July 1. Severally placed on file.

Communication from National Lancers, and petitions, were referred in concurrence.

Petition of E. E. Hale et al., in favor of establishment of industrial schools. Referred to joint special committee in concurrence, and Messrs. Felt of Ward 18, Wolcott of Ward 11, Thorndike of Ward 2, Danforth of Ward 10, and Reed of Ward 17 were joined to said committee.

Reference to Committee on Finance of an order to allow $3 for each working day to each deputy Sealer of Weights and Measures, as therein set forth.

Mr. Danforth of Ward 10 offered as a substitute an order—That the Deputy Sealers of Weights and Measures shall receive for compensation the fees as set forth in section 14, chapter 51, of the General Statutes; and when the amount of fees which each Deputy Sealer shall receive exceeds the sum of $1000 per annum, such excess shall be paid into the city treasury.

Mr. Danforth—By the report of the Sealer of Weights it seems there were only sealed in the whole city of Boston 1600 scales, for the sealing of half of which they had no right to charge fees, because the sealers were under a salary. Now there are 1600 or 1800 retail grocery and provision stores, and yet it cost $5000 to seal 500 scales. If the duties are to be performed they should be done well; and if the Sealer's pay is dependent upon fees, we shall be likely to have the scales sealed. I therefore hope the substitute will be adopted.

The Council rejected the substitute and referred the original order to the Committee on Finance in concurrence.

Report leave to withdraw on petition of A. E. Parter, for compensation for personal injuries from a defect in Dudley street. Accepted in concurrence.

Order to allow permits to erect wooden buildings to be issued by the Committee on Survey, etc., of Buildings during recess of City Council.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21 asked for some reason for passing the order.

The order was passed to a second reading and put upon its passage.

Mr. Pope of Ward 14 thought Mr. Pratt's question a pertinent one, and should be answered.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8 said the committee had not acted upon it. It is customary to give the committee that power during the vacation, without having to wait to come to the City Council for concurrent action.

Mr. Pratt thought there was no reason for this device to avoid the statutes and ordinances, especially if the matter has not been referred to any committee. He moved to refer it to the Joint Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3 said it was mainly to accommodate people in the suburban wards who wish to erect wooden sheds, etc., and who should not be inconvenienced by having to wait till the City Council comes together after vacation.

Mr. Pratt said the statutes restricted the erection of such buildings, and he did not like to see the statutes set aside in this summary manner. If it has been customary, it is a bad custom.

Mr. McGaragle said the committee were to have the same authority during the recess that the City Council have; and it would hardly be fair to call the City Council together to grant a permit to erect a wooden building.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20 said it was a customary order, and he hoped it would pass.

The Council refused to refer the order—21 for, 22 against—and the order was passed in concurrence.

Order for Superintendent of Public Buildings to offer 600 old school desks and chairs to the city of St. John, N. B. Read twice and passed in concurrence.

Order requesting Street Commissioners to locate Western avenue in Brighton, between Charles River and the bend in said avenue west of North Harvard street. Read twice and passed in concurrence.

Report and order, new draft, for a transfer of $3000 from Reserved Fund to provide better ventilation for Common Council chamber. Order read twice under a suspension of the rule on motion of Mr. Wilbur, and passed in concurrence—yeas 62, nays 0.

Report and order, new draft, for a transfer from the Reserved Fund to the appropriation for the Department of Survey, etc., of Buildings, of $4600 for temporary assistants in office of said department, to be paid as therein set forth. Order read twice under a suspension of the rules, on motion of Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20, and passed in concurrence—yeas 62, nays 0.

VACATION OF FIREMEN.

An order came down for the Fire Commissioners to allow two weeks' vacation to employés of Fire Alarm Department without loss of pay.

Mr. Duggan of Ward 12 offered an amendment, to add, after the words "Fire Alarm Department," the words "and to the permanent members of the Fire Department."

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I just want to call the attention of the Council to this amendment. I wish I could so bring it to their minds that they will look into and investigate this matter a little. I had it in my mind to offer the same amendment, but thought I would defer it, because it might perhaps kill the present order. If gentlemen will ascertain the number of hours that firemen have to give to their duties, it seems to me that this amendment will pass unanimously. Some time during the first part of the year we almost unanimously passed an order authorizing the Fire Commissioners to give the permanent members of the department a vacation. It went to the Board of Aldermen, and, without a single word being said, except by the chairman of the Committee on Fire Department, it was indefinitely postponed. It seems to me that this thing needs our consideration. Those men are cooped up in the engine houses for twenty-four hours and deprived of all enjoyment, and do not have a single moment or hour that they can claim from one year's end to the other. Gentlemen may say they have three hours in which to go to their meals. Yes, but at the tap of the bell they must leave their dinners and go to a fire. There is no rule or regulation by which the Fire Commissioners will give them leave of absence for a single day in the year. I should like to read rule 21 of the regulations of the Fire Department. [Mr. Spenceley read the rule prescribing that all applications for leave of absence by permanent men shall be made to the commissioners through company officers and pass through the regular channels, receiving the approval of intervening officers; shall name the substitute, whose pay shall be deducted from that of the regular employé; and that each employé may be allowed two days in each month without loss of pay.] We read [continued Mr. Spenceley] that "six days shalt thou labor," and the seventh is a day of rest; but the Fire Commissioners seem to have improved upon this. The firemen have no time to spend with their wives and children, or to spend a few days in the country. Gentlemen may say they knew all this when they went in, and what did they go in for? Firemen do not go into the department to lose their lives; but when did you know of their shrinking duty even at the risk of life? Did they not work on Federal-street Bridge, on Shawmut avenue, to save life and limb? Why did not the Aldermen then, say, indefinitely postpone this? This is to give them what every clerk in City Hall, every policeman, and every one employed upon a salary has; and yet we move to indefinitely postpone it. I am glad the amendment has been offered, and I hope we shall send it to the Board of Aldermen and see if they will indefinitely postpone it without argument.

The amendment was adopted; the order was read a second time and put upon its passage.

Mr. Pope of Ward 14—I had the honor to be on the Committee on Fire Department last year, when this matter was considered, and the principal reason for their not reporting an order was that they regarded it as an infringement upon the rights of the Fire Commissioners. I am aware that this is a most unpopular order for any one to speak against. There are somewhere about 300 permanently employed men in the Fire Department. In order to give them a vacation of a fortnight, you have got to have absent some twenty-five men each week, thereby weakening the department to some extent. If the city is obliged to pay for substitutes for those men, the expense will be some $10,000 or $12,000, if they are paid the same wages that the permanent firemen get. If I understood the gentleman aright, he stated that the men had no time which they could call their own. I am not sure of the time, but I think they have two days every month, making twenty-four days a year—between three and four weeks—for which no deduction of their pay is made. The argument may be used that they cannot go for any length of time but by making application to the Fire Commissioners, which I think a very proper way, as I have had a very serious case come to my attention in a department where I happen to be an officer. I speak of the Protective Department. A driver took a day without putting in an application, and it so happened that the other party who was to drive was absent at the same time. Although the firemen do not have the vacation all at once, they have between three and four weeks in the year, and there is no deduction of their pay.

Mr. Spenceley—I presume the Council all know that the gentleman last up is an insurance man.

Mr. Pope—I am much obliged for the advertisement.

Mr. Spenceley—And that is why he is against granting a vacation to the firemen of Boston, when it costs $10,000 for substitutes. If the fire department consists of 300 men, and the police of 700, why cannot means be devised to give firemen a vacation as well as the policemen? That is a question I would like the gentleman to answer. It is right that policemen should have their two weeks, and it is just and right and fair that others should. The firemen are on duty twenty-four hours and the policemen seven or eight hours and have one day of house duty. I state it knowingly that the firemen have no time, from one year's end to another, that they can call their own. The language is plain. The commanding officer may grant leave of absence not exceeding twenty-four hours, not oftener than twice a month, to each member. They may do it and may not do it. Many men in the permanent companies do get it; many of the call companies do not. I don't call once in two weeks a vacation, to take care of home matters, receive friends and take care of children, and all that sort of thing, which you and I believe the best duties of our lives. What is one day in fourteen at home, and all the rest confined in the engine houses? One day in fourteen to go home, visit friends and children, and go to a place of amusement, which you and I would not give up for twice the pay they get. I call it red tape when an application has to go to his captain, his district engineer, the Chief Engineer, and then to the commissioners, and then back again the same way. In regard to dictating to the commissioners, they told me that any resolve or order that comes from the City Council they are bound to obey and will obey. Of course it is only saying what they think, and letting them do what they choose.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—Do the Fire Commissioners approve of what this order contemplates?

Mr. Spenceley—I think the commissioners will be divided in this matter. I do not want to answer the question. I might be a little personal, and I would rather not answer it.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—The gentleman from Ward 19 has referred to the gentleman from Ward 14 as a man interested in insurance, and he says that for that reason we ought not to pay much attention to what he says. It seems to me that, on the contrary, that is a reason for paying attention to what he says. The gentleman's [Mr. Pope] business is to look out for fires.

Mr. Spenceley—For the dollars and cents.

Mr. Crocker—And if he tries to make as many dollars and cents as he can for himself or for the companies that he represents, he necessarily looks out to see that our houses and property are protected as much as possible. He is placed in a position where he can judge of the matter better than most people, and where he is likely to pay more attention to it than most people. It seems to me that his position in this matter is the correct one; that it is very bad policy for this Council to be meddling with the business of the different departments in small matters, such as in determining whether any and how much vacations shall be allowed. We employ the commissioners to make it their business to look after certain departments, and it is very desirable to leave them to take care of the details of those departments. We have a good many important matters to consider here; and it seems to me that this meddling with the details of such matters is something that we had better let alone. The gentleman speaks as though the firemen were some poor unfortunate men that we ought to protect. Gentlemen must recollect that the firemen can leave their situations; they are not picked out by lot and compelled to take the positions; they sought the appointment, and there are thousands who would be glad of the places. Every position, employment, and profession has some disadvantages; this has its disadvantages, and yet it is considered a desirable situation. It is not as though they were suffering people who could not help themselves. This order is simply interfering with the details of the management of the Fire Department; and when we once begin that, we cannot tell how much mischief we may do. The people who have the management of any business ought to have the control of it, and it is very dangerous for other parties to meddle with it.

Mr. Spenceley—If three gentlemen can govern the department, and run it so well and manage it so splendidly, and arrange all these little details, I would ask the gentleman why, when we appoint eight discreet, honest and intelligent men on retrenchment, should we not let the details alone and let them look into them?

The question upon the passage of the order as amended was put, and the President being in doubt, on motion of Mr. Spenceley the yeas and nays were ordered. The order as amended was passed—yeas 45, nays 23.

Yeas—Messrs. Barnard, Beeching, Brown, Burke, Cannon, Cox, Day, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fagan, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Ham, Hiscock, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, Loughlin, McClinsky, McDonald, McGaragle, Mullane, Nugent, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Pearl, Perham, Reed, Roberts, Sibley, Souther, Spencelev, Stone, Thorndike, Upham, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster, G. B. Webster, Wilbur—45.

Nays—Messrs. Barry, Blanchard, Blodgett, Clarke, Crocker, Cross, Danforth, Felt, Hibbard, Howes, Morrill, Mowry, J. H. Pierce, Pope, Pratt, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Ruffin, Sampson, Shepard, Smardon, Thompson, Wolcott—23.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Brintnall, Coe, O. H. Pierce, Roach—4.

FREE FERRIES.

A report and amended order came down that on and after January 1, 1878, the tolls on East Boston ferries be abolished and the ferries run free. (City Doc. No. 64.)

The question was upon giving the order a second reading.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I am unwilling that this matter should pass even to a second reading without something being said against it. It strikes me as a most extraordinary measure for this City Government to undertake to carry through in this year of retrenchment and economy. The magnitude of this piece of "economy" is most readily seen when we consider and compare the expense of running those ferries with the amount of taxation that we get from the whole of East Boston. The whole taxes paid by the East Boston wards last year was $242,000; the expense of running the ferries last year, independent of interest,—the simple running expenses—were $170,000. It appears by the Auditor's report of this year that since 1870 the city has invested about a million dollars in those ferries, in buying the drops, boats, and in other expenses for which it got no return. Now the interest on that million dollars, at five per cent., is $50,000. Add that interest to the running expense, and it makes $220,000. Then, of course, from time to time, there are expenses for new boats and other unusual expenses, none of which, or a very small amount of which, occurred last year—yes, there was an additional item of some $20,000 last year for a new boat, if I am not mistaken. So that gentlemen can see that, even at present, the expense of running those ferries is substantially equal to all we get from East Boston by taxation. All the taxes paid by the East Boston wards is barely enough to pay for what we propose to spend to bring gentlemen over here to pay their taxes, as they say. We had better let them stay at home and not pay taxes at all. There will not be anything left to pay for grading streets, for schools, for police, or for anything else, and for all those expenses East Boston will be a load upon the rest of the city. Then again, if the ferries are made free, it is evident that the business and the amount of travel upon them will be greatly increased. The larger portion of the travel that now comes over Chelsea Bridge and Chelsea Ferry will, of course, naturally come over the free ferries of East Boston, and this will largely increase their expenses. It will require additional boats, and perhaps an additional ferry, and we shall have to pay for bringing over not only the people of East Boston, but also those of Chelsea, Winthrop, Lynn, Salem, and in fact all the people of Essex County, whether they come on wheels or on foot, will seek that route to Boston, and the city of Boston will have to bring them over free. We shall not simply bring over the East Boston people free, but everybody who comes from the direction will take the route that is free. For these reasons I feel strongly that we ought not to incur this additional expense, and thereby add this large item to our tax levy. $250,000 will substantially be the actual expense of these free ferries to the city of Boston, and that is at five per cent. the interest on five millions of dollars. This freeing of the ferries is like incurring a new debt of five millions. Now there has been this year a great attempt to economize in small matters, and we have with a great flourish of trumpets saved a few thousand dollars in salaries. But about all of what we have saved, we have thrown away already, and now we are going at one fell swoop to incur an expense much more than all the reductions we have made, and this not an expense for one year alone, but an expense that will continue. This matter of free ferries has no precedent, I believe. I have yet to hear that any attempt has been made in any other city to carry people across ferries free. Gentlemen from East Boston say that they cannot get to the main part of the city without paying tolls. They can, if they are willing to go around through Chelsea and over Chelsea Bridge. It is a roundabout way, to be sure, for them to reach City Hall to pay their taxes, as they say, without expense. Of course it is not so direct; but are we going to adopt the method of bringing all people in the suburbs in by an air line. The people of West Roxbury may say they want to come in by an air-line route—that it is not fair that they should be compelled to walk a roundabout course through crooked streets. Perhaps they will want an air-line route of free balloons. That would be about as reasonable as for the people of East Boston to insist on being brought across the water free. When the city has purchased the boats and drops, and only requires the people of East Boston to pay, by their tolls, substantially the running expenses of the ferries, and does not require them to pay in tolls anything towards the interest on the capital invested, the city does for East Boston all that reasonably can be asked; all that is done for Charlestown or South Boston, for which it provides bridges, but does not furnish vehicles for bringing the people over those bridges. I suppose the Council does not want to hear any long discussion upon this subject tonight; but I felt it my duty not to let this matter go by without something being said upon it. I have therefore stated the reasons why I shall not be prepared to vote for free ferries.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—The gentleman who preceded me seems to dwell upon the matter of the running expenses of the ferries. Has he considered the expense of the four bridges leading to South Boston? Has he considered the annual interest at six or seven per cent. on the sum invested in those bridges?—to say nothing of the expense of maintaining and supporting them. The same reason applies for bringing people from East Boston that applies for bringing people from other sections of the city proper. There are bridges leading from Charlestown, and the gentleman has not considered the expense of maintaining them. I say that is a fair and just answer to the point he has made at this stage of the argument.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20 suggested that the order would lie over under the rules, and hoped there would be no more discussion.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3 moved the special assignment of the subject to next Thursday evening.

Mr. Reed of Ward 17 hoped the assignment would not lie over, but that the order would pass through its first stage. In answer to Mr. Crocker's argument, he asked what would be done with the taxes which exceeded the amount expended in East Boston, for, according to Mr. Crocker's argument, it would not belong to the city treasury.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5 and Mr. Beeching of Ward 1 opposed, and Mr. Webster of Ward 3 and Mr. Howes of Ward 18 advocated, the assignment. Mr. Burke of Ward 2 and Mr. Flynn of Ward 3 also opposed it, the discussion turning on the effect thereof, the opponents wishing the order to take its second reading and lie over under the rule, and the advocates desiring time to debate it at each stage.

Mr. Crocker, in reply to Mr. Reed's questions, said his position was not that the city could not spend in one section more than it received for taxes from that section; but this was an extraordinary case, when the city was asked to spend every year, for conveying the people of two wards into the city proper, more than the whole amount of taxes received from that part of the city. It shows that to be a very expensive part of the city, and we might almost wish to get rid of it. East Boston asks the city proper to pay for their police, for their schools, and for the lighting and paving of their streets, while the whole amount raised by taxation in East Boston itself will have to be applied solely to the one item of supporting the ferries. That is a very extraordinary step to be taken by an economical City Government. In reply to Mr. Mowry he said he had not figured up the cost of the bridges, but supposed it a pretty large sum. If the figures had been very favorable to Mr. Mowry's side he would probably have given them himself. It must be remembered, however, that the amount paid for bridges to South Boston has been accumulating for fifty years or more, while the expenses of the ferries have been accumulating only for seven years. Besides, when you compare the amounts which different sections contribute, South Boston last year contributed $530,000, against $242,000 from East Boston; and Charlestown $420,000. There is much more reason in going to a larger expense for a large and wealthy suburb than for a small one. We must proportion the expenses of means of communication with the different sections of the city according to the size and importance of those sections.

Mr. Beeching of Ward 1 opposed an assignment as a vote might commit members to one side or the other before they had discussed the measure.

The motion to specially assign was declared carried. Mr. Burke of Ward 2 doubted the vote, and on his motion the yeas and nays were ordered. The motion to assign was lost—yeas 27, nays 38:

Yeas—Messrs. Barnard, Barry, Blanchard, Blodgett, Crocker, Danforth, Day, Felt, D. A. Flynn, Hiscock, Howes, Jackson, Mowry, J. H. Pierce, Pope, Pratt, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Rufin, Sampson, Smardon, Stone, Thompson, Upham, G. E. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—27.

Nays—Messrs. Beeching, Brintnal, Brown, Burke, Clarke, Cox, Cross, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fernald, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Ham, Hibbard, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, Loughlin, McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, Morrill, Mullane, Nugent, O'Connor, Pearl, Perham, Reed, Roach, Roberts, Shepard, Sibley, Souther, Spenceley, Thorndike, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster—38.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Cannon, Coe, Fagan, O'Donnell, O. H. Pierce—5.

The order was passed to a second reading and laid over.

CHELSEA BRIDGE.

The order for the Mayor to procure certain releases and agreements from Oriental Coal Oil Company, on account of reconstruction of Chelsea Bridge, and to release said company from certain claims, was considered under unfinished business. Passed. Sent up.

STEALING FLOWERS FROM PUBLIC GARDEN.

The order to pay N. W. Johnson $25.00 for detection and conviction of George Warren, for stealing flowers from the Public Garden, was considered under unfinished business.

Mr. Ruffin of Ward 9 thought some means should be adopted to prevent such orders from coming in there, as the laws and ordinances were ample for such cases. He did not like the policy of paying a reward to the informant. In most cases the offenders were children. He read the penalty prescribed by the General Statutes for such offences, and argued that the reward should not be paid to policemen.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18 thought it would be well to give the Committee on Common authority to pay a reward for the conviction of persons for stealing flowers; but some such provision is necessary.

Mr. Mowry thought it unnecessary to pass the order, as the ordinance is ample.

The order was rejected in non-concurrence—9 for, 35 against.

IMPROVED SEWERAGE.

The next subject in order was that of public parks, but on motion of Mr. Sampson of Ward 17 the rule was suspended to allow sundry important reports to be submitted.

Mr. Sampson submitted a report from the Joint Special Committee on Improved Sewerage. The committee, after referring to the subject in the several phases in which it has been before the City Government, believe that it is unnecessary to present any arguments to prove the necessity of adopting a comprehensive system of sewerage for this city. The ground has been fully covered by former reports upon the subject. In such matters great reliance must be placed upon the opinions of persons who have made sanitary science a study, and, if the mass of testimony which has been presented from time to time be reviewed, it will be seen that the evils arising from defective sewerage are discernible in this city to an alarming extent.

While it is not assumed that an improvement in the system of sewerage will secure to us complete immunity from disease, it is believed that it will remove a powerful agency for evil. Aside from questions of health, it is well known that great discomfort is occasioned to the residents of many parts of the city who are compelled to inhale the odors occasioned by the present method of discharging our sewage. It is believed that the necessity of the improvement will be admitted, whatever differences of opinion there may be as to the proper method of relief.

The plan for an improved system of sewerage which is now presented has the indorsement of the best engineering talent in the country. It is the result of a careful study of the different systems of sewerage now in practical operation, and an application of the best features of such systems to meet the present and future wants of Boston. It is unnecessary for your committee to attempt to explain the details of the proposed plan: for that they refer to reports and plans of the engineers. It will be seen that the plan agrees in all its essential features with that originally recommended by the commissioners.

Your committee have made a careful study of the scheme, and are convinced that it presents the only practical method of effectually removing the evils which are inseparable from our present system. It appears to be the only feasible method of securing the conditions demanded of a complete system of sewerage, viz., the immediate and uninterrupted removal of sewage from the vicinity of our dwellings to some point from whence it will not return.

The report is signed by Aldermen Burnham, Wilder and Slade, and Councilmen Sampson, J. Homer Pierce, Ham and Thorndike. Councilman Blodgett dissents from the recommendations of the majority.

The orders recommended by the majority of the committee authorize the City Treasurer to borrow $3,712,700, to constitute a special appropriation for the construction of an improved system of sewerage, and authorizing the Committee on Improved Sewerage to contract for the construction of an improved system of sewerage, having its pumping station located at Old Harbor Point and its outlet at Moon Head, with all the reservoirs, pumping works and other appliances essential to the proper operation of said system.

The report was ordered to be printed and the orders were referred to the Finance Committee. Sent up.

WIDENING OF COMMERCIAL STREET.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 submitted the following: The Joint Committee on Streets, to whom was referred the communication of the Street Commissioners relating to the widening of Commercial street from Eastern avenue to Charles River Bridge, beg leave to submit the following report: The widening of this street so as to correspond substantially with Atlantic avenue, will make a continuous broad avenue from Summer street upon the mercantile water front of the city. The uses of such an avenue in developing the material interests of the city are too apparent to need argument. The necessity for communication by freight cars through any large city from the several depots, is of vital importance to prompt and efficient traffic, and it is equally so to and from the depots and large wharves, especially those that are used for foreign commerce. A wide street in the vicinity of wharves, where large amounts of goods have to be quickly handled in loading and unloading vessels, is also of great benefit to every one whose business it is to ship and receive goods. It is said that the wharves shorted by the laying out of Atlantic avenue can now handle more freight and with greater ease than was possible before, and this solely for the reason that it can be so quickly removed from the point of obstruction or delivery, a block now being an exception where before it was the rule. For these reasons and others the committee are in favor of the widening. The committee might recommend that the Street Commissioners be requested to make accurate surveys of the taking, and proceed to report an order to make the widening, submitting the same to the City Council for their concurrence; but this would involve a large expense and be entirely unnecessary, if after all the City Council should fail pass the necessary appropriation by the required two-thirds vote. It seems also to the committee that it is unwise to order the widening of a street by the Street Commissioners, involving so large an expenditure as this, without first providing the means for defraying the expense, and in this the Street Commissioners agree; in fact they have decided that they have no right to attempt to involve the city in any expenditure where the means have not been provided to meet the cost. They therefore present the accompanying order to provide means.

Ordered, That the Committee on Finance be requested to provide for an appropriation of $1,000,000 for the widening of Commercial street in such manner as the Street Commissioners deem expedient, not exceeding one hundred feet, from Eastern avenue to Charles River Bridge; said sum to include the cost of repaving and grading said street, and suffice for the cost of such damages arising from such widening and grading.

Mr. Flynn moved that the report be printed and the orders referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. McGaragle asked what the Finance Committee are to provide $1,000,000 for? Before doing so the Council should have the plan, know whose property is to be taken and what is to be paid for it.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—This has been before the Street Committee and Commissioners two or three years. The commissioners have estimated the cost for 100-foot and 80-foot streets, and made lines for both. The estimate for 100 feet is $1,000,000, for eighty feet about $900,500, and they think 100 feet the cheaper, as the buildings would be destroyed in any event and only the extra land would have to be paid for. They thought they ought not to pass this without first getting the consent of the City Council and an appropriation of money, as it will cost much for surveys and plans which will not be necessary unless the Council pass the order.

Mr. McGaragle said the explanation was mysterious, and asked if such a proceeding had ever been attempted before. He moved to table the report.

Mr. Flynn said it was the usual course, the same having been done with the improved-sewerage report.

The motion to table was lost—7 for, 44 against.

The report was ordered printed and the orders were referred to the Finance Committee. Sent up.

PUBLIC PARKS.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9, from the Committee on Public Parks, to whom was referred an order to ascertain the cost of the proposed park on the Back Bay, reported that the 100 acres could be bought for $450,000. The committee also submitted estimates of the City Engineer of the cost of filling, etc., in response to certain inquiries made of him by the committee. He estimates that the amount of filling required would be 155,000 squares, divided as follows: For the park, 121,000 squares, which at $3.25 per square would be $393,250; for the streets, 34,000 squares, which at $3.25 per square would be $110,500—making the total cost $503,750. If the work is commenced at once and completed as soon as it can be, it can be done for $3.25 per square, but if the work is delayed for three or four years the Engineer estimates that the cost will be $4 per square. It is also estimated that if ashes are used for filling, the sum of $471,000 will be saved; and that the cost of a fresh-water pond of thirty-five acres would be $127,500.

The report was accepted. Sent up.

Mr. Thompson sent up and had read the following letters in connection with the subject:

CITY HALL, BOSTON, July 11, 1877.

Joseph P. Davis, Esq., City Engineer: Dear Sir—I asked you on or about June 26 for a rough estimate of the amount of filling required to fill to grade 17 100 acres in the Back Bay at the proposed park location, and you gave me 180,000 squares, if I am not mistaken.

I wish to ask you what the total cost of the 100 acres would be, filled and covered with loam to the depth of one foot, provided the filling could be done for $3 per square, and the loaming at the rate of fifty cents for twenty cubic feet of loam. Yours truly,

[Signed]

JOHN T. CLARK.

BOSTON, July 12, 1877.

Alderman John T. Clark: Dear Sir—I gave you, as you state in your letter 180,000 squares as a rough approximation of the amount of filling required to fill to grade 17 one hundred acres in the Back Bay.

The cost of this filling and of the loaming at the prices you name in your note would be as follows:

180,000 squares of gravel @ $3.....	$540,000
Loaming 100 acres.....	108,000
Total.....	$648,000

Yours respectfully,

JOSEPH P. DAVIS,

City Engineer.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—Mr. President, at the request of the gentleman whose name is mentioned in that letter I will state that the difference which appears in the cost of the park as stated in the report of the Joint Special Committee on Parks and as stated by the gentleman in the Board of Aldermen, arises from the difference and nature of the questions that were asked. He stated that he asked from the City Engineer a rough estimate of the cost of filling the entire hundred acres with clean gravel and covering with loam to the distance of one foot. The Joint Special Committee on Parks, desiring to know how far the ashes of the city could be utilized, introduced that question into it. They also felt that the plan as carried out by the Park Commissioners would approximate to the plan which they had estimated in their report. Believing that a fresh-water pond should be included in the estimate, they asked what would be the additional cost of making the pond. The order provides that this park shall be surrounded by public avenues or streets to be taken from the land; so they were obliged to include in the cost of this park the cost of sixteen and three-quarters acres of public streets. So that from the very different nature of the problems presented, necessarily the answers were different. But in order that there might be no misunderstanding in regard to the statement made by the Alderman, it was but fair that at the time this report was made this statement should accompany it. There is in fact no substantial difference in the estimated cost, because we include the cost of other and different improvements than those which he calculated upon. As the report does not give the total of the cost, I would say that the total cost of the park as given by the gentleman's figures in the Board of Aldermen, including the price of the land, would be about one million and one hundred thousand dollars. The total cost, as given by the report of the joint special committee, allowing we do the greater part of the filling by ashes, would be $900,000. So that the gentleman overstated the cost rather than understated it.

The amended order for a loan of $450,000 for the purchase of land for a park and streets connected therewith, as in said order set forth, then came up as unfinished business, and Mr. Thompson of Ward 9 moved to amend the order by adding the following:

“And the further sum of $225,000 for the purchase of not less than forty acres of land in the South Bay district.

“And the further sum of $325,000 for the purchase of the land between Cambridge, Charles and Leverett streets and the Charles River.

“And the further sum of $1,000,000 for the purchase of land in West Roxbury.

“And the said sum of $2,000,000 is hereby appropriated for the purchase of land for public parks, to be expended by the Park Commissioners under the authority of the Statutes of 1875, chapter 185; and the Treasurer is hereby directed to negotiate said loan, only as the money may be needed by the Park Commissioners, and to issue therefor certificates of indebtedness for the longest time allowed by law, at the time of such issue, not to exceed thirty years.”

Mr. Howes of Ward 8—If it is in order, I have several petitions, signed by about 150 or 200 residents of Wards 17 and 18, in behalf of the Back Bay Park, which I would like to present.

The Chair—The petitions are not in order now, but if there is no objection the Chair will entertain them.

No objection was made, and Mr. Howes presented the petition of A. W. Beard and many others in favor of the proposed Back Bay Park.

The question was upon the amendment offered by Mr. Thompson of Ward 9.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—Mr. President. I am not going to make any apology for occupying your time and the time of the Council in stating my views upon the subject of parks. Being one of the Park Committee, the subject has been constantly in my mind ever since you did me the honor to appoint me upon that committee, and when I joined in our report, I did so because I was firmly convinced of the truth of every proposition we stated in that report; and I say here I cannot understand the condition of any man who, accepting or assenting to the truth of those propositions, can act otherwise than I do, or who would abstain from voting for and urging the laying out of a comprehensive system of parks.

The propositions which most materially relate to the amendment I have offered are those which state that public parks are necessary to the health and comfort of large cities, and that where any large and growing city undertakes to lay out public parks, it behooves them to look to the interests of the future as well as to those of the present; and lastly, and perhaps most important of all, in the temper of this City Government, that the city of Boston can well afford the expenditure necessary to give the parks called for by my amendment. And if I can convince any man tonight of the truth of the propositions that I have stated, I hope he will have the courage of his convictions and vote for these orders.

Taking up these points in their order, I want first to state to you briefly the arguments and reasons which convinced me of the truth of the first proposition, namely, public parks are necessary to the health and comfort of large cities. The discussion which has taken place in the Board of Aldermen, and which has been carried on for a number of years past, is no doubt perfectly familiar to all of you, and it has given you the facts involved in this discussion. It has shown you that all large cities of above 250,000 inhabitants, with scarcely an exception—Boston is almost the only exception—are provided with a suitable system of public parks. Now, if we found this to be true in only a few particular cases, in the cases of cities that were peculiarly situated, we could not draw any argument from it. But when we find in every country, in every clime and in every situation, wherever large hodies of men are congregated together into densely-populated cities, that a special provision has been made for public parks. It is, I say, a fair inference that there is something in the nature of things which makes it a necessity; and if we look for the cause which makes it so we can very easily find it.

I have here the words of a man with whose name you are all familiar, for whose judgment you all have respect. He has stated, more briefly and more succinctly than I am able to do, the point in question. Dr. Edward H. Clarke says—

"The first is the sanitary aspect of the park. The discussion of sewerage and drainage, and of the ventilation of sewers, drains and houses, with which our community have latterly been made familiar, has impressed upon our citizens, to some extent, the importance of introducing pure air into our houses, and of keeping foul air out of them. The importance of such ventilation cannot be overstated. But we are in danger of forgetting that the importance of ventilating a city is as great as that of ventilating all the houses in it, with this difference, that if a city is not well ventilated, so as to bring fresh air into it and to keep foul air and poisonous gases out of it, the ventilation of individual dwellings will be of little avail. The foul air of the streets will not only envelop those who pass through them, but will penetrate the houses that line them, visiting alike the sick and the well, increasing the danger of disease to the former, and diminishing the health and strength of the latter. In proportion as a city increases in size, large open spaces should be reserved. Parks are the lungs of the city. They are more than this; they are reservoirs of oxygen and fresh air. They produce atmospheric currents, which sweep through and purify the streets. Parks not only offer oxygen to all who visit them, but distribute a large amount of this prime necessity of life everywhere in their neighborhood. Without open spaces appropriately placed, it is impossible, in a large city, to have well-ventilated streets, and to keep the air of the houses sweet and clean. Let us remember, moreover, that bad ventilation means poisoned air, and that poisoned air is sure to be followed by a ghastly train of diseases, with an occasional pestilence to remind the inhabitants what a terrible thing it is to disregard sanitary laws."

Turning over a page he goes on to say—

"The carrying of little children who are pinched by cholera infantum, or spotted by scarlet fever, or of those who are paralyzed by diphtheria, or distorted by scrofula, or emaciated by consumption, for a few hours a day into the pure air and bright sunlight of an open square has saved many a life. Many a needless death has occurred, because the city afforded no such opportunity for escape. A few hours' exposure of a child on a mother's lap, or in a basket or carriage, to the freshness of a park, will produce a sleep that never follows opium, chloral or ether, and will yield a chance for health that no drug can give. For the last few years Philadelphia has shown a diminished death-rate."

Here is a book which will well repay the utmost study which you can give it. It is called "The Sanitary Condition of Boston." The commission who made the report consisted of Dr. Charles E. Buckingham, Dr. Calvin Ellis, Dr. Richard M. Hodges, Dr. Samuel A. Green and Dr. Thomas B. Curtis. I have heard this book referred to by gentlemen whose profession it was to understand this matter, and always with the greatest respect, as being the result of the most thorough and careful investigation. Now that book, after going very thoroughly into our sanitary existence of condition, gives as the result of that investigation that the one point in which Boston is the most deficient is that it permits the causes which result in an enormous death rate of children. The fact is, that of every thousand children born in this city 271 die before they are a year old—nearly three-tenths of the children born in this entire city. And that large proportion is caused by the death rate in a few crowded and badly ventilated districts. In these districts it is no exaggeration to say that fully one-half of the children born die before they are a year old.

I came upon this Park Committee as completely unprejudiced as I think any man could. I tried to prepare myself upon the facts which were involved in this debate; but when I came to examine the reports, the arguments, made upon this subject, I found no fact that made the same impression upon me that this did. I found it said, by men for whose opinion I had the utmost respect, that in certain portions of the city we were killing off the children at a rate which they called horrible. It seemed to me to be an imputation under which this city should not linger. I found it to be the opinion of these men that that death rate could be very materially lowered; that one of its great causes was the absence of open squares and wide streets in the plague districts. I was told yesterday by a physician in this city that during last summer he sent during the heated period an average of four children a day out to different country and seaside resorts, fearing they could not live to reach them; they were so weak that it was necessary to remove them on stretchers; but as soon as they were taken out of the dismal places where they lived and given a chance to breathe pure air and sunshine they at once recovered. It seemed to me that this fact alone, if understood and brought home to the minds of members of this Council, must control their action, and prevent any long delay in alleviating this suffering. That is the argument which I am going to rest upon tonight, as a general argument in favor of parks. The evidence is from your scientific men. Your physicians of eminent standing all say, after having given this matter careful consideration, that there are districts in this city which especially need parks, and that the whole city needs them if it is to continue to be healthy and go on increasing in size.

Now, before going on to the particular subject of the parks included in the present order, let me touch upon my second point—the necessity of providing for the future. And I must meet here that spirit which feeling that something must be done, but having that conservatism which prevents them from facing and grappling with any great problem, and making full and sufficient preparation for its solution—wish now to give a little, and so put off the time when the much must be done.

I want these gentlemen to think for one moment of the law that regulates the growth of a large city. It grows by adding on to the already built up districts, and as it grows, pushes the country farther from the centre of the city. Many persons say, Why should a large country park be established now? we have beautiful suburbs; no other city has the equal of them? Well, grant it. What of it? Why, gentlemen, ten years ago you had beautiful suburbs, and ten years ago they were a mile and a half nearer the State House than they are now. Within ten years they have been built over until now we cannot take them for parks, they have become so expensive. But we still have beautiful suburbs. Are we still going to repeat the mistake of the past, and see the city growing and growing in all great interests, in population, in wealth, and I hope intelligence, and neglect this duty? If we do, the day will come, and come soon, when we cannot get a large reservation near the centre of the city which can be maintained in anything like its natural condition.

It seems to me clear beyond argument that it is very desirable to hold a large tract of country as near as possible to the centre of every large city. And, gentlemen, Boston is now a large city. I, for one, wish that she was not so large; but she is what she is, and she is to become larger. In time—in a few years, that space which is now country, where the air is pure, where grass and rocks and trees still abound, will be built over, and it will be too late to save it. And if it is, you will repent, and the people who come after you will repent infinitely more, if you neglect the opportunity you have now of taking some of this beautiful space in the heart of the city.

Admitting, then, that I have given you some slight evidence on my first point, that it is our duty to provide breathing spots for the population of the city; admitting also that it is profitable and desirable to have a system of parks which will meet the needs of the future; admitting these two points, there is only one question which can remain, and that is the question of the cost of the parks, the question whether the city can afford to enter into it. Now, gentlemen, there is something in the temper with which this question is met, something in the public mind—not in the public mind, I don't mean that—something in the mind of this Council of this City Government which is perfectly incomprehensible. I cannot understand how a man who has received a common New England education, who has the ability to cipher that is attributed to the Yankee character, can make the mistakes that are being made every day in this discussion about this addition to our debt. I state here, that if this order passes, the entire addition to our debt, for buying the lands and putting them in order, will be, as far as I can judge, inside of four millions of dollars. Now then the question is, Can the city of Boston afford the sum of four millions of dollars for doing what? My amendment calls first for this land between Leverett, Charles and Cambridge streets and the Charles River. I have described that land because the Park Commissioners have already located a park there. There is in that district as described about seven acres. The present assessed value of that land, exclusive of what is owned by the city of Boston, is $310,000. Across Charles street is the open space about the jail, about three acres, and around the Massachusetts General Hospital are about ten acres more, so that you have an open space, an air reservoir for pure air, of about twenty acres. This will cost you for the land and for putting it in order, that is, filling it up, removing the buildings, filling up the land, grading it, putting out your lamps and your seats, about $400,000. Now, what will that accomplish for you? I take again the language of a man who has studied this question—

The Chair—The gentleman's time has expired.

On motion of Mr. Howes of Ward 8 Mr. Thompson was allowed to proceed.

Mr. Thompson—Gentlemen, I thank you. I turn to the language of a man whose whole life has been one long scientific study. His life has been passed in observation of things around him, and his words will have, and they are entitled to have, weight with you. Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, in speaking at a public meeting in Faneuil Hall, said—

"There is one particular region which I will mention as likely to be specially benefited by the plan referred to—a region which would get the advantages of the fresh air coming over the wide estuary of Charles River without the expense and trouble of taking boats. The narrow and crowded streets of the northern slope of Beacon Hill, and a wide region extending northward from it are inhabited by the very class most exposed to cholera infantum and diseases of that nature. Having lived for many years on Charles street, where I am no longer an owner, I had occasion to learn the incomparable comfort and delight to be got in a hot summer's day, when the wind is from the southwest, by turning the corner of Charles and Cambridge streets and getting into the current of air cooled by passing over the water. Some of the poor mothers with sick children had found out where to bring them for relief; and I often thought if there were an open green filling up that corner, with shade trees and seats, what a priceless sanatorium it would be to all that suffering quarter of the city. The proposed green margin, beginning at Leverett street and extending along the river will meet this very want."

Now, gentlemen, most of you are familiar with that district; you know just what that district is. You know how narrow the streets are; how many crowded lanes; how many blind courts are there. You know that these streets fairly teem with life; the children, wives and families of laboring men, who present the very food upon which this poison air loves to feed. You can at an expense of $400,000 remove that. That $400,000 you are not asked to pay by the taxation of one year. Suppose you borrow the money on ten years' time and pay the interest upon it, and establish the Sinking Fund required for it. I will tell you how you can get that without knowing it; that which Dr. Holmes has called a priceless sanatorium for those people there. You can just give up your privilege of eating dinners at the city's expense for ten years, and you pay every stiver of it. That shows how small it is. You do not think you are putting the city to any great expense by what you do; and for the sake of the comparison, I say that by giving up that one expense we will pay the entire cost of providing this priceless sanatorium for the thousands of men, women and children who live in that neighborhood. And remember that it is within five minutes' walk of every dwelling house in the North End and the old Wards 2 and 3, which this report says are among the most unhealthy in the city, especially the locality where cholera infantum prevails. In that section of the city one-half of the children died before they are one year old.

Passing to another point, leaving that—for I don't know that I can say any more about it—passing to the Back Bay district, I have here to start with an official communication addressed by the Board of Health to the Mayor. That district you all know—the district described in this order—is what is called the Back Bay Basin. It contains an area of 289 acres. It has always received the surface drainage of the adjoining land, and for years a sewer, perhaps the filthiest in the city, has been discharging into it, and it has produced a nuisance, if ever there was a nuisance. Now, the Park Commissioners' plan proposes to take a strip at about the centre of that district, running from Boylston street to Huntington avenue, a distance of a little more than three-quarters of a mile, with a wide approach leading down to Beacon street and Charles River. They propose to fill up that hundred acres, the greater part of it, to grade seventeen; to leave thirty-five acres of it, filled at grade twelve, and to introduce into these acres fresh water, so that you will have a place for rowing in the summer time, and skating in the winter. Those who visit the Public Garden can form an idea of what would be the value of this as a rowing basin. And when winter time comes you will find you have a skating pond, two-thirds the size of the Common, where you can have thirty-five acres of good skating ice. A strong argument has been made in relation to this park, that it is a sanitary measure. Out of 289 acres it fills up a little more than one-third; it includes in that the bed and the mouth of Stony Brook; it leaves between the eastern line and the present filled land about ninety acres. That land we could depend upon private enterprise to fill, because the location of that park makes it valuable. It leaves you 100 acres which, without Stony Brook sewer, is not likely to be a nuisance. Right here, if there is no objection, I will read the official document I referred to.

Mr. Thompson then read the communication which was in reply to a note from the Mayor, saying that a water park in the proposed Back Bay would, to a large extent, destroy the present nuisance which exists there. Mr. Thompson continued—

That is official evidence. If it were in a court of law I think it would be prima facie evidence of the facts. This park, then, is valuable as a sanitary measure, and it is necessary for the health of the city now and in the future. For, remember, gentlemen, your decision affects not only your own interests, but those of the future. The life of a great city is not subject to the petty limitations which pen in the lives of men—long after we are laid in our graves this city will be here and growing. If you put that park there now, ten, twenty, thirty, forty, fifty years from now—what will you have? You have this great district which lies between Ruggles street and Columbus avenue, the great South End bordering on this park. A park which will be the great highway over which the people of Charlestown, East Boston and the North End will pass to the country parks, which must in time be located in West Roxbury; and again, as Dr. Clarke says, it will be a reservoir of oxygen and sunshine. It is stated in some report I have read that when this district is filled you will have a population of 150,000 people depending upon that area for sunshine and pure air. It is not only a reservoir, but it is a great conduit, to use the language with which we have become familiar by visiting the water works, carrying air, cooled and purified by the Charles River, up into what will then be the thickly-settled districts of the South End. If we neglect to make this improvement now, when we can make it for a million dollars, if we neglect to make it now and put it off until that district is covered with buildings, our descendants cannot do it, and they will suffer for and condemn our penury and want of foresight.

There is one point in connection with this district that I want to speak of. There is a certain prejudice against this particular project, because—I say it frankly—it is believed it is to lead to the peculiar benefit of a corporation which does not stand in very good odor with the city of Boston. Now, gentlemen, the Park Commissioners' report says that they take the land of between fifty and sixty individuals in going over that area. We are offered today this land, because the owners, or some of the largest owners, of the property cannot help themselves for a price one-half the price of what the city assessed upon it two years ago and upon which the city has collected taxes from the owners for years. Now, in connection with this park, I call your attention to the wording of the order. The order provides that this park shall be bounded on every side with wide avenues taken from the land purchased. The City Engineer's report says that one-sixth of the area will be devoted to public streets, so that in the cost of the park you have included the cost of sixteen acres of streets, about one-sixth the entire cost. This expense the city must incur anyway. Whether you make this park or not, the time will come when these streets must be built. It is only a question whether we shall begin the payment today or in five or ten years hence, and give five or ten times as much for it? The chairman of the Street Commissioners told me that a portion of these streets they proposed to lay out soon, and in his opinion the city would have to pay fifty cents per foot for it, whereas, by taking this tract you get it for ten cents per foot on the average.

Passing to the third park included in my order—the South Bay Park. Here you have a playground at the present centre of population of the city—a field where a brigade or a division of militia may drill, a place for exhibitions so much better than the Common, because of its nearness to tide water and to the railroads, that the Common may consider itself safe from invasion from the day that this park is established.

Again, in this district you have a nuisance somewhat like the Back Bay, not differing in this—that while the Back Bay, as now laid out, will be covered by wide streets and the houses of the rich—this district will be the home of the poor, and if we allow it to be built upon we will repeat the mistake of the Church-street district, and finally under the pressure of disease and death do at an immense what we can do now for a trifling cost.

Passing over that, there is one other park I include in my order. I wanted myself to see the whole Park Commissioners' scheme carried out. I believed—and I say it here—that the city of Boston would be better off in every way by taking it up, commencing it and carrying it through. But, feeling the temper of the time, I abandoned that, and I believe what we are asking here will fairly answer the public need. If I impressed anything upon your minds in regard to the necessity of providing for the future you must feel that that provision must be made in West Roxbury. The Park Commissioners estimated that they wanted $1,300,000. I think the city can get for $1,000,000 what they then proposed to take. West Roxbury Park in itself needs no advocacy from me; it is its own best advocate, and if we are to have parks at all, we must have this one sooner or later.

And now, gentlemen, comes the important question—Can the city afford the expense of these parks? The lands will cost $2,000,000, and it will take as much more to put them in order, in all $4,000,000.

Now the difficulty with many in considering this question is that people think too much of the gross sum and do not know or think about the details of collecting or expending the money.

It will take a year or eighteen months to buy this land; it will be as much longer before the parks can all be put in order; three years will elapse before this loan, if you authorize it, will be negotiated; and thirty years before it is paid. Your connection with the payment of this money, gentlemen, will be to pay thirty-nine cents on every thousand dollars you are taxed for. If you are fortunate enough to be taxed for $100,000, you will pay as rent for the use and enjoyment of these six hundred acres, $39 a year.

And when you think, gentlemen, that this payment will, through the Charles River Park alone, save the lives of more than thirty-nine children every year, will you grudge it?

If you do, do you think you deserve to be intrusted with $100,000?

Now, gentlemen, the subject of the effect of parks upon the city, judged by the increased value of property and the income from that increased value, has been discussed with great ability in the lower room, so it is not necessary for me to go into it, but there are two instances which I want to call your attention to. The first is the great Central Park in New York. The city of New York has spent upon that since its establishment over $30,000,000. In the last report of the commissioners they say that that money has been returned, every dollar of it, by the taxes laid upon the increased valuation due to the establishment of the park, and that the city is now in possession of an income of about four or five millions per year due to that investment. The second is the square in this city, where stand the new Trinity and the new Old South churches, and the Art Museum. This year, while the valuation of all the rest of the Back Bay territory has been reduced twenty per cent. as compared with 1875, the valuation of the land on Boylston and Dartmouth streets and St. James avenue, adjoining this square, has been increased, so that the money spent upon these buildings has been an investment for the city. And that is what this expenditure for parks will be. If it were not that I would be accused of figuring the cost of parks down to nothing, I could prove to you that the Back Bay Park alone would, in thirty years, pay the entire cost occasioned by this order; and any person walking along Charles street must see that the creation of a park there will take away the old sheds from the other side of the streets and put in their places substantial buildings of great value.

Now, gentlemen, there is the whole question. There are the arguments in favor of it. There will be some people here tonight who will vote against it, and there must be some reason why they will do it. I will tell you some of the reasons. There are some people who will not take the trouble to investigate a question which takes some little labor and work, and they have not got faith enough to accept the word of those who will. There are others who fear that if they vote for this order some man or some corporation may get a little special advantage. There are others who live in portions of the city that have plenty of fresh air and sunshine, and they think their portion of the city is not to be benefited, and they won't vote for it.

I beg of the gentlemen of the first class to have a little more faith in the scientific men of our city—men like Dr. Clarke and Dr. Holmes, like Dr. Buckingham, Dr. Ellis, Dr. Hodges, Dr. Green and Dr. Curtis, who tell you it is as necessary to have your streets ventilated as it is to have your houses ventilated. You have also the experience of New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati and San Francisco in this country, and you have the experience of London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna, Madrid, Florence and St. Petersburg, and all the other large cities, representing every nation and every clime and every people. You see them spend millions where you are asked to spend thousands, in providing park accommodations for their population. If these cannot convince you I am sure I cannot.

For those other gentlemen who oppose it for fear some one will reap a special benefit I say, You cannot make a public improvement without taking private property, and if it is taken it must be paid for. To those gentlemen who think they will not receive any benefit, I say no improvement can be made which materially benefits the health and comfort of the city that will not benefit the entire city in some form or shape. One thing more. It is urged that no order but the one that passed the Board of Aldermen can pass that Board. I say let the Board of Aldermen stand or fall upon its own action. If there are men there who will refuse to vote for the health and comfort of the people of the North End of the city, I say let them go to the people on their record; and if the people approve them, I am very much mistaken.

I have occupied too much of your time; I beg your pardon for it. I am interested in the subject from the crown of my head to the sole of my foot, and I believe every word I have told you tonight. If I could by any word, if I could by any appeal, by any effort of mine add a single vote or one single chance to the passage of these amendments, I would be satisfied. I can take but one course. I shall vote, as long as I have a vote to give, in favor of parks until they are established, as they must be, if there is any intelligence, any progress, any public spirit in the city of Boston.

Mr. Ham of Ward 14 offered an amendment to the amendment—

“To take all land belonging to the city of Boston east of M street and north of Second street, and to purchase all land and flats east of M street and north of Second street, for public park purposes, the expense not to exceed $300,000.”

Mr. Ham—I offer that amendment, in case we are to have public parks, in honesty and sincerity. The city owns a large amount of land in that location, and at present the price of the adjoining land is at a very low figure. It will cost nothing to take the city's land, and the adjoining land, being but very little built upon, can be bought at a low price. If public parks are to benefit the public as much as we have just heard represented, it seems to me that no part of the city should be unrepresented. I think I am correct in saying that no part of the city or the suburbs of the city is so much visited during eight or nine months in the year as South Boston Point. I think that people visit no part of the city so much as that.

Mr. Stone of Ward 3—The gentleman from Ward 17 has presented a report asking for four millions of dollars; the order for the park and the amendments of the gentleman from Ward 9 will require two millions; and there are other projects which will require two millions more. I should like to know how we can get the money. The municipal indebtedness act of this State, passed in 1875, prohibits cities and towns from incurring debts, exclusive of those for water works, over the aggregate of three per cent. on their valuation of taxable property, less the amount of sinking funds. Section 7 of the same act also provides that cities and towns at the time of the act going into effect (June 14, 1875), indebted to an amount not less than two per centum on their valuation, may increase such indebtedness to the extent of an additional one per centum in their valuation, and no more. The indebtedness of the city of Boston, less water loans and sinking funds, June 14, 1875, was $20,644,333.24, which was more than two per cent. of its valuation, therefore the city had a right to increase its indebtedness one per cent. The valuation May 1, 1875, was $793,961,895, which gave the city the authority to increase the debt $7,939,618. Since then we have funded loans amounting to $993,000, leaving the amount we may increase today $6,946,618. When we have exhausted this one per centum, the three per cent. clause goes into effect and where shall we stand then? Our indebtedness today, less the water loans and sinking funds, is $17,182,936.73; add to this the amount we have a right to borrow, $6,946,618, and our total debt will be $24,129,554.73. Our total valuation today is not over $680,000,000, three per cent. of that is $20,400,000, the amount we are allowed to borrow under the three per cent. clause. It will therefore be seen, should we incur debt to the amount of this balance, $6,946,618, we would exceed the three per cent. clause $3,729,554.73, and no public improvements could be made except by direct taxation until the debt is reduced below $20,400,000. We shall soon be called upon to appropriate nearly four million dollars for the new sewer to Moon Island. We have been petitioned to widen Commercial street at an estimated expense of $1,000,000, and to have free ferries, which will deprive us of an income of about $175,000. It would seem in the face and eyes of these facts that the gentlemen who advocate parks at this time are bound to have them at any cost, even though it ruins the city financially.

Mr. Thompson—I am very much obliged to the gentleman from Ward 3 for asking the question, for a minute after sitting down I said I had forgotten the most important point in my speech; and the gentleman has given me an opportunity to make it. The one great bugbear raised against this is that this loan may affect business and drive it off. How can taxes that do not oppress the taxpayers oppress business? A tax of thirty-nine cents on $1000 does not hurt any business man. Now, the gentleman asks how can we get this $4,000,000? When the Sinking Fund was under debate, I took some trouble and tried to post myself upon the finances of the city, and I think I can maintain what I say. I will tell the gentleman what he can borrow within the next ten years. He can borrow $16,000,000. If he knows of improvements required in the next ten years that will cost more than $16,000,000, I do not. I am not prepared to give the figures, but I can get them from the Auditor before this matter comes to a final vote. I can assure you that the city has a borrowing power of $16,000,000.

Mr. Stone—I got my figures from the Auditor, and he and I went over them very carefully. I don't believe he gave me one set and the gentleman another.

Mr. Thompson—I got mine from the Auditor.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I certainly hope the amendment of the gentleman from Ward 9 will not prevail. I am as anxious as any one that the plan of parks laid out by the commissioners shall be adopted, but I do not think this is just the time to offer amendments, because they will have a tendency to kill the order as it came from the Board of Aldermen; and in my judgment the thing to do is to pass this order, and then I will join hands with the gentlemen from Wards 14 and 9 and ask that the series of parks laid out by the commissioners shall be adopted. I hope no amendments will be adopted.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18 moved that the subject be especially assigned to the next meeting at eight o'clock. Lost by a division—25 for, 41 against.

Mr. Ham's amendment was lost and the question came on Mr. Thompson's amendment.

Mr. Howes—It has been my fortune, in the three years that I have been in the Council, to vote against any project for park improvements that has been introduced. The reason has been that all the projects introduced have been of a character to demand such an expenditure that in my judgment the city could not afford to carry them out. I am not opposed to parks in the abstract, and possibly not in the concrete in certain directions. But I have in mind always the interests of the city and the taxpayers, as I understand them. If a scheme of public parks could be carried out in the outskirts of the city, somewhat similar to that proposed by the commissioners for West Roxbury, I should certainly vote in favor of it, on the ground that it is adapted by nature for the purposes of a park for Boston. It has been said, over and over again, that we need no parks for Boston, that our suburbs are a series of parks. A gentleman has stated this evening—what is undeniably a fact—that these suburbs are being fast approached by the city proper, and in a few years, when we need a park, we shall have nothing except by going beyond them. This land in West Roxbury is peculiarly adapted for a park, on account of the diversity of the grounds and its thick woodland. If that measure could be acted upon separately, I should be in favor of adopting it; but beyond that I could not see my way clear to vote in favor of any of the propositions. The measure which comes from the Board of Aldermen includes a park scheme on the Back Bay. I am, possibly, as much interested in that section as any other member of the Council. From my back windows I overlook that section and am well acquainted with its odors, from having them constantly wafted into my windows. But I cannot conceive of a place on the face of the globe more unsuitable for park purposes. A park, to be a park, should have some sort of diversity. This can be nothing but a flat park, for some years to come at least, because the putting of it in order for park purposes would occupy a very long time before it could be of any actual worth to the city. Who believes that for ten years, at least, any one will go out on the Back Bay for the enjoyment of a park when there is merely a little scrub of trees growing? And ten years will be a very short time for them to grow into sufficient size to answer for shade purposes. More than that, it will be nothing more than a flat park at best, which might answer very well for a parade and play ground; but it is in no way fitted for park purposes. The only way it can be utilized to any extent would be to convert it into something similar to the Public Garden, which is a tract of analogous character. This park would have to be laid out in flower gardens, without the city wanting the expense of building artificial hills, as on the Common; and to support those flower gardens would entail a large annual expense. It costs in the neighborhood of $40,000 a year to keep up the Public Garden; and now we are asked to keep up a tract of land in the same way of six to ten times the area, and the reason urged for all this is that it will abate a nuisance that is there. I have not been able to discover, from any evidence introduced by those in favor of this, or from anything said this evening, that will lead me to believe that the nuisance will be abated by making a park there. The nuisance is caused by the imperfect sewerage of the district, and can only be corrected by improving the sewerage. By the orders submitted by the chairman of the Committee on Improved Sewerage this evening, and by private enterprise, this district can be put in as good condition, and better, than any other section of the Back Bay at the present time, from the fact that even the habitable part of the Back Bay is troubled by imperfect sewerage. Speaking as I do, I am aware that I am in opposition to several petitions I have presented this evening from a large number of the residents of my ward; and I have been told repeatedly, today and several days past, that a majority of the residents of my ward are in favor of this Back Bay Park. But, in spite of that, I cannot prepare myself to vote in favor of a measure which, under my oath of office, I consider I am bound to oppose, and for that reason I shall vote against it.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—I think the gentleman from Ward 9 has struck the right tone in his very able presentment of the matters relating to this park question. There is an old line of Horace, of which I have been reminded so often that it is quite familiar to me, "Parturiant montes, nascetur ridiculus mus." The aldermanic mountains have labored and brought forth a ridiculous mouse. I say it with all due respect to the mouse. The truth is, Mr. President, that a majority of the citizens of Boston are in favor of the park scheme exactly as it was reported by the able Board of Park Commissioners, and we are working towards it. Now I only want to say a word, because the gentleman from Ward 9 has taken away all my thunder and left me out of breath in following him, and I don't intend to make a speech, but just to answer a point suggested by the gentleman opposite, from Ward 13, that we ought to pass the order as it came from the Board of Alderman. In order to make a beginning, I want to express my firm conviction—which I may not now have time to back up with my reason, and may not find it expedient to relate them all,—that if we pass this scheme we have done with parks for years. This is what may, perhaps, be termed an entering wedge; but it happens to be a wedge with the square end first. I state this as one of the practical reasons for going for the amendment of the gentleman from Ward 9. While we have such strong petitions and recommendations, and evidence of real, live earnest work, all directed toward this Back Bay Park, let us hold on, and let the Back Bay matter rest. I am not one who believes in this eternal croaking about ill times, which are so much dwelt upon by some gentlemen in this City Government. I believe in the future of Boston; that it is bound to be one of the most prosperous cities in the country in years to come, and I believe we shall do a better thing than has been done for years in Boston if we pass such a park bill through this City Government as will indicate to the people outside that Bostonians themselves have not lost all faith in their future; something that will say to the people outside that we have confidence in the resources and business energy of Boston; that will show that we have a future before us, and invite mercantile and manufacturing interests to our limits. While I feel in this way in regard to the interest of the city, I feel it my duty to vote for the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ward 9. I seriously question whether I can vote for any scheme less than that. Indeed, I hope some gentleman will be brave and sanguine enough to offer one or two more amendments until we can get nearer the scheme proposed by the Park Commissioners.

Mr. Ruffin of Ward 9—I desire to say a few words in support of that portion of the amendment of the gentleman of Ward 9, which provides for taking lands between Leverett and Cambridge streets for a park on Charles River. I am in favor of what is known as a water park for Boston, and as this amendment looks in that direction I shall support it. Parks, to be useful, should be near the people. The great beauty of Boston Common is that it is in the heart of the city; and that small area is worth more to the people of Boston, is a better park, more serviceable, does more sanitary work, and is more pleasant to the eye than the large parks of New York; and the reason is that the people can get at it. A person in the heat of the day can turn away from the crowded streets, and from the walls of brick, and in a moment be upon that park, and enjoy the green grass, beautiful trees and fountains playing, and everything that is pleasant. Now this water park will be easy of access. The place is now mostly used for boating; it is known to the people of Boston, and has been set apart as a place where we have boat races and where people can take pleasure. I say keep that open. Unless we take some step in that direction, that wide expanse of water will soon be a narrow canal. Hungry capitalists have been looking at those flats for a long time, it is so easy to encroach upon the sea and make land, and, consequently, to make money. Gentlemen must remember that where the Public Garden and the palatial residences on the Back Bay are now was once water. We have encroached upon the sea, and are gradually narrowing the channel. People have been before the Legislature time and again to get authority to build out on those flats. I say keep it open; and the best way to keep it open is to devote it to the uses of a public park. That wide expanse of water ought always to remain there far the sanitary reasons which have been shown here tonight, if for no other. The winds which pass over that water are cool, and come to us fresh and invigorating. We know how grateful the east wind is on a hot day. Now, let us always keep that space on the west side open, and we shall always have a current of air; and whether it be from the west, the east, the north or the south, we shall always have plenty of it coming through our streets. Now, I said that this spot is accessible. You know that the lower part of the city has changed very much. The removal of Fort Hill has sent people in other directions. I remember when Poplar, Allen and all the other streets at the West End were occupied by rich merchants, and when one family occupied each house. Those houses are gradually being filled up by poor people, and they are gradually encroaching up and past Cambridge street. The majority of the people of Boston would receive benefit from this park. They can go there in a few moments and get those healthful breezes. The proposition, as I understand, is to have on either side of Charles River an esplanade, tear away the woodsheds and coal wharves, set out trees and plants, put benches on either side of the river, so that people can have either a driveway or a walkway, if they choose, and go there and look out upon the blue waters, and walk along Beacon street until they get out of town, as it were. It will give people a chance to enjoy fresh air and see the blue sky. In some of those streets you cannot see the sun set; but on the banks of this river you can see the glorious sun set in the west, look upon nature, and be invigorated. For these reasons I am in favor of keeping that basin always filled and covered with fresh water, so that people can always enjoy it. Now, I understand this is to be a very cheap park; and from the figures shown here tonight it is very cheap indeed. It is something which ought to be done, and I hope more will be done in that direction. It will accommodate a large number of people, and we can have sufficient land on either side of the river for all people who go there. You want ample room to accommodate all the people in that section of the city. For these reasons I have been induced to make these remarks in support of that portion of the amendment offered by my colleague from Ward 9; for I think it is something which appeals to the good sense of all the citizens of Boston.

Mr. Thompson's amendment was put, and the President was in doubt. On motion of Mr. Thompson the yeas and nays were ordered, and the amendment was lost—yeas 15, nays 51:

Yeas—Messrs. Crocker, Cross, Fraser, Hiscock, McDonald, McGaragle, Pearl, Perham, J. H. Pierce, Pratt, Ruffin, Thompson, Upham, Vose, Wolcott—15.

Nays—Messrs. Barnard, Barry, Beeching, Blanchard, Blodgett, Brintnall, Brown, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Cox, Danforth, Day, Dce, Doherty, Duggan, Fagan, Felt, Feruall, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Ham, Hibbard, Howes, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, McClusky, Morrill, Mowry, Mullane, Nugent, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Reed, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Roach, Roberts, Shepard, Sibley, Swardon, Souther, Spenceley, Stone, Thorndike, Warren, E. R. Webster, G. B. Webster, Wilbur—51.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Coe, Loughlin, O. H. Pierce, Pope, Sampson—5.

Mr. Brown of Ward 23—I hold in my hand an amendment which I propose to offer, and which I think will meet the approbation and pleasure of every member of this Council; and, Mr. President, in behalf of every man, woman and child in the city, and in their interest, I present this amendment—

Substitute the words "$1,650,000," for the words "$450,000"; strike out the words "a park and streets connected therewith," and insert in place thereof the words "park purposes"; insert after the word "purposes" the words "$450,000 of said amount"; after the words "superficial foot," the words "and $1,200,000 of said amount to be expended by the Park Commissioners in the purchase of land for a park in West Roxbury, substantially in accordance with the plan recommended in City Doc. No. 42 of 1876."

Mr. Brown moved that the subject be specially assigned to next Thursday evening at eight o'clock. Declared carried. Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 doubted the vote; the Council divided—19 for, 41 against—and the motion to assign was lost.

Mr. Brintnall of Ward 5 offered the following as a substitute for the original order:

Ordered, That the Park Commissioners be and they are hereby authorized to take possession of and prepare for use not less than 100 acres of land or flats, situated within the area bounded by Parker street, Huntington avenue extended in the direction of Tremont and Francis streets; Longwood avenue, Brookline avenue and the Boston & Albany Railroad, with approaches from Beacon street west of Chester park; Boylston street extended from Chester park, westerly, and Huntington avenue extended; said park to be of such shape as not to require other adjoining lands to make it symmetrical and to be bounded on all sides by public avenues to be taken from the land. Provided that the owners of this area will donate without cost or price to the city of Boston one hundred acres of said area, and in consideration of said gift or donation the city of Boston will hold itself firmly bound to said owners to improve the same in such a manner as will be necessary in order that said gift or donation shall be suitable for use as a public park for the citizens of Boston, and to complete the same within three years from the 1st day of June, 1878; the expense of the same to be charged to the appropriation for Incidentals.

Mr. Brintnall—Being a friend of parks, it has seemed to me, in listening to the remarks of the gentlemen, not only before the Council this evening, but before the Board of Aldermen, that this 289 acres on the Back Bay, of which 100 acres is proposed to be taken for a park, is so situated that by the city putting a park there, the balance of the 189 acres will be benefited to such an extent that the owners could well afford to donate this 100 acres to the city. The city will make avenues and streets in all directions across this 100 acres, and they will also have to make streets across the balance of the land. If, as was stated by the gentleman from Ward 9, a great portion of this 100 acres will sell for two or three cents a foot, if the park is located there the outside land would bring $1.50 to $2 a foot, I should like to know if it would n't be for the interest of owners of the land to donate this property to the city for a park? The gentleman from Ward 10 bases his argument upon the sanitary condition of the city and the great benefit to be derived from parks. If he had mentioned sewers in his speech, where he said parks, I think he would have hit the nail upon the head better than he did, for to get rid of this nuisance I think we shall have to build sewers instead of laying out parks. For that reason, and because it will be a great saving to the city, I think this land ought to be donated.

Mr. Thompson—I happen to have with me the map used by the committee in their discussions, and I think it will answer the question raised by the amendment of the gentleman from Ward 5. [Pointing to the map.] The different colored lines show the different owners. The Water Power Company own the large part, which is red, so that it is impossible to lay out a park without wiping out a number of owners, and it is pretty hard to ask a man to give land when he will have nothing left. The park proposed by the Commissioners takes about fifty acres of the Water Power's land and fifty acres from other owners, and it generally wipes out the land of other people, so that nothing will be left to be benefited by giving it.

Mr. Brintnall—I understood it differently, and that this 100 acres took a certain portion from each owner's land.

Mr. Brintnall's amendment was lost.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10 moved to amend by inserting after the words "Huntington avenue extended" the words "the land or flats so purchased shall be located with special reference to the improvement of the sewerage of the city."

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—I understand that the arguments in favor of this order, instead of being for parks as such, are simply in regard to the health and sanitary improvement of the city. But while it is a little singular that while members of the other branch opposed the park scheme for reasons given, and voted for the order as a sanitary measure, no provision whatever was made with any reference to improving the sewerage of the city, although those were the reasons which have been assigned; and I believe it is upon those reasons only that it can pass this branch. I certainly am not prepared to say I shall vote for this park regardless of the improvement of sewerage, and if this Back Bay park does not affect the sewerage of the city I doubt if I am prepared to vote for it. If it does tend to promote the health of the city I am prepared to vote for it. While my amendment does not put absolute limitations upon the commissioners, it is certainly an instruction to them that the location shall be made with reference to the improvement of the sewerage. I understand from the statute that the City Government have no power to fix a location, although the order provides that it shall be within certain limits, and that it shall be of such shape as to be symmetrical. If we can say what shape it shall be, we have a right to say where it shall be located. If it is not possible to locate the park so as to improve our sewerage, I am not willing to vote for it in our present financial condition, and from the calls for large expenditures that will be made for purposes that seem absolutely necessary. If I am convinced that this park will improve the sewerage and health of the city, I shall vote for it. It is to be certain that an effort will be made to accomplish that end that I have offered the amendment, which I do not think can be seriously objected to.

Mr. Spenceley—I believe I am in favor of a park on the Back Bay, and I know I am in favor of the amendment of the gentleman from Ward 23; but I am pretty well convinced that we cannot carry more than one park tonight. If any more amendments are put upon this little "horse" I don't believe there will be any horse left pretty soon.

On motion of Mr. Spenceley, the main question was ordered.

Mr. Richardson's amendment was lost—16 for, 31 against.

Mr. Brown's amendment was lost.

On motion of Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19, the yeas and nays were ordered on the passage of the original order as it came from the Board of Aldermen, and the roll was called, yeas 43, nays 23, and the order was declared rejected, two-thirds (48) being necessary:

Yeas—Messrs. Barry, Blanchard, Blodgett, Brintnall, Burke, Clarke, Cox, Crocker, Cross, Danforth, Day, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fagan, Felt, Fernald, J. J. Flynn, Ham, Hiscock, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, McClusky, McDonald, Mowry, Mullane, Nugent, O'Connor, Pearl, M. W. Richardson, Ruffin, Shepard, Smardon, Souther, Spenceley, Thompson, Thorndike, Warren, E. R. Webster, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—43.

Nays—Messrs. Barnard, Beeching, Brown, Cannon, D. A. Flynn, Fraser, Hibbard, Howes, Kelley (Ward 3), McGaragle, Morrill, O'Donnell, Perham, J. H. Pierce, Pratt, Reed, J. B. Richardson, Roach, Roberts, Sibley, Stone, Upham, Vose—23.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Coe, Loughlin, O. H. Pierce, R. Pope, Sampson—5.

On motion of Mr. Flynn of Ward 13, the rule was suspended and Mr. Flynn moved a reconsideration of the vote whereby the order was rejected; and on motion of the same gentleman the motion to reconsider was laid upon the table.

MYSTIC-VALLEY SEWER.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11 submitted a report from the Committee on the Judiciary on the order to ascertain the legality of the order in relation to constructing the Mystic Valley sewer by days' labor. The committee report that in the opinion of the City Solicitor "the order referred to contravenes no principle of law, and may be passed." Accepted.

CHARLES RIVER BRIDGE.

Mr. Stone of Ward 3 offered an order—That the City Engineer be instructed to examine the condition of the draw of Charles River Bridge and report what action is necessary to prevent the frequent interruption to travel caused by the defective working of said draw. Read twice and passed. Sent up.

COMMON COUNCIL EXCURSION.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8 moved a reconsideration of the vote whereby was rejected the order for a special committee to arrange for an excursion of members of the Council, stating that he opposed the order under a misapprehension, and the object of the order was to enable the committee to act authoritatively.

The reconsideration prevailed, and the question was on the passage of the order.

Mr. Felt of Ward 18 moved to adjourn.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18 asked if a quorum were present, and a count showing there was not, the President declared the Council adjourned.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen,
JULY 16, 1877.

Regular meeting at 4 o'clock P. M., his Honor the Mayor presiding.

EXECUTIVE NOMINATIONS.

Coal Weighers—Freeman Haskell, Gardner Prouty.

Police Officers Without Pay—Nathan J. Cottle and six others.

Severally confirmed.

Later in the session the Mayor read a communication nominating Lieutenant William H. Ham to be a Captain of Police, vice Captain Nathaniel Emerson, appointed to be keeper of the city lock-up. Referred to Committee on Police.

Alderman Robinson—Has Captain Emerson signified his acceptance of the office?

The Mayor—He has.

Alderman Viles—This is new to me. I have known Captain Emerson for many years to be a faithful officer, and for that matter I have also known Lieutenant Ham. I should like to have time to ascertain the reason for this change and why it is required.

Alderman Robinson—I knew nothing about it until told by some outside parties that Captain Emerson had been appointed keeper of the lock-up.

Alderman Viles—I know Captain Emerson to be one of the most faithful officers. If he has accepted the position, I have nothing to say.

The Mayor—The Chair would state that he has his written acceptance of the appointment.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The chairman of the Committee on Police [Alderman Robinson] can find out by next Monday why one captain has been appointed keeper of the lockup, and why one lieutenant is promoted to captain, and I have no doubt, after he finds out the reason, will exercise the prerogative he has always exercised.

PETITIONS REFERRED.

To the Committee on Paving. Petitions for edgestones and brick sidewalk in front of estate of Joseph Blundell on Lamartine and Boylston streets.

Jeremiah M. Swett et al., that edgestones be set in front of their estates on West Cottage street; Charles Soule et al., that Dix street be graded and put in order; F. A. Noyes et al., for a street crossing at the junction of Blue Hill avenue and Washington street, Ward 24.

Petitions for leave to move wooden buildings by C. S. Packard, from 24 Newton street, Brighton, to rear of Gerrish street; by M. Ellis & Co., from Putnam, through Condor street, to Condor street opposite Brooks street.

F. A. Collins et al., for sidewalks on Gates street and a portion of Eighth street; Clement Willis et al., that Northampton street, between Washington street and Harrison avenue, be paved with granite blocks.

Petitions for brick sidewalks in front of estates of F. S. Fay, Commonwealth avenue; S. E. Westcott, do; Theresa Gantern, Boylston street, near Lamartine.

Petitions for edgestones in front of estates of Highland Railway Company, on Blue Hill avenue.

John Egan, to be paid for grade damage to his estate on Terrace street.

To the Committee on Health on the part of the Board. Petition for leave to occupy new wooden stable for one horse by John H. Ailman, on Chauncy place, Ward 23.

To the Committee on Licenses. William Burnett, for leave to run a passenger wagon from Winthrop to the South Ferry.

To the Joint Committee on Streets. Patrick Mulvey, for deed of release of certain land affected by street widening.

To the Committee on Market. Francis Krogman, for leave to transfer his interest in Stall 32 and cellar of New Faneuil Hall Market to Samuel B. Krogman.

To the Committee on Bridges. John Dyer, lessee, for a reduction of rent of premises on Charles River Bridge.

To the Committee on Lamps. William B. Blake-more et al., for lamps on Bellevue avenue; W. S. Fallon, that a lamp be placed in front of his estate on White avenue, Ward 23.

To the Committee on Sewers. E. Worthen James et al., that a sewer be laid in Auburn street, Ward 8; S. Ormsby et al., for a sewer in Bowen street, between E and F streets; William Glover et al., against the construction of a sewer in Commercial street, Dorchester.

THE FOURTH OF JULY REGATTA.

A petition was received from F. H. Peabody, Benjamin Dean and 500 others, that the decision of the sub-committee on the Fourth of July sailing regatta (not to have a second regatta) may be reconsidered, and representing that the yachtsmen were anxious to have another opportunity to contest for the prizes offered on said occasion.

Alderman O'Brien—I would state in connection with that petition that the Sub-Committee on the Sailing Regatta had a meeting a few days ago and came to the conclusion that as the different yachts are now all over New England they would hardly be able to get up a race. It appears that there were mistakes, and I presume that if they took the matter up again they would favorably consider it.

On motion of Alderman O'Brien the petition was referred to the Joint Special Committee on the Fourth of July Celebration. Sent down.

HEARINGS ON ORDERS OF NOTICE.

The following sewer matters were considered on orders of notice for hearings: On taking land of Philip Sowdon, Jr., and Old Colony Railroad Company for sewer purposes; on taking land of Rush R. Shippen, Charles E. Jackson, Henry T. Hogan, James Nugent, Robert Scott and Harriet F. Coffin for sewer purposes; on taking land of Cynthia A. Richmond and others for sewer through Short and Tuckerman streets; on proposed construction of sewer in Walnut street, West Roxbury, southerly from School street; on proposed construction of a sewer in Garden street, between Phillips and Myrtle streets.

Mr. Nugent appeared and objected to be assessed for the Cedar-avenue sewer, as he had paid one assessment for a sewer on the other side of his property.

The orders were recommitted to the Committee on Sewers.

ALLEGED NUISANCE AT THE HIGHLANDS.

Alderman O'Brien presented a petition signed by Edward E. Rice, F. A. Howard, William V. Hutchings, C. G. Boardman, E. B. Reynolds, James E. Swan, H. B. Williams, George B. Topliff, Thomas H. Smith, George Woods Rice, J. W. Howard, G. E. Foster, George H. Quincy, Charles Davis, Stephen Bowen, residents of the Highlands, requesting that the nuisance of putting night soil on the Williams Farm, Highlands, be stopped, as it endangers life and injures property. The contractor and the Board of Health have been repeatedly requested to stop the nuisance, and the petitioners request that said board be made to do their duty or be removed from office.

Alderman Viles moved that the petition be referred to the Joint Committee on Health.

Alderman O'Brien—On the evening of July 10 night soil was spread over that farm, and it was an intolerable nuisance in that neighborhood. People were compelled to close their windows. It is clearly in violation of the ordinance. I presume it will be stopped after attention is called to it in this public manner.

The petition was referred to the Joint Committee on Health. Sent down.

THE PROPOSED VISIT OF THE GOVERNORS.

The Mayor read the following:

PARKER HOUSE, July 3d, 1877.

Hon. F. O. Prince: Dear Sir—The Exhibitors' Association of the Permanent International Exhibition, Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, in which the industrial interests of thirty-eight of the States and territories are well represented, invite the governors of all the States to visit and inspect the exhibition during the last week in the month of August next. They will be invited to extend their visit to the city of New York to inspect the commerce and public institutions and matters of general interest connected with that great metropolis. It has been suggested that it would be of material interest to the distinguished gentlemen and the people of Boston and vicinity to have them also visit this city, and whilst here to inspect some of the large and important manufacturing establishments in it and vicinity. If it is the pleasure of your honor to extend such an invitation, your pleasure will be forwarded to the Exhibitors' Association. Many of the governors have already been seen, and all have indicated that it is their purpose to be present. I will be pleased to hear from you at an early day, my address being Continental Hotel, Philadelphia, Pa. All of which is respectfully submitted. Your ob't servant,

J. E. PEYTON.

On motion of Alderman Clark the communication was referred to a joint special committee consisting of his Honor the Mayor, two Aldermen and such as the Common Council may join, and Aldermen Clark and Wilder were appointed on behalf of the Board. Sent down.

INVESTIGATION.

The Mayor read the following:

OFFICE OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF PAWNBROKERAGE, ETC., }
CITY HALL, BOSTON, July 12, 1877. }

To His Honor Mayor Prince: Dear Sir—Seeing in the issue of the Boston Transcript of the 10th inst. a letter over the signature of Mr. Thomas Gaffield, charging me with practices which, if true, unfit me to be retained one day a Superintendent of Pawnbrokerage, I hereby respectfully request that a committee be appointed to investigate said charges immediately.

I remain very truly yours,

JAMES K. CROWLEY,

Superintendent of Pawnbrokerage.

The Mayor—What action is it the pleasure of the Board to take with respect to this communication?

Alderman Fitzgerald—I move that a special committee be appointed to investigate this matter, and I ask that I be not placed upon the committee. I also ask that the committee be requested to report before next Monday. I think this is a matter that requires immediate investigation. I know all about it myself and I think it but justice to the person implicated that an investigation should be had immediately.

The motion prevailed, and Aldermen O'Brien, Dunbar and Breck were appointed on said committee. Subsequently Alderman Breck declined on account of having to be absent from the city, and Alderman Burnham was appointed in his place.

PAPERS FROM THE COMMON COUNCIL.

Petitions were referred in concurrence.

Order for City Engineer to examine the draw of Charles River Bridge, to see if the working of the same cannot be improved. Passed in concurrence.

Order, in a new draft, for the Mayor to procure certain releases and agreements from the Oriental Coal Oil Company, on account of reconstruction of Chelsea Bridge, and to release said company from certain claims.

Alderman Thompson said there was no objection to concurring in the passage of the order, but the Mayor, under an order passed some time ago, already has power to do the same thing.

The order was passed in concurrence.

Report of Committee on Public Parks, covering estimates of cost of land, etc., in proposed Back Bay Park, viz.: Purchase of land, $450,000; cost of filling with gravel, $503,750, with ashes, $471,000; subsoiling, etc., $295,400; fresh-water lake of 35 acres, $127,500. Accepted in concurrence.

Report of special committee in favor of an improved system of sewerage, with pumping station at "Old Harbor" Point, and outlet at Moon Island, at an estimated expense of $3,712,700. Referred to Committee on Finance in concurrence.

VACATION OF FIREMEN.

The order to allow two weeks' vacation to employes of Fire Alarm Department, without loss of pay, came up with an amendment to allow a similar vacation to the members of the permanent force of the Fire Department.

Alderman Burnham—This matter has once before been under consideration by the Board on a report and resolve which came up from the other branch that the firemen should receive a vacation without loss of pay—and it then received a negative vote. At the request of the fire-alarm employes, I had the honor to present this order which passed at our last session and now comes to us amended. In a communication to me on the subject, they say they make the request because

"1. In answer to our application for our annual vacation of two weeks, which has always been granted in previous years, we are now informed by the Board of Fire Commissioners that the only condition under which we can take a vacation is by furnishing a substitute at our own expense. They do this on account of the clause in the report of the Committee on Retrenchment which says that the employes in this department shall be paid for each day's service actually rendered.

"2. Our duties are continuous—covering every Sunday and holiday, night and day.

"3. No substitute can be obtained competent to perform our duties, and with one such as we should be obliged to provide, we should have to divide the work as usual in previous cases amongst ourselves.

Yours truly,

CYRUS A. GEORGE,

For the Employes Fire Alarm Department."

It seems but just that we should pass the order and grant the request. And I cannot see why this amendment should be connected with it. Indeed, I think, had the Council more fully considered the case, we should not have had it. As the Fire Alarm employes explain it to us, the order asks for them, as a simple matter of justice, that they may have their usual vacation. And it seems proper they should be relieved from this restriction that the Retrenchment Committee have unintentionally put on them. But this amendment is quite another thing, and if we pass it we greatly increase the expenses of the Fire Department. The firemen now have twenty-four days' vacation, that is, they are off duty twenty-four days in a year, for which days they draw pay. The firemen now can have the benefit this amendment seeks to give by application to the commissioners and supplying a substitute that shall be acceptable to them; and this is a simple and easy thing to do. But the point is, the fireman must pay his substitute. And the question on this amendment simply is, Shall we allow the firemen fourteen days more off duty, and draw their full pay. The fireman accepts his place in the employment of the city with a knowledge of the confinement that attaches to the place. Like a man on board ship he gives by contract his whole time—knowing that his only furlough is twenty-four days in a year, or one day in two weeks, and that his vacation time differs from others in that he must be within call of the department in case of fire; and he understands that the Fire Department has not a sufficient number of men to allow a vacation on any other terms. Were there a sufficient number of men in the Fire Department to allow this amendment without increase of force the case would be different; then the duty of those on vacation would in case of fire be performed by those on duty, and the arrangement for vacation could be such as now prevails in the Police Department, viz., those remaining perform the duty of those off. Therefore if we vote this amendment, a larger force must be employed. A change must be made that will cost, as I said, a large sum. For one I would be glad to give to the members of the Fire Department any vacation they desire, if it can be done without detriment to the service; but it seems to me we have already made provisions that should be acceptable, especially as the commissioners feel it would not be for the best interest of the force. In looking over this matter I have asked the Chairman of the Fire Commission to furnish me the exact amount it will cost the city, provided the amendment should prevail, and I received this communication:

"Alderman Burnham: Dear Sir—Should the order for vacation to the permanent men be concurred in, to give each one fourteen days and fill his place with a substitute will cost $9772.56."

Under these circumstances, Mr. Mayor, it seems to me that it is hardly the thing for this Board to concur in the amendment.

Alderman O'Brien—When this matter was before us some weeks ago, I thought a different system might be arranged; that instead of giving the firemen a vacation of two days every month, it might be arranged so as to give them a vacation of two weeks every six months. But, in consulting with the firemen themselves, that I have been able to see, I find that they would prefer their two days' vacation every month, rather than to have a two-weeks' vacation every six months. For my part, I should like to see some arrangement made whereby these firemen would have a vacation of one, two or three weeks in the year. Their duties are not arduous most of the time; but when you imagine that they are confined in that engine house without interruption every day in the month except two, it appears to me that some system might be devised—not very expensive to the city—by which they might have a continuous vacation of a week or two weeks during the year. I should like to have this matter referred back to the Fire Commissioners to see if some arrangement cannot be made whereby the firemen can have a continuous vacation for one or two weeks; and I move it be so referred. If they all have two days' vacation in a month there certainly must be a considerable number of the force off duty two days in the month. I believe it might be arranged, without additional expense, to give them a continuous vacation of one or two weeks; and I move to refer the order to the Fire Commissioners with a request to consider that point, and if it could not be done without any increased expenditure.

Alderman Burnham—We already have the opinion of the Fire Commissioners so definitely that I cannot see anything to be gained by referring it to them. So far as I have had a conference with them, their view is that it cannot be done without increased expense. The force is reduced to its minimum, and the commissioners do not see their way clear to allow a larger number of days to be given for vacations. Were the force sufficiently large it might be done with some such system as prevails in the other departments; but the commissioners say that, without an increased force, it is not compatible with their duty. But I have no objection to requesting them to consider it.

Alderman Wilder—I cannot see what good is to come to the firemen or anybody else by referring it, though it may do no harm. The order provides that a certain vacation be allowed, provided it can be done without detriment to the service. Who is to be the judge? The Fire Commissioners. If we passed the order, and the commissioners thought it would be detrimental to the public service to grant such vacations, they would not grant them. I have no objection to referring it, but we simply refer to them a matter which is in their own hands, and upon which they are the judges of what is best to be done for the interest of the service.

Alderman O'Brien—The Alderman from South Boston advocates rejecting the amendment giving a vacation to the firemen, if not detrimental to the service, and wants to pass the order giving a vacation to the fire-alarm employes. I am willing to vote for the amendment.

Alderman Clark—If I should act upon the information given by the Alderman last up I should vote against the amendment, for I understand from him that the firemen prefer a vacation of two days in the month rather than two weeks in the year. If that information was obtained from the firemen, why try to force a vacation upon them? Furthermore, the commissioners say it will cost between nine and ten thousand dollars. If the firemen are satisfied with two days in a month, it is not proper to force upon them what they don't ask for.

Alderman O'Brien—The Alderman did not exactly understand me. I meant that the firemen would rather have their two days' vacation every month, rather than have it taken away and be given two weeks every six months. They would like a vacation of two days in the month and also a continuous vacation two or three weeks, as the commissioners might determine. The gentleman said the commissioners think so and so; but I believe we ought to have them look into it and give us official information upon the subject.

Alderman Gibson—I do not understand that the firemen are confined in the engine houses all the time. They patrol the streets and are allowed plenty of out-door exercise. They are allowed two days in a month and draw pay, and the question comes whether we shall pay them for fourteen more days without service, or whether they shall lose pay if they take a vacation. The Fire Commissioners should be the judge of that. They are different from clerks, who have little time for out-door exercise.

Alderman Burnham—It is merely a question of dollars and cents. The firemen can easily obtain a vacation provided they furnish a substitute; but the question is, shall they or the city pay for the substitute? The commissioners throw no obstacle in the way of a vacation, provided a substitute is furnished. By adopting this amendment we will say we are willing to increase the expense of the department $9772.56. It is not that we are depriving the firemen of a vacation, but whether we will give them two weeks in addition to the twenty-four days they now have without loss of pay.

The order was referred to the Fire Commissioners to consider whether a vacation cannot be given the firemen without loss of pay. Sent down.

WIDENING OF COMMERCIAL STREET.

A report came up in favor of widening Commercial street at an estimated cost of $1,000,000; with a request that the Committee on Finance provide the means.

Alderman Fitzgerald—This is rather an extraordinary way of acting upon a matter of this kind. Before we have decided to widen this street, an order is introduced requesting the Finance Committee to provide the ways and means for widening the street. Why give the committee so much trouble until we make up our minds that public necessity requires the widening of the street? Why not discuss the question whether the widening is necessary. The usual course is to determine the necessity of a thing before asking the committee to provide the ways and means; and that is the proper course in this matter. If we have made up our minds to widen the street let us say so, and then pass an order to appropriate $1,000,000, or for the Treasurer to issue scrip. I should much prefer to give an expression of opinion before we refer it to the Finance Committee to provide the means. If we determine that the widening is unnecessary, it will be unnecessary to give the committee so much trouble.

Alderman O'Brien—I happened to be present at the last meeting of the Council when two important reports were submitted, interrupting the regular business of the session. First was the report on improved sewerage, which was referred, without discussion, to the Finance Committee to provide the means; next was the report on widening Commercial street, which took the same course as the report on improved sewerage. The precedent was made on the improved sewerage report. This question can be discussed after the Finance Committee make their report. It will not be a very arduous duty to provide a million dollars or so, and we can discuss both reports at one meeting.

Alderman Fitzgerald—If that is the only precedent, the sooner we stop the better. If we pass this order it will be a second precedent. Before I ask the committee to provide the means we ought to decide whether we want the street widened. If the improved sewerage report went out of the usual course and made a bad precedent, we ought not to make another one. There is no difference of opinion about the improved sewerage, and I think it will pass both branches unanimously; so no harm can be done by that. But we ought first to make up our minds whether we are going to widen streets this year. No one was more strongly opposed to widening streets than my friend to the right [Alderman O'Brien], and no one also has stood up so often in opposition to this extravagance. The proper course is to determine whether we want to widen this street, and then ask the committee to provide the means. For my part I shall vote against any such expenditures this year. We have spent money enough. There will be three millions for sewers, and a million and a half which I think we will have to spend for parks. I think street widenings should remain in abeyance for a year at least. That is my opinion so far as Commercial street is concerned. I don't know whether it will get a two-thirds vote in the Council; but I hope my friend will keep up his old fervor against widening streets.

Alderman Clark—The committee thought it desirable to send this to the Finance Committee before asking the Street Commissioners to make an accurate survey and estimate of the widening, which will involve an expenditure of from $2000 to $3000, and the committee thought it hardly judicious to do that unless the City Council decided that the work should be done. It may be something unusual. I believe all orders should be passed upon before being referred to the Finance Committee, whose province is simply to provide the ways and means after measures have been passed upon by the City Council. But several measures have been referred to that committee before being passed upon by the City Council. I am much surprised to hear the Alderman say he has doubts about the expediency of widening Commercial street. I know he is strongly opposed to widening streets generally; but it seems to me that, if we are to do anything for people who are attempting to do business in a street, something should be done towards widening Commercial street. I believe that public necessity and convenience requires it, and if I have the opportunity I shall vote for it independent of the widening of any other business street. The report explains the necessity for it, and there is no occasion to make an argument upon it, unless the Alderman proposes to make a motion for some other disposition of it instead of letting it go to the Finance Committee.

Alderman Viles—Whether this is referred to the Finance Committee, discussed today, or specially assigned to next Monday, it certainly is an improvement which was commenced years ago and should have been finished ere this. The deep water lies along that street; the railroads are doing all they can to bring business to Boston, and we should do all we can to give them facilities for utilizing the wharves along that deep water. There is not room for the cars to pass in the streets, and everything is cluttered and jammed from morning to night. It is a great imposition upon people to begin an improvement of that kind and leave it four or five years. We are laying out streets in the southern section and in the outlying wards; this is in a crowded business section, and we ought to do something for it. If this Board would visit that section, I think they would vote for the widening without hesitation.

Alderman Thompson—I was not in the city when this report was made, and if I had been I should not have voted in committee for this report. In my judgment it means nothing—a kind of wash to get rid of doing anything in this direction. I think it is the duty of the Street Committee to recommend a definite plan for a widening of 80 or 100 feet. This is in an indefinite form, and seems to be a perfect absurdity. We know that if the City Council desire to appropriate the money the Finance Committee will devise the means. All they can say is that the City Council can have the money if they desire it. I was surprised when I saw this report, because it means just nothing at all. The proper disposition of the report would be to recommit it, for the committee to make a definite plan for the City Council to act upon.

Alderman Clark—The report does not mean just nothing at all. It means that the Committee on Streets were unanimously in favor of widening this street. Two of the Aldermen were not present. The committee think it has been delayed altogether too long this year.

Alderman O'Brien called attention to the seventeenth joint rule providing that applications for additional appropriations shall be referred to the Finance Committee before they are acted upon, and held that the reference was perfectly in order.

Alderman Thompson—The committee had two plans before them, one on the land and one on the water side, and before the Board is competent to act they should have a recommendation from the committee. I am willing to vote for the reference, but I see no good to come from it; but the proper disposition is to recommit it.

Alderman Viles—I hope the idea will never be entertained of cutting it on the water side, as the wharf property is too valuable. Rather than that I believe the abutters would rather have it remain as it is. They want all the wharf accommodations they can have. If I am rightly informed, the Fitchburg Railroad contemplate buying a piece of wharf property there, and to shorten it would cut them off.

Alderman Thompson—The plan takes a portion of the water side near Atlantic avenue, and then it crosses over on to the land side and takes some of the gas company's wharves rather than their works. The City Council should view the premises before they decide upon the matter. Everybody concurs in the view that there should be some widening; but whether it should be done this year is another thing.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Have the Street Commissioners estimated and reported upon this?

Alderman Clark—They have made no report to the City Council; they have made a rough but not a careful estimate.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Section 3 of the act creating the Street Commissioners says—

"Whenever said Board of Street Commissioners shall adjudge that the public safety and convenience require that any street, lane or alley in the said city shall be laid out, altered or discontinued, they shall make and record an estimate of the expense thereof; and if such estimate shall exceed the sum of $10,000, or if such estimate with the estimates of any previous alteration or discontinuance of any part of said street, lane or alley, during the municipal year, shall exceed the sum of $10,000, the order for such laying out, alteration or discontinuance, together with an estimate of the expense thereof, shall be sent to the City Clerk, who shall forthwith lay the same before the City Council for their concurrence or rejection; and such act shall not take effect or be in force until said City Council shall concur therein; and whenever the City Council shall request the Board of Street Commissioners to furnish the estimated cost of laying out, altering or discontinuing any street, lane or alley in said city, said board shall furnish such estimates within sixty days thereafter; and whenever the City Council shall adjudge that the public safety and convenience require that any street, lane or alley in the said city shall be laid out, altered or discontinued, and shall by a two-thirds vote of the members of each branch thereof direct the said Board of Street Commissioners to lay out, alter or discontinue any such street, lane or alley, said board shall forthwith proceed so to lay out, alter or discontinue such street, lane or alley under the provisions of this act."

The Street Commissioners should first report to the City Council on the necessity of laying out streets, with estimates or plans, and if the City Council concur, then the street should be laid out. As the act originally passed, the City Council could do nothing; but in 1872-3 or 4, owing to the refusal of the commissioners to act in the Wendell-street case, the act was amended so that the City Council could direct them by a two-thirds vote. The City Council has chosen to take the initiative, but they have not directed the city Street Commissioners by a two-thirds vote to prepare the plans. It seems to me that this order is in defiance of the act creating the Street Commissioners. But that is not my principal objection. I think that Commercial street should be widened in the future; but this is not the time or the year, and I shall vote against it. We have already appropriated and shall be called upon to appropriate for matters amounting to seven millions of dollars, and it is time for us to stop and allow some other City Government to widen streets. I would ask if the Street Commissioners have been asked to send in their plans and estimates?

Alderman Clark—Their estimates are not sufficiently accurate to send in. They have two plans, one for eighty and the other for one hundred feet. Accurate estimates will involve an expenditure of two or three thousand dollars; but they thought it hardly worth while to go to that expense without a probability of the street being widened. Petitions for this widening came before them last year, and the necessity for it has been constantly increasing. A large elevator has been erected there and the owners are attempting to do a large business.

Alderman Fitzgerald read the latter part of section 3 (above printed), and said, We must request the commissioners, by a two-thirds vote, to furnish us the estimates. We have not complied with the act which gives us power to initiate street widenings.

Alderman Viles inquired how long it would take the commissioners to make an estimate.

Alderman Clark thought it would take two or three weeks.

Alderman Viles moved to refer the matter to the Street Commissioners with, a request to make estimates.

Alderman Fitzgerald moved, as a substitute, to test the sense of the Board, that the commissioners be directed to widen Commercial street to a width not exceeding 100 feet.

Alderman Viles thought they were not ready to vote on that question, and Alderman Robinson expressed the same view for himself.

Alderman Clark thought some members did not understand the importance of the widening.

Alderman O'Brien was ready to vote, but thought they should have the estimates first.

Alderman Fitzgerald withdrew his motion, and Alderman Viles's motion was adopted in the following form:

Ordered, That the report of the Joint Committee on Streets on the subject of the widening of Commercial street be referred to the Board of Street Commissioners, with the request that they furnish the City Council with estimates of the cost of widening said street to the width of eighty feet; also to the width of one hundred feet.

Sent down.

URINALS.

A request was received from the Board of Health for leave to establish urinals at the following points:

Washington street, foot of Cornhill.
 " " corner of Boylston.
 Franklin square.
 Washington street, corner Eustis street.
 Tremont street, corner Park street, on Common.
 " " Shawmut avenue.
 " " at railroad bridge.
 " " corner Montgomery street.
 " " Cabot street.
 Harrison avenue, at railroad bridge.
 " " opposite City Hospital.
 North street, corner North square.
 Merrimac, near Cambridge street.
 North street, in alley opposite Jefferson House.
 Federal-street Bridge.
 Mount Washington-avenue Bridge.
 Charlestown and Cambridge bridges.
 Referred to Joint Committee on Health. Sent down.

MARKET.

Alderman Slade submitted a report from the Committee on Market, That leave be granted J. W. Merriam to transfer his interest in Stall 2 and Cellar 11, New Fanueil Hall Market to George H. Philbrook. Accepted.

LICENSES.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted reports from the Committee on Licenses as follows:
 Wagon Licenses Granted—George L. Mitchell, India street; J. Clark Smith, express wagon; W. C. Withington, Dorchester Express.
 Dealers in Second-hand Articles Licensed—Jonathan Kerrigan and four others.
 Victualler Licensed—Church & Pierce, 36 Portland street.
 Billiard License Granted—John H. Nutter, Charles River Hotel, corner Western avenue and Market street, Ward 25.
 Severally accepted.
 Ordered, That leave be granted to Currier & Sanders to run one passenger wagon from Hancock square, Charlestown, through Main, Haverhill, Union streets, Faneuil Hall square, Merchants' row, State and Broad streets to Rowe's wharf, and return by the same route; the rate of fare per passenger each way not to exceed ten cents. This license to be in force until Oct. 1, 1877, unless sooner revoked. Read twice and passed.

OLD ATHERTON SCHOOLHOUSE.

Alderman Fitzgerald offered an order—That the Committee on Public Buildings be and they are hereby authorized, if they deem it expedient, to sell the land and building belonging to the city situated on Columbia street, Ward 24, and known as the old Atherton Schoolhouse, there being no further use for the same; the sale to be by auction and the proceeds of the same to be paid the City Collector. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

FIREMEN'S CHARITABLE FUND.

Alderman Burnham submitted a report from the Joint Committee on Fire Department, that it is inexpedient to pass an ordinance providing for the payment of money received for fines from members of said department to the treasurer of the Firemen's Charitable Association, as the City Solicitor is of opinion that the City Council is not legally authorized to direct the payment of fines to said association. Accepted. Sent down.

GRADE OF B STREET.

Alderman Clark offered an order—That the Joint Committee on Streets of the City Council be requested to consult with the Boards of Harbor and Land Commissioners of the Commonwealth with regard to the grading forthwith by the State of B street, across its lands from First street to Eastern avenue, that Eastern-avenue Bridge, built at great expense by the city, across Fort Point Channel, may be utilized in the connection of South Boston with the city proper. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

BOSTON WATER BOARD.

Alderman Clark presented the first annual report of the Boston Water Board, for the year ending April 30, 1877, and with it a communication from said board calling particular attention to the recommendation of appropriations of $20,000 for a new pump for the Cochituate high-service, and $27,000 for a new pump for the Mystic supply. Referred to Committee on Water. Sent down.
 The total receipts of the Cochituate Water Works, from all sources, for the year ending April 30, 1877, are as follows, viz.:

From sales of water.....	$1,029,109.39
From turning off and on water, and fees	4,857.25
Sundry receipts by Water Board.....	62,206.69
Instalment on bond for land sold, with interest, received by Collector and paid to Treasurer.....	629.18
	$1,096,802.51

The total amount charged to water works for the year ending April 30, 1877, is as follows, viz.:

To current expenses.....	$209,902.30
To interest and premium on water debt.....	747,624.77
Amount paid Mystic Water Works for water furnished East Boston.....	66,934.60
	1,024,461.67
Excess of income over expenditures.....	$72,340.84

The total amount charged to construction during the year ending April 30, 1877, is.....$2,129,779.73

From the report of the Superintendent of the Eastern Division it will be seen that during the past year nearly twenty-three miles of pipe have been laid, the length and sizes of which were as follows:

120 feet of 48-inch,	1,027 feet of 16-inch,
44,503 " 12-inch,	27,789 " 8-inch,
42,322 " 6-inch,	1,608 " 4-inch,

and 213 stopcocks have been put in during the same time.

The total length of pipe laid from the commencement of the work to May 1, 1877, is 341 miles, 4800 feet. The total number of stopcocks is 3652, and the total number of hydrants 3874.

The number of service pipes laid during the year is 1149, which makes a total to May 1, 1877, of 42,744.

The average daily consumption in 1876 has been 20,237,700 gallons, an increase of five per cent. above that of 1875.

No water has been supplied to East Boston from the Cochituate works during the past year.

The board are happy to state that the general condition of the main pipes, at the present time, is very good. In a few localities, where the pipes were originally laid in the dock mud, and the streets have been raised without changing them, they are unquestionably so much weakened that they should from time to time be taken out and their places supplied with new pipes properly laid.

The report of the Water Registrar will show that the number of water takers entered for the year 1877 is 48,328, which is an increase over 1876 of 1443. The total amount of water rates received for the year ending May 1, 1877, was $1,029,109.39. This includes $66,934.60 received from East Boston and afterwards paid to the Mystic Water Department, the water having been supplied by the Mystic Water Works.

The average daily consumption of Mystic water in the year 1876 was 8,825,808 gallons. The whole quantity drawn from the reservoir between May 1, 1876, and May 1, 1877, was 3,201,036,135 gallons, or a daily average of 8,769,961 gallons, an increase of about 16½ per cent. over the year ending May 1, 1876. This includes the supply for East Boston, which has been taken wholly from the Mystic during this period. The amount collected for water rates during the year ending May 1, 1877, as shown by the report of the Registrar, was $289,819.11. The maintenance account for the year ending May 1, 1877, amounts to $88,157.86. Bonds amounting to $90,000 have been paid during the year, which leaves the amount outstanding, including the sums borrowed for the construction of the Mystic Valley sewer, $1,228,000. The amount of the sinking fund, May 1, 1877, was $96,701.18. The total amount of interest paid during the year was $66,290.

The settlement of claims growing out of the takings by the Sudbury River supply has occupied much the largest portion of the time of the board, and will continue to do so for some time to come. Indeed, the difficulties attending these settlements can hardly be realized except by those who have had similar duties to perform. The board understand fully, they think, the provisions in the act authorizing the taking of lands, which makes the city liable to pay all damage that shall be sustained by any persons in their property by such taking; and they have acted upon the ground that the city not only expected, but was desirous of making full compensation for the injury sustained by individuals in the construction of a necessary public work.

They have met the claimants in this spirit, not to drive sharp bargains with them, but to form a fair judgment, after careful examination and consideration, of the actual damage done, and to make awards to cover it. It has been extremely difficult to estimate the damage done to some of the more valuable estates through which the conduit has been built, or from which land has been taken, and in some of these cases there is a wide difference between the amounts claimed and the offers of the board. But this fact alone, with the experience of the board in the settlement of other cases, is not discouraging, and they are hopeful that litigation will be avoided with most of the claims. But few have as yet been entered in court, and commissioners have been appointed but for three. Seventy-eight claims have been settled, amounting in the aggregate to $270,520.10.

The report of the commissioners appointed to estimate the damages to mill-owners and others, occasioned by the taking of the waters of Sudbury River and its tributaries was made at the December session of the Superior Court. By advice of the counsel for the city, in each of the cases a jury has been asked for, as provided by the statutes, before whom the cases are to be tried, that being the only way by which the questions of law raised can be determined by the court.

The board has been considering a plan for the reorganization of the Water Department, that they hope after a while to be able to carry out, and which they believe will be an improvement, at least so far as the division of labor is concerned, and the equalization of compensation for the services of employes. They desire also to make such a change in the manner of keeping accounts as will enable them at all times to know, by books kept at their office at city hall, very nearly the condition of all work done or being done in any branch of the department. Under the present system the accounts are kept in books at the various offices, but they are not reported daily, and made a part of a system such as it seems to the board is needful to keep them properly informed of the daily operations of the working force, and cost of the work it may be engaged upon. The distribution of materials, the labor expended upon any particular piece of work, the cost and disposal of tools, as well as the gross amount of expenditure, should, in the judgment of the board, be shown in a set of regularly balanced books kept by an experienced accountant at their office.

In suggesting such changes the board have not forgotten that the present organization and the system of doing the work are the result of many years' experience, or that the department has been under the charge of intelligent and faithful men; but the establishment of a paid Water Board seems naturally to demand a closer and more direct oversight of the operations and business of the department than could have been expected under the former system.

The orders adopted by the City Council establishing officers in the Water Department, and fixing their salaries, have interfered somewhat with the plans of the board in relation to reorganization, and put it out of their power to effect certain changes contemplated by them. They can now only mature these plans and present them at some future time for the consideration of the Council.

SEWERS.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Sewers:

Report and order of notice of hearing on Monday next on expediency of constructing a sewer in Adams street, between Arcadia and Robinson streets. Order passed.

Order of notice of intention to take land of Emma L. Forbes and others, for sewer purposes, and for a hearing thereon on Monday, July 30, at four o'clock P. M. Passed.

Orders for the construction of sewers in Burr street, at northerly end; in Avon place, Roxbury; in India street, between Export street and Atlantic avenue; in Garden street, between Phillips and Myrtle streets. Severally read twice and passed.

STABLES.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Health on the part of the Board:

Reports that leave be granted to occupy stables by George F. Parker, on Gerrish street; Thomas Harmon, on Ashmont street; H. C. Derby on Winship avenue.

Report (of leave to withdraw as per request) on petition of Samuel G. Reed, for leave to occupy stable on lot 29, Phillips street.

Severally accepted.

REPAIRS ON WARREN BRIDGE.

Alderman Thompson offered an order—That the order passed by this Board July 2, 1877, directing that Warren Bridge be closed to the passage of all vehicles Monday, July 16, and remain closed until the repairs thereon are completed, be amended by striking out "July 16" and inserting in place thereof "July 13." Read twice and passed.

PAVING REPORTS AND ORDERS.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Paving:

Reports and orders for brick sidewalks in front of estate of Richard Lonergan, 214 K street, in front of estates on Akron and on Regent street. Orders read twice and passed.

Report and order to pay N. C. Decker $325 for grade damages on Swett street. Order read twice and passed.

Report in favor of a crosswalk across Marginal street in East Boston. Accepted.

Report that leave be granted to M. Ellis & Co. to move a wooden building from Webster street to Maverick street, Ward 2. Accepted.

Order to abate $20.09 of amount assessed Trinity Church for sidewalk assessment, on account of error in measurement. Read twice and passed.

Orders to grade and gravel Holbrook street at an estimated cost of $1000; to furnish and set edgestones and pave gutters and sidewalks of Miller street, Charlestown, and to macadamize the roadway of said street. Severally read twice and passed.

POLICE.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Police:

Report recommending that the Executive nomination of Matthew Culley to be a police officer be confirmed. Accepted, and said nomination confirmed.

Ordered, That the Treasurer be authorized to refund to Thomas Donnelly the sum of $38.78 to compensate him for the loss of certain fowls which were killed by a dog on the 27th day of May last; said sum to be deducted from the amount received by the Treasurer for dog licenses. Read twice and passed.

Reports granting leave to George Burwell to project an apothecary's mortar at corner Church street and Granville place, and Thomas H. Plant to project a lantern at 493 Tremont street. Severally accepted.

SALARIES OF DEPUTY SEALERS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

Alderman Clark submitted a report from the committee recommending that if the order to allow each deputy sealer of weights and measures $3 per day for each working day's service be passed, it should be amended by adding "That the Auditor of Accounts be and he hereby is authorized to transfer from the Reserved Fund to the appropriation for Sealers of Weights and Measures the sum of $2000 to meet the foregoing expenditure."

Alderman Wilder moved that the order take its second reading.

Alderman Clark—This is to make an amendment in case the order passes. Three dollars a day is over $1000 a year. I think $800 is sufficient.

Alderman Viles—It includes only for working days—six days in the week.

The amendment reported by the committee was adopted, and the order as amended was put upon its passage.

Alderman Clark moved to strike out "$3 per day" and insert "$800 per annum."

Alderman Wilder—I hope that will not pass. I understand we have really got some good, competent men, who are performing their duties to the satisfaction of the sealer, and, so far as I can learn, to the satisfaction of the public. Three dollars a day is no more than a fair price for such work.

Alderman Fitzgerald—As one of the Retrenchment Committee I don't see how I can vote for any higher salary than was paid the former assistant sealer, who was considered to carry in his noddle all knowledge of the way in which scales were adjusted; and the chairman of the committee said they could not get along without him. We now have four men where one was supposed to do all the work of the department. We ought to stop somewhere, and as one of the Retrenchment Committee I must raise my voice and ask this board to spare at least some portion of that committee's report. I am afraid before we get through we shall lose the whole of it. When one man received $800 a year after twenty-one years' service, it seems that we cannot consistently pay each of four men more than one man received for doing the same work.

Alderman Slade—I did not mean to say we could not get along without Mr. Hunt. We put four green men to sealing weights and measures; but they were intelligent and could learn readily. My object was to have Mr. Hunt remain a few days until these men learned their duty. By frequently visiting the office, I learn that they are pretty hard at work at the present time from early morning until five or six o'clock in the afternoon. I don't think $3 a day too much for a person capable of filling that place. The four we elected are deputies, and have the same power to seal scales that the chief has.

Alderman Clark—The Alderman was a member of the Retrenchment Committee who reported $800 sufficient to pay a man of twenty years' experience in doing this work, and it is a little rough on him to pay four new men $900 each. It is rather a poor way of economizing.

Alderman Slade—The Retrenchment Committee found Mr. Hunt's salary at $800 and let it alone. I think it is consistent for the committee to pay these men a little more than was paid last year.

Alderman O'Brien—The committee found the sealer with one assistant. Since then the Legislature have not only given us one principal sealer, but four deputies; and we are voting salaries to men whom the Massachusetts Legislature has dignified by giving them the title of deputy sealers. Therefore I feel that it is not inconsistent to vote them $3 a day. I always believed that this department was a sinecure, and I would now vote to wipe it out. I don't believe that the benefit the city derives from the sealing of weights and measures would pay the salary of one man in that department. We have gentlemen who give their whole time to the city, and if their services are worth anything they are worth three dollars a day.

Alderman Gibson—These men are apprentices and should not receive more than experienced men. I also would be glad to abolish the whole thing, because I think the office not worth a single cent to the citizens.

Alderman Clark called for the yeas and nays, and the amendment $(800) was lost—yeas 6, nays 5.

Yeas—Aldermen Burnham, Clark, Fitzgerald, Gibson, Robinson, Viles—6.

Nays—Aldermen Breck, Dunbar, O'Brien, Slade, Thompson—5.

Alderman Clark moved to amend by making the salary $825 a year, saying he did not believe in paying for dignity without labor. The Board were not obliged to appoint those men.

Alderman Slade said the law had been changed. The committee thought four would be sufficient. He did not believe it necessary to seal all the scales every year.

Alderman Viles said that if all the scales are to be sealed, four deputies are not too many.

Alderman Wilder was glad to see Alderman Clark in the line of retrenchment, as he had already established his reputation as a rigid economist.

Alderman Clark said he made no pretensions to being a rigid economist. He believed in paying men fair salaries, but not in paying incompetent men more than was paid a competent man.

Alderman Fitzgerald said the Retrenchment Committee's business was to reduce salaries; and where they found a salary low enough they let it alone. He agreed that the city could get along without the department.

Alderman Gibson said everything was cheaper now than in 1861, and salaries should be as low now as then.

Alderman O'Brien said the Retrenchment Committee were not enlightened about the distinguished services of Mr. Hunt until it was tried to force him upon the Board. There are very distinguished apprentices in the city's service receiving as high as $3000 a year. There is an apprentice whom the Superintendent of Fire Alarms is teaching all about the fire-alarm telegraph. These deputy sealers are capable men, and as the Legislature has dignified their office, he should vote for the order.

Alderman Viles said the Market Committee nominated Mr. Hunt the first one, and the speaker called the attention of every member to his election as a necessity.

The amendment was adopted—yeas 6, nays 5:

Yeas—Aldermen Burnham, Clark, Fitzgerald, Gibson, Robinson, Viles—6.

Nays—Aldermen Breck, Dunbar, O'Brien, Slade, Wilder—5.

Absent—Alderman Thompson.

The order as amended was passed—yeas 11, nays 0.

A motion to reconsider, by Alderman Clark, was lost. Sent down.

HORSE RAILROAD LOCATIONS.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Paving:

Report of leave to withdraw on petition of Highland Street Railway Company, for a location of tracks in Dartmouth street. Accepted.

Report of leave to withdraw on petition of Middlesex Railroad Company, for additional tracks in Haymarket square. Accepted.

Report and order of location for Middlesex Railroad Company for a turn-out track not exceeding 200 feet in length, on Alford street, Charlestown, on the northerly end of Malden Bridge. [Appended to the order are the usual conditions.] Order read twice and passed.

Report of leave to withdraw on petition of Metropolitan Railroad Company for a location of tracks in Dartmouth street. Accepted.

Report and order of notice for a hearing on Monday, August 6, on petition of Metropolitan Railroad Company, for leave to lay down tracks from those already located on Eliot square, through Centre street to Cedar street. Order passed.

Report and order granting a location to the Metropolitan Railroad to lay down an additional track on Marlborough street, so to form a double track on said street from Clarendon street to West Chester park; also to lay down curve tracks to connect the stables of said company on Marlborough street near Parker street with said double track. [Appended to the order are the usual conditions.]

Alderman Thompson moved to amend by adding "Provided the Surveyors of Highways have free access to all the cars of this road at all times."

Alderman Thompson—I do it as a matter of principle. I presume that all the members have received free tickets. These passes come when favors are asked; but I do not propose to receive them as a favor. We don't ask it for ourselves personally, but as Surveyors of Highways, and I propose to put that condition in all such orders.

Alderman Clark—I don't know but the amendment is perfectly proper, but it looks as if we are demanding what we have no right to demand. It looks as if we are demanding free passes.

Alderman Thompson—Is it not right and proper for this Board to ask for free passes when the corporations are asking for privileges from this city? I have received passes from different railroads which I have never used. If the duties of Aldermen call them in any direction, I want them to have the right to ride free. We are not asking favors, but demanding a right.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The reason the Alderman gives would be why I should vote against the amendment. The railroads have the right to come here, and the Legislature has imposed upon us the sad duty of listening Monday after Monday about the extension of horse railroads from one end of the city to the other. I know it is somewhat shocking to the sense of certain Aldermen to receive a lot of tickets at one time and not receive any at another time. It looks as though the companies were trying to curry favor, and it grates upon the feelings and manliness of Aldermen. I agree that it is rather bad, but I should hesitate before voting to make the issuing of free tickets to Aldermen a condition for granting a location. We should grant them locations because public convenience demands it, and not because we are to ride free in the cars. I appreciate his feelings, but think we shall go to the other extreme if we add the amendment.

Alderman O'Brien—I do not understand that the Aldermen have received free passes. A few tickets may have been left on the Aldermen's desks about the first of January; but that is all I have seen in the way of passes. We do not have passes, as we go into a place of public amusement. I do not feel like putting an amendment of that kind upon the order, but I do think that it would be but gentlemanly for the horse-railroad companies, after calling us to localities in different sections of the city, to recognize the badge of an Alderman and permit us to ride free. I have never received passes in any shape except as the Alderman has described, in a few tickets when they have some matter before the Board.

Alderman Thompson withdrew the amendment, and the order was passed.

OCCUPATION OF STREETS FOR BUILDING PURPOSES.

On motion of Alderman Breck, the ordinance in relation to the occupation of streets for building purposes, etc., (City Doc. No. 69), was taken from the table.

On motion of Alderman Fitzgerald the ordinance was amended in the third and sixth sections, so as to provide that the appointment of the officer named therein shall be made by the Mayor, subject to confirmation by the Board of Aldermen, instead of by the Inspector of Buildings with the approval of the Mayor, and as so amended was passed. Sent down.

Adjourned on motion of Alderman O'Brien.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Common Council,

JULY 19, 1877.

Regular meeting at 7½ o'clock P. M., Benjamin Pope, President, in the chair.

Petitions and reports of city officers were referred in concurrence.

Executive communication in regard to visit of the governors of other States. Referred to a joint special committee in concurrence, and Messrs. Sampson of Ward 17, Blanchard of Ward 21, and Warren of Ward 25 were appointed on said committee. On motion of Mr. Thompson, the President was added to the committee.

Order to refer the report on widening of Commercial street to Street Commissioners to furnish estimates of cost of widening to eighty feet, and also to 100 feet.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6—I don't know but that order is all right enough, but the Street Committee have already given an estimate, and where did they get the information that it would cost a million dollars, unless from the Street Commissioners? If one estimate has been made, I cannot see the necessity of sending it back, unless it be to kill time. I think Commercial street should be widened; but I would sooner see it defeated in the Board of Aldermen than have it put off this way, so that the inhabitants may know where it was killed. I hope we will not concur.

The order was read twice and passed in concurrence.

Report inexpedient to pass an ordinance to provide for payment of fines of members of Fire Department to Treasurer of Firemen's Charitable Association. Accepted in concurrence.

Order to authorize sale by auction of land and building of Atherton School, Ward 24.

The order was read a second time and put upon its passage.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22 asked the reason for selling this property while real estate is so depressed.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20 said it is an expense, there is no use for it, and it is for the interest of the city to sell it.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11 thought Mr. Clarke's reasons were good ones, and he opposed selling unless the intrinsic value of the property could be obtained.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19 said people in that vicinity want to buy it, and it cannot be sold until the committee have authority. If it is desirable to sell it, the committee will do so.

Mr. Vose of Ward 24 was familiar with the property and believed now is as good a time to sell as will ever occur again, as two or three parties have been trying to buy it for some time.

The order was passed in concurrence.

Order for consultation with Harbor and Land Commissioners relative to grading, by the State, of B street, as in said order set forth. Read twice and passed in concurrence.

Report and amended ordinance for the occupancy of streets for building purposes. (City Doc. No. 69, amended).

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19 thought it important to have this officer appointed at once, and moved to suspend the rules, that the ordinance may take its second reading tonight.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8 said it referred to the survey and inspection of buildings, and as it was new to the committee, he moved its reference to them.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11 hoped the rule would not be suspended, for there is considerable to be said about the amendment in the other branch, that this officer be appointed by the Mayor. There is no hurry about it.

Mr. Spenceley explained that the duty had been performed by a man detailed from the police, and it is proposed to have it done under the Inspector.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10 was a sub-committee to draft the ordinance; it led to many inquiries at the departments and all concurred that the labor belonged in the Department for Survey and Inspection of Buildings. It is desirable that the appointment be made at once.

Mr. McGaragle reiterated his statement that it was new to the committee and urged the reference.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9 agreed with the last speaker. The duties are simply clerical and can be performed by a clerk in that office, and the Inspector can pass upon all disputed questions.

The Council refused to suspend the rule, and on motion of Mr. McGaragle the matter was referred to the Joint Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings. Sent up.

Reference to Fire Commissioners of the order concerning the vacations of the employes of the Fire-alarm Department, and the permanent members of the Fire Department. Concurred.

SEALERS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

A report and order came down for a transfer of $2000 from Reserved Fund to appropriation for Sealers of Weights and Measures, for purpose of allowing each Deputy Sealer of Weights and Measures, as compensation for his services, $825 per annum.

Mr. Jackson of Ward 16—I move to amend by making it $1000. I think we have competent and intelligent men to perform that duty, and $1000 is little enough. If times were good I would not hesitate to make it $1200. It is well known that the weights and measures have been but half sealed for years. They never visited my place, and I can mention scores of others that have not been visited. If you want the work done by competent men we ought to be willing to pay them a reasonable salary. My opinion is that $825 is too little.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I trust the amendment will not be passed. The number in that department has been increased by four. Last year the salary of one person in particular, who has been in the service twenty years, and who was asked to be retained and instruct the present deputies in their duties, was $800, and the Retrenchment Committee reported the same salary. Now that we have new men, it seems unreasonable to increase their salaries over that paid last year.

Mr. Howes of Ward 17—I should like to say in addition that it seems to be currently reported that this office is entirely a sinecure, that its duties never will be performed, and it is merely kept up to comply with the statute. If that is the case the less we pay the better. The city should not pay high salaries merely for the sake of keeping up an office.

Mr. Jackson—If it has been a mere sinecure in the past, I hope it won't be so in the future. I think the gentlemen now in office mean business. I am satisfied they have done more in the past two months to remedy the evil than was done by those who formerly occupied the position. If the work is properly done it will take more men than are now employed. There are thousands of places in Boston which have not been visited in years, and they ought to be visited by competent parties. I believe that thousands of dollars are lost every year in weights and measures through the ignorance of parties carrying on business. In many instances the weights are against the dealers, and possibly they are against the buyer. If it is worth doing at all it is worth doing well, and we ought to have competent parties to do it and pay them a reasonable salary.

Mr. Danforth moved to amend by providing—“That the Deputy Sealers of Weights and Measures shall receive for compensation the fees as set forth in section 14, chapter 51, of the General Statutes; and when the amount of fees which each Deputy Sealer shall receive exceeds the sum of $1000 per annum, such excess shall be paid into the City Treasury.”

Mr. Danforth—Last year there were only about 1600 scales sealed in Boston, and there are 20,000 in use. There is no more reason why the public should pay for sealing scales by which men do business than there is for paying for sharpening the tools of a carpenter. If we pay by fees the work will be done well.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—Last year the Sealer had one or two assistants, and they were cut down to $800 apiece. The incumbents last year were men of experience who filled the office satisfactorily. The Board of Aldermen have seen fit to increase the number of assistants to four, and I don't believe there is a member in either branch who really believes that the force today, with the entire number, is any better than it was last year. Even the chairman of the committee in the Board of Aldermen himself admitted that the new officers were incompetent to perform the duties, and he wanted one of the assistants employed temporarily to give instruction to the new employes. I concur with the chairman of the Retrenchment Committee that if anything under heaven is to be left of our work, here is the place to stick in a peg. I don't believe the money expended in that department will be of any benefit to the city, and I don't believe an increase of salary can be justified on the grounds of expediency.

Mr. Danforth's amendment was adopted, and the Council non-concurred in the amendment of the Finance Committee authorizing a transfer of $2000.

The order, as amended by Mr. Danforth, was read a second time and passed. Sent up.

FREE FERRIES.

The report and order that on and after January, 1878, the tolls on East Boston ferries be abolished and the ferries run free (City Document No. 64), was considered under unfinished business.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3 moved to amend by adding—

"Provided, however, that this order shall not take effect unless ratified and approved by a majority of the legal voters of the city of Boston, present and voting thereon at meetings held for that purpose in the several ward rooms on the day of the next municipal election, the calling of such meetings and the manner of voting thereon to be hereafter provided for."

Mr. Webster—It seems to me that this is so eminently fair and reasonable that I fail to see how any candid-minded man, having the interest of the city at heart, can possibly avoid it. We cannot vote a few thousand dollars for a Fourth of July celebration; we cannot transfer a small amount from one appropriation to another, and we cannot vote a dollar for parks, without a two-thirds vote. But in this matter there is no such safeguard. This is equivalent to voting away two or three hundred thousand dollars income, after a brief consideration, by a simple majority. The question of parks has been ratified time and again by the people, and I believe the majority has been in favor of parks every time a vote has been taken; and the Legislature required a vote of the people before the act went into effect. This matter has never been submitted to the people. With this amendment I am willing to waive my own opposition and vote for the order; and if the majority of the entire people are really in favor of free ferries it is not for me to stand in the way. I do believe this proposition is fair and reasonable in a matter of this kind, and I should like to know if any gentleman here can oppose it.

Mr. Pratt offered the following amendment in the form of a substitute for the original order and amendment:

"Ordered, That on and after the first day of August, 1877, the tolls on the East Boston ferries be abolished and the ferries be run free until the first day of October, 1877, and no longer."

Mr. Pratt—I offer this substitute for the purpose of presenting the free-ferry question, for a time at least, in the form of an experiment. If the substitute be passed, it will give us an experiment of sixty days of free ferries, and in that time I think we can determine whether or not certain alleged practical reasons against the measure are sound. I have given this matter very careful consideration for some time past. I came to the subject, as probably a large portion of the citizens of Boston would come to it, if it were presented to them directly, with feelings of hostility—that this was something sprung up for the interest of East Boston, which will be a very expensive matter for the whole city, and which would prove more expensive as the years go on, and which would be of doubtful expediency, even for East Boston. I must confess the more I study this question the more my judgment is led to favor it. At the same time I recognize the fact that in passing such an order as the original one before us, we are starting out on an untrodden track. We have no precedent anywhere of a ferry over any arm of the ocean having been made a free highway by means of a floating bridge, as this is sometimes euphoniouly called. When gentlemen consider this matter, they say we shall have to transport from East Boston to Boston proper the inhabitants of Essex County and the dwellers in Chelsea, Revere, Winthrop and the other towns that way; so long as the ferries are free, the boats will be overrun by teams; that travel that would have gone over Chelsea Bridge and Ferry will come by the East Boston ferries. That is a practical question; it is alleged, and of course it cannot be demonstrated without experiment. There is another practical question, and that is, if the ferries are made free, the boats will be convenient loafing places and vehicles for evening rides by the dwellers of the North End and the regions about the ferries with their pipes and babies, who will fill them from sunset till ten or eleven o'clock at night, and so make a great practical difficulty. It is also alleged that there will be an immediate rise in rents, which will counteract all the benefit to the East Boston people from freeing the ferries; that there will be no appreciable benefit to East Boston (and therefore to the city) from the increased temptations to manufacturers and others to locate there and give employment to large numbers of people; that there will be no perceptible increase in the taxable value of the lots and places of residence there. Now, sir, this matter has been looming upon us for some months like a cloud; but it has not been in such close proximity as to demand immediate attention. If this order passés, so as to give us sixty days in which to watch free ferries and educate ourselves where we have no historical precedents from which to draw our conclusions, I think we shall gain an advantage; and meantime we shall have an opportunity to canvass the question in all its bearings and learn the sentiment of the people in and outside of East Boston, and shall gain all the advantages which come from putting over an important question for further consideration. In offering this substitute I do not do it in any spirit of hostility to the measure as it is before us. As I said before, I have learned, by a study of the question, to treat it with great respect. I cannot say I would vote for the original order tonight. I can vote for such an order as this substitute, and I do not see why the representatives of East Boston cannot vote for it. If all the advantages which they claim for it shall arise in sixty days, we shall see it. If sixty days are not enough we can take a longer time. I should not object to experimenting for a year. The reason I make it sixty days is, that the experiment may come within the year; so that we can profit by the fruits of it. Having offered it in good faith, I shall not attempt to sustain it with a speech; nor shall I attempt to state in full the reasons upon which I have found my judgment to rest in nearly giving my assent to freeing the ferries. I must say that some of the arguments which have been made in this Council, and which have been published in some of the papers of the city, appear to me, upon close examination, to be groundless. I cannot see—I am now stating general principles which I think it well to bear in mind in the consideration of this question—why the general reasoning which underlies all our American system of making free highways does not apply to the freeing of the ferries to East Boston. The idea—stated generally, and somewhat loosely, perhaps—is this: That every citizen shall have the right to travel on his feet, or with his horse, through any highway from any section of his town to any other section, and from any section of his county or State to any other section. To that end we lay out highways, free turnpikes of tolls, free bridges where they have been subject to tolls, or lay out new ways to take the place of old ones, and go to an enormous expense for the purpose of making direct and easy access from one district of the country to another. All these seem to me to apply in the direction of freeing the ferries to East Boston; and they apply to East Boston peculiarly where they would not perhaps apply to remoter distances, because East Boston is within bridging distance, and would have a bridge if it were not that the interest of the remaining part of the city and State would suffer from cutting off navigation. We say to them, virtually, You cannot have a bridge, because it will injure our interests. The representatives of East Boston have said to me, That being the case, give us the next best thing—gives us a floating bridge. I cannot but admit that that is an argument of considerable weight. But passing by these general considerations, which, it seems to me, should apply, there is this general proposition; that when we do anything to materially benefit one section of the city we benefit the whole; and those who talk most strenuously in opposition to freeing the ferries admit that it would be for the interest of East Boston to free them. If that is so I cannot at present see why it should not be for the interest of the whole city. I cannot see why if freeing the ferries will cause the vacant wharves and land in East Boston to be the sooner occupied for business and dwellings; that the deep-water front will be the sooner occupied for wharfage, and that we should have saved to us the manufacturers who would otherwise go to adjoining towns; if that be so, I cannot see why it will not be for the interest of the whole city to free the ferries. Now, so far as I have been able to ascertain in the length of time I have had to give attention to it, I find that those things are true. It is a fact substantiated to me that several manufacturers, investing large capital and employing a large number of people, who have sought location adjacent to Boston have decided against East Boston for the simple reason that the tolls on the ferries made an additional tax that was sufficient to change them, consequently we have seen East Cambridge, Cambridgeport and Chelsea filled up with manufactories that might have been located in East Boston. Having traced ten of these instances, I think that is sufficient to appeal to my judgment as a reason why the ferries should be free. On the other hand, I am aware that freeing the ferries involves an annual expenditure, as stated at the last meeting, by the gentleman from Ward 9 [Mr. Crocker] with a great deal of force—of an amount which is equal to the income from a large plant. I think he has been very liberal in his figures, and they should be taken with considerable reduction; but at the same time the main argument—that it is a large undertaking—is good. That, together with some other considerations, makes it desirable that this matter should not be pushed through in a night; that we might take sixty days at least to consider it, regardless of any experiment; and further, that we might try this experiment and see if it will not brush away some of the practical objections. Having said thus much, I hope the amendment will not be lightly pushed aside.

Mr. Wolcott of Ward 11—I trust the substitute of the gentleman from Ward 21 will not pass. I am opposed to that, as I am opposed to the original order, and the same reasons which I propose to submit to the Council for my opposition to the original order will have the same force in opposition to the substitute. It is not an agreeable duty, Mr. President, to place one's self in opposition to a project which has so large and earnest a support as this, and the task becomes a particularly ungracious one when that support is so largely centred in a certain portion of the city, as is the case in the measure now before us. But where the amount involved is so considerable a sum, it becomes our duty closely to scrutinize the reasons which are brought forward in its favor, and the number and weight of the names of those by whom it is urged; and unless we are convinced that by so benefiting that one locality we shall confer upon the city at large, it not a proportional advantage, at least an advantage having some relation to the cost, we may well refuse to saddle upon the city in the future as well as in the present so enormous an expenditure—an expenditure in regard to which this only can with any certainty be foretold—that whatever it may be for the first or second year, and opinions vary widely as to that, it must inevitably always increase. Now, Mr. President, I have read with some care, and I hope with candor and a willingness to be convinced, all that has come to my hands in support of the case of these petitioners, and I say in the most emphatic manner possible, that all this mass of fact and argument, of lamentation over the present of East Boston and golden prophecy of its future if only the evil dragon which bars the way to that fair and healthful garden be removed, have entirely failed to convince me that the measure so earnestly advocated is one which this Council ought to pass. Mr. President, the gentlemen who have been most active in this project through its various stages until it has come before us tonight on its passage, are not personally known to me. But I entertain the most exalted opinion of their earnestness, their tenacity of purpose, their ability and their high and hopeful courage. And, knowing as I do, that what has been done in this cause has not been done in a corner nor in a hurry, I am compelled to assume that these years of preparation have been turned to some good account, and that these earnest and persevering workers have now omitted no argument, have left unsolicited no name and left untouched no dollar's worth of capital which in their opinion could help to forward the cause which they have so much at heart. I assume, then, that we have in this formidable-looking volume their entire case, presented in the most perfect and complete form possible.

Let us examine first their arguments, and then the numerous petitions which are laid before us in support of those arguments. Mr. President, this freeing of the ferries is either claimed as a right or sued for as a favor. They say either we are entitled to this at the hands of the city of Boston as a right, just as the humblest citizen is entitled to security in life and limb even though it take a squad of police, or a file or a whole regiment of soldiers to afford it; or else they say we ask this favor at your hands, just as the abutters on a street ask for a wider street or a better paved or a better lighted street. If it be a right which they demand, we must grant it; if, on the other hand, it be simply a favor which is asked for; we must, as in other cases, count the cost, look carefully at the present accommodation, and finally cast up a rude sort of sum, which shall show us whether or not the city can afford to do what it is asked to do, whether the expenditure is necessary and proper, and, if so, whether it is more necessary and proper than other similar needs in the same or other portions of the city.

First—Let us see whether this free passage by ferries can be claimed as a right. I deny that any such right exists; nor do I think that it is seriously put forward here as a right based upon either written or unwritten law, but rather as a strong and useful figure of speech which cannot, indeed, bear very close examination, but which, in the absence of any such close examination, will pass current enough, and perhaps be allowed to influence some minds; for we, none of us, like even to appear to be unfair, and if a man boldly founds his claim upon an alleged right, we are half inclined to listen to him. No, Mr. President, it is no part of the duty of the City Government to equalize values of real estate at equal distances from the City Hall, and that is very nearly what this demand seems to me to amount to; for is it free access to the city which is demanded? The citizens of East Boston have that already, at a distance much less than that which must be traversed by a citizen of a very large part of Dorchester and West Roxbury. Is it speedy access? The citizens of East Boston already have that. They can come to the City Hall in a less time and at a less expense than citizens of a very large part of our outlying territory. It seems to be that they claim both free passage and quick passage, and that is what has never to my knowledge been claimed by any other part of our territory. The fact is that East Boston is by nature blessed with certain very great advantages over the rest of the city—such as its wide and deep water front; and it is also burdened by nature with one great disadvantage—it is separated from the business centre by a river, which tends to retard its growth.

Now if this be advanced as a claim to a right, it amounts to this: we call upon you to remove our disability and so put us on a par with South Boston, which has grown more rapidly than we. It seems to me to be as if the owners of flats somewhere should say, "We are very advantageously placed for wharf privileges, being as near City Hall as a great deal of the valuable wharf property of Boston; all we want is deep water; we therefore call upon the city to dredge us out." One locality has one advantage, another has another, and it is not the duty of the city to equalize values, nor can it be demanded as a right that she should do so. Now let us look upon the matter simply as a petition for a favor, just as one ward wants a new schoolhouse and another wants some paving or street-widening done. This simplifies the question very much. It becomes merely a question of how much the improvement is needed and how much it will cost. First—How much is it needed? Who wants it? In this connection let us ask how much has the city already expended on account of the East Boston ferries? This sum, after the deduction of all receipts, as appears from the Auditor's Report, stands May 1, 1877, $1,077,190.39. At the hearing before a committee of the Council in 1871, when this question was under discussion, the universal testimony of witnesses was that under the city's administration the accommodation had very greatly improved. This is a large sum, and in running the ferries no attempt is made to pay interest on this sum from the tolls collected—they are based simply to approximate more or less closely to the running expenses. This looks as if the city had not been illiberal to the East Boston wards in providing them with better and cheaper ferriage than they had previously enjoyed. But in addition to this sum of a million dollars, which stands a permanent charge against the East Boston ferries, let us see what the account current of the Island wards has been during the past financial year. The expenditures on account of East Boston in 1876-1877 have been $519,906.17. From this deduct amount received from taxes ($253,826.32), from ferry tolls ($176,032), and from East Boston court fees ($2861), and we have $87,186.85 as the surplus of expenditures over receipts. In other words, there has been expended in East Boston during the past year the whole of the East Boston tax and thirty-four per cent., or more than one-third more—and this without taking into the account the interest on the million dollars already standing a charge against that account. In the face of these figures I challenge any one to say that the city has not been liberal in its treatment of East Boston. Now, Mr. President, what additional expenditure is asked for by these petitioners? I may say here that the estimates of the cost of freeing the ferries vary within very wide limits. Whatever it is, it must increase; that only is certain. But I am willing to take their own figures, and to make no allowance for additional boats, new landings, etc., which within a very few years the increased travel pouring in from Essex County, as well as from East Boston itself, must inevitably necessitate. The estimated deficit for 1877-1878, as reported by the Committee on East Boston Ferries, is $11,300. To this add estimated receipts from tolls, which, if the ferries are to be run free, would of course not be received, $170,000, and we have $181,300. From this deduct for discharged tollmen, etc., $11,300, a liberal deduction, being more than their own report shows, and we have $170,000, and to this add ten per cent. for depreciation, $17,000, a percentage stated by their own witnesses in the hearing of 1871 to be necessary, and we have $187,000 as the additional cost to the city of running free ferries the first year. Or, to recapitulate, East Boston receiving already back from the city the whole amount of its taxes and thirty-four per cent. more, now asks for an additional sum equal to seventy-four per cent. of its taxes—making in all an outlay of eight per cent., more than double the amount of its taxes. Mr. President, I have no hesitation in calling that an extraordinary demand; nor do I hesitate to say that, in my opinion, it would result in no such general benefit to the city of Boston as would justify us in laying upon her citizens so large an additional burden of taxation. Let us glance for a moment at the petitions which are brought forward to support this request. Now, Mr. President, I willingly admit that at first sight I was very much surprised at the number of names and the amount of capital claimed to be represented on these petitions. Even the hurried examination, however, which I have been able to give them has removed a large part of my surprise. I have been to the Registrar of Voters, and have ascertained from him that the number of registered voters in East Boston at the last municipal election was 4077; this number being an increase of more than thirty per cent. upon the year before. The number of votes cast in East Boston was 2514, and they bring forward on their petitions 128 per cent. of their registered voters, and 204 per cent., or more than the number of their actual voters at the last election, when the vote was an unusually full one. In the rest of the city the number of signatures is 5 4-10 per cent. of the registered voters, and 8 6-10 per cent. of the actual voters. As to the $100,000,000 of capital which is said to be represented on these petitions, I have ascertained from the Assessors' office that the figures furnished by them were $90,590,000, and that to make this sum the capital stock of banks was counted in to the extent of $30,800,000. Now, Mr. President, I emphatically deny that that is a fair computation. I deny the power of any bank president by simply signing his name to a petition of this sort to involve the capital stock of his bank in support of a measure, unless he does so in obedience to a vote of the stockholders, or at least of the Board of Directors. It appears to me completely beyond his powers, nor do I believe that these gentlemen who have signed as presidents of banks intended so to pledge the capital stock of their banks. Mr. President, I have reason to doubt altogether the figures thus presented. It has been impossible for me to scrutinize them in detail, but a two minutes' conversation with the clerk in the Assessors' Department revealed the fact that the figures he had furnished were $90,000,000, instead of the round sum $100,000,000, and that $30,000,000 of that was capital stock of banks. Mr. President, I assert boldly that I have no faith in these figures, and until I can see the details of the manner in which they are made up, I shall refuse to be convinced of their fairness and accuracy. If we deduct the amounts above specified, which I have no hesitation in doing, and also the whole valuation of East Boston, for I am willing to assume that the property of East Boston can be wholly reckoned in advocacy of this measure, the remainder is but 5 6-10 per cent. of the assessed valuation of Boston, less the valuation of the East Boston wards and this is taking for the balance of the calculation their figures, the accuracy of which I deny. Mr. President, I have taken a great deal of your time, and I thank the Council for the courtesy with which I have been listened to. I have tried to show that this freeing of the ferries cannot be claimed as a right; nor can it be claimed as a favor, for the city has been more than liberal already in the treatment of East Boston; that in this very matter of ferries she has already incurred an enormous expenditure to provide the people with good and liberal accommodation, and finally that this demand now made is exorbitant and unreasonable and out of all proportion to the benefit to the city at large. Mr. President, I am in favor always of a wise and liberal system of improvements, nor would I be too exact in having the expenditure in any locality upon the amount received thence in taxes. But our duty is to the whole city, the burden of taxation upon our citizens is already a heavy one, and I for one am very far from being convinced that this is a measure which would justify us in adding so largely to that burden. Mr. President, in our list of wards the East Boston wards stand at the head. Let them take care that in the estimation of the city at large they do not also stand at the head in unreasonable demands upon the city's purse and exorbitant self-seeking.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I have no wish to make any lengthy remarks on this subject until I see the fate of my amendment. If that amendment can be adopted, I shall make no opposition to the order. In fact, the gentleman who has last spoken has stolen a certain part of my thunder. But in regard to the amendment of the gentleman from Ward 21, it is very seldom I raise a question of law with a member of the bar; but if he will look at section 3, page 293, he will see that there is an express provision of law against freeing the ferries for a less term than ten years.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—I was about ready to make the same objection that the gentleman has already made. It is certainly an unlawful act which the amendment of the gentleman on my right [Mr. Pratt] contemplates. I should object to it not only upon legal grounds, but also upon the ground of time. If we make the experiment which he proposes, it is unfair to make it in so short a period as sixty days. It seems to me that there should be a longer time than sixty days to experiment in.

Mr. Reed of Ward 17—The subject now awaiting our action is no new one. Six years ago, the question of the removal of all tolls on the ferries plying between the city proper and East Boston was duly considered. At that time there was an extensive hearing on the petition of the remonstrants. Their arguments were based on the theory that East Boston was not then and there was no prospect that that section of the city ever would be able to remunerate the entire city for this additional expense; that by the removal of tolls, the value of property outside the city beyond East Boston would be increased in a larger ratio than then, that the city would be obliged to furnish free transportation to the teaming interests of Essex County, and that the right of the citizens of East Boston to this free means of communication with the city proper was not able of proof. On the other hand, those favorable to the project argued that the interests of East Boston demanded it as an assistance in the development of their resources in that section. And that the city proper would also receive a like benefit in the removal of restrictions from our commercial interests which would add greatly to the advantages then possessed. And that as every other avenue was free, so also should this be made free. One important fact to be noted is that the question was not then brought before the City Council by petitioners. As all are aware, the order failed to pass. It has been my fortune to be placed on the Committee of East Boston Ferries for the present year, and as such to consider the claims of the petitioners who now ask for the removal these tolls. The argument is based, first, on the importance of this step as regards the advancement of the business interests of the entire city. Second, on the additional advantages which will accrue to those which we now possess as a forwarding point in the foreign trade. And lastly, that it is an act of justice. In favor of the first two, we have the voice of merchants, bankers and others, who represent nearly one-sixth of the entire valuation of the city; and of the last, the voice of citizens of all sections. To my mind the value of East Boston in a commercial point of view is not fully appreciated. With the other outlying sections it compares more than favorably in point of distance from the centres of trade. If we take this hall for a central point, we find Central square, East Boston, Franklin square at the South End, and Broadway, near F street, South Boston, equidistant. It is, therefore, we might say, a portion of the central section of the city; and distance, therefore, is no objection to the passage of the order. The water front of East Boston is of great value to our shipping interests. The close proximity of the channel to the shores and strength of the current do for it what dredging does for a large portion of the water front of the city proper. Accommodations, which are naturally so, for vessels of the largest capacity cannot be over-valued. Its wharves are of the easiest access, and are so situated that vessels lying there are protected from the northeasterly storms which visit our harbor. And shipowners will assure you that this is also a point of much value. Then again, East Boston possesses resources which, to a large extent, are undeveloped. There is not only an opportunity of furnishing much available wharf-room and many warehouses, both of easy access, but also there is offered to manufacturers a desirable place for their location. There is afforded by both rail and water facilities for receiving the raw material and its necessary accompaniments for manufacture; and then by the same agents spreading the result over this country and abroad. Boston makes a claim for a portion of the large foreign trade of the States. We desire as large a portion as possible of that steadily increasing trade between the West and abroad; and we also desire to render to our local importing and exporting interests such facilities as will increase the volume of the same and prosper it accordingly. Let us bear in mind our lines of railroad, the millions invested in these enterprises, and last of all, that great success of engineering, the Hoosac Tunnel. Now, in view of all these exterior acquisitions to our commercial importance it certainly becomes our duty to render to our local interests such easy and simple means of communication as are reasonable; and in view of the same I believe after that the plea of the petitioners, especially the merchants, is well founded, that it is for the public interest that all tolls should be removed from these ferries, and that the city should maintain a means of communication between its business centres and the warehouses and wharves of East Boston free of individual exaction. In considering the second reason given by the petitioners, viz., the act of justice to the citizens of East Boston, let us bear in mind that it is not a simple question of free transportation; it is an expression of belief that they are entitled to facilities equal, if possible, to those enjoyed by other outlying sections of the city. That there is a reason worthy of regard in this claim, the strongest opponent cannot deny. The Alderman from the Highland District has ably covered this point in his late remarks in that Board. His clear and concise argument fully meets the question. At the last meeting of the Council it was stated as one of the chief objections that the larger part of the travel which now comes in over the Chelsea Ferry and Chelsea Bridge would then come over the East Boston ferries, and to use the gentleman's own words, "In fact, all the people of Essex County, whether they come on wheels or on foot, will seek that route to Boston, and the city of Boston will have to bring them free." Now, it seems to me this is a very broad statement. If there should prove to be any unreasonable demands from this quarter, the act under which the city was allowed to assume the ownership of the ferries and empowers us to abolish the tolls fully covers the point. I refer to section 12 of the same, which is as follows:

"The said Board of Aldermen shall have power at all times, notwithstanding any of the provisions of this act, or anything done by said city in pursuance thereof, to levy and collect such rates of ferriage as they shall judge expedient, for and upon all teams and vehicles passing over said ferry to or from any place beyond the limits of said city."

It has also been claimed that we have no precedent for this action. I would call to mind the fact that the city of New York own the piers of the Union Ferry Company, whose boats ply to and from Brooklyn. I have obtained the document in New York. The rent which was paid under the old lease for the Fulton Ferry, the South Ferry, the Hamilton-avenue Ferry, the Wall-street Ferry and the Catharine Ferry, by the Union Ferry Company was $103,000. This lease terminated on May 1, 1871. In 1870 a lease was executed to commence May 1, 1871, whereby all of these ferries were let for $1 per annum. One of the conditions was that between five o'clock and 7½ o'clock in the morning and afternoon of each day the charge for foot passengers should be one cent, at all other hours two cents each. Does it not furnish us a strong precedent when a city will furnish over $100,000 annually towards reducing tolls to citizens of other cities as well as its own? And is it not especially an act of justice, in that it favors that portion of the community upon whose efforts our prosperity in a large measure depends? It is a move for which the city of New York deserves much credit. I believe that this movement is in the interest of the entire city, and that to call the citizens of East Boston the only parties who are benefited is unjust. If you will look at the last report of the Directors of East Boston Ferries for the year ending April 30, 1877, you will notice the receipts from tolls were $168,983.75, of which $104,902.16 were from foot passengers, and $64,081.59 were from teaming. Of this teaming, a large portion is paid for directly or indirectly by the merchants of the city proper. And besides, there are hundreds of foot passengers each day who are called from the city proper to East Boston on business. It certainly would not then be fair to charge all the expense to East Boston. This is a very open point for debate and proof, viz., to what extent each will receive the direct benefit by the sub-division. I also believe that the abolition of tolls will in the near future add to the valuation of East Boston. The able counsel for the remonstrants, in 1871, in argument made the following remarks: "Boston lost, as I find upon an examination of Hon. David A. Wells's report upon taxation to the Legislature of New York, $6,000,000 in 1870."

And again—

"Six millions of dollars is a considerable sum for any municipality to lose, and it will take wise and careful legislation on the part of the City Government of Boston to increase the taxable property of the city in any one year by that sum."

The gentleman here referred to personal estate. But to my mind this was a very one-sided view, for in that year our valuation of real estate increased about $20,000,000, leaving a net increase of about $14,000,000. During the following six years our valuation increased over $150,000,000, in spite of our then unforeseen calamity and the late business depression. Our taxes last year under a system of free ferries would not have been over $13 per $1000, against $15.30 per $1000 in 1870. And this permits of an increase of $50,000 over the running expenses of the ferries for the last year. From 1870 to 1876 the valuation of the entire city increased about 28 per cent., and this included the acquisitions of Charlestown, West Roxbury and Brighton; while in the same period the valuation of East Boston increased about 42 per cent. The annexations of 1873 added about 10 per cent. to the entire valuation, and therefore you will observe that East Boston has more than doubled in percentage of increase over the entire city. It is evident, therefore, that East Boston is not dead, and that the prospects of an increased return to our city treasury, under a system of free ferries, is almost certain. The removal of restrictions, other circumstances being equal, always in all business acts as a stimulant. And how much more reasonable it is to suppose that when circumstances so largely favor East Boston a greatly increased benefit will accrue to the city treasury. After carefully considering the subject I have thus endeavored to present the reasons which to me seem to call for the passage of this order. I believe the removal of these tolls is sure to come, if not now at a time not far distant. It includes that sense of justice to the citizen so interwoven with the advancement of business interest that doubly claims attention. I believe it should pass tonight, and I trust that it may do so by a decided majority, if not unanimously.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—Mr. President, I have here a few figures which I think may be added to those given by the gentleman from Ward 11, as bearing upon one argument that has been made use of by the advocates of free ferries. They claim that as the city has expended large sums of money to provide bridges for other sections of the city, it is only fair that something should be done to give them an equivalent. In the course of the debate in the Board of Aldermen, Alderman O'Brien gave the total cost to the city for the past twenty-five years for all expenditures upon bridges as being some two millions and a quarter—$2,435,408. Seeing that statement of his, I had the curiosity to go to the Auditor's office and find the items on which that computation was made. It seemed to me that it might be of value to have here a comparison between the money that has been expended for South Boston and what has already been expended for East Boston. Now, South Boston has four bridges. Broadway Bridge was built in 1869, and in the seven years to 1876 the total cost has been $1,052,540.10; that is the total expenditure on that bridge, so I am informed, for the construction and repairs, care and providing the approaches. Federal-street Bridge has cost $235,732.19; Dover-street Bridge, $148,802.39; and the Washington-avenue Bridge, $201,542.78, making a total of $1,638,617.41—in round numbers, $1,600,000 is the total amount that has been expended upon the bridges to South Boston from the time they were built until now, or rather until the end of the fiscal year of 1876. On the question, Has East Boston been dealt with justly, simply upon this one point of approaches to the city? the gentleman from Ward 11 has given the cost to the city at large of the plant of the East Boston ferries as having been $1,077,000. But it must be remembered that East Boston has three bridges of its own—Meridian-street Bridge, Chelsea Bridge and Point Snirley and Winthrop Bridge. Upon these bridges, from the time of their construction until the end of the fiscal year 1876, has been expended $249,444.30, which makes, with the expenditures upon East Boston ferries, a total of $1,326,444.30 as the amount which the city has contributed to provide facilities for the inhabitants of East Boston to get from their island home to the city proper. I think that even the most ardent advocate of free ferries cannot claim that the city has done any injustice to East Boston as compared with South Boston. I have no intension of going into this question at large; I merely wished to give that one point.

The gentleman from Ward 17 who was last on his feet gave as one argument, or perhaps as an illustration, the course of New York. Now, within a very few days the question of the right of the city of New York to do just what they did—doing it in the days when New York government was perhaps somewhat more corrupt than it is now, and before they felt all the purifying influences of reform which have been brought to bear upon them—they made this lease, and the question was brought by the proper authorities before the courts of New York, and it was there held that the lease could not be made; it was a lease the city had no right to make. I have not the fact itself, but I have seen the statement in a paper, and they have put an end to it; so that it is not a fair argument to be made use of here.

There is one question which I want to refer to—and perhaps I had better ask a question about it before I go on, for it may have been touched upon—and that is whether the committee of gentlemen who recommend free ferries have considered and taken the opinion of the City Solicitor as to their right to pass this order. I have been looking over the law with some care for the past twenty-four hours, and while I am not prepared to say that we have not the right to do this, it seems to me there is room for a very grave doubt, to say the least. The statute is a peculiar one. I do not know the circumstances under which it was passed, but it was naturally considered a peculiar one. The city of Boston as a corporation had no right to go into the business of running ferries; it was not created a corporation for carrying on any such business, and when it was deemed for the best interest of the citizens that it should undertake this business they were forced to go to the Legislature for their power.

Now, it is a familiar law that an act of this kind must be limited. It is giving power which a corporation does not have of itself, and it is not intended to give any more than its wording gives. Now, it provides that the city of Boston may take these ferries, and then it goes on to say, in section 2 of the act—

“Upon the completion of said purchase the City Council shall consider and determine whether the interests of said city will be best promoted by maintaining the said ferry thereafter free of toll.”

Then it goes on to provide for betterments; that certain betterments shall be assessed upon any district which may be peculiarly benefited by using the ferry free of tolls, and it is made the duty of the Board of Aldermen to lay these betterments. Now, the City Council of Boston at that time met and decided it was not expedient to establish a system of free ferries, and they passed an order regulating the tolls. The law now goes on and says in section 5—

“If the said City Council on the completion of said purchase shall adjudge and determine that instead of maintaining said ferry free of all tolls, it is for the best interests of said city that the said ferry shall be thereafter operated with more boats and greater facilities for travel and business than are now furnished by said company, and at one cent ferriage for a foot passenger instead of two cents, as heretofore charged, and with the other rates of ferriage thereon so reduced that the receipts of said ferry annually shall not exceed the cost of operating the same, instead of paying, as provided by the charter of said company, at least eight per cent. annual dividends, then, and in such case, the said city shall thereafter maintain and operate, or cause to be maintained and operated, the said ferry, with such greater accommodations and at such reduced rates of ferriage as aforesaid, or with such other and still greater accommodations and at such more reduced rates of ferriage as the said Board of Aldermen may from time to time judge expedient for the purposes mentioned in the first section of this act.”

Now I do not know what that means if it does not mean that after we once establish the rate of tolls, the whole thing is taken out of the hands of the City Council and put into the hands of the Board of Aldermen, and we are discussing a thing down here that we have no business to discuss. The act provides that the Board of Aldermen have the right to reduce the rates of ferriage, but they have no right to destroy them altogether. “At such reduced rates” does not mean at no rate at all. I am looking alone to the future; but looking back, it is then made the duty of the Board of Aldermen to go ahead and lay the betterments. Now, here we find the question to be this: Whether all the power that is given us by that act—and that, gentlemen, is all the power we have—whether the power given us by that act to establish the ferries free, whether having once passed an order establishing fixed rates, we can go on and provide that we will have no tolls; whether, when we have the right to reduce the rates of toll, it can be considered a right not to have any tolls. I say frankly I have not examined this law with care enough to give an opinion upon which I would advise anybody to act; but it does seem to me there is question enough there to have it properly passed upon by the proper authority. I have not heard whether the City Solicitor has given his opinion upon this subject; if he has I hope somebody will interrupt me and not let me go on taking up the time of the Council; if he has not, I think the proper place for it to go is to the Committee on the Judiciary and let them take his opinion upon it, for we would be in rather an absurd condition if we should pass an order undertaking to do a certain thing and then have some citizen of Boston go into the courts and say we have exceeded our authority. Unless the City Solicitor has given an opinion upon it, I shall move that the whole matter be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, with instructions to ask the opinion of the City Solicitor as to our right to pass this order.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—The Council will please bear in mind I am not advocating the original order, but the substitute which I offered; but while advocating the substitute, I am unwilling to see anything but fair arguments used against the original order, because it has a certain bearing on this subject. I propose at this time to take two or three moments to answer three propositions that have been made by other gentlemen. The gentlemen from Ward 3 [Mr. Webster] suggested that we could not release the tolls for a time, because we were under certain statute limitations. In answer to that I have to say that the city was bound, acting under the statute, to do one of two things. It elected to do one thing, and therefore it passed from its power to do it—passed from its operation of the statute. The City Council has full control of the tolls of the ferries. It may release them for a time, it may forbear to collect them for a time and then resume them when it chooses to collect them. It requires no peculiar argument to show that the city may run the ferries for a time as a railroad may run a train, free, without forfeiting its right to collect fares afterwards. In reply to the gentleman from Ward 11 [Mr. Wolcott], I must say that while I have great admiration for the carefulness and eloquence of his speech and the general correctness of his propositions, this is to be said concerning it, that his whole speech is based, so far as it operates against free ferries, upon two propositions; namely, first, that the freeing of the ferries is wholly for the interest of East Boston. In answer to that I simply want to make one point, and that is that if there were 350,000 inhabitants in the city of Boston, of which 30,000 lived in East Boston and the remaining 320,000 in other parts of the city, the 30,000 in East Boston may want to travel on these ferries oftener than any of the other citizens of the city, but we have to take into consideration the fact that their number is smaller and therefore they must travel a greatly increased number of times before they travel as much as the 320,000. I do not believe as a proposition that it is true that the East Boston men use the ferries more in the aggregate than the inhabitants of the city proper use them, taking into account the disparity of numbers and the consequent less frequency of times that the Boston people travel to make up the number of times the East Boston people travel.

The other proposition upon which the gentleman's speech rests is something like this: That no improvement must be made in a section of the city which already has improvements enough to take up the amount of its taxation. Now, sir, if we once made that a rule it would put us in a queer position. If we want to make an improvement on Commercial street we must first see whether that part of the city which surrounds Commercial street has had sufficient benefit from the City Government to take up the amount it pays into the treasury in taxes. If we want to build a park on the Back Bay, we must consider whether that part of the city right around that park has contributed enough to the city treasury to take up its proportion of taxation. You will readily see we never can stop to answer that question. The city itself is a unit, it is an integer; and when we make an improvement in one part of the city we make an improvement in the city; it is so evident it does not need any further argument. It is true that the whole city takes out in improvements every year the amount that it pays in in taxes, and if East Boston, for example, took every year the amount it paid in in taxes it would have no more than its fair proportion; and if East Boston and the North End, or that part of the city which may more fairly than East Boston be considered to be the part of the city which uses the ferries and which would be improved by freeing of the ferries, be taken altogether, and it be found that the freeing of the ferries will cost more than the amount these parts of the city pay in taxes, taken with the other expenses incurred on their account, still, I say it is no argument. The question is whether it is for the benefit of the city of Boston, not for East Boston, not for any part of the city, but whether it is for the benefit of the city of Boston. Therefore I say, without arguing it further, that we should all bear in mind, in hearing the careful and eloquent argument of the gentleman from Ward 11, that his whole argument rests upon two propositions which he assumes, which he did not prove, and which I doubt. Now, then, the gentleman from Ward 9 [Mr. Thompson] has given us some figures. Well, they say figures never lie, therefore I suppose Councilmen who use figures never state anything false. But the gentleman has said the bridges to South Boston have cost in the last twenty years—he will correct me if I am wrong—

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—Twenty-five years.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—About $1,600,000 or $1,633,000. Now, sir, I have my pocket nearly full of figures, but I do not happen to have just the right figures to complete my answer to this point; but I have these figures, that the cost of the Federal-street bridge, the rebuilding in 1856-7, was $50,971.95; the cost of rebuilding and widening in 1871-2 and 1872-3 was $90,558.11. The cost of building the Broadway Bridge was $919,319.79; the cost of rebuilding the foundations in 1873-4-5 was $100,350.67; making a total of $1,163,020.92 on account of two bridges out of four to be added to the figures given by the gentleman from Ward 9. I have not given the cost of Dover-street Bridge, nor the Congress-street Bridge.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—If the gentleman will excuse me, that is rather a serious discrepancy between my figures and his, and I hope he will do me the kindness to state wherein the difference exists. I gave merely the figures that were given me by the City Auditor as his official statement prepared by him and put on his record as the total cost of all these bridges. The Federal-street Bridge, to which we have referred, he gives the total cost as $235,000, and the total cost of the Broadway Bridge $1,105,200, and the others as I have stated them. I hope the gentleman will explain the discrepancy; I cannot.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—It is very easily explained. The figures which the gentleman has stated correspond to a cent with the figures which I have for the annual expenditure aside from building and rebuilding the bridges. The cost is just as he states it. But, sir, when we take into account the cost of the bridges as the gentleman computes the cost of the ferries, we must take into the account not only the annual outlay but even the interest on the plant, which would make the figures still larger than they are. Therefore, the gentleman was right in his figures, if he wished to state the annual expenditure on these bridges; but the figures which I have given in addition represent the cost of building, rebuilding and widening the bridges—widening one and building and rebuilding the foundations of another; and that of only two of the South Boston bridges. The other two have been very expensive—both of them more expensive than the Federal-street Bridge—but I have not the figures with me.

Mr. Wolcott of Ward 11—I have said all I desire to say on this subject, and am perfectly content to allow my reasons to stand as I have already expressed them. The gentleman from Ward 21 has fixed upon two points to which I am compelled to reply. The first point which he makes seems to be in regard to what I have said about the relative numbers petitioning for free ferries from East Boston and the city. I will say that whatever I have said is based upon the figures which are given by the petitioners, by which it appears that the citizens of East Boston petitioning for free ferries was 5150; the number from the rest of Boston was less than 2500, less than half. I am content to let that remain there. In regard to the other point I will say that he has entirely misquoted me. I distinctly and in words denied that I would oppose the expenditure on any locality upon the sum raised for taxation in that locality; I would not look too closely to that. I said, however, that when the amount expended on one locality was thirty-four per cent. more than the amount received by taxation, I considered that liberal, and I said that when an attempt was made that the amount expended should be eight per cent. more than double the amount received, I considered that to be wrong. The gentleman has entirely misquoted me.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—I wish to give a few reasons why I shall vote to absolve the tolls on these ferries. In the first place it seems to me we do not give importance enough to the petitions which have been presented in favor of this order. Here are petitions, sir, which have never been equalled in the petitions presented upon any topic discussed in City Hall, either in respect to numbers or in respect to the character which they represent. It certainly seems to me they are entitled to more than ordinary weight in connection with this question. They should certainly interest us to a certain degree. In the objections to this scheme put forth by the remonstrants in the first place they say that this is unjust, that it is impolitic and of doubtful legality. These are the three kinds of opposition, I understand, which are embodied in the remonstrance itself. Now, as regards the injustice in the treatment of this topic, I think I do not differ materially from the gentleman on my right; at the same time I do really differ with him somewhat. In regard to these figures permit me to say they were presented to me from the Auditor's department. In regard to the Broadway extension, as I understand the expense of the bridge built was $1,061,564.85. The expense of the Dover-street Bridge has been $239,386.26; the expenses of the Federal-street Bridge have been $241,166.67; the expenses of the Mt. Washington-avenue Bridge have been $205,057.72. That makes a total of $1,747,115.50 as the amount of money expended on the four avenues leading to South Boston. Now, just consider what the interest on this amount would be—$105,226.93. I claim, Mr. President, that if this amount has been expended upon the highways leading to South Boston, certainly it is no more than just that these ferries should be free, and that an equivalent amount should be expended in favor of East Boston.

But, Mr. President. I will not stop here. Here are the expenses which have been incurred in connection with Charlestown Bridge and in connection with Cambridge Bridge. In connection with Cambridge Bridge there has been expended $162,612.92, less $65,048.50, which was paid from the fund received from the State; that leaves a balance of nearly $100,000. In connection with the Charlestown bridges there has been expended $115,760.44, less $4051.57; thus showing we have certainly expended a large amount, to say the least, upon the avenues leading to Charlestown and also upon the avenues leading to Cambridge. Now, is it unjust that we should expend a certain equivalent amount on the highways leading to East Boston? I do not offer this upon any sectional ground, nor in the interest of East Boston. I present it in the interest of the city proper, and in the interest of the commerce of Boston. When we consider that two-thirds of the exports and imports of Boston are landed in East Boston, is it not reasonable enough that we should be asked to remove these barriers to our commerce? I claim that it is. It is certainly a barrier to the commerce of Boston, and anything which tends to remove it must certainly increase and enhance the interests of Boston.

Now, sir, it has been suggested by the gentleman at my right [Mr. Thompson], in connection with this matter in New York, that it had some weight in this case. But, sir, that does not for a moment change the status of the feeling of the people of New York upon the subject. They disclosed their feeling upon the matter that it was for their interest to remove entirely all the tolls. As regards the doubtful legality of this abolition of the tolls, we have merely to refer to the opinion of Judge Curtis, who declared it to be by implication, to say the least, within the province of this City Government to abolish these tolls. Therefore I have nothing more to say on the legality of this question, and upon the injustice I certainly think the opponents of this measure can rest their case as well as upon their arguments.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—The gentlemen from Wards 11 and 21 have shown very clearly the true inwardness of this question. Whenever an opponent of the free-ferry measure gets up and says anything about sectional expenditures they instantly reply that the taxation of a particular locality should not limit the expenditures for it; and when they wish to argue on the other side they instantly begin to produce the expenditures for South Boston, and say, "See, you have spent so much for South Boston, therefore you ought to spend so much in East Boston." If the argument is right in one direction it is in the other. But I think that the argument on either side amounts to very little. In a matter of this kind it is a matter of expediency only. We might be situated in Boston as the citizens of San Francisco are, and have a large mountain in the centre of the city, and it might be very wise, under certain circumstances, to tunnel under this mountain. For instance, a mountain might lie between this part of the city and Roxbury, and I can conceive that it might be very nice to have a straight tunnel through it, and it might cost fifty millions of dollars, more or less. But should a city which has a capital of about $700,000,000 go to the expense of putting this tunnel through merely because it might be of some advantage at some future time? Sir, I think that any city legislator who took that ground would instantly be driven from his seat at the next election. The same way with East Boston. East Boston has now 30,000 inhabitants. Suppose it had but 10,000, would the citizens then come here and ask the city to run the ferries free? And if not for 10,000, why for 30,000? It will probably be said that 30,000 people are enough to make it advantageous to the city. I hold it is not. You should have 50,000 or 100,000 people in East Boston to have it profitable for the city at large to run the ferries free. The gentleman who last sat down took exceptions to some statements made in reference to ferries in New York. He evidently labored under a mistake. The Union Ferry Company of New York is one of the wealthiest corporations in New York city. It is, moreover, a close corporation, so much so that its stock never gets into the market. The lease which they succeeded in making with the city of New York was effected by unfair means. It was not the feeling of the citizens there, and never has been so. I speak this from knowledge, because I was a resident of New York at that time, and understood the matter thoroughly. In connection with New York, I want to say that it always struck me that the situation of Brooklyn was very much analogous with East Boston. Almost all the warehouses of the port of New York are in Brooklyn, and their short piers in New York city do not allow facilities for discharging cargoes, only for loading. The mere pittance that is charged for tolls over the ferry will not influence freight in that direction, provided the facilities exist. The difficulty is just here: that the depression in foreign trade is so great that we are not likely to get any in Boston for a good many years to come, no matter whether we have free ferries or not. Indeed, we can only expect to get a certain amount, and if it goes to East Boston it merely takes it from Union wharf and the various wharves on this side of the harbor.

Now, as to the matter of petitions. A great deal has been said about that; that this is a petition that comes into the City Government more formidable than any that has ever come yet. Now, I had my attention called particularly to that, because I was influenced to sign it, and therefore took some little interest to find out how my name came so near to getting on there. I was told that it was signed; that the gentleman who signed it signed it at the request of a friend, and that afterwards thought he made a mistake, and wished that he had not. That led me to inquire further. I did not look the subject up thoroughly, but I found five or six that had done the same thing, and now said they were sorry they did. Now, that is merely my experience for a few hours only. I should be willing to have this measure go through, if it is the desire of a majority of the citizens of the city of Boston to have it done. I shall certainly vote for the amendment of the gentleman from Charlestown, and if the majority of the taxpayers or voters of the city are in favor of the measure at the next election, why I am willing to have it put into execution. But I do not believe in forcing this through against what I think is the wish of three-fourths or four-fifths of the taxpayers and residents of the city.

Mr. Beeching of Ward 1—I do not intend, Mr. President, to detain the Council but a very few moments. The subject has been thoroughly discussed, and I judge from the empty seats that the Council are already tired of discussion. It has been ably discussed, much better than I feared the representatives from East Boston could have discussed it. I merely wish to say, Mr. President, that this is not an East Boston measure alone. Although attempts have been made here to belittle the petition and the signers, it stands, Mr. President, and on that list are some of the largest merchants of the city of Boston. They certainly regard it as a Boston interest and not merely an East Boston matter. And it is a matter in which all the city of Boston is interested. So I think, although an attempt has been made to belittle the signers of the petition, I think that must fail, from the very fact that the names are upon the petition; and although there may be one case cited where a gentleman thought he had made a mistake, I think that is perhaps the only case. I believe the shrewd business men of Boston do not generally put their names to a paper unless they know what they are doing; unless they know the effect it will have and the responsibility they are taking in putting their names to a paper, no matter what it may be. I think they have put their names to it regarding it as an important matter in connection with the business interests of the city of Boston. Now, Mr. President, what is this great question we are led to support? The question is simply this, Whether the parties that patronize that ferry shall pay the toll, or whether the city of Boston and every taxpayer of the city of Boston shall pay his proportion of it. I say that if it is a matter connected with the interests of the city of Boston, every taxpayer ought to be willing to pay his proportion. What is the amount, this enormous amount, that seems to frighten some gentlemen? It is somewhere from $150,000 to $175,000 a year; that is the amount that alarms these gentlemen. No one will lose anything; the city of Boston is not going to throw her money away; she is not going to enter into any questionable enterprise not knowing whether it will be advantageous to the city or not; but it is simply, Can the city of Boston pay that toll without suffering great harm? We think they can. We are so situated, Mr. President, that we cannot have a bridge or bridges between the city proper and East Boston; but the city of Boston has admitted that we are entitled to it, and it is simply to preserve the harbor that we are deprived of a bridge. They have given us bridges on the other side of East Boston so that we can go back into the interior of the country, and they ask us no toll; but when we come to the centre of the city, the very part of the city that the most of our citizens are likely to come to, we are asked to pay toll and we regard it as unjust; we think we are not treated fairly. Now, I do not question what the gentleman has said on the other side of the chamber, that the city of Boston has expended large sums for the ferries to East Boston. We admit that. She has spent large sums for our section of the city, and from the citations of the gentlemen opposite, our neighbors on the other side. We are glad the city has done what she has for South Boston, and all we ask is that the city shall deal fairly with East Boston. I think, Mr. President, that the members of the Council understand this question, and it is not necessary to debate it further. The figures have been stated here, and a great array of figures has been presented, but I think the Council are ready to vote upon this question, and so I will not detain you with any further remarks.

Mr. Danforth of Ward 10—I only want to say a few words, sir, in relation to the petitioners. I spent a little time last evening in analyzing the petitions, and I found there were 2312 signers outside of East Boston. There are put down here as the signatures of merchants, 257; according to the Directory 84 of them do not reside in Boston. There are put down here as the signatures of commission merchants, 81; 41 do not reside in Boston, 1 is an architect and 3 are clerks. They have put down here the names of boot, shoe and rubber merchants, 119; 57 do not reside in Boston, 3 are clerks; they reside in Cambridge, Malden, Brockton, Milford, and some in places even farther away than that. In regard to the banks, I went myself to quite a number of banks this morning, and every president whom I visited said that he had no idea of signing for the bank, and had no right to sign for it, and one or two of them asked me to say so. There are twenty-three or more banks, representing $30,000,000, and they say they are not here as banks. Then I find here the signatures of the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Erie Railroad, the Chicago & Rock Island Railroad, the Kansas Pacific Railroad, and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad; I do not know what they have to do with the East Boston ferries. If I had time I should have gone through all these three lists; I feel quite sure that forty per cent. are not representatives of Boston, not voters, not taxpayers, and none of the firm reside in Boston.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—I do not propose, Mr. President, to go into a general discussion of this question at any length at this time, but here appears a most novel undertaking—an undertaking which, so far as I have been able to get information, has never been undertaken by any municipal corporation anywhere in the world before, certainly not in Massachusetts, and if it ever was undertaken it is not now existing anywhere. It is a proposition by statute for the city of Boston to run a line of steamboats, with the usual responsibilities and liabilities of carriers of passengers and freights. The argument upon the surface, however, the first argument, is that it resembles a bridge or highway, and this is the great argument which is used by the friends of free ferries why the tolls should be abolished. I think that examination and reflection will show that these ferries do not resemble bridges and highways, and the arguments which they found upon that are wholly fallacious. Nobody ever supposed or believed or contended that it was the duty of Boston to establish a bridge where it could not be done. If that is so, it is absurd to suppose that it was the duty of the municipal government to establish a substitute for a bridge. If it is impossible to maintain a highway, in the very nature of things I say it is absurd to ask the Government to assume the greater and different responsibilities not resting on the principle of highways and bridges, and maintain a system of ferries for that purpose. Now, I say that a government has nowhere undertaken to maintain ferries where it is impossible to establish bridges. This proposition not only undertakes to provide a way—and thus it is essentially and inherently different from a highway—this proposition undertakes not only to provide a way in which parties may go and come over it, but it undertakes at the expense of the Government to transport them and merchandise and protect them on the way, and in fact to carry them—to do the labor which in all other places they are required and expected to do themselves; and further, if they go upon the principles of highways and carry it out, it will impose upon the city the duty of maintaining ferries at all times of day and at all times of night, because highways and bridges are open at all times of day and night. It undertakes also to employ servants to help transportation, which no man has ever undertaken to do upon any highway, so far as I have been able to get information. So I say that if by the nature of things the obstacles are so great or of such a character that the city cannot build a bridge or lay out a highway, then the argument that they resemble highways, and the argument drawn from the analogy of the accommodations which governments are supposed to be bound to furnish and citizens claim to be their natural privileges, are fallacious because they are unlike, they are dissimilar, they are not founded upon the same principles of law or government. I have no doubt, and it has been stated by those who are opposed to this order, and those who are the friends of this order to make these ferries free, that the true basis upon which to place legislation of this kind is that which is established in laying out highways, whether the expense is proportionate or disproportionate to the benefits received. I say in view of the arguments that have been adduced here in its favor that it will increase the taxable property of East Boston, as no doubt it would—I say if there ever was a proposition of which we could say that it will make the rich man richer and the poor man poorer, it is the adoption of this order. Because it is plain to be seen that inasmuch as it increases the value of real estate, by so much will it increase the burden of the rent-paying citizens; and, therefore, if there are any friends of this order who are putting it on the ground that it will be of advantage to the poor man, they are deceiving themselves very grossly. I believe that it will not conduce to the benefit of the whole city in the proportion that it would increase taxation; for we must remember that these expenses of running these boats which have been estimated all the way from $300,000 to $500,000 per year have got to be met year by year as we go along; it is taxation to be made up. Now, it seems to me that no friend of the city of Boston, in view of what we see going on every day, without the strongest and most cogent reasons, can vote to go on and increase taxation in this way. If it is put on the ground that it is to increase the tax-paying wealth of the city, I would call the attention of those who advocate it on that ground to what they see going on every day—the wealthiest tax-paying people in this metropolis being driven out of the city day by day by the increase of the hard burden of taxation which you put upon them.

Instead of bringing taxable property into the city; instead of inducing—I don't care by what means—wealthy men from other parts of New England or the United States to come here and settle, you will drive them out of it to escape the burdens of a taxation almost too grievous to bear now. I think the proposition introduced in the amendment of the gentleman from Ward 3 is perfectly fair; and I do not see how any friend of free ferries, if he means to meet the question fairly, can refuse to vote for it. Ever since I can remember—and I have not any histories here to go back for more than fifteen or twenty years—all the great matters of public interest like this have been submitted to the vote of the people. I have a book before me, in which I find that the introduction of water to the city of Boston was submitted to the vote of the people. I read from page 185 of the ordinances, in the margin—

“An act for supplying the city of Boston with pure water was passed March 25, 1845, containing a provision that the act should be void unless accepted by a majority of the legal voters of the city.”

I also refer to the park act, within the recollection of all of us, in which it was provided that it should be submitted to the vote of the city at the then next municipal election, and as you, Mr. President, and all of us remember, that it should be voted upon by a separate ballot, yes or no. If they desire, gentlemen will find that upon page 586 of the ordinances. I am unable, at this moment to refer to other matters; but certainly, within my recollection and residence of over twenty years in the city, I have not known a question of anywhere near the importance of this being pressed through and irreversibly passed upon—because if it is once done it cannot be undone not only practically but legally; if this order once passes that is the end of it; it is irrevocable and irreversible—without a vote of the people. In view of this critical question, and in view of the importance of it; in view of the fairness of the amendment, I do not see how any gentleman here—if he is ever so staunch a friend of free ferries—can refuse to submit it to the voice and vote of the people. If the people—after investigating and studying the reasons for and against it which require study and investigation—vote for it intelligently, I am perfectly content, as I am on all occasions when I am voted down. I do think it would be the best thing for the friends of the measure to do, to show their honesty and fairness, to adopt the amendment of the gentleman from Ward 3, the effect of which is to let this be passed upon by the people at the polls.

Mr. Burke of Ward 2—As a member of the Committee on the Ferries, I desire to say a few words. I know that any lengthy argument is unnecessary, for all the points that the committee intended to present are contained in the report. The committee gave this question careful and lengthy consideration. It has not been hurried upon the people of Boston, and no traps have been sprung. The people have had ample time to come forward and present remonstrances if they had any, while the subject was in the hands of the committee. Furthermore, the committee, by a vote passed while in session, had printed in the daily papers a notice that the ferry question was being considered by them, and that they would perhaps report in a few days. We did not report in a few days; we did not report, in fact, for nearly three weeks; and yet no one appeared and asked to be heard on this question. Now, I believe that every member has perhaps had, or an opportunity to have, a copy of the petitions, the report of the committee and the argument. I think they all know what we claim and look for; but there are one or two points to which I would like to call their attention. The argument brought forward by some gentlemen would lead me to believe that East Boston, where I happen to live, is not a part of the city of Boston. If we are not a part of Boston, perhaps we can make some special arrangement and get along for ourselves. Another question is, we don't pay as much in taxes as is expended upon East Boston. We do not bring that up as an argument. We are a part of this city, and I ask these gentlemen what more do they give than we? I am a citizen of Boston and have a right to have my child educated if I pay no more than a poll tax. Whenever this City Council shall say so, I have a right to have my street paved; and I believe we have very poor streets in East Boston. Now, the running of these ferries free is only equivalent to bridges, and we simply ask for a pass so that we can travel through the city of Boston. Some parties have brought up the argument that if we give East Boston free ferries, Chelsea people will ask for free ferries too. That is not an argument. We simply ask for a pass. We pay our pro rata of taxes the same as any other portion of the city. It is a question simply whether we shall have highways; and whether, in fact, we shall receive as much as we need. If this question is going to be decided upon the question of the amount of taxes that each district of the city pays, certain districts would be no better within the city than out of it. If the people of East Boston had asked for something, that was a luxury, although I might like it, I do not think I could go for it conscientiously myself. We have not asked for a public park, although some of our friends who are pressing the park measure have gone so far as to say that they will give us a park there. We do not care for anything of that kind; but what we do ask for is a public necessity, and that is a public highway. Some gentlemen here are certainly well educated, and we have some fine lawyers who can make fine speeches; and I am surprised to hear them say it is going to almost engulf the city of Boston in debt, and is going to put a great burden upon the taxpayers of the city. Now, if I can figure right, it is the people of Boston who support those ferries. Now, if we have parties coming from some other town outside of the city of Boston, and we charged them toll for coming here, then it would seem to be a money-making institution. It don't seem to make much difference in whose pockets the money is. I am certain a great deal of it is not in East Boston. But I am also certain that we pay a large portion of it when we pay our taxes. We are charged just the same amount for a thousand dollars as any other part of the city is, and we support the ferries independent of that. Now, the gentleman from Ward 3 has offered an amendment to submit the matter to the votes of the people. I never saw a measure of any importance come into this Council but what an amendment was offered to it, and I believe that if Daniel Webster were living, and a member of this Council, he could not offer an order here without seeing an amendment tacked on to it, or attempted to be. Now, they ask that the citizens of Boston have an opportunity to vote for this thing. I do not propose to put this question before the citizens of Boston. They urge it in the interest of capitalists and all others who are opposed to public measures. The gentleman says that the statute in relation to water provided that it should be adopted by a vote of yea and nay. Everybody in Boston drinks water, but everybody does not use the ferries. When the Legislature made the provision giving this power to the City Council in relation to ferries, I believe that is sufficient. The Legislature delegated the power of freeing the ferries to the City Council. Now these men raise their hands in holy horror and say it is a great burden. It reflects harshly upon the characters of our legislators. If those men did not see the necessity for it, why did they make provision for it? They have made no provision whatever for freeing the Chelsea ferries; but they made liberal provisions for freeing the East Boston ferries,—free of all toll for a period of time not less than ten years,—and in order to satisfy the gentlemen who are so much afraid that the people of Essex County will come here and monopolize the East Boston ferries, the Legislature did have wisdom enough to make a provision for those gentlemen. I think it will be found, by looking at the statutes, that the Board of Aldermen have the right to place a toll upon the ferries, and charge all parties outside of the city limits. I have a little information in relation to the real cost of running the ferries, and perhaps I might as well read it while I am up. I inquired of what I thought might be a proper source—the Directors of the East Boston Ferries—and received this answer:

“Dear Sir—In answer to your inquiry as to what the additional expense would be from the larger influx by travel from foot passengers, etc., increase of the force, etc., I am fully of the opinion that we could accommodate double the number of teams, and five times the amount of foot travel, which, at this time, is six millions per year, or a little over; that with the same accommodation as at present, I think the expense, since the ferries were owned by the city, for running them has been about $200,000 per annum, and out of that we have built six new drops and tanks, thoroughly repaired the drops, built two new toll houses entire, and a new set of head buildings and some necessary repairs on the slips, as all the property was run out; also three new large boats and heavy repairs on the house and machinery. The fair running expense is about $100,000 per annum, and if the ferries should become free I would most gladly take a contract with five others to run the boats for five years at $170,000 to $175,000 per annum.

[Signed] D. D. KELLY,
Director East Boston Ferries.

Mr. Mowry—I merely wish to say a word in regard to the legality of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ward 3. It seems to me it is illegal. The act provides that the question shall be decided by the City Council, and there is no provision for submitting the question to the people.

Mr. Thompson—I rise to a point of order. The question before the house is on my motion to refer to the Committee on the Judiciary, and I should like to see it settled. While the discussion was going on I looked at the law again and I am convinced that it is a matter with which we have nothing to do. The first section, giving the power under which the city may take the ferries, provides that the city of Boston may—“Cause the said ferry to be maintained thereon in such manner and upon such rates of ferriage as the Board of Aldermen in said city may from time to time judge for the best interest of said city and upon the terms which may be hereinafter provided.”

Now the “hereinafter provided” provides for three different exceptions. It provides that those exceptions shall be acted upon immediately after the purchase. First, the City Council may decide that the tolls may be entirely free; second, the City Council may decree that more accommodations may be furnished, and also the rate of charge; third, that for ten years the ferries shall be free. Those are the only exceptions, and with those exceptions the power rests in the hands of the Board of Aldermen, and we have nothing to do with it. If you don't take my word for it, the better way will be to take the advice of the City Solicitor. I hope the motion to refer will prevail.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—If the main question is debatable, I would like to say a few words upon that. I trust the order as it came from the Board of Aldermen will be passed without any amendment. Two years ago I had occasion to make some remarks in this Council on another matter, and I then expressed my views in relation to free ferries. I have thought the matter over since and am of the same opinion today—that it is not only for the interest of East Boston, but for the whole people of Boston, that the ferries shall be made free. I don't know of a single city in these United States where one portion taxes another portion for its passage from one section to the other.

Mr. Thompson called Mr. Clarke to order, as the main question was not debatable.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 moved the previous question, thinking the opponents did not want to hear the friends of free ferries.

Mr. Thompson explained the issue involved on the legal point raised by him, and desired the reference.

The main question was ordered—31 for, 25 against.

On motion of Mr. Crocker of Ward 9, the yeas and nays were ordered on Mr. Webster's amendment and it was lost—yeas 30, nays 36:

Yeas—Messrs. Barnard, Barry, Blanchard, Blodgett, Brown, Coe, Crocker, Danforth, Day, Fagan, Felt, D. A. Flynn, Hibbard, Howes, Kelley (Ward 3), Morrill, J. H. Pierce, Pratt, J. B. Richardson, Ruffin, Sampson, Shepard, Souther, Spenceley, Stoue, Thompson, Upham, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—30.

Nays—Messrs. Beeching, Brintnall, Burke, Clarke, Cox, Cross, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fernald, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Ham, Hiscock, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, Loughlin, McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, Mowry, Mullane, Nugent, O'Connor, Pearl, Perham, R. Pope, Reed, Roach, Roberts, Sibley, Thorndike, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster—36.

Absent or not voting—Cauon, O'Donnell, O. H. Pierce, M. W. Richardson, Smardon—5.

Mr. Pratt's substitute was rejected.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3 moved to lay the subject on the table. Declared lost. Mr. Thompson doubted the votes, and the Council divided—24 for, 38 against.

On motion of Mr. Richardson of Ward 10, the yeas and nays were ordered on the passage of the original order.

Mr. Brown of Ward 23 asked to be excused from voting on the ground of personal interest, his firm being large importers and having signed the petition for free ferries.

Mr. Beeching said any business man might ask to be excused for the same reason, which he did not think was sufficient.

The Council refused to excuse Mr. Brown—23 for, 33 against.

The roll was called on the passage of the order freeing the ferries after Jan. 1, 1878.

Before the vote was declared, Mr. Webster of Ward 3 raised the point that Mr. Pratt had not voted when his name was called.

Mr. Pratt explained the cause of his silence to be that his own judgment led him to vote yes, while the ward he represented, so far as he had come in contact with the residents, remonstrated against freeing the ferries, so he chose not to vote where his vote would not count. If pressed to vote he should vote yes.

Mr. McGaragle raised the point that Mr. Pratt could not be excused after the roll had been called.

The Clerk called Mr. Pratt's name, and he voted yes.

The order was passed—yeas 40, nays 25:

Yeas—Messrs. Barry, Beeching, Brintnall, Brown, Burke, Clarke, Cox, Cross, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fernald, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Ham, Hiscock, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, Loughlin, McClusky, McDouald, McGaragle, Mowry, Mullane, Nugent, O'Connor, Pearl, Perham, Reed, Roach, Roberts, Shepard, Sibley, Spenceley, Thorndike, Vose, Warren—40.

Nays—Messrs. Barnard, Blanchard, Blodgett, Coe, Crocker, Danforth, Day, Fagan, Felt, D. A. Flynn, Hibbard, Howes, Morrill, J. H. Pierce, Pope, J. B. Richardson, Ruffin, Sampson, Souther, Stone, Thompsou, Upham, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—25.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Cannon, O'Donnell, O. H. Pierce, Pratt, M. W. Richardson, Smardon, E. R. Webster—7.

A PERSONAL EXPLANATION.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I have a personal explanation to make, if the Council will pardon me for a moment. In the course of the debate last Thursday evening, the gentleman from Ward 3 [Mr. Stoue] gave certain figures as representing the total borrowing power of the city of Boston, to a certain extent, and asked me the question, “Where can we ‘get the money’ for the system of parks which I advocated?” In reply, I stated that during the next ten years we could borrow a certain sum. To that, as appears by the report, he replied, “I got my figures from the Auditor, and I don't believe he would give two sets of figures.” I did not hear at the time what the gentleman said in regard to giving two sets of figures; and I answered I got mine from the Auditor. I find that some gentlemen, especially those who called upon the Auditor, thought I intended it to be understood that the Auditor had given two sets of figures. I did not intend to convey any such idea. At the time I made the inquiries of the Auditor, he gave me the same figures which he gave to Mr. Stone. To that I added, I had presented to myself a different problem—not the question of how much we could borrow today, but the question of how much we could borrow in the next ten years, and I started upon the same basis that the gentleman from Ward 3 did; and, making an allowance for our Sinking Fund, I produced the result which I gave. I do not wish to place the Auditor in a false light. Unfortunately, something of the same nature has occurred tonight. Two other gentlemen [Mr. Mowry and Mr. Pratt] have presented figures, both claiming to have received them from the Auditor, and all claiming to represent the same thing, and yet all differing considerably; and as that will appear again in the report as a collision—or having received different figures from the Auditor—I wish to explain my connection with them now. I find, on consulting the figures of the gentleman from Ward 11 [Mr. Mowry] that they were made up to June 11, 1876; mine were made up to the first of May, 1876, and were the same figures given by Alderman O'Brien, and which is the difference given in that year. My friend from Ward 21 [Mr. Pratt] put a construction of his own, and added a couple of millions to the cost of constructing the bridges, which I was unable to find.

PUBLIC PARKS.

On motion of Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 the rule was suspended, and on motion of the same gentleman the motion to reconsider the vote whereby was rejected the order for a loan of $450,000 for the purchase of land on the Back Bay for a park and streets connected therewith was taken from the table. The question was upon reconsideration.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I understand the gentleman from Ward 10 [Mr. Richardson] is about to renew the amendment he offered at the last meeting, and if that is done I will accept it.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I hope gentlemen will not push this to a vote tonight. If they let it lie upon the table another week, I think, from the number of converts that have been made, we shall have a unanimous vote. It is the most natural thing in the world.

The reconsideration prevailed, and the question came upon the passage of the order as it came from the Board of Aldermen.

Mr. Perham of Ward 23—I hope, sir, that this vote will be reconsidered, and as I desire to make a few remarks upon the same subject, I think perhaps I had better do so upon the reconsideration. Mr. President, believing as I do that Boston demands in her own interest a system of parks, and believing that now is the time to take decisive steps to inaugurate that system, I am naturally disappointed at the meagre step proposed by the other branch of the City Council. I have found myself beset with difficulties in an honest effort to see my way clear to give this measure my approval. Even now, sir, as purely a park project, it does not commend itself to my judgment. As a provision for a quarter of a century hence it has claims to our consideration. As a provision for the present generation it has none whatever. Admitting that the territory it is proposed to purchase can be filled to the required grade in a few years, it must be expected that the filling will settle and require regrading a year or two afterwards. Then the loam can be put on and the work of ornamentation begun. Trees do not grow like mushrooms. "There is a frightful interval between the seed and the timber." Taking strictly a park view, I am more nearly right in characterizing it as something for a quarter of a century hence, than the ardent friends of the measure will be willing to admit. It may then become what to Boston the Public Garden and Common now are, and that I admit is desirable. But this as a park matter does not meet the question which faces us today. The real question should not be lost sight of. It is one of parks for the people of today, for our people and not those who shall occupy our places when we shall have passed on to the unknown parks of the Great Elsewhere. Mr. President, it seems to be the opinion of some of our friends here that those are the parks we had better all wait for. I do not agree to the proposition. The individual takes liberally from his income to make his home attractive and healthful. Great cities should be kept healthful and made beautiful by like liberal expenditures, and it is no true economy either in the individual or the city to neglect these things. I had hoped that something more practicable, more in harmony with the prevailing park sentiment, should have been accomplished; that the park for now should have been the first in the series to receive our attention; that we should have sought it where the simple purchase of lands would give the magnificent groves, the running streams, the graceful lawns, the hills and rocks, the great shades and nooks, the fragrance and pure air of open country, and all those natural elements which go to make up a park in its truest sense. Referring to a park like this, an eminent advocate of Back Bay projects has said, "That can wait." So it can. But Boston cannot, if there be any wisdom in the Park Commissioners' report, or if there be any true reason why parks should be had at all. I believe in Boston. I do not think she is impoverished. I do not think she is in a decline. Boston has many lost opportunities to regret and to teach her wisdom. But in her experience there is nothing to teach her to halt in the direction of necessary public improvements. Her mistakes have been of the hesitating kind. Boston, contemplating the investment of her capital in Western railroads and in Western cities, and seeing no line of railroad under her control to those cities, wonders at her own shortsightedness. Boston, seeing what rival commercial cities have done in establishing parks, and the benefits they have derived from them, bids her representatives act. She will not sustain the course of him who hesitates.

Mr. President, it must be clear to you that I believe in parks, and that, holding the views I have expressed, it has been very hard for me to agree to this order. But, sir, I do not hold that all the wisdom in the City Council is centred in any opinion of mine. A large majority have taken the opposite view in regard to the Back Bay territory. At our last meeting this matter came up for discussion for the first time in the Council. I was not prepared to vote for it. It was pushed to a vote, as it appeared to me, unwisely and in undue haste, and I was therefore forced to record my vote against it. Since then I have investigated the matter earnestly, and intend to vote for it in some form. I prefer the substitute of the gentleman from Ward 10. I cannot controvert the testimony that the purchase by the city of these Back Bay lands, and the consequent improvement of the adjacent territory, will abate a public nuisance—a nuisance which my ward, through Stony Brook, bears her share in creating. I am convinced that the proposed improvement of Stony Brook and the filling of these lands, in connection with the system of improved sewerage, and possibly the filling of Roxbury Canal, will give relief to the entire South End territory, and that these improvements will forever remedy the evils which now exist and endanger the health and lives of a thickly settled district of this city. The separation of the vexed question of how to improve the sanitary condition of Back Bay from the park question proper, will relieve the latter of an incubus, and hereafter proposed parks can be fairly treated on their merits. They have never been so treated yet.

Mr. Coe of Ward 13—I have some hesitation in speaking tonight, as I feel that the Council are hardly in the mood to listen to any more speeches on the general subject of parks. That question seems practically decided for this year, and the whole matter narrowed down to abating a nuisance on the Back Bay. I suppose the votes are secured, and the order will pass. Being necessarily absent last week in the fulfilment of an engagement made some time since, I was unable to speak then on the general subject. Furthermore, I did not suppose, that after being discussed for so many weeks by twelve men in the other branch, it would be pressed to a vote with such undue haste in this body. As I am, unfortunately, a member of the Committee on Parks, and being unable to agree fully with any other member of that committee, I feel obliged to state some of the reasons which influenced my own mind in presenting a minority report, and which time and further reflection have only confirmed and strengthened. I am a believer in parks—they seem to me a necessity for any large city. But it is useless to close our eyes to the fact that they will cost something. We cannot have parks any more than we can have pure water or improved sewerage without paying for them. If we were to believe some of those who advocate them, the city has only to locate parks of a few hundred acres (more or less) and spend a few millions (more or less) upon them, and instead of an outlay, lo! it becomes a source of income and a money-making operation. As an instance of this kind of advocacy, I will quote from the very able and exhaustive speech of the chairman of the Committee on Parks, made in the other branch on the 21st May of the present year.

In referring to the writer of the second minority report, he says—

"He also appears to be alarmed at the possible expenditure covering a period of thirty years; but the adoption of the scheme he recommends would destroy a well-considered plan. * * *

"I am satisfied he believes this as much as any of the majority, but fails to see that these parks will cost the city scarcely a dollar, if we take the experience of the creation of parks in other cities as a criterion or a basis. This has been demonstrated fully. I plant myself on the experience of other cities in the creation of parks, and this experience is far safer than his imaginary figures."

And then he gives the following statement of the experience of New York with Central Park, to bear out his assertion that parks will cost the city "scarcely a dollar":

On the 31st December, 1875, the city of New York had expended on Central Park.....	$30,779,636
Received from increase of taxation due to the park, Dec. 31, 1874.....	24,994,731
Net amount of outlay.....	$5,784,905

In 1875 the city received in taxes in excess of actual valuation before park was created.....	$5,182,658
In 1876, same.....	5,042,029—$10,224,687
Deduct net amount of outlay.....	5,784,905

Balance in favor of the city..... $4,439,782

It will be seen that while he credits the park with $5,000,000 for taxes received in 1876, he fails to charge it with any expenditures incurred after Dec. 31, 1875. This would somewhat change the result. In selecting as an illustration Central Park, he has probably taken the one which will come the nearest to confirming his theory that the park will cost "scarcely a dollar." Let us look into this statement a moment. I do not know where he gets these figures, neither do I care, as in quoting them he makes them his own, but presume that the sum of about $30,000,000 as the cost of Central Park is correct. But when he attempts to prove that this amount has been returned to the city and $4,000,000 more by taxes received from increased valuation in consequence of the park, we shall have to scrutinize his figures somewhat closely and see how correct they are. He would have us believe that the city received in 1875 and 1876 more than $10,000,000 in taxes due solely to the park. The rate of taxation in New York was in 1875 $29.40 and in 1876 $28 on a thousand. Figured on this basis, we shall see that he claims an increase of valuation due solely to Central Park, of about $180,000,000. As the assessed value of real estate in New York is supposed to be about sixty per cent. of its real or market value, it follows that the real value on a basis of $180,000,000 of taxable value would be $300,000,000, and all of this immense sum he claims as due solely to the creation of Central Park. In other words, if New York had not created Central Park, the actual value of her real estate would have been $300,000,000 less than it is today; or, putting it in still another way—establishing Central Park has added to New York a sum equivalent to nearly two-thirds of the entire real-estate valuation of Boston. Does any sane man believe this? The absurdity of his statement is manifest when we know that the entire assessed real-estate valuation of New York city, including all its magnificent buildings erected for commercial purposes, is only $895,000,000. The Park Commissioners of Boston in their report are much more moderate. They only claim an increase of taxable property, up to 1868, due to the park, of $45,000,000. The fact is, New York, if it grew at all, was compelled to grow around Central Park. Had there been no park there the increase of valuation would still have been much greater in proportion in the upper wards than in the lower ones, which were already built upon. How much of the increase was due to the park cannot be put into figures. Doubtless it had a very considerable influence upon the growth of New York. The Alderman speaks of my imaginary figures—referring to the statement that the whole cost of parks and parkways by the Park Commissioners' plan would be, when completed, $15,000,000. As the majority of the committee asked for nearly $10,000,000, and did not provide for the spending of a dollar on the outlying parks and parkways, the "imaginary figures" would be pretty sure to become a reality if the scheme were entered upon. At any rate, I am content to let them stand, and allow gentlemen to judge between us as to who has drawn most largely upon his imagination for his facts. Another instance of the reckless use of figures on the other side I find in a prominent journal—an opponent of parks. I quote:

"Is the city of Boston anxious to follow the example of New York? Do its property owners contemplate with pleasure the prospect of thribbling their city indebtedness in the next ten years as New York has done? Do taxpayers * * * desire to follow the example of New York by increasing the rate of taxation to $3 in a hundred?"

And what, Mr. President, do you suppose is to produce this astounding result? Why, the establishment of parks. If this extract means anything, it means that we are to add $85,000 to our debt in the next ten years, and, in addition, increase our annual tax levy from nine millions to twenty millions, and all in consequence of parks. I quote these statements to show how recklessly figures can be used, both for and against parks. I believe in such an expenditure for this purpose as the city can well afford, and put it solely upon the ground of the great benefit they would be to those who need them. If it is true that they are a benefit to the population of a city, then they should be provided, and the means to pay for them provided for by the City Government, the same as pure water, sewerage, etc. While almost all believe these last to be indispensable, there seems to be a difference of opinion as to whether parks are equally so. I believe the three should go hand in hand. While we are bound to provide all the means to secure good health to our people, so far as their dwellings are concerned, by providing pure water and good drainage, we are equally bound to provide for them places where they can fill their lungs with pure air—places to attract them from their close, confined dwellings, and this will have the effect to promote their health and happiness as much as the others, and any expenditure to secure this should be voted as freely. Now I concede that in securing the benefit of parks, reference should be had to our financial condition, and I believe, as stated in my report, that the original order offered by the majority of the committee, being the full plan of the Park Commissioners, is too extensive and costly a scheme for us to enter upon now. In saying this, however, no reflection upon the Park Commissioners is intended. I do not well see how they could have presented a less comprehensive plan; and it is very unusual, to say the least, that men with so much other business upon their hands can be found to give so much time and thought to the public, without any compensation further than the consciousness of being of service to their fellow citizens. It is extremely improbable, however, that their plan as a whole will ever be adopted. Its expense will put it out of the question. But their labors will not be thrown away, and from them will be provided such public grounds as the people of this city will hereafter enjoy. In rejecting their plan as a whole, I still believe that we are in a condition to adopt it in part. It is agreed that we must construct our system of sewers at once. Their cost will be less than $4,000,000. Within the next ten years we pay off about $11,500,000 of the city debt through the Sinking Fund, so that we can spend $4,000,000 for sewers, $5,000,000 for parks, and still have a margin of $2,500,000 left for other purposes, without having at the end of the ten years any larger debt than at present. Our burden for interest would also be much lighter, as we replace bonds bearing on an average between 5½ and 6 per cent. interest, with those bearing interest at 4½ per cent. I should be loth to believe, also that the city would be any less able to carry this debt than at present. We are not to stand still for a term of ten years. Before discussing the question of where we should locate parks, it seems to me we should consider whom primarily we ought to seek to benefit by them. Doubtless all classes would be benefited more or less. But who need them, and who should we have in mind when deciding upon the question of location? Certainly not that comparatively small portion of our population who own carriages of their own, or can afford to hire them, and who have the leisure to use them every day. If parks benefited these alone, I should not favor them. The argument so often used by those who oppose parks—that the suburbs of Boston are a natural park—would be a weighty one applied to this class. They can drive out and enjoy this "natural park"; but not so the large class we should have in our minds. I mean the great bulk of our population—our clerks in our stores, bookkeepers, artisans of various kinds and laborers—and it is our duty to consider them in establishing our parks. It has been said that no petitions have come up to the City Hall from them for this purpose. Neither was there for water; neither is there for sewerage. They have not the time to spend in this way. But it is none the less our duty to look after their interests. That is what we are sent here for. We are to foresee, to initiate and put into operation matters which will be of benefit to our citizens in the future, whether they clamor for them or not. I hope gentlemen will bear in mind, then, the class of people we wish to benefit. This has had a controlling influence on my own mind upon the question of favoring or opposing certain locations which have been presented to us as proper sites for parks. Not the question of the amount of betterments the city is to receive,—not the question of nuisances to be abated, nor any other question, should be placed before the one,—where can you locate so as to benefit, for all time, the class of people I have named. I am unable to favor Back Bay Park, as it is called, simply because it does not seem to me to answer the purpose for which it should be intended, nearly as well as other locations which I shall name. I admit that the city is as likely (perhaps more so) to reap returns from an expenditure there as in any other location, either from increased valuation of property around it or in direct betterments, although I have little faith in much being derived from the latter anywhere. I admit, also, that it would be very desirable to abate the nuisance existing there, but have not yet been able to see why we should establish a park to do so, or, in fact, how the establishment of a park there like the one proposed can do it. We are told officially that $50,000 to $75,000 for a temporary sewer will prevent any further deposit of sewage on the flats; and how filling up 100 acres will abolish the stench arising from 200 to 300 acres passes my powers of comprehension. But admitting all to be true of the benefits to be derived in these ways, when you have spent your money and established your park, what have you got? Something, no doubt, of great advantage to those who own land around it, but does it possess the requisite advantages of location, natural scenery, etc., to attract the class of people for whom we should establish parks? As the gentleman from Ward 18 has well said, it would be a Public Garden on a large scale—everything artificial, nothing natural; hard to reach, and unsatisfactory when reached. It would have no variety of surface like the proposed West Roxbury park, and no extended water and sunset view like the Charles River park. Because not naturally attractive, there would be all the more necessity for spending money upon it to make it artificially attractive. Such a park as this is the most expensive possible. Besides the first expenditure to construct it,—which, by the way, seems to have been mysteriously reduced from the official estimates presented by the Park Commission,—large sums would have to be disbursed each year for flowers and shrubbery to make its level surface presentable, and many years would elapse before it would have the very first requisite of public grounds, viz., shade trees. We are all of us aware that there is a greater pressure upon us to vote money for this location than for any other. Men who have sunk large sums of money in this bottomless pit of the Back Bay see in this their only hope of realizing something from their investments. We all know that should this Back Bay park become an accomplished fact, this class of men would have secured all they desire, and parks in general would have very lukewarm advocacy, so far as they were concerned. So well is this known that an Alderman who has been considered exceedingly “shaky” on the Back Bay park, among other good and doubtless substantial reasons which finally decided him in favor of it, after as much doubt as the celebrated Wouter Van Twiller would have bestowed upon the subject, declared that in voting for Back Bay he hoped to stop all further agitation for parks. I am confident that any one voting for a Back Bay park to-night, hoping thereby to receive any appropriation for any other site hereafter will be disappointed. I fully believe that the securing of the site on the Back Bay will prevent, for the present, all further outlay. This, to be sure, will commend it to some, but not to those of us who believe in the necessity of securing other locations. Now, if I believed the Back Bay park was as desirable an investment as the city of Boston could make in parks I should vote for it, notwithstanding all this. But I have no hesitation, as we cannot have the whole scheme, in selecting the Charles River embankment in preference. As shown by the estimates of the City Engineer accompanying the report of the committee, the first cost of the latter would not be heavily in excess of the former. If it is possible to reduce the cost of filling Back Bay by depositing the city ashes there, the same reduction in cost could be made in Charles River. And, by the way, if the cost of the Back Bay is to be reduced by filling up with city ashes in all the next three years, what becomes of the nuisance argument which has been so potent to secure votes for this scheme? Is this nuisance to remain for three years before being fully abated? I should like to have those who vote for it in order to abate a nuisance, and those who vote for it because the cost is to be reduced by filling with city ashes, settle this matter. There should be a fair understanding, or one party will be badly disappointed. But, as I was saying, if the cost can be reduced in this way in one case, it can in the other. In the cost of maintaining the two, I believe the Charles River will prove to be so much the cheaper as to more than offset the difference in first cost,—the natural attractions of Charles River being so great, there would be no necessity for a large annual outlay to offset the lack of these. But keeping in mind the principle which should guide us of providing that which would be of most service to the masses, can it be doubted what our decision should be, as between the two? Charlestown and the North and West Ends will always have a very large population. The steep grades of the latter will always preclude its being taken for business purposes. The course of trade will naturally extend towards the South End. Now I do not hesitate to say that for every-day use the Charles River park would be superior to any one included in the whole plan of the commissioners. One end of it extends into the heart of the population we wish to reach, and the crowded streets of the South End spoken of by the gentleman from Ward 9 would find it about as easy of access and far more attractive than the Back Bay park can ever be. If it were completed, or even commenced, we should see every pleasant evening at this season of the year, thousands of people, who, having finished their day's work, would find the attractions of a cool breeze from the water, a fine sunset view, and the river alive with boats, too strong to resist, and they would be seen with their families on the promenade enjoying themselves, instead of remaining in their close-confined dwellings, thus obtaining that relaxation so necessary to them in their life of toil. The sum proposed for the Back Bay should be expended in commencing on this embankment between the bridges, and the work can be prosecuted only as fast as the City Council may determine, extending over a space of ten years if thought best, as the main cost would be not for land but for construction. It does not seem to me that too much can be said in favor of this embankment. The Park Commissioners truly say, that any plan which neglects to use the water fronts of a seaboard city would not be worthy of the situation, and yet this is what would be done in selecting the Back Bay site in preference to the Charles River. Hardly inferior in importance and desirability to the Charles River embankment is a place which can be utilized by the same class of our people as a place of general resort on holidays or picnic occasions—a place where a family party could go and enjoy the country and country scenes for a half, day or a day, taking their meals with them. No one pretends that this want is met by the Common; who ever saw family parties there spending the day under the trees? By no stretch of the imagination could they conceive of themselves as being in the country. The commissioners have met this want in the West Roxbury Park, so called. It is as accessible to the bulk of our population by horse cars as is Central Park, and has the advantage over that in steam-railroad communication, as two roads land their passengers within five minutes' walk. The bulk of our people reside as near it, and in looking to the future we find it in the geographical centre of the city. Its adaptability to the purposes intended is conceded by all, and if we are to have a park in the true sense of the word we must have this. It would be made use of at once—possessing natural attractions, as it does, even superior to the famous Central Park. How the latter is used, gentlemen can see by the following extract from the New York Times of two or three weeks since:

“According to the officials in charge, more than 100,000 persons entered the gates yesterday, the majority of them to catch the only revivifying draught of pure air vouchsafed them in the week. The drives were also alive with the vehicles of the rich, to whom the park is but a passageway to more exclusive, and, consequently, better appreciated delights. The others enjoyed themselves heartily. They lounged in swarms along the breezy paths, or lay luxuriously in the shaded bowers. They sailed in the boats over the enticing waters of the picturesque lakes, or enjoyed a splendid ride around the park in the carriages provided for that purpose.”

This shows the craving of our people for the open air. If any doubt that the same use would be made of a park here, they have only to visit the suburbs on a Sunday or holiday, and see the crowds of people tramping along the dusty roads, seeking for a place to spend a few hours under the cool shade of some tree, only to be warned off by the sign “No trespassers allowed here” staring them in the face. This is all the benefit they now derive from those parks in the suburbs spoken of so freely by those who oppose parks. The cost of this site would be very moderate. Taking into account its size—nearly 500 acres (none too large for our wants)—and the cost would be small. The assessors' valuation of 1875 was $1,387,100; that of the present year is much lower. Good judges believe the commissioners could secure it at a materially lower figure than the sum I have named. This, too, would call for a small outlay for many years. It is now available for park purposes. With these two improvements completed, we should then have all the parks we require for many years. In case we double our population and wealth in the next thirty or fifty years, we may require something in other sections of the city, and in that case can afford to have them and pay for them. I should, however, be willing to vote for the $600,000 required for South Bay. An open space there for a parade and play ground is very desirable, and the arguments for abating a nuisance apply here with full as much force as in the case of the Back Bay. It is very desirable that steps should be taken to preserve the shores of Jamaica Pond, so that the pond itself be saved from becoming a nuisance. I hope, however, we shall have an opportunity of considering this matter without reference to the question now before us. In conclusion I can only say that I hope this City Council will take some action which will eventually result in giving us parks—parks which will be of service to our people generally, and not to one class only. It seems to me there are two classes of people opposing them; the first are those who always oppose any scheme of public improvement, no matter what the benefit to the community at large. Everything is measured according as it affects their pockets. They opposed the introduction of pure water, the introduction of gas, and will be found in opposition to everything of the kind "to the end of the chapter." Their opposition was to be expected, and should not have the slightest weight. But the main body of those now found in opposition are of a different class. They believe in them and would favor them in prosperous times. But "hard times" deter them. They favor delay until a return of prosperity. This would be sounds if "hard times" were to continue for a long term of years. But few, however, believe this. Trade will revive and prosperity return again. Already there are indications of it. The payments for parks should extend over a term of thirty years at least. If the majority of those years are to be prosperous ones, then we should not hesitate now to take advantage of the present low value of lands to secure them, for if, as we believe, prosperity is to return to us, real estate will surely feel the rising wave the same as any, thing else. Shrewd operators are even now quietly making their investments in lands, and in many cases taking advantage of present low prices to erect buildings. They have faith in the future, and we should profit by their example. With an unlimited supply of pure water, the debt incurred for which is sure to be gradually reduced and finally wiped out from our income from this source; with a complete system of sewerage, and with an ample provision made for parks, the position of Boston will then be an enviable one; and all these we can have in the next ten years without any increase of our gross debt. We are then in a position, having secured all of these necessities, to reduce our debt, and finally extinguish it, as these are the only matters likely to press upon us for action, which require heavy expenditures of money.

Let us, then, have faith in the future of Boston, and so act that those who come after us will have reason to commend our sagacity and foresight in providing the wants of the future, which we certainly can do without laying ourselves liable to the charge of want of prudence. There is such a thing as excess of prudence. I had prepared one or two amendments to offer, but it is very evident what their fate would be, and I withhold them. I feel that the Council, in passing this bill, make a very grave mistake, but do not care to delay it by any factious opposition.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10 moved to reconsider the vote whereby the Council refused to amend the order by adding—

"The lands or flats so purchased to be located, with special reference to the improvement of the sewerage of the city."

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I am too tired and sleepy to make any lengthy speech tonight, but I do wish to make one or two remarks tonight in regard to the spirit of the remarks of the gentleman last up. There is one clause in the minority report which he submitted that I do wish to compliment him upon, and that is, the lines in which he says "he makes these recommendations with great diffidence." I should think he would. It will be remembered that on account of a few cents difference between the salary of a Charlestown man and a city man he hinted that it was due to my action, and I have waited patiently to see if I should ever be able to attribute anything of the kind to him. In reading his report it occurred to me that the meaning of it was, if we can have parks, on a thirty-year loan, let us have three—two in my ward; if we cannot borrow on more than two years, let us have only one park—and that in my ward, too.

Mr. Coe—I am surprised at the spirit shown by the gentleman tonight in the remarks just made. If he had read that report carefully, and if he had listened to the remarks I made tonight, he would see that I favor a larger expenditure on Charles River than in my own Ward 23.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I wish to say for my colleague on the Park Committee [Mr. Coe] that I think no gentleman in this Council is so little affected by sectional feelings as the gentleman from Ward 23. In regard to the amendment of the gentleman from Ward 10, as chairman of the Committee on Parks I hope the vote by which it was rejected will be reconsidered and the amendment be adopted.

The motion to reconsider prevailed and Mr. Richardson's amendment was adopted.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21 moved to reconsider the vote whereby was rejected the amendment offered at the last meeting by Mr. Thompson.

Mr. Thompson—I think the Council will bear me out in saying that I was earnest enough in urging the passage of this amendment when I offered it, and I occupied as much time as I could in urging its adoption. But at this time I think it is only going to be a clog upon the order, and I think I am justified in saying at this time that I hope the reconsideration will not prevail.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—Although it is late, I hope I may be allowed a few words in support of my motion to reconsider. I am surprised that the gentleman from Ward 9 has so soon subsided in his enthusiasm for a park scheme that would include a park. When this amendment was before the house a week ago, the question was taken upon it altogether, although it was obviously open to division and should have been divided. It includes three parks in addition to the one included in the main order. My object in moving the reconsideration of this vote is that if the reconsideration prevails the question may be divided, and one of the parks, or that part of the amendment which looks to the taking of land for the West Roxbury park, may be passed. The argument of the gentleman from Ward 23 [Mr. Coe]—or what I could hear of it—has seemed very sound and conclusive; and the remarks of the gentleman from Ward 9 were very eloquent and persuasive and were backed up by argument. I think there were a number of gentlemen here who voted the other evening against the order before us because it included the Back Bay parcel of land alone, and who would feel that they could, in the discharge of their duties, vote for that order with the addition of an appropriation for the West Roxbury park. I think there are others who voted against it a week ago, because they were unwilling, as my friend just said, to clog the original order with an amendment. Now, sir, I will not take the time of the Council at this late hour of the night; but, sir, it seems to me that that is a very foolish reason for voting against an amendment when there are so many reasons in its favor. If we can reconsider that vote, divide the amendment, vote down the other two propositions and pass the amendment, adding the West Roxbury park, I should cheerfully vote for the bill as it will then stand; and I think others will do so who voted against it last week. I do not see that the friends of the measure will lose anything by allowing that to be done. I do not see that anything will be lost by allowing the Board of Aldermen to reconsider their decision, if they chose to, and if it comes back to us we can pass the original order if we see fit. With all the canvassing during the past week, I think there may be some change of mind, and we cannot be losing time if we give this amendment fair consideration tonight. It looks to me as if some gentlemen here, who have some regard fo the proprieties of legislation, should move an amendment to strike out the word "park" in the order as it stands before us. Nobody is voting for it because it is a park. It is put forward not as a park, but as the abatement of a nuisance, and as something that might be done entirely without regard to the park question. Now, while I admit that it has claims upon our votes; while I should vote for it cheerfully in connection with something else that would make it a park, so that I could say I had voted for a park when I voted for the order— But I find I am going on too long, Mr. President. I simply ask that the questions may receive serious attention at least.

Mr. Pratt's motion to reconsider was lost by a division—20 for, 29 against.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I suppose, sir—at least, I infer—that the noses of the various members of the Common Council have been sufficiently counted to know that this measure will pass through tonight; so that anything said in opposition to it may be idle wind. Nevertheless, I think it necessary to enter one more protest before this measure is put through. There is one statement which is very current indeed—that this measure is put through, or the park is to be created, for the benefit of the people. Now, we have had one striking illustration of what may be said to be a popular demand tonight,—that is, the East Boston ferries. When that subject was under discussion the galleries were full. But now behold the populace who are up there longing to get to the park! Then we have the medical idea on the same subject. The medical idea was introduced a week ago in a letter signed by quite a number of doctors, so skilfully worded as not to refer to park or square, but which referred to the abatement of a nuisance out there, which might be done fully as well by building houses as laying out a park. In my mind, if the Council passes this measure tonight, the city of Boston will have cause to regret it for the next hundred years. It will be nothing but an immense elephant upon the city and a perpetual source of expense. The park there will be very much like what is called Tompkins square, on the east side of New York, which is never kept in anything like good shape, and is used for nothing but parades of soldiers. One reason for it, they say, is because the residences are not of a good character, and that deteriorates the park itself. According to that idea, it will not only be necessary to build a park, but the City Government must build thirty-thousand-dollar houses around it in order to sustain the park. In fact, we have one instance in our own city, that a park will deteriorate unless nice houses are built around it. I have only to mention the name—it is Orchard park. It is just as much a park as this park on the Back Bay will be unless the city goes to an immense expense to make it of use to the people. More than that, if this park is a success it will prevent laying out the Charles River embankment, which is one of the most beautiful schemes that the commissioners have suggested. They will be too near together. Instantly the cry would be raised, Why are you doing so much for the West End? The people will get satiated with West End parks if they have this one. For that reason I hope this measure will not pass. Never, in my experience in the City Government, has a measure been subjected to such log-rolling as this has been; never have open charges of raising money to put a thing through been made to the extent of this. Within a few days several people have come to me and told me about a purse that the Board of Brokers have raised in order to get this measure through, and even named the person having the purse for that purpose. The thing is honey-combed with all sorts of measures, and I hope we shall not vote for it.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24—This measure is of such importance that, at the risk of repeating what has been said and with the probable certainty of being tiresome, I feel called upon to express my views, and will do so very briefly. At the last meeting of the Council I voted for the amendment of the gentleman from Ward 9 looking to the establishment of several parks and against the order for the "Back Bay" park only. Though there is an apparent contradiction in these votes, they are, I think, entirely consistent, as I hope will be shown in the course of what I have to say on the subject now before us. In the first place, I am a park man. I believe in parks fully, and I agree entirely with what the gentleman from Ward 9 said the other evening, so far as it relates to the general subject. I differ with him, however, on the expediency of beginning on them at once. The times are hard now, though we have rosy pictures drawn of what this city is to be in the near future. I believe it would be better to wait a little longer for our parks, even at the risk of paying something more for them. If we wait two, three or five years (I hope not more), until mechanics and laborers can have steady employment at fair wages and merchants receive a fair return on their investments instead of making heavy losses, the taxpayers will then pay a dollar and a half more easily and more cheerfully than they can now pay a dollar. But if we are to begin a park at this time (and the "Back Bay" must be one of them), I trust that we shall do so in such a manner that we shall get some immediate return for our investment. To my mind there is a wide distinction between a park and a public square or public garden, and in my judgment this "Back Bay Park" (so-called) can, in the nature of things be nothing more than a public garden, for to a park, in the truest sense of the term, an undulating surface, large forest trees and retired, shady spots are essentials, and those we cannot get on the Back Bay. I believe that if this measure is passed it will delay for years the laying out of any park or parks worthy of the name, and therefore it seems to me that any true friend of parks should earnestly oppose this order. While the process of grading, sub-soiling and loaming this "sink hole" (as it has been called) is going on, many people will say, "We've got one park on our hands now—wait until that is of some use to us, and we know what it's going to cost, before asking for any more," and the peculiar pressure attending this measure (a pressure which we have all felt) having accomplished its object, the subject will be allowed to rest until some other private interest becomes strong enough to fill our lobbies with earnest workers for some particular park in some particular locality.

Yet though this Back Bay park has so many friends, we hear very little concerning any special adaptation or qualification which it possesses as a park.

The principal argument advanced in its favor is, in brief, that there is a nuisance in that locality, and it must be abated, and the public generally have been led to believe that the only way to abate it is to convert it into a park. I firmly believe that a large proportion of the petitioners who have asked for it have signed under the impression that it was necessary in order to get rid of the stench which at times arise from that locality. If they had felt assured that that trouble could and would be cured in any other way at far less cost, they never would have signed the petitions. It will be noticed that the eminent physicians whose communication was published a few days ago say nothing of the necessity of a park, but say there is a nuisance which should be abated. Now, gentlemen, I believe in calling things by their right names; and if we are discussing a plan for the abatement of a nuisance, let's call it so, and discuss it on its merits, as such, and not call it an "order for the establishment of public parks." Then if it can be shown that this is the best and most economical way of getting rid of that nuisance, I am ready to vote for it, but I have no idea that its advocates are willing to argue it on that ground. It seems hardly necessary to remind any member of this Council that the construction of this park is not going to dispose of the sewage now discharged at that point. That must be taken care of whether or no, and the filling in of that park or the building of that water basin is not going to furnish a better outlet for the sewers, but quite the reverse. Such an outlet must be provided whether we lay out the park or not. There is a plan now before the City Council which, if adopted, will, as I believe, dispose of that difficulty effectually. If it is necessary that some temporary measure should be adopted to provide for it until the whole system can be completed. I am ready to vote for it. As for the offensive matter already deposited there, it can be covered where necessary with one or two feet of ashes or clean gravel at vastly less expense than will be necessary to fill up for this park. A communication on this subject from the Board of Health has been read, and I am glad to get its opinion, as it is the highest official authority we have. Now, what do they say? Simply that in their opinion "thirty-five acres of water park, free of sewage, would in a great measure destroy the existing nuisance." Mark you, gentlemen, they say nothing about a necessity for sixty-five acres additional in a park, or any part of it, but simply that thirty-five acres of water park will destroy the nuisance. They do not even say that this is the best or only way to do it. If now you add to this thirty-five acres of water fifteen acres of land, you will get ample room for a driveway and foot path around the water basin, and besides abating the nuisance will get a breathing space in that locality fifty acres in extent at half the cost of the proposed park. Surely if forty acres on the South Bay is breathing space enough for that neighborhood, which the gentleman from Ward 9 tells us is "the present centre of population of the city," and which is close by South Boston, the South Cove and the poorer districts of the South End and Roxbury; if, I say, forty acres is enough there, surely fifty acres is enough for the Back Bay, surrounded, as we are told it will be, by elegant residences, and of course occupied mainly by those who are able to go out of town during the hot season. If then this measure is not necessary for the abatement of the nuisance, there should be other strong arguments in its favor to warrant the outlay which will be incurred. Such it seems to me have not been brought forward. In the general argument for parks their advantages as sanitary agents have been dwelt upon, and a vivid, and I doubt not a truthful picture, has been drawn of the ravages of cholera infantum and other kindred diseases in those thickly settled localities occupied largely by the poorer classes. But I say to you gentlemen who represent those localities, that if this park is laid out, and is surrounded with fine houses similar to those now covering what is known as the "Back Bay," it will of necessity be practically the rich man's park. The poor woman with her sick babe will seldom be seen there. How often is she now seen on the Public Garden? And we are told that this park will be a continuation of the Public Garden and Commonwealth avenue. The fact is, the surroundings will be such that she will feel instinctively that it is not the place for her. But, gentlemen, give her a chance to go where there is plenty of room and where she can find a shady corner where the children can roll on the grass and kick up their heels even if they do show their bare legs, and I warrant you she will find a way of getting there; and for the money, which it is admitted the park will cost, you can get four to five times as much land, every foot of which is immediately available for park purposes without a single dollar expended on it other than the first cost of the land. The only thing to be done is to say to the people, "There it is, go and roam all over it, do what you will; so long as you conduct yourselves decently you will be undisturbed."

The remark is frequently made, "You people in the suburbs don't need parks—they are a park of themselves." That is very true, we don't need them for ourselves, and so far as I am aware it is n't the suburban people who are most urgent for parks. It is n't the out-of-town, but the in-town, physicians, who sign the petitions; it is n't the out-of-town, but the in-town babies, one half of whom die before they are a year old. But we out-of-town people know something of the value and beauty of green grass and old trees, rocks and running water, and if the city is to spend money for parks, those things are what we want it to secure, and not invest in a combination of ash heap, sand bank and mud hole. Now a few words in regard to the cost of the Back Bay Park. Suppose we admit that it can all be done within the estimates submitted to us, say in round numbers $900,000, if we use ashes, or $1,400,000 if we fill with gravel. It is proposed to fill with ashes, and it is claimed that by so doing we can save about $471,000. I am informed by the Superintendent of Health that the amount of ashes available for this purpose would be about 100,000 loads, equivalent to about 12,000 squares per annum, so that it will take twelve years to obtain the necessary amount of ashes, and without allowing any additional time for subsoiling and loaming, we must wait twelve years before our park is graded even; and during that time the interest on the purchase money and the loss of taxes will have more than doubled its cost, and would offset all the saving. We may therefore fairly consider its cost under any circumstances as not less than $1,400,000. Can any sensible man believe that this grading would be delayed twelve years, or the half of it? Is it likely that the parties who have pushed this matter so persistently will be satisfied with such a slow proceeding? Recollect that the park would take only about one-third of the territory embraced within the lines defined by the order, and that the other two-thirds will still be in the market and cannot be sold to the best advantage until the park is graded. Who is likely to build there, or go there to live, while ashes are being carted in there at the rate of three or four hundred loads a day? I venture the prediction that, if this order is passed, in less than twelve months the City Council will be asked to authorize the expenditure of about half a million of dollars to commence the grading and the construction of the water basin. Now, after we have expended this $1,400,000, either immediately or at the end of ten or twelve years, what shall we have to show for it? An unsightly tract of sixty-five acres of gravel and loam and thirty-five acres in a water basin. Not a tree or a shrub, not a flower, not even a blade of grass. All these must be provided at an additional expense before it is a pleasant or even a comfortable place for man or beast. We have had no estimate of what that expense would be, but it could hardly be less than another $100,000. The gentleman from Ward 9, alluding to the streets included in and around this park, says, "Whether you make this park or not, the time will come when these streets must be built," and a little further on, "The chairman of the Street Commissioners told me that a portion of these streets they proposed to lay out soon." I don't know just what is meant by "soon," but it seems to me that this is a very singular statement for the chairman of the Board of Street Commissioners to make. Who has asked for these streets? Does the public safety or convenience require that they should be laid out "soon"? If not, then why are the commissioners so ready and willing to lay out these streets, when there are so many other street improvements which are asked for, and which would be a great convenience to many citizens, but which the honorable Street Commissioners deem unimportant? I think we may fairly dismiss that argument as of no force whatever. There are others of the arguments advanced in favor of this measure which it would be interesting to examine carefully; but I have already occupied too much of your time, and I hope that further argument is unnecessary to convince you that this order ought not to pass.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I should like to ask the gentleman from Ward 18 how Boston is going to regret the laying out of this park. Surely the people do not regret the laying out of the Public Garden and the squares of the city. In voting for this park, I do not look at it so much in the light of a park; but I do believe that, on sanitary grounds, we ought to take this land and lay out and dedicate it as a park, as the gentleman from Ward 21 says, as a sanitary necessity. I cannot believe that any gentleman who is at all conversant with that locality does not believe that something ought to be done to fill that land. Not only is the sewage flowing out there, and has been for some time, but there are deposits which should be covered and taken care of. Gentlemen say the filling up of this small strip of 100 acres is not going to abate the nuisance. I differ with them. I believe that if the city of Boston takes 100 acres of land in that vicinity and fills it up and lays it out into a park, gentlemen owning land in that vicinity will carry on other improvements, and in two or three years you will see the whole territory filled and covered. I believe the only way to accomplish that is for the city to start in this business, and make those men who own land there feel sure that the nuisance will be abated. I don't think the question ought to rest on sanitary grounds in regard to the park alone. If that land is filled and covered with buildings, the question of sewerage will be a vital one. If the whole territory is covered with buildings which drain into one common sewer, it will be a question in regard to the sewerage of the whole South End. I don't care how good a sewer you have there, I think there will be a question in regard to good sewerage there for all time to come. Another reason why I vote for the park there is because of the taxable property it will bring into the market. The gentleman from Ward 18 has seen fit to refer to Orchard park. I don't believe he could find another park like the one referred to. What is the value of land on Arlington street compared with twenty years ago? A gentleman told me he could buy land on Arlington street for twenty cents a foot; since then it has been taxed for $2. Take Union park and Chester square; the value of land is a third more simply because of the parks there. And we might go to Greenwich park, where the gentleman [Mr. Howes] lives; and he knows it is a better place than some of the side streets, and he has chosen it as his home for that reason. He has brought this up simply to divert our attention. I believe that if we carry out this measure we shall see buildings put up there which will bring taxable property to a higher standard than can be done in any other way, and that the improvement will pay for itself. But I don't believe it will be as good a park as we want. I believe, with the gentleman from Ward 21, that we need a park for the people. I don't believe this will be a park for the people. The gentleman from Ward 18 has been on the Committee on Common long enough to know that the people enjoy parks; but the committee will keep up those, to me, unsightly boards, "keep off the grass." The people need parks for sanitary purposes, and we need a park for them. I don't know a place in the city proper where a man can go and take his wife and children and sit down and take out refreshments and feel at home; and there is no place around Boston where he can do so. I can take my horse and carriage and get a good deal of pleasure; but my neighbor who has n't a horse and carriage cannot do so; and you will find poor people, who have no such place for recreation, loafing around the street corners or somewhere else. I believe this argument ought to come to the members of the City Council—that we do need a park. I would gladly vote for an amendment to put on the West Roxbury park, but I believe we had better commence with the park on the Back Bay, although it may not be just the park we need; and if we see fit hereafter we can carry out the scheme of the commissioners.

On motion of Mr. Flynn of Ward 13, the main question was ordered.

Mr. O'Connor presented petitions from Rev. P. F. Lyndon and 723 others, and H. Butler and 532 others, in favor of a park.

The order as amended was passed—yeas 57, nays 10:

Yeas—Messrs. Barry, Beeching, Blanchard, Blodgett, Brintnall, Brown, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Cox, Crocker, Cross, Danforth, Day, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fagan, Felt, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Ham, Hibbard, Hiscock, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, Loughlin, McClusky, McDonald, Mowry, Mullane, Nugent, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Pearl, Perham, Pratt, Reed, J. B. Richardson, Roach, Ruffin, Sampson, Shepard, Souther, Spenceley, Thompson, Thorndike, Upham, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—57.

Nays—Messrs. Barnard, Coe, Howes, Kelley (Ward 3), McGaragle, Morrill, J. H. Pierce, Pope, Sibley, Stone—10.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. O. H. Pierce, M. W. Richardson, Roberts, Smardon—4.

Subsequently a motion to reconsider, by Mr. Flynn of Ward 13, was lost. Sent up.

IMPROVED SEWERAGE.

On motion of Mr. Sampson of Ward 17, the rule was suspended, and he submitted the following:

The Committee on Finance, to whom was referred the report of the Committee on Improved Sewerage, with the accompanying orders authorizing the Treasurer, under the direction of the Committee on Finance, to borrow $3,712,700, having considered the matter, would respectfully report that as said loan can be lawfully made, and believing the fact has been well established that it will promote the general health of the city, and an improved system of sewerage is an actual want, and that an outlay of money needed for the accomplishment of that purpose will be spread over several years, so that a portion only of the loan authorized will require to be negotiated in any one financial year, they would recommend the passage of the aforesaid orders, with an amendment to the first order making the total sum authorized to be borrowed $3,713,000 instead of $3,710,700, as the debt certificates issued by the city are each of $1000 or the multiple thereof.

The report was accepted.

On motion of Mr. Sampson, the order was amended as recommended by the committee, and the question came on giving the order a second reading.

Mr. Blodgett of Ward 8 moved the further consideration of the subject be postponed until the next meeting.

Mr. Sampson hoped no postponement would be made; the Council have all the information they will get and many members expect to be absent.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 hoped it would not be postponed, as the Council was as full as it will be at any future meeting.

Mr. Blodgett said the report had just been submitted, and it is n't likely the members have read it. There is no pressing need of haste.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10 said it was an important matter, but it was not in his line of investigation, and he proposed to leave it to the opinion of the experts indorsed by a competent committee.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19 was willing to take the report and leave it to the committee. The city had been without improved sewerage long enough.

Mr. Crocker was not prepared to act, as he had not examined the plans or read the report. It is too important to push through without discussion and examination.

Mr. Sampson said the gentlemen had had since last year, and the committees of last year and this year had indorsed the commissioners' plan.

Mr. Clarke proposed to vote for some system of improved sewerage, and after reading the report he might be prepared to vote for this measure.

Mr. Pratt said they had looked over the route, the subject had been talked of for years, and he was willing to accept the recommendations of the committee.

Mr. Day had seen it for the first time, and thought it ought not to be put through on such short notice.

Mr. Blodgett desired to read the report and see what the committee say.

Mr. Wilbur said they knew as much as they would if they discussed it three months.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3 thought they should take more time, for the appearance of the thing, if nothing else.

The subject was postponed until the next meeting.

DONATION TO THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

The President read a communication from the Mayor transmitting the following, upon which he requested proper action would be taken:

BOSTON, July 11, 1877.

To the Board of Trustees of the Public Library, W. W. Greenough President: Gentlemen—The will of Charlotte Harris, late of Boston, proved June 25, 1877, of which we are the executors, contains the following bequest by the second clause of said will:

"I give to the Charlestown Public Library $10,000, to be invested on interest, which interest is to be applied to the purchase of books published before 1850. I also give to said public library my own private library, and the portrait of my grandfather, Richard Devens Esq."

We are desirous of settling the estate forthwith, and should be glad to have the necessary steps for the acceptance of the above by the city taken at once. The vote of the Council should be so drawn as to secure the gifts for the particular benefit of the Charlestown branch of the city library, according to the evident intention of the testatrix, and upon the terms specified.

Respectfully, your obedient servants,

WILLIAM MINOT,
WILLIAM MINOT, Jr.,
Executors.

Referred to Joint Committee on Public Library. Sent up.

EXCURSION.

The order for a committee to arrange for an excursion of the members of the Council was considered under unfinished business, and was passed—29 for, 11 against. The President appointed Messrs. Wilbur of Ward 20, Hiscock of Ward 21, McGaragle of Ward 8, Kidney of Ward 6, and Vose of Ward 24.

PETITION.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9 presented the petition of the Liberty Square Warehouse Company in relation to an exchange of land. Referred to Joint Committee on Streets. Sent up.

TAX TITLES.

Mr. Sampson submitted the following: The Committee on Claims respectfully represent that they have upon their files a number of petitions for reimbursement in cases of defective tax titles, and that the provisions of the ordinance under which the committee act do not provide for the adjustment of claims of such a character. The committee therefore submit herewith an ordinance prepared by the City Solicitor, which is designed to meet such cases, and they would respectfully recommend the passage of the same:

An Ordinance concerning Tax Titles.

Be it ordained, etc.:

Section 1. Any purchaser of real estate at a sale made by the City Collector for the non-payment of taxes or other assessments thereon, who claims that he is entitled to have the consideration paid by him for the Collector's deed with the interest thereon refunded to him, by reason of error, omission, or informality in the proceedings of assessment or sales, may apply by petition to the Committee on Claims to have such consideration and interest paid to him; and if said committee shall determine that the petitioner is legally entitled to such payment, they shall certify the fact to the Treasurer, who shall make payment accordingly upon the surrender and discharge by the petitioner of his said deed.

Sect. 2. Whenever the city shall hold a title to any real estate sold by the Collector for the non-payment of taxes or other assessments thereon, and any person having an interest in such real estate shall allege that there was error, omission or informality in the proceedings of assessment, or sale, so that he is legally entitled to have the title of the city to such real estate relinquished to him, he may apply therefor by petition to the Committee on Claims, and said committee may determine that such title shall be relinquished upon such terms and conditions as they shall adjudge to be just and conformable to law; and upon the certificate of said committee to the Mayor that such title ought to be relinquished he shall execute a proper deed of release to the petitioner in behalf of the city.

The ordinance was passed to a second reading, and Mr. Sampson moved a suspension of the rule that it might be passed.

Mr. McGaragle asked if it had been referred to the Ordinance Committee, and Mr. Sampson said the individual members had read and approved it.

Mr. McGaragle said they might as well submit it to him and get his indorsement. When the committee reports they know it is right.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10 said he was a member of both committees; it meets their approval and it was drawn by the City Solicitor.

The rule was suspended and the ordinance was read a second time and passed. Sent up.

CLAIMS.

Mr. Sampson submitted a report of leave to withdraw from the Committee on Claims on petition of Timothy Brosnahan, for compensation for personal injuries by alleged defect in Court street. Accepted. Sent up.

ALLSTON SCHOOL SITE.

Mr. Pearl of Ward 1 submitted a report from the Joint Committee on Public Instruction that they have selected a site for the Allston School, Brighton, which meets with the approval of the School Committee, and recommend the passage of an order—That the Committee on Public Instruction be authorized to purchase as a site for a grammar schoolhouse in Brighton the lot of land owned by Cyrus Dupee, situated on Cambridge street, near Harvard avenue, and containing 22,000 square feet, more or less; the expense, not exceeding the sum of $6000, to be charged to the special appropriation for a Grammar Schoolhouse, Brighton District.

Ordered to a second reading.

PLAYGROUNDS.

Mr. Perham of Ward 23 offered an order—That the Park Commissioners be requested to select a portion of the Back Bay Park which shall forever be set apart as a public playground, under such rules and regulations as the City Council may from time to time prescribe.

Mr. Perham—I had the honor, some months since, to offer an order requesting the Committee on Common and Public Grounds to inquire into the expediency of furnishing playgrounds. They investigated the matter and were unanimous in asking an appropriation for that purpose, which was granted. I believe that no park should hereafter be established without some provision of this kind. I trust the order will pass to establish a precedent which I hope will follow hereafter when parks are laid out.

On motion of Mr. Flynn of Ward 13, the order was referred to the Joint Special Committee on Parks. Sent up.

REFRESHMENTS AND CARRIAGE HIRE.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18 offered an order—That the City Auditor be requested to prepare each month a statement of the amounts expended by each committee of the City Government for refreshment during the month next preceding, together with the names of the members on whose behalf such expenses are incurred; said statement to be open to public inspection.

Mr. Howes—It is about time the City Government took some action in reference to the many reports going round in reference to them. Not only do we have outrageously long and vituperative resolutions adopted by temperance societies, but we are subject at all times, or seem to be, to the criticism of newspapers. If there is anything wrong in the system of refreshing by the City Government, I should be glad to have it exposed. I am willing to have my record constantly before the public, if necessary. A great deal of this arises from the efforts to stop investigation. If a system of this kind is adopted, and is open to public inspection, I think there will be an end to this.

Mr. Spenceley offered the following as a substitute:

Ordered, That the Committee on Ordinances be requested to report an ordinance requiring that all bills for refreshments or carriage hire incurred by members of the City Council shall be approved by the several persons to whom the same are furnished before being paid; and the bills for refreshments shall specify in detail the articles ordered by each member, and that the same shall be published in the weekly proceedings.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3 moved to adjourn. Lost—14 for, 41 against.

Mr. Spenceley—I offer the substitute in order that not only what each committee, but each individual has may be known. No gentleman need be ashamed of anything he orders when at a public dinner on a committee. The ordinance, if anything, would correct abuses, if there be any, in refreshments.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I hope the original order and the substitute will be voted down. I think too many buncombe orders are put in here, and they ought not to be tolerated by the City Council. I move that both be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Spenceley—Why should the gentleman say it is buncombe? He does not know whether it is or not. Any gentleman has a right to offer an order. I don't think it is a gentlemanly thing to say so.

Mr. Flynn—It is buncombe.

Mr. Thompson—I hope the gentleman from Ward 19 will withdraw the substitute and offer it as an amendment, so that the two features may be combined. If there is anything wrong in our present method of refreshing, as it has been styled, the two together will certainly arrive at and prevent the trouble. First, it will place the responsibility upon the individual; and, second, it will make it public. I think both should be done.

Mr. Howes—If the gentleman from Ward 13 supposes he can crush out questioning by postponement he makes a mistake. When a man's credit is bad, the only way to renew his credit is to make the exposure himself; when he tries to hide himself from his creditors he exposes himself. If the City Council are afraid of their record, let them indefinitely postpone this matter. I am willing to have my record known, and am not one to shirk in this matter.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I am not afraid to have my record shown; but I do think these orders are for buncombe and nothing else.

Mr. Spenceley—That does n't make it so.

Mr. Flynn—It is so.

Mr. Crocker—This really needs something to be done about it. I think there have been a great many improper charges for refreshments. I made some investigation myself, and I believe that there are a good many cases of gentlemen refreshing at the expense of the city when there was no occasion for it. I hope some means will be taken by the City Council to put things in such a shape that that won't be done hereafter. I think both the order and the substitute are desirable. I move the Council adjourn.

Lost—12 for, 40 against.

The motion to indefinitely postpone was lost.

Mr. McGaragle moved to amend the substitute by adding, "and be published in the weekly proceedings."

On motion of Mr. Vose of Ward 24 the yeas and nays were ordered on Mr. McGaragle's amendment, and it was adopted—yeas 41, nays 17.

Yeas—Messrs. Barnard, Barry, Brintnall, Cannon, Cox, Crocker, Danforth, Day, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fagan, Fernald, J. J. Flynn, Ham, Hibbard, Hiscock, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Loughlin, McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, Mowry, Mullane, Nugent, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Pearl, J. H. Pierce, Reed, J. B. Richardson, Spenceley, Stone, Thompson, Thorndike, Upham, Vose, E. R. Webster, Wilbur—41.

Nays—Messrs. Blodgett, Brown, Clarke, Coe, Cross, Felt, D. A. Flynn, Fraser, Howes, Kidney, Morrill, Perham, Pratt, Roach, Shepard, Warren, G. B. Webster—17.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Beeching, Blanchard, Burke, O. H. Pierce, Pope, M. W. Richardson, Roberts, Ruffin, Sampson, Sibley, Smardon, Souther, Wolcott—13.

Mr. Howes—I trust the substitute will not be adopted. It involves an immense detail for very small items. The bills are now in the Auditor's office, with the amount charged to each member. All that is required is a copy of them by one of the clerks, and the publicity will have all the negative and curtailing effects, without going into details.

Mr. Thompson—One thing would not satisfy me—having a bill for eating a dinner approved on which my name appears when I had not partaken of the dinner. Judging of the future by the past, it is likely to happen often. The substitute places the responsibility upon each individual. The Aldermen are called upon to approve bills, and don't know whether they are right or not. The system is wrong and extravagant, tempts to the commission of fraud, and should be abolished. It would be a good thing to have the bills where the citizens can get at them, and I think the bills would grow small and beautifully less.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3 offered as a substitute—that the City Messenger be requested to procure bell-punches for each of the members of the Council's use on occasions of partaking refreshments. The President overruled the motion.

Mr. Wilbur moved to adjourn. Lost—15 for, 35 against.

Mr. Day of Ward 4—There are some features of the substitute which are objectionable. It proposes to go into small details. For instance, when we are on a committee one may have wine and another not, but the whole bill will be rendered in a lump, and a member may get credit for drinking wine when he did not.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—If a member wants to drink wine let him do so and get credit for it.

Mr. Howes—Would it be necessary for each member to drink from a separate bottle?

Mr. Brown of Ward 23 proposed an amendment that each member pay his own bills.

Mr. Spenceley's substitute as amended was adopted—yeas 30, nays 28.

Yeas—Messrs. Barnard, Beeching, Blodgett, Brintnall, Cannon, Crocker, Cross, Danforth, Duggan, Felt, Fernald, Hibbard, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, Mowry, O'Donnell, J. H. Pierce, Pope, J. B. Richardson, Roach, Souther, Spenceley, Stone, Thompson, Thorndike, Upham, Vose—30.

Nays—Messrs. Barry, Brown, Burke, Clarke, Coe, Cox, Day, Dee, Doherty, Fagan, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Hiscock, Howes, Jackson, Kidney, Loughlin, Morrill, Nugent, Pearl, Perham, Pratt, Shepard, Warren, E. R. Webster, G. B. Webster, Wilbur—28.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Blanchard, Ham, Mullane, O'Connor, O. H. Pierce, Reed, M. W. Richardson, Roberts, Ruffin, Sampson, Sibley, Smardon, Wolcott—13.

Mr. Pratt offered an amendment that hereafter no wines be furnished for refreshment at any entertainment at the expense of the city.

Mr. Hibbard moved to include "or other intoxicating liquors" in Mr. Pratt's amendment, and Mr. Pope of Ward 15 suggested "and cigars," which Mr. Hibbard accepted.

Mr. Pratt—I hope my amendment will not be overloaded with amendments and voted down. There is a reasonable limit to all things. We will make a good beginning in the right direction if we adopt the amendment I propose, for the reason that by the diligence of some of our prohibitory friends we have acquired quite a reputation for being a wine-bibbing Council. While nine out of ten of the statements which get into the press are false, it is well known that we do have wines at the city's expense. The fact is sometimes unpleasantly heralded, for instance, when we came up from the Fourth-of-July excursion, by hoisting a champagne bottle at the masthead. I take wine, and sometimes think it is quite necessary. I do not offer this in any spirit of criticism or buncombe, as my friend's [Mr. Flynn] glance opposite suggests, but in earnest, believing we can get sufficient entertainment and refreshment without champagne. We shall not lose anything for the credit of the City Government by avoiding wine at the public expense, and leaving that to the private purse of each member.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—When this matter comes up in serious shape, I am willing to consider it, but with the present spirit of burlesque and levity, at one o'clock in the morning, I don't think it can receive due attention. I move it be especially assigned to the next meeting.

Mr. Thompson could see no objection to the reference, as the committee would consider the whole question.

On motion of Mr. Pearl of Ward 1, the matter was laid on the table.

SALARY OF CITY ENGINEER.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9 offered an order—that the salary of the City Engineer be and hereby is fixed at the rate of $5000 per annum until May 1, 1878, or until otherwise ordered.

Referred to Committee on Salaries. Sent up.

RECONSIDERATION OF FREE FERRIES.

Mr. Pearl of Ward 1 moved to reconsider the vote making the ferries free after Jan. 1.

Mr. Thompson moved to lay it on the table, and called for the yeas and nays, which were ordered, and the motion was lost—yeas 18, nays 44:

Yeas—Messrs. Barnard, Brown, Coe, Crocker, Danforth, Day, Fagan, Felt, D. A. Flynn, Howes, J. H. Pierce, Pratt, J. B. Richardson, Stone, Thompson, Upham, G. B. Webster, Wilbur—18.

Nays—Messrs. Barry, Beeching, Blodgett, Brintnall, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Cox, Cross, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fernald, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Ham, Hibbard, Hiscock, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, Loughlin, McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, Morrill, Mowry, Mullane, Nugent, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Pearl, Perham, Pope, Reed, Roach, Shepard, Souther, Spenceley, Thorndike, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster—44.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Blanchard, O. H. Pierce, M. W. Richardson, Roberts, Ruffin, Sampson, Sibley, Smardon, Wolcott—9.

Mr. Beeching moved the previous question.

Mr. Crocker hoped the main question would not be ordered, as it was a fine time for discussion.

The motion to reconsider was lost.

ADVERTISING.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22 offered an order—that the Joint Committee on Printing consider and report to the City Council upon the expediency of placing the city advertising in charge of the Superintendent of Printing, to be provided by him upon requisitions from the various departments and charged to them in the manner now adopted in the supply of stationery. Read twice and passed. Sent up.

CARRIAGE HIRE.

Mr. Morrill of Ward 20 offered an order—that no carriages be provided at the expense of the city after the adjournment of this meeting.

On motion of Mr. Ham of Ward 14, the yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. Spenceley moved to adjourn to the second Thursday in September. Lost.

On motion of Mr. Spenceley, the Council adjourned.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen,
JULY 23, 1877.

Regular meeting at four o'clock P. M., his Honor the Mayor presiding.

EXECUTIVE NOMINATIONS.

Police Officers Without Pay—William James, Albert Watts, Daniel Haley, Seth N. Wiley, Charles G. Burnett.

Railroad Police Officers on Petition of Fitchburg Railroad Company—Henry Leavitt and sixteen others.

Severally confirmed.

PETITIONS REFERRED.

To the Committee on Paving. Petition for leave to move a wooden building, by David Richards, over Chelsea Bridge to Oriental wharf.

Petition for brick sidewalk in front of estate of Elizabeth Kreis, on Boylston street, near Lamartine street; James W. Tobey, 129-131 Newbury street.

Ira Masterman, for assessment of grade damages on Granite street; A. Hoitt et al., that Friend street, between Merrimac and Causeway streets, be paved with small granite blocks; George Willis et al., for sidewalks in Bower street, Roxbury.

East Boston Savings Bank, for sidewalks at 270 Havre street.

To the Joint Committee on Public Lands. Mrs. Wilhamina Brown, for leave to make alterations in certain houses on Dix place.

To the Committee on Sewers. Augustus Parker, for the extension of a sewer in Maple and Seaver streets, Ward 21; A. W. French, for the repair of the Taylor-street sewer; Joseph Stedman et al., for a sewer in John A. Andrew street.

To the Joint Committee on Claims. M. D. Edwards, to be paid for personal injuries sustained by her in Tremont street, from an alleged defect therein.

To the Committee on Health on the part of the Board. Petitions for leave to occupy stables as follows: Anthony Holbrook, old wooden, one additional horse, Ninth street; Lmbra A. Renfew, new wooden, 1 horse, 155 Seventh street; Samuel Hatch, old wooden, 12 horses, East street, near Federal; Boylston Bank, old wooden, 6 horses, corner Swett and Ellery streets; Highland Street Railway Company, brick, 75 additional horses, Blue Hill avenue; G. W. F. Smith, old wooden, 4 horses, Gerard street.

To the Committee on Licenses. Union Railway Company, for leave to occupy North Russell street, near Cambridge street, with two tow horses for their cars.

To the Committee on Market. A. W. Butler, for leave to transfer lease of stalls 87-89, Faneuil Hall Market, to Albert A. Keene.

HEARINGS ON ORDERS OF NOTICE.

Sewers. Hearing on expediency of building a sewer in Adams street, between Acadia and Robinson streets. No objections, and recommitted to Committee on Sewers.

B., W. & P. S. R. R. Hearing on petition of A. P. Blake and Edward Turner, trustees, for assessment of damages on account of location of Boston, Winthrop & Point Shirley Railroad.

Alderman Clark offered an order estimating the damages at $5, and requiring said company to give a bond of $5000 for the payment of such damages as shall in due process of law be awarded them. Passed.

PAPERS FROM THE COMMON COUNCIL.

Petitions were referred in concurrence.

A communication from the Mayor, enclosing a bequest from Charlotte Harris, of $10,000, for the benefit of the Charlestown branch of the Public Library. Referred to Committee on Public Library, in concurrence.

Report and an ordinance concerning tax titles, vesting in Committee on Claims authority to settle and adjust claims under invalid or defective tax titles.

Order to consider the expediency of distributing the city advertising through the office of Superintendent of Printing. Passed in concurrence.

Order to locate a playground within limits of proposed park. Referred to Committee on Public Parks in concurrence.

Report of leave to withdraw on petition of Timothy Breosnahan for compensation for personal injuries received in Court street. Accepted in concurrence.

SALARY OF CITY ENGINEER.

An order to fix the salary of the City Engineer at rate of $5000 came up referred to Joint Committee on Salaries.

Alderman Fitzgerald—It seems to me that the easier way to dispose of all these matters would be for both branches of this City Government to pass an order repealing all the orders reported by the Retrenchment Committee and passed by the City Council. That would be a more decent way; it would be far better to do it openly and all at once, than to repeal every section of the report of the Retrenchment Committee piece by piece. There has been scarcely a meeting of this Board for the last two months at which we have not had some order increasing the salary of this or that official. I know this is n't one-half of the orders to be introduced by and by. We set a bad example by changing any of them, and by the time we get through this year, if we keep on, there will not be anything left of the report of the Retrenchment Committee. The same reason which held for passing that order holds today. The other day we passed an order increasing the salary of the Superintendent of Public Library to $4500, and we were told that if we did n't do it he would resign. We increased the salary, and he has resigned. I don't know in what shape this order is now, but, to test the sense of the Board of Aldermen, I move that it be indefinitely postponed.

Alderman Clark—I move to amend the motion, so that it be referred to the Retrenchment Committee instead of the Committee on Salaries. Possibly the committee may have changed their views in regard to the value of the services of the City Engineer. I have understood that they would probably make further reports.

Alderman Fitzgerald—It amounts to saying simply that we did not know what we were doing when we made the report. That is the sense and substance of it. I hope that when we pass orders fixing the salaries of city officials for a year, knowing what we do, we shall stick to that. The same reasons which determined this board and the other branch in fixing salaries are as good today as they were three months ago. I hope we shall do something that we can stand by for at least twelve months.

Alderman O'Brien—In the Retrenchment Committee I voted for the reduction of Mr. Davis's salary with great reluctance. I believe there is no man in City Hall who earns the money he is paid by the city of Boston better than he does, or who deserves it more. But at the same time the Committee on Retrenchment were making a reduction in salaries. They could not select one man and say we will not reduce this, and another and say we wont reduce that. Every one of these gentlemen, especially the men who hold the high and prominent places in City Hall, have a great many friends, and there has been a great deal of pressure to keep their salaries precisely where they were. If the Committee on Retrenchment had yielded to anything of that kind, we would have made no reduction. If they have done anything that is wrong, the gentlemen filling these positions will have to wait only one year, and it will be righted next year, when the Committee on Salaries can fix Mr. Davis's salary at what they consider a fair equivalent for his services; but I believe it is wrong to attempt to alter it now. I believe Mr. Davis will be perfectly satisfied to leave it just as it is until the new City Government regulates the matter.

Alderman Thompson called for the yeas and nays and the order was indefinitely postponed in non-concurrence—yeas 9, nays 3:

Yeas—Aldermen Breck, Fitzgerald, Gibson, O'Brien, Robinson, Slade, Thompson, Viles, Wilder—9.

Nays—Aldermen Burnham, Clark, Dunbar—3.

PUBLIC PARKS.

The order to purchase land on the Back Bay for a park came up amended so as to provide "that the land or flats so to be purchased shall be located with special reference to the improvement of the sewerage of the city."

The question was on concurrence in the amendment.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I would ask whether it is n't necessary, under the statute, that this should be passed by a two-thirds vote? Because the order, as it is now, is a different one from that which we passed. We passed an order that a certain space, measured by metes and bounds, should be bought or taken by the Park Commissioners. It now comes here with an amendment that the park shall be located with special reference to the sewerage of that portion of the city, but without any reference to the metes and bounds. It seems to me that the amendment should be passed by a two-thirds vote, as the original order contemplates. I presume the order will pass; but I want to call the attention of the Board of Aldermen to some points that appear to me very important in connection with the increase of our municipal indebtedness. In section 9 of the act passed by the Legislature two years ago, limiting the amount beyond which cities and towns cannot go in contracting debts for municipal and town purposes, it says—

"No city or town, except as hereinafter provided, shall become indebted to an amount (including existing indebtedness) exceeding, in the aggregate, three per centum on the valuation of the taxable property therein, to be ascertained by the last preceding city or town valuation for the assessment of taxes. In determining the amount of indebtedness under this act, the amount of the sinking funds shall be deducted from the gross indebtedness."

The exceptions are—

"Cities or towns indebted, when this act takes effect, to an amount not less than two per centum on their valuation as aforesaid, may increase such indebtedness to the extent of an additional one per centum on their valuation, but no more; and when such indebtedness of any city or town exceeds five per centum on its valuation as aforesaid, such city or town shall raise annually by taxation a sum sufficient to pay the interest on its whole indebtedness."

Now, the question arises, in connection with this, what length of time have cities and towns, whose indebtedness exceeded two per cent. on their valuation when this act passed, the right to contract this one per cent.? Whether, when they cut down the indebtedness, they can expand and increase under this additional allowance of one per cent.? It is evident that the spirit and intent of the act was that cities and towns in this Commonwealth should not exceed three per cent. of their valuation in contracting municipal debt. It is also evident that the other section was passed for the purpose of not crippling towns whose indebtedness had been more than two and a little less than three per cent.; so that they would have some temporary relief and be enabled to bridge over any difficulties which they might meet with in coming in contact with this act and contracting debt. The intent of the tenth section evidently was that they should not be crippled. The question is a serious one for this board, and will no doubt be hereafter—how long, and what is a reasonable time for any city or town to contract this additional one-per-cent. indebtedness? whether, if two or three years have passed, the time has not also passed when they shall not contract this one per cent.? The intent of the Legislature was to limit the indebtedness of cities and towns. It was a notice to all cities and towns in this direction. You shall not exceed three per cent. on your valuation. Now what is the condition of the city of Boston which we have passed? Our debt on the 30th of April was $45,590,497.30, less the water loan, $12,776,711.11, making the net debt $30,813,786.19. In computing the municipal indebtedness the moneys in the sinking funds must be deducted. Now the amount in our sinking funds was $15,437,043.24. But if you deduct the water loan you must also deduct the money in the Sinking Fund to meet the water debt, which amounts to $1,806,193.78, leaving the amount in the sinking funds $13,630,849.46, which, deducted from $30,813,786.19 leaves $17,182,936.73. The valuation of the city of Boston this year will be about $675,000,000 in round numbers. At three per cent., the amount of indebtedness which the city of Boston can contract this year will be $20,250,000. Deducting the indebtedness allowed under this act, $17,182,936.73, it will leave a margin, under that ninth section, of $3,067,063.27. Since the 30th of April, we have passed the order allowing the Treasurer to contract for the high-school indebtedness of $350,000, leaving a margin of $2,717,063.27, under that ninth section. Now, if we pass—as I have no doubt we will—the loan for the improved sewerage, $3,701,000, we will have exceeded by $1,000,000 the amount fixed by that ninth section beyond which cities and towns in this Commonwealth can contract no indebtedness. If you add to that the park, $450,000, we will have $1,450,000. If the loan for the widening of Commercial street passes, $1,000,000, we will have to contract $2,450,000 in excess of the amount of indebtedness which the Legislature prescribes beyond which we cannot go, under this ninth section. It is a serious question with the City Solicitor whether, under this tenth section, we can go beyond the three per cent. allowed by the ninth section, two years having elapsed. It is a question whether we can do it or not. Whether it be so or not, the evident intent of the Legislature was that no city government hereafter, if it could possibly prevent it, should contract any indebtedness beyond three per cent. If we go on this year as we have promised—I don't mean made promises, but look so promisingly—we will have contracted $2,450,000 over the amount which the ninth section allows for municipal indebtedness. It is a serious matter for the City Council to consider, especially in connection with this park question—whether we ought to make a beginning of what will be several millions before we get through with it; whether, if we make any beginning at all, it ought not to be made in some other locality than that. Because, if the park be built with special reference to sewerage, it is not a park question, and I do not see what the commissioners have to do with it. If it is a sewerage question, I query whether the committees on Health and Sewers have not something to do with it. If it is a question of health, the report of the Committee on Sewers is the one that ought to be adopted, advising that $75,000 be spent for doing away with the nuisance on the Back Bay. Then the other question comes up, whether if we pass this act at all, it is not the beginning of taking 150 or 200 more acres for the same purpose, because the same argument that holds for taking this will hold for taking the remainder of the land located under water on the Back Bay. Further than that, I believe that if you build this park by taking one hundred acres there and improving it, you will increase the value of the other parks which we will want so much, that it will cost an incalculable amount of money to get the land, because of the improvement which the city of Boston will put upon this park. I did not rise to discuss that, but to throw out a few remarks upon this question of municipal indebtedness, and to suggest whether we had that power or not.

Alderman Clark—I have no doubt we shall get eight votes for this order, not the slightest, and I propose to call for the yeas and nays, although I believe that all that is necessary is a majority vote, the question being simply upon concurring with the Common Council in the amendment. I have not the slightest objection to trusting this matter in the hands of this Board of Aldermen. They voted 8 to 4 upon the passage of the order, and I have no doubt they will vote 11 to 1 to concur in the amendment. These bugbears, which have just been raised, have all been considered, and I am only surprised that he has not raised something else. The amount of our municipal indebtedness has been considered, and unless the city is safe in making the loan within the limits prescribed by the statutes, no loan will be made. I am very glad to hear the Alderman advance the argument that the territory will be improved so that the city will get something in the shape of taxes, because upon that point he and I agree exactly. I do believe that the surrounding property will be increased in value to so large an extent that the city cannot afford to purchase adjoining territory for park purposes. I do not propose to make any speech on this matter, because it has been thoroughly discussed. I simply rose to say that I propose to call for the yeas and nays, and I have not the slightest doubt but we shall get a two-thirds vote. The arguments against parks have all been made; the Alderman from Ward 21 went into it so thoroughly that no new points can be raised.

Alderman O'Brien—If any of the Aldermen have any doubts as to the limit of our city indebtedness, it would be well to send for our City Auditor. He is constantly in consultation with our City Solicitor in relation to that matter. He has informed the members of this Board, who have seen fit to inquire into the matter, that there is a margin of six or seven millions of dollars; and I have no doubt, with the debts to be paid off in the next five or six years, we have a margin now of ten million dollars to carry on new improvements, even considering that we shall not increase the valuation in the next ten years.

We have authority in City Hall to fix this matter, and it need not go forth on the say-so of one Alderman that we cannot do so. The Auditor is here in the building. He has consulted our City Solicitor about it, and he can give us the figures precisely, if any Alderman has any doubt in relation to it.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I simply throw out these statements because I believe in them. I have also been in frequent consultation with the City Solicitor myself. Under the ninth section of this act we have a margin of $2,717,000, beyond which we cannot go. If we contract debt for improved sewerage, we shall have exceeded our margin by $1,000,000. If we contract debt for public parks, we shall have exceeded it by $1,450,000. If we pass the Commercial-street widening, we shall have exceeded the limit by $2,450,000. These are my figures and these I propose to stand by. I do not care who says otherwise, they are true and cannot be controverted. It is a mere question of arithmetic, nothing more. Any member of the Board of Alderman can figure it up. The tenth section of this act is a peculiar one. The spirit and intent of the act is shown in the ninth section; but by the tenth section cities and towns are allowed to contract one per cent. additional. The question with the City Solicitor is, how long they have that right. They cannot be decreasing their debt today and increasing it tomorrow, and keeping it up one per cent. That is not the spirit and intent of the law. The intent and spirit of the law is to come down to three per cent. and remain inside of it. The one per cent. is only intended as a temporary relief and the intent of the act is that we shall keep inside of three per cent. I throw it out in all fairness and good faith that it is a matter for very serious consideration for this City Government. I do not do it in connection with parks, because I believe the park scheme will pass, as it comes first in order.

Alderman O'Brien—It will be well to consider that the building of our new intercepting sewer will take at least five years, and if we pass an order, today, appropriating the money, the gentlemen who have charge of effecting the loan will only create the debt as fast as the sewer is built, and no faster, as I understand it. The debt is not created as soon as the order passes in the City Government. The work will extend over a period of something like five years, and we only create the debt as the sewer is built, and so with any other improvements that we undertake. Even this loan for $450,000, now under consideration, will only be effected in one or two years, as fast as the land is purchased. But if I looked upon things as the gentleman looks upon them, I don't know but I should feel about as blue as he does about this business. When I stand up in this hall, I feel that Boston is growing and bound to grow. I don't feel that we are standing still, and I do not think it would be right for us to legislate upon such a basis as that. I believe that all these improvements will go on. I think just as much of this act limiting city indebtedness as the gentleman does. I believe it is one of the wisest acts ever passed by the Legislature, and I don't believe this or any other City Government will go beyond it. If I am in the City Government at any future time when they attempt to go beyond this act I shall vote against it, no matter how much I might approve any improvement under consideration.

Alderman Fitzgerald—It is not a question whether we look blue or white; it is simply a question whether we are keeping inside of what the statute allows; whether we are acting in accordance with the statute. It is not a question of being blue. My friend was the bluest man in the Board of Aldermen when he first rose up to speak. The Board concurred in the amendment—yeas 9, nays 3:

Yeas—Aldermen Breck, Clark, Dunbar, Gibson, O'Brien, Robinson, Slade, Thompson, Wilder—9.

Nays—Aldermen Burnham, Fitzgerald, dViles—3.

A motion to reconsider, by Alderman Clark, was lost.

SALARIES OF DEPUTY SEALERS OF WEIGHTS, ETC.

The order relating to the compensation of the Deputy Sealer of Weights and Measures came up amended so as to provide for their payment by fees to the amount of $1000 per annum each—the surplus to be paid into the city treasury.

Alderman Slade—I move that we do not concur with the Common Council, but adhere to our former vote. I think that is the best course for us to take. I don't know that it is necessary for us to make any more talk about it, as we all understand it; but it seems to me it is wrong to impose such a burden upon people doing business in this city. Two months have already gone, and 600 or 1000 scales have been sealed, but I don't know as we can collect a cent for them.

The Board voted to adhere to their former action, making the salary $825 per annum. Sent down.

OCCUPATION OF STREETS FOR BUILDING PURPOSES.

The report and amended ordinance for the occupancy of streets for building purposes (City Doc. No. 69, amended) came up referred to the Committee on the Survey, etc., of Buildings.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Can anybody explain why this ordinance, reported from the Committee on Ordinances and passed by us, should be referred to another committee? If no one can give a reason for it I move that we non-concur with the Common Council and adhere to our former action.

The Board non-concurred in the reference and adhered to their former vote passing the ordinance as amended. Sent down.

SEWER IN MAUDLIN STREET.

A communication was received from the Street Commissioners transmitting the petition of John Wall et al. for the acceptance of Maudlin street for Foster street, and for a sewer therein, referring so much therein as relates to a sewer to the Board of Aldermen. Referred to Committee on Sewers.

PETITIONS FOR STEAM ENGINES.

Petitions were received from the Globe Nail Manufactory for leave to locate and use a steam engine and boiler on Norfolk avenue, and from George W. Simmons & Son for the same privilege at 41 North street; and orders were passed for hearings thereon Monday, Aug. 13, at four o'clock P. M.

WESTERN AVENUE.

Notice was received from the Street Commissioners of intention to relocate Western avenue, Brighton, and of a hearing thereon at the North Harvard-street Schoolhouse, in Brighton, on Monday, Aug. 20, 1877, at 11 o'clock A. M. Referred to Committee on Streets on the part of the Board.

JAIL EXPENSES.

A requisition was received from the sheriff of Suffolk County for $2218.98, for expenses at the jail during July. Ordered paid.

FIREMEN'S VACATION.

The following was received:

CITY HALL, July 23d, 1877.

To the Honorable City Council—The Board of Fire Commissioners have considered the order of your honorable body relating to vacations for the employes of the Fire Alarm Department and the permanent force of the Fire Department. From the fact that the employes of the Fire Alarm Department have no regular days off (as is the case in the Fire Department), and believing that two weeks' leave of absence may be granted without detriment to the service, the board are of opinion that so much of the order as relates to the Fire Alarm branch ought to pass. In the matter of granting a vacation to the permanent members of the Fire Department without substitutes the board think it inadvisable. To grant the vacation of fourteen days to each member permanently employed, with a substitute, will require an addition to our present appropriation of $9772. Respectfully submitted,

GREELY S. CURTIS,
Chairman pro tem.

The report was accepted, and on motion of Alderman Burnham the order to grant a vacation to the employes in the Fire Alarm Department was passed as originally offered. Sent down.

LICENSES.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted reports from the Committee on Licenses as follows:

Dealers in Second-Hand Articles Licensed—Jacob Kafier and four others.

Wagon Licenses Granted—J. A. Caldwell, 199 Devonshire street.

Passenger Wagon Licensed—William Burnett, to run from Winthrop to the South Ferry, the rate of fare not to exceed five cents each way.

Severally accepted.

Report and order—That leave be granted to Coleman & Wellington to extend the route of their passenger wagons on Broad street as far as Litchfield's wharf. Order read twice and passed.

SEWERS.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Sewers:

Orders of notice for hearings on Monday next at four o'clock P. M., on the expediency of constructing sewers in Taylor street, Ward 17; in Curtis street, between Wyman street and Sheridan avenue; in Forbes place and Bow street, between Curtis street and Centre street. Severally passed.

Resolves and orders to take land for sewers as follows: A strip five feet wide through and along the centre line of Cedar avenue from Chestnut street to Lamartine street, belonging to Rush R. Shippen, Charles E. Jackson, Henry T. Hogan, James Nugent, Robert Scott and Harriet F. Coffin; a strip five feet wide extending along the centre line of Short and Tuckerman streets, from Middle street to Dorchester street, belonging to Cynthia U. Richmond, Augustus C. Richmond, Francis Alger's heirs, Otis Dury, trustee, Hannah McIntyre, Josiah W. Gibbs, C. Jones, Barbara Ashcroft, Cordelia A. Henchey, Zachariah C. McFadden, Jacobs P. Power, Thomas U. Doherty's heirs, E. Emily Clapp. Severally read twice and passed.

Order to build a sewer in Walnut street, south-erly from School street. Read twice and passed.

PUBLIC LANDS.

Alderman O'Brien submitted the following from the Joint Committee on Public Lands:

Ordered, That the tax for the year 1876 assessed upon the lot of land and building thereon standing on East Third street, as shown upon a plan recorded with plans of City Lands Sold, Book 2, page 199, in the office of the Superintendent of Public Lands, be remitted, the said lot of land having been forfeited to the city for breach of the conditions of sale. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

Ordered, That the two lots of land on West Castle street, corner of Albion street, together with the lot on Middlesex street, as shown upon a plan drawn by Thomas W. Davis, City Surveyor, and dated March 23, 1873, which plan is deposited in the office of said City Surveyor, said lots of land having been bargained to John B. Regan April 22 and May 1, 1873, be and the same is hereby declared forfeited to the city of Boston for non-fulfilment of the conditions of sale, and that the Superintendent of Public Lands is hereby directed to take possession of the aforesaid lots of land in behalf of and to the use of the said city of Boston.

Ordered, That the Collector be and he hereby is authorized to cancel the following bonds in the Suffolk-street District, viz.: The bond numbering 108, amounting to $2883.20, dated April 22, 1873; No. 109, $4194.84, dated April 15, 1873; No. 115, $1578.24, dated May 1, 1873,—the same having been given by John B. Regan, for land on West Castle, Albion and Middlesex streets.

Severally read twice and passed. Sent down.

Report of leave to withdraw on petition of Jacob F. Kraus to be paid for damages to his leasehold estate, No. 330 Tremont street, by change of grade in 1869. Accepted. Sent down.

PERMIT FOR STABLE.

Alderman Viles submitted a report from the Committee on Health on the part of the Board, that leave be granted John C. Ailman to occupy a stable on Chauncey place, Ward 23. Accepted.

ORDER TO PAY.

Alderman Clark, from the Committee on Streets on the part of the Board, submitted an order to pay John Egan $150 additional for damages occasioned his estate by the laying out of Terrace street. Read twice and passed.

MARKET.

Alderman Slade submitted a report from the Committee on Market, in favor of approval of transfer of the interest of Francis Krogman in Stall 32 and Cellar 9 new Faneuil Hall Market, to Samuel B. Krogman. Accepted.

PAVING REPORTS AND ORDERS.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Paving: Order to water Centre street, Roxbury, in conjunction with the abutters, from Eliot square to Cedar street, it not exceeding $163; to water Eliot square, Roxbury, cost not exceeding $150; to close Columbus avenue against public travel between Berkeley and Clarendon streets during the rebuilding of the bridge over the Boston & Albany Railroad. Severally read twice and passed.

Report of leave to withdraw on petition of South Boston Railroad Company for leave to lay down tracks on Canal and Market streets. Accepted.

Order to strengthen the bridges over the Boston & Albany Railroad on Berkeley and Ferdinand streets, so as to make said bridges safe for public travel, the cost of said work estimated at $4000. Read twice and passed.

Order to grade and macadamize Huntington avenue from Dartmouth street to West Chester park; also to erect fences and plank walks on said street. Read twice and passed.

Order to rebuild the abutments and iron bridge on Columbus avenue, at an estimated cost of $45,000. Read twice and passed.

POLICE.

The quarterly report of the Chief of Police was received. Placed on file.

Arrests, 6481—5043 males and 1438 females; 2656 Americans, and 3825 foreigners. The commitments were 4482. The largest numbers arrested for particular offences were, adultery, 17; assault and battery, 607; felonious assault, 43; common drunkards, 77; disorderly, 1493; disturbing the peace, 101; drunkenness, 2041; embezzlement, 19; forgery, 12; fornication, 23; fraud, 25; gaming on the Lord's Day, 73; insane, 48; simple larceny, 366; felonious larceny, 131; malicious mischief, 110; nightwalking, 60; violation of the license law, 137. The number of lodgers was 15,425—13,592 males, and 1833 females; 5752 Americans, and 9673 foreigners; 12,895 non-residents, and 1275 minors. The amount of property reported stolen in the city was $15,064; amount recovered stolen in and out of the city, $8358.14. Amount collected for dog licenses, $10,587. Expenses of Police Department for the quarter, $210,081.38.

THE PROPOSED VISIT OF THE GOVERNORS.

The Mayor submitted the following:

The joint special committee to whom was referred the communication in relation to inviting the governors of all the States to visit Boston, having considered the subject, beg leave to submit the following report: It is understood that the governors of the several States will assemble in Philadelphia during the month of August, and that they have been invited to visit several other cities, particularly New York, for the purpose of inspecting their various commercial, manufacturing and mechanical interests. Your committee are of the opinion that it would be of mutual interest to these gentlemen and to the citizens of Boston that they should also visit this city, and that such a visit would have a beneficial effect in extending a knowledge of our various industrial interests. Your committee would, therefore, respectfully recommend the passage of the following order:

Ordered, That his Honor the Mayor be authorized to extend, in behalf of the city of Boston, an invitation to the governors of the several States to visit Boston at the conclusion of their visit to Philadelphia.

Read once and laid over.

Later in the session Alderman Clark moved that the order take its second reading, that it might go to the Council for concurrent action on Thursday evening, as they are liable to adjourn for the summer vacation.

Alderman Thompson—What do the Committee contemplate doing? What appropriation will they require? I certainly would not object to showing the governors all the attention their station demands, but I don't feel quite sure about the propriety of inviting them here at this particular time.

Alderman Clark—I do not know that there is any definite plan. Colonel Peyton, who wrote the letter to his Honor the Mayor, was chairman of the Finance Committee of the Centennial last year. The scheme of having State's days at the Centennial originated with him, and that feature added very greatly to the attendance. He and his committee originated the idea of inviting all the governors of the States of the Union to the Exhibition on or about the 12th of August of the present year; and if they meet there, as it is expected they will, the city of New York proposes to invite them to that city. As you will see by the letter, Colonel Peyton suggested that the city of Boston invite them to extend their visit to this city. If they are invited here they will be the guests of the city. The committee have not made any plan because it is very uncertain whether they will meet in Philadelphia or whether they will accept the invitation from New York or Boston; but I believe the committee are unanimous in this report, that if all the governors, especially those from the South and West, should meet in Philadelphia and be invited to receive the hospitalities of New York, it would be a very judicious thing to extend them an invitation from the city of Boston. The committee believe it would have a good effect; that it would tend to completely restore that perfect harmony which is so desirable, and which has been restored, to a certain extent, by one or two celebrations in New England during the past two years. I understand that General Wade Hampton is exceedingly anxious to visit Boston and the early battle grounds of the Revolution,—Bunker Hill, Lexington and Concord; and while they are here, the citizens of Boston would undoubtedly invite them to inspect our manufacturing interests at Lowell, Lawrence, Lynn, Haverhill, Bridgewater and Fall River, and of this neighborhood. I suppose the expense would simply amount to their hotel bills, carriage hire and possibly their car fares to and from those different places. That is as far as I am able to explain at the present time. It is simply to extend the hospitalities of the city to the governors of the different States in case they visit Philadelphia and New York.

Alderman Thompson—Is the invitation limited to a certain number? Suppose only a few of the governors appear here, would it be desirable to invite the representatives of only a small portion of the old States that have not been reconstructed? It seems to me to be a new thing. We have had considerable business in that line lately. Unless there is some definite object in doing it, and unless the time is limited to the 17th of September, when the city is to have a celebration, I should not deem it advisable. If the governors were going to be in the neighborhood there might be a propriety in inviting them to attend the ceremonies here on the 17th of September.

Alderman Clark—The committee considered the propriety of corresponding with the parties at Philadelphia and ascertaining whether it would not be as convenient to invite the governors to meet there about the 15th of September, instead of the 15th of August, and if they would accept an invitation to be here on the 17th of September; but it was understood from the military gentlemen on the committee that it is proposed to make that specially a military—

Alderman Thompson—Soldiers'.

Alderman Clark—A soldiers' and not a civic celebration. The Alderman from Bunker Hill has addressed me as chairman of the committee. His Honor the Mayor is chairman of this committee. The Alderman from the Eighteenth Ward is present and can explain his views in regard to inviting them on the 17th of September instead of the 15th of August.

Alderman Wilder—I can only reiterate what the Alderman has stated. It is true I am a member of the committee on the invitation to the governors, and am also a member of the Committee on the Dedication of the Army and Navy Monument. The 17th of September being suggested as a good day, I stated what I believed to be the settled policy of the committee to make that peculiarly a soldiers' day, and if the city of Boston thought it wise and proper to extend an invitation to the governors of the several States to visit us in connection with their visit to Philadelphia and New York, that some other time would be more appropriate than the 17th of September, believing that that day should be devoted entirely to the military guests of the city.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I have listened with a great deal of attention to the remarks of the Alderman opposite [Alderman Clark] about pleasant feeling and restored harmony and so on; and I thoroughly agree with him that nothing will do so much to cause fraternal feelings and pleasant remembrances as to invite the governors here, and ask the governor of North Carolina to say something to the governor of South Carolina and to all the other governors. It is an excellent thing; and if the mayors of the different cities of the Union could be invited here for five or six days; if we could show them our wharves that have depreciated so much in value—according to the gentleman's statement—and treat them well, and after the bountiful dinner they would receive, I have no doubt they would go away impressed with the hospitality of the city of Boston, and with the idea that it excelled any other city in the Union, and that it had not the coldness they expected to find. I have no doubt all the governors would enjoy the visit. We know how to make a good time for everybody who comes here, and they would go away feeling happy. When they go to the Exhibition at Philadelphia, it will be a very pleasant thing for Colonel Peyton to ferry them across the Sound and bring them up here and show how well we can entertain them. But it is getting very near the fall elections, and I am afraid that whatever good might result from their visit here could be put in execution before next January. I question the propriety of inviting them here simply because they are coming to the exhibition at Philadelphia. With what we have had already, and will have on the 17th of September, I think there will have been quite enough of hospitality this year to satisfy one Government. The party who should invite the governors to this State should be the governor of Massachusetts. It is peculiarly an occasion for the action of the State authorities. The reason why the city of Boston is selected is because Boston is hospitable and treats visitors better than the State of Massachusetts and some other States and cities, owing to a lack of appropriations. But some of the citizens and press might call it extravagant. I question the propriety of inviting them, because no good can come to them, and no good can come to us, from showing them our manufacturing interests.

Alderman O'Brien—I take rather a more practical view of this matter. The governors of the different States are evidently invited to Philadelphia so that Philadelphians can show them the industries of their city. On the same principle they were invited to New York to see the industries of that city, and for precisely the same reason I shall vote to invite these governors here. Even if our wharves are deserted, we can tell them that our imports and exports are larger than ever before; that our boot and shoe trade has increased this past year about 180,000 cases; we can show them a greater variety of manufactures than was ever before seen in New England, and my friend opposite [Alderman Robinson], who is a manufacturer, can testify to that fact. We can take them down our harbor and show them what facilities we have for shipping the produce of the West and the entire country. We can show them a great many things which will have a tendency to bring us prominently before the public. These gentlemen may not be governors tomorrow or next day, but the newspaper press will take it up and the governors of Texas, Louisiana, Ohio and all these States will be sure to have their speeches printed in the local papers of the cities in which they reside, and in that way they will tell the whole country how hospitable Boston has been and what are her industries, prospects for business, and everything of that kind. I believe in a little hospitality of this kind, and I don't think it is money thrown away.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I was struck by the speech of the Alderman last up, and according to his speech I came to the conclusion that it is rather a sharp trick to get the governors here; that we are going to play a sharp game and get the governors here as a cheap way of advertising the city of Boston by giving them a few days' board and letting them go off and tell the people in the West and South what a wonderful place Boston is; that it is not to show our hospitality to them and to entertain them as the governors of States, but that we look at it in a utilitarian point of view. Now, should that fact go forth to the world? I don't like the way this is brought about,—engineered by a gentleman in Philadelphia, who asks us to invite gentlemen to come here after they have been to Philadelphia. It is not exactly the proper way, and I think it is not complimentary to the governors. Taking the whole thing, I doubt the expediency of inviting them. The way the invitation has been brought about is anything but complimentary. The reason alleged for inviting them is not to shake them by the hand and entertain them because they are governors of sister States of the Union, and I shall vote against the order.

Alderman O'Brien—When these governors go to Philadelphia I have no doubt Philadelphians will tell them that that is the great city of the country; when they go to New York, New Yorkers will tell them it is not worth while to go beyond their line, as Boston is but a village. But when they come here I think our Mayor and citizens ought to show them that we are in reality the hub of the universe; and I think we can.

Alderman Clark—I do not want it spread over the United States that we are going to invite the governors here for what we can make out of them. Now, if Colonel Peyton had had any selfish motives he would have used his influence to keep them in Philadelphia and show them that Philadelphia was the best city in the United States. When they come here in August they will not see deserted wharves and stores; and if they come in September they will find a busier city than can be found anywhere else in the United States. I will guarantee that any time from the first of August to the 10th of October they can see the streets more busy with the hide and leather interest than can be seen in any city of the same size in the Union. I believe it will be a capital thing to show these governors, mayors and merchants what we are doing. If a private individual can invite half a Southern State to spend a week at his farm in Wellesley, certainly the city of Boston can invite the governors of all the States to come and spend a few days here. However, I think this matter can be discussed better in private than in public.

Alderman Robinson—The Alderman on my right [Alderman O'Brien] has alluded to me as a manufacturer. Philadelphia is a great manufacturing city, and a large portion of the carpets made in this country are made there. It is a very beautiful city, and they know how to give a very good banquet. I was at a banquet there, given a few years ago by the Manufacturers' Association; it was one of the best I ever sat down to in my life. I don't believe Boston could beat it. It was said that anything could be ordered that was on the bill of fare. There was a hottle of wine marked $10, and a gentleman called for it. Anything that was on the card could be obtained. I did n't believe we could beat them then, and I don't believe we can beat them now. In regard to the visit of the governors affecting trade, I don't believe it will affect one sou marqué. Those governors don't affect trade. You take them through the Pacific Mills, and the reverence inspired for the manufacturers in the vicinity of Boston would completely daze all the effects of the banquet they might have in Boston. If these governors were banqueted in Philadelphia and New York, they would have no desire left to have a banquet here. If it is to be done as a means of building up or affecting the trade of Boston, or creating a demand for goods made in the vicinity of Boston, I don't think the invitation would do any good whatever. But if it is to promote the era of good feeling, and if anything of that kind is to be derived from the visit of the governors, I don't know but it might be expedient. I know nothing about the matter. It is understood that they desire to see the manufactories in the vicinity of Boston. Of course they can probably see more in one day in the Pacific, Merrimac, and other mills than they can in any other part of the world. Our manufacturing is done on a large scale. At Manchester, England, you can see prints; at Weathersfield, cloths, etc.; but here you can see the whole in one day's journey; and if you want to, you can give them a good impression of the industries of Massachusetts and Boston, and they could write about it in the local papers. I don't think a banquet would have so good an effect as a view of our industries.

Alderman Clark—So far as the banquet is concerned, that originated in the Alderman's brain. The committee have not entertained the idea of giving a banquet to the visitors. Neither do I think the city would, for a moment, entertain the idea of giving the governors of the various States a banquet. The merchants of Boston might propose to do so; but the idea of the city doing it has never been entertained by the committee for a single moment. As a member of the Board of Aldermen I should object to expending a dollar in a banquet; but as an individual and a merchant I should be glad to join in a subscription banquet to entertain the governors, if they came here. As a member of the City Council I should object to giving the governors a banquet any more than we did at the grand jubilee, when the Alderman [Alderman Fitzgerald] was an active member of the committee and had charge of several governors at one of the hotels. It is not proposed to give a banquet to the distinguished soldiers on the 17th of September. Undoubtedly their hotel bills will be paid, but a banquet will not be thought of. I wish to disahuse the mind of the Alderman from Dorchester [Alderman Robinson] that they will be entertained with wine.

Alderman Thompson—The Committee on the Dedication of the Monument did not entertain the idea of giving the distinguished soldiers a banquet. They are invited to participate in the dedication of the monument. Now we propose to invite these governors here because Mr. Peyton of Philadelphia makes the suggestion. I don't see any good to come from it. If the city invites the governors here, I hope we shall give them a banquet worthy of the city and State, treat them in the best way possible, and that no possible slight will be put upon them. So far as banquets are concerned, they have a farmer's club in Pennsylvania that outstrips anything I ever saw, and consequently they would see nothing new here. So far as promoting the trade of Boston, it wont amount to a farthing. People wont come here to trade because we treat them hospitably. Stronger inducements than that must be held out to them to come here and trade. If they come here I should cheerfully vote to pay all their hotel bills.

Alderman Robinson—The banquet to which I referred was not given by the city of Philadelphia, but by the merchants.

Alderman Robinson—Will the Alderman inform the Board what that hottle contained?

Alderman Fitzgerald called for the yeas and nays, and the order was passed—yeas 7, nays 5:

Yeas—Aldermen Burnham, Clark, Dunbar, O'Brien, Slade, Viles, Wilder—7.

Nays—Aldermen Breck, Fitzgerald, Gibson, Robinson, Thompson—5.

Alderman Wilder moved to reconsider, hoping it would not prevail.

Alderman Thompson moved to lay that motion on the table. Declared lost. Alderman Thompson doubted the vote and called for the yeas and nays. The motion was lost—yeas 5, nays 7—the Aldermen voting the same relatively as before.

The reconsideration was lost. Sent down for concurrence.

HORSE-CAR BLOCKADES.

Alderman Fitzgerald offered an order—That the Committee on Paving consider and report the causes of the horse-car blockades on Tremont street and at the northern and southern depots, and the remedy for the same.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I offered the order because the complaint is almost universal that within a few weeks or a month the horse cars, instead of being a convenience, have become a nuisance in certain portions of the city. The streets are blocked at the Old Colony and Worcester depots, and from Temple Place to School Street, all day. There must be some cause for it other than the additional number of cars which have been put upon these routes. I hope the Paving Committee will see the remedy and apply it, and stop this continual rivalry between the corporations.

Alderman O'Brien—It is only a few evenings since, while waiting for a car on a line that runs every ten minutes, that I counted ten Columbus-avenue cars pass me with only one or two passengers in each. It is well knowu that they run on that route with only half a dozen passengers. I hope the committee will see at what length this horse-railroad competition is going.

Alderman Wilder—I find on my desk a petition which I ask permission to read.

The Alderman read a petition from persons doing business on Washington and Tremont streets in opposition to the petition of the Middlesex Railroad for leave to run an additional twelve cars an hour in the circuit, claiming that the streets are already encumbered to a most unwarrantable extent by the passage of cars of all the companies; that it is entirely unnecessary, and is due to the rivalry between the companies rather than from any real demand by the people; that their patrons are seriously incommoded by the crowded streets and daily encounter of danger at the crossings.

Alderman Wilder—This petition is signed by Shreve, Crump & Low, Macallar, Williams & Parker, and 100 others doing business on Washington and Tremont streets. I wish to have it referred to the Committee on Paving. I have noticed the seemingly unnecessary crowding of those streets, and have obtained from official sources a few figures, which I will submit. I find that the number of cars passing certain points is as follows:

Up Tremont street, past Winter street—Metropolitan, 121; Highland, 24; Middlesex, 12; South

Boston, 31—in all 188 per hour, more than three cars each minute.

Up Washington street, past State street—Metropolitan, 63; Highland, 24; Middlesex, 12; South Boston, 31—total, 130, a little more than two cars per minute.

Through Temple place—Metropolitan, 84; Highland, 31. Total, 115 per hour.

On Columbus avenue—Metropolitan, 12; Highland, 12.

I had made up my mind that the time had come for us to deal with this question of overcrowding our streets with horse cars, and hoped that this Board would entertain the same view; that it is time for us to give no further locations, except where public necessity and convenience demand it. The rivalry between companies has been carried too far. I have no partiality toward any road; but I believe the time has come for us to say whether the horse-railroad companies have more rights in the street than anybody else.

Alderman Thompson—I am glad the order has been offered, because I think it will result in equalizing the running of the cars through the avenues. That remonstrance is against the Middlesex road, and it does n't take a far-seeing man to see that it was obtained in the interest of rival roads. From the figures read by the Alderman it appears that the cars passing the head of State street are, Metropolitan sixty-three, Highland twenty-four, South Boston thirty-one, Middlesex twelve. Eighty-seven of those cars are from the Highlands, thirty-one from South Boston and twelve from Charlestown. As Aldermen know, the people of the different sections all wish to go through Washington street to do their shopping, and return by the Common, and it is very unjust to grant one section privilege over another section. The proper way to remedy the evil is to make a more equal distribution in the assignment of cars allowed on the route.

Alderman Slade—The original charter gave the roads the right to run an indefinite number of cars on the circuit, except the Highland and Middlesex, and I don't know that this Board can do anything to take away that privilege. It is plausible for the ladies to want to go round the circuit. I hope this order will be referred to the committee to be considered.

Alderman Fitzgerald read the section of the general horse-railroad law giving the Board full control of the running of cars in the streets, and said the Board could order them to take up their tracks in any street.

Alderman Clark—This trouble has grown rapidly since the opening of the Columbus-avenue route, and I suggest that the Paving Committee request the presidents of the different companies to come together and settle this affair, etc., or else the Board will take it in hand and take off as many cars as are necessary. The presidents of the different roads can settle it in half an hour so that people will not complain.

Alderman Robinson—I did not know that we can limit the running of the cars on certain routes. I felt sure that this difficulty was coming when we granted the Columbus-avenue location. The committee will give the matter respectful attention.

The order was passed and the petition read by Alderman Wilder was referred to the Committee on Paving.

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman Fitzgerald.

10/10/2010

10/10/2010

10/10/2010

10/10/2010

10/10/2010

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Common Council,

JULY 26, 1877.

Regular meeting at 7½ o'clock P. M., Benjamin Pope, President, in the chair.

MISCELLANEOUS PAPERS FROM THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Petitions were referred in concurrence—

Report leave to withdraw on petition of Jacob F. Kraus to be paid for damages to his estate, 330 Tremont street. Accepted in concurrence.

Orders to declare forfeited to city certain lots of land of John B. Regan on West Castle and Middlesex streets, and to cancel the bonds therefor. Severally read twice and passed in concurrence.

Order to remit tax for 1876 on a certain lot of land and a building on East Third street, the land being forfeited to the city. Read twice, under a suspension of the rule, on motion of Mr. Sibley of Ward 5, and passed in concurrence.

THE PROPOSED VISIT OF THE GOVERNORS.

A report came down with an order that his Honor the Mayor be authorized on behalf of the city to invite the governors of the several States to visit Boston.

The question was on giving the order a second reading.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—It seems to me, Mr. President, that this is a somewhat singular order. The whole arrangement of this gubernatorial feast is hidden in mystery, and, indeed, it seems just now as if it might continue so, for I should doubt whether any of the governors of the States would care to leave their respective Commonwealths during the present excitement. So far as I can learn, the affair seems to be gotten up by Colonel Peyton, but for what purpose no one seems to know. Colonel Peyton is a very nice gentleman indeed, but he is a private individual. It is very nice for him to invite the governors of the different States to go around at other people's expense; but I wish to know what benefit is to be derived from inviting the governors here. If the Governor of this State wishes to extend the courtesies of this State to the visiting governors, it might be a very acceptable way of showing them Massachusetts; but why Boston should step in and extend the invitation at this particular time I cannot see. I shall vote against the order.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—I think that at least the invitation broker, who extended the invitation, ought to be included in the invitation. I therefore move that Colonel Peyton be included as one of the guests.

The question on the adoption of the amendment was put. The President was in doubt and called for a division. A quorum did not vote. A second division was had—5 for, 25 against—but a quorum had not voted. The President was about to put the question again, when Mr. Jackson of Ward 16 asked a re-statement of the question for the benefit of those who had just come in.

The President again stated the question, and on motion of Mr. Duggan of Ward 12 the yeas and nays were ordered. The amendment was lost—yeas 18, nays 30:

Yeas—Messrs. Barnard, Blodgett, Clarke, Coe, Crocker, Day, Dee, Hiscock, Howes, McGaragle, Morrill, Mowry, J. H. Pierce, Pratt, Vose, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—18.

Nays—Messrs. Brintnall, Burke, Cox, Danforth, Doherty, Duggan, Felt, Fernald, Fraser, Hibbard, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kidney, McDonald, Nugent, Pearl, Perham, O. H. Pierce, Reed, J. B. Richardson, Roach, Roberts, Ruffin, Sampson, Shepard, Sibley, Thorndike, Upham, Warren, E. R. Webster—30.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Barry, Beeching, Blanchard, Brown, Cannon, Cross, Fagan, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Ham, Kelley (Ward 6), Loughlin, McClusky, Mullane, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Pope, M. W. Richardson, Sardon, Souther, Spenceley, Stone, Thompou—23.

Mr. Pratt—I thought the remarks of the gentleman from Ward 18 were very pertinent to this question, and at the risk of making a few useless observations I wish to say, before having a vote on the main question, that some member of the committee, or some gentleman acquainted with this matter, should state the reasons for passing such an order. This proposed invitation arises under very peculiar circumstances. It does not proceed from the city of Boston as a spontaneous invitation, or, indeed, as an invitation that would reflect credit upon the city of Boston for originality or anything else. This Colonel Peyton, who has laid himself open to the epithet given before,—an invitation broker—was at the Parker House, and conceived the idea of writing an invitation to the Mayor of Boston to invite certain gentlemen to be participants of the city's bounty. We are invited to entertain the governors. Under this order we don't invite the governors here, and I think it is due to the Council to have this matter explained, and for what reason we should, at this particular time and in this particular way, pay such particular attention to entertain the guests of some particular gentleman at the city's expense.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—The order, as I understand it, does not say anything about how the expense is to be met; but if I understand it aright the expenses will be paid under the order we passed sometime ago authorizing the Mayor to entertain distinguished strangers at the expense of the city. If that is the case, and if it is to be managed by the Mayor, it will probably result in considerable expense for a banquet. Of course considerable money will be spent, and if we have not forgotten all about economy, it seems to me it would be wise to put a stop to it, and especially as to judge from our late experience in the matter of banquets to distinguished strangers, the City Council would be left out in the cold, and the only parties invited to meet the governors would be the friends of the Mayor and, perhaps, the members of the Somerset Club.

Mr. Howes—I had the pleasure two years ago of making the acquaintance of Colonel Peyton, when he was on here endeavoring to raise money for the Centennial. At that time he was working for a worthy object, and I believe he succeeded; he was a sort of free lance, and his efforts were wholly praiseworthy. He now wishes to get the governors together, and I am sure the idea is eminently patriotic. But men of that stamp, like Mr. William Emerson Baker, usually invite gentlemen and pay the expenses; whereas Colonel Peyton seems to want to invite gentlemen and get the credit for it, and have some one else pay the bills. I hope the City Council will not fall into the trap, and that the measure will not pass.

The order was refused a second reading in non-concurrence.

VACATIONS OF FIREMEN.

Report of Fire Commissioners came down favoring a vacation of two weeks to members of the Fire Alarm Department, but deeming it unadvisable to allow a like vacation to the permanent members of the Fire Department. Accepted in concurrence.

The President—The question is upon passing in concurrence the order authorizing a vacation to the fire alarm employes, or upon insisting on the former action of the Council in an amendment to include the permanent members of the Fire Department.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I hope the order passed by the Aldermen will pass this branch, for I sincerely believe that the members of the Fire Alarm Department should have a vacation. But when the Fire Commissioners come to us saying that the Fire Alarm Department do not have a vacation, in comparison with the permanent men of the Fire Department, I should like to know how it is. I have been studying this matter for a good while, and I don't know but I have a monomania on the subject. I believe that right is right. Now I propose to take the days of one single month, and see whether the members of the Fire Alarm Department do have any vacation, compared with the permanent men of the department. The fire-alarm employes are on duty twelve hours out of twenty-four; the other twelve hours they are off duty; they can go where they please, and their time is their own; and in the course of thirty days in a month they are on and off duty 360 hours. The permanent men in our Fire Department have two days—which is forty-eight hours—in each month; and if you call the three hours of each day which they have for their meals, off duty—they are not really off duty, because those men are liable to be called from their meals to answer an alarm—they have ninety hours, which, with the forty-eight, make 138 hours they are off duty each month. Who have the greater vacation? I don't think we can look at this matter fairly without saying that the permanent men do not have a vacation, and that they ought to have. Gentlemen, look at it. I don't say the work is laborious; I don't say it is the hardest place to put a man; but I do say they are confined in those houses day after day, with only ninety hours off duty. And we say those men ought not to have a vacation. Now, the commissioners say it will cost so much money to give these men a vacation. I don't know but it will. I think the department can get along with less men. The companies are not full. They detail men from every permanent company to go up to the repair shop, or anywhere else they choose to send them, without putting on substitutes. Yet, when you ask them to give the permanent men a vacation, they say they cannot do it. They can send men to West Roxbury without putting on substitutes; yet, when you ask them to give those men a vacation, they say they cannot do it, because they must have permanent substitutes in their places. I think the rule ought to work both ways. If you send a man away he is nothing but a call substitute, and if there is an alarm of fire they come to it. If they can do that I think they can as well put on call substitutes and let the permanent men have a vacation. While I hope we shall vote to give the fire-alarm employes a vacation, I hope we shall stand by our former action and vote to give the permanent members of the Fire Department a vacation. I call for a division of the question.

The Council concurred in the passage of the order authorizing a vacation for the fire-alarm employes, and the question came on insisting upon the amendment giving a vacation to the permanent members of the Fire Department.

Mr. Coe of Ward 23—If this amendment passes, will the permanent members of the Fire Department have a vacation of two weeks in addition to the leave of absence of two days in each month that they have already? It will give them thirty-eight days' vacation in the course of the year. If that is not so I should like to be informed by the chairman of the committee.

Mr. Spenceley—If gentlemen see fit to call one day in fourteen, or two days in a month, a vacation, where a man is confined hour after hour in an engine house, I say yes; but I do not call it so. Why, gentlemen, we would not use our horses—I generally give mine one day in seven to rest—as the members of the Fire Department are used. There is not an hour in the day that they can call their own. It is not ten hours off and ten hours on. Suppose you were to tell your man on Saturday night that he could go home on Sunday and have a vacation; he would laugh at you. Our permanent firemen are in that position. Gentlemen, look at it; place yourselves in their circumstances. Gentlemen say these men knew this before they went into the department. That is true; but we know enough not to oppress these men. Talk about a sailor—why, there is not a sailor but has two weeks off with his family every year. Our soldiers get more than that. We take pride in saying that our Fire Department is second to none in the country; yet we are not willing that the permanent men should have a vacation. I don't call what they have a vacation. I don't know that they have a chance to buy their wood and coal. Just think of it, gentlemen. It is not right. I have had this on my mind two years. I had the honor of being placed on the Committee on the Fire Department last year, and I have spent a good deal of time with the committee in visiting the engine houses, studying the duties of the men, looking at the machines and going to fires, just to see if we have an efficient Fire Department. Some men think our department is efficient because of our beautiful engines and Lowry hydrants; but they are nothing without the men behind them. Don't let us forget the men who are the backbone of our Fire Department. If we use our horses and engines well, let us use our men well.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—If I understand this order, it calls for a vacation for the members of the department if it can be given without detriment to the service. The great question in my mind is, who is going to be the judge of that? We have commissioners who are supposed to have charge of the Fire Department and run it. I have as much sympathy for the firemen as the gentleman who has just taken his seat, and who is so enthusiastic over this matter; but it seems to me that in voting for this we are voting directly against what the Fire Commissioners have recommended. In their report they say it is not expedient, and cannot be done without detriment to the service. I hope the gentleman, who is so thoroughly posted in fire matters, will inform the Council who is to be the judge of whether it would be a detriment to the service or not.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I hope the order will pass. While I am not opposed, in any sense, to giving the members of the Fire Alarm Department a vacation, if you take into consideration the number of hours of duty they do in a year, you will see they are on duty much less than the permanent fireman. If I understand it, they are divided into four watches, and when their watch is over they can go where they please; they can go and do the business that ordinarily ought to be done, and can go and enjoy themselves. Now, I suppose the detriment to the service in this case consists of about $10,000; that is, the Fire Commissioners think that if they grant these men a vacation they will have to fill their places with substitutes which will cost the city of Boston $10,000. That is true, I suppose; there is no getting away from it. The department is now hardly up to its standard; but, if you take into consideration the number of days that those men do extra duty on that account, you will see that their usual time for rest and recreation is about wiped out; that is, if the department was full, those men would not be called upon to do partial duty so often. I think we can give them this vacation at a trifling expense, and $10,000 is not going to bankrupt the city.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—I believe it is conceded that we have able Fire Commissioners. They have rendered a report that it is not expedient to grant this vacation to the members of the Fire Department, and I think their report is entitled to weight in this matter.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—I believe we have an able Board of Fire Commissioners, and I likewise believe we have an able and efficient Fire Department. Now, sir, if a clerk works in a store for $1000 a year and asks for a vacation, he will get it, for he requires a vacation. Now, take the fireman—one of those engine men who is housed up in an engine house and gets three hours a day off to eat his meals; but in case of an alarm they are not allowed those three hours. Now, I don't see why the firemen are not entitled to a vacation as well as the policeman. The fireman is on duty twenty-one hours in twenty-four, while the policeman is on only ten. It is very well to say the Fire Commissioners make this statement; but I think they can run a company with one man short, in order to give the men vacations, as well as they can send men to the repair shops. I believe it would be for the benefit of the department and for the interest of the city to give the men a vacation.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—The gentleman says these men might be given a vacation as well as to be sent to the repair shops. But gentlemen must see that if they are given a vacation some one else must do the repairing, and an extra expense must be incurred. The vacation will entail an extra expense. As I have said once before, if we have not forgotten all about economy, it is about time to stop. I think the gentleman from Ward 19 rather overpaints the miseries of the firemen. He represents them as if they were shut up in prison, in a sort of solitary confinement. I often go by engine houses and see the doors swinging open and the men having what is usually called a pretty easy time of it. I have no doubt they often have to work hard at a fire; but it is not often, and during the time they are at the engine houses they are pretty comfortably off, having an easier time than most people have who have business to attend to. Then, again, it is part of their duty to patrol the city; at certain times they have to make a circuit of certain streets, which is not a disagreeable way of passing their time between their intervals of confinement. I am unable to see that they are an abused set of men, and, apart from the putting out of fires, it seems to me they have a pretty easy time of it. When there are fires, their duties are arduous; they need rest between fires, and it seems to me they get it.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—While I don't wish to doubt the gentleman's veracity, if he has seen anything like loafing around the engine houses, it is against the commissioners' orders. If I remember aright, no one is allowed on the floor of an engine house except the man on watch. The other men are expected to be up stairs in uniform.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5—This is a very simple question. By the ordinance the commissioners have control of the wages of the firemen and the rules and regulations of the Fire Department. I used to think it was very arbitrary and strained up pretty hard, not being much of a soldier myself. But I am led to believe it is necessary. It is necessary to have discipline, and I believe we have it. I believe we have a good department, that it is well taken care of, that it is a well-managed and useful institution. But we all know it is very fashionable for all of us to have a little time to ourselves. It is a sort of custom which makes law. You can hardly meet any man but you say, "Been in the country?" "Going?" or, "Are your family stopping out of town?" and so on. It sounds very pleasant, is a very good idea, and I wish everybody had the privilege, the time and the means, and good health besides; but they have n't all got it. I don't believe the city of Boston would be a cent poorer to grant this vacation, notwithstanding this six or seven thousand dollars expense. I don't believe the efficiency of the department will be injured one particle, with the material at our command, with all respect to the commissioners. Those men deserve this vacation just as much as the policemen, and no more. Of course, the system of the department makes it incumbent upon the men to stay at their places in the engine houses a great deal; and they do. But they patrol the streets, get exercise and make a good appearance, which is all very well. But to come right home, I believe the firemen deserve a vacation, and I don't believe it will be an injury to the department. I hope we shall insist on our former action, that the Aldermen will concur and that the commissioners will grant this request.

Mr. Spenceley—I have been trying to find what the gentleman from Ward 9 said in relation to the firemen some time ago. I showed it to him some time ago. He said the firemen were just as deserving of a good salary, vacation or anything as the policemen were. I wish he would take that stand tonight. Our policemen have more pay than the firemen, who do not get two weeks' vacation at all. We have a very efficient department, and a great many think it is due to the commissioners. Perhaps it is. I will give them all the credit due to them, and yet I cannot see how the commission can get along for two weeks with only two commissioners, and the other one up in the mountains enjoying himself. When they want a vacation they take it and go off. Why don't they stay at work night after night and year after year without a vacation? I noticed last year when we chose a Fire Commissioner, the first thing he did was to go to Philadelphia. That is all right, I suppose. I see this report comes down signed by Greeley S. Curtis, chairman pro tem. Where is the chairman? I have been told he is up to the White Mountains. Now, if the thing can go along in that way, if our Fire Department is run with two commissioners, why is n't something said about it? We are putting ourselves under a great burden. But when the firemen ask for the same privilege those men enjoy, I would like to know if the life, health and families of the firemen are not worth just as much as those of the men getting $4000. Should the man getting $4000 say, I can go, but you must stay? I don't think it is right. They say that what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander; but it seems to me the goose is getting all the sauce in this. It seems to me that all the detriment to the public service is this extra $9000; but I don't believe the city will suffer. I believe it can be done for $3000, and the city be just as well protected as it is to-day. I don't want to weaken the department, or take men from their places in the permanent companies; but when they can call men off to go to the repair shops, or to haul hay from West Roxbury, I say they can just as well let those men go on a vacation. I just want to ask those questions, and let you settle it.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—The gentleman says he cannot see why the firemen should not have a vacation just as well as the policemen; yet he says they have one day in fourteen. I wonder if that is n't a vacation? I understand the gentleman to say they have no vacation whatever.

Mr. Spenceley—I say if gentlemen call the one day in fourteen which they have a vacation, call it so; I cannot.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—The question does not seem to me to be whether or not the city can afford a certain amount of expense, but whether there is any propriety in the City Council passing an order regulating the practice in the department. Now, sir, I will simply, by one suggestion, ask the question whether it would be wise legislation for Congress to pass an act giving the soldiers in the regular army a furlough of a month each summer? It comes down to about this: The City Council having placed the responsibility in the hands of the Fire Commissioners, whether it is within the bounds of propriety for us to go into matters of detail in the management of the department. If any furlough or vacation is to be granted, it should certainly come with the recommendation of the commissioners, who are responsible for the efficiency of the department.

Mr. Spenceley—By permission of the Council I should like to read a little editorial which I found in a paper on my desk. I should n't ask to read it if I had n't known that some of those facts are true:

"An order was recently passed by the Board of Aldermen allowing the employes of the Fire Alarm Department a vacation of two weeks without loss of pay. In the Common Council last week the order was amended to include the permanent firemen, and it was then passed. As amended it was then returned to the Aldermen for concurrence, and by them referred to the Fire Commissioners. We bespeak for the measure the success it merits, for no class of city employes is so deserving of a short respite from confinement as the men who are included in this order. It may not be generally known that the permanent firemen are not allowed to leave their apparatus except to obtain their meals, but such is the fact."

I hope gentlemen who have seen them loafing around engine houses will take notice.

"It is true that the rules of the Fire Commissioners permit a leave of absence for twenty-four hours twice each month, by consent of the officer in charge of the district, but it is oftentimes the case that such consent is refused, and we know of one instance—"

And I know the same instance.

—"in South Boston, last winter, where the members of an engine company did not leave their stations for a term of four months, except to obtain food. This is probably true of other companies, and in view of this it seems to be absolutely necessary that these men, who suffer restraint almost as great as the prisoners in our correctional institutions, should be included in the list to have an intermission of labor, the granting of which will well repay the city in the return of men to duty who cannot fail to reconstitute strength for the arduous service required of them. We understand that the commissioners oppose the movement, but notwithstanding this, while men in every other branch of the Government employ are allowed a vacation without detriment to the interests of the city, we think the same privilege should be extended to the permanent members of the Fire Department."

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—The difficulty in an order of this kind, if it were proper for the Council to pass, would be the length of the time over which the vacation extends. I could see the propriety of requesting, if it is expedient, that the men might be allowed a vacation for a week in the year; but two weeks to each permanent member of the company would mean twenty weeks' absence from each company in a year, which would break into the discipline of the company. If the time was a week I think I should vote for it, but I can hardly do it with two weeks. Gentlemen have spoken of the feasibility of carrying out the measure without additional expense. I do not believe in it at all. I think that ten men in a permanent company is a small enough number. In New York it was found advisable to have twelve, and I think they have changed to eleven now. But for the ordinary requirements of a fire engine in the central portion of the city there ought to be ten men at all times. The mere changing of one man to go out and do some odd job does n't generally interfere with the management; but the detail of men for two weeks, and having new men come in their places, would interfere with the discipline of the department.

Mr. Spenceley—Is it any less safe than in the present way?

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—I shall have to vote against the order, on the general principle that, having put this department into the hands of a commission, I am opposed to interfering with the details of the management. The perfection of the department has been attained by strict discipline and the management of the commission which now controls it. I do not presume, and I should deem it presumption in almost any one in this Council, to oppose a private opinion as to what will conduce to or take from the efficiency of the Fire Department, as against the opinion of the men whose duty it is to take care of it, and who have investigated and made it a study. Upon that principle I do not think it wise to interfere with the little details of uniforms, taking of meals and all that sort of thing.

On motion of Mr. Spenceley the yeas and nays were ordered and the Council insisted upon its amendment to grant a vacation to the permanent members of the Fire Department—yeas 41, nays 16.

Yeas—Messrs. Barnard, Brintnall, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Cox, Cross, Day, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Ham, Hiscock, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, Mullane, Nugent, Pearl, Perham, Reed, Roach, Roberts, Shepard, Sibley, Spenceley, Thorndike, Upham, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster, G. B. Webster, Wilbur—41.

Nays—Messrs. Blodgett, Coe, Crocker, Danforth, Felt, Hibbard, Howes, Morrill, Mowry, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, Pratt, J. B. Richardson, Ruffin, Sampson, Wolcott—16.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Barry, Beeching, Blanchard, Brown, Fagau, Loughlin, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Pope, M. W. Richardson, Sardon, Souther, Stone, Thompson—14.

Sent up.

CITY HOSPITAL.

The thirteenth annual report of the Trustees of the City Hospital was presented and sent up. The report gives the following statistics:

Number of patients remaining in the hospital, April 30, 1876, 263; admitted during the year—medical, 2140; surgical, 1342; ophthalmic, 98; total, 3580; treated during the year, 3843; discharged, 3256; died, 287; total, 3543; remaining in hospital April 30, 1877, 300; largest number in hospital at any time, 370; smallest number in hospital at any time, 213; daily average number of patients, 271; average length of stay of each patient (days), 26; number of patients treated in the out-patient department, classified according to their diseases—medical, 1970; surgical, 3434; diseases of the eye, 1665; diseases of the ear, 325; diseases of the skin, 808; diseases of women, 324; total, 8526; number of visits to the hospital made by each class—medical diseases, 3923; surgical diseases, 8892; diseases of the eye, 11,166; diseases of the ear, 1888; diseases of the skin, 2986; diseases of women, 801; total, 29,656.

The whole number of patients in the hospital during the year was 3843, and they were under treatment an average of twenty-six days each, making a total of 99,654 days, or 14,236 2-7 weeks. The entire cost of maintaining the hospital during the year, including every expenditure, excepting the cost of additions and reconstruction of buildings and cost of new equipment, was at the rate of $8.02 1-3 per week, $114,218.56. But of the patients enumerated above, 156 paid for 495 6-7 weeks' board, $5160.07; leaving, therefore, the sum of $109,058.49 as the cost to the city of treating 3687 non-paying patients, for a total of 13,740 3-7 weeks, which is at the rate of $7.93 2-3 per week. But by averaging the net cost of maintaining the hospital for the year, among all the patients treated, we find the average cost to the city of board for each patient was $7.75 per week.

The trustees have had a year's experience in the new buildings, and at times their occupation has very nearly reached their maximum capacity, and it is gratifying to know, as a result of that experience, that the structures are all that was anticipated in regard to heat, ventilation, convenience and economy of administration. The income from paying patients has very materially increased, and the figures show that, with but a moderate increase of expenditure and service, some thirteen per cent. more patients have been treated, while the expense of treatment per capita has been reduced $1.50 per week.

The trustees asked recently for an extra appropriation, for the purpose of making some changes and improvements in the basements of the old surgical and medical buildings. These buildings, constructed upon made land, and with large spaces under the basement floors, had become, through natural causes, as well as by their use as hospitals, peculiarly offensive and dangerous for patients. In his report of 1874 to the trustees, Dr. Cowles, the superintendent, alluded to the necessity of action in regard to these buildings, and some progress was then made in remedying the existing evils. In constructing the new buildings, circumstances again forced the consideration of the subject upon the board, and it was finally determined, upon the urgent advice of Dr. Cowles, seconded by that of the medical staff, as soon as the conditions of the new structures would allow, to thoroughly renovate these basements and introduce better ventilation into the buildings. Accordingly, the spaces have been filled with fresh earth, the floors concreted, water and steam pipes have been brought to the surface in accessible positions, and the basements abandoned, as originally intended, to fresh air and ventilation. A portion of the work was done last season, and with last year's appropriation. The balance of the work will be shortly completed.

The increase in magnitude of the hospital and of the number of patients renders necessary new plans of government and organization within itself. Due thought has been given to these matters, and a revision of the service of the house has been made, not only as to kind of service, but also as to compensation. The trustees fully recognize the necessity of constant supervision of expenditures and economy in management, and they are endeavoring, so far as they consistently can, to meet the spirit of the time, and to reform, wherever an opportunity appears for it. The necessity of an "ambulance," as a means of saving much time and suffering in cases of severe accident, has been discussed for several years past. This necessity has become more and more apparent, and the board have finally concluded it to be absolute, and the vehicle is now being constructed.

It has become an annual and pleasing duty to recognize the kindly thought of friends to the poor and suffering, as manifested in religious ministrations, or in little gifts of fruit, flowers and books. These have continued during the year, and one in good health can probably hardly appreciate the value of such remembrances upon the sick and weary heart.

Two new out-patient departments have been established during the year, one for diseases of the nervous system and one for those of the throat. S. G. Webber, M. D., was appointed to the first, and E. W. Cushing, M. D., to the second department.

In conclusion the trustees say, The close of another year in the history of the hospital finds us furnished with increased facilities for good. It is to be hoped that the year entered upon shall so develop these facilities as to prove the wisdom of providing them, and that its close may clearly show that a large advance has been made in it towards that higher and better success always possible and always to be striven for.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE CITY BOARD OF HEALTH.

The fifth annual report of the Board of Health was presented. Sent up. The question of sewerage is first considered, and the board says that the poor of the city are not only suffering for want of work, but also from the foul sewer stench against which this very work should be directed. It is too true, and already too sadly felt in the light of poverty and sickness. It is also unnecessary to say that the moueyed men of Boston, who are to bear the expense, the medical profession, who are daily witnessing its great need, and the thinking community at large, have often and loudly spoken in favor of an immediate beginning of this great work. The diminishing value of real estate in insalubrious but costly parts of our city, as well as our too high death-rate, from preventable causes, demands it without delay. The Back Bay, so called, now a very hackneyed subject, continues to demand a great deal of attention, and is an almost constant source of complaint. Temporary measures have been resorted to by the Board of Health from year to year, with more or less good effect in mitigating this great nuisance. Roxbury Canal still remains prominent among the nuisances of Boston. Leading in from the South Bay, five or six rods wide, and extending several thousand feet to Harrison avenue, we find this great slough or open sewer in the midst of a thickly populated section. The sewage and mire lie a fathom deep, bubbling their gases through the black, putrid water, while the lighter and soluble portions of filth are slowly surging back and forth with the rising and falling of the tide. The sight of this canal from the Albany-street Bridge is sufficient to nauseate any decent man, and it is said that horses, even, have refused to cross the bridge over this slough. We would gladly pass over this subject without a word of complaint, but duty forbids, even though we have besought its remedy for four years in vain. Business and dwelling are alike rendered exceedingly uncomfortable and unhealthy in the whole neighborhood at times, including one of the most beneficent and well-managed institutions in New England, where 250 patients lie, blessed with everything which an intelligent and worthy Board of Trustees and hospital staff can supply, yet deprived of nature's greatest gift—pure air. Last fall the medical staff of the city hospital, together with other physicians and people of that neighborhood, petitioned the City Council for relief from this canal nuisance. Thereupon the City Council asked the Legislature for authority to fill the canal, as a remedy for the trouble. The Legislative Committee on Harbors, to whom the subject was referred, gave a long and patient hearing on the subject, reported in favor of the petitioners, and the Legislature then granted authority to the City Council to take the land and fill the canal. We cannot think the present City Council, knowing the nature and extent of this nuisance, and having the power in their hands to abate it, will allow the people of that neighborhood to pass through another season with this open sewer in their midst. Another serious nuisance, which has brought serious complaints of citizens, directly and indirectly, to the Board of Health, exists between the Eastern Railroad and Canal street in the Charlestown District. Two years ago the greatest nuisance in that section was adjoining the State prison, and was due to two or three acres of sewage flats, which were left bare at low tide, and which gave off the most unbearable stench. This property belonged to the Commonwealth, and was in charge of the Prison Inspectors, who were duly notified to abate the nuisance, but failing to do so the Board of Health was obliged to contract for the work and abate the nuisance by filling the flats to a grade above high water. For this work the city now has a bill against the State for about nine thousand dollars. Since then the complaints have generally designated the Mill Pond flats as the source of the nuisance; but on careful and repeated examinations of the Board of Health the nuisance is not found upon the Mill Pond flats in any degree. But below the dam of the Mill Pond, all the way to near the prison, there are flats which are left bare at low tide, upon which the sewage that formerly lodged near the prison is now rapidly accumulating, and from which a very considerable nuisance must arise. We recommend the abatement of this nuisance by the City Council, as our appropriation is insufficient for a work of such magnitude.

In regard to wet cellars the board says that the proposed marginal sewer should be laid to exclude the tide-water, and the channel of Stony Brook should be widened, straightened and deepened to prevent its overflow.

During the year ending Dec. 31, 1876, there were 8253 deaths recorded. Assuming that the annual rate of increase in the population of the city is the same in the present quinquennial census period, 1875-1880, as in the five years previous to the last census, 1870-1875 (and any other estimate of our population is necessarily speculative and based at the best upon shrewd guesses), the people of Boston, in the year 1876, numbered 352,758. The mean rate of mortality per 1000 of the living in 1876 was, therefore, 23.39. That is to say, to every 100,000 persons living, there were 23.39 who died.

The report treats at length of the mortality in the several districts of the city; of the diseases at varied seasons of the year; the ages of deceased patients; the causes of death; of diphtheria and scarlet fever.

The amount appropriated for the year was—Board of Health, $83,000; Evergreen Cemetery, $800; Quarantine Department, $16,700; total, $100,500. The amount expended was—Board of Health, $58,270.27; Evergreen Cemetery, $2266.64; Quarantine Department, $16,694.44; total, $77,231.35; unexpended, $23,268.65. The income was—Board of Health, $1124.29; Evergreen Cemetery, $1042; Quarantine Department, $2753.80; total, $4920.09.

The reports of the City Physician, Port Physician and Superintendent of the Health Department are contained in the report.

SCHOOLHOUSE SITE IN BRIGHTON.

The order for the purchase of a site for a grammar schoolhouse on corner of Cambridge street, near Harvard avenue, Brighton, 22,000 square feet, cost not to exceed $6000, came up as unfinished business, and was passed. Sent up.

CARRIAGE HIRE.

The order that no carriages be provided at the expense of the city at the close of this session came up as unfinished business, the question being on the passage of the order.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I rise to a point of order, that the order was intended to apply only to hiring carriages on the evening of the last meeting of the Council; we cannot consider it at this meeting.

The Chair—The Chair understands by the wording of the order that it is to go into effect upon its passage.

Mr. Morrill of Ward 20—I offered the order with the intention that it should apply to that night only, and if in order I will move an indefinite postponement.

The motion prevailed.

IMPROVED SEWERAGE.

The orders for a loan of $3,713,000 for an improved system of sewerage, and authorizing a contract for such system as therein set forth, were in the calendar as unfinished business.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—As there are so many vacant chairs tonight, I do not intend to enter upon the discussion of this subject. I wish, however, to call the attention of the Council to some erroneous statements made within the last twenty-four hours in some of the public prints. I have here a communication which appeared in the Transcript of last evening, headed "A City Hoosac Tunnel." It is addressed to the Editor of the Transcript, and says—

"At the last meeting of the City Council a large appropriation for a public park was made, and an order establishing free ferries to East Boston was passed, involving the city in a large annual expenditure of doubtful expediency if not doubtful legality. An order was also offered and laid over until the next meeting asking for an appropriation of $3,713,000 to establish a better system of sewerage. This order is in accordance with surveys recently made by the City Engineer, in a report just published, in which three plans or routes are submitted. One of these routes terminates at Castle Island and the other two at Moou Island, and differ only in the way of reaching that point. The route recommended by the City Engineer is across the marshes lying between South Boston and Savin Hill, and under Dorchester Bay to Squantum and thence to Moon Island, and the appropriation asked for is to cover the estimated expense of this route."

I want to say right here that the gentleman who wrote this article is a very worthy resident of Squantum who fears his property would be injured if this sewer is carried through. I think his fear is groundless. The gentleman is not a resident of Boston, but resides in Quincy, although he makes his appeal to the taxpayers of Boston. He goes on and says—

"But will the estimate cover the cost? Let us look for a moment at what must be done to carry out this plan. Large sewers are to be constructed, nearly surrounding the city, to receive the contents of the existing sewers. These concentrate upon one large one, taking the course above named, which in its passage is to be carried under the waters of Dorchester Bay in a tunnel eighty feet below the surface, one mile and a half in length, and most of the distance through solid rock (I believe this fact is not stated in the report) and thence through other obstacles and difficulties to its destination.

"Do we not see in this a city Hoosac Tunnel of gigantic proportions? Does any one believe that the appropriation asked for is anything more than an entering wedge? The whole scheme is to some extent an experiment—it may not answer the requirements of the city when completed. Let us, before embarking on an enterprise somewhat novel in its character and of such immense cost to the city, exhaust all the resources for obtaining the best information as regards the experience and engineering skill of the cities of the Old World as well as at home."

Editorial attention was called to this communication, and this statement was made: "That the engineers have been rather shady about this tunnel in their report, casting a reflection upon our City Engineer which I thought ought to be corrected. The attention of the editor was called to the fact, and he, as far as he is concerned, puts a correct statement in the following paragraph:

"We were in error in charging City Engineer Davis with 'keeping shady' with regard to the tunnel from Old Harbor Point to Squantum. All the facts in the case are given in full in the report published by the city, as well as a map showing the tunnel through the rock."

At a meeting of the American Statistical Society last evening, a gentleman there presented a paper in behalf of a committee upon this subject of sewerage, and drawing several conclusions. As they are very brief I will read them, and would like to make a reply to them:

"First—That the plan of the commission to establish large intercepting sewers on either side of the city to carry our sewage to a great distance is wise and judicious.

"Second—That the evidence furnished by the commission establishes the fact that sewage deposited at Moon Island, as the commission proposes, will not be carried out to sea so that it will not return, but will be carried up and deposited by the flood tide between Boston and Fort Warren, thus destroying both the upper and the lower harbor."

In reply to that I can only say that the gentlemen of the commission, the engineers who have examined it, and our own engineers, who have been over it again, have a different opinion.

"Sixth—That the expenditure proposed may be reduced nearly one-half, with great benefit to the city, by reducing the excessive size of the main sewers, while the recent fall in the cost of labor, bricks and iron will enable the commission, as gold falls to a level with paper, to reduce still more the cost of construction."

I will only say right here that the size of the sewer is determined very largely by the size of the new conduit being built from Sudbury River. The amount of sewage to be conveyed from the city is about equivalent to the amount of water used by its inhabitants. It has been deemed wise to make preparations for a water supply for many years to come. We have been compelled to build a second one after using one twenty-five years, and in building this sewer the size has been determined for the future as well as for the present.

In regard to the other remarks, where he says that our channel is filling up, I have here the report of Professor Peirce, and also General Humphreys of the United States Army, and Henry Mitchell of the United States Coast Survey, made to the Board of Harbor Commissioners in 1868, where they say there has been no filling up of the channel. I have also seen at the City Engineer's office a chart of the flats and channel 102 years ago and also the latest chart of the harbor at the present time, showing that instead of the channel having shoaled at all, it has rather increased in depth, and also that the flats are not as large in area as they were 100 years ago. The gentleman speaks of the deposit which has been made on Apple Island. If he will examine it he will find that the cause of the deposit is from the formation of a channel through the flats which existed 102 years ago between Apple and Governor's islands, which we all know is the route for the city steamers and the Nahant boats, and is known as the back passage.

Mr. Chairman, as the Council is so thin, I would move that this subject be specially assigned for the next meeting of the Council.

The motion prevailed.

DEPUTY SEALERS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

The subject of salaries for Deputy Sealers of Weights and Measures came from the other branch with their adherence to vote of July 16, fixing the salaries at $825 each per annum, and for a transfer of $2000 from Reserved Fund for the purpose.

The President—Shall the Council insist upon or recede from its former action providing that the sealers be paid by fees?

Mr. Danforth of Ward 10—I move that we adhere to our former vote. Under a salary the duties of this office have never been performed, and the scales have never been sealed. If the sealers are paid by fees, they can earn $1000 a year and the scales will be sealed.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—I hope we shall not adhere to our former action. At the same time, if that is not carried, I wish to move an amendment that the salary be $1000 instead of $825. We had this matter of fees before the Salary Committee; it was fully discussed, and a majority of the committee were satisfied that it would be impossible to collect the fees. There is no penalty attached, and if parties don't pay it is such a small sum for adjusting the scales that I think it would be a pretty small business for the city of Boston to sue for. I understand that the present deputies have sealed quite a large number of scales—some hundreds—in the last two months; and certainly if those parties have had their scales sealed without paying any fees, it certainly would be unfair to let them off and force another portion to pay. It is for the benefit of trade generally—those who purchase as well as those who sell. I am willing to pay my proportion of the cost of sealing the scales, so that I may know that what I purchase is weighed and measured correctly. I know that under the old law if you bought a ton of coal, you had to take the weight of the wharfinger who sold it, or, if you required him to weigh it, you had to pay the fee yourself, so that the fees came from the purchaser instead of the man who sold the coal. A large number of small stores are kept by poor people—little corner grocery stores—who cannot afford to pay the fees for having their scales adjusted. If gentlemen understand the matter, they know the duty is not merely in going to a store and taking one set of scales and adjusting them; but every scale in that store has to be adjusted—both the dry and wet measures—so that all the measures for grain, potatoes, beans, oil, molasses and other articles have to be sealed. If you go into a small store, perhaps there are a large number of scales, and the owner has to pay quite a bill, while in a wholesale store only one or two are used; so that in those small stores it is really a hardship. I think it ought to come out of those who purchase as well as those who sell. They should pay their proportion, and we pay ours. As a large portion of these people are poor, and are trying to get an honest living—which is hard enough nowadays—this matter will come hard on them; and this year I think we ought to let it go along as we have been, by paying the assistants a regular salary. At the same time I don't think $825 sufficient. I am very well satisfied that those deputy sealers are able men. There was some little talk when they went into the office, and I think there was some reason for it. The principal of the office did not know his duty, could not instruct his assistants, and there was some little confusion for a few days. But they have got through it now, and are doing good work, and doing it honestly and faithfully; and I think $1000 is none too much, and in justice they ought to have it. I know that all those men have families to support, and $800 will hardly do it. Therefore I hope we shall not concur.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5—After the elaborate and thorough explanation of the gentleman who has just sat down, we find that those gentlemen are taking care of the molasses cups—and if they have any occasion for it, they take a little fluid—and that is going to help the poor people. I think it is fixed perfectly right now, and I hope it will pass as the Aldermen have fixed it.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 10—I trust the amendment of the gentleman from Ward 10 will prevail. This matter has been handed back and forth between the two branches, and sent to committees, and it seems to me it is high time to fix upon the salaries. I trust the Council will concur with the Board of Aldermen. Last year there was one assistant whose salary the Retrenchment Committee fixed at $800; since then they have added four men to help do nothing. As stated by one of the Aldermen it seems to me the office is not worth more than $800.

The Council refused to adhere to its former action, and the question was on concurrence.

Mr. Clarke moved to strike out $825 and insert $1000.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I am compelled once again to ask whether we have forgotten all about economy. A gentleman has been talking about the poor grocers, and about helping them by not calling upon them to pay these fees. My impression is that it is not the poor grocers he is thinking about, but the gentlemen who have these offices, and who want to get good salaries out of them. So far as I understand, this is a case where certain competent men have been turned out of office—as has been done too many times this year—and incompetent men, who do not know the business, have been put in simply because they are politicians and want something. I believe the attention of the citizens of Boston ought to be called to what is going on here in City Hall—how competent men are being turned out of office, one after another, against whom no fault has been alleged; no complaint that they have not done their duty properly—and incompetent men put in their place, and in this case we are asked to go further and give them an increased salary. Another instance of this is now under consideration in another branch of the City Government. His Honor the Mayor has proposed to drop the present Superintendent of Printing, a gentleman against whom honesty, capacity, and untiring devotion to the business of his office, not a whisper has ever been heard, and to substitute in his place, solely in compliance with the demands of party, another gentleman, who is a politician having claims on his party; a man who wants something done for him; a man who, I think, nobody claims is as well acquainted with the duties of the office as the present incumbent. It seems to me that the people of Boston ought to have their attention called to this thing, and that they ought to understand what is going on. There is really no question in this case about relieving poor grocers from the payment of fees for sealing their weights and measures; but the real question is as to how large salaries shall be given to politicians who have been put into office on account of their claims on the party, and because they need assistance.

Mr. Hibbard of Ward 17—I certainly hope this amendment will not prevail. If there is a humbug in the city of Boston, it is this office of Sealer of Weights and Measures. They go into a store, and if the scales do not balance they put a B upon them. If they are not correct, you must send them to the manufacturer. I believe that a man can do all the work with a salary of $500. I don't know anything about the measures. As has been said, we have paid competent men $800, and it seems to me that to pay incompetent men $1000 a year is an outrage upon the citizens of Boston.

Mr. Clarke—I desire to inform the gentleman that the assistants last year were employed in a different manner from the deputies at the present time. Those assistants were merely a sort of "lumpers" who went around with the principal sealer and did his work with him, and assisted him in carrying around the scales; but so far as the sealing is concerned they did not do it, as the law required him to do it himself. Since then the Legislature passed an act which requires the city to appoint deputies to do that work, and makes the deputy responsible for it, as well as the principal; consequently the assistants have to do as much, and have as much responsibility, as the principal himself. The salary of $800 was fixed last year to pay men who acted as a sort of "lumpers" for the Sealer. The work is altogether different this year. We have good men there and they ought to receive reasonable compensation. I would reply to the gentleman in regard to the office of Sealer of Weights and Measures being a sort of political office, amounting to nothing, and not doing any good. I would inform him that that office was established by the Legislature, and the act requires the city of Boston to have the work done properly; and we cannot help ourselves. We are obliged to do it. Whether the gentleman thinks it is well to have the scales balanced or not, the Legislature requires us to do it, and we have got to get competent men to do it and pay them fair pay.

Mr. Brintnall of Ward 5—The gentleman on my right has made a mistake which I wish to correct. He says the sealers send the scales to a manufacturer. I think he is mistaken. They have tools which they use to correct the weights and measures in the office. I don't know that $825 is enough, but they are certainly doing a great deal of work at this time. They are at work from eight o'clock in the morning to five or six at night. The gentleman from Ward 10 has the right idea, that they should be paid by fees; but I don't see how they are going to seal the weights and measures unless parties bring them to the office, and there is no law now compelling him to bring them in, and the sealers are obliged to go around to the stores. For that reason they are not more than half sealed. But it seems to me it is too late to commence collecting fees this year, and so I don't see but we shall have to give up the fees this year. I happened to drop into the office during the last two weeks and they seemed to be very busy. I move to make the salary $3 a day or $900 a year.

Mr. Clarke accepted the amendment of Mr. Brintnall.

Mr. Blodgett of Ward 8—If we could hire some of these "lumpers" that the gentleman from Ward 22 speaks about for about $500, it seems to me we should certainly have more competent men than those we have in office now. I hope the amendment will not prevail.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I feel a good deal as the gentleman from Ward 17 does. I don't believe a grocer is going to be honest merely from sealing his scales. If he is not honest you cannot make him so by sealing the scales. After the sealer has gone it is very easy to take the shot out. If we want the work done well I think they should be paid by fees. If so, they can earn $1000 and leave a balance in the treasury.

Mr. Danforth—The duties of this office have never been performed under a salary. Last year only 1600 scales were sealed in Boston, and there are at least 20,000 in use. So it cost the city of Boston about $4000 to seal 1600 scales. The office is nothing but a sinecure.

Mr. Clarke—I understand that since the present sealers have been in office they have sealed as many scales as were sealed last year. That shows they are doing a good work.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—There is something very mysterious about this increase of the salaries of these gentlemen. At the first of the year two assistants were doing the work satisfactorily, and when we fixed their salary at $800 it never was intimated that they were not experienced and competent men. Now, there are four new men, who never sealed a scale before in their lives, and it is suddenly discovered that they ought to have $1000 a year. If in order, I move to amend by making the salary $800. If any one can show that these men should have their salaries raised on account of ignorance, I should be glad to entertain it.

Mr. Webster's amendment ($800) was carried by a division—25 for, 23 against.

The order as amended was rejected in non-concurrence—yeas 10, nays 45:

Yeas—Messrs. Barnard, Coe, Cross, Danforth, Day, Dee, Hibbard, Hiscock, Morrill—9.

Nays—Messrs. Brintnall, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Cox, Doherty, Duggan, Felt, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Ham, Howes, Jackson, Kelley, (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, McClinsky, McDonald, McGaragle, Mowry, Mullane, Nugent, Pearl, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, Pratt, Reed, J. B. Richardson, Roach, Roberts, Ruffin, Sampson, Shepard, Sibley, Spenceley, Thorndike, Upham, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—45.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Barry, Beeching, Blanchard, Blodgett, Brown, Crocker, Fagan, Loughlin, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Perham, Pope, M. W. Richardson, Smardon, Souther, Stone, Thompson—17.

OCCUPATION OF STREETS FOR BUILDING PURPOSES.

The ordinance in relation to the occupation of streets for building purposes came down with the adherence of the other branch in their refusal to refer the same to the Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings.

The question was on receding from the former action of the Council.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—I hope the Council will not insist upon its former action in sending it to that committee. It pertains to the occupation of streets for building purposes, and has nothing to do with building. The Inspector has nothing to do with it. If it should go to any committee, it should go to the Committee on Streets. I know from personal knowledge that some members of the Street Committee understand it, and do not desire to have it go to that committee. It is desirable that some person should have charge of these permits whose duty it is to see that the laws and ordinances and rules pertaining to the occupation of streets should be observed and enforced. The question was only briefly discussed at our last meeting, when the reference was made. I do not see the necessity for it. The ordinance is not very different from the one that heretofore existed, except that it puts the granting of permits where everybody who has examined it admits it should go—to the office of the Inspector of Buildings.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I don't blame him for not seeing. That is the most remarkable speech I ever heard in this Council. The gentleman says he cannot see what bearing this has on building. Here is an ordinance specially framed to give parties leave to occupy so much of the sidewalk with building material, and the gentleman says he cannot see what it has to do with buildings. I don't blame him for not seeing. This is an old established custom in Boston, and has been attended to by a lieutenant of police in the Chief's office. You made your application to Lieutenant Goodwin, who asked you how much of the sidewalk you wanted to occupy. You told him four or six feet in front of the premises designated; he then filled up the blank permit, and you proceeded to put a fence across. When the police officer in that district came around he asked for your permit, and you showed it to him, and he saw that you were located in accordance with it. If it is within anybody's province it is the Inspector's, for he grants the permit to build and the deputy has to go and inspect the work. There has never been an instance known of a party being prosecuted and fined for not having a permit, though parties have been fined for not having put up a lantern at night. I think it should go to the committee. An additional appropriation has been made for the department, they have employed a new clerk and six additional inspectors, making fourteen, and I think they can issue all the permits called for.

Mr. Richardson—It seems to me the gentleman misrepresents the duties of this officer. It is not to issue permits and not to fill them out; but after they are granted his duty is to see that the regulations and ordinance are enforced by actual observation upon the ground. His duty will be to go day after day and see that parties who are building do not encroach upon the public rights. It is not mere clerical labor in the office which a boy or girl can do, but outside work. He is an executive officer of the department. This matter did not originate with the committee; it was sent to them and they reported that such an office should be created. What is everybody's duty is nobody's duty, and the work has been left unperformed. The gentleman had no need to call me blind—he made his remarks courteously, of course.

Mr. McGaragle—I did not intend anything of that kind; but I know what I am talking about, as I am in that line of business and get permits every day. It was a slip of the tongue, and I did not intend anything personal. The police see that the rule is carried out. No one ever saw Lieutenant Goodwin on the building.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—It seems to me it is very essential to have a man appointed to take charge of this work. By the ordinance it was formerly given to the Chief of Police. We have recently authorized more help employed in the Inspector's Department, and I should like to know who is going to attend to it. I think there have been many cases of prosecution for violating the terms of the building permit. If we had a man in that office to look after the occupation of the streets it seems to me it would be very desirable.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—If this discussion goes on we shall get a great deal of information. One gentleman says the special duties of this officer are to visit places and see that the law is properly carried out. Another gentleman says it is—

Mr. Richardson read the fifth section, defining the duties of the officer, and said that was what he had explained.

Mr. Wilbur—I did not say the gentleman was not right, but that two gentlemen advocating it made different statements. I have had occasion to get permits, and they have always come from the police whose duty it was to see that the laws were enforced. I don't know but it is proper to create another office, but it don't strike me favorably.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—While the gentleman is right in what he says, I suppose he well knows that any infraction of any law the police always report. A policeman is not an inspector of buildings, but let him see the ordinance in respect to the inspection of buildings violated, and he immediately reports it. A policeman does not grant a permit for putting up a building, but let him see one being put up against the ordinance, and he is to report it. He is to report anything that he sees going on against any city ordinance, and therefore I say it is his duty to report this. If this office is created and this man appointed, it is his place to see that the law is carried out. There may be an obstruction in the street, and if it remains the officer must notify this officer and he must remove it. So after all it belongs to the police to see that the ordinance is enforced.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I should like to ask the gentleman who has just sat down whether he has known any case in which the work has not been properly performed in times past, and if so, why it is not possible to continue it in something the same shape it has been in years gone by without the creation of a new office.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I do not know of any such case, but I do know why we should not create an office for this work and pay a man a thousand dollars as well as a policeman $1096. All the difference it makes, as far as builders are concerned, is that if this is made a new office we get our permits without going through a certain form of red tape we have been used to.

Mr. Clark of Ward 22—There has been a good deal of talk about this matter, but the work has always been done properly in the regular way. I do not know but what we might have Al Watts, who goes around after dogs, attend to it, and save the expense of appointing another man. As far as the matter of the obstruction of the streets is concerned, the policemen have very little to do now except to walk up and down the streets and pass ladies across the crossings, and they can look after these obstructions and report them to the Chief of Police; and, if a builder has any fault to find, he can go to the Chief of Police and have the matter corrected. If you appoint one man to attend to that particular business, he will be very apt to be arbitrary and assume a great deal more authority than you expect him to. I hope the work will be left to the police instead of to a man specially appointed.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—By this ordinance, if I understand it, this officer is to visit those places for which permits are given out, and see that they are used according to the ordinance. I would like to know how much time he would have in his office if he has got to be at these places every day to see that this law is properly carried out. It seems to me if we should create this office in this way there would have to be an assistant appointed to visit these places. A man cannot go to the office and find the principal to get a permit, for he will be out in Brighton or Roxbury or Jamaica Plain, or some other place, visiting places where permits have been granted, to see whether they are properly used.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—I do not understand that this man is expected to be at his office. He does not issue these permits, but is the executive officer of the department to see that the law is properly enforced. I do not know that he has anything to do with it. The Inspector is to issue the permits, because he is supposed to know from the style of the building the permit is given for what kind of a permit ought to be given. Certainly he would know a great deal better than the Chief of Police or the Deputy Chief how much of the street should be occupied.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—Will the gentleman allow me to ask him one question? What authority has the Inspector to issue these permits?

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—Why, it is provided for by this same ordinance, if the gentleman has read it. It is an ordinance of five or six sections. The issue of these permits has heretofore been upon application to the Chief of Police or his deputy. They both say they want to get rid of it. Perhaps I cannot better throw light upon the matter than by referring to the history of it. This matter was submitted to a committee, and in the minutes of the Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen, June 25, page 450, is the following report:

"Alderman Robinson submitted the following:

"The Committee on Police, to whom was referred the order providing for the appointment of a person to have charge of the permits for occupying streets for building purposes, having considered the subject, beg leave to report that the Board of Aldermen has not the power to create the office contemplated by the order, or to appropriate money for its support, and therefore the order ought not to pass. The committee are of the opinion that it would be a great convenience to all persons interested in building operations to have an officer attached to the Department for the Survey and Inspection of Buildings and authorized to perform the duties in relation to occupying streets for building purposes heretofore performed by the Police Department."

This came from the chairman of the Committee on Police on the ground, as I understand, that there have been numerous complaints that the regulations have not been properly enforced. Proceeding on that ground they say—

"They would therefore recommend the passage of the following:

"Ordered, That the Committee on Ordinances be requested to report an ordinance providing for the appointment of a suitable person to be attached to the Department for the Survey and Inspection of Buildings, who shall have charge of permits for occupying streets for building purposes, instead of detailing a police officer for the purpose.

"Passed. Sent down."

It appears from that, as is well known, heretofore the policemen on the several beats have not done it. It has been found necessary to appoint a man of perhaps more intelligence than the ordinary policeman, or for some other reason, to have charge of it. That is the origin and history of this matter. When it came to the Committee on Ordinances, it fell to my lot to make a draft of an ordinance. After a great deal of investigation and discussion it was the opinion of everybody that applications should be made to and permits granted by the Inspector of Buildings without going to the Chief of Police or to the Deputy Chief, who, of course, do not know how large a part of the street it would be necessary to occupy for any building, and a little amendment of the law was made in that particular, and also in regard to putting up two lanterns instead of one, which gentlemen will find by reading the ordinance.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—It seems to me, sir, the granting of these permits should be associated with the Inspector of Buildings if possible. As it is now we all know we have to go to the Deputy Chief of Police to get these permits, and certainly it would be far more convenient if they were granted at the department of the Inspector of Buildings. The question, it seems to me, which should be decided is whether we should create a new office. I certainly don't think it is necessary to create a new office to carry on the granting of these permits. It seems to me the simplest way of getting out of this difficulty would be to merely change this ordinance, which is on page 755, in this respect. As it reads now applications for permits must be made to the Chief of Police or to the Deputy Chief. I would merely change that ordinance so that applications should be made to the Inspector of Buildings. It is a matter associated with the jurisdiction of the Inspector of Buildings, and I think by that change we can get rid of the responsibility of establishing a new office.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—The suggestion of the gentleman from Ward 10 is partly correct. I read from the proceedings of the Board of Aldermen, page 437:

"Alderman Breck offered an order—That the Mayor be authorized to appoint, subject to the confirmation of the Board of Aldermen, a competent person to have charge of permits for the occupation of the sidewalks for building purposes, under the supervision of the Chief of Police; the compensation of the person so appointed not to exceed the sum of four dollars per day, payable monthly from the date of his appointment, and to be charged to the appropriation for Police.

"Alderman Breck moved the reference of the order to the Committee on Police.

"Alderman Clark—Does that order contemplate adding one more member to the Police Department?"

"Alderman Breck—It does not. It makes the duties so that we are not obliged to take another man from the police force. This officer is very necessary in putting up new buildings, and he has to go wherever the Chief sees fit to send him, and this saves him one man on the police force. We need every man we have there.

"Alderman Clark—But I understand that the man who has had charge of that department was a police officer, and I think the office should be filled by a policeman. It does, as I claim, add one man to the police force of the city of Boston, at a cost of $1000 a year, and makes an increase of sixteen men instead of fifteen. If one man was taken from the department to perform that duty, why not take another man from the department in his place? Let us put the thing as it is. It is adding one man to the Police Department.

"Alderman Robinson—It is to be referred to the Police Committee; but it has not been acted upon.

"Alderman Clark—But I want that question decided before it is referred, with all due respect to the committee. It adds one more man to the police force. The man who has had charge of the building permits has resigned or been discharged, and this is to fill his place. I should presume it was necessary for a man to be clothed with police power to fill that place.

"The order was referred to the Committee on Police."

That is the origin of it, sir. I happened to be present in the Board of Aldermen when this order was considered, and know something of its history. It was created to give a party a job. I am willing to give any man a situation provided there is any necessity for it, but certainly I cannot stand up here and vote to create an office simply to give a man a job, and will not do it.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—I hope this motion will be referred to the Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings, for this reason: If I understand it rightly, the Inspector of Buildings is going to appoint six new men. I have no doubt he will appoint one or two good ones that he will keep permanently. He has appointed a new clerk, and I believe with that help he can carry on this business as well as though we should create a new office. I believe the police officers of the city of Boston are capable of looking after the streets and seeing the ordinances enforced. I have had some experience in working on the streets, and I have never had a job on the street where a police officer did not wait on me as soon as I commenced and find out how far I was allowed in the street, and keep me there as strictly as any new appointee could do it. But I do not believe it is possible for any one man to go out and attend to that business. The police will have to do it. The object of this appointment is to have this man stay in that office and do clerical duty, and that is all he will have to do. I believe a clerk in half an hour can write as many of these permits as are ever required in a day.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I fully agree with the gentleman who has just taken his seat that it is nothing but clerical duty. The whole duty of taking care of them is in the hands of the police. They are on the streets and pass the buildings many times a day, and they are the ones who can see if there is anything obstructing the streets outside the permits granted. It is merely clerical work for this new officer. There have never been any complaints unless they have come from the police. They are the men who probably look after this matter. I hope the ordinance will be referred.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—This ordinance consists of six sections. I understand everybody agrees that by the first section the application shall be made and the permit granted by him. The second section provides that the space shall be enclosed by a fence which shall be kept up during the whole time of occupation, and that at night lanterns shall be put up. The third section provides that any person occupying a part of any street while engaged in making or repairing a building shall provide a safe avenue or passage around or over it. Section 4 provides that any person violating any provision shall be liable to a penalty. The next section provides for the appointment of a person to have charge of them, and the sixth section for his removal in case of malfeasance in office or neglect of duty. Now as to the first, second, third and fourth sections I have not heard any objection.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—I would like to know if that is not the present law.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—It is not.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—It is the principle of the law now in force.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—Why no it is not. The gentleman has only to read it. I have read it half a dozen times. As I have stated, the first section refers to the granting of the permits. I understand there has been no suggestion here that the Inspector is not the proper person to do that. That is different from the old law, which provides that applications shall be made to the Chief of Police or to the Deputy Chief.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—I mean the law that is enforced. As the gentleman read it it is pretty near like it.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—Pretty near! It is different, entirely different.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—I believe, sir, the police officer is the proper party to enforce that law. How is this Inspector going to tell whether the lights are out or not? As far as the fence is concerned, the builder has got to build a proper fence and put out proper lights. He has got to white-wash his fence and do all such things. The police officers are out, night and day, at all hours. They can tell when a light goes out, and it is their duty to report it. If there is any obstruction, it is their duty to make a report. They have to make a report of the lamps all over the city. I would like to know in what better or safer hands it could be than in the hands of the police officers of the city. Now they propose to put all that business in the hands of one man to see that this is done. I do not see how he can do it. He ought to have a salary of $5000 a year. I believe the issuing of the permits should be in the hands of the Inspector of Buildings, but I also believe that the Police Department should enforce the laws and the ordinances, and that they are the only authorities that can do it.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—This is an office that corresponds with an office in other departments—the Superintendent of Hacks, for instance. The gentleman could argue that the policemen of the city could see any infraction of the ordinance in relation to the standing of hacks. And yet everybody knows perfectly well that all the complaints are made by the Superintendent of Hacks. It is necessary that there should be some one who knows exactly what the law is in that particular. Very likely a policeman sees a violation of the law, but he reports it to the Superintendent, and he takes it and prosecutes it. This is not a singular office. It is the duty of some executive officer to see that the law is enforced.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—I would like to ask if it is necessary to have two executive officers in this department.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—I will answer the gentleman that the Inspector is expected to remain in his office. This man, as I have stated, is to be the executive officer to see that the ordinances and laws are enforced in the city.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I would like to ask the gentleman one question.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—Certainly.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—How is this man going to visit 500 of these buildings in one day, between six o'clock in the morning and eight o'clock in the evening?

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—Perhaps he cannot, but he can visit some of them. I think it would be very desirable and convenient that, before any prosecution was made for the infraction of any ordinance, somebody should investigate it who understands it, and see whether the law has been violated. It is making somebody responsible for it. It is an important matter, and is growing more important every day when we cannot pass down Washington street without being crowded clear out into the middle of the street, no lights at night, and no safe and convenient passage around or over the obstruction. I think it ought to be in the hands of somebody more competent than the average policeman. The average policeman can gain information and make reports to the Chief of Police or Deputy Chief; but before prosecution he would have to go and see whether a man has actually violated the law. He cannot do it, and does not want to do it. They say it has not been properly attended to, and this order originally came from the Committee on Police.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—It is news to me that this law has been so badly violated. If there is a place on Washington street where there has not been a proper fence and a proper light put up, it is news to me. I believe it is in good hands, and I move an indefinite postponement of the whole subject.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—The ordinance is all right, I think, but I object to the creation of a new office, and that is the reason I want it referred to a committee.

The Chair decided the motion to indefinitely postpone to be out of order. The Council refused to recede from its former action on the ordinance, and insisted upon the reference to the Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings. Sent up.

CLAIMS.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17 submitted reports from the Committee on Claims of leave to withdraw on petitions of George P. Baldwin for leave to surrender to the city a certain tax title to an estate on Columbus avenue, and that the money paid thereon be refunded; of James C. Tucker that a certain amount paid for an invalid tax title be refunded to him; and of Michael Doherty for the remission of certain taxes erroneously assessed. Severally accepted. Sent up.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

Mr. Shepard of Ward 4, submitted the following from the Joint Committee on Public Buildings:

Report on request for additional accommodations for South Boston branch of the Public Library—That the additional rent seems large for the accommodations required for the library, and that as a tenant occupying a portion of the building demands a large bonus for his portion, they deem it inexpedient to take further action. Accepted. Sent up.

Report and Order—That the Committee on Public Buildings be authorized to provide heating apparatus for the Brimmer Schoolhouse together with fire-proof room for the same, at an estimated expense of $5000; to be charged to the Appropriation for Schoolhouses and Public Buildings. Read twice under a suspension of the rule and passed. Sent up.

Ordered, That the Committee on Public Buildings be authorized to provide steam-heating apparatus for Curtis Hall, Ward 23, at an estimated expense of $3000. Read twice and passed under a suspension of the rule. Sent up.

THE CHARLOTTE HARRIS BEQUEST.

Mr. Morrill of Ward 20 submitted a report from the Committee on Public Library on the Executive communication in regard to the bequest of the late Charlotte Harris, recommending the passage of the following:

Ordered, That the generous bequest of Charlotte Harris to the Charlestown Public Library of the sum of $10,000, together with her private library and a portrait of her grandfather, Richard Devens, Esq., be accepted, and that his Honor the Mayor be requested to make a suitable acknowledgment therefor to the executors of the will.

Ordered, That the Trustees of the Public Library be authorized to receive the private library and portrait mentioned in said bequest, and to deposit the same in the Charlestown branch of the Public Library.

Ordered, That the City Treasurer be authorized to receive from the executors of the will of Charlotte Harris the sum of $10,000, and to invest said amount in certificates of indebtedness of the city of Boston, bearing interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, and payable to the city of Boston, the securities for the same to be deposited with the Auditor of Accounts, and that the Trustees of the Public Library be authorized to accept the same in accordance with the terms of the bequest.

Severally read twice and passed. Sent up.

LIBERTY SQUARE.

Mr. Felt of Ward 18, for the Committee on Streets, offered an order—That his Honor the Mayor be authorized to execute a release to the Liberty-square Warehouse Company for 386 feet of land adjoining the estate of said company, upon said company giving to the city a deed or release, satisfactory to the City Solicitor, of a like parcel of land taken by the Board of Street Commissioners from said company, to widen Liberty square.

Mr. Felt—I will explain that this lot of land fronts on Liberty square, and is irregular in shape. On the westerly side it projects into the square at a short angle, and on the easterly side it recedes. The proposition is that the company shall release to the city 386 feet on one side, upon the city giving them a like quantity on the other, so that their front may be circular and symmetrical. It will be mutually advantageous.

Upon motion of Mr. Felt of Ward 18, the order was passed under a suspension of the rules. Sent up.

Mr. Felt of Ward 18, for the Committee on Streets, offered an order—That his Honor the Mayor be authorized to execute a release to William Rumrill and J. H. Stanton for 188 feet of land lying between Rockland street and the estate of said Rumrill and Stanton upon the payment of $47 to the city.

Mr. Felt of Ward 18—I will explain to the Council that this is merely a little triangular piece of land, containing 188 feet on Rockland street, which the butters propose to take at the assessed value of twenty-five cents per foot, making $47.

Under a suspension of the rules, the order was read twice and passed.

CLERK OF THE FERRIES.

Mr. Pearl of Ward 1 offered an order, That from the first day of August, 1877, until otherwise ordered, the salary of the clerk of the Directors of East Boston Ferries shall be $2000, payable monthly, and the salary of the oiler and wiper of the East Boston Ferries $65 per month.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I would ask if the Retrenchment Committee, in their report, did not provide for the salaries of these officers?

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—We did.

Mr. Pearl of Ward 1—I will state for the information of the Council that the clerk of East Boston ferries is receiving at the present time $2700 per year. It was the opinion of the Board of Directors that $2000 was ample for the office, therefore they offered the order. In regard to the wiper and oiler, he is considered a first-class fireman. The Retrenchment Committee reduced his salary to $62 per month; we have raised it to the pay of a first-class fireman.

Mr. McGaragle—I would move the reference of that order to the Committee on Salaries. I would like to send it to the Committee on Retrenchment, but I suppose they are out of existence.

The motion to refer was lost—18 to 21—and the order was read twice and passed, under a suspension of the rule. Sent up.

REFRESHMENT BILL.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—When the President called for reconsiderations I did not understand the call and therefore omitted to make a reconsideration of the rejection of the order introduced by me at the last meeting of the Council. I would like to do so now.

The Chair—The motion will not be in order until the matter is taken from the table. It will remain recorded.

MYSTIC VALLEY SEWER.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6 presented the following:

In compliance with the order of Feb. 15, 1876, which authorized the Mystic Water Board to construct the Mystic Valley Sewer, and purchase any land necessary therefor, under which order the board was instructed, in case it shall be found necessary to take any land otherwise than by purchase for any of the purposes named in section 22 of chapter 202 of the acts of 1875, to prepare the necessary descriptions and orders for such taking and submit the same to the City Council, the Boston Water Board have prepared such descriptions and order, and herewith respectfully submit the same:

Ordered, That under the power and authority given to the city by the acts of the Legislature of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, passed May 10, 1875, entitled "An act to Authorize the city of Boston to construct a sewer in the Mystic Valley," accepted by the City Council July 12, 1875, and amended by the 11th chapter of the acts of the year 1877; and in part execution of such power and authority, and for the purpose set forth in the first-named act, the city of Boston has taken and does hereby take the following described several parcels of land situated in the towns of Medford, Winchester and Woburn, in the county of Middlesex, for the use and behoof of said city and its successors, namely:

[Here follow the minute descriptions of the property taken.]

Excepting however all public ways included in any of the aforesaid described parcels, and reserving and saving to each and all of the owners of said parcels for themselves and their heirs and assigns the right to cultivate said parcels, and to pass and repass across the same with teams or otherwise, to and from adjoining lands, and the rights of cultivation are to be so used as not to injure the sewer which the city is to construct, nor in any way or degree interfere with the use of said parcels for the purpose named in the act, or the examination and repair of the works.

To have and to hold the same to the said city of Boston and its successors to its and their use and behoof, agreeably to the provisions of said act.

Read twice and passed. Sent up.

ORCHARD PARK.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20 offered an order—That the Committee on Common and Squares consider the expediency of enlarging Orchard park by taking four lots on the westerly side, setting edge-stones on the northerly side, and also planting trees on said park. Refused a second reading.

THE VACATION.

On motion of Mr. Flynn, it was ordered that when the Council adjourn it be to the second Thursday in September.

RECONSIDERATIONS.

Mr. Fraser moved to reconsider the vote whereby was passed the order in regard to taking land for Mystic Valley sewer. Lost. Sent up.

Mr. Howes moved to reconsider the vote whereby was refused a second reading to the order to invite the governors. Lost.

Mr. Clarke moved to reconsider the vote in regard to salaries of deputy sealers of weights and measures. Lost by a division—16 for, 23 against.

Adjourned, on motion of Mr. Blodgett of Ward 8, and stood adjourned to September 13.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen,

JULY 30, 1877.

Regular meeting at four o'clock P. M., his Honor the Mayor presiding.

EXECUTIVE NOMINATIONS.

Police Officers Without Pay—Robert H. Kemp, Charles Nason, James Doyle, Thomas Harahau. Confirmed.

Lieutenant of Police—Nathaniel Emerson. Referred to Committee on Police.

HEARINGS ON ORDERS OF NOTICE.

Sewers. Hearings were had on the orders of notice on expediency of constructing sewers in Bowe street and Forbes street; in Taylor street; in Curtis street, Bowe street and Forbes place. No one appeared to object, and the orders were recommitted to the Committee on Sewers.

Highland Railroad Company. Hearing on petition for leave to run their cars to the Northern depots.

C. A. Richards, president of the Metropolitan Railroad, and E. W. James, for himself and other residents of the West End, appeared as remonstrants, but a letter was read by Alderman Slade from Moody Merrill, president of the Highland Railway Company, stating that he was unable to be present, and requesting a postponement on account of ill-health. On motion of Alderman Slade, the hearing was postponed for two weeks.

PETITIONS REFERRED.

To the Committee on Sewers. John Gilhenny et al., for a sewer in Wendell street, south of Preble street; George Woods Rice, for a sewer in Seaver street and Blue Hill avenue to Schuyler street; Michael F. Lynch, for a sewer in Wesley street, Ward 15.

To the Committee on Licenses. John Stetson, for leave to give dramatic and musical exhibitions at the Howard Athenæum for the season of 1877-78.

To the Committee on Health on the part of the Board. Petitions for leave to occupy stables by R. T. Paine, Jr., five new wooden, twelve horses each, on Cary street; J. N. Goodnough, new wooden, two horses, Emerson street; A. D. Williams, old wooden, one additional horse, Prescott street; Isaac H. Cary, new wooden, two horses, Lotus street.

Clapp & Underhill, for leave to excavate cellar of building 69-71 Beverly street, to grade ten.

To the Committee on Paving. Petitions for brick sidewalks in front of Everett Schoolhouse, on Sumner street; and in front of estates of Stillman B. Allen, corner West Chester park and Columbus avenue; Edward Doyle, 124 Everett street, East Boston; James Coakley, 272 West Third street.

Washingtonian Home, that Waltham street be macadamized between Shawmut avenue and Washington street; Boston Boat Club, for leave to land at Fruit street; Asa P. Potter, for brick sidewalks at corner Commonwealth avenue and Fairfield street; Peter McCarthy, to be compensated for grade damages at 1511 Tremont street; Patrick O'Connor, to be compensated for grade damages at 1513 Tremont street.

William R. Cavanagh, for leave to move two wooden buildings from O street to East Ninth street.

J. D. S. Roberts et al., that a portion of Highland street be called "Lewis park," and numbered.

Michael F. Lynch, that the city would purchase the property and franchise of the Metropolitan Railroad Company in Ward 24.

MISCELLANEOUS PAPERS FROM THE COMMON COUNCIL.

Petitions were referred in concurrence.

Reports (leave to withdraw) on petitions of—

Michael Doherty, that certain taxes be refunded.

George P. Baldwin, relating to an invalid tax title.

James C. Tucker, relating to an invalid tax title. Severally accepted in concurrence.

Order for the Mayor to release to Rumrill & Stanton a strip of land (188 feet) on Rockland street, for $47. Passed in concurrence.

Resolve and order to take the lands required for construction of the Mystic Valley Sewer. Passed in concurrence.

Order to pay, after Aug. 1, next, $2000 to the clerk of the East Boston Ferries, and $65 per month to the oiler and wiper.

Alderman Gibson—The salary of this clerk was formerly $3000, but the Retrenchment Committee fixed it at $2700. I don't recollect anything about the other salary. I thought it would be as well to let it remain as the committee fixed it.

Report and order accepting the bequest of Charlotte Harris to Charlestown Public Library, and directing the investment of the money in a six per cent. city bond. Order passed in concurrence.

Order to provide a steam-heating apparatus for Curtis Hall, West Roxbury, at a cost of $3000. Passed in concurrence.

Order for repair of floors and stalls of West City Stable, at a cost of $2000. Passed in concurrence.

Report (inexpedient) to enlarge the quarters for the South Boston Public Library. Accepted in concurrence.

Report and order to provide steam-heating apparatus for the Brimmer Schoolhouse, at a cost of $5000. Order passed in concurrence.

LIBERTY-SQUARE WAREHOUSE.

An order came down for the Mayor to release to Liberty-square Warehouse Company a strip of land on Liberty square (386 feet), upon said company giving a deed to the city of a strip of other land (386 feet) to straighten the lines of the street.

Alderman Clark—I suppose a little explanation in regard to this order is necessary. The owner of the land proposes to commence immediately to erect upon that piece of land in Liberty square a large building. In order to make the front symmetrical it is necessary to obtain a piece of land which is now in the street, belonging to the city. They propose to give an equal number of feet which face on the square on Water street for the same number of feet which face on the square on Kilby street. It is an even exchange feet by feet, and by so doing it will enable them to build a symmetrical front, which they could not if they built upon the land as they now own it. The same number of feet is given in exchange for the land that the city gives.

The order was passed in concurrence.

VACATION OF FIREMEN.

The order to allow two weeks' vacation to employes of Fire-Alarm Department without loss of pay, came up with an amendment to allow a similar vacation to the members of the permanent force of the Fire Department.

The question was on concurring with the Council in the reference of the ordinance to the Committee on the Survey and Inspection of Buildings.

Alderman Burnham—It seems to me this should not be a very difficult matter to understand. This order calls for a vacation for the members of the Fire Department if it can be given without detriment to the department. Now who are to be the judges? Our Fire Commissioners ought to be. Our Fire Commissioners run the Fire Department.

We have chosen them for that purpose, and they ought to know what they are doing. We recognized that fact when we asked their second consideration of this matter. They have given us their opinion, and in their report they say, "It is not expedient, and cannot be done with detriment to the service." There seems to have been a good deal of enthusiasm over the matter in the other branch—perhaps we might call it sympathy for the firemen. But I do not know that there is less of sympathy in this Board; indeed I think there is quite as kind feeling here. I am sure I would have every man as comfortable as possible while in the discharge of his duty. The Fire Commissioners tell me the firemen are so comfortable now, so well satisfied, that they have not asked for vacation without pay, and do not now ask it. If I understand it, this request comes to the Council from their outside friends. I think the firemen as a class believe that they are governed by an able Fire Commission. They have confidence in them and in their management of and care for the department. The firemen know that the department is run with a little less, rather than over, the standard number of men. They can see that so run there must be substitutes to give the two weeks' added vacation, and that the substitutes will cost the city almost $10,000, and knowing that they can have the vacation by providing a substitute themselves, they seem to be content. They do not seem to fear that they are an abused set of men. As chairman of the Committee on Fire Department, I have not had one fireman to me to plead for a paid vacation, and it seems to me that under this state of things the report of the Fire Commissioners is entitled to weight in this matter. And yet 41 to 16 in the other branch say we should add to the expenses of the Fire Department this $10,000 this year and give the two weeks' vacation, in opposition to the expression of the Fire Commissioners. Under these circumstances, the question, then, is not exactly whether the city can afford, and will afford, the $10,000 expense; but, rather, will the City Council take exception to the opinion of the Fire Commissioners twice expressed, and undertake to manage matters of detail in the Fire Department, saying to the commissioners, who are responsible for the efficiency of the department, We can manage better than yourselves, and therefore we undertake to regulate the practice of your department? But, be this as it may, I have then this feeling—that by these discussions the matter, in all its various relations, is fully before the Fire Commissioners, and is in no danger of escaping their notice; that they will give it even more thought, and the result will be that, if the firemen have hardships that should be removed, the commissioners, in their estimates for another year, will ask of the next City Council a larger appropriation—sufficiently large to add to the force the number of men needed, and thus pave the way for the desired relief next year; but that matters now should remain unchanged, because by changing we possibly interfere with the details of management in a department that need not be interfered with for the management of the commissioners who now control it, and have investigated all its needs—certainly has brought it to a perfection of discipline and efficiency that should and has secured for it the indorsement of the City Council, and, indeed, the community. Upon this ground I think it wise for this Board to adhere to its former action, and non-concur in the amendment, and I move you that we do so.

Alderman O'Brien—I merely want to say a word in relation to this matter. The worthy chairman of the Committee on Fire Department says that no member of that department has ever been to him and pleaded for a vacation. As one of the Aldermen, I can say that quite a large number of firemen have been to me and pleaded for a vacation. After being confined for twenty-four hours every day in the year with the exception of two days in the month, in a fire engine house, they feel that they certainly ought to have at least two weeks' vacation in the year where they can turn their attention to the mountains or some other place for recreation. Believing that the Fire Commissioners, if anything happened, and the City Council forces them to give the firemen this vacation, will throw the whole blame and responsibility upon the City Council, I don't wish to consider this matter favorably, so long as they are so serious about it. But I certainly believe that a reorganization of the Fire Department would be well for the city of Boston. I am satisfied that outsiders are taken into that department, time and again, and that the call men, who receive about two hundred dollars a year, are overlooked; that they have favorites in that department, to whom they give their business and employment, and that the men that they ought to give employment to—the call men, who have experience in the department—are in many cases overlooked. However, I don't wish to insist upon this matter, because I feel that if anything happened in the way of a conflagration, or mismanagement, they would attribute the whole blame to the fact that the City Council saw fit to impose a regulation upon them that they did not believe in.

Alderman Clark—It seems to me that there is nothing to be gained or lost by concurring in the passage of the order. It provides that the members of the Fire Department may have a vacation of two weeks, provided it can be done without detriment to the public service. Now, I am willing to vote to concur with the Common Council in the passage of the order and let it go to the Fire Commissioners. They have decided that it cannot be done without detriment to the public service. Now, why not let it go to them and let them take the responsibility? They say it cannot be done without injury to the public service. And I believe that they, in the future as they have in the past, will make our Fire Department one of the most efficient in this or any other country. I don't know but that some reorganization of that department may be a good thing at some future time. It is not a bad thing to reorganize departments at one time or another. But so long as the Fire Department is as ably managed as it has been for the last three years, the people will not call for a reorganization of that department. I am in favor of concurring with the Common Council in passing an order that the Fire Commissioners be authorized to grant a two-weeks' vacation to the employees of the Fire Department, provided it can be done without detriment to the public service. The order satisfies me, and I am willing to leave it in the hands of the commissioners, where it belongs; and if they can grant them one or two weeks' vacation without detriment to the public service, I hope they will do it. I think the firemen should have a vacation in addition to the two days in each month which they now have. But we have passed an ordinance placing the management of the Fire Department in the hands of the Fire Commissioners, and this order places the responsibility upon them, and we do not take it into our hands.

Alderman Burnham—The Fire Commissioners have twice said to us that it would be for the detriment of the department to grant this vacation. In answer to an inquiry from this Board they have said that it would not be expedient to do so. I also stated that in reply to a written communication from me, they say they could not see their way clear to grant this vacation, and that the firemen have not asked for it. It is well known that the firemen can have a vacation by furnishing a substitute. But the question is, Shall the men be paid for fourteen days more, in addition to the twenty-four days' vacation that they now have? Now, the member opposite says that he is ready to vote that the Fire Commissioners be authorized to grant this vacation. He certainly waives his right, as a member of this Board, and particularly as one of the elder members, to have his vote have any effect upon the Fire Commissioners. It seems to me that we should not vote to grant this fourteen days' vacation unless we expected that the Fire Commissioners would ask for an additional appropriation of $10,000 for this thing. I would go as far as any one in looking out for the interest of the firemen. There is no necessity of rushing this thing through this year. Let it be under the consideration of the Fire Commissioners. They will do everything for the comfort of the firemen that they can. Another year let it come into the appropriation, and then we shall know that our Fire Department will cost us so much for the vacation of the members of the permanent force. But having been twice considered by the Fire Commissioners, and considered by them to be inexpedient, it seems to me to be hardly the thing to pass an amendment granting this vacation. In regard to the employees of the Fire Alarm Department, if we refuse to pass this amendment, then the fire-alarm employees are set right; under the present system, owing to the arrangement of the Retrenchment Committee, they can have no vacation at all, as they are to receive no pay for service not performed. The order to grant them a vacation was first passed by this Board, but an amendment giving a vacation to the permanent employees of the Fire Department was attached to the order in the other branch. There seems to be no necessity for us to concur in this amendment.

Alderman O'Brien—I believe that the Fire Commissioners have full control over this matter. They can give the men a vacation now, if they choose, or as their rules warrant. But the Alderman opposite says that this will place the responsibility upon the commissioners to give the men a vacation as they please. For that reason I do not see any harm in passing the order. We don't compel them to do it, and we place the responsibility upon them directly, and that is where it ought to be placed. I see no possible harm in passing this order, after hearing it read.

Alderman Gibson—I propose to leave this matter entirely in the hands of the Fire Commissioners. I believe that they have given universal satisfaction. I think the Fire Commissioners run our Fire Department the way that the citizens want it run. If we go in and take away a share of the running of the Fire Department, we take our share of the responsibility from them. Now, I would like to indefinitely postpone the order. It seems to me we ought to entertain nothing but complaints of abuse of the men, and then we can rectify it. So long as the firemen have two days in each month and are kept marching about the streets every day, they are well enough off, and they get plenty of exercise. If in order, I move to indefinitely postpone the whole matter.

Alderman Burnham—I hope the Alderman will not press the motion to indefinitely postpone. If we pass the order as originally offered, and non-concur in the amendment, I think the wishes of the Alderman will be met.

Alderman Gibson—I will withdraw the motion; but I don't think we ought to interfere with the employment of clerks or firemen, or the control of the affairs of the Fire Department. I think the commissioners ought to have control of the department in every respect, and that we ought not to put in our oar or have anything to do with them. I will withdraw the motion.

Alderman Clark—I propose to leave it exactly in the hands of the Fire Commissioners and not to interfere with them in the least. I propose to let them grant the vacation or not, as they may determine. But, as I understand it, the commissioners would not consider that they had the liberty to grant the firemen any vacation at all, except the two days' vacation that they now have, except they were authorized so to do by the City Council. If I am not right I wish to be corrected.

Alderman Burnham—I can give the Alderman the information by quoting the words of the Fire Commissioners. There is no difficulty in any member of the Fire Department getting a vacation by coming to the Board and furnishing an acceptable substitute.

Alderman Clark—I want to know whether the Fire Commissioners are at liberty today to grant a vacation to the firemen without loss of pay or supplying a substitute, provided it can be done without detriment to the public service? That is my question.

Alderman Burnham—I can answer that question by saying that they are not at liberty to do so. They are not at liberty to grant a two weeks' vacation to the firemen without loss of pay. But the firemen can obtain a vacation by furnishing a satisfactory substitute, to be paid by the man who is off.

Alderman Clark—I insist that they have not the right to grant a vacation without loss of pay, or rather without his furnishing a substitute. Now, if we concur with the Common Council in the passage of this order, if they believe that the interests of the city will not be jeopardized by granting a vacation of two weeks without loss of pay, then they will have the right to do so. It simply gives them the right to do so, if they think it can be done with safety to the interests of the city. They have expressly declared to the City Council that in their opinion it cannot be done safely, and consequently they will not grant the vacation, even if we pass this order, unless the firemen furnish a substitute. It simply gives them the right to do so if it can be done with safety. I don't propose to interfere with the rights of the Fire Commissioners, but this subject has been trotting up stairs and down stairs for the last four weeks, and if we send it back to them it will come back to us again. I want to dispose of it. Let the Fire Commissioners take the responsibility. You will only give them permission to do it, if, in their opinion, it can be done without detriment to the interests of the city.

Alderman Gibson—There ought to be an end of this order here. If we pass this order it will be an additional lever for them to go to the commissioners with, and say "Why don't you grant this vacation?" For that reason I don't think it ought to be passed. I believe we should leave it to the Fire Commissioners. When I was a member of the Board before I had the honor of favoring this commission, and there was a strong opposition to it. But we all know that it has worked well to the entire satisfaction of the property owners of the city; the men employed in the department cannot complain. We might as well say that the men working in the street with a pick and shovel should have a vacation of two weeks. You might as well ask for a vacation for every employé of the city. Having made one or two exceptions, we might as well include them all. But here are the firemen having a few votes, and that is what this is aimed at. That is the intent of the order. It is nothing less than that in my judgment, which is at work in this matter. This matter belongs properly to the Fire Commissioners, and we should let it remain there.

Alderman Clark—The Alderman from East Boston can have no greater respect for the Fire Commissioners than I have. I was in the Board and used my best exertions to have the commission established, and I believe in it thoroughly. Instead of taking away any of their rights, I propose to give them additional rights. This is simply giving them the right to grant a vacation, which they have not now the right to grant, if it is no injury to the public service. If that is taking away any of their rights I should like to know it. I don't know about how many votes the members of the Fire Department have. Perhaps the Alderman does. Perhaps he counted them up at the last election. I did not. He is thoroughly posted and I am not. And I don't care how many they have. I propose to give to the Fire Commissioners a right which they have not. The chairman of the Committee on the Fire Department asks that they have the right—which they have not—to give the Fire-Alarm employés a vacation, because they cannot do it. Some gentlemen in the Common Council propose to give them a further authority—simply that if in their opinion the interests of the city will not be interfered with they shall also grant to the permanent members of the Fire Department a fortnight's vacation without loss of pay. That is an additional right. It is not taking away from them any of their rights. I wish to give them other rights in order to enable them to work the department in an efficient manner. There is no money involved in this matter. It does not appropriate $10,000 to pay for the substitutes. I claim that no one proposes to do more for the Fire Commissioners, or who has stood up for them, more than I do myself. I believe it is one of the best managed departments in the City Government. So far as I know it has been as well managed as any department of the city, and I hope it will be a long time before it is abolished.

Alderman Burnham—I think the Alderman, in his comparison of this matter, as it relates to the Fire Alarm Department, misapprehends the case. As he states the matter, the Fire Commissioners would seem to have need that we should do something for them in order that they might do something towards granting them a vacation, which is true. Now, properly stated, the matter is in this way. The mistake was made by the Retrenchment Committee in the phraseology of the order, although they did not intend it. They placed the matter in such a manner that the fire-alarm employés were to receive no vacation at all. They must render a day's actual service for every day for which they receive pay. The fire-alarm employés went to the commissioners to get their usual vacation, and they were told by the commissioners that they could not have any vacation at all. Consequently, with the approval of the commissioners, they came to us with a petition asking for this vacation. On the other hand, the firemen, have not asked for this vacation, but some others have asked for certain privileges which they already have, and for others which they can have by furnishing a substitute. Twice we have been told by the Fire Commissioners that they think the firemen ought not to have this vacation. It is simply a question whether we shall concur in this order giving a vacation to the employés of the Fire Department.

Alderman O'Brien—How did the Retrenchment Committee interfere with the vacation of the fire-alarm employés in any way or shape?

Alderman Burnham—By the wording of the report, as construed by the Fire Commissioners, the committee took from them the right to give the fire-alarm employés a vacation without loss of pay.

Alderman O'Brien—I think that is a wrong interpretation of the Fire Commissioners. If we concur with the Council, we remove this matter from the Board. The Alderman from East Boston gets up here and intimates that members talk buncombe; well, this will remove all the buncombe talk and will place the responsibility for this matter where it belongs. It is not placing any great responsibility upon them. If I read the ordinance aright, the Fire Commissioners are authorized to appoint all officers of the Fire Department, including the employés of the Fire Alarm Telegraph Department, and to fix their compensation, etc. They have now the control of the Fire Department. Why not pass this order and leave the matter in their hands? As the Alderman says, they will have the right to give these men a vacation, if in their opinion the interests of the department will allow it.

Alderman Gibson—We already have the opinion of the Fire Commissioners that it will require nearly $10,000 to give these men a vacation. Now we are placing the commissioners in the position of saying to them that they may give those men a vacation, but we do not provide the means for it. If we pass this order at all, we ought to put on an appropriation of $10,000, for without it they cannot give the firemen a vacation. I believe that is generally understood by the members of the Board. We are passing an order which is like a man-of-war without guns.

Alderman O'Brien—They give them a two-days' vacation now every month. They can give them two weeks every six months if they so desire. They can do just what they please; and if we pass this order, we place the responsibility upon them.

Alderman Burnham—I want to say that there is perfect harmony between the firemen and the Fire Commissioners. The firemen prefer a given number of days in each month rather than a continuous vacation of two weeks.

The Board concurred in the passage of the order as amended—6 for, 5 against.

A motion to reconsider by Alderman O'Brien was lost.

SITE FOR ALLSTON SCHOOL.

A report came up with an order for purchase of a site for a grammar schoolhouse on corner of Cambridge street near Harvard avenue, Brighton, 22,000 square feet, cost not to exceed $6000.

Alderman Thompson—The lot which the city proposes to take does not belong to Mr. Cyrus Dupee, whose name is mentioned in the order, although he is acting for the parties controlling it. It occurred to me that it might facilitate business to amend the order so as to make it read "owned" "or controlled by" r. Dupee. Mr. Dupee wishes that the land should not pass into his name at all, and this slight amendment would remedy the difficulty.

The amendment was adopted and the order passed. Sent down.

OCCUPATION OF STREETS FOR BUILDING PURPOSES.

The report and ordinance for the occupancy of streets for building purposes (City Document No. 69, amended) came up referred to the Committee on the Survey, etc., of Buildings, the Common Council having adhered to that vote.

The Mayor—The question is, Will the Board recede from its former action, or concur with the Common Council?

Alderman Wilder—I hope the Board will adhere to their previous action. As I understand it, this officer merely performs police duties, and I believe that all persons performing police duties ought to be appointed by the Mayor. I do not see why it should go to the Inspector of Buildings.

Alderman Wilder—There is a necessity at the present time for this proposed officer. No one is attending to the duties at present. As chairman of the Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings, the Chief of Police had an interview with me today, and he said that if this simple matter of where the appointment of this officer should rest could not be settled by the two branches of the Government, he should be called upon to find and detail a man for this duty, although he had not a man he could spare. I should like to vote to adhere to our former action as a matter of principle and right, and I should not deem it at all discourteous to his Honor, who has the appointing power, as I understand the man is already selected to fill this office—a gentleman perfectly satisfactory to the Mayor and the Inspector of Buildings. In order to settle this question, I hope we shall concur with the Council, and adopt an amendment which I shall offer, so that the confirmation shall be in accordance with the appointment. I move to amend so that the appointment shall be made by the Inspector of Buildings, subject to confirmation by the Mayor, instead of the Board of Aldermen. I believe this satisfies all parties concerned.

Alderman O'Brien—The gentleman's remarks lead me to believe that we shall not concur. He says the Chief of Police has called upon him today and wants a man appointed to that position, and he has not a man to spare. Well, why place this matter in the hands of the Inspector of Buildings, when the Chief of Police, as the Alderman says, has the whole thing to do. I believe the appointment ought to be left in the hands of the Mayor; as this officer performs police duty, I hope the Aldermen will adhere to their former vote.

Alderman Wilder—I think the Alderman misunderstood me. Instead of the Chief of Police having more to do with it than anybody else, he has nothing to do with it. Being apprised of the fact that the selection of this officer is contemplated, as everybody knows, he desires not to have this matter forced upon him, as it must be at the present time, in the absence of any one to perform the duties. He will detail a man to attend to it, if we see fit to keep the matter going up and down stairs a few weeks longer. He conversed with me in the hope of arriving at some conclusion. I hope we shall concur with the other branch, with the amendment I propose.

Alderman O'Brien—The gentleman's amendment sends it up stairs again. Is he certain that they will pass it with that amendment? Does he know that they won't send it back to us?

Alderman Wilder—I do not.

Alderman Thompson—I hope the Board will adhere to its former action. The proposition of the Alderman, although at the present time it may be perfectly agreeable to him and others—as he says the party designated for the position has been selected,—yet as a matter of principle is wrong. Here is an officer to be appointed, yet both branches of the City Council are to be ignored, so far as the appointment is concerned; and yet the City Council is responsible for his action to a certain extent. Therefore I shall vote against it, and I trust the Board will adhere to its former action.

Alderman Clark—I happened to be present the other night, when this subject came up in the Common Council, where there happened to be a good many mechanics and builders; and it was their unanimous opinion, as expressed there, that there was no occasion to create another office to have this work attended to properly. That was their opinion, and it was referred to the Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings by a very large vote. In my opinion that is the only way to get this ordinance passed and a new officer appointed. If we refuse to concur, it must go back to the Common Council, and when they take issue with the Board of Aldermen on a matter of this character they very often carry their point, and I am very sure they will in this matter. All the mechanics and builders who have occasion to patronize this department express the opinion that there is no occasion for this new office. It was also their opinion that the issuing of permits belonged to the Inspector of Buildings; and after the issuing of the permits—which might take thirty minutes per day—then the city police would notify the inspector, as is their duty—in case the building materials obstruct the street, as they do at the present time. I should object to the amendment because, as the Alderman from Bunker Hill says, I think the City Council should not be ignored in the appointment of either the Inspector or any Deputy Inspector of Buildings. Now, so far as this ordinance is concerned, the whole fifth section, providing for the creation of a new office and the appointment of the officer, might be entirely stricken out. I do not pretend to say it is not necessary to have another office created for the Department of Survey and Inspection of Buildings, and it seems to me if this ordinance was referred to the committee, they can examine the subject and report back to the City Council, and we shall intelligently understand whether it is necessary to create a new office or not. I merely give my ideas as I have obtained them from listening to the discussion in the other branch, by the mechanics and builders who have had and do have occasion constantly to obtain permits, and who are familiar with the workings of the office of the Survey and Inspection of Buildings. If we wish to have this ordinance adopted, it seems to me the best thing we can do would be to concur with the Council.

Alderman Burnham—From the remarks of the gentleman I am led to make an inquiry as to how this matter stands. In the amendment, and from the remarks made with reference to receding from or adhering to our former action, and the impression received from them and from the remarks of the gentleman who last sat down, I am in some doubt whether the question is on the reference to the Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings, by which the Common Council refused to accede to the action of this Board, or upon the amendment offered by the gentleman.

The Mayor said the question was upon concur-ing in the reference to the Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings.

Alderman Wilder—I am free to say I did not understand the position of the question before the Board when I offered that amendment. As I now understand it, the question is upon concurring with the Common Council in the reference of the matter to the Committee on the Survey and Inspection of Buildings. I am now enlightened as to its present position before the Board. Had I so understood, I should not have offered the amendment. The Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings have never had that subject before them. As a committee they have never discussed the wants or necessities of this office, and as chairman of the committee I don't know whether this office is required or not. I found it first before me in the shape of an ordinance reported from the Committee on Ordinances. I supposed the question had been settled somewhere, by some authority, that such an officer is required, and I was acting upon that supposition. I don't know that there is any objection to referring it to the Committee on Survey of Buildings, though I have no idea what might be their action. I withdraw the amendment if the Board wish to refer it to that committee.

The Board concurred in the reference to the Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings.

LOCATION ACCEPTED.

A communication was received from the Middlesex Railroad Company accepting the sixteenth location, granted by this Board on July 16. Placed on file.

PETITION FOR STEAM ENGINE.

A petition was received from Frank J. Nelson, for leave to locate and use a steam engine and boiler at 173-177 Summer street, and an order of notice was passed of hearing thereon on Monday, Aug. 20, instant.

LICENSES.

Alderman Dunbar submitted reports from the Committee on Licenses as follows:

Victualler Licensed—Sarah F. Welch, 6 Common street.

Billiard License Granted—Theo. Ziersch & Co., 1 Fayette court.

Pawnbrokers and Dealers in Second-hand Articles Licensed—Louis Boas, 167 South street; Patrick F. Cassidy, 120 Kneeland street.

Wagon License Granted—William Dacey, 89 Tudor street.

Severally accepted.

PAVING REPORTS AND ORDERS.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Paving:

Reports and orders for brick sidewalks in front of estates of James W. Tobey, 129-131 Newbury street; F. L. Fay, Commonwealth avenue, between Clarendon and Dartmouth streets; S. E. Westcott, on Commonwealth avenue, near Dartmouth street. Orders read twice and passed.

Reports and orders for edgestones in front of estates of Highland Street Railway Company on Blue Hill avenue; Aaron D. Williams, on Swett street. Orders read twice and passed.

Report that no action is necessary on the petition of John Egan, to be paid for grade damages to his estate on Tremont street, the claim having been settled by the Committee on Claims. Accepted.

Reports that leave be granted to move wooden buildings by M. Ellis & Co., from Putnam street, through Condor street, to Condor street, opposite Brooks street; by C. S. Packard, from 24 Newton street, Brighton, to rear of Gerrish street. Severally accepted.

Schedules of cost of sidewalks in East Eighth street, Trinity place, and sundry other streets, with orders for the assessment and collection of the same. Orders read twice and passed.

POLICE.

Alderman Robinson submitted reports from the Committee on Police recommending confirmation of the Executive nominations of William A. Ham to be captain and Nathaniel Emerson to be lieutenant of police. Accepted.

PERMITS FOR STABLES.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Health on the part of the Board:

Reports that leave be granted on the usual conditions to occupy stables by Luther A. Renfrew, 555 Seventh street; G. W. F. Smith, Gerard street; Anthony Holbrook, Ninth street; S. Peta Deisel, Heath street. Severally accepted.

SEWERS.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Sewers:

Resolve and order to take land of Emma D. Forbes and others, five feet wide, extending along the centre line of Bowe street and Forbes place, from Curtis street to Centre street, for sewer purposes. Read twice and passed.

Orders to build sewers in Adams street, between Arcadia and Robinsou streets; in Curtis street, between Wyman street and Sheridan avenue; in Forbes place and Bowe street, between Curtis and Centre streets. Orders read twice and passed.

Orders of notice for hearings on Monday next on expediency of constructing sewers in Cedar avenue, West Roxbury; in John A. Andrew street, between Carolina avenue and Walker street; and in Walker street, between John A. Andrew and Elm streets; in Auburn street. Read twice and passed.

ANNUAL REPORTS.

Alderman Viles presented the fifth annual report of the Board of Health. Sent down.

Alderman O'Brien presented the thirteenth annual report of the Trustees of the City Hospital. Sent down.

PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Alderman Clark presented the twenty-fifth annual report of the Trustees of the Public Library. Sent down.

The central library, in Boylston street, now holds 242,885 volumes, divided between 35,478 in the popular branch and 208,441 in the Bates Hall collection; the branches contain 69,125 volumes. The total contents are 312,010 volumes, an increase for the year of 15,169 volumes. The libraries were open during the year for popular use and consultation 306 days. The loans and hall use of the Bates Hall collection advanced from 114,329 volumes in the previous year to 141,618 volumes, a gain of nearly twenty-four per cent. The Lower Hall issued to borrowers 405,732 volumes, against a previous circulation of 348,842, showing an increase of nearly seventeen per cent. From the six branches there were issued 593,202 volumes. The following table gives the number of books in each of the popular libraries, and their comparative use

	No. of Vols.	Use.
Lower Hall, Boylston street....	35,478	405,732
East Boston branch.....	9,643	102,627
South Boston branch.....	8,178	135,179
Roxbury branch.....	12,535	146,429
Charlestown branch.....	18,084	106,816
Brighton branch.....	12,317	29,792
Dorchester branch.....	8,147	71,979

The losses of the library in books not recovered from borrowers still show the central library as the principal sufferer. The Roxbury library has no volume missing from its circulation of 146,829 volumes—the largest circulation of a single library without loss yet known to our experience. The total issues of the branches were 593,202, and there are missing only ten volumes, being one for each 59,322 circulated. Owing to the more changeable population of the city proper, its record is not so satisfactory, 119 volumes not having been returned from a delivery of 547,350 volumes, or one out of every 4600—a somewhat larger proportion of loss for the central departments than recent years have indicated.

The Examining Committee express their entire accord with the committee of last year in disapproving of the wooden gallery in the rear of Bates Hall, owing to the danger from fire to which the library is thereby exposed. The introduction of heavy iron screens for lowering in all the passages connecting this gallery with the main building would be advisable, as affording a certain amount of protection against the flames should they chance to attack this wooden structure. The need of an additional wing for the accommodation of the readers who already find insufficient space in Bates Hall and the lower reading room; for the rearrangement, increase and use of the Ticknor and Bowditch libraries, and of the newspaper files now exposed to injury from the dampness of the basement; for enlargement of the bindery; and for toilet rooms, which decency and health require should be provided for the staff of the library, has been fully set forth by the Superintendent in his report, and has our unanimous indorsement. It is a matter of regret that the City Architect could not find it compatible with his other engagements to submit to the committee, in response to repeated requests, a rough draft of his plans for a wing upon the east side of the library. The purchase of the Hotel Pelham, which it is understood can now be effected on favorable terms, would, in our opinion, be a wise provision to meet the speedy call for additional wings which the present rapid development of the library justifies us in predicting.

In regard to the branch libraries the superintendent says, "A further development was begun in 1875 by the opening of a delivery of the Dorchester branch at the Lower Mills; and again, in 1876, by a similar outgrowth of the Roxbury branch at Jamaica Plain. These deliveries are maintained at comparatively small expense, and have proved so far capable each of adding 10,000 or 12,000 issues annually to our circulation. Brighton, our least-used branch, scores about 30,000 issues a year, and it may be well questioned if the villages dependent upon the Lower Mills delivery, with the same facilities, would not patronize a branch to an equal extent with Brighton. I am confident that at Jamaica Plain the circulation, by converting its delivery to a branch, could be carried far ahead, and that it would surpass even that of Dorchester, which now records about 70,000 issues for the year; and there are regions still beyond, at Roshmdale and West Roxbury, which, as deliveries of a branch at Jamaica Plain, would largely enhance the usefulness of the library." We have had abundant proof in our experience that the branches, with the territorial extent which has been left between them, have not at all diminished the usefulness either of one another or of the central library.

CLAIMS.

Alderman O'Brien submitted the following from the Committee on Claims:

Reports of leave to withdraw on petitions of George H. Barry, to be paid for damage to the well on his estate on Miltou street, Ward 24, by the construction of a cesspool; of James L. Hill, to be compensated for injuries sustained by his son at the Lexington-street Schoolhouse. Severally accepted. Sent down.

PUBLIC LANDS.

Alderman O'Brien, from the Committee on Public Lands, submitted an order—That the tax for the years 1874, 1875 and 1876, as assessed upon two lots of land on West Castle street, also on one lot upon Middlesex street, as shown on a plan drawn by Thomas W. Davis, City Surveyor, and dated March 23, 1873—which plan is deposited in the office of said City Surveyor—be remitted, the said lots of land having been forfeited to the city for breach of conditions of sale. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

MARKET.

Alderman Slade submitted reports from the Committee on Markets, recommending the approval of transfers of leases of cellar No. 2 Fanenil Hall Market, by T. L. Browne to Swan & Fitch; and of stalls 87-89 Fanenil Hall Market, by A. W. Bntler to Albert A. Keene. Severally accepted.

CHELSEA BRIDGE.

Alderman Thompson offered an order—That Chelsea Bridge be closed to all public travel on Tuesday, July 31, 1877, and remain closed until the rebuilding of said bridge is completed. Read twice and passed.

SNOW GUARDS ON BUILDINGS.

Alderman Breck offered an order—That the Committee on Ordinances be requested to consider the expediency of passing an ordinance requiring that suitable snow guards be provided to prevent the falling of snow and ice from the roofs of buildings. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

DEPUTY SEALERS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

Alderman Slade offered an order—That there be allowed and paid to each Deputy Sealer of Weights and Measures the sum of eight hundred and fifty dollars per annum, for their official services, to commence from the date of their appointment and qualification, and that the sum of twenty-one hundred dollars be transferred for that purpose from the Reserved Fund.

Alderman Slade—I don't propose to make any particular remarks about the order. It has been pretty well discussed, and has been made a football long enough for us to do something. These men have been elected to do this work; they have acted in good faith, and we ought to pay them. They have had no money since their appointment, and unless the order is passed how perhaps they won't get any till next fall. †

The order was read twice and passed—yeas 11, nays 0.

THE BACK BAY IMPROVEMENT.

Alderman Clark submitted a report from the Joint Committee on Streets—That the estate of Mrs. Lydia Ellis is damaged by the extension of West Chester park to Beacon street. After a full and careful consideration of the matter, the committee are of opinion that the interests of the city will be best served by the purchase of the whole estate, for the reason that after the city has paid the damages for the extension of West Chester Park, and this property has been adjusted to the new state of affairs, the time will not be distant when a large portion of the same estate will be required for the extension of Boylston street, and its improved condition used to increase the damages for that street. The committee recommend the passage of an order—That there be purchased, in the settlement of damages occasioned it by the grading of the extension of West Chester park to Beacon street, the estate of Mrs. Lydia Ellis, situated on said West Chester park, adjoining the Boston & Albany Railroad, for the sum of $11,500, the city assuming the taxes on said estate for the current year upon her giving to the city a deed of said estate with all the rights, easement and appurtenances belonging thereto, satisfactory to the City Solicitor; said sum to be charged to the Appropriation for Widening Streets.

Alderman Clark—The estate which the order proposes to purchase is owned by Mrs. Ellis, and is in the direct line of the extension of West Chester park. When the grading is completed it will cover the building nearly one-half up, and would compel the city to pay very great damages. In fact, it about completely destroys the building. The estate has rights over the way over the extension of West Chester park, and she could recover heavy damages for them. It has been known for a year past that this estate would, sooner or later, have to be purchased, but we were in hopes that we should be able to get it at a less price than $11,500. Negotiations have been going on for over a year, and every attempt has been made to get a settlement with Mrs. Ellis at a much less price than she asks for the estate. But the committee have found it utterly impossible to do so, and the only terms upon which the extension of West Chester park can be completed is by going on and covering up the building entirely, or else making the purchase. So much for West Chester park. The extension of Boylston street will take nearly one-half of the entire estate; and the Street Committee and Commissioners are unanimously of the opinion that the only thing for the city to do is to purchase it at $11,500. That is her price, and I have used my best endeavors to get it for less. I am frank to say that it is more than the estate is worth. In the grading that has been done the street has not been graded to its full width; they have left a passage through this estate of some ten or fifteen feet, leaving the street narrower than its proposed width. I am anxious that it should be passed now, if at all, that it may go to the Council, as the Superintendent of Streets is very anxious to do this work immediately. I move that the Board take a recess for ten minutes to examine the plan here.

The Board took a recess, after which the discussion was resumed, Alderman Clark in the chair.

Alderman Thompson—I regard this as a bitter pill, but I see no other way than for the Board to swallow it. The price proposed to be paid for this estate is more than double its value under any circumstances; but under the circumstances the city is in such a fix that they are compelled to pay it, and I see no other way than for the Board to pay it.

Alderman Burnham—Has this matter been considered by the Committee on Streets to the extent that the rights of way shown us on that map, as attached to that estate, are covered by that order?

Alderman Thompson—As I understand it, all the rights that belong to the estate go to the city at this price. The committee have tried all ways and means to get around it, but have been unable to do so. There is only one course to pursue. The city must have the land, or damage the estate to more than the value of the land, because the parties can require the city to place a retaining wall there, which will cost more than the value of the estate. This is the only way out of it. It has been a disagreeable thing to arrange satisfactorily, and the committee have been unable to do so. There is only one course, and that is to accede to the exorbitant demands of the owner.

The order was passed. Sent down.

WIDENING OF COMMERCIAL STREET.

The following was received:

OFFICE OF THE STREET COMMISSIONERS, }
 July 27, 1877. }

To the Honorable City Council—In response to an order from the honorable City Council, that the report of the Joint Committee on Streets be referred to the Board of Street Commissioners, with a request that they furnish the City Council with estimates of the cost of widening Commercial street to the width of eighty feet, and also to the width of one hundred feet, the commissioners beg leave to report, that they estimate the cost of widening to not exceeding one hundred feet, as shown in a plan herewith marked "Land side," at $1,000,000, and to a width not exceeding eighty feet, as shown on same plan, at $800,000. For a width of not exceeding one hundred feet, as shown on the plan herewith marked "Water side," they estimate $950,000, and for not exceeding eighty feet by the same plan $800,000. These estimates include all grade damages, paving, edgestones and sidewalks. By order of the Board of Street Commissioners.
 J. H. JENKINS, Clerk.

The communication was read early in the session and laid on the table, on motion of Alderman Clark.

Subsequently, on motion of Alderman Thompson, the communication was taken from the table and sent down.

On motion of Alderman Thompson, the order appended to the report from the Committee on Streets of July 11—That the Committee on Finance provide $1,000,000 for the widening of Commercial street in such manner as the Street Commissioners shall deem expedient—was read a second time and put upon its passage.

Alderman O'Brien—This is rather an important matter, and I think it well to give my reasons for voting for it. When the completion of the Atlantic-avenue improvement comes up I cannot refuse to vote for it. If some fifteen years ago the cost of widening streets could have been predicted with any degree of certainty, I believe the City Council of that time would have been amazed at the immense proportions it would assume. Thirty million dollars for widening and improving streets; $30,000,000 for tearing down property, to say nothing of the additional expense of building up; $30,000,000, a sum larger by $2,000,000 than the entire indebtedness of the city,—if all this could have been foretold, I believe that many of the improvements inaugurated would never have received the sanction of the City Council. Intelligent citizens even now look back upon this mania for street-widening with astonishment, and insist that the time has arrived when it must be stopped. No new schemes must be entertained. The widening of South street has been commenced, and must in honor be completed; the widening of Portland street has been commenced, and must be completed. Atlantic avenue has been laid out, and when the work reached the North End of the city, at a very great expense, there it has stood to the present day, the most incomplete of all our street widenings, and, however opposed to the expending of money for any such purpose, I believe that work should be carried out and completed in justice to the North End of the city, a section that has been neglected; in justice to the splendid water front, extending from Eastern avenue to the Charlestown Bridge, and including some of the most desirable wharf property in the city. I repeat, that the North End of the city has been neglected; that it was an injustice to that section to stop the Atlantic-avenue improvement where it has been stopped—and this can be easily shown by figures and facts. If any member of the Board doubts this statement, let him visit the locality. Let him walk from Eastern avenue to the Charles River Bridge, passing Battery, Constitution, Union and other splendid wharf property, where is to be found the deepest water; where ships and steamers of the largest class can be accommodated, and he must be convinced that while we have been expending money so lavishly for other widenings, this improvement, far more important to the trade, the commerce, the prosperity of the city than nine-tenths of the other street improvements that have been made, has been neglected. I am not surprised that the people of the North End, the owners of wharf property, the owners of real estate, the workingmen and citizens generally of that section feel sensitive about this matter. For twenty years they have been calling the attention of the City Council to the necessity of this improvement, and when at last the improvement was commenced and the work stopped when it reached their locality, they have had good reason to say that they were not dealt with fairly or honorably. The North End has been compelled to pay her share of the cost of street improvements and should reap at last some portion of the benefits. The widening and laying out of Atlantic avenue, from Summer street to the Eastern avenue, cost the taxpayers $2,404,078 and stopped at that point. To be complete it should have been continued to the Charles River Bridge, and the most important part of the work remains to be done. This does not appear to me fair or just. Let me give the Board some idea of the work we have been doing within a few years, and the locality of that work, which, it appears to me, will show more clearly the injustice referred to:

Atlantic avenue has cost.....	$2,404,078
Arch street.....	333,318
Avon place.....	115,208
Beach street.....	230,505
Bedford street.....	112,550
Boylston street.....	137,992
Congress street.....	1,223,617
Devonshire street.....	1,518,019
Eastern avenue.....	292,197
Eliot street.....	422,254
Federal street.....	887,697
Franklin street.....	409,724
Harrison avenue.....	242,589
Hawley street.....	258,052
High and Congress streets.....	300,070
Kingston street.....	297,715
Kneeland street.....	161,399
Lagrange place.....	24,715
Lindall street.....	137,262
Lincoln street.....	48,065
Milk street.....	426,094
Oliver street.....	607,172
Otis street.....	66,312
Pearl street.....	478,642
Purchase street.....	113,257
Shawmut avenue.....	305,064
Summer street.....	323,074
Temple place.....	93,770
Water street.....	564,423
Washington street.....	2,711,383
Total.....	$15,246,217

While the expenditure of these $15,000,000 was going on, confined almost exclusively to one section of the city, as will be observed by the streets enumerated, the only improvement that has penetrated the North End was the widening of Hanover street, the cost of which was $1,650,695. Is this an equal distribution? We have been expending millions of dollars in widening streets to increase our trade and to give our merchants better facilities for doing their business, but none of these improvements will compare with the Atlantic-avenue improvement if increased trade is desired. We have expended, I believe, $17,000,000 in tunnelling the Hoosac Mountains to bring us nearer the granaries of the West, of which Boston's share was at least $7,000,000, and yet we neglect to give our merchants the terminal facilities to ship and handle their produce when it reaches our doors. Look at Atlantic avenue now, with its steam cars running day and night, obstructed by this narrow thoroughfare, and in hesitating to complete this work have we done our duty? The Alderman from the Charlestown District pictured the state of these obstructions on that street—obstructions that interfere with our business—when he called the attention of the Board to the fact that he was compelled to wait an unreasonable length of time before he could cross on his way home; and I was surprised that he did not say give this trade that seeks our water front room enough to move, room enough to prevent blocks, because if it was an annoyance to him it was a far greater annoyance to the merchants who are exerting themselves to enlarge this business, with this obstacle in the way.

This trade is still in its infancy. It is only a few years since steam cars loaded with Western freight were seen on our water front, and if it is blocked up now, what will it be a few years hence? Our city possesses unusual advantages to increase and multiply this trade. We are one day nearer Europe than any of the large cities on the seaboard. Our communications with the West and the interior have been largely increased. Our harbor is one of the best on the Atlantic coast. This has been quite manifest during the past winter. The harbor of New York has been at times so blocked with ice as to make it dangerous for vessels to arrive or depart. Philadelphia and Baltimore harbors have been completely blocked with ice, while Boston Harbor has been free and clear during the coldest weather, and yet New York and Philadelphia and Baltimore are far ahead of us in this trade, because other facilities extended to the merchants of these cities are greater than we extend to ours. New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore would never have left this work so incomplete for so many years. The increase of this trade here has already aroused New York, and the question is asked what shall be done to prevent it. At a recent session of the Board of Aldermen of New York resolutions were introduced requesting the Board of Street Openings and Improvements to take into consideration a scheme of vast magnitude, including the widening of streets on the water front, First, South and other streets, sufficient to provide for the convenient transportation of the immense freight, passenger and other business of the water front, for all time to come, and providing for an avenue or boulevard of 300 feet fronting on the water line. That city spares no money in improving her water front, knowing that the prosperity of the city depends upon these improvements; while year after year we hesitate and decline to listen to the numerous petitions of our merchants and business men. Give our merchants room to do their business—one hundred feet will be quite ample—extend to them facilities so that the deep water of that part of our water front can be made available for the loading of the large steamers now engaged in the European trade, and its increase will be quite marked. Two new lines have already located themselves at Constitution wharf. It is only a week or two ago when a steamship of the new Hull and Southampton line arrived with about one-third of her cargo for Boston merchants, and another line between London, Antwerp and Boston is also in full operation. On this splendid water front not a single improvement has been made for the past fifty years—I mean from the Eastern avenue to the Charles River Bridge—and yet we pride ourselves on our commercial enterprise. Our merchants have been always ready to do their share of the work, but the City Council has failed to do theirs, and I trust they will hesitate no longer.

Atlantic avenue should circle the entire water front of the city. I would even go beyond the Charles River Bridge and extend it to the Fitchburg Railroad. It is one of those improvements, begun some years ago, that the city is in honor and justice bound to carry out and complete. This is due to the citizens of the North End who have paid their share of the cost of every street improvement that has taken place. It is due to the owners of valuable wharf property in that section who have been sufferers on account of the delay in making this improvement, and who are willing to pay their share of the cost in betterments. It is due to the stevedores and laborers who can confidently look for increased employment when the improvement is made. It is due to Ward 6, a ward that pays about one-twelfth of our taxation, the taxable property in that ward last year amounting to $61,613,400. I am aware that we are now called upon to expend large sums of money for improvements, some of them so important that they cannot be overlooked or delayed; but I also believe that better times are now at hand, and that we shall be able to commence and complete all these improvements without taxing our citizens even to the extent that they have been taxed for some years past. The wheat crop of the country, just harvested, is understood to be the largest in quantity and the best in quality for many years, and all other crops are also quite promising. I see a great deal of encouragement in the future, and I believe that the season of depression just passed will be followed by increased activity in all branches of business.

When the completion of the Atlantic-avenue improvement has been called up I cannot refuse to vote for it and advocate it. We stand committed to do this work, and there is no good reason why it should be postponed or set aside. Money expended in this improvement will be returned ten fold. The mechanic and the laboring man will be benefited, and we ought to remember that they have been patient sufferers for at least two years, and this improvement, one of necessity as it appears to me, would give them employment. Valuable wharf property will be made far more productive, and its value largely increased. Of what avail will it be if we increase our means of communication with the West and neglect our terminal facilities? A slight difference in the rates of freight from the West changes the current of this trade, and if we fail to remove obstacles in the way of our terminal facilities that increase the expense of shipping and hauling goods, it will also operate to our disadvantage. The deep-water front of the North End must be improved; the improvements in the water fronts of East Boston and South Boston should go on, and when these improvements are completed we can look not only for a good share of the Western and Southern trade, but also for a largely increased foreign trade. The terminal facilities of Boston Harbor can be made superior to the terminal facilities of any harbor in the country. The produce of the West and Southwest, after it arrives within the limits of the city, can be handled quicker and cheaper than at any other point, and hence our export trade must increase quite rapidly in the future. For these reasons, Mr. Chairman, I shall vote for the order before us.

Alderman Viles—The Alderman on my right has so well covered all the ground that I do not know that he has left anything else to be said. He certainly has met the question in every particular. In justice to the people who have paid betterments for Atlantic avenue, we should carry out this extension, which was commenced many years ago. I don't know but they have a claim upon the city for damages caused by the delay. Some gentlemen think it is done for the accommodation of the railroads; but, when railroads are doing everything they can to bring trade to Boston, I hold that we should do something to assist them. There are now two large English steamers loading and discharging at Constitution wharf, and we might have half a dozen there most of the time if this improvement was carried out. I should be willing to have the whole of the cost put into the tax levy next year rather than have it carried through. I know it requires considerable money, but it never can be done so cheaply as now. It is not only in the interest of business, but of the laborers, who will get employment. I think it is one of the most important business improvements that will come before this City Government for many years.

The order was passed. Sent down,

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman O'Brien.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Common Council,

AUGUST 1, 1877.

Special meeting at 2.30 P. M., Benjamin Pope, President, in the chair.

The President read a communication from the Mayor, stating that he had deemed it expedient to call this special meeting for the purpose of acting upon the question of improved sewerage, and such other matters as may come before the Council. Placed on file.

IMPROVED SEWERAGE.

The orders for a loan of $3,713,000 for an improved system of sewerage, and authorizing a contract for such system as therein set forth, came first in order under unfinished business, and were considered, the question being on their passage.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I propose to review briefly, for the information of the members of the Council, the efforts of the City Government which have led to the presentation of this scheme. On the 14th of April, 1870, the consulting physicians of Boston addressed the authorities a remonstrance as to the then existing sanitary condition of the city, in which they declared the urgent necessity of a better system of sewerage, stating that it would be “a work of time, of great cost, and the highest engineering skill.”

In 1872 the Legislature passed an act authorizing the appointment of a commission, to be paid by the city of Boston, to investigate and report upon a comprehensive plan for a thorough system of drainage for the metropolitan district.

In October, 1874, a medical commission, consisting of Drs. Charles E. Buckingham, Calvin Ellis, Richard M. Hodges, Samuel A. Green and Thomas B. Curtis was appointed to examine into the causes of the excessively high death rate of the city, and to report, if possible, preventive measures of sanitation. They reported Nov. 1, 1875, and from that report I quote some of its conclusions, as follows:

“These considerations indicate that the sum total of deaths attributable, directly or indirectly, to filth, is much greater than the yearly mortality occasioned by the manifest filth diseases would make us suppose, and we are led to conclude that the prevention of filth infection in its various forms constitutes without any doubt the greatest and most urgent sanitary need of Boston.

“The attainment of this end imperatively calls for the adoption of energetic measures designed to prevent all possible contamination of our air, water and food, by the putrefying organic matters of all kinds which constitute ‘filth.’ Dirt has been defined, by Sydney Smith, as ‘matter out of place.’ So the filth of which we speak is but sewage out of place. When confined within its proper channels, and therein constantly undergoing rapid removal, sewage is harmless, and does not deserve the opprobrious epithet which it incurs under opposite conditions, namely, when stagnating without, or even within its channels; then poisonous vapors are generated and given off, which convey filth-infection in all its forms.

“By no other means can this purification of our city from filth be encompassed than by the rapid and continuous removal from our midst of all refuse matters, such as constitute sewage, comprising solid and liquid excrements, foul household waters, etc., etc. Any reliance upon ‘disinfectants’ as a means of public sanitation would be but a delusion and a snare.”

December, 1874, the Board of Health of this city sent a communication to the City Council upon the necessity of improved sewerage. February, 1875, the Commission upon Improved Sewerage was appointed, consisting of the most eminent engineers in this country, Messrs. Chesbrough of Chicago and Lane of Milwaukee, civil engineers, and Dr. Charles E. Folsom of Boston, sanitary engineer. After many public hearings and a careful and patient examination of the subject, sending one of their number to Europe to examine and report upon existing systems there, they reported the scheme now before you. The special committee of last year upon this subject, of which I had the honor of being a member, gave very careful consideration to the report of the commissioners, and held several public hearings to enable engineers or others so disposed to criticise the proposed plan, and to suggest other plans if they desired. June 12, 1876, they reported, recommending the adoption of the plan presented by the commissioners, and the City Council authorized the survey of different routes and discharging points. You now have before you the reports of our able Engineer, Mr. Davis, and the principal assistant in charge, Mr. Clark, recommending the Moon Island route, via the Cow Pasture, so called.

Seven years have elapsed since this question of improved sewerage was first agitated by the city authorities. During that time every one has been convinced of the necessity of some system which will carry the sewage out so far that its point of discharge will be remote from dwellings, and beyond the possibility of doing harm. This leaves us to decide the question only of how this shall be done. It is hardly possible that a plan could be submitted which would not be criticised by some one who thinks he has a better one. I therefore trust and believe the Council will accept the opinions already given by the able engineers that recommend this scheme. It is no experiment. London, after having six different commissions appointed, adopted the main drainage plan, with a system of intercepting sewers, with four pumping stations and outlets ten to fourteen miles below the city. That system is virtually the one recommended by our own commission. The death rate since the adoption of this system of drainage there was reduced to 22 per 1000 or thereabouts for the year 1875, while our own for that year was over twenty-six.

The city of Dantzic, with a population of about 90,000, constructed intercepting sewerage works in 1870-71. Average death rate for nine years previous, 36.93; average death rate for five years after, 28.55; number of lives saved in five years, 3156.

Dr. Lievin, Chief Health Officer of Dantzic, in a recent letter to Dr. Folsom, Secretary of State Board of Health, says, “The life-saving influence of our new sewerage system is clearly shown. Cholera, formerly epidemic, has not appeared since the completion of the works, and there has been a great diminution in the number of cases of typhoid and typhus fever.”

Results of improved sewerage systems in twelve cities and towns of England:

Death rate previous, per 1000.....	26.4
Death rate after, per 1000.....	21.7
Per cent. saved.....	16

Average number of deaths in Boston for the past three years, 8324 per annum. Should the result be equally favorable here we should save per annum 1332 lives, which would have amounted in the seven years we have been investigating this subject and the three years we shall consume in construction, ten years in all, to 13,320 lives. The city of Glasgow has had four different commissions, and now proposes to adopt a system of intercepting sewers and main drain emptying down the Clyde at an expense of twelve million dollars ($12,000,000.) The system is similar to the one we are now considering. New York is also considering the same plan. You will see that this scheme is not an experimental one, but is now in successful operation in other cities with beneficial results. I trust we shall not longer delay the adoption of it here, and shall pass the orders reported by the committee.

Mr. Blodgett of Ward 8—Mr. President, I wish to occupy the time and attention of this Council but a few moments, but there are some facts which I wish to state for their consideration why this order should not pass. The reasons that the friends of this measure advance are—first, the great nuisances; second, the excessive death-rate; third, flooded cellars. As to the first, we all know that there are several nuisances that should have been abated long ago. One, on the Back Bay, so called, is now to be covered for a park; and when the outlet sewer is built—as it must be—to Charles River, that will be entirely abated; and the outlet of the sewer at Otter street extended to deep water, that will also be abated. Then the Roxbury Canal is to be filled up, and those sewers also extended to deep water; we shall then hear no more from these nuisances than we shall from the Brookline sewer now building to Charles River. The report of the commission (City Doc. No. 3, 1876, page 29) says—

“There is very little offence from the sewer outlets, and if there is, this system does not remedy the evil.”

It was said last year that it was proposed to close all the sewer outlets, so that no gas will come out. I do not so understand it. They are to be kept open for storm water; and as to the gas, with this new sewer always (except in times of storms) partially full, we shall have more gas than we now have, and unless properly disposed of (as it can be as well now) it will then find its way back into our untrapped sinks, conductors, cess-pools, etc. Second—The excessive death-rate of Boston. It has been said our death rate is higher than any other city except New Orleans. It may have been one year or one week perhaps, but taking the last ten years to 1876 it is the fifth city on the list—exceeded by New Orleans, New York, Brooklyn and Baltimore, and lower than the average of the ten largest cities in the United States. If we read the report of Dr. Buckingham and others appointed to investigate the sanitary condition of the city, we shall read that our mean death-rate is not excessive, only 24.5 per 1000; and of the general death-rate compared to eighteen English cities in 1871, ours is the lowest but three. By the report of the State Board of Health, deaths by typhoid fever per 1000 were less in 1875 than the average for the last ten years, and as near as I can read this excessive death-rate is all exaggeration. In the report of the committee of 1876, page 3, they say—

“The commission appointed by the Board of Health of 1875 report that filth diseases occasion each year the greater part of our preventable mortality.”

No doubt of that, sir. And now, what is this filth that causes such mortality? Is it all sewage? No, sir. That same and very able commission tells us what it is, and where and among whom our death rate falls most heavily—upon the children of our foreign population, and mostly under one year of age. They tell us the reasons are, urban density of population; extreme summer heat; they are crowded into small, low, dirty, ill-ventilated rooms on streets and alleys also covered with filth for them to breathe the foul air from, as well as neglect of the parents, etc.

And this can all be summed up in one word, poverty. I don't know but the life of a child is just as valuable to be saved at the city expense in one part of the city as another, and I believe that if one-half of the interest of this sum of money were judiciously spent in giving the poor of Boston properly-ventilated rooms and air, we should reduce the death rate more than this whole outlay in sewers. By reading the report of the Board of Health (City Doc. 1876, page 58) we can learn where this excessive death rate is, and where it is not. It is not at the South End, nor West End, but at the north part of the city, where this sewer does not reach.

“The death-rate varies greatly in different sections of the city; thus, in that large area of made land which lies mainly west of Charles street and Columbus avenue, the death rate was as low as 37.13 per thousand living, while the high rate of 96.14 was found in the immediate vicinity of Hanover and Commercial streets. This variation seems to depend largely on the character of those living within the various boundary lines, and on the conditions under which they live, rather than on any local causes. The more crowded the population, the higher the death rate. A rise and fall in the mortality percentage will also be seen to correspond to the wealth and poverty, the education and ignorance, of those living in the various sections of the city, which have thus been purposely selected, as affording marked contrasts in the character and social standing of the population.”

This sewer is not intended to reach the location where the death rate is highest, and I do not see how any one can vote for such an enormous outlay, on account of the excessive death rate unless it is to relieve that portion of the city where the death rate is most excessive. Third, storm water, and here is where all our imperfect sewerage trouble commenced, and then comes the great hue and cry of excessive mortality, which is all storm and tide water in the South End cellars, and nothing else. The city should and does conduct the storm water above the tide, but it will be impossible to pump it to Moon Island. And as this system only provides for one-fourth of an inch in twenty-four hours, it would be helpless in many of the storms we have—sometimes three inches per hour. The committee of 1876 say—

“The flooding of the cellars at the South End during storms at high tide may, to a great degree, be obviated by the proposed system, by the increased storage capacity of the sewer.”

If we need storage for storm water, it will be much cheaper to build it in the city than to stretch it to Moon Island. And, according to evidence and many expert writers and good engineers, we shall not have a perfect system of sewerage until we separate the sewage from the storm water; and if we have to pump it, the less we have to pump, and the nearer home, the less expense. A great part of this Moon Island scheme is moonshine. In the remarks of Mr. Bradley, our Superintendent of Sewers, last year, before the committee, he says (page seven)—

“The construction of the sewer to Moon Island, at a cost of three to four million dollars, will be a very proper continuation of our drainage system when the population and wealth of the city demand it. But its influence on the prominent complaints of the day will be, to remove the smell of flats from South Bay, but not from Charles River.”

It has also been said to me that our City Engineer recommends this system; perhaps this is the reason why his salary is urged to be increased. He recommends this route from the two his orders were to survey, and estimated the expense. He appeared before the committee on several occasions, last year and this, and gave his views on different points, but nowhere and at no time before the committee did our Engineer commit himself to this plan unqualifiedly, but was very careful to answer questions so as not to commit himself, except as in his report he recommends the best route of the two that he was ordered to survey. In conclusion, I will only say that of the several benefits to be derived, the first can easily, and soon will, be abated; it does not reach the district where the second exists, and for the third, it will be entirely helpless in case of storms, and only a partial remedy, and therefore will not accomplish what the people are urged to believe.

Mr. Thorndike of Ward 2—In last evening's Herald I read the following:

“What's the use of employing expensive experts to prepare a plan, as was done in the sewerage matter, if their conclusions are to be denied and their recommendations rejected?”

Mr. President, Perhaps it is out of place and ill timed for me to place any obstacle in the way of the immediate commencement of the construction of the improved sewerage of Boston. I was one of the committee, but did not approve the Moon Island terminus which was established by an act of the Legislature. At a committee meeting I called the attention of the committee, and explained to them, a route more favorable, by which a large amount of money could be saved. I was answered that the city had gone to an expense of $40,000 and engineers of great experience had been employed to report upon the best system of sewerage for Boston, and their report was final. Your committee reported in favor of the route as recommended by the City Engineer.

According to the commissioners' report, two different routes were recommended. One route for the territory north of Charles River, passing through Cambridge, Charlestown and Chelsea to the pumping station at Breed's Island. (At this station the branch route of sewerage from East Boston connected with the main route.) From this pumping station the route continued to the reservoir at Point Shirley.

The other route, recommended for the territory south of Charles River, passing through Roxbury and Dorchester to the pumping station at Commercial Point, thence to Squantum, thence to reservoir, Moon Island. The route selected by your committee, recommended to them by the City Engineer as the cheapest by about $650,000 less than the commissioners' route, commences at the pumping station, Old Harbor Point, thence by a tunnel 7920 feet long to Squantum Head, thence to the reservoir at Moon Island. This route has many objectionable features. The City Engineer reports that shafts have to be sunk about 200 feet for a foundation, and the sewage from the reservoir at Moon Island passes by Long Island, Gallop's, George's and Lovell's islands in the outer harbor, and finally brings up at the Brewsters, which sooner or later must cause trouble. The whole cost of this line of sewerage, by the Engineer's report, is $3,712,000. The estimated cost of the interspersing and main sewers is $1,271,000, making the cost of the sewer from and including the pumping station, tunnel, reservoir, etc., $2,441,000. I have had considerable experience as a civil engineer and do not consider it possible for any engineer to estimate the cost of the tunnel, and in my opinion it will cost a great amount more than the estimate. Compare the estimates of the insane asylum at Danvers, or the Hoosac Tunnel, with the final cost, and draw your conclusion accordingly. Now, Mr. President, my plan is to include all the interspersing and main sewers, the lines and grades as recommended by the commissioners, and by connecting them with the same commissioners' line as laid out in East Boston to the pumping station at Breed's Island, thence by the same line of sewerage as laid out by the commission from the north of Charles River to the reservoir at Point Shirley. The only extra expense would be a tunnel under Boston Harbor (which should be a double one). The width of the harbor at this point is about 1300 feet, and rock foundation can be obtained within about eighty feet. I voted for the Public Park—on account of the water basin—as recommended by the Park Commission, this water to be used when required for flushing the sewer. The whole length of this sewer to the pumping station can be flushed by the water from the Public Park, and if this route to Point Shirley is adopted, $3,000,000 can be saved, according to the present estimates.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—When this system was first introduced here by the report of the committee, I could see no other way than to vote for it. But after carefully reading the report of the Engineer, and maturing deliberately over the conclusions arrived at, I cannot see my way to vote for it. In the first place I don't think the trouble with the sewage matter, especially at the South End, comes from the ordinary sewage, but from rainfall or storm water; and in that connection I think the system entirely imperfect, that some provision should have been made whereby the surface water should be taken care of and arrangements made to empty it into the docks around Boston without any detriment to the health, and at very slight expense compared to the cost of this scheme. This sewer will do nothing but carry a little farther seaward the ordinary sewage matter which is now carried to the South Bay. That in itself is very good, but it don't relieve the people of the nuisance. The ordinary rainfall would take about eight cubic feet a day for each person, and for rainfall it would take 150 cubic feet. The Engineer estimates the rainfall at a quarter of an inch for twenty-four hours. That would be all very well if we could regulate the rainfall by human power and cause it to rain just so much every twenty-four hours, and this pumping station might take care of it. But that is n't the case. We are liable to get an inch of rainfall in an hour, and that would put the accommodation of it by any sewer or pumping station out of the question. Then, again, he don't give us the capacity of these pumps. We are told that they are to be double-acting pumps—as they should be, as one might give out. Now, unless there is some better reason, or some more definite plan, I don't think I can vote for the order under the present circumstances, because I think the system should provide for taking care of the surface water.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—This system does provide for completely taking off the storm water, and it is easy enough for any one to see it. After the sewage is taken into the intercepting sewers and main drains, it leaves the old sewers to carry off the storm water; their outlets will be left open as they are today, and they will be occupied almost entirely for that; and a certain percentage of the intercepting sewer will be feasible for the same purpose for some years to come. In regard to the remarks of the gentleman from Ward 8 [Mr. Blodgett], who speaks about the gas from the sewers, and states that this is not going to relieve it, I wish to say that the Engineer states that it will relieve it entirely—so much so that the sewers will be ventilated in the street. The gas we have today is caused by tide-locked sewers. I will read from the Engineer's report:

"As the borders of the sewered portions of Boston consist largely of broad strips of made land, filled to level planes only six or eight feet above mean high tide, the sewers are necessarily built with slight grades, and are so situated as to be tide-locked a large portion of the time. They discharge during the latter part of the ebb and the first part of the flood tides, so that the sewage, instead of being swept out into the harbor and there diffused, is carried inland, and such portion as will deposit in still water is thrown down at the turn of the tide upon the broad areas of flats that exist within and around the city. This intermittent discharge produces other serious evils. During the time the sewage is accumulating in the sewers there is very little current in them, and, in consequence, deposits are formed which are not readily removed, and, when putrefaction begins, are the source of dangerous gases. Again, as the sewage accumulates and rises in the sewers the gases are compressed, and since adequate ventilation is not provided, are liable to be forced through the house-drains into the house."

This system will provide for the constant flow of all sewage from the moment it leaves the houses until it reaches the sea. Therefore there will be no gas generated and consequently no putrefaction taking place, as now. The gentleman [Mr. Blodgett] has referred to the death rate, as stated by the Board of Health. I have here the report of the State Board on the same subject, and will read it. The rate per 1000 in New York was 29.10; in Philadelphia, 21.56; in Brooklyn, 24.78; in Chicago, 18.80; in Baltimore, 20.72; in Boston, 26.18. That answers what the gentleman said in regard to that. Also, the report of our city Board of Health shows that during the past year—

"Over thirty per cent. of the deaths in Boston, or nearly one-third, are from diseases which are classed as preventable, and no one thing has so great an effect upon those diseases as the comparative purity of the air. Even the death rate of different parts of the city makes this quite clear enough. For instance, while the death rate for the whole city in the year 1876 was 23.39 in every thousand, in the Back Bay section it was only 14; in Brighton, 15.8; on Beacon Hill, 18.9; Haymarket square, 23.9; lower South Boston, 27.9 North End, 23.2."

And I still pretend to say that the portion of the city to be benefited by this system of sewerage is the North End, and more so than the Back Bay and South End.

Mr. Blodgett—The gentleman did not understand what I said of the death rate of Boston compared with that of other cities. I did not compare it in one year alone as he has, but I took the ten years previous, making an average death-rate for the period.

Mr. Sampson—I quoted from the State Board of Health of 1876.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—When we visited the line of this system the other day I made some inquiries of the City Engineer about the surface water, and he said he had not taken that into consideration at all, and that he knew of no other city in the country where they attempted to provide for it.

Mr. Sampson—The gentleman must have misunderstood him. It is provided for in the report of the commissioners.

Mr. Blodgett—The storm water is provided for now, as it will be after this intercepting sewer is built, except in case of very light storms.

Mr. Sampson—I would like the Council to understand the cause of the flood of the cellars. It is estimated that the rainfall comes upon a high tide when the sewers are locked and filled with sewage. Under this system that sewage will not be there, and the present sewers will have ample capacity to carry off the storm water.

Mr. Mowry—Have the engineers any doubts about this?

Mr. Sampson—They indorse it fully. Mr. Davis did not commit himself last year, but this year he believes in the efficacy of the scheme.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—I find in the report of the Committee on Improved Sewerage that they give three different routes, which have been surveyed for the main sewer, and Mr. Davis says in his report, on the first page, that—"All the schemes are alike in their main features, and correspond with that proposed and recommended by the commission appointed in 1875 to report upon the present sewerage of the city, and to present a plan for its improvement."

So that if we adopt either of these schemes, it will be one examined and reported upon by the Board of Commissioners who had the matter in charge. Now, sir, I examined this report of Mr. Davis very carefully, and it appears to me, upon reading it, that he is rather non-committal in regard to indorsing either of these schemes. He goes on and gives certain estimates of the cost of the three different routes. It appears that the Old Harbor and the Commercial Point routes run together until they reach a point near Crescent avenue and the Old Colony Railroad, where they diverge, one section going to Old Harbor, near Cow Pasture Buoy, and the other to Commercial Point. The distance from that point (where it diverges) on the Old Harbor route to Squantum Head is two and five-eighths of a mile, whilst the Commercial Point route is three and a quarter miles, making seven eighths of a mile longer than the tunnel route proposed by the committee; and it also costs some five or six hundred thousand dollars more. But it seems to me you must bear in mind, gentlemen, that the Commercial Point route will give you one and five-eighths miles of shore line, which will be sewered by the main sewer; that is, in passing down to Commercial Point, you sewer the lower part of Dorchester, Savin Hill, Neponset, and, I might say almost, the lower part of West Roxbury; and the sewage which comes from Milton Lower Mills would enter this sewer by intercepting sewers along this one and five-eighths of a mile, which will be entirely shut out if you go to the Old Harbor terminus; and, consequently, if we adopt the Old Harbor route we have got to bring back all that sewage from Milton Lower Mills, and all along that territory in the lower part of Dorchester, towards Boston, and empty it into the main sewer, which, in ten or fifteen years from now, will probably cost you half as much as this whole scheme—perhaps some two or three million dollars—for the reason that this sewer is intended to drain a territory with a population of six hundred thousand. Now, where is that population to be located? There is no question whatever but that the increase of the population hereafter will flow towards the south into that section of Dorchester, West Roxbury, Hyde Park and adjoining territory; consequently all the sewage of this large increase of population has got to be brought back toward Boston and carried over to Old Harbor and there pumped up and sent back on the same course again to Moon Island. Now, if it does cost more for the Commercial Point route, if we adopt that route, we will have a sewer which we can examine at any time in case of accident; while in regard to the tunnel route there is a great deal of doubt, on account of the trouble we may encounter underneath Dorchester Bay. I have examined this report and don't find that Mr. Davis speaks very strongly of the Old Harbor route. In fact, in speaking of that route, he says—

"The chief objection to it is the siphon in tunnel under Dorchester Bay. This feature is objectionable on account of difficulty of construction, and of the special appliances to keep it from silting up. A great deal of thought has been given to the latter point, and various methods for preventing deposit, and for flushing out deposits, when they do occur, have been considered. The method finally adopted for purposes of the estimate is a large, covered flushing-tank at the west shaft, into which the sewage will be pumped, and afterwards let through the siphon with a velocity sufficient to prevent deposit, or to remove any that may exist. At the east end a sump is provided, into which heavy matter, if any should find entrance to the tunnel, will be swept, thence to be dredged up through the east shaft. European experience in the use of siphons for sewerage purposes may show that so much in the way of precaution is unnecessary."

Now, for the last six months that the committee have had this matter in charge, and it seems to me if there has been any precedent established in the European system, there has been time enough to show us the fact, if there is any such siphon. I doubt very much if they can flush that siphon without immense cost to carry off this material which will deposit in it; and if it fills up your siphon is entirely gone, and the expense of eight or nine hundred thousand dollars is lost. The engineer says,

"In the Commercial Point scheme, the main sewer follows the same line as in the scheme just considered, to a point near Crescent avenue and the Old Colony Railroad."

On page fourteen, in speaking of the Commercial Point route, he says—

"This scheme possesses the more important advantages of the Old Harbor Point scheme, and, in addition, it avoids a tunnel and reduces the siphon to a moderate length. While this is an advantage of considerable importance, it is not worth the difference in cost."

So that this report admits as a fact that the best route to go is to Commercial Point, if it was not for the additional expense. Then he says—

"The grade of the sewer along this stretch is from eleven to thirteen feet below low tide, and since much the greater portion of it would be either in tide water or along its edge, the difficulties to be met in construction would necessarily be of a serious character."

Well, now, sir, I would like to inquire if the same difficulties would not be encountered in the Old Harbor route, where they pass from Crescent avenue down along that stretch of marsh? I would like to know if the same trouble from tide water is not going to affect it as if they followed the line down to Commercial Point? Supposing this to be the case, as he states; at the same time cannot we go a little farther south, and perhaps cross the river at Port Norfolk, only a short distance inland, and find harder bottom than from traversing so near to the shore? Whilst going by the tunnel route will be full of a great many difficulties and doubts, whether it succeeds or not, and you do not know what it may cost in the end, you can tell almost to a certainty what the Commercial Point route will cost. I would like now to trouble the Council a few moments, and turn to the report of Mr. Clarke, the Assistant Engineer in charge. On page 19 he says, under the heading of "expert testimony"—

"While making borings upon the 'tunnel line,' Mr. D. D. McBean of Chicago, an expert miner in rock and soft ground, was engaged to examine the borings and give his opinion upon the feasibility and cost of a tunnel as proposed."

Now, sir, I have looked this plan over carefully, and I cannot find any report made by Mr. McBean. We paid Mr. McBean to examine the route and give us an opinion, but we don't find it. I should like to read it; perhaps the committee did not want us to see it. Then, sir, on the twentieth page—

"Four sites for the pumping station have been examined, viz., Commercial Point, Fox Point, Old Harbor Point and City Point. Commercial Point presents several favorable conditions. A sufficient area could be obtained, though probably at considerable expense."

It would have been very easy to find out what the expense would be, if the committee had taken the trouble. [Reading continued.]

"The foundations would be good; the facilities for discharging coal are excellent."

Now, sir, at Commercial Point there are twenty-four feet of water at low tide, so that vessels of the largest capacity can come up to the wharf; while by the other route you have got to dredge out a new channel and make wharves.

"Although there are some dwellings in its vicinity, yet these are not very numerous nor valuable, and no large damages from any possible nuisance caused by the pumps or filth-hoist need be anticipated."

Well, now, if that should be the case it seems to me it would be a greater nuisance if it were located near South Boston than it would farther down in Dorchester Bay. He says—

"To reach this point with the contemplated 'high-level sewer' would require an elevated conduit or siphon nearly a mile long."

Then he speaks of Fox Point, which, I take it, is the Savin Hill route—

"Fox Point, the locality recommended by the commissioners, seems to be rather near the valuable residence property of Savin Hill. It would be about as easy of access for the high-level sewage as Commercial Point. The great depth of mud at this point, between the shore and channel, would render the building of a coal wharf a difficult and costly operation. For the same reason any method of crossing the river would be so uncertain and expensive that no estimates have been made by this line."

Now, I would like to inquire whether it is not as easy to tunnel from Savin Hill across to Squantum Head as it is from Old Harbor to Squantum Head? You have to cross the same river and territory; and yet they would not examine Fox Hill on account of the uncertainty and expense. What uncertainty? Because he thought the tunnel would prove a failure. It seems to me the same uncertainty would apply to the Old Harbor as to the Savin Hill route. Then he says—

"Old Harbor Point comprises over a hundred acres, which is valued by the city assessors at about $200 an acre."

Now, I happen to know something about the value they put upon that territory. I do not believe the city of Boston can buy a foot of those flats at less than ten cents a foot, which is over $4000 an acre, instead of $200. That territory lies upon a deep water front in Dorchester Bay, and is destined at some future time to be of commercial importance.

Mr. Clarke's time having expired, on motion of Mr. Pearl the rule was suspended.

Mr. Clarke—He says, referring to Old Harbor Point, "It would afford a good foundation for the pumps and other structures. About four acres, at its extremity, have been filled to grade fourteen." Now if you have four acres there filled up to grade fourteen, you certainly have got to pay for the expense of filling it; so there would be no difference, whether you have the marsh or the land filled—you have got to fill that marsh—and there is nothing gained, except perhaps time. He says—

"A wharf and dock are already constructed, but would require some extension and dredging to make them accessible to coal vessels."

Now, it will cost just as much to dredge a dock at Old Harbor and make it accessible for coal vessels, as it would at Fox Point, which he speaks of as being such a great expense on account of the dredging. I think you can dredge at Savin Hill as cheaply as you can at Old Harbor. Now, if you examine this report of Mr. Clarke's very carefully, you will find that the only recommendation he makes at all is when he says that "Commercial Point presents several favorable considerations." But he does not express his opinion upon Old Harbor Point or Fox Point, and I think if we really knew the opinion of Mr. Clarke, he would rather take the risk, pay the difference, and go down by the shore line to Commercial Point, than to undertake the doubtful enterprise of tunnelling under Dorchester Bay. I desire now to trouble the Council for a few moments with the report of Mr. Shaler, professor of geology at Harvard College. I read that report through very carefully two or three times, and the more I read it the more doubt there seems to be in my mind of the feasibility of the tunnel route. In speaking of the character of the fissures in the rocks (on page 33), he says—

"I am inclined to believe that the overlying drift will probably prevent the entrance of water into the few fissures that will be encountered except in the cases in which it (the drift) is composed of sand, where it comes into contact with the surface of the rock. It should be said, however, that the circumstances of occurrence of these rocks are such as to make accurate and complete determinations quite impossible."

He states here distinctly that it is impossible for him to make an accurate and complete determination of the character of the rocks lying under Dorchester Bay. He continues—

"In a region so profoundly disturbed by the tilting and faulting of its beds, it is impossible to make certain of the exact condition of any rocks unless they are seen. The greater part of the rock surface in this district is masked by the sea, or by the very deep deposits of drift materials. The conclusions before arrived at have a good deal of evidence in their favor, but cannot be accepted as absolute certainties."

So that by adopting the tunnel route you have got to run a risk in order to save a few thousand dollars, rather than go by a route which will be a success, at a little more cost. He says—

"I shall now consider the character of the tops of these bed rocks, with the object of determining the depth below the surface at which a tunnel would have to be driven in order to keep below the accidental depressions of their surface contours. I am satisfied that this is a matter of more importance than it would seem to be at first sight."

At the same time I looked the report through carefully, and he does not express an opinion how far down they would have to go to get to the depth of this bed-rock. When we were down to examine this scheme, the committee showed us but one route, and we know nothing of any others except what we find in this report. At the same time they had a plan there which they brought out for Mr. Davis to explain, and which he did very cautiously, and did not commit himself in any way; and when the question was asked him how deep they would have to go to get down to this bed rock, he said they might go 100 or 200 feet. There is a great deal of difference between 100 and 200 feet. Perhaps they might have to go down 500 feet, and instead of the tunnel costing $800,000, it may cost three times that amount. On page 34 he describes the character of the rocks under the action of the tide at the time they were known to be full in the cavities. Then he says,—

"No law of form can be traced which will enable us to determine the details of contour of a hidden surface with accuracy. It may be said, however, that at the mouth of each distinct land valley we find a very deep, wide trough continued out to sea, cutting through all obstacles, or, at most, leaving little save shreds of any barrier that it may meet. The other depressions away from the axes of a main valley are apt to be shorter and shallower."

Then he says—

"From a careful inspection of similar rocks when exposed in the neighborhood of the proposed work, I consider that if these soundings are made at distances of one hundred feet apart, it will be necessary to allow at least fifty feet for the possible depression between these points of sounding. If the distance between the soundings is reduced to fifty feet, there should be a proportional allowance for the irregularity between them."

And, in speaking of the effects of the ice, he says—

"The ice-sheet, in its movement over the surface, aided by the sub-glacial streams of water, cut up and mingled into the lower few hundred feet of ice a vast quantity of stones, gravel, sand and mud. When the sheet melted, this mass sank down upon the land and sea floors wherever they had been covered by the ice. We still find the remains of this deposit in the true boulder clay, or such as caps the hills in Cambridge and other neighboring districts. This deposit is the oldest and least changed of all the products of the glacial period. It is a dense, impervious mass, made up of boulders, sand and mud, rudely commingled together in an unstratified order. As this mass sank down upon the land it was cut and swept by the streams arising from the melting of the ice, and from the action of the sea, which, in the then existing level of the shore, extended much farther inland than at present. The result is that, in the main, this mass was swept away and rearranged into more varied deposits of sand, mud and pebbles. The only extensive deposits I have been able to find in this district lie upon the hill-tops, where they have been in a measure protected against the action of running water. The nearer we come to the sea level the less there is of this unsorted drift. I doubt if there is any of it below high-tide mark, except in the deeper pockets, such as that which lies off the mouth of the Neponset River."

And he says further that—

"The result is that no geological skill can predict the character of the beds that will be encountered in a deep excavation of any considerable length within the drift near the sea level of New England."

And further—

"There is always a risk of encountering local beds of sand and gravel which have filled old channels in these clays. The position of these unseen old channels is not determinable by any means of inference. The surface of all these glacial deposits below the water level is generally covered over by a bed of mud which has been formed since the present adjustment of the geography was effected. This deposit is somewhat impervious to water; when more than three or four feet deep it is usually considerably consolidated by pressure, and may be reckoned on as a protection against the water of the sea. The advantage which this gives is in good part counterbalanced by the fact that the land water is held beneath these muds to a greater or less extent, and as they often extend above tide water, they serve to introduce an element of pressure tending to drive the rain water more forcibly into the submerged beds of sand and gravel. I should say that I am inclined to believe that the deep Neponset channel will be found to contain rather more compact materials, these containing more clay and rather more free from local sand-filled channels than the most of our deposits of the same general nature. It should also be understood that in making soundings with the drill in this glacial drift, it is not possible to determine by a single boring the position of the bed rock. It often happens that there are many large boulders in the glacial beds, particularly near their base. The drill will thus seem to indicate bed rock, when the actual position of that surface may be many feet below the place occupied by the boulder. In most cases two or three soundings should be made in order to avoid this element of risk. Yet, when even this care is taken, perfect certainty cannot be obtained."

I would call the Council's attention particularly to this fact, because all through this report it speaks of uncertainties, uncertainties, uncertainties. He finally sums up:

"First—That the bed rocks to be traversed by the tunnel are, as far as their hardness and general condition are concerned, on the whole favorable to the accomplishment of the proposed work. They seem to consist of compact materials, somewhat penetrated by fissures, but not on the whole more open in texture than the Hoosac Tunnel rocks. Very many dislocations exist, and these give rise to some slightly open fissures which may afford access to the waters from above. As far as we can judge from the evidence obtained on the main land, these openings, though numerous, are not likely to be of large sectional area.

"Second—That the surface of the bed rocks is certainly exceedingly irregular in outline. The ridges, and, to a certain extent, the furrows of its surface are likely to be masked by heavy boulders, so that the precise condition of the undisturbed bed rock cannot be readily determined."

Now, in commencing this tunnel we have got to go down to find this undisturbed bed rock. If we commence our tunnel at a point where there is every appearance of being bed rock, and begin by boring a few hundred feet, and find one of those deep-rock channels which he tells about, and which descends and rises, then our tunnel comes to an end, and then we shall have to go down farther and start over again. He says—

"That the drift materials are very untrustworthy in their nature, it being impossible to determine, save by several parallel lines of soundings, exactly what beds will be passed through in making that part of the tunnel which lies within their mass. It is my duty to say, in closing this report, that, at best, the study of the geology of this district is beset by very great difficulties."

I think, Mr. President, if gentlemen have carefully read his report and that of the Engineer, all we seem to have is that the tunnel route may be the cheapest, but they don't indorse it in such a manner as it seems to me that we ought to go into this heavy expenditure without some further information upon it.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—The question has been going through my mind for half an hour—Who knows anything about sewers? It has been illustrated pretty plainly that Mr. Davis don't, because he don't take this sewer down to Commercial Point; and that Engineer Clarke don't, because he thinks there are some uncertainties; and that some one else don't, because he don't give an opinion. But I believe there are two or three things which each gentleman can settle in his own mind. The first question is, "Do we need sewerage?" I think the opponents of this scheme, who have talked today, have given us some of the best evidence that we do, because they say there is a nuisance; and we don't want any nuisance in Boston. The gentleman from Ward 8 [Mr. Blodgett] tells us that if we fill up Roxbury Canal and one hundred acres on the Back Bay, that is going to stop it. I would like to have him come up to my house, in front of which is an outlet of a sewer, and get the stench from it, and I would like to ask him if filling up the South Bay and the Roxbury Canal is going to remedy that in any way, shape or manner? I would like to have him come into the house I have lived in for the last week, where every night there has been such a stench that it is almost unbearable, and I would like to know if it will remedy that in the least. I don't know but the gentleman lives in a house where he does n't get noxious smells; but if there is a place in Boston where they have n't had these smells within the last three or four weeks, it has been outside of my acquaintance with the city. I believe we need an improved system of sewerage in Boston. If you had asked me in the last three or four years what we most need in Boston, I should say sewerage. I am a great advocate of parks, for I believe we want a place to breathe; but I believe we want a place to breathe in other than what we shall have in a large park; and that the only way to remedy present defects is by putting in a system of improved sewerage. The Superintendent of Sewers has been quoted as saying thus and so. He has been trying the present system fourteen years, and we are no better off now than when he began. The gentleman says we need a sewer for surface water; why, here is a sewer that will hold more water than all the sewers in Boston, yet the gentleman tells us we are going to be troubled just as much as we are today. It seems to me that his argument is extremely foolish. I have been asked a good many times during the past week if I was going to take this whole scheme and swallow it. Well, I have been swallowing something that has smelled badly for years, and I go for killing or curing it. A gentleman, who has been against this system of sewerage, and who lives at Longwood, almost lost a child recently, and now he says he would rather pay ten dollars more a thousand in his taxes rather than lose this system of sewerage. I say the cost of it is not an iota, compared with the effect of sickness in your house and mind. We need pure air, but I don't believe we have it, or can get it now. No other scheme has been presented; this is the only one. Competent men have studied into it and made it a science for years; they have studied the experience of other cities, and I would rather be guided by them than by somebody who don't know anything about it, and it seems to me the best we can do is to adopt the plan they have recommended. We have spent $40,000 in preparing plans; the scheme presented is a comprehensive one, and it seems to me we ought to go ahead without any more delay.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—It is well known to every member of the Council that this matter has been debated for years, and there has been great anxiety that something should be done to improve the sewerage of Boston. A couple of years ago a commission was appointed, composed of some of the most eminent engineers in this country; they studied this matter thoroughly and gave us their report, and I believe we ought to adopt it. For one, I have no knowledge of engineering; but I am willing and ready to take the report submitted by engineers and scientific gentlemen, and adopt it. I can probably comprehend portions of their report; but, on the whole, I think it would be well for members of the Council who have no knowledge of engineering and science to adopt the report submitted by those gentlemen. Therefore, believing that all this talk will amount to nothing, and that the members are as well prepared to vote now as they will be at any future time, I move the previous question.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I hope that motion will not prevail. It looks like choking off opposition.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—This meeting was called for the express purpose of considering a system of improved sewerage. Now, if any one here wants to consider it, or has any objections or suggestions to make, I think he ought to have an opportunity. I don't think his Honor the Mayor intended to call us together in special session to vote upon an important matter like this—one of the most important that will ever come before us—expecting to have discussion choked off by the previous question. While I think I shall vote for the order myself, nevertheless, in justice to all here, I think they ought to have the privilege of saying something. I shall oppose the previous question at this time.

The Council refused to order the main question, by a division—20 for, 29 against.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I am somewhat confused, sir, by the many very able plans for remedying this matter suggested by the eminent engineers and members of this Council. There seems to be a diversity of opinion. One gentleman who is interested in some land at Savin Hill is extremely desirous not to have it go anywhere near his possessions. Another gentleman, living in East Boston, desires to carry the sewage over there, for some unknown reason. As the emptying of the sewage will create a nuisance, it is said, I cannot understand why he cares to take it in that direction. Then another gentleman, who has a summer residence in Squantum, seems desirous of bringing this great nuisance near his barn door. That is another curious phase of the question. Of course, gentlemen mean what they say; but I cannot understand the positions taken by those gentlemen. For myself, the only opposition I have comes from the question of expense; and it seems to me that this is one of the most, if not the most important point we can consider. I am very reluctant to spend this amount of money for a purpose which is not absolutely necessary; and in voting for it as I feel I shall be compelled to do, I do it with a great deal of reluctance. My only reason for doing so is, that the reports made by the various boards of health seem to prove conclusively to me that a large portion of our diseases are caused by troubles that this sewer will obviate; and on that account we not only owe it to ourselves, but to the citizens at large to obviate it. Another point which strikes me is, that if the city of Boston is to undertake a large work, which will employ a great number of laborers, the present time seems most favorable for beginning it. While I do not believe in ever making work for the purpose of employing persons, I think that time should be chosen for a public work when a large number of our citizens are out of work; and I am sure that at no time within the past ten years has this been so true as at present. One remark made by the gentleman from East Boston in regard to the estimates struck me as quite forcible. He mentioned that in all these works the estimates of the expense are almost always overrun, and cited the case of the Hoosac Tunnel. Now, sir, that is a very pertinent point; and if I felt at all uncertain that the total expense of this sewer would exceed the estimate twice or three times, I should certainly vote against it. But our present City Engineer is very much given to overestimating the expense at the start, and not underestimating. The new conduit to Sudbury River was laid out under his direction, and I asked the Board of Water Commissioners whether the expense was going to be larger or smaller than the estimate, and I was told that it would be smaller, if anything, and that the estimate was a very liberal one. That estimate also included one or two tunnels that are so terrible to the gentleman from Ward 22; and I think they did not penetrate into the middle of the hill to find the exact quality of the rock, but they found it just as they had expected to. I should judge it will be the same at Old Harbor Point and Squantum.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24—The gentleman from Ward 22 read copious extracts from Professor Shaler's report, and it seems to me he selected those which supported his view of the case. I have not looked over it to find extracts favoring the other view, but in following the gentleman I found two or three passages which point in that direction. First, in referring to the rocks through which the tunnel will go—

"They have a degree of hardness and may be accounted very favorable material in which to do any tunnelling work."

Then again, in referring to breaks which may occur in the rocks—

"In perhaps a score of cases where I have been able to trace these faults, for a considerable distance the actual space for the passage of water has not often exceeded the thickness of a knife-blade, and has never been continuous for considerable distances. Near the surface of the ground these beds are sometimes affected by weathering, which has developed the faults into open fissures; but below the depth of say twenty feet I have never found them open in any section I have been able to study."

Again he says—

"Only in rare cases have I found the margin between these two rocks open enough to admit the passage of any considerable amount of water. When a cavity occurs, it is generally filled with deposits laid down from heated waters. I should be surprised if a miner's inch of water was ever poured into the tunnel through any one of these furrows."

A note of explanation at the bottom of the page says,—

"A miner's inch of water is three thousand two hundred cubic feet in twenty-four hours, or the amount that will flow through an inch of aperture with a four-foot head."

It seems to me that Professor Shaler's opinion is really embodied in his conclusions. The first is—"That the bed rocks to be traversed by the tunnel are, as far as their hardness and general condition are concerned, on the whole, favorable to the accomplishment of the proposed work."

It is not to be supposed that a scientific gentleman, like Professor Shaler, is going to state positively whether or not any fissures will be found, and just what the character of this rock is twenty or thirty feet under water. He naturally would be very cautious. It seems to me, if we examine the whole of his report we can find that his conclusion is that the tunnel is a safe one to build. Speaking of the Commercial Point route, the gentleman from Ward 22 also referred to the difference of cost, which might be saved by going that route by reason of the additional sewer laid along the shore, and stated that it would probably have cost as much as that to bring the sewage from Neponset and the lower section of Dorchester to connect with the Old Harbor Point scheme. When this matter was before the committee of last year, of which I had the honor to be a member, my inclination was for the Commercial Point route, and from studying into it, it seemed to me to offer the most advantages. But after hearing the objections raised by the engineers, to whose opinions I certainly must defer, it does seem to me that the other is preferable in many respects. The gentleman from Ward 22 said that to run that sewer to connect with the Old Harbor Point scheme, would cost about half as much as the scheme now proposed. I took the pains to have Mr. Clarke estimate the cost of an intercepting sewer which would take all that sewage along shore and connect it with the Old Harbor Point scheme, and he told me that it would cost about $100,000. So you see there is a very great deal of difference between his opinion and that of the gentleman from Ward 22, who thought it would cost about two millions. The gentleman also stated that Mr. Clarke, in his report, did not give his indorsement to any of the plans proposed, but he thought his leaning was rather to the Commercial Point line. When the committee visited Squantum on this subject, it was my good fortune to ride in the carriage with Mr. Clarke, both to and from Squantum. I had considerable conversation with him about this matter, and he stated unequivocally as his opinion that the Old Harbor Point scheme was the best. Then, in regard to Mr. McBean's opinion, I had a conversation with him upon that point, and as I understand it his opinion was mainly upon the cost of this tunnelling, he having had large experience in such work in Chicago, and he gave estimates upon that point; and upon them the estimates of the engineers, as submitted to us, were based. The question was asked of Mr. McBean, I believe, by Mr. Clarke, whether or not he would be likely to estimate upon this work, or make a bid for the contract if it was offered, and Mr. McBean's reply was that he believed he would. The question was asked him whether he thought his figures were not rather high, and he seemed rather disposed to dodge that point. It seems to me that we can fairly assume that a party called here to estimate upon a job would not give his lowest figures if he intended to come here and bid upon the work. I don't think he would naturally do it, because the estimate would be public, and he would not want his lowest estimate made public for the benefit of any other parties who would bid upon it. Then in relation to tunnelling at Savin Hill, the gentleman from Ward 22 did not think but that it could be done as well there as at Old Harbor Point. Now I learn from the engineers that there is a deep deposit of mud at Savin Hill, and the gentleman must see that that is a different thing from tunnelling in rock or clay.

Mr. Clarke—How deep is that mud?

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24—I cannot say exactly, but my impression is, it is something like eighty feet; I may be wrong. Mr. Clarke told me at the time, but I did not impress it upon my mind; and he found it so deep that the plan of tunnelling there was given up at once, the Old Harbor Point scheme offering much better facilities. As a member of the committee, perhaps I might be expected to say something more general on this point; but I have nothing to say except to support the engineers' plan. I base my decision upon that. I have not assurance enough to say that I know more about it than they do. I think there can be no question that some system of improved sewerage is necessary. This is the best scheme we have been able to get after two or three years' investigation; it has received the indorsement of the best engineers in the country; and Mr. Davis, our City Engineer, has conferred with Mr. Chesbrough of Chicago, who was on the commission, in regard to it.

Mr. Danforth of Ward 10—In reading the report of Professor Shaler last night, I must say it rather unsettled my opinion of the two routes; and, accordingly, I went to Mr. Davis this morning, and asked him if the uncertainty of tunnelling across to Old Harbor Point might not cost more than going round to Commercial Point. He told me that they had employed experts from Chicago on these borings—gentlemen who had built the Chicago tunnels—and that, so far as the tunnelling was concerned, they did not fear the rock, but that it was the mud they feared; and that the estimates they made covered all the obstacles pointed out in Professor Shaler's report, and would cover a great deal more than the actual doubts, and provide for all the doubts naturally arising from the reading of Professor Shaler's report.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5—I believe that all agree that something should be done in regard to the sewerage of Boston. It has been before the public, I think, some seven years, and for the last three years particularly. In a thing of this magnitude it is impossible for all to think alike, and to agree upon what is best and cheapest, and which will answer the purpose; but no one disputes the necessity of doing something, and that right away. The old saying that nothing is so cheap as health, and nothing so dear as sickness, applies to this case. In regard to the tunnels, I don't suppose it would be possible to state the cost and bring it down to a fine thing, so that the estimate would be very accurate. Last year we appropriated $40,000 for the express purpose of arriving at the most safe conclusion in this matter, and I have faith in the ability and industry of the committee, and in the work they have done; they have arrived at the conclusion in the report before us, and I see no way for myself but to adopt what they have done, and vote for it; and after talking with the City Engineer some few weeks ago I have faith in his estimates. If we find the caverns that we have heard of from the gentleman from Ward 22, in his history of geology; and as I have read in geology that this globe is only a crust from four to ten miles thick, and if we get the sewer through it, let it go and we will banish Moou Island from memory. In that case I will let it run and risk the expense, only let us get the sewer. But something has got to be done, cavern or no cavern, and we are here to adopt this measure, if two-thirds of this Council see fit. For one, I shall not hesitate, and I hope the required vote will be obtained before many days have passed, and that the work will begin. I cannot see how the different routes vary, except in people's opinion, and I cannot see any objection to most of them. No one disputes the necessity; therefore I shall vote for the plan reported by the Committee on Improved Sewerage.

Mr. Clarke—From the remarks of the gentleman last up, I am surprised to see how easily he has been sugar-coated by the committee. The report of the committee recommends only one route; that is all we have looked at, that is all that is necessary for us to look at, and that seems to be the sum and substance of the whole thing. The gentleman from Ward 18 introduced the matter of labor into this question. I was very much gratified to hear him do so, for the reason that I have been a little suspicious that he was n't a friend of the laboring man; but I see now he thinks it will be important to have this sewer, for the reason that it will give labor at this time to a large number of poor people who are out of work. But I would like to know if the Commercial Point route would n't give the most labor? It will be done almost altogether by labor; whereas, in the tunnel route, a large part of the expense will go to engineers and experts in machinery, and the laboring man will be left outside of the tunnel and wont get in a great way, so far as dollars and cents are concerned. I think the other route over the shore line will give these laborers employment, and that is a reason why I think we ought to adopt it; and, besides, it is not so costly as the tunnel route on account of the uncertainties. I think the people of Massachusetts are pretty well disgusted with tunnels. If this scheme is adopted I hope it will prove an entire success. I calculate to vote according to my opinion of which is the best route to adopt; at the same time I think, as every gentleman in this Council does, that something ought to be done for sewerage, and the quicker the better; but let us be sure we are right, and then go ahead.

Mr. Day of Ward 4—There is one thing about this proposed route upon which I would like to have a little information. It is to be done under the act giving the city permission to construct a drain, and the act says the pumping station and reservoirs "shall be on the main land at or near the mouth of the Neponset River, thence to conduct said sewer by means of a siphon or tunnel under the bottom of the harbor, at or near the mouth of said river, to that part of the town of Quincy called Squantum." By the proposed route the pumping stations are located on the south part of Dorchester Bay at a distance from the mouth of the river. I should say that is a wide construction of the statutes.

Mr. Sampson—Will the gentleman tell me the exact point where the Neponset River leaves off and the Bay begins? The act says, "at or near the mouth" of the river, and I think any gentleman can see that the proposed location comes within the statute.

Mr. Day—I think I might ask where Dorchester Bay commences.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—The gentleman from Ward 3 is n't a lawyer, and he has no right to make legal objections. But there is one thing I cannot account for in the action of the gentleman from East Boston. This committee was appointed to have charge of all matters relating to an improved system of sewerage; and the conclusion of their report reads, "And your committee would respectfully recommend the passage of the following orders," and the gentleman from East Boston [Mr. Thorn-dike] has signed the report; and then follows the orders. Being upon the committee to give us this information, if he did n't think this plan feasible, I fail to see why he should u't have given us his objections in printing or writing, and made a minority report. I cannot account for why he should have waited till this time to state his objections, after he had signed the report. I believe it is universally understood that seven out of eight of the committee favored this plan, and if I felt as he did, I should have insisted upon the committee listening to my voice, and if they had refused to do so I should have brought in a minority report. I confess that I cannot understand why he has waited so long to bring his plan before us. It is of very little use for us to discuss the details. I would not give a cent for the opinion of any gentleman here who is not a practical engineer. If any one can bring in a practical engineering argument I would agree to it. If it is a question of opinion and good judgment between Mr. Davis and Professor Shaler, and the gentleman from Ward 22, I shall certainly stand by the scientific authorities in this matter, and vote for this plan. I do so with a great deal of reluctance. The people of Charlestown have an idea that we are spending too much money over here. This matter should have come before us before parks, free ferries and other matters upon which we have wasted a great deal of time. I have consulted a good many men upon this subject—as for my own opinion, as I said, I would n't give a cent for it—and I cannot find any good authority for the opinion that this plan will not accomplish what we want. If we waited until every one agreed on a plan, we should never have a system of improved sewerage.

Mr. Blodgett—The gentleman on my left [Mr. Spenceley] spoke of filling the Back Bay, and of the sewers which he has smelt for the last few years. There is an order now on the Aldermen's table, an order to extend that sewer to Charles River, and I have no doubt it will lie there until this order is disposed of. Speaking of this sewer carrying more water than the whole of our sewers now, I think he is very much mistaken in that respect. The gentleman from Charlestown spoke of a member of the committee not signing the report. I will say that the order under which the committee labored this year was particularly worded so that we were to carry on the surveys of the two routes to Moon and Castle islands, and in reality the committee had nothing else to report upon except which of the two was the better.

Mr. Spenceley—I don't think the gentleman has answered the question at all. I don't care how far you may carry that sewer into Charles River, you will have the same smells we have now.

Mr. Blodgett—They come from the untrapped sinks.

Mr. Spenceley—They don't. My sinks are all trapped, but you can hardly stand over them. I say that no sewer you can construct to Charles River will remove those smells. I wish gentlemen would look at City Document 67, the fifth annual report of the Board of Health of the city of Boston. I think they offer proof in addition to that already given us. They are appointed to look after the health of the city of Boston. I would like to read a few words from their report—

"The subject of improved sewerage for Boston has never been omitted in any of our annual reports, and we cannot be silent now, since it is our first and greatest desire to see this great work, the most important in our day, begun and completed at the earliest possible moment. It is our duty to lose no opportunity to impress upon you not only the present, but the immensely increasing, demand for a system of sewerage worthy of the name. We have not such a system today, and we can ill afford to wait for the time necessary to make one."

That is what they think of our present system.

"It is now two years since the City Council took the first, and a very important, step in this direction, by appointing a commission of experts, who at an early day presented the Council with the groundwork, if not the best possible plan, for the construction of a complete system of sewerage. It is unnecessary to say that the poor of Boston are today not only suffering for want of work, but suffering from the foul sewer stenches against which this very work should be directed. It is too true, and is already too sadly felt in the light of poverty and sickness. It is also unnecessary to say that the moneyed men of Boston, who are to bear the expense, the medical profession, who are daily witnessing its great need, and the thinking community at large, have often and loudly spoken in favor of an immediate beginning of this great work. The diminishing value of real estate in insalubrious but costly parts of our city, as well as our too high death rate, from preventable causes, demands it without delay."

Gentlemen, I wish you would think of that.

Mr. Ham of Ward 14—There seem to be two important questions connected with this sewerage question, one of which has been answered by the committee, and every individual interested in the city; and that seems to be whether it is necessary to do anything with the present sewers. I believe the State and city boards of health and every one else are fully convinced that it is necessary for the health of the city to do something. That question is decided, and the committee have tried to decide how that should be done, and experts in this and other cities have been employed to prepare the best schemes to accomplish that, and the committee have arrived at the almost unanimous conclusion that the route approved by the Engineer is the best one offered at the present time. I believe it is the duty of the City Council to consider that fact carefully before they rejected those orders this evening. I hope this plan will be accepted.

On motion of Mr. Brintnall of Ward 5, the main question was ordered, and the orders were passed—yeas 52, nays 5. Before the vote was declared Mr. Beeching of Ward 1 changed from No to Yes:

Yeas—Messrs. Barry, Beeching, Blanchard, Brintnall, Burke, Caunon, Coe, Cox, Crocker, Cross, Danforth, Dee, Duggan, Fagan, Felt, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Ham, Hibbard, Hiscock, Howes, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Loughlin, McClusky, McGaragle, Morrill, Mowry, Mullane, Nugent, O'Connor, Pearl, Perham, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, Pope, Pratt, J. B. Richardson, Roach, Roberts, Ruffin, Sampson, Sibley, Sardon, Spenceley, Upham, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster, G. B. Webster, Wilbur—52.

Nays—Messrs. Blodgett, Clarke, Day, Doherty, Thorndike—5.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Barnard, Brown, Fernald, Fraser, Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, McDonald, O'Donnell, Reed, M. W. Richardson, Shepard, Souther, Stone, Thompson, Wolcott—15.

The rule was suspended on motion of Mr. Spenceley, and a motion to reconsider, by the same gentleman, hoping it would not prevail, was lost. Sent up.

Mr. Danforth of Ward 10 moved to adjourn. Lost.

MISCELLANEOUS PAPERS FROM THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Reports of city officers. Placed on file.

Reports leave to withdraw on petitions—Of James L. Hill, to be paid for injuries to his son at Lexington Schoolhouse; of George H. Barry, to be paid for injuries to his well by construction of a cesspool.

Severally accepted.

Order to remit taxes for 1874, 1875 and 1876, on certain forfeited lots of land on West Castle and Middlesex streets. Read twice, and, under a suspension of the rule on motion of Mr. Crocker, passed.

Order to consider expediency of an ordinance requiring the provision of guards to prevent the falling of snow and ice from the roofs of buildings. Read twice and passed in concurrence.

Report and order to purchase an estate of Lydia Ellis, on West Chester park, for $11,500, in settlement of grade damages, the city to pay the taxes for the current year. Read twice under a suspension of the rule, on motion of Mr. Felt of Ward 18, and passed in concurrence.

Amendment to order concerning purchase of a site for a grammar schoolhouse in Brighton, by inserting after "owned," the words, "or represented." Concurred.

DEPUTY SEALERS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

An order came down to establish the salaries of Deputy Sealers of Weights and Measures at $850, and to transfer $2100 for that purpose from the Reserved Fund.

Mr. Danforth of Ward 10 moved to make it $800.

The President ruled the amendment not in order, as the Council moved to make it $790. Lost.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21 moved to make the salary $1000, to be paid from fees collected by them.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8 asked the ruling of the Chair on that point, and Mr. Pratt withdrew his amendment and offered as a substitute an order—That the Deputy Sealers of Weights and Measures be allowed and paid $850, to be retained out of the fees collected by them, the balance to go into the City Treasury.

The substitute was lost—18 for, 20 against.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I desire to call attention to the fact that on page 449 of the "Laws and Ordinances" we find—

"In those cities or towns where a salary is paid to the Sealer of Weights and Measures, no fees shall be charged for such services. In other cities and towns the said sealers shall receive the compensation set forth in section 14 of chapter 51 of the General Statutes."

I will merely suggest that if we don't give these sealers any salaries, they will be entitled to all the fees they can get. As the passage of the order requires a two-thirds vote, if those members who think they ought to be paid by fees will vote against the order as it now stands it cannot be passed; and they will be entitled to collect fees. I, for one, propose to vote against it.

Mr. Pratt—I shall vote against the order for two reasons. First—The salary proposed is too small. It may be thought a light thing to adjust scales and measures, and that it does not require a person whose services are worth more than $800 a year. But if the duty is performed fully and the scales are adjusted nicely, the services of a person are required whose time is worth more than $850. I think $1000 is small enough. The other reason why I object to this order is because it contemplates paying the sealers whether they do anything or not. We know it is a notorious fact that heretofore a very small portion of the weights and measures have been sealed. People buy their scales of a manufacturer and honestly assume they are strictly accurate; they use them year after year until they become out of adjustment, and as a general rule people at large are being cheated. We want the sealers to go around to the different stores. There are respectable men in Roxbury, perfectly honorable gentlemen, who would like to know whether their scales are correct; but they say it will interrupt their business for a day to take the scales to the office of the sealer and have them adjusted. Let us by all means have more than one thirty-second part of the measures in use sealed in one year. I hope the order will not pass in its present shape.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—I hope this order will not pass. The statutes provide ample fees, and the officers will be stimulated to the performance of their duties if they have fees for their recompense.

Mr. McGaragle—It is remarkable that all these bright and shining lights did not discover these facts two months ago. These men have been in office two months, and have sealed more scales than were sealed all last year. How will you provide for that? The gentleman from Ward 21 is right in saying the salary proposed is too small for the work to be done. I don't know any of those parties personally, except by reputation; but I have been there and seen them at work. They have been in office two months, have received nothing, have families to support, and there is no good reason why they should not be paid.

Mr. Danforth—Under the statutes they have a right to collect fees. Last year there was a salary attached, and they had no right to call it fees. People are liable to pay fees for the sealing of their scales. If they do the work under the statute, without any limit, they will get a great deal more than $1000. If we don't pass the order they can go on and collect the fees.

Mr. Crocker—I suppose it would be difficult to collect the fees for what has been done; but if it is determined that they should have fees for the rest of the year, I should be prepared to vote them a salary for that, at the rate paid last year for competent men. But I prefer to pay them by fees rather than vote them more than was paid last year.

Mr. Pratt—As my impulsive friend from Ward 8 [Mr. McGaragle] stated, some time has elapsed since they began work; but they have not sealed a very large number of scales. I wish the gentleman would be kind enough to state the number they have sealed, and the total number in use in the city. I think they will find plenty of opportunity to get $1000 a year, and have something left to pay into the treasury.

Mr. McGaragle—I don't know the number; I am certainly struck with the gentleman's proposition. Those gentlemen have given two months' labor to the city, and he expects them to work the other ten months to make it up. That might be a good way for lawyers to work for their clients. It is rather a modest proposition for him.

Mr. Pratt—I have made no excessive claim for modesty in this chamber. I stated that they would be able to collect more than $1000, and it matters not whether they get it the first or last part of the year. If they do not get $1000 I should be perfectly willing to make up the amount.

The order was passed to a second reading—26 for, 13 against.

On motion of Mr. Vose of Ward 24 the rule was suspended and the order was put upon its passage.

At the request of Mr. Clarke of Ward 22 the question was divided.

The first part of the order, fixing the salary at $850, was passed, and the second part, providing for a transfer of $2100 to pay the salaries, was rejected (two-thirds being necessary)—yeas 36, nays 17.

Yeas—Messrs. Beeching, Blanchard, Brintnall, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Cox, Cross, Day, Dee, Doherty, Fagan, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Hibbard, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, Loughlin, McClusky, McGaragle, Mul-lane, Nugent, O'Connor, Pearl, Roach, Roberts, Sibley, Spenceley, Thorndike, Upham, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster—36.

Nays—Messrs. Blodgett, Coe, Crocker, Danforth, Felt, Ham, Hiscock, Howes, Mowry, Perham, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, Pratt, J. B. Richardson, Sampson, Sardon, G. B. Webster—17.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Barnard, Barry, Brown, Duggan, Fernald, McDonald, Morrill, O'Donnell, Pope, Reed, M. W. Richardson, Ruffin, Shepard, Souther, Stone, Thompson, Wilbur, Wolcott—18.

Sent up.

WIDENING OF COMMERCIAL STREET.

A report of Street Commissioners came down that the estimated cost of widening Commercial street to not exceeding 100 feet, as shown on plan marked "Land Side," is $1,000,000, and to not exceeding eighty feet, at $800,000; and as shown on plan marked "Water Side," to not exceeding 100 feet, $950,000, and to not exceeding eighty feet, $800,000. Placed on file.

The report of the Committee on Streets, with an order for the Committee on Finance to provide for an appropriation of $1,000,000 for widening of said Commercial street to not exceeding 100 feet, as therein set forth, came down with the non-concurrence of this branch in the reference of said order to the Finance Committee by the Council, and with the passage of said order instead.

The question was on receding from the reference.

Discussion ensued as to the effect of receding and concurring, Mr. Richardson of Ward 10, Mr. Howes of Ward 18, Mr. Crocker of Ward 9, and Mr. Sibley of Ward 5 arguing that by concurrence the appropriation would be made, and Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 and Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8 holding that the Finance Committee were merely to report an order making an appropriation by loan or transfer which would require a two-thirds vote.

Mr. Pratt suggested that the simplest way out of the difficulty was to insist upon the Council's former action.

The Council refused to recede from the reference to the Finance Committee. Sent up.

PETITION.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18 presented the petition of Nicholas N. Johnson, a special police officer, to be paid a reward of $25 offered by the city, he having furnished information leading to the conviction of George Warren for stealing flowers from the Public Garden. Referred to Joint Committee on Common. Sent up.

PERMITS FOR WOODEN BUILDINGS.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3 submitted reports from the Joint Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings, with an order authorizing the issuing of permits to erect wooden buildings by the Grove Hall Universalist Society on Blue Hill avenue. Order read twice and passed. Sent up.

OCCUPATION OF STREETS FOR BUILDING PURPOSES.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3 submitted a report from the Joint Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings on the ordinance relating to the occupation of streets for building purposes—That said duties should be transferred from the Police Department to the Inspector of Buildings, but that no additional force or appropriation therefor is necessary; and they therefore recommend the passage of the ordinance in a new draft, in which said duties are imposed on the Inspector of Buildings, and the section providing for the appointment of a special officer for that duty is stricken out.

Mr. Wilbur inquired if a quorum was present. A count showed that there was not, and the President declared the Council adjourned.

The first part of the report deals with the general situation of the country. It is a very interesting and detailed account of the political and social conditions. The author has done a great deal of research and his work is very valuable.

The second part of the report deals with the economic situation. It is a very interesting and detailed account of the economic conditions. The author has done a great deal of research and his work is very valuable.

The third part of the report deals with the cultural situation. It is a very interesting and detailed account of the cultural conditions. The author has done a great deal of research and his work is very valuable.

The fourth part of the report deals with the military situation. It is a very interesting and detailed account of the military conditions. The author has done a great deal of research and his work is very valuable.

The fifth part of the report deals with the international situation. It is a very interesting and detailed account of the international conditions. The author has done a great deal of research and his work is very valuable.

The sixth part of the report deals with the social situation. It is a very interesting and detailed account of the social conditions. The author has done a great deal of research and his work is very valuable.

The seventh part of the report deals with the political situation. It is a very interesting and detailed account of the political conditions. The author has done a great deal of research and his work is very valuable.

The eighth part of the report deals with the economic situation. It is a very interesting and detailed account of the economic conditions. The author has done a great deal of research and his work is very valuable.

The ninth part of the report deals with the cultural situation. It is a very interesting and detailed account of the cultural conditions. The author has done a great deal of research and his work is very valuable.

The tenth part of the report deals with the military situation. It is a very interesting and detailed account of the military conditions. The author has done a great deal of research and his work is very valuable.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen,

AUGUST 6, 1877.

Regular meeting at four o'clock P. M., his Honor the Mayor in the chair.

EXECUTIVE NOMINATIONS.

Police Officers Without Pay—Horace Underwood, Simon Donnelly, Charles Marsh, William J. Clark, Thomas J. Anderson. Confirmed.

Lieutenants of Police—Sergeant George E. Haines, Simon Donnelly. Sergeant of Police—Eben T. Hitchcock. Referred to Committee on Police.

Coal Weighers—John McNaughton, John Kelly, Robert C. Fanning. Confirmed.

HEARINGS ON ORDERS OF NOTICE.

Sewers. The orders of notice on the proposed construction of sewers in Auburn street, in John A. Andrew street and in Cedar avenue were considered. No objections. Recommended to the Committee on Sewers.

Metropolitan Railroad Company. Hearing on petition for a location in Centre street, from Eliot square to Cedar street. No objections. Recommended to Committee on Paving.

PETITIONS REFERRED.

To the Committee on Streets on the part of the Board. Susan R. Eldredge, to be paid for land taken to widen Derne and Temple streets.

To the Committee on Paving. John Doyle to be paid for grade damages at 539 Third street, James Feeling et al. for a crosswalk on northeast corner of Tremont and Weston streets; Alfred A. Hall et al., that Indiana place be re-paved; Jonathan Preston et al. for a crosswalk in Park square; Barnstable Savings Bank, for brick sidewalk 19 West Cottage street, Ward 20.

Petitions for leave to move wooden buildings by John Cavanagh from 61 Norfolk avenue, Ward 20, to Bartlett place, and by William R. Cavanagh from 57 Norfolk avenue to Gerard street.

Petitions for edgestones and brick sidewalks in front of estate of Konrad Zeigler, corner of George and Gerard streets; for edgestones in front of estates of C. M. Weld, Centre street, West Roxbury; for brick sidewalks in front of estates of Horace K. Batchelder, 66 Fort avenue.

To the Committee on Health on the part of the Board. Petitions for leave to occupy stables—Martin Cunningham, new wooden, one cow and one horse, Mt. Hope street; Peter Garvin, wooden, two horses, corner Winter and Church streets; A. H. Holway, new wooden, one horse, No. 9 Clayton street; Metropolitan Railroad Company, old brick, 120 horses, Tremont street; do., new wooden, 100 horses, Jamaica street; do., new wooden, forty horses, Jamaica street.

To the Committee on Faneuil Hall. First Massachusetts Infantry Veteran Association, for use of Faneuil Hall on the evenings of Sept. 5, 12 and 17, for meetings and drills preparatory to the dedication of the Soldiers' Monument.

IMPROVED SEWERAGE.

Reports and orders came up for a loan of $3,713,000 for an improved system of sewerage, and authorizing a contract for such system as therein set forth. (City Document No. 70.)

The question was on concurrence.

Alderman Burnham—Mr. Mayor, in what I have to say I desire to take a broad and comprehensive view of this matter. It is my wish to speak not so much of routes as of necessities—of schemes as of facts. I shall endeavor not to go over ground already presented in the discussion in the other branch; consequently my remarks may be of a somewhat general character, and yet, I trust, sufficiently specific. Although dealing mainly with the sanitary, engineering and economical disposal of sewage, I trust I have sufficiently weighed its agricultural, commercial and chemical aspects.

It is not often, Mr. Mayor, in municipal legislation, that a scheme involving an expenditure of three million seven hundred thousand dollars arrives at the stage to which this has now come with so small an amount of opposition. Indeed, it has been discussed comparatively little by the City Council, the other branch having only considered it at one short session; and it may be possible that we shall arrive at a final vote today. I have looked, Mr. Mayor, for the reason of this decision and apparent harmony of action, and I find it in the belief of the people that something must be done. Since March, 1875, when the Mayor was authorized to appoint a commission to consider and report upon the sewerage of the city, the people as a whole have not ceased to use their eyes to see, their ears to hear and their noses to smell. All these senses have alike been employed, with hardly a withdrawal from this one great matter of interest to the city of Boston. This interest was greatly intensified when the able commissioners appointed by the Mayor introduced their report to the City Council, by a declaration announcing that for many years past there had been a growing feeling among the more intelligent of our community, and particularly among physicians, whose habits of study had fitted them especially to watch the public health, that Boston had an unenviably high death-rate among the cities of the United States, and that that death-rate was connected, more or less directly, with the defects and evils of our system of sewerage. They said, moreover, and the ears of the people caught it, that, especially in the low-lying and original tidal districts, the evils, already so manifest to the senses as to make it almost unnecessary to allude to their existence, were increasing year by year. These opinions have been promulgated by the press and indorsed by both municipal and State Boards of Health, until the public have accepted the belief, as one needing no further evidence, that there is a connection between foul gases and putrefying matter, in and about our sewers, and disease, and that our sanitary condition is so bad that it must be improved by a radical change in our system of sewerage. Now, although we cannot accept in full all these assertions, it is beyond question that such a belief, fortified by the arguments to prove the necessity, has placed us where we stand today, ready to launch upon an expenditure for a comprehensive system of intercepting sewerage, estimated by the commissioners to cost when completed $3,746,500 [Report of the Commissioners on the Sewerage of Boston, City Document No. 3, 1876, page 22], and by our City Engineer, after a careful survey and inspection, as stated in his report just presented to the City Council [City Document No. 70, 1877, page 12.] at $3,712,700.

The committee of the present City Council to whom this subject was committed are aware that this is a large outlay, and they are conscious that the initiatory act which commits the city to an expenditure burdening not only the present but even future generations, should be taken with great caution. They felt that the responsibilities delegated to them demanded diligent and painstaking research, and the adoption of wise measures only, and in this spirit they have carefully gone over this whole subject, and arrived at almost a unanimous conclusion. With a single exception, they are of the opinion that the people approve of the expenditure. Therefore they believe that the time to begin the work has arrived, and they have so reported; nor could they have done less, even had there been in their minds some doubts as to whether this large expenditure would be followed by a diminution in the death-rate, or the removal of other evils, as soon or as surely as some expect. But, however this may be, there is no question as to the necessity. All are agreed that the quarter-century of talk has ended, and that the time for action has arrived. Complaints of the defective condition of our system of sewerage began to be heard twenty-seven years ago. At that time, in the report of a committee to the City Council [City Document No. 36, 1849] Back Bay was pronounced a great cesspool, into which was daily deposited all the filth of a large and constantly increasing population, and it may be said in truth today that, although we have in the intervening years filled up a large portion of the territory referred to, this filling has only changed somewhat the locality of the nuisance, while it has greatly augmented the evil. I apprehend the principal ground for alarm to be that the growing evil may, under some changed circumstances of the future, such as the advent of cholera to our shores, lead to an epidemic which would decimate our population. Such a calamity might justly be regarded as a punishment for breaking the self-evident and sovereign laws of God by depositing in the immediate vicinity of our dwellings the daily accumulations of a great city's waste, and leaving it under the rays of a summer's sun to send up its foul exhalations, polluting the pure air he has given to his children, and inviting sickness and death instead of his own blessed health. The matter, whatever it is, which holds and conveys disease, is all but indestructible, an ever-ready agent for a fearful work. It needs the spark to ignite the powder before an explosion can take place. Both the powder and the spark are harmless in themselves, but when the contact takes place the damage is done. The seeds of cholera, yellow fever and like diseases may pass us by without harm, unless they find in the insanitary condition of the city the conditions which are necessary for their development. If we afford such conditions the contact takes place and the result is an epidemic too often attributed to a visitation of God, but really the result of man's negligence and inattention to sanitary laws.

Now, Mr. Mayor, in considering a question like the one before us I assume that but two questions are involved; first, is an improved system of sewerage a necessity? and, if so, is the plan which is recommended the best one for the purpose? Questions of cost should be of secondary importance when considering matters relating to the public health.

It will, I presume, be admitted that the sewerage question is one of vital importance to the people, and one which calls for the exercise of the soundest judgment and fullest discretion. Unlike the public-park question, there are no æsthetic considerations involved. It is purely a matter of practical utility, relating to the health and comfort of the community. The subject has been growing in importance for a number of years, but it is now for the first time in a condition to be practically dealt with by the City Council, and I feel, sir, that we are expected to give it our wisest consideration.

While I am not an alarmist, and do not believe that Boston is the most unhealthy city of its size in the United States, as some would have us believe, or that its death-rate is above the average, I do believe that the sanitary condition of our city can be greatly improved by a radical change in our system of sewerage, and this belief I base upon the evidence of my senses and upon the testimony of those who have made sanitary laws their study.

If I am sick I send for a physician and take his advice. I know that he has devoted himself to the study of disease, its cause, effect and cure, and I have confidence in his ability to understand my ailment and to prescribe the proper remedies. I believe in following the same course in regard to the public health, which is, after all, but the aggregation of the health of individuals. Now, sir, experts, physicians and scientific men, who have made the subject a study, inform us that investigation has shown that certain classes of disease are produced by, or are intimately connected with, defective sewerage; and, further, that a large percentage of the death-rate of this city is attributable to such diseases. They tell us, also, that in their opinion the adoption of an improved system of sewerage will have the effect of greatly reducing the sickness and mortality due to the preventable diseases. Certainly, then, testimony of this character should have great weight in determining our action upon this question.

A most forcible argument in favor of an improved system of sewerage is found in the fact that in other cities an improvement in the methods of sewerage has been immediately followed by diminished mortality. This is illustrated by a table contained in the report of the medical commission appointed to investigate the sanitary condition of Boston, which shows the general death-rates which prevailed in twelve English towns before and after the completion of sanitary works, together with the reduction of the mortality by typhoid fever and phthisis which ensued. The mean death-rate of these twelve towns was lowered from 25.6 to 21.7 per 1000, and the average mortality by typhoid fever was diminished to about one-half of what it was before the completion of the new sanitary works. One town, Croydon, is a most remarkable illustration. There the mean death-rate during the seven years before the construction of the new sewers was 23.66 per 1000; the mean death-rate during thirteen years afterwards has been only 18.64 per 1000.

Dr. Buchanan, Chief Medical Inspector of London, has proved by statistics that by the improved sewerage of a number of English towns containing an aggregate of 600,000 inhabitants, 1800 lives a year have been saved. In Dantzic, Prussia, where a system of sewerage similar to that proposed for this city has been adopted, the death-rate has been lowered from 36.93 per 1000 to 28.55. Dr. Lievin, Chief Health Officer of Dantzic, says, "The life-saving influence of our new sewerage works is clearly shown."

Sir Joseph W. Bazalgette, Chief Engineer of the London Board of Works, says, "If it has not been proved that complete and speedy removal of filth lowers death rates, then sanitary science has proved nothing."

The success of properly-constructed sewerage works as a means of sanitation in other places leads me to hope for like improvement here. The death-rate of Boston for 1876 was 23.84 per 1000. Deducting the deaths from diseases of the zymotic class, which are believed to be largely due to removable causes, the mortality would be at the rate of 17.89 per 1000. While we may not hope to reach the lowest limit, we are justified, when we consider the value of health to the community, to use every possible endeavor to approximate to it. Boston should be the healthiest city in the United States. We are blessed with a temperate climate, abundance of pure water; it has an intelligent, cleanly population and comparatively few squalid districts. Considering all these advantages, and seeing that, notwithstanding, our sanitary condition is very far from what it should be, I must believe that our physicians and scientific men are right when they tell us that "no measure of public sanitation is more urgently and imperatively necessary than the construction of sewers adapted to the requirements of the city."

The insanitary condition of the city arises from defects in our system of sewerage. In saying this I do not wish to reflect upon those who have had charge of this important matter, nor do I think that it is the consequence of any lack of skill or ability. The sewers have not improved with the growth of the city, because it was impossible to foresee what that growth would be. It has been a constant struggle to keep up with present needs, letting the future take care of itself. This state of things must attend the development of every large city until founders of cities are gifted with prevision and enabled to comprehend the future growth and necessities of the city which they build.

The defects in our present system are attributable to two causes,—the insufficient capacity of the sewers, and the fact that their contents are discharged immediately along the water front, where the current is not strong enough to carry the material away. In consequence of this a great quantity of filth does not have time to escape during the time the tide will admit of the sewers being open, and is therefore held in them until putrefaction takes place, while the filth which escapes meets the incoming tide and is deposited upon the flats, where, under the influence of the sun, it soon throws off noxious odors and poisonous gases, to be borne by the winds to our doors and windows. Again, the gas from the sewers, under the tide-lock pressure, penetrates into the houses, and in some parts of the city renders them almost untenable. How long will the occupants of houses who are compelled to close their windows, even in the hottest weather, to keep out the foul odors which arise from the flats, and to open their windows in cold weather to let out the gases from the sewers, endure such a condition of things? Unless these evils are remedied, property will unquestionably depreciate, not only on account of the personal inconvenience which is caused by the odors, but because the people are beginning to understand that foul air is incompatible with perfect health, and that the districts which are thus afflicted are marked by the prevalence of filth diseases. They therefore seek safety in flight.

All these troubles are increasing. Delay in dealing with the question will be of no avail. Temporizing measures are expensive and are not attended with any permanent benefit. Their day is past; hence it is believed that the true policy is to adopt a comprehensive system of sewerage, which will provide for the prospective as well as the present wants of the city.

We are now led to consider whether the plan which is before us is the best that can be devised for the purpose. I use the word "best" without qualification, for in such matters it will be admitted that the best method is the only one which should be adopted. In considering the necessity of an improvement in our system of sewerage, great dependence must be placed upon the opinions of scientific men, and in considering methods, we are compelled to consult another class of experts—engineers, and others who have made sanitary engineering a study—and be guided to a certain extent by their experience. We are, however, tolerably sure of our ground, for the question of how to dispose of sewage in the best and most economical manner is a problem which has engaged the attention of many cities of the Old World, and is one which every growing city will be, sooner or later, obliged to solve. It is, perhaps, fortunate for us that this is so, for we are thus enabled to profit by the experience of others, and can avail ourselves of the knowledge that they have obtained only after a series of vexatious and costly experiments. We are, so to speak, dealing with known quantities, and can proceed with a tolerable degree of certainty. Innumerable experiments have been tried with a view of discovering the best method of disposing of sewage. It should, however, be understood that no one system has yet been devised which is applicable to all places. In determining, therefore, what method we shall adopt, we must be governed by the experience of cities where similar conditions exist.

Probably England stands at the head of all countries in matters of sanitary science. The density of its population, especially in the larger cities and towns, renders the adoption of the most approved methods of sanitation a necessity. Immense sums of money have been expended and the ablest talent engaged to discover the best method, and it has been proved conclusively that there are only two ways in which sewage can be effectually disposed of without an enormous expenditure. These are by irrigation, where the sewage is poured upon land and absorbed by vegetation or rendered innocuous by oxidation and filtration through the soil, or by discharging it into the sea, where it is lost by extreme dilution.

All methods of dry removal have proved filthy and expensive. Manchester, England, with a population of 351,189, and a death-rate of 28.4 per 1000, is the only large city using this method. There it is said to cost four times as much as it would to remove the sewage by a water-carriage system, while upon the authority of Mr. Lewis Angell, C. E., borough engineer at East London, it is said to be disgusting and unclear.

A number of methods of treating sewage chemically have been devised, but have proved expensive and unsatisfactory. Little more is accomplished than separating the solids from the fluids, and clarifying the latter. Both must then be disposed of in some manner, or another nuisance is created. Efforts to utilize the sludge, or solid portions, for manure have proved failures; in fact, all attempts to utilize sewage, except by direct application to land, have been unsuccessful.

Irrigation, while it might answer for a city of limited size, which has reached its growth, with easy gradients, and which is placed in a favorable position in respect to areas of farming land, would be impracticable here, where the population is constantly increasing, the boundaries between the urban and suburban districts constantly changing, and where the difference in grades would render it very expensive to move the sewage to a point whence it could be delivered on land suitable for the purpose. It would require 3000 acres of land to dispose of the sewage of Boston by irrigation. Such a quantity of land could not be obtained at any reasonable distance from the city except at immense cost. An intercepting sewer would be required to collect the sewage and deliver it on the land. The cost of such a sewer would be the same in whatever manner the sewage was finally disposed of.

A majority of the best authorities consider that the easiest and most economical method of disposing of sewage is to discharge it into the sea. In this method the conditions of success are very simple. They consist only of providing sewers of sufficient capacity to carry the sewage in an uninterrupted flow to the point of discharge and of discharging it into a current strong enough to sweep it into the sea before it has time to settle upon the flats or in the channels. It is the neglect of these conditions which has rendered a radical change in our system of sewerage necessary. One of our Sewerage Commissioners, Charles F. Folsom, M. D., in a paper read before the American Statistical Association (Boston, April 20, 1877, page 5) says, "We have flooded our towns with pure water, and we fully appreciate its blessings. The question which concerns us today is, what shall we do with that water after it has been soiled by various uses? You will agree that it must be gotten away; that, if it soaks into the soil near our houses, it is only laying up stores of poison to infect the earth, poison the air, and surround us with what we wrongly call mysterious disease. On a large scale, the water-carriage system is the cheapest, the most efficient, and attended with the fewest objections as to nicety on the score of health; and the faults in local and general drainage by house arrangements and public sewers have now been reduced to a minimum, through the coöperation of the various professions of engineers, physicians and manufacturers. Any injurious results from the adoption of the water-carriage system may, at the present time, be safely said to be due to remediable causes. Water is in all respects as good a disinfectant as earth, and is much better in so far as it admits of being more speedily removed."

Dr. Folsom here expresses a maxim in sanitary engineering that is universally believed and is being universally acted upon. The water brought, used and polluted must be taken away before it can produce conditions destructive to life and health.

The plan before us will accomplish the desired result. It has the indorsement of the best authorities in this country. It has proved successful in many other cities. It was adopted in London after six commissions had been engaged twenty-five years in investigating the subject, and has proved a great success. Glasgow has had four commissions studying the subject, and they now propose to carry out a similar scheme, by which the sewage will be discharged at a point twenty-seven miles from the city, and which is expected to cost $12,000,000. A number of other cities now have the plan under consideration, and will undoubtedly adopt it.

After carefully reviewing the whole subject, I am persuaded that this system is the only one which will meet the requirements of Boston, for the following reasons:

First—There is no existing method for the utilization of sewage, either chemical, agricultural or mechanical, which is practically available for the city of Boston.

Second—Admitting the advantages of precipitation, irrigation or filtration, as set forth by the several advocates of those systems, and grouping together all the schemes, and considering whatever can be said in their favor, it is an undeniable fact that the sewage of this city carried by water to the ocean, according to the plan before us, will involve less cost than any other system of disposing of it.

Third—No discovery has yet been made whereby a profit can be derived by the utilization of sewage, for in all known cases the cost has exceeded the income.

Fourth—If at any future time a plan should be discovered by which sewage could be profitably utilized, it must be put into operation at a point distant from the city. An intercepting system would, therefore, be necessary, and the plan before us would meet the necessity, for by it the sewage will be delivered at Squantum Neck—a point sufficiently remote, and affording ample space for its manipulation.

In conclusion, Mr. Mayor, I believe that this improved system of sewerage is the final and necessary termination of a work which was commenced with the introduction of Cochituate water. An ample supply of pure water is a great blessing, alike conducive to the life and health of the community, but we do not fully reap all its benefits until we supplement it with a perfect system of sewerage. Therefore, fully realizing the importance of the subject, and having the greatest confidence in the ability of those upon whose recommendations we are acting, I hope that we shall concur with the Common Council in the passage of the orders.

Alderman O'Brien—Unlike the Alderman who has just taken his seat, I intend to go over some of the ground covered by the discussion in the other branch. When this question came up for consideration last year, I said about all I could say on the subject to urge it forward. The proposed scheme of sewerage looks to the future wants of the city, if not for all time, for many generations to come. This commends it to my judgment, because in nearly all schemes of improvement undertaken during the past ten or twenty years we have failed to realize that our city was growing rapidly. Our growth, in fact, has always been ahead of our improvements, and a complete system of sewerage has only been undertaken when necessity has forced it upon us—the necessity of removing it beyond the reach of our homes. Perfect drainage cannot be obtained without a large expenditure of money. Any attempt to compromise or economize in a system of sewerage for 350,000 inhabitants, with our prospective increase during the next fifty years, is time wasted and money thrown away, and the question arises, has the proposed system of drainage been well considered, and does the necessity exist for this expensive improvement?

For some years we have been building sewers to such an extent that few have been aware how rapidly they have increased. In 1869 there were ninety-eight miles of sewers in the city. They now amount to 175 miles—almost, in fact, doubling up in eight years. Some of this large increase comes from annexation, but the greater part of the increase has been built in these eight years, all pouring their filthy contents immediately around our homes through their seventy outlets. Now, any one can see that this state of things could not go on without becoming a great nuisance to our people. Each year the evil has been increasing, and distinguished citizens and professional men well versed in sanitary science have warned us of the results if something was not done. I do not believe in the exaggerated stories about the death rate, because all statements of this kind are very contradictory, but we all know that this nuisance exists around us, penetrating a large portion of the houses in the city proper; that a large number of houses at the South End are flooded almost every rain storm by back water from our sewers; and the evil has become of such magnitude, something must be done. It was very proper, therefore, to place the matter in the hands of able engineers, and the result is the scheme now proposed.

I know very little about the construction of sewers. I doubt if any member of the Board understands the subject thoroughly; but the commissioners appointed have made sanitary science the study of a life. They have had the experience of the large European cities to guide them, and I place myself on their judgment. After their report had been made, our able City Engineer was authorized to survey the route, to ascertain the cost, and after going over the ground we have his report and estimates before us. I think it would have been well to have entrusted him not only with the survey of the proposed route, but also to have requested him to have given his views about the practical working of the plan, and if it would accomplish what was desired, this would not have added much to his labors, and his opinion as to the utility of the system of sewerage proposed, and his approval of the plan would have added greater strength to it. When we remember that this great work is to be undertaken on the recommendation of the engineer of the city of Chicago and the engineer of the city of Milwaukee, both distinguished gentlemen I admit, and the advice of our own well-known resident engineers, who have also made sanitary science a study, has been completely ignored, it does not appear to me exactly right. But as the commissioners' report has been before the public for upwards of a year, as it has met with very general approval, it may be taken for granted that the plan proposed is the correct one. I do not believe, however, in ignoring home talent and calling in engineers from distant cities to show us what to do. The honor and credit and success of originating and completing these improvements should belong to our own citizens, and I believe that we have got as good material here to draw from as any city in the country. The selection, however, was left in the hands of the Mayor, and at that time it was customary to accept the Mayor's nominations as the best that could be made, especially when we had placed the power and responsibility in his hands. A year or two, however, has worked a remarkable change in this respect. But I am satisfied that the engineers selected were men of distinction and ability, and there is no reason to suppose that the result would have been changed if others nearer home had been selected. I make these remarks because I do not find one word in the City Engineer's report approving or indorsing the plan. He merely had to superintend the survey of a plan proposed by others, and I think the committee were at fault in not asking him to submit his own views about the improvement of our sewerage system at the same time.

The report of the committee and the estimates of the City Engineer are now before us, and I believe there is nothing more for us to do but to borrow the money and go to work, and I believe this should be done without hesitation or delay. The responsibility rests on the engineers and not on us; but I have confidence in their judgment and feel that no mistake can be made. The commencement of this work will be a great boon to the workmen who are now so anxious to obtain employment, and when completed and improved sewerage is obtained, as perfect as the best engineering talent in the county can give us, it will I hope be a blessing to all our citizens.

Running over a period of twenty years, the expense, although large, will be scarcely felt in our tax bills. It is to be regretted that all great improvements could not be made on thirty, forty and fifty year loans. These improvements are made not only because present necessity demands them, but also for posterity, and I believe posterity should bear some portion of the burden. The act limiting city indebtedness I look upon as one of the best acts that has ever been passed by our Legislature, but I do not think it was wisdom to put a limit on the length of time for which this indebtedness could be contracted. Bonds running for the longest period will command the highest premium, and long bonds are most in demand for investment by trust companies, savings banks and large capitalists. I do not believe in taxing the people of this generation for improvements that will be as great if not a greater benefit to future generations. The completion of Atlantic avenue, for instance, although needed at the present time, will be even a greater benefit in the future, as our export trade increases, and a loan for this purpose can only be made for ten years. Ten years is but a small space of time in the life of a great city, and when we are limited to ten-year loans it has a tendency to narrow our vision. All our improvements should look not only to present but to future wants.

I do not believe in any delay about the commencement of this work. Labor and material are cheaper than for many years, and I am satisfied that the work will be completed within the appropriation asked for, because I have faith in our City Engineer. What work he undertakes is not only well done, but always within the estimate.

It is not fair to say that the present City Government are inaugurating vast schemes of improvement that will largely increase our debt. No new schemes have been proposed. A more complete system of sewerage is a necessity that every City Government has admitted for many years, and it has been discussed and considered in all its bearings. Previous City Governments have failed to provide for these improvements, and no one should be deterred from the performance of his duty by the cry of economy that is put in to block every improvement. Economy in providing for a perfect system of sewerage, where the health of our citizens stands in the balance, is false economy, and should not have a foothold in City Councils.

At the same time, I am satisfied that the death rate will not be reduced to the extent anticipated. The chairman of the committee on the part of the Common Council says that if the result is as favorable here as in European cities, there would be a saving in our death rate of 1332 lives per year, or during the seven years that the sewerage question has been discussed and the three years that it will take to complete it, the number of deaths from imperfect sewerage would amount to 13,320. If this is true the members of the City Council for seven years past ought to be indicted for murder in the first degree. It is an extraordinary statement and is strangely in contrast with the report of the Board of Health now issued. This report impresses in the most forcible language the necessity of this intercepting sewer in order to reduce the death rate and promote the health of our citizens; but if we turn from their report on sewerage to page 8 of the same work, under the head of Mortality Statistics we find the report is also very convincing that our present sewerage has very little to do with the death rate. These facts every citizen should make a note of. I believe in removing the nuisance from our doors—in removing the water from South End cellars if possible, for the occupants of houses at the South End, with water in their cellars because they were built too low, are among the most pressing for this new sewer—but I do not believe that our sewerage is so imperfect that it adds to the death rate very much. Most of the imperfections are to be found in house connections, and without proper house connections no system of sewerage will be complete.

But to return to the report of the Board of Health. It is an amusing and instructive document. The section of the city where drainage is most needed is on the Back Bay territory. Drainage nuisances have existed there for years, but the death rate is only 14.1 in a thousand. It is the healthiest spot in the city—the healthiest spot in the country—the healthiest spot in the world, according to the report of our Board of Health. Do you doubt their figures?

The next healthiest part of the city, where the death rate is only 16.3 in a thousand, is between Milford and Camden streets; and east of Warren and Columbus avenues, as the Board of Health reports, "with a territory too low for drainage in some parts," and they might have added, with two and three feet of water in the cellars of a large number of the houses every heavy rain storm, and more pressure for sewers than from any section of the city, on account of water in cellars, the death rate is only 16.1 in a thousand. Compare the death rate in the leading cities of the country and in Europe, and there is no spot so healthy as this, with its 27,621 inhabitants—with its bad sewerage and wet cellars. The chairman of the committee on the part of the Council lives in this section, and he ought to know it. Will the death rate in that section be reduced about one hundred every year with the intercepting sewer? How rapidly we must increase and multiply in the future if this result is realized!

The next place where drainage is classed by the Board of Health as very bad in some sections and good in others, includes territory between the Boston & Albany Railroad and Milford street; the death rate is only 19.4 in a thousand. How can you account for this? Bad drainage, wet cellars, and a low death rate. This district includes the old Suffolk-street district, raised some years ago, and an Alderman of that day, who wanted a strong argument to advocate the measure, called for the death rate, and was surprised to find that even then it was classed as the healthiest part of the city. Are sanitary statistics to be relied upon, or have our citizens, distinguished physicians and professional gentlemen been crowding on the back of our Sewer Department sins and omissions that do not belong to it? Our Board of Health Report shows that the worst-drained sections of the city are the healthiest so far as the death rate is concerned. Then why put it down to sewers?

At the North End, where there is no complaint of drainage, east of Salem street and north of Prince street, the death rate is the highest—28.1 in a thousand. Will improved sewerage reduce it? The next highest death rate is in South Boston, below E street, drainage fair and death rate high—27.9 in a thousand. You might take every return of the Board of Health, and if their report proves anything it proves that our present sewerage has very little to do with the death rate. If you doubt this, read the report. I hope that no citizen will neglect to do it. Look carefully over this report, and you will find that the death rate is highest in thickly-settled localities, even with good drainage. When masses of human beings are crowded together in narrow streets and tenement houses, with scarcely sufficient food to eat or clothes to wear, with no breathing places where they live, and no breathing places provided for them, you must expect a high death rate, and no system of sewerage will save them.

The New York Journal of Commerce of the 3d instant refers to a recent movement in that city which our Board of Health had better make a note of. This paper says, "The city mortality bills are not so black as they were. A marked decline is noticed in the deaths of children, and this is attributed to so small a cause as the appropriation of $5000 to pay for the services of out-door physicians. These doctors visit the tenement houses, and see and prescribe for the sick children of the poor. By their timely aid, it is said, they have much reduced the deaths from infantile diseases, although the mean temperature of the city last week was two or three degrees higher than that of the week previous. If $5000 laid out in this way," continues the same paper, "can produce such benefits, why not expend more money in the same kind of visitation? The city spends hundreds of thousands a year in keeping an army of idle paupers on the islands. If the lives of these useless creatures are worth so much, it would seem only logical to spend a few extra thousands in saving from death the children of the poor laborers who are not in prisons and almshouses, not having qualified themselves by crime or habitual drunkenness to be the recipients of municipal protection and favor."

I believe in the intercepting sewer because it is a continuation of our present system, and removes this nuisance miles away from our homes, and I believe that we can afford to commence and complete the work. A statement has gone forth that the limit of our city indebtedness is only $2,700,000. The Auditor, who carefully watches the expenditures of the city, made the limit for increased loans, a few days ago, $6,900,000, after consulting the City Solicitor, and this is our official authority in the matter. During the next five years, while the sewer is being constructed and paid for, $6,861,505 of city indebtedness will mature, already provided for by our sinking funds, and if economy is maintained in every department of the City Government, we will reduce our debt, during the next five years, instead of increasing it, even with this expensive scheme of improved sewerage in full progress. These facts are to be found in our Auditor's report, and citizens should consult this report and see for themselves.

There is no truth whatever in the statements that have been made that the City Government is running the city hopelessly in debt. The debt is being paid off faster than it has been or is likely to be created. If the truth is fairly stated it might be said that we have the courage to commence improvements that for years have been considered essential to the health and prosperity of our citizens, and feel assured in doing so that our debt will not be increased. During the past financial year, for instance, we have paid $2,275,338 of funded debt from our sinking funds, and $84,329 unfunded debt from unexpended balances; in all $2,359,667, and have created debt amounting to $2,017,000. For what? For an additional supply of pure water, and have reduced our debt $342,667 while this improvement has been in progress. The same results will follow while the work of improved sewerage is going on, if economy is practised in other departments of the City Government. Financially we are in a good position to commence and complete this work.

This work is also a work of labor. It puts money in the pockets of men who have been very much distressed, for some two years past, by the suspension of public improvements and the depression of business. It will give them nearly $4,000,000 to provide for their families—it will be distributed among our citizens who are most in need of employment—but it will not remain in their pockets for any length of time, for it will soon seek the channels of trade and be distributed among dealers in merchandise, owners of real estate, and our citizens generally will reap the benefit. The policy of suspending public improvements, of delaying works of necessity that must be built, just because the times are depressed and thousands out of employment, is a wrong policy for the city, State or nation. Great Britain, France and other countries in Europe know better and pursue an entirely opposite policy. When the people are in want of work, the city should do all in its power to give them employment. It seems very strange to me, when men stand up in the City Council and say that such and such improvements must be made, but the present year is not a favorable one to commence the work, on account of the depression in business. Now, I believe that it is no time to economize and retrench, and postpone public improvements, when men are idle and their families want bread.

I do not believe in the statement made in the last report of the Board of Health, "that the moneyed men of Boston are to bear the expense" of this sewer. I am surprised that any such statement should be made. Every citizen contributes to the building of this sewer. Our moneyed men are liberal and generous and high-minded citizens, but I have not heard that they have made any donations for it. One ward of the city, Ward 10, paying taxes on $112,278,100, will pay for one-sixth of this sewer. Four wards of the city, 6, 10, 11 and 12, paying taxes on $310,981,300, will pay for one-half of this sewer. Eleven wards of the city, 6, 7, 9, 10, 11, 12, 17, 18, 21, 23 and 24, paying taxes on $510,232,200, will pay more than three-quarters of the expense of this sewer, and fourteen wards, where reside our largest population and where sewerage is most wanted, will pay less one-quarter of the expenses of this improvement and of all improvements. Were the Aldermen aware of the fact that a comparatively few wards of the city pay more than three-quarters of all our taxes and three-quarters of all the expenses of public improvements? Wealth centres in certain business localities, and a very small section of the city pays a very large proportion of our expenditures.

It is only a week or two ago when an attempt was made to prejudice the public mind against East Boston by a statement showing that she now received from the public treasury more than she paid in the way of taxes. The statement was unfair and unjust, because eighteen other wards were precisely in the same position, and seven wards only pay more money into the treasury than they receive from the treasury. Our city expenditures for six years will average some $15,000,000 per year, an average of $1,250,000 for every 30,000 inhabitants; and when 30,000 inhabitants only drew $304,000 from the treasury, according to the statements published, the injustice to East Boston is plainly seen. The crime of East Boston was that with more than one-twelfth of our population she drew from our treasury one-fiftieth of our expenditures, and the wealth of the city must be combined against her because she asked and obtained for her citizens a free avenue to their homes. We should remember that our institutions are based on manhood and not on wealth, and that all citizens pay directly or indirectly their full share of all public improvements. The poorest citizen, who is only assessed for a poll tax, who performs faithfully his duty, whose integrity and honor have never been impeached, has rights that all are bound to respect—has a voice in the affairs of the city, in the affairs of the State, in the affairs of the nation. equal to the wealthiest.

How is it that so few wards of the city pay so large a portion of our taxes? Wealth centres in certain business localities, but what would this wealth amount to if the suburbs of the city, where we get but a small amount of direct taxes, did not contain 250,000 consumers? Why, these consumers are the life and substance of the business and the trade and the wealth of these rich wards. These 250,000 consumers have to expend every year, for the necessaries and, perhaps, the luxuries of life, for something to wear and something to eat, at least $100,000,000 among these wealthy wards, where the goods and merchandise are distributed, and it is from the money expended by them that these wards pay so large a tax. Our magnificent and costly retail and wholesale warehouses would be mere empty shells without these 250,000 consumers around them. Taxes come into our treasury directly from the large taxpayers, but indirectly it is the people who will pay for this sewer improvement, and who pay for all improvements. This is as it should be, for a complete system of sewerage is for all, and every citizen should cheerfully bear his part of the burden. I hope the order will pass by a unanimous vote.

Alderman Robinson—I have listened with a great deal of attention to the remarks of the chairman of the Committee on Improved Sewerage, and also to those of the Alderman who has just taken his seat. They have been members of this Board two years, and probably understand this question as well as they will or probably could with any further investigation; but I have known little or nothing about it until within the last fortnight, and amid the duties which have devolved upon me I have not had time to investigate the subject properly. I hope it will not be pressed to a vote tonight without giving those who have not been long in this Board, and the public in general, a chance to understand what they are voting for. In the order to the commission I do not see one single recommendation to ascertain from a practical chemist what can be done with the sewage to the best possible advantage. The whole instruction to the engineers seems to have been to get rid of the sewage in the best way they can and spew it out into the ocean. I have a communication here—which I will not read, and which was handed to me a few moments before I came into this meeting—showing (and the statements therein controvert some of the arguments used by my friend, Alderman Burnham) showing that sewage put upon the soil pays ten times over what it cost. I see no reason why something of this kind cannot be done here, and why it should not have been provided that a practical chemist should be added to the commission to take his views upon the subject of improving the soil by returning to it what we take from it. I suppose that every gentleman around this Board and in this room will understand that almost everything in nature—everything that has life; the clothes we wear, the shirts to our backs, the boots to our feet, these desks, tables, and everything—all came from the small portion of the earth, some two or three feet deep, as may be, which forms what is called the soil. All vegetables, trees and animals came from that little crust of two or three feet that forms the surface of the earth, and the laws of nature in that are just as immutable as are the laws which govern the purple currents that flow through our veins in order that our lives may go on. I think it is Pliny who says that this earth brings us forth at our birth, nourishes us through life, and strews our paths with flowers, and at last receives us into its bosom when our career is ended. I might say in addition to that, that it furnishes the flowers for our friends to deck our graves, to show that we are not forgotten. Now I say that, with a city of 350,000 inhabitants—which, with the natural increase of population, will be more than doubled within twenty-five or thirty years of this time—there should be added to that commission some person who will take a view of this matter from the standpoint of a practical chemist, and see if the sewage of this city cannot be returned to the land instead of passing it out to the ocean—to see if anything has been discovered that, by and by, the citizens may be willing to avail themselves of. This commission, as I say, has taken but one view of the subject, and the committee; but when the gentlemen around this Board are called to vote something like four millions of dollars, it does seem to me that a measure of this kind ought not to be hurried through the first time it is introduced into this body, for we may regret it. By the improvements in machinery we are enabled to produce any quantity of manufactures and merchandise of any description; but there is an immutable law of nature that, when you take a certain amount from this soil, if it is not restored, the soil becomes deteriorated just so much. If we should go back—if I may be permitted to allude to them—to some of the ages of the world; if we go back to the history of the time, we will say of the Pharaohs, and look at the delta of the Nile, which brought the overflow taken from it, the rich, fatty vegetable matters which used to rise in the mountains of Abyssinia, and all those lakes in the interior of Africa, and rushed down and covered that whole valley of the Nile to a depth of some fifteen cubits—or thirty-one or two feet, if I recollect aright—you will find that the crops of each year depended upon the amount of that overflow of the delta of the Nile; and when they found that fifteen cubits went over the land of that region, they were sure then that large crops would arise. That region was then the granary of the world—when Rome and Carthage were the great cities of the world—and it furnished the whole of them,—and when the overflow of the Nile reached twenty feet there was prosperity, and joy went over all the land of Egypt. Could a person at that time have stood in one of those magnificent cities, such as Thebes or Memphis, teeming with millions of population, and supposed that in the lapse of time those two cities—which were beyond Rome in the utmost of its grandeur—could have become by today simply a place for the temporary refuge of Arabs, and the permanent abode of hyenas, jackalls and birds of prey? Yet such is the fact; and where was a population teeming with wealth derived from the soil of those rich mountains there is today nothing but a sandy desert. Imagine that today the State of Massachusetts was enclosed by a wall, and that nothing could go in or come out. Here are less than a million acres of arable land in Massachusetts. I don't exactly know how much it takes to support each individual, but writers on the increase of population state that it doubles once in twenty-five years. Does anybody tell me today, that with the increase of this present population of Massachusetts,—having nothing to draw from but the soil, and the soil being exhausted by the rivers and cities, and by everything, that the soil, twenty-five years from this, could support double the number of people that there are in the State today, when the soil is now growing less every year, and when ships are being sent to the other side of Chili to restore what is taken off by this population? I said I had a communication which I would not read; but I have changed my mind, and with the consent of the Board I will read an article in the American Cultivator, which was handed to me about half an hour before I came into this hall. It is on the subject of sewage for irrigation:

"Passing on to Great Britain we find that the meadows near Edinburgh, some of them arid and worthless, have, by being flooded with the sewage of the city, risen to enormous values, and are annually let, by public auction, at prices varying from $75 to $150 per acre. The results at these meadows proves that fifty to eighty tons of green food may be raised to the acre; and that, on the high level, the present average rental per annum is upwards of $80 per acre; the sea-meadows, which were worthless twenty-five years ago, are now held for sale at $2500 per acre, while on the old meadows the maximum annual rental is $100 per acre. Land on the Clipstone meadows in Nottinghamshire, previously worth $1 rental, now brings upward of $60 per acre annually. Pusey meadows, not formerly renting at over $1 per acre, now produce six heavy crops of grass per annum. Myre-Mill farm in Ayrshire cuts seventy tons of green grass from one acre in six months. Canning-Park farm produced, at several cuttings during seven months, a total length in growth of grass of 14½ feet. Sewaged land at Barking produced forty tons of rye grass per acre, equal to sixteen tons of hay, in a single season; also at the rate of forty-three tons mangels, in a dry season; fine crops of cabbage, onions, turnips, rye grass, clover, oats and wheat were grown, comparing in its vegetable product very favorably with surrounding market gardens, that received as much as fifty tons per acre yearly of solid manure. This farm produced crops in value ranging from $150 to $350 per acre, while the average of the farms of Great Britain is less than $20 per acre. At Hornchurch each crop receives five to seven floodings of sewage, and when neighboring farms and market gardens proved failures, owing to excessive drought, the crops there proved abundant and luxuriant; fine vegetables, fodder corn, roots and Italian rye grass were grown, the latter being cut six and seven times during the season. Rental and value of sewage land increases year by year; the average annual value of the Edinburgh meadows illustrates this fact, while land near Croyden, worth, unsewaged, $7 rental per acre, commanded $25 when sewaged, and after the first seven years was let on a long lease at $45 per acre annual rent. Such facts are worthy the careful attention and investigation of public authorities."

Now, gentlemen, I said I did not know much about this subject, and I want an opportunity to study it, and converse with the City Engineer, for no person around this Board has a better opinion of his ability and honesty of purpose in this matter than I have. But I know that he and this commission were only employed to show us the best way to get rid of the sewage, so that there should be no offensive smells in the city; and there was not anything in the instructions of the Mayor or the order of the Board of Aldermen, anything that requested or imposed upon them the duty of seeing if this sewage could be utilized. Now, there is another thing that I notice—a tunnel; and in another direction a siphon. It is all vaguely left in my mind. I may alter my mind; but I wish to know why a tunnel or pipe could not be placed on the lowland on each side of the channel, and then the siphon take it up and carry it out on the other side, and save four or five hundred thousand dollars' expense. I may change my mind, but I ask that I may be allowed time to look into this subject. I therefore move to postpone further consideration of the order to four weeks from today.

Alderman Wilder—I hope the motion to postpone will not prevail. After the very full and lucid dissertations that have been given us upon the subject of sewerage, I don't propose, Mr. Mayor, to take up the time of this Board by going over the matter again. I merely rose to set right the Alderman who last addressed us, to give him some information that, it seems, he has not fully received. He tells us that he believes the Committee upon Improved Sewerage have carefully and faithfully attended to their duty and given the subject all the attention that its importance demanded, and that he believes they would not be able to know anything more about it at any future time than they do now; and I thoroughly agree with him upon that subject.

Alderman Robinson—I beg pardon; I said the committee.

Alderman Wilder—I referred to the committee only, Mr. Mayor. But he tells us he desires an opportunity to talk with our valuable City Engineer, in whom he has the utmost confidence, to get his views upon the subject. Now, as a member of the committee, I desire to state, for the information of the gentleman, that I have had a good many hours' talk, in connection with the committee, and when I have met him alone when the committee were not in session, upon this very subject. I wish to state also that the criticisms passed upon the report, by the Alderman from Ward 21, who seemed to carry the idea that our own Engineer had been ignored in the matter, was not just to the Engineer. I wish to state, unqualifiedly and positively, that on more than six different occasions, and in conversations, our City Engineer has most thoroughly and heartily and entirely approved of and indorsed the present system of intercepting sewerage before this Board. There is no question about that. Then, again, I am free to say that the committee have not devoted a great deal of time to the investigation, by chemical analysis, of what might be done with the sewage of the city for fertilizing purposes. But they have provided, in this system, the ways and means of utilizing all that science may find out and determine in that connection in the future. A tank like that at a point so distant from the city, chemical apparatus, and the handling of it for the purpose of fertilizing the earth, are as fully and entirely provided for as could be. I wish to state this point particularly for the benefit of the Alderman who last addressed you—that whatever science, in the future, shall determine may be done with sewage for the benefit of mankind, is fully and wholly provided for in this scheme as it is possible for human ingenuity to do it. Every gallon of sewage in the tank may be precipitated in the ocean or spread out on Squantum Head, or on any other territory, where agriculturists believe that seventy tons will come up where one is spread out. I merely rose to state those facts. I certainly hope the motion to postpone will not prevail, but that we shall, now and here, unanimously complete the work so well begun and so nearly finished, and that is so thoroughly needed and demanded by all classes of our citizens who have expressed an opinion upon the subject.

Alderman Robinson—The Alderman stated that everything in the shape of human ingenuity had been attended to in this report. I am not so sure of that.

Alderman Wilder—I beg leave to correct the gentleman. I said that everything had been done that human ingenuity could invent to preserve the sewage at a point where it could be chemically treated in the future, if science proves it is worth treating.

Alderman Robinson—I accept the Alderman's explanation. It does not change my idea in the matter at all. He says this thing is carried to a certain point. There is a question of precipitation and irrigation. Now I have had a great many engineers, chemists, and other parties employed in my business operations, and I have found that you had to tell them all just what you wanted them to do, and that even men of common sense, having no knowledge of science, could suggest something to those scientific men and engineers that they have not thought of before, and they would turn it to effect. I don't know anything about sewage, or how much the sewage loses that passes through this siphon; but there are some facts of value in the paper that I have read. It seems to me there might be one or two points as general receptacles for this sewage to collect, and let the top of it, which is simple water, go off into the stream, and then in a short time it might be sluiced off into some sort of a place where it could be deodorized at an expense of a few thousands a year, so that all the dangers of its being placed upon that spot could be avoided and the sewage be utilized. But I know nothing of this. I only ask, as a member of this Board, that I may have an opportunity to understand this matter, because, if obliged to vote tonight, I shall vote against it, and I do not want to be obliged to do so.

Alderman Burnham—If I thought that the gentleman, having made as little opposition to this measure as he seems to have done, would give the measure his vote, I don't know but I should consent to the passage of the motion he makes; but I hardly think that of a gentleman who takes such strong ground as that if it comes to a vote he must vote against it. But if it is in my power I will undertake the task of enlightening him and bringing him to a proper understanding of this matter.

Alderman Robinson—I will modify my motion and make it two weeks.

Alderman Burnham—I should be willing to undertake the task of enlightening him, whether the motion passes or not, and save him the trouble of reading the communication. I hold in my hand a volume entitled "Purification of Water-Carried Sewage," published in London in 1877, and prepared by Henry Robinson and John Charles Meliss, of the Institution of Civil Engineers, in which all matters pertaining to the very city to which the Alderman from the Dorchester District has referred are spoken of; and it seems to me—if I understand it aright, from hastily reading it—that that place [Croydon] is, after all, a very good illustration of the great labor and difficulty imposed upon us in this matter of disposing of sewage, and can hardly be used as an illustration of the gain to be derived by irrigation, of which the Alderman speaks. The author of this work says—

"The anxieties of management have been realized to a full extent, and, after experiencing various vicissitudes, the farm is again thrown on the hands of the local board and its officers."

By the way, I may remark that this Croydon Farm is one of small capacity, and a very small portion of it was taken for irrigation:

"As far back as the year 1857 the authorities of Croydon, under pressure from the Court of Chancery, sought the purification of the sewage of the town by its application to land. They commenced with fifteen acres to utilize two-thirds of the sewage, but this resulted in the creation of a serious nuisance. Three years subsequently 300 acres of land (known as the Bedlington Meadows) were taken on lease."

We should require ten times as much to dispose of our sewage. But with reference to the Croydon Farm, the expectations of the managers not having been realized to a full extent, they having encountered various vicissitudes, the author finally sums up by saying that the farm is now thrown again upon the hands of the management and has not proved so much of a success. It speaks of sewage irrigation there as a complete success as a deodorizing and cleansing process; but the principal crops were grass, mangold-wurtzel and watercresses.

"Of these latter the commissioners say, 'Watercresses, too, have proved here an excellent crop for sewage, not only from the profit derived from them, but from their cleansing powers upon the dirty liquid.' These watercresses find their way to the London market, and have been complained of by the late Dr. Smee, F. R. S., as carriers for disease germs."

I cannot think for a moment that the Alderman would stand up for any scheme in which would be found any productions of this irrigated land which were good conductors of disease germs. In reference to Croydon, this matter created so much prejudice in the minds of the people where the products of the farm were carried that the efforts of the Croydon Sewage Company—that is what it is called—has proved a failure, and the farm has come back again into the hands of the local board, because there is so much difficulty in obtaining remuneration from the products. Speaking of this, Dr. Carpenter says—

"It will be seen that a local board labors under very great disadvantages in carrying on a business like a farm. The wages sheet alone will prove this, for there is no one whose pecuniary interest it is to keep down the expenses. Idle hands are retained, and every man's hand is against the local board, and in favor of the private individual, whilst the managers themselves, as soon as they become aware of the work that is before them, make violent enemies of those men whom they have prevented from fattening on the rates. But they make few active friends among the better class of the community, who decline to take part in local politics. The result is that at the next election the management is changed, and most of the advantages of former experience are lost."

Now, Mr. Mayor, I have dwelt upon this somewhat at length as a specimen of the carrying on of irrigation farms for the use of sewage in large cities; and I feel that I made none too strong an assertion when, in presenting this matter, I said that there is no existing method for utilizing sewage that can be adapted to Boston. It is a true statement; and although this matter should lie upon the table two or four weeks, in order to allow an investigation of the irrigation system, it must lie there long enough for some one to discover that irrigation cannot be attempted in the disposal of our sewage. While I am up I wish to say a word in reply to the gentleman who so ably seconded the passage of these orders, and who seems to have done an injustice to the committee and the City Engineer. He says that the engineer was not requested to make a definite statement in regard to this thing. Now it seems to me that this engineer, if he says anything, says that the most favorable point for the discharge of the sewage is at Moon Island, and the reasons for this are that—

"Moon Island is remote from any considerable population, present or prospective; therefore, neither the presence of the reservoir nor the discharge of sewage there can have any effect upon the value of real estate. The sewage will enter outside the inner harbor."

Now, I understand our City Engineer to have unquestionably committed himself to the flowing of the sewage into the channels (according to the plan before us) which run out from Moon Island, and that it has been proved not only by pole floats, but by surface floats, that this is the most favorable channel that can be found for the outflow of sewage. He is also very decided about the pumping station. He says it—

"Is also remote from any lands that would be liable to be depreciated by its presence, and is such that ample room can be had at moderate cost."

Two very important things. There might be another scheme as favorable as this, for instance the one for carrying it to South Boston; but the establishment of a pumping station there, he thinks, will have a bad effect upon the value of real estate in the neighborhood; whilst at Old Harbor Point the land will cost only $200 an acre, and perhaps not so much as that. Then, again, I understand the Engineer to say that a point really gained in this scheme is that its construction will not interfere with public travel except at one or two points. Then he sums up with various other things having to do with the tunnel, and unquestionably pronounces himself in favor of this system.

Alderman Robinson—I have not said one word against the intercepting sewer. My argument has been for utilizing this sewage, with the single remark that I believed this tunnel that goes down a hundred feet, with a shaft sunk a hundred feet, and then running across more than a mile and a half, and there is another shaft to be taken up one hundred feet on the other side, and running partly through clay and partly through rock, which even Professor Shaler—a gentleman with whom I had the pleasure of travelling in Europe, and who I know to be as good a geologist as there is in the country—says the examination of is attended with difficulty. Those are substantially his words. I say that an enormous expense may attend the construction of that tunnel. In regard to the value of the sewage, here is something which I did not read before, but which I will read now:

"To feed the population of Boston for one day requires the annual product of about 2000 acres, or at least that of 600,000 acres for one year's supply. To feed its horses for one year would require the growth of 80,000 acres more, or a total of 680,000. The whole State of Massachusetts has a cultivable acreage of but 912,521 acres, so that in less than one year and a half the manurial results of the consumption of an amount of food equivalent to the total farm products of this State are washed from the sewers of Boston and wasted in the sea. A crop grown on an acre, if consumed on that acre, will fertilize it; hence, if each individual consumes the product of two acres, it follows, if it were practicable to utilize all the constituent elements of waste, that the sewage of Boston should fertilize at least 150,000 acres."

This is a little different from the three thousand acres that the gentleman spoke of. Now, gentlemen, in regard to expense, there is one thing I have been accustomed to believe—that if an amount of labor will produce an equal amount of money, that turning the labor into money is the true system of economy; and if it can be true that by utilizing that sewage, by spreading it on the soil and disinfecting it, so that farmers will come and carry it away, so that no bad consequences will follow, and we shall avoid the enormous cost of this tunnel,—I say it is the duty of this day and generation to look to the future and prevent what has been done in the past. The reason I made the motion is because I want to vote understandingly on this large appropriation of nearly $4,000,000; while I do feel that I cannot conscientiously vote for it until I have had an opportunity to look into this matter.

Alderman Clark—I do not propose to say much at the present time in advocating the passage of this order. I believe that the Board have made up their minds fully, and that all the arguments for or against will not change the opinion or vote of a single member. I believe now, as I have always believed, that the health of the city requires that something should be done to improve our sewerage. I have believed so for a long time. In 1875 it was deemed advisable by the Board of Aldermen to appoint a commission to investigate and report upon the best method of improving the sewerage of the city—and I believe that the judgment and opinion of our City Engineer was taken in regard to who should be put upon that commission. With all due respect to the opinions of the Alderman from Ward 21, I believe this to have been one of the wisest provisions and conditions under which this or any other City Government should have undertaken a great public improvement. It would have been an exceedingly unwise thing for the City Council to have undertaken to improve the sewerage of this city of three hundred and fifty thousand inhabitants—and growing so rapidly that in fifty years we shall number a million—simply upon the opinion of one man, however eminent, Mr. Mayor, he might be in his profession. Therefore, it was a wise conclusion and determination for the administration of 1875 to come to, to appoint this commission, consisting of Mr. Chesbrough of Chicago, acknowledged to be the most able man in this country upon the subject of drainage, he having been the City Engineer of Boston for many years, knowing the localities of the sewers and familiar with all the opportunities for improving its sanitary condition—and associating with him another eminent engineer—probably at the suggestion of our own Engineer, Mr. Davis,—namely, Mr. Lane of Milwaukee; and also putting upon it the Secretary of the State Board of Health, Mr. Folsom, a gentleman who has made sanitary science the study of his life. I say it was a very wise thing for the City Government to appoint this commission. The City Government of 1875 did not ignore the valuable services of our own City Engineer. He was consulted and his advice accepted, and the report of the commission was the result. How was it, Mr. Mayor, when we wished for an additional supply of water? Did we rely upon our own Engineer and the employes in City Hall? Not by any means, sir. We sought assistance from outside; and where did we go? We went to a party who was superintending the water works at Lowell; and after a long and careful survey a report was made that the most feasible supply could be obtained by taking Sudbury River; and that report was made by our present City Engineer. So, then, the criticism upon the City Government of 1875 is unjust; but they would have deserved severe criticism if they had gone into this expenditure without having given it the most careful consideration, and that by the appointment of such a commission as was appointed. So much for the City Government of 1875 having ignored home talent.

I have listened with a great deal of pleasure to the able manner in which the chairman of the special committee has advocated the recommendations of the commission and the City Engineer, because I had supposed, Mr. Mayor, that he might have differed somewhat with the committee in the plan for sewerage of the city. I also listened with a great deal of pleasure to the Alderman from Ward 21; but I was puzzled during most of his able speech to tell whether he was in favor of this measure or opposed to it; and had it not been for his closing remarks I should have asked, with the Alderman from Dorchester, for a postponement until I could find out. But it gave him a glorious opportunity to criticize the Board of Health—an opportunity he never omits to improve. If it is a fact that our worst drained territory is the most healthy, then it is not consistent for him to advocate this expenditure of three or four million dollars. If it is a fact that where the foul air arises, and that the parts of the city which come most in contact with poor drainage are the most healthy locations, then why should he advocate the expenditure of this large amount of money for the purpose of improving the sanitary condition of the city? I can answer for the territory in the neighborhood of the Back Bay and Charles River, that during the most unhealthy periods of the year, seventy-five per cent. of the inhabitants are in the country, away from the ill effects of this miasma, as you all know. I presume that is the case at the South End; while at the North End—the places which he cites as being the most unhealthy (as reported by the Board of Health), bordering along the margin of this great open sewer, which takes the sewage from the North and West ends and carries it around the northern parts of the city—the people spend their summers in town, and get the bad effects of this incomplete sewerage; and that is what has caused the high death-rate in the localities at the North End. How it is in South Boston I am not prepared to say; but I have had an idea, however, that the sewerage there is very bad. I know that the smells arising from the low property in South Boston are exceedingly bad; and you will bear me witness, Mr. Mayor, that I have done all in my power to improve forty or fifty acres of that area, so as to help the citizens of South Boston to purer air and a more healthy state of things. No one can go over Dorchester avenue by the iron foundries of Washington Village without putting a handkerchief to his nose—unless he has a stronger stomach than I have—on account of the smells arising from the marshes. A large portion of the population live along that locality, and I guarantee that there is where you will find the highest death-rate in South Boston. That accounts for the statement of the Board of Health, that in these wards there is a high death-rate. It is because the people are mostly at home during the sickly season, while in the sections complained of by the Board of Health the inhabitants are in the country.

I was very glad to hear the Alderman make his comparison of the island wards with the other wards of the city, because I have myself felt that the comparisons made in the public prints, by those who oppose free ferries, were an unjust reflection upon East Boston; and I had stated that in my opinion you might take the Dorchester, West Roxbury and Charlestown Districts, and various other wards of the city, and compare the income derived from those sections with the money expended in them, and the result would be precisely the same as with East Boston. And another thing I may say right here—and I make this statement for the purpose of making a personal explanation to the Board in regard to this matter of free ferries and my action thereon: I was inclined to believe that it was nothing more than just to the people of East Boston that they should be furnished with precisely the same facilities that we furnish other sections of the city; that it was wisdom to remove, as far as possible, all taxes and restrictions upon commerce, and that the future prosperity of the city would be best promoted by making the ferries absolutely free. That was my opinion, and I was backed up by hundreds and thousands of the best business men of the city of Boston.

Alderman Viles—I would like to inquire if the gentleman is not out of order?

Alderman Clark—I have asked leave to make a personal explanation, and if the Alderman objects I will not proceed; but as long as East Boston has been alluded to in such an eloquent manner by the Alderman from Ward 21, I should like the privilege of stating my reasons for voting for free ferries, because I shall probably not have another occasion to do so. I find that my opinion was backed up by the letter, Mr. Alexander, the agent of the Cunard steamers—a gentleman who has done more than any one else for the commerce of Boston during the past five years—and by every man in Boston engaged in shipping including some of our best merchants, among whom were his Excellency Governor Rice, ex-Governor Claflin, a large taxpayer and merchant, and the whole of State street, representing a hundred millions of capital, came here and asked for it. I then turned to the proceedings of the Board of Aldermen of 1871, composed of such men as Henry L. Pierce (since Mayor of Boston and member of Congress), Charles E. Jenkins (chairman), Samuel Little, Nehemiah Gibson, George W. Pope, Leonard R. Cutter, Avery Plumer and various others, and I found that in 1871 the subject of free ferries was voted upon and passed unanimously by the Board of Aldermen. I find therefore, that I am backed up in my opinion by a very able Board of Aldermen. The report in favor of free ferries was made; it was printed and laid on the table for a fortnight, and not a single man opposed it; not a single remonstrant appeared; not a single word was said against it previous to the action of the Board of Aldermen, when it passed unanimously. So that I contend, Mr. Mayor, and gentlemen, that I and every member of this Board of Aldermen had a right to presume that a large majority of taxpayers and business men of Boston were in favor of that measure. So much for free ferries—and I am done with them.

Now, Mr. Mayor, I am in favor of the passage of this order for a system of improved sewerage. The subject has been before the people for twelve months, and I believe it is just as well understood today as it will be two or four weeks hence. And, furthermore, I believe that the report of the City Engineer is precisely the report of the commission. I can see no difference. Mr. Davis says in the appendix to the report of the committee—

“The investigations have now been carried so far that I am in position to recommend a definite scheme, and to give a preliminary estimate of its cost; and, understanding that it is the wish of your committee that a report should be made at once, I respectfully submit the following.”

And again, “All the schemes are alike in their main features, and correspond with that proposed and recommended by the commission appointed in 1875 to report upon the present sewerage of the city, and to present a plan for its improvement.”

And then going through with the various schemes, he winds up by saying that he is in favor of the Moon Island project as being the most feasible and economical, giving as a reason therefore that by carrying of the sewage to any point nearer than Moon Island we shall not obtain the result for which we are at work.

So far as utilizing the sewage is concerned, if I understand aright, Mr. Mayor, it has never been tried with success in any of the large cities of the world. It may have been successful to a small extent; but it is not practical on a large scale. London has not adopted it to any extent, and it has proved a failure there, as I understand by the report of the commission. Furthermore, Mr. Chesbrough says—

“The process of utilizing sewage for manure has not proved remunerative; but if the time comes when, by an advance in our knowledge of agricultural chemistry, sewage can be profitably used as a fertilizer, or if it should now be deemed best to utilize it, in spite of a pecuniary loss, it is thought that the point to which we propose carrying it will be as suitable as any other which can be found near enough to the city, and at the same time far enough away from it.

“The third way is that adopted the world over by large cities near deep water, and consists in carrying the sewage out so far that its point of discharge will be remote from dwellings, and beyond the possibility of doing harm. It is the plan which your commission recommend for Boston. The work will require a large sum of money, but no larger than has been expended by other cities for the same purpose; only two-thirds as much as the city of Frankfort-on-the-Main has lately appropriated for their sewers, and a small sum when we consider the benefits which will come from it.”

So that the subject of utilizing the sewage was as fully considered by the commission as it has been by the committee and the City Engineer. The commission were of the opinion that it could not be utilized to advantage, and I understand that to be the opinion of the committee and the City Engineer. I understand, furthermore, that the opinion of the City Engineer is, that if we wish to have a complete system of sewerage, the scheme recommended by the commission and the committee is the only one that should be adopted by the city.

It has been suggested by some that it is not necessary to go down a hundred feet to build a tunnel under Dorchester Bay, and that for a few years it might be well to empty the sewage into Neponset River at the pumping station, thereby avoiding, for the present, the expenditure of a million dollars, more or less. But then you will commence the same trouble upon the shores of South and East Boston and Dorchester that you now have upon the shores of Charles River, because the accumulation of filth will not be carried out to sea by the tide; and the nearest point at which that can be done has been shown, by the surveys, to be Moon Island. That is the scheme recommended by the commission, the committee and the City Engineer, and if we should discuss it for six months we should finally base our judgment upon the opinions of the men who understand the subject and not upon our own. I do not believe the utilization of the sewage is practicable at the present time. I believe the scheme recommended is a practical one; and although it will cost a large amount of money, the expenditure will be distributed over a number of years, and the interest paid annually will be so small and the advantages so great, that I shall exceedingly regret if it is delayed even for the present season. I therefore hope that the orders will be passed unanimously tonight. I regret that the occupants of two chairs are absent, because I think we should have their votes in the affirmative.

Alderman Viles—The Alderman, in his remarks, took occasion to say that the death rate at the North End was increased by the flow of sewage from the South End and out of Charles River to the channel. I have resided at the North End for the past twenty years, and never experienced any difficulty from the sewage flowing by there. I have never heard any one complain of it, and I don't believe any person ever lost his life from that cause. The only trouble we ever experienced there was from the gas house, when they have been flowing off the tar. Our death rate there has not been increased by the sewage.

Alderman O'Brien—The criticism on the appointment of the Sewerage Commission was not unjust, because it was true. When the Mayor of Boston saw fit to select the City Engineers of Chicago and Milwaukee, as a citizen of Boston I think I have a perfect right to criticise his action, and say that a hundred—well, perhaps fifty—engineers of equal ability are right around us. I did not say that all this business should be intrusted to our City Engineer. I said we had able engineers in the city of Boston—as able as any they have in Chicago or Milwaukee—and I believe in using our home talent. When we have a work of this kind to do I believe in calling in these men to lay out plans and undertake it, and not in going to Chicago, Europe or any other place to make our improvements. This is the place where it ought to be done, and we have the material to do it with. Again, the City Engineer has never indorsed this plan. He has never been called on to indorse it. The Alderman says he supposes the Engineer indorsed the appointment of this commission. I never like to ask the Engineer about his opinions—what he indorses and what he does n't indorse. I merely take his opinions from his document. So far as I know, it has always been understood that he, and no other man connected with the sewers or engineering of the city of Boston, has been consulted in this matter. They had to go outside; and if the Alderman believes in going outside, I must take the responsibility of differing from him. I don't believe in going outside. I believe we understand our own affairs better than any one outside can understand them. I am aware that Mr. Chesbrough was the engineer of the City of Boston; but for fifteen years he has n't resided here, and during that time all these complaints about sewage have been made. Again—I had no desire to criticise the Board of Health; but I took their tables and gave them credit for publishing a valuable document. I am ready to stand by the Board of Health any time when they do justice. I say the Sewer Department of the City of Boston has been quietly carrying a load for years. I have been in that department two years and know how faithfully the work is done there, and how important it is. But, in order to carry a measure of this kind through, falsehood has been asserted, and it all has been laid to sewerage. The charge has been refuted, too, and I thank our Board of Health for coming out and showing the falsity of the statements made, month after month and year after year. The sewerage of Boston is as perfect as that of any city in this country, and I mean what I say. Compare the sewerage of Boston and Philadelphia—Philadelphia is fifty years behind Boston; Baltimore is 100 years behind us, and we are ahead of New York in sewerage. All that we want—and the Alderman will not vote for it more cheerfully than I—is this intercepting system of carrying off the material from our homes. Boston covers a small area, and our water front, where those sewers empty, covers a small space. Boston is thickly populated, and therefore I say we ought to provide some way to carry off this material from our homes. But I repeat that in doing so I should never vote for this measure. I should never rely upon the exaggerated stories of the high death rate in Boston to induce me to do so. I think it is wrong to stand up here day after day and year after year and talk about the death rate of Boston, frightening men and business from our city; and I shall be glad when this sewerage question is decided, for it will take such reports from the public prints. The gentleman talks of the introduction of water. What did we do to get that water? Why, for two years before the introduction of Sudbury River, this city was threatened with a water famine. But as soon as the appropriation was made we never heard one word more about it, and the city today, and for the past two years, has been relying precisely on the same conduit which it was said that unless we passed that appropriation would cause a water famine. But the famine has not come, Mr. Mayor, and it subsided as soon as we passed that appropriation. And when we pass this appropriation for sewers all the talk about our immense death-rate and everything of that kind will subside.

Alderman Clark—Mr. Mayor, I regret exceedingly that the Alderman from his ward [Alderman Fitzgerald] is not present to hunt up some of his speeches, because, if I am not mistaken, I think no Alderman has talked so loudly about the high death-rate of Boston as the one who has just taken his seat. He says that "having accomplished that purpose, the death rate suddenly disappears." I am at a loss now to know whether he is in favor of this system of sewerage or not, because he says that as soon as this appropriation is passed all occasion for talk about the necessity of improving the condition of our sewerage will vanish, as did the famine in the case of the water supply. Now, I suppose it is well known that during this and last year we had an abundant supply of rain. But if he will go to the City Engineer, he will tell the Alderman, unless I am misinformed, that we are in danger of being entirely cut off from a supply of water by the present conduit. It is not because there is not sufficient water in Lake Cochituate, but because the means of bringing it here are insufficient. That is the opinion of this same engineer, for whom no one entertains a higher respect than I do.

Now, he says, the Superintendent of Sewers and the Sewer Committee have had a tremendous load to carry for the past few years. No one has found fault with the Committee on Sewers for what they have done. They have constructed sewers, and so far as I know the work has been properly done, and they have done the best they could. But they could not create an outlet for the sewers; they cannot compel the waters of Charles River to take the sewage of the city and carry it to the sea. I believe, as formerly—and as strongly as he does—that we have an able Superintendent of Sewers, and that opinion was evinced during the recent elections of city officers. When a strong opposition was made to our present Superintendent of Sewers I did everything I could to keep him in his position. My confidence in him has never been shaken in the least extent. What is proposed now is to give this Committee on Sewers—who have had such a tremendous load on their shoulders—an opportunity to empty their sewage into an intercepting system and carry it out to sea, instead of pouring it out upon Charles River, as they have been obliged to do. The water question has nothing to do with the sewerage question; but I have no doubt that when this appropriation is once passed people will feel relieved, because they will believe that steps will be immediately taken for the construction of a system of improved sewerage for the city. We all know that figures will not lie, and that the death rate of Boston has been higher than it ought to be, because there is no reason why Boston, situated as it is, should not be the healthiest city in the country—not one of the most healthy, but the most healthy city in the United States.

Alderman O'Brien—Merely a word more. I think the Alderman from the North End has answered the gentleman about the death rate. He lives in the ward where the death rate in Boston is highest—23 in 1000—in the district where the Board of Health report the death rate as highest; and I know that he and all North-Enders will say that they do not suffer from sewage. It is because they are crowded together in close tenement houses, without breathing places. I have stood shoulder to shoulder with the gentleman [Alderman Clark] in this Board, fighting for breathing places for those people. It is one of the ideas I want to convey—and always want to convey—that sewerage will never reduce our death rate to the extent you think it will. You want these breathing places. I might as well speak it out in plain English—you want the parks that we have been advocating this year, and all the sewerage you can get will never reduce the death rate until you give breathing places to all these people who are flocking around the Alderman from the North End.

Alderman Robinson—There is one remark in the report of the commission about Liverpool. I have been there a good many times, and done considerable business there, first and last. The death rate in Liverpool is larger than in any city in England. In regard to this matter, I cannot vote for it without further information.

Alderman Robinson called for the yeas and nays.

The motion to postpone for two weeks was lost—yea 1, nays 9:

Yeas—Alderman Robinson—1.

Nays—Aldermen Breck, Burnham, Clark, Dunbar, Gibson, O'Brien, Slade, Viles, Wilder—9.

Absent—Aldermen Thompson, Fitzgerald—2.

The orders were passed in concurrence—yeas 9, nays 1; Alderman Robinson voting nay.

A motion to reconsider, by Alderman Clark, hoping it would not prevail, was lost.

MISCELLANEOUS PAPERS FROM THE COMMON COUNCIL.

Petitions were referred in concurrence.

Report and order to allow the Grove Hall Universalist Society to erect a wooden building on Blue Hill avenue and Schuyler street. Order passed in concurrence.

The order for Committee on Finance to provide for an appropriation of $1,000,000 for widening of Commercial street to not exceeding 100 feet, as therein set forth, came up "referred to the Committee on Finance." Concurred.

DEPUTY SEALERS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

The order establishing the salaries of Deputy Sealers of Weights and Measures came up, with the part establishing the salary concurred in and the part providing for a transfer for the payment of the same non-concurred in.

Alderman O'Brien—When this matter came up in the Retrenchment Committee, as I have said before, I was in favor of abolishing the whole thing, because I thought it was a sinecure in the City Government—that it was a useless office—and I thought we could dispense with the services of these sealers. At that time there was only one sealer and laborer to perform the work of five since that time. Only a few evenings ago, at one of the sessions of the Common Council, a very worthy gentleman stood up—it is rather amusing to read what he says—and says he wants to call the attention of the citizens of Boston to the extravagance of the present City Government—and he went on and discussed the question in that way—in appointing these four or five Sealers of Weights and Measures. Now what are the real merits of this case, Mr. Mayor? While we were discussing it in the Retrenchment Committee, with every prospect of abolishing the entire office, the Legislature forces upon us the necessity of appointing one principal Sealer and four Deputy Sealers. This City Government never had anything to do with what was forced upon us by the Republican Legislature; and I think the citizens of Boston ought to understand that, instead of being very extravagant in this matter, the present City Government is carrying out what has been forced upon it by the Massachusetts Legislature.

Alderman Slade—It seems to me that we ought to adhere to that part of the order providing for an appropriation to pay the salaries. It will come to that pretty soon. We shall have to furnish the means to pay the Deputy Sealers in the end, and I don't understand why it came from the Common Council in that shape. There is no other way of paying them except by an appropriation.

The Board refused to concur in the amendment. Sent down.

REPORTS OF CITY OFFICERS.

Auditor's Monthly Exhibit, for Aug. 1. Total appropriations, $13,622,889.03; expended, $3,587,165.16; balance unexpended, $10,035,723.87. Sent down.

Superintendent of North Scales. Quarterly report to Aug. 1. Receipts, $438.37; paid the city, $142.05. Sent down.

Overseers of the Poor. Quarterly report to Aug. 1. Receipts during quarter, $26,193.33, including cash balance of $4431.79; balance on hand, $3527.

Fire Commissioners. Report of Fires and Alarms for July—The total number of fire alarms was 37; fires, 16; needless, 4; still, 17; confined to one building, 29; extended to others, 2. Losses, $8766; insurance, $152,065. Sent down.

THANKS OF ST. JOHN.

The following was received:

Board of School Trustees of St. John Extract from the Records, 31st July, 1877.

Whereas, A communication has been received from the City Government of Boston, Massachusetts, setting forth that, in pursuance to a resolution adopted by the Board of Aldermen, and concurred in by the Common Council and His Worship the Mayor, an order had been given to the Superintendent of Public Buildings to offer to this board for the use of the public schools of St. John six hundred school desks lying unused in the city storeroom:

Therefore Resolved, That the noble and generous offer of the City Government of Boston be accepted, and arrangements be made for transporting, receiving and putting the desks thus offered to immediate use in such temporary buildings as can be secured until the permanent schools are erected.

And further Resolved, That the Board of School Trustees of St. John tender to the City Government of Boston their warmest thanks for the thoughtful consideration which prompted such a timely ministrations to the public wants of our city in its emergency—an offering which, following so closely upon the bountiful provisions made by the citizens of Boston for the relief of the distress caused by the calamitous fire of the 20th June, displays the large-hearted beneficence which characterizes alike the people and the Government of that great city.

And further Resolved, That a copy of this resolution, under the seal of the board, be sent to His Worship the Mayor of Boston, the honorable Board of Aldermen and the Common Council, and that it be also promulgated in the public press of the city of St. John.

A true copy. Attest:

J. MARCH, Secretary.

Sent down.

THE CHARGES AGAINST THE SUPERINTENDENT OF PAWNBROKERAGE.

Alderman O'Brien submitted the following:

The special committee to whom was referred the communication from James K. Crowley, Superintendent of Pawnbrokerage, asking for an investigation into his official conduct, beg leave to submit the following report: The investigation was called for on account of a letter, signed by Mr. Thomas Gaffield, which was published in the Boston Evening Transcript of July 10th, 1877, in which it was implied that Mr. Crowley inducing the applicant to pay for having it renewed. The committee gave three hearings, at which Mr. Gaffield and Mr. Crowley were present, both being represented by counsel. A number of witnesses were examined, and able arguments made by the counsel on both sides. The result of the inquiry has been to satisfy the committee that Mr. Crowley opposed the granting of the license alluded to in the performance of his duty as Superintendent, with a view only of preventing its being given to one whom he had reason to believe was an improper person to receive it. No facts were shown that would connect him with any such transactions as are implied in Mr. Gaffield's letter. It was not shown that he either received or was offered bribes or fees, nor did it appear that he was in any way connected with the communication signed by Mr. Murphy, and printed with Mr. Gaffield's letter. The committee are, therefore, of the opinion that no further action is necessary on the part of the Board of Aldermen.

HUGH O'BRIEN.

GEO. DUNBAR.

CHOATE BURNHAM.

Accepted.

POLICE.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Police:

Recommending the confirmation of the Executive appointments of Sergeant George E. Haines to be a Lieutenant, and Eben T. Hitchcock to be a Sergeant of police. Report accepted and said nominations confirmed.

PAVING.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Paving:

Reports and orders for edgestones and gravelled roadway on the easterly side of Liverpool street, between Central square and Decatur street; for edgestones and brick sidewalks in front of estate of Robert Ring on Orleans street, corner of Maverick street; for edgestones in front of estates of John D. Wester on Starr street, corner of Bishop street, and Mary L. Hildreth on Adams and Mill streets; for brick sidewalks in front of estates of Albert Bowker, 73 and 75 Cottage street, East Boston; Timothy Griffin, 276 Havre street; city of Boston on Summer street, Dorchester District; Stillman B. Allen, on West Chester park and Columbus avenue; East Boston Savings Bank, 270 Havre street. Orders read twice and passed.

Reports of leave to withdraw on petitions of Joseph Dorr et al. for a hearing in relation to the established grades of Swett and Boston streets; Joseph Dorr to be paid for grade damages to his estate on Boston street. Severally accepted.

Report that leave be granted to William R. Cavanagh to move two wooden buildings from O street to East Ninth street, and one from 57 Norfolk avenue to Gerard street; and by John Cavanagh, from 61 Norfolk avenue to Bartlett place. Severally accepted.

Schedule of cost of sidewalks on Telegraph and East Eighth streets, with order for assessment and collection of the same. Order passed.

LICENSES.

Alderman Dunbar submitted reports from the Committee on Licenses as follows:

Wagon Licenses Granted—H. Savage, rear of 124 State street; Fuller & Kellogg, South Market street; Charles A. Rook, in Arch street.

Victualler Licensed—Adolph Simmen, 2037 Washington street.

Intelligence Offices Licensed—Laura E. Brackett, 3 Oxford place; C. H. Leonard, 41 East Dedham street.

Shooting Gallery Licensed—Frederic Rudolph, Boylston street, West Roxbury.

Amusement Licenses Granted—Tompkins & Hill, Boston Theatre; John Stetson, Howard Athenæum.

Auctioneer Licensed—George H. Abbott, 82 Devonshire street.

Dealers in Second Hand Articles Licensed—James Power & Co., John Dunlevy.

Several accepted.

CLAIMS.

Alderman O'Brien submitted the following from the Joint Committee on Claims:

Report recommending reference to the Committee on Assessor's Department of petition of Michael Donovan for the restoration to him of the title of an estate sold by the city for unpaid taxes. Accepted. Sent down.

Report of leave to withdraw on petition of Bridget M. Herman, to be compensated for personal injuries caused by a defect in Way street. Accepted. Sent down.

Report and order—That there be allowed and paid to Erving F. Graves, in compensation for personal injuries received by him on account of an alleged defect in Washington street, the sum of $1000, upon his giving to the city a release and discharge, satisfactory to the City Solicitor, from all damages, costs and expenses incurred by him in consequence of the defective condition of said street; said sum to be charged to the appropriation for Incidentals.

Alderman Viles—A thousand dollars is quite a sum to come from the Committee on Claims. I have no doubt it is all right, but I should like to hear some explanation.

Alderman O'Brien—This Mr. Graves fell on the sidewalk on Washington street, last January. The condition of all the sidewalks was very bad at that time. He has injured himself beyond recovery. The fall caused what is called telescoping of the bowels, and it is uncertain if the young man ever gets over it. He has suffered for months, and he is likely to suffer for months to come—perhaps as long as he lives—and is unable to do any work. The committee feel that in settling with him for $1000 they have made a very good arrangement for the city of Boston.

The order was read twice and passed. Sent down.

SUMMER VACATION.

Alderman Clark offered an order—That when the Board adjourn on Monday next, it be to meet on Monday the 27th inst., at four o'clock P. M., and that any orders of notice prepared for the 20th of August be returnable on the 27th, at the time mentioned. Read twice and passed.

VEGETABLE MARKET.

Alderman Slade submitted the following:

The Committee on Markets, to whom was referred the petition of the Mercantile Wharf Corporation, that the city should purchase the property of said corporation, situated on Atlantic avenue and known as the vegetable market, beg leave to submit the following report:

The property, containing 80,000 square feet of land, was leased to the city free of rent for three years from May 1st, 1875, the Mercantile Wharf Corporation agreeing to pay the taxes assessed thereon during said lease, and giving a bond to the city to convey said land to the city at any time within three years from May 1, 1875, for $4.75 per foot and a proportionate part of he tax for the unexpired term of the bond.

During the financial year 1876-77, the city expended $17,975.68 for grading the grounds, building sheds, etc., and during the same period derived from the rents of stalls, etc., the sum of $1145.

The city holds a note of the Mercantile Wharf Corporation, given in settlement of betterments and assessments, for $75,000, payable in three years from May 1, 1875, and secured by a mortgage of same amount. There is due at this time (Aug. 6, 1877), from the Mercantile Wharf Corporation, the following sums:

Interest on mortgage.....	$2,250.00
Balance of tax of 1876, with accrued interest.....	393.70
Tax of 1877.....	3,183.00

The committee have received a definite offer from the corporation to sell the property to the city for the sum of $4 per square foot. If the city were now to purchase the property the cost would be as follows:

80,000 square feet of land at $4 per foot.....	$320,000.00
Less amount of note and interest.....	$77,250.00
Less taxes.....	3,576.70
	80,826.70

Total cost.....	$239,173.30
-----------------	--------------

The attempt to establish a produce market on the Mercantile-wharf property has, it is perhaps needless to say, been unsuccessful. This is due to the fact that no leases could be given for a longer term than three years. In view of the uncertainty which attended the future of the market, farmers were generally disinclined to locate there, and build up a trade at the risk of being compelled to move at the expiration of the city's lease. It is believed that if the city owned the property, and the permanence of the market was assured, no difficulty would be experienced in inducing farmers to locate there.

Your committee are unanimously of the opinion that it would be for the interest of the city and the public generally to have a produce market established on the property; and they would, therefore, respectfully recommend the passage of the accompanying order.

For the committee.

LUCIUS SLADE, Chairman.

Ordered, That there be purchased from the Mercantile Wharf Corporation the lot of land now leased to the city for the purpose of a produce market, situated on Atlantic avenue, and containing 80,000 square feet, more or less, for a sum not exceeding $4 per square foot; and that the Committee on Finance be requested to provide the means.

Alderman Slade—It takes some considerable courage to offer an order like that at this time, when we have already passed orders for four or five millions of dollars. But the fruit has ripened and now is the time to offer the order. I do not propose to discuss it tonight, as it will lie over under the rules.

The order went over.

EVERETT SCHOOL.

Alderman Slade offered an order—That the Committee on Public Buildings be authorized to repair the old school furniture in the old Dorchester Everett Schoolhouse for use in the new Everett Schoolhouse; also to provide such new furniture as may be required, at an estimated cost of $2500; the expense to be charged to the appropriation for Schoolhouses, Public Buildings. Read twice and passed.

PUBLIC LANDS.

Alderman O'Brien submitted the following from the Joint Committee on Public Lands:

Reports of leave to withdraw on petitions of Patrick Mahoney, for the cancellation of a bond given by him for a lot of land on Middlesex street, near Castle street; Margaret S. McCarthy, for leave to surrender to the city an estate on Indiaua place. Accepted. Sent down.

Report recommending reference to Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings of petition of Mrs. Williamina Brown, for leave to make alterations in certain houses on Dix place. Accepted and referred accordingly. Sent down.

STABLES AND CELLARS.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Health on the part of the Board:

Reports that leave be granted to occupy stables by J. N. Goodough, on Emerson street; Isaac H. Cary, on Lotus street. Accepted.

Report that leave be granted Clapp & Underhill to excavate cellar of 69 and 71 Beverly street, to grade 10. Accepted.

STREETS.

Alderman Clark submitted the following from the Committee on Streets on the part of the Board:

Order of notice to John A. Power and others "to quit" on Adams street on or before Aug. 13 now next ensuing. Passed.

Order to pay Annie Galliani $600 for land taken and damages occasioned by the widening of Parkman street. Read twice and passed.

SEWERS.

Alderman Viles, from the Committee on Sewers, submitted the following:

Ordered, That $32.56 be abated from the assessment levied upon William Evans's heirs for a sewer in Lamartine street on account of overestimate of land; also that $100 be abated from the assessment levied upon Abner Childs's heirs for a sewer on South street, on account of land damages; also, that $26.39 be abated from the assessment levied upon Mary Smith, for a sewer in Spring Park street. Read twice and passed.

Reports of leave to withdraw on petitions of Augustus Parker, for the extension of the sewer in Maple street and Seaver street, Ward 21; and on petition of George Woods Rice, for a sewer in Seaver street and Blue Hill avenue to Schuyler street. Severally accepted.

Reports and orders of notice for hearings on Monday next on expediency of constructing, in Maple street, Roxbury, and in Maudlin street, Charlestown. Orders passed.

Order of notice for hearing on Monday, Aug. 27, on the expediency of taking land of Mrs. Margaret McDonald et al., for sewer purposes, being a strip five feet wide, extending along the boundary line of the estate of Samuel Little, from Warren street to Blue Hill avenue; also, a strip five feet wide, extending from Warren street to Blue Hill avenue, distant about one hundred feet southerly from the above-described strip, and parallel thereto. Passed.

Order to build a sewer in Taylor street, Ward 7. Read twice and passed.

HORSE-RAILROAD LOCATIONS.

A petition was received from the Highland Street Railroad Company, for a location of tracks on Blue Hill avenue, between the junction of said avenue and Warren street and Canterbury street. Referred to Committee on Paving.

Alderman Viles presented the petitions of Childs, Crosby & Laue, John F. Pray & Sons, Cobb, Bates & Yerxa, Edward Hixon & Co., Gideon Beck & Son, J. R. Burditt & Co., A. K. Loring, Dee & Doyle, Galvin Bros., and 100 others; Shepard, Norwell & Co., R. & J. Gilchrist & Co., Hogg, Brown & Taylor, Spalding, Hay & Wales, Churchill & Co., Smith & Watson, Williams & Everett, and forty others; Leopold Morse, Moses B. Wilde, Richard Briggs, E. H. Brabrook, Joel Goldthwait & Co., Allen & Noble, Blake & Alden, A. H. Allen and thirty others; W. F. Wade & Sons, J. S. Hobbs & Co., Thomas James & Co., G. Baker & Co., L. Weischoff & Co. and twenty-five others; Jacob Sleeper, Roderick Richardson, Comstock, Gove & Co., Braman, Dow & Co., Holmes & Blanchard, O. H. P. Smith & Co., Powers, Melvin & Co. and twenty-five others—merchants doing business in Washington, Tremont, Federal, Winter, Summer, Beach, Kneeland and South streets—in aid of the petition of the Middlesex Railroad Company, for leave to run twelve more cars round the circuit. Referred to Committee on Paving.

BRIDGES.

Alderman Burnham submitted the following from the Committee on Bridges:

Ordered, That the Committee on Bridges be authorized to grant access to Chelsea Bridge from the date of this order to Aug. 11, to persons having merchandise now landed on the wharf of the Boston & Lowell Railroad in Mystic River, for such time and under such conditions as said committee may prescribe. Read twice and passed.

Ordered, That the Committee on Bridges be authorized to expend a sum not exceeding $3000 in rebuilding the draw pier of Western-avenue bridge (to Cambridge); to be charged to the appropriation for Bridges. Read twice and passed.

Ordered, That the Committee on Bridges be authorized to expend a sum not exceeding $8000 in rebuilding the draw pier of Mt. Washington-avenue bridge; to be charged to the special appropriation provided for said purpose. Read twice and passed.

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman Burnham.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen,

AUGUST 13, 1877.

Regular meeting at four o'clock P. M., his Honor the Mayor in the chair.

EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENTS.

Police Officers Without Pay—S. W. Cunningham, James J. Sharpe. Confirmed.

Police Officers—Albion Burnham, John Doherty. Referred to Committee on Police.

PETITIONS REFERRED

To the Committee on Lamps. James D. Thomson et al., that Howard avenue be lighted; A. McDonald, for a street lamp on Alexander avenue, Ward 20; Thomas Dolan et al., that Jamaica street, Ward 23, be lighted.

To the Committee on Paving. Petition for edgestones in front of estate of Charles B. Cumings on Greenough avenue; for brick sidewalk in front of estate of John C. Moorhead on Emerson and Fourth streets; Thomas Winston, 200 Marion street, East Boston; J. N. Durell, 127 Brook avenue; H. G. Denny, attorney, 204, 206, 208 H street.

W. R. Cavauagh, for leave to move a boiler from C street through C street and Second street to a point near E street, and for leave to move a wooden building from Exchange street, Ward 24, to Pleasant street.

To the Committee on Health on the part of the Board. Petitions for leave to occupy stables by Luke Mitchell, new wooden, two horses, Marston avenue, Ward 24; R. Peterson, Jr., wooden, one horse, Saratoga street, rear 171 Princeton street, Ward 1; M. S. Quigley, new wooden, four cows and one horse, New Seaver street; South Boston Horse Railroad Company, brick, seventy additional horses, on Sixth street; Francis Gallagher, new wooden, one horse, 38 Rogers street; heirs of Nahum Ward, old wooden, fifteen additional horses, rear 1419 Tremont street; D. M. Baker, old wooden eight head of cattle, Parkman street, Ward 24.

To the Committee on Sewers. Frederic Lindhorst, for a sewer in Reading street; Edward Wise et al., that the sewer from Lamartine street be extended in Centre street to Wise place; Levi B. Gay et al., for a sewer in St. James avenue.

HEARINGS.

Sewers. Hearings were had on orders of notice in relation to proposed construction of sewers as follows: In Maple street, Roxbury; in Maudlin street, Charlestown. No objections, and severally recommitted to the Committee on Sewers.

Highland Street Railway. A hearing was in order on the petition of Highland Street Railway Company for leave to run their cars to the northern depots. Postponed for two weeks, on motion of Alderman Slade, the parties being absent from the city.

Steam Engines. Hearings were had on petitions for leave to locate and use steam engines by Globe Nail Manufactory on Norfolk avenue, and by George W. Simmous & Son at 44 North street. No objections, and recommitted to Committee on Steam Engines. Subsequently Alderman Gibson submitted reports from the Committee on Steam Engines in favor of granting the above-named petitions.

LOCATION ACCEPTED.

A communication was received from the Metropolitan Railroad Company, accepting the forty-ninth location, granted by this Board on July 16. Placed on file.

VEGETABLE MARKET ON MERCANTILE WHARF.

The report and order to purchase the Mercantile-wharf Market, 80,000 feet, at a price not exceeding $4 per foot, coming up under unfinished business, were laid on the table on motion of Alderman Thompson.

LICENSES.

Alderman Duubar submitted reports from the Committee on Licenses as follows:

Wagon License Granted—Thomas Foley, 126 Cabot street.

Amusement Licenses Granted—Peck & Stetson, to give a dog exhibition at Music Hall on Sept. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8; John Stetson, to give dramatic and musical entertainments at the Globe Theatre, (Sundays excepted.)

Victuallers Licensed—Stewart Brothers, 38 Eliot street; Benjamin F. Appleby, 1267 Tremont street; Hubert Tessier, 156 Merrimac street.

Hack License Granted—Owen Russell, 100 Franklin street.

Auctioneer Licensed—M. H. Wall, 26 Lagrange street.

Pawnbroker Licensed—Moritz Stolkowsky, 198 South street.

Intelligence Offices Licensed—E. J. Pierce, 274 Washington street; James Benedict, 7 Boylston street.

Several accepted.

Report on petition of Union Railway Company for leave to occupy North Russell street, near Cambridge street, with two tow-horses for their cars—That, having stationed said horses in South Russell street to the satisfaction of all parties concerned, no further action is required by this Board. Accepted.

SEWERS.

Alderman O'Brien submitted the following from the Committee on Sewers:

Orders to build sewers in Cedar avenue, West Roxbury; in John A. Andrew street. Read twice and passed.

Order of notice of intention to take for sewer purposes land of Isaac Pratt, Jr., trustee, and others, five feet wide and about 800 feet long, through the centre of Ashford street in Brighton, extending from Malvern street to the brook formerly dividing Brookline and Brighton; and for a bearing thereon on Monday, Aug. 27th, inst. Passed.

PAVING REPORTS AND ORDERS.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Paving:

Order to close Longwood-avenue Bridge against public travel until said bridge shall have been rebuilt. Read twice and passed.

Order to raise and grade Mill street, from Neponset avenue to the Old Colony Railroad; also to build a stone culvert under, and retaining walls on each side of, said street; estimated cost, $16,000. Read twice and passed.

Ordered, That the sum of three dollars be and the same hereby is abated from the amount assessed Catherine Noonan for edgestones on Paris street, the same being an error in measurement. Read twice and passed.

POLICE.

Alderman Robinson submitted a report from the Committee on Police, recommending confirmation of the appointment of Albion Burnham as a police officer. Report accepted and said nomination confirmed.

THE CASE OF MARY ELLA HARRINGTON.

Alderman Robinson submitted a report from the Committee on Police on petitions of Calvin T. Chamberlin and of Alfred Latour and others, to be paid the reward offered for the recovery of the body of Mary Ella Harrington—that after hearing the petitioners they are satisfied that Alfred Latour and his associates are entitled to the reward. They recommend the passage of an order—That there be paid to Alfred Latour, Peter Eno and Joseph Latouliss the sum of $150, the same being the amount of the reward offered for information which would lead to the discovery of the disposition of the body of Mary Ella Harrington. Order read twice and passed.

CLAIMS.

Alderman O'Brien submitted reports from the Joint Committee on Claims of leave to withdraw on petitions of James D. McNeil, to be compensated for injuries received on the slip of the East Boston ferries; Mary McCarthy, to be compensated for damage occasioned by a defective sewer. Severally accepted. Sent down.

PERMITS FOR STABLES.

Alderman Burnham submitted reports from the Committee on Health on the part of the Board—That leave be granted on the usual conditions to occupy stables by Metropolitan Railroad Company (two stables) on Jamaica street; Martiu Cunningham, Mt. Hope street. Severally accepted.

ORDER TO PAY.

Alderman Clark, from the Committee on Streets on the part of the Board, offered an order to pay Sarah A. G. Fuller $570, for land taken and all damages occasioned by the extension of Clifton street to Shirley street at George street. Read twice and passed.

SEALERS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

On motion of Alderman Slade, the Board reconsidered the vote whereby this Board refused to concur with the Common Council in striking out the transfer of $2100 from the Reserved Fund to pay the salaries of the Deputy Sealers of Weights and Measures.

Alderman Slade—I now move that we concur with the Council. As it was left the other night the salary was not fixed, and in addition to that it was left so that the Sealers could get no pay. I thought it was a little indefinite, and I did not understand it. If we concur with the Council it fixes the salaries, and we must trust to luck to get enough to pay the salaries by and by. There is enough of the appropriation left to pay the Sealers for four or five months.

Alderman O'Brien—I hope we shall concur with the Common Council and settle this matter for the time being. While this question is before us I would state that on the 7th of May last I was called to attend the annual meeting of the Trustees of the City Hospital, which took place while this Board was in session, and I was absent from that session of the Board from an hour and a half to two hours. During my absence the question of the appointment of four Deputy Sealers came up and was discussed in this Board, and it was settled before I returned. By an accident which very frequently occurs in the best regulated printing offices, the official reporter makes it out that I made a speech upon that occasion, while I was absent during the debate on that subject; and the Journal last week copied my speech on the 7th of May, as reported in the official document, and my speech made last Monday, to show a contradiction of sentiments on my part. I make this explanation, however, not to justify myself, but merely to correct the report.

The Board concurred with the Council in the amendment.

SITE OF JOHN ROESSLE'S STABLE.

Alderman Burnham offered an order—That the license granted May 28, 1877, to John Roessle to erect a stable on Pynchon street be so amended as to allow said Roessle to erect a brick stable for twenty-six horses on his land in rear of Pynchon street, near Centre place, in conformity with the terms of his original petition. Read twice and passed.

THE HORSE RAILROAD BLOCKADE.

Early in the session petitions were received from James Collins and sixty-eight others, to remove blockade of cars on Beach and South streets; Henry Souther and 364 others, to remove the blockade in front of Old Colony and Boston & Albany depots; Hollis R. Gray and 367 others, to remove blockade in front of Old Colony and Boston & Albany depots—severally requesting the Board to refuse the petition of the Middlesex Railroad Company for leave to pass more cars to and from the Albany and Old Colony depots, on the ground that already there is sufficient accommodation between the depots at the northerly and southerly parts of the city, and between the southern depots and Charlestown and the North End; and that to permit passage of more cars of the Middlesex Company through Beach street will be to unnecessarily blockade the streets without compensating benefit to the citizens. Severally referred to Committee on Paving.

Near the close of the session Alderman Clark said—I wish to call the attention of the Committee on Police to one fact, that there is an ordinance in regard to horse cars keeping at a distance of thirty feet from each other in their passage through the streets. From eight o'clock in the morning till ten o'clock at night, the fact is that the horse cars do not average five feet apart. The ordinance or the law which authorizes the police to maintain a distance of thirty feet between the cars should be enforced. I wish to call the attention of the Committee on Police to another fact, that in front of the Lowell and Eastern Railroad depots there is a long line of cars standing, blocking the street, while the drivers are bellowing for passengers the same as hack drivers do at the depots. It is a great inconvenience to the travelling public, inasmuch as people in a hurry to take a train are liable to be detained, and may be unable to arrive at the depot in season to do so. A case of this kind came under my own observation no later than last Saturday afternoon. I looked in the neighborhood for a police officer to order the cars to move, but none could be found. I did call upon one in uniform, but was informed that he was in the employ of the corporation and had no authority over the streets. I think these things should be attended to. There is a law compelling cars to keep thirty feet from each other. The streets should not be so blockaded by the cars of different competing companies that people are prevented from reaching a depot in season to take the train.

Alderman Robinson—I am much obliged to the Alderman for the information. I assure him that this blockade has exercised the minds of both the Police and Pavingcommittees, of which I am a member, and it seems almost a little too much for me, from the pressure that is brought upon us not only to stop the blockade, but also to prevent us from increasing the cars. I assure him that the matter shall have respectful attention and immediate consideration, and that we will do the best we can under the circumstances.

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman Clark, and stood adjourned for two weeks.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen,

AUGUST 27, 1877.

Regular meeting at four o'clock P. M., his Honor the Mayor presiding.

JURORS DRAWN.

Three grand jurors were drawn for the September term of the United States District Court; and forty-one traverse jurors for the September term of the Supreme Judicial Court.

EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENTS.

Registrar of Voters—Joseph M. Wightman, in place of L. Foster Morse, who declines to serve. Confirmed.

Undertaker—Bernard Clarke. Confirmed.

Lieutenant of Police—Owen T. Winn. Referred to Committee on Police.

Police Officers Without Pay—Alexander Hill, Rafael Isaacson, John F. M. Brown, Manuel Russell, Edwin W. Buswell, John Dixwell, Daniel F. Dwyer. Confirmed.

Police Officers—James J. Kane, Joseph Givens. Referred to Committee on Police.

PETITIONS, ETC., REFERRED.

To the Committee on Paving. John M. B. Reynolds et al., that cross walks be laid at the junction of Mt. Pleasant avenue with Vine and Fairland streets; George Dennie et al., that stone cross walks be laid on Columbus avenue; Hiram Ames et al., that the Ferdinand-street Bridge be widened and rebuilt; Nahum Capen et al., that Bowdoin street be graded from Olney street to Bellevue street; John H. Barry et al., that sidewalks be laid on I street, between Seventh and Eighth streets.

Petitions for edgestones in front of estates of A. McKillop, 51 Everett street; Jacob W. Seaver, Morton street, West Roxbury; First Congregational Society, Centre street, West Roxbury. For brick sidewalks in front of estates of M. H. Robinson, 16-26 West Cottage street; Mary D. Cowdrey, 67 Bainbridge street; A. J. Browne, 69 Bainbridge street; Andreas Blume, 18-24 West Cottage street; Mary Ann Donovan, 256 Everett street, East Boston. For edgestones and brick sidewalks in front of estates of Francis V. Miller, 11 Claremont park; Francis V. Burton, 9 Claremont park; Alfred Hill, 38 Perrin street.

Petitions for leave to move wooden buildings, by John Quirk, from South street, Ward 23, to Keyes street; by Cornelius Cotter, through Harvard to Cambridge street.

Otis Drury, trustee, that the pattern of the gate of the Old Colony Railroad on Dorchester avenue at Seventh street may be changed.

To the Committee on Streets on the part of the Board. Notice from the Board of Street Commissioners of proposed relocation of Western avenue in Brighton.

To the Board of Health. Orinda Webber, for leave to keep a lying-in hospital at 63 Hammond street.

To the Joint Committee on Claims. Catherine Harrington, for compensation for personal injuries caused by an alleged defect in Vernon street; Peter Stengel, to be paid for injuries done to his horse by reason of an alleged defect in I street.

To the Committee on Sewers. J. V. N. Stults et al., for a sewer in a portion of Rockland street; M. Lennon, for a sewer in Washington street, Dorchester.

To the Committee on Police. Andrew L. Johnson, for leave to project a lantern at 218 Friend street.

To the Joint Committee on Common, etc. Eliza T. Clapp et al., for the reopening of the well on the Eaton lot, recently purchased by the city.

To the Committee on Fire Department on the part of the Board. Aaron D. Williams, for leave to occupy a wooden building on Swett street, near Pine Island, for the manufacture of fireworks.

To the Committee on Lamps. Alouzo Hamilton et al., for lamps on Lawrence avenue.

To the Committee on Health on the part of the Board. Petitions for leave to occupy stables as follows: Metropolitan Railroad Company, new wooden, forty-six horses, School street, near Washington street, Ward 23; James E. Rowe, old wooden, three horses, Douglas street, Ward 14; estate of William Seaver, old wooden, one cow, Moreland place, Ward 23; James Galvin, old wooden, one cow, No. 37 Bolton street, Ward 13; Margaret McGrevie, old wooden, one horse, Maverick street, Ward 1; George Holmes, new brick, one horse, rear of 549 East Seventh street, Ward 14; Jenness & Glover, new wooden, four horses, on Mather street, in rear; David Scott, new wooden, one horse, 16 East Eagle street; Robert Treat Paine, Jr., five brick and stone, four horses each, rear Buckingham street; Bridget Burke, new wooden, two horses, 42 Simmons street; Mrs. S. W. Jones, for leave to establish a lying-in hospital at 80 Dover street, and for a hearing thereon.

PETITION FOR LOCATION OF TRACKS.

A petition was received from the Butchers' Slaughtering and Melting Association for leave to lay down tracks across North Beacon street, near Parsons street, and an order of notice was passed for a hearing thereon on Tuesday, Sept. 18, at four o'clock P. M.

HEARINGS.

Sewers. On notice of intention to take land for sewers in Blue Hill avenue and Warren street, and in Ashford street.

A remonstrance was received from Edward D. Sohler against taking land for sewer in Ashford street.

No other person appeared to object, and the order was recommended to the Committee on Sewers.

Steam Engine. On petition of Frank J. Nelson, for leave to locate and use a steam engine and boiler at 173-177 Sumner street, East Boston. No one appeared to object and the petition was referred to the Committee on Steam Engines.

Highland Railroad Company. On petition of Highland Street Railway Company for leave to run their cars over tracks of the Metropolitan and Middlesex railroads to the northern depots.

Moody Merrill, President of the Highland road, stated that Mr. Emery, of the Cambridge road, objected to the proposed route, and Mr. Merrill desired a postponement to see if he could make some arrangement to prevent a contest before the Board with the Cambridge road, which objected to a part of the proposed location.

W. A. Field appeared for the Metropolitan road, and said Mr. Richards, the President, was sick, but did not ask a delay on that account, and did not object to this postponement.

J. W. Emery appeared for the Cambridge Railroad. He objected to the Highland cars running through Green street, which is crowded.

On motion of Alderman Wilder, the hearing was postponed for two weeks.

A remonstrance was received from Henry A. Choate and others doing business on Court, Green and Leverett streets, against granting said petition of the Highland road. Placed on file among the papers in the case.

CITY CLERK'S REPORT.

The report of the City Clerk for the quarter ending July 31 was received. Collected and paid into city treasury, $1635.69. Sent down.

JAIL EXPENSES.

A requisition was received from the Sheriff of Suffolk County for $1515.33 for expenses at the jail for August. Ordered paid.

MYSTIC VALLEY SEWER.

The following was received and read:

Hon. F. O. Prince, Mayor of the City of Boston: Dear Sir—At a town meeting held Aug. 20, 1877, it was voted that the town of Woburn respectfully request the city of Boston to confer with the town of Woburn with a view to the enlargement of the proposed Mystic Valley sewer to a size sufficient to take the sewage of Woburn, in accordance with the terms of chapter 202 of the laws of 1875; and that the selectmen be a committee to carry this vote into effect, and report at a future meeting of the town.

In compliance with the above, the Board of Selectmen of Woburn have delegated this matter to a sub-committee, consisting of the following-named gentlemen, members of their board: Hon. John Cummings, Colonel William T. Grammer, L. Thompson, Jr., and Thomas H. Hill.

I have the honor, therefore, on the part of this committee, to request a conference with the city of Boston as instructed, and will thank you to notify me when and where that conference may be most convenient to the proper authorities. I am, dear sir, yours truly,

THOMAS H. HILL, for the Committee.

Alderman Thompson—It is rather late for those people to send a communication of that nature to this Board. When the application for leave to build this sewer was made to the Legislature, the towns of Woburn and Winchester were both invited to join the city of Boston in applying for the grant. They declined to come in, or rather they assumed to be in favor of such a grant, but desired the city of Boston to have the grant and the towns the right to use the sewer without any compensation or contributing anything towards building the sewer. The city of Boston decided not to build the sewer under the previous act and not to accept the grant, in consequence of the action of the representatives of these towns. Now the matter has gone so far that the city has already made its contracts and secured the services of the workmen and made such other arrangements as are necessary to make, that I don't see any possible good that can come, or any change that can be made in the arrangements without a great deal of expense to the city of Boston. However, I am willing that it shall be referred to the Water Board, and I so move.

The communication was referred to the Water Board. Sent down.

PRINTING AT DEER ISLAND.

Alderman O'Brien presented the following:
To the Honorable the City Council of the City of Boston:

We, the undersigned, printers of the city of Boston, having learned that the Board of Directors of Public Institutions have caused the boys confined at Deer Island for crime to be instructed in the art of printing, and that it is proposed to have the printing for the city of Boston done by these boys, would respectfully protest against such action by your honorable body, and ask you to permit no such project to be carried out, in justice to the professors of an honorable calling; in justice to the honest men and women engaged in the business; in justice to master-printers, who have invested large capital in "the art preservative of arts"; in justice to the fair fame of the city of Boston. The printing required by the city gives employment to a large number of men and women who have devoted many years to learn the art,—which is not acquired in a few months,—and having acquired it, are pursuing their honorable calling, and endeavoring to educate their children, and make them, in time, good and honest citizens. They are taxpayers, and contribute their share to the support of this institution, and all others; and yet it is proposed to deprive these taxpayers of the means of living,—at least so far as the city is concerned,—and confer the benefits of an honorable business on the inmates of a reformatory institution, whose dissipated fathers, mayhap, have never contributed even a poll-tax to the city of Boston. And the injustice does not end here. What is to become of the hundreds of "printers" turned out every year by the city of Boston? Where are they to obtain employment? It has always been the pride of the city fathers in all countries to foster the arts and trades, and we are not aware that any city in Europe utilizes the labor of criminals to deprive honest workmen of the means of living. We would respectfully submit the following as a few of the many objections that may be offered in the premises:

1. It is the duty of a municipal or State government to foster and not hamper productive industry.

2. Thoroughly educated and thoroughly trained labor is essential to the perpetuation of our free institutions. This we claim cannot be obtained in any reformatory or penal establishment.

3. That such a system employs the money of free citizens in competition against themselves, and tends to the depreciation of property and the diminution of capital.

4. That an employer is a buyer of labor, as an employé is a seller of labor, and the taxes collected from all classes of our citizens should not be employed in the interest of any particular class.

5. That such action is subversive of the equality of free citizenship—the basis of republicanism,—and tends to bring skilled and honest tax-paying artisans in competition with unskilled and half-trained convict labor.

Gentlemen, we earnestly ask you to think well before you consent to this measure. Do not let it be said, that, in the year 1877—when the royalty and nobility, the professors of science, literature and art, the theologians and the scholars of England are honoring the memory of her great printer, William Caxton,—the city of Boston is dishonoring the name of her famous and honored son—that son who loved his art so well,—Benjamin Franklin, printer.

Gentlemen, we ask you, in justice to good citizens, not to permit this monstrous wrong to be done in the name of the city of Boston.

And your petitioners will ever pray, etc.

Alderman O'Brien—I was not aware until within a very few days that such a petition was in existence. I understand that it was left in all the large printing offices in the city, and it was signed by every printer in the offices in which it was left, with scarcely an exception. I believe the five or six hundred names on the petition embrace nearly all the printers in the city of Boston at the present time. I move its reference to the Committee on Public Institutions, as it appears to me that that would be the proper committee to refer it to.

Alderman Viles—I have no objection to the petition being referred to that committee; but I am surprised that the teaching of a half-dozen boys at the House of Reformation the art of printing, so that they may go out in the world and earn a living, should frighten so many printers. We are learning a few boys the art of printing, and some of them are taking to it very rapidly. We hope to do some printing and save the city some money.

Alderman O'Brien—I would say in answer to the Alderman's remarks, that it has been reported in and outside of City Hall that it was the object of the Directors of Public Institutions to build up an office at Deer Island where all the printing of the city of Boston could be done. That is generally reported outside. Well, now, I can see how difficult such a task would be to build up a large printing office to do the printing of the city of Boston. I presume it was on such reports that the petition was got up.

Alderman Viles—As a Director for Public Institutions this is the first information I have had, of so large a project at the Island.

The communication, which was signed by several hundred printers, was referred to the Committee on Public Institutions. Sent down.

LICENSES.

Alderman Dunbar submitted reports from the Committee on Licenses as follows:

Victuallers Licensed—James Nelly, 226 Commercial street; Charles H. Wallace, Washington street, Dorchester; Georgiana Boss, 79 Phillips street.

Hack License Granted—James Mahoney, 11 Walnut street, Charlestown.

Circus Licensed—Murray's, for two weeks, beginning Aug. 27.

Wrestling Exhibition Licensed—Owens & Murphy, Music Hall, Sept. 19.

Intelligence Office Licensed—Mrs. Mary J. McMulkin, 81 Charles street.

Dealers in Second-hand Articles Licensed—James Gallagher and six others.

Wagon License Granted—Parker Heale & Co., 13-15 John street.

Severally accepted.

Ordered—That the license granted on the 6th inst. to Frederick Rudolph to maintain a shooting gallery on his premises on Boylston street, Ward 23, be revoked, the said gallery having proved a nuisance to the neighborhood. Read twice and passed.

INSPECTORS OF PRISONS.

Alderman O'Brien submitted the first semi-annual report of the Committee on Inspection of Prisons and Houses of Detention [City Doc. 76] in Suffolk County for the year 1877.

The committee visited the House of Correction and Lunatic Hospital, at South Boston, on the 26th of June; the Houses of Industry and Reformation, at Deer Island, and Suffolk County Jail, on Charles street, on the 27th of June. Copies of the reports, showing the condition of the several institutions, and covering the facts required by the statutes, are appended hereto. All the buildings connected with the institutions were found to be clean and, with the exception of the Lunatic Hospital, well ventilated. The construction of the latter building renders it impossible to ventilate it properly when the weather is such as to require that the windows should be closed. Your committee are of the opinion that some measures should be taken to remove the defect. All the inmates of the House of Correction were employed on contract work for New York and Boston firms, and, at the time of the visit, there were two months' work ahead. The inmates of all the institutions appeared to be under a good state of discipline, and no complaints of ill-treatment or of insufficiency of food were made.

Respectfully submitted,

HUGH O'BRIEN.
GEORGE DUNBAR.
CLINTON VILES.

Committee of Inspectors.

Houses of Industry and Reformation. Number remaining Dec. 21, 1876, 792; number committed since Dec. 21, 1876, 3049; total, 3841. Number discharged since Dec. 21, 1876, 3127; number, remaining June 27, 1877, 714.

Commitments for House of Reformation. Number remaining Dec. 21, 1876—boys 286, girls 29; total, 315. Number committed since—boys 71, girls 11; total, 82—397. Number discharged since—boys 154, girls 10; total, 164. Number remaining June 27, 1877—boys 203, girls 30; total, 233.

Truant School. Number transferred from House of Reformation, May 7, 1877, 88; committed from May 7, 1877, to June 27, 1877, 28—116. Discharged as pardoned by Directors, 5; discharged for expired sentence, 11—16. Number remaining June 27, 1877, 100.

Suffolk County Jail. The total number of prisoners in Suffolk County Jail on June 27, 1877, the date of inspection, was 128. Total number committed from Dec. 22, 1876 (the date of prisoners' inspection), to June 26, 1877, inclusive, was 1445. Christian Johnson, held for non-payment of fine for illegal sale of intoxicating liquor, was pardoned April 4, 1877, by the Governor of the Commonwealth.

Lunatic Hospital. Number remaining at the previous inspection of Dec. 27, 1876: Males 95, females 96—191; admitted since: males 10, females 11—21; whole number under care during the term: 212; discharged since: males 9, females 9—18; remaining at last inspection, June 26, 1877: males 96, females 98—194; of those discharged there were: recovered 6, improved 1, not improved 1, died 10—18; the causes of death were: consumption 4, disease of brain 3, disease of heart 1, erysipelas 1, exhaustion 1—10.

House of Correction. The number of prisoners remaining at the last inspection, Dec. 27, 1876, was: males 507, females 71, total 578; committed from Dec. 27, 1876, to June 26, 1877, inclusive: males 390, females 47, total 437; discharged from Dec. 27, 1876, to June 26, 1877, inclusive: males 355, females 50, total 405; remaining, June 26, 1877: males 542, females 68, total 610. Miscellaneous: Discharged, expiration of sentence 380, pardoned by Governor 1, paid fine and costs 9, discharged by order of Municipal Court after serving three months 14, died 1. During the past six months a revival of business seems to have taken place, and at the present time all our machines are kept constantly employed, with good prospects for a continuance of the same.

THE VACATION.

On motion of Alderman Viles it was ordered—That when the Board adjourn it be to Monday, Sept. 10, at four o'clock P. M.

BRIDGES.

Alderman Thompson submitted the following from the Committee on Bridges:

Ordered, That the Committee on Bridges be authorized to expend the sum of $500 in repairing the roadway, sidewalk and draw of Warren Bridge; said sum to be in addition to that already authorized, and to be charged to the appropriation for Bridges.

Read twice and passed.

Ordered, That the Committee on Bridges be authorized to expend the sum of $1500 in replanking the roadway of Broadway Bridge; said sum to be charged to the appropriation for Bridges.

Read twice and passed.

SEWERS.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Sewers:

Reports and orders of notice for hearing on Monday, Sept. 10, on expediency of constructing sewers in St. James avenue, between Dartmouth and Exeter streets. Order passed.

Orders for the construction of sewers in Maudlin street, Charlestown; in Maple street, Roxbury. Read twice and passed.

Order to take land of Mrs. Margaret McDonald and others, between Blue Hill avenue and Warren street, for sewer purposes. Read twice and passed.

Ordered, That his honor the Mayor be hereby authorized to release to Richard E. Cochrane the title of two parcels of land on Walk Hill street, they being a portion of the land taken by the Commissioners of Stony Brook of the town of West Roxbury, by an order dated Dec. 11, 1873, and not now required by the city; being shown in blue on a plan dated Aug. 27, 1877, and deposited in the office of the Sewer Department.

Alderman Viles—This is a portion of the land taken in 1873 by the town of West Roxbury for the Stony Brook improvement. We have simply straightened the course and do not need this land, and therefore we ask that it be released back.

The order was read twice and passed. Sent down.

Order of notice of intention to take land of Old Colony Railroad, Franklin King and the heirs of Atherton Tucker for sewer purposes in Jenkins street, and for hearing thereon on Sept. 10, at 4 P. M. Passed.

Ordered, That $50 be abated from the assessment levied upon Eunice Tucker for a sewer in Rockland avenue; also that $32.28 be abated from the assessments levied upon Henrietta Tannerbaum for a sewer in Terrace street. Read twice and passed.

Order to pay Richard E. Cochrane $252 for part of the land taken and all damages occasioned by the construction of the new channel of Stony Brook. Read twice and passed.

PAVING REPORTS AND ORDERS.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Paving:

Reports of leave to withdraw on petitions of Daniel Osborn to be paid for damages caused by change of grade in Foster street, Brighton; Daniel Mahoney, for grade damages on Londau street, East Boston; Michael F. Lynch, that the city would purchase the property and franchise of the Metropolitan Railroad Company in Ward 24. Severally accepted.

Reports and order for edgestones in front of estates of Charles B. Cumings on Greenough avenue, and C. M. Weld on Centre street, West Roxbury. Order read twice and passed.

Reports and orders for edgestones in front of estates of the First Presbyterian Church on Columbus avenue and Berkeley streets; Berkeley-street Congregational Society on Gray street; J. N. Durell, 127 Brook avenue; Horace K. Batchelder, 66 Fort avenue; John C. Moorhead, Emerson and Fourth streets; Barnstable Savings Bank, 19 West Cottage street; Henry G. Denny, 186 H street and 502 Eighth street; H. G. Denny, attorney, 204, 206, 208 H street. Orders read twice and passed.

Orders to plank the Huntington-avenue Bridge and erect fences on the sides; to furnish stone blocks outside of and adjacent to the rails of the street railroad on Columbus avenue, and remove the wooden pavement and surplus material from said avenue after the same shall have been removed by the contractor, and to reset the edgestones and repave the sidewalks, or such portions thereof, as may be necessary, on said avenue, at an estimated cost of $7000. Orders read twice and passed.

Report and order for edgestones and repaved sidewalk on the easterly side of Dartmouth place, and for edgestones, paved sidewalks and gutters on the westerly side of said place. Order read twice and passed.

Orders for edgestones and paved gutters on the northerly side of Sparhawk street, between Market and Murdock streets; to repave Meridian street with small granite blocks between Lexington and Eutaw streets, at an estimated cost of $8000; to macadamize Washington street, Brighton, from Lake street to Oak square, at an estimated cost of $3500. Severally read twice and passed.

FANEUIL HALL.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted a report from the committee on Faneuil Hall in favor of granting the use of said hall to Charles W. Baker and others on September 5 for a public meeting. Accepted.

Alderman Slade submitted a report from the committee on Faneuil Hall in favor of granting the use of said hall to the First Massachusetts Infantry Veteran Association on the 5th and 12th of September, on the usual conditions, but not on the 17th.

Alderman Slade—The reason for the change in the time is the fact that the hall was asked for for a lecture and address on the 15th, and I don't suppose it will make much difference whether they have it on that day or not. The committee thought that the city might want the hall on the 17th for purposes of more importance than that for which this association ask for it, and the Produce Exchange tendered them the use of Quincy Hall provided they needed it.

The report was accepted.

These figures show that the cost of carrying on the various City Governments is higher, per capita, in Boston, than in any other city in the United States of America. We have a valuation that is very large, to be sure. It is a fictitious valuation, because it is a valuation that cannot be compared with the valuations of other cities. For instance, take the valuation of personal property. It is immense in the city of Boston. In the city of Philadelphia it is six one-hundredths of the entire valuation, in Boston one-third, in New York one-fifth, and so on, as given in the table. We value the real estate, and then value the mortgage on that real estate, and call it personal property, so that a house that is valued for four thousand dollars and mortgaged for two thousand, represents, on the Assessors' books, really a valuation of six thousand dollars. In Philadelphia it is evident that they do not value personal property to a very large amount. In the city of New York, I understand that the dry goods, clothing and other things in the stores are not valued high; yet we have a high value on everything, and with all that our taxes, per capita, are higher than in any city in the United States. Our tax, per thousand, is small as compared with some other cities, but in the result it is far greater than in any other city in the Union. I think it is time for us, here in the City Government, before we proceed farther in incurring greater liabilities and issuing scrip for city indebtedness, or before widening any more streets or buying lands, to know where we stand and receive an authoritative statement from the legal adviser of the city of Boston on this question, because it is a serious one in the minds of many lawyers whether, under section 10, we can contract the indebtedness which we contemplate. Some contend that that section was passed for the purpose of relieving cities which might be crippled by the creation of this statute, but was not intended to be a permanent affair; and, if they did not avail themselves of this section within a short period, that the time would come when they should come down to within the three per cent. allowed by this section 9, and beyond which they cannot go. I offer the order in good faith. I think it is a serious matter for the City Government, and we ought to have an authoritative opinion from the City Solicitor whether we can legally go beyond this or not, and whether we have not arrived very near, if not exceeded, the limit within one per cent.

Alderman O'Brien—It is very pleasant to hear the gentleman's voice again. He evidently comes back refreshed and invigorated after his sojourn at Saratoga. I can see no objection to obtaining the information sought for in the order. But in order to let the Alderman know that we have not been doing business loosely in his absence I would say that I took the liberty to inquire of our City Auditor as to the margin of our city indebtedness, and after consulting with the City Solicitor he made out that our margin at that time was six million nine hundred thousand dollars, and I suppose that the City Solicitor, in informing the City Auditor in relation to this business, looked into all the legal points bearing upon the question. I believe, with him, that every department of the City Government is run at a very high expense. I called attention to this matter some time ago, and the Alderman answered me that every department of the city of Boston was better than the departments of other cities. Some time ago I had occasion to inquire in relation to the expenditures for the City Hospital, and found that they were about ten dollars per week for each patient. In Bellevue Hospital, in New York, they amount to three dollars and a half for each patient. But shall we introduce into the City Hospital of Boston the system practised in the hospital in New York? I believe there are no physicians in the city of Boston at the present time who would give their time to the City Hospital if affairs were carried on in the hospital of Boston as they are carried on in the city of New York. It was only a day or two ago that I saw published in the Baltimore papers a statement in relation to the public institutions there, that they were one mass of filth; that the inmates were allowed to do almost anything they pleased; that hundreds of illegitimate children were born in those institutions, and that there was no proper care taken of them. But let any one go to our institutions here, and see the order, the regularity and the care that is taken of the inmates of these institutions, and then we can see why they are more expensive than similar institutions are elsewhere.

Let me take our police force; I believe we have a better police force than in any other city in the country; that they receive higher pay, with the exception of the police of New York and Brooklyn, than the police of any other city in the country, and still our people are not satisfied. The cry has been raised for more men; but at the same time I believe that today we have more men, in proportion to population, than any city in the country. Shall we reduce them? That is the question. Take our public schools, for instance. The Alderman knows that our public schools cost twice as much as those of any other city in the country; but how shall we make a change? That is a very important question. How shall we cut down the expense in that department? I have been trying to think of it in this City Hall for the last three years, and I must say that I have not been able to make any headway. I agree with the Alderman that the expenses of City Hall are much more than they ought to be; but how to cut them down is the question.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I don't know how to answer the speech of the gentleman who has just sat down, because he has answered himself. He rose, as I thought, with the object of showing me in error; but he ended by showing that the former part of his argument was wrong and that mine was right. I did not bring up the figures to cause remorse of conscience to the Alderman from Ward 21 for voting for widening a street after making so strong an argument that no more street widenings are necessary. I did not make it in reply to the argument that certain portions of the city should pay a certain portion of the expense; I simply rose to state certain facts. I rose not to ask the Auditor. The City Solicitor and the courts are the parties to pass upon it. As we cannot get the opinion of the Supreme Court, I think we ought to have an authoritative statement from the City Solicitor. I understand that we go to the Auditor, who goes to the City Solicitor, and the Auditor tells us. Now, I should prefer to have the City Solicitor tell us himself. I believe there is a well-grounded doubt in the minds of some persons as to the legality of issuing any more scrip, and I offered the order for the purpose of getting an official opinion from the City Solicitor. I agree with my friend as to the police. I don't want to cut down the police. I agree that the force is composed of efficient, intelligent men, and both the police and firemen deserve to be well paid. But I did not get up for the purpose of paying a compliment to the police or fire department, because I did not consider it necessary. I simply rose for the purpose of calling the attention of this Board to the increase of our municipal indebtedness, and to the fact that the city of Boston is more heavily in debt than any other city in the United States, not excluding Philadelphia, which is supposed to be in the hands of rings, and New York, which we suppose to be a corrupt city, and New Orleans, which we suppose to be swallowed up by carpet baggers.

Alderman Slade—Has not New York a sinking fund only about one-third that of Boston's?

Alderman Fitzgerald—She has a sinking fund; I do not know the amount. The point is that we pay taxes upon our gross indebtedness, three, five or six per cent., as the case may be, together with a sufficient amount for the Sinking Fund to meet the debt at maturity. But our real indebtedness—because we have to pay for it whether it is in the Sinking Fund or not—is $43,000,000. We have the best-managed Sinking Fund in the United States, I suppose. The only sinking funds which come up to ours are those of Philadelphia, which amount to $3,670,000. New York has a sinking fund; but we have the best managed sinking fund in the United States.

Alderman O'Brien—When the Alderman arose before to speak of the matters before the Finance Committee, I supposed he referred to the great intercepting sewer, for which we must raise three or four millions of dollars, and to the widening of Atlantic avenue, for which we must raise a million dollars, all in the course of three or four years. These measures were acted upon in his absence, and I supposed it was all right to show to the Alderman that the basis we had acted upon in those matters was given by the City Auditor, who is the highest authority in City Hall. But, as I said before, I have no objection to obtaining this information from the City Solicitor. Then the Alderman went on to compare the expenses of the city of Boston with those of other large cities in the Union, and I did not think it out of place for me to say a good word for the city of Boston, and to show in what respect these large expenses exceed those of other cities. The expenses of our schools, hospital and public institutions far exceed—I should say more than double—those of similar institutions in all the other large cities of the Union; and how to cut them down has been a mystery to me since I have been here.

Alderman Clark—I am satisfied that the order has been offered, because I shall be glad to know what the opinion of the City Solicitor is. I have no doubt what it is, because it has been obtained by the Auditor several times, and is precisely as has been stated by him. Now, this is a gloomy foreboding, and it rather dampens my spirits to have such a sad state of facts brought before us at the present time, and I regret very much that it is brought up now. One reason why we are so heavily taxed is that we are paying our debts as we go along. We are taxed largely because we are creating a large sinking fund, and we are taxing the people, as we go along, to create this fund. That is one great reason why the people are taxed so heavily. With her enormous debt, I think the city of New York has a sinking fund of less than $10,000,000; and one reason why we are taxed more heavily than the city of New York is the fact that we are yearly creating a fund with which to pay our debt. In a very short time, if we stop public improvements—which to a certain extent we can do, after we complete our water supply, intercepting sewer, and one or two other necessary improvements—we can cease making large expenditures of money; and if we continue this system of sinking funds, in a few years the city will be free from debt. Our expenditures are large, but, Mr. Mayor, we get more for our money in Boston than in any other city in the Union. The city is better governed, the streets are kept in better condition and are better lighted, less crime is committed here than in any other city in the Union. Instead of costing ten dollars per head for patients at the City Hospital, as the gentleman said, it is now less than eight dollars, as I see by the last report. The addition to the City Hospital has reduced the expense per capita to $8. I think I am right.

Alderman O'Brien—I am aware that the Alderman is right by the last report, but I was taking the general average for a series of years.

Alderman Clark—And as for comparing Bellevue Hospital in New York with the City Hospital of Boston, you might as well compare the Lunatic Hospital at South Boston with the new State Institution at Danvers. Now, I regret that the Alderman should arraign this present City Government for extravagant expenditures. I contend that this has not been an extravagant City Government. They have only carried out projects introduced into and recommended by former City Governments. A system of sewers and parks were both recommended by the late Mayor while in office. The commission to prepare a plan of improved sewerage and the Park Commissioners, were all appointed by the late Mayor. This City Government have not inaugurated any large expenditures; they have simply brought to a head projects recommended by former City Governments, and admitted by them to be absolutely necessary for the benefit of the health of the citizens, and which, being deemed so by this Government, were brought to a conclusion. I do not now remember any extensive enterprises inaugurated by this Government. No street widenings have yet been concluded by this Government. Commercial street has been talked about and an order has been introduced to purchase a piece of land for market purposes; but those matters have not been passed upon by the City Council. So far as I can remember, no extensive enterprises have been inaugurated and carried out by this administration.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I did not rise to arraign anybody or any city government. The present City Government has been in existence only six or seven months, and could not be held accountable for all those things which have been done. The Alderman says the reason our taxes are high compared with other cities, is because we have to pay a certain amount into the Sinking Fund every year. Now, we pay $800,000 into the Sinking Fund, and in the last five years we have paid into that fund more than was necessary or needed. But for all that the amount per capita would be about two dollars and a little over, which would leave us still the highest taxed city in the Union. Deduct the amount per capita paid into the Sinking Fund, and it would still leave us one of the highest taxed cities in the Union.

Alderman O'Brien—Has the gentleman considered this question in all its bearings? For instance, we expend a million dollars a year in improving streets. That is not one of the expenditures of the city of Philadelphia; and I believe the city of New York taxes the abutters for all street improvements. Everything pertaining to laying out new ways, and repairing and lighting streets, enters into our tax levy; in New York and Philadelphia all those matters do not enter into the tax levies.

Alderman Fitzgerald—How do they get it?

Alderman O'Brien—They charge the abutters. There are a great many such matters, upon which I am not posted at this time.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The gentleman is determined to bring the tax levy down too low. In fact, the cities of New York and Chicago do light their streets and get it done cheaper than we do. I was talking with an ex-Mayor of Chicago about it, and he said they made a fuss about the cost of lighting the streets, and now it is done for $16 a year. The Mayor of New York told me the other day that the lamps were lighted and taken care of for $19, and ten or fifteen cents per lamp. The Alderman knows how much we pay per lamp because he has given special attention to that department. The people of New York have to pay for lighting the streets.

Alderman Robinson—I have not the facts and figures with me, but hearing the remarks of the Alderman who has just spoken has brought a little matter to my mind. I think the expense of New York, especially in the Police Department, is quite as large as in the city of Boston. I will endeavor to ascertain the facts before our next meeting.

Alderman O'Brien—All our appropriations for sewers go into our tax levy every year. In New York the cost of sewers is charged to the abutters, and does not go into their tax levy; and when once a sewer is built, no matter how many times we repair it, the city pays the expenses, while in New York all sewers are repaired at the expense of the abutters. Early in the year I noticed that the appropriation for laying out and repairing streets for one year in New York was $350,000; in Boston we think, and the chairman of the Paving Committee believes, that $800,000 is too small a sum to be appropriated for that object.

Alderman Slade—I believe that if the Alderman had stated the figures as $250,000 for New York he would have got them just right.

Alderman O'Brien—It was in that neighborhood.

The order was passed.

THE HORSE-CAR BLOCKADE.

Alderman Robinson—One of the members of the Paving Committee [Alderman Fitzgerald] has been away for some time, and it is with some feelings—I don't know whether of joy or regret—that I find, in taking his hand today, that he has returned again to this Board to assist us with his counsel and advice, and to assist the Paving Committee; and with no more feeling than he had when he went away, that the city of Boston was his home, I welcome him back again. Previous to his going away, however, he introduced this order—

“Ordered—That the Committee on Paving consider and report the causes of the horse-car blockades on Tremont street and at the northern and southern depots, and the remedy for the same.”

The Paving Committee, with their other duties, have not been able to give sufficient time to the subject to make a report. Besides that, the Alderman [Alderman Slade] associated with me and myself could not seem to quite agree upon what was best to be done, and we have not taken any decided action in the matter. I have written out my views, and I think the Alderman has done the same with his, in regard to the cause of the blockade, and the remedy, except the strongest that might possibly be offered; and after we have stated our views to the Board we will be thankful for any suggestion before our next meeting.

The cause, in a word, is this: There are too many horse cars run on the localities spoken of in the order. At the same time there is a petition before the same committee to increase the number of cars. One of the members of the committee has been absent, and the other member and myself have not been able to agree about this petition, and, therefore, no report has yet been made on the subject.

The primary cause of this multiplicity of cars on the circle of a given point, of which all the members of the Board know the locality, is, in my opinion, the granting of the right of one company to run their cars over the tracks of another company. This action of the Board released those favored companies from the restriction of their charters, which confined them to certain routes. I am unable to see any difference—that is, in principle—between granting horse railroad cars of one company the right to run over the tracks of another company and the granting of the right of any dry-goods merchant, or retailer, the right of using in common the store of another merchant or retailer in another part of the city. It may be said that there is no power to do it, but in my opinion the principle is just the same; or, even the editor of one newspaper to use the press, type or rooms of another editor on the plea that it would be a great convenience to him and would enable him to benefit the public and his subscribers so much the better. What would be thought of such a permit?

What would be thought, Mr. Mayor and gentlemen of the Board, of a petition being brought in here and a hearing being given thereon, whereby a party at the North End or South End would demonstrate by a multitude of witnesses that it would be a very great convenience (that is the word used, I believe, in almost all our hearings) to his customers if he was allowed to use the store of Jordan, Marsh & Co., R. H. White & Co., Hovey & Co., or Hogg, Brown & Taylor, etc., in common, by paying his portion of rent? What would be thought of a petition from some of the other newspapers not so favorably located to occupy or use the rooms, presses and other necessities of the Transcript, Herald, Post, Journal, Traveller or Globe, on the ground that it would be a very great convenience to them and to their subscribers and the public, because competition was the life of everything and must redound to the public good? I am inclined to think that those papers would protest against it pretty heartily, and if we had the power and should grant the petition there would not be much left of this Board but the soles of our boots and the skeletons of what we had been; and all the sawdust and cold cabbage that we might partake of at junketings would not restore the necessary flesh on our ribs. Yet, gentlemen, absurd as this may seem, I am unable, as I have before said, to see, in principle, any great difference between one case and the other. I know people may say the railroads and horse railroads are chartered companies; have no bodies to be kicked or souls to be saved; that they are the creation of the public and have no rights that the public are bound to respect, etc.; but when a spirit of fairness is departed from in any case it will bring trouble, and it will return its evil fruits to embarrass the public as a whole, although it may be an imaginary convenience to some particular locality.

Alderman Thompson raised the point of order that Alderman Robinson was not speaking to any subject before the Board, and was not in order, which the Mayor ruled well taken.

Alderman Robinson said he was giving his views as a member of the Paving Committee, in order to get advice from the members of the Board.

Alderman O'Brien thought Alderman Robinson was in order, as he was speaking as chairman of the committee.

The Mayor ruled that the Alderman was not making a report, and was not speaking in behalf of the committee. The Alderman could proceed by general consent.

Alderman Fitzgerald raised the point that a personal explanation was always in order. The Alderman had stated that the committee had been unable to agree, and he wished to make a personal explanation.

Alderman Slade—The committee have not tried to agree.

Alderman Thompson—If we had resolved ourselves into a committee of the whole, the Alderman would be in order.

Alderman Robinson—The Alderman declines to proceed if he is out of order. I will simply state here, with all due respect to Mr. Slade, that we had some talks on the subject and I said he might state his views to the Board of Aldermen and I would state mine. I rose to make such a statement in hopes that we might get some information to enable us to report next week.

The Mayor—The Chair thinks the Alderman is in order if he rose for that purpose.

Alderman Robinson continued—

Now, Mr. Mayor and gentlemen, this very permission that was granted and the precedent established by former Boards has been injurious to the horse railroads themselves. It has created a spirit of emulation, or rather jealousy, between the different lines, that, to any calm and dispassionate mind, appears entirely useless, and no just reason can be assigned therefor except that neither of them wishes to be beaten. We all know, probably, the anecdote of the New Hampshire colonel in our late war, who, when apprized by a revival preacher that the work of grace was going on gloriously in another regiment a little distance off, and that nineteen had been baptised, commanded the orderly to detail twenty men at once to be baptised, for that he did not intend to have his regiment beaten at anything. Such, in spirit at least, it appears to me, are the motives that actuate the course of horse-railroad managers in interfering with the business of others rather than to follow their own routes, or with increasing business search out other routes which would be all their own, and would become, with proper management, perhaps, fully as valuable as the routes that had to be divided, shared with other lines. The public would soon fall into line with the arrangement, and peace and comfort between them all—that harbinger of the millennium—would soon exist.

By this application for routes, and permission to increase the number of cars, by their bringing in here clouds of witnesses and huge petitions setting forth the great convenience of frequent cars, people have been or are becoming educated to the actual belief in the necessity of having a car waiting for them at their own doorstep the very moment they open the door of the house. They are not content to ride in the vicinity or very near where they wish to go, but demand to be landed at the very spot; that their servants, even, will not be satisfied with waiting too long; that it is the obligation of the horse cars to accommodate them in every way they wish, whether the general public is injured thereby or not. Times have changed so much, it is said, that walking any distance or waiting any time for a car is entirely out of the question. If science admitted of it, the next thing would be to land them at their doors, across the sidewalk, by a machine impelled by compressed air, or some other motive power, that should shoot them over, as a very great convenience, especially in case of rain or snow on the sidewalk.

The cars went along quite regularly until Columbus avenue was added; those twenty-four cars per hour have done much mischief, and there is no necessity of so large a number. Six cars to each line would give a car every five minutes, if the managers of the two lines would act in concert, and the people on the avenue would be just as well accommodated as they are now. It should, however, be arranged that there should be five minutes between each car, and not two cars together every ten minutes. This requires the co-operation of the roads, and both would be benefited thereby.

As to rescinding the orders permitting the running over other tracks, it is out of the question now, probably, as things are; and it is, as in the case of the sick man, not so much matter how he became sick, but how to get him well. Therefore I will propose the best remedy for the present blockade obstructions I can think of, first giving the Board an idea how the cars now run.

There are now forty cars per hour that come from Park square to the corner of Boylston and Tremont streets—these, with the cars that come down Tremont street and those that come through Boylston street, say ninety-six cars per hour, increase the number of cars to 136 which pass along to the corner of Temple place. At Temple place, sixty-three cars per hour cross the inward track on Tremont street to the outward track, thus tending to block the track of 136 cars. Here is where the greatest blockade arises, as far as I can understand the matter of blockade.

There are 115 cars per hour passing through Temple place, sixty-three of which cross and pass down Tremont street and fifty-two pass up Tremont street, which, added to the 136 that come to Temple place, increase the whole number that pass to the burying ground to 188 cars per hour. A portion of these go back from there down Tremont street, others pass to the northern depots, etc. Of the forty cars that come to the corner of Tremont street and Boylston street, eight per hour go to the depots, eight return from the burying ground and twenty-four, including both lines of Columbus avenue cars, go round Cornhill.

There does not seem to be any delay by blocks, as a general thing, at the burying ground, the stoppage to change the horses of the cars that return barely suffices for the people to get out and in to the cars, and everything appears to be well managed.

This appears to be the situation of horse-car matters on Tremont street at this time, and to which other portions of the route pursued by the different lines appears to be incidental to, and how to remedy the block occasioned by the cars passing through Temple place, and crossing the 136 cars on Tremont street, would seem to be the most important of matters connected with the present obstruction of the streets.

Now, if the cars of the Middlesex company that run to the southern depots, and the South Boston that run to the northern, could turn down Milk street, and through Hawley street to Summer street, they would thus run parallel to Washington street, and that too on the nearest street to Washington, and emerge out of Hawley street in Summer street, near Hovey's store and the retail trade of that section of the city generally; from Hawley street down Summer street to Lincoln street and through Lincoln street to the depots would be a continuation of the route; from the depots up Beach, a slight turn on Washington, then through Boylston to Tremont, as now.

The Highland and Metropolitan might continue up Washington street to Summer street, down Summer to Chauncy street, through Chauncy to Essex; up Essex and through Boylston street to the corner of Tremont street — and back on Tremont street, or continue to Kneeland street — and through Eliot street home. This would, I think, remedy the blockade in a great measure on Tremont street, for it would save or relieve Temple place of about half the cars that pass through it, say fifty-two cars per hour—thirty-six cars of the Highland and sixteen of the Metropolitan—and the obstruction, a detention caused by the crossing of the inward track to the outward on Tremont street, at Temple place, would be avoided. The cars on Hawley and other streets would all be travelling one way, and it would seem, with proper care, that the present number of cars could be run without detriment to the public, who have an equal right to the streets with the horse cars.

There is another remedy which, if available, might be equally advantageous; that is, another track from Temple place on Washington street to Boylston street; but any one in looking at that street and considering that the whole retail trade seems to be tending to that locality, and that even now it is subject to blockade in consequence of its narrowness, the crowds of people that continually throng that spot and the number of carriages, express wagons, etc., that are constantly passing, render it inexpedient to advise putting a track down, although it would, as in the first case, relieve Temple place from the cars that now pass through it and turn down Tremont street on the home trips.

It is, moreover, possible, as far as the horse cars are concerned, to run a track through Devonshire to Milk street, but when it is taken into consideration that Devonshire street is crowded now, notwithstanding the dull state of business generally; when it is known that Devonshire street is the direct thoroughfare for the dry-goods wholesale trade of the city to the northern depot; when we consider that the wool of Federal street, the boots, shoes and leather of Pearl street, and the crockery, paper and all the heavy freight of Congress and the other streets of a wholesale nature, have to pass, if not through Devonshire, at least through that part of it from State street to Dock square, it would be the height of folly, it seems to me, to think of such a remedy for the horse-car blockage. Wholesale merchants, teamsters, express wagons, and citizens who come into town in carriages, have some rights to the streets, as well as that class of population that travel only in the horse cars, and this street should not be obstructed by any horse-car track. I understand that the Metropolitan Railroad petitioned for it at one time and the location was refused. If it were possible to pass through Merchants' row, that might aid matters by the market, but any person who will take the time to go to that spot and observe the enormous number of wagons of all descriptions,—the market cars and vehicles that are constantly standing and passing,—must come to the conclusion that that thoroughfare must not be further obstructed.

At our last meeting the Chairman of the Board called the attention of the Police Committee to the obstructions of the street at the northern depots. I find in looking over the ordinance that no person is allowed to stop a vehicle on the street more than five minutes, and this would seem to be a license for the cars to stop at the depots, if the crossings are left clear. Under the present ordinance that is all the police can do. In regard to conductors and drivers calling for passengers, I don't know that there is any ordinance that prevents them from telling strangers at the depots where the cars go. I have given this matter all the attention I could in the last four or five weeks, and if any member can suggest any better plan than I have I shall favor it.

DEDICATION OF SOLDIERS' MONUMENT.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I simply rise to a question of information. I want to ask the Committee on the Soldiers' Monument if a part of the programme for the dedication is to be a banquet? I have heard it stated that there was to be a banquet to which the members of the City Government and the various distinguished guests would be invited, and I would ask if that is a part of the programme of the proceedings on that day?

Alderman Thompson—The committee have not got along quite so far as that. The public have anticipated their action, but the committee have not considered that question at all. They have had to consider matters of more importance than any banquet. Whether or not there will be any banquet I am unable to say.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I merely asked for information. I hope it is n't so. I hope that a day devoted to the solemn ceremony of erecting a monument to the dead will not be ended by a grand banquet and jamboree. It would be inappropriate and not in accordance with the sentiment which should inspire those who take part in the celebration. I am very glad it is not so, so far; and I hope it will not be so.

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman Slade, and stood adjourned till Monday, Sept. 10.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen,

SEPTEMBER 10, 1877.

Regular meeting at four o'clock P. M., his Honor the Mayor presiding.

JURORS DRAWN.

Three petit jurors were drawn for the September term of the United States District Court.

EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENTS.

Sergeant of Police—Patrolman George Munroe. Referred to Committee on Police.

Superintendent of Intelligence Offices—Benjamin D. Burley. Confirmed.

Police Officers Without Pay—John F. Ham, Daniel Lyon, James Haynes, G. H. Hamilton, William F. Marston. Confirmed.

Lieutenant of Police—Sergeant Joseph H. Bates. Referred to Committee on Police.

Police Officers—Charles A. Moncrieff, Bernard Murray, Andrew Maguire, M. P. Daley, Edward F. Flannigan, William Burns. Referred to Committee on Police.

Constables—Francis M. Adams, Arthur F. Anderson, Richard F. Andrews, Ellery S. Ayer, James Ball, William S. Bangs, John R. Barry, Patrick Barry, *Phineas Bates, Francis J. Baxter, *Jacob T. Beers, Morrill P. Berry, William W. Blake, Charles S. Blood, Charles Booth, Charles A. Booth, Samuel Brackett, Frank B. Brown, Moses P. Brown, †Francis V. Bulfinch, Charles Burcham, Hiram A. Campbell, Samuel Canning, Jr., James M. Carter, Lemuel Clark, Joseph D. Coburn, *Chase Cole, †George W. Conant, William P. Cook, †Daniel B. Curtis, Samuel A. Cushing, H. R. Darling, †William G. Davies, †Isaac W. Derby, David M. R. Dow, Alvin S. Drew, George G. Drew, John A. Duggan, William E. Easterbrook, Caleb S. Emery, Ephraim W. Farr, Norman Farr, George W. Farr, Thomas Fee, Jr., *George M. Felch, †Thomas Folger, †Henry M. Forristall, William A. Fort, Elijah D. Foss, William T. Gardner, Sarell Gleason, James F. Goodwin, †Dennis J. Gorman, Augustus Grant, Thomas Hall, James G. Harrington, John C. Harrington, †Sylvester H. Hebard, †William L. Hicks, John M. Hodgate, †Solomon Hovey, Jr., Joseph Hubbard, Frederick P. Ingalls, Thomas A. Jackson, Isaac Jacobs, Charles P. Johnson, William K. Jones, Stephen P. Kelley, †Nathaniel P. Kemp, Henry P. Kennedy, †George P. Kingsley, Frederick P. Knapp, Russell R. Knapp, *Abraham, M. Leavitt, *James P. Leeds, Nicholas G. Lynch, †John MacConnell, †J. Stuart McCorry, Francis X. Macdonald, William D. Martin, John May, Charles A. McCaffrey, †William H. McIntosh, *Samuel McIntosh, *Edward F. Mecuen, †Benjamin Meriam, Michael Merrick, Jr., James Miskelly, Abel B. Munroe, George B. Munroe, Jotham E. Munroe, Samuel Nash, Alonzo F. Neale, Aaron F. Nettleton, John Newell, John B. O'Brien, George E. Orrok, Isaiah Paine, Jr., David Patterson, Alvah H. Peters, †Henry Prentiss, †J. Edward Priest, George B. Proctor, John D. Reed, †Augustus M. Rice, Edwin Rice, George Richardson, Frank T. Ricketson, *Hannibal F. Ripley, John Robie, William D. Rockwood, John Rogers, Franklin T. Rose, Joseph Rowe, Joseph R. Rowe, Burnham Royce, George H. Royce, William Sherburne, Charles Smith, Lebbeus W. Smith, Lorenzo Smith, Thomas M. Smith, †Edwin R. Smyth, Asa Southworth, Henry F. Spach, †Edwin P. Spinney, *Warren J. Stokes, George P. Stone, Barry Sullivan, †Denis A. Sullivan, *Jeremiah M. Swett, William H. Swift, Charles S. Tasker, Henry Taylor, †William C. Thomas, Charles E. Townsend, George W. Tucker, *Charles E. Turner, William G. Tyler, †Elbridge G. Wallis, Morris J. Walsh, Johnson Warren, William H. Warren, Jr., *Sumner P. White, †George R. Williams, Wright W. Williams, *Charles S. Wooffindale, †Abraham G. Wyman.

*Truant officers.

†Health Department.

‡Collector's deputies.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The appointment and confirmation of constables may appear a very simple matter to those who have never come under the thumbscrew of an officer of the law in executing civil process; but it is a very important appointment, and I hope that the members of the Board of Aldermen won't think it does n't amount to anything because we don't pay them a salary, and that the salary which they receive is simply the fees which they gather from the persons on whom they serve process. Now, we have here a list of constables which is about three times as large as it ought to be in the city of Boston. If that list is cut down about one-third, and the best men are selected from it, it will be a great service to the city, and I know it will be a great service to those on whom civil process is served. There are many constables—I am happy to say they are not all so; but there are a great many—who become constables for the purpose of enabling them to get hold of money which they could not get hold of save and except in their official capacity as constables. Lawyers know that very well. A few months ago an order was introduced into the City Council for the appointment of a committee to consider the passage of an ordinance limiting the number of constables in the city of Boston. It is very important to have the proper kind of men, who will know what their duty is and not overstep it; men who will not grind the poor and unfortunate, when they have the power of doing so, in the execution of civil process. I move, sir, that the confirmation of these constables be laid upon the table until such time as this committee whom we have appointed have time to report. I don't know whether any gentlemen here are on the committee, but I know that an order was introduced in the other branch for the passage of an ordinance limiting the number of constables in the city of Boston, and I move that this committee be requested to report as soon as possible.

The matter was laid upon the table.

PETITIONS REFERRED.

To the Joint Committee on Public Lands. Henry Harwell et al., for removal of conditions in deed of city to Abner Kingman, dated Jan. 17, 1863.

To the Joint Committee on Public Buildings. Mary W. Wightman, to be compensated for her right of dower in certain property held by the city and located on Common street, Charlestown.

To the Joint Committee on Claims. P. H. Roden, to be paid for personal injuries sustained by an alleged obstruction on Blackstone square; Thomas Coots, for compensation for damages received through an alleged defect in Main street, Charlestown.

To the Committee on Licenses. Robert E. Athorp, for the removal of certain horses and wagons from South Russell street, near Cambridge street.

To the Joint Committee on Common, etc. Charles E. Rice et al., that the city would purchase and lay out as a public square a lot of land in Brighton.

To the Committee on Common on the part of the Board. Marie E. Zakrzewska for the removal of some trees from sidewalk of estate 139 Cedar street, Roxbury.

To the Committee on Police. Faneuil Hall Temperance Reform Club, for leave to project a transparency in front of 21 Hanover street.

To the Committee on Sewers. George Glover et al., for a sewer in Linden street; William Donaldson, for extension of sewer in Maywood street; Thomas Heslam et al., for a sewer in Heath place; Michael W. Carroll et al., for a new sewer in Beacham street.

To the Joint Committee on Water. Jamieson & Aikens et al., representing that a quantity of freestone was used in constructing the gate house in Wellesley, in connection with the Sudbury River works; that they were desirous of making a tender for supplying the same, but the matter not being made public they were debarred from so doing; and they request an inquiry whether the Water Board were authorized to contract for said work without publicly advertising the same, and whether said work was done at the lowest market prices.

To the Joint Committee on Bathing. Harriet B. Preston, to be paid for lease of land on bathing-house lot, Commercial Point.

To the Committee on Lamps. Calvin R. Page, for lamps on Washington and Beach streets, Ward 23; N. B. Stevens et al., that Butler street, Ward 24, be lighted; Samuel Williams et al., that Clarence place be lighted; B. Rogee et al., that Leonard street, Ward 24, be lighted; W. G. Babcock, that Clark street, Dorchester, be lighted; A. Lobbiller et al., for street lamps in Terrace avenue, Ward 23.

To the Committee on Paving. Petitions for brick sidewalks in front of the estates of Hannah Downing, No. 200, and Ann Kelly, No. 202 H street; Abram Q. Wendell, Jr., No. 464, Ella F. Wendell, No. 462, and Martha Smith, No. 460 Meridian street; Charlestown Five Cents Savings Bank, 49 Stirling street; William Cheyne, northeast corner of H and Ninth streets. For edgestones in front of estates of Howard Clapp, Fifth street, corner Jay street; Timothy McCarthy, Everett street, corner Cottage street; Alden E. Whitmore, 610-614 Ninth street; H. B. Webster, corner Greenough avenue and Elm street, West Roxbury. For edgestones and brick sidewalks in front of estate of Delano & Little, 534 Fifth street.

Edwin Jones et al., that Union avenue, Ward 24, be graded and put in order; Albert Bowker et al., that Lewis street, easterly of Marginal street, be repaved with granite blocks; also that Webster street, between Orleans and Cottage streets, be macadamized; George H. Plummer et al., that Webster street, between Cottage and Orleans streets, be macadamized; Calvin Damon et al., that Decatur street, Ward 16, be put in order; William Farrell, that the assessment levied upon estate 101 Athens street for edgestones and sidewalks be abated; David F. Decatur for abatement of assessment for edgestones on Bickford street; Benjamin F. Bean et al., for edgestones on Woodward avenue; W. Elliott Woodward et al., that Woodward avenue be graded and macadamized.

M. Ellis & Co., for leave to move a wooden building from Bennington street, Ward 1, to Church street, Ward 1.

David W. Williams et al., for a cross walk on Blackstone street, at the New England House; William P. Hunt et al., that Bowdoin street be graded from Olney street to Bellevue street; Henry Bean et al., for crosswalks on Warren street and Blue Hill avenue, at Woodbine street; Margaret Coughlin, for abatement of edgestone tax; Lewis Mason and fifty-four others, for grading and repairing Adams and Richmond streets, at Lower Mills, Ward 24; William H. Jones et al., that Massasoit avenue be paved with asphalt.

Highland Railway Company, to be heard upon Alderman Fitzgerald's order in relation to street-car blockades; to rescind a part of the location granted March 19, 1877; for location of track on Eliot street, west of Tremont street.

To the Committee on Health on the part of the Board. Petitions for leave to occupy stables—By Bartholomew Hickey, new wooden, one horse, Downer street; Josiah H. Carter, old wooden, one cow and one horse, on street between Commercial street and Neponset avenue; Francis S. Balch, executor, old wooden, four additional horses, Centre street; A. F. Quigley, new wooden, three horses, New Seaver street; Metropolitan Railroad Company, old wooden, thirty additional horses, Dorchester avenue and Park street; L. H. Jones, new wooden, three horses, Pleasant street; Dennis Sullivan, old brick, twenty-five horses, 85 Cove street, in rear; A. Hutt, new wooden, one horse, Franklin street; John A. Allen, old wooden, one horse, rear 249 Eighth street; H. Boghard, old wooden, 464 Parker street; Charles E. Paige, old wooden, four horses, 612 Fifth street; Charles N. Rowell, old wooden, two additional horses, 69 Bower street, Ward 21; William Doulen, new wooden, one horse, Baker street, near Mt. Vernon street; George W. Tuxbury, new wooden, four horses, Clapp street.

HEARINGS ON ORDERS OF NOTICE.

Hearings were had on orders of notice as follows:

Sewers. On expediency of constructing sewers in Jenkins street and St. James avenue, no objections were made. Recommended to the Committee on Sewers.

Highland Railway Company. On petition of said company for leave to run a portion of their cars to the northern depots, Moody Merrill, President, appeared for the Highland Railway Company; C. A. Richards, President, and Hon. W. A. Field appeared for the Metropolitan road, and J. W. Emery for the Union Railroad of Cambridge.

Mr. Merrill explained the route proposed, which was designed to avoid any blockade at the depots, and which could be prevented if an officer was at the depot. He would put no more cars on the crowded part of the circuit. The line would start from Cornhill, go through Scollay square, Court street, Bowdoin square, Green, Leverett, and by a new track through Causeway street, by the depots, thence through Beverly street, returning by

New Washington street. He thought it no more than just to his company to be allowed to run a few cars to the depots; and the Metropolitan road could use this new track in Causeway street if they desired to avoid the blocks at the depots. Mr. Merrill then called his witnesses.

William Morse, residing near Mt. Pleasant, said it would be a great convenience to the residents of that vicinity and on Blue Hill avenue, to have the Highland cars run to the depots. [To Mr. Richards]—Thought it would be more handy to take a Highland car direct to the depot. [To Mr. Merrill]—The extra accommodation by the Metropolitan has been furnished only a short time.

Andrew McDonald, residing at the end of Blue Hill avenue, thought it would be a public benefit to have the Highland cars run to the depot; they had been a great benefit to the people there; no cars run from Blue Hill avenue to the depot.

C. F. Drury, living on Mt. Pleasant place, accorded with Mr. Morse and Mr. McDonald; heard the desire expressed every day.

Arthur Hodges, civil engineer, drew the plan of the proposed route and considered it feasible and practicable, so as to avoid blockades, and he had that in view in laying out. [To Mr. Emery]—Know nothing of the number of cars, etc., now running through Green street. [To Mr. Field]—Don't know how many cars now run through Court street; think about one in two minutes. [To Mr. Emery]—There are places in Green street where a carriage cannot pass a car on one side. [To Mr. Field]—Saw a car go through Court street from Sudbury to Revere House in three-quarters of a minute; should say it is between 400 and 500 feet.

George H. Munroe, residing on Walnut avenue, said there is a general desire for the Highland cars to run to the depots; his family share in that general desire. Fully five-sixths of the neighborhood prefer to ride in the Highland cars. Mr. Munroe gave a resumé of the events which led to the formation of the Highland road, which grew out of the lack of accommodations furnished by the Metropolitan; and the result was greater accommodations even by the Metropolitan than the people had asked for. They enjoy the luxuries of horse-car travel, and they are loyal to and desire on principle to patronize the Highland road. They do not see why they can not have the privilege of going to the depots on their favorite road.

The petitioners here rested their case.

Alderman Clark in the chair.

Mr. Field then proceeded to make the argument for the Metropolitan Railroad in opposition to the granting of the petition. All the facts were well known to the Board, and he would not introduce any testimony, but merely call their attention to a few general principles. The Board have had occasion to study this question during the year, and the members are perhaps better acquainted with the subject than any other twelve men in the city of Boston. He reviewed the acts of the Legislature by which the Highland Railroad was chartered, and by which its subsequent locations were obtained, and the effect of the general railroad law, and said the question before the Board was whether public necessity and convenience required the granting of this petition. There are always two questions involved in such a petition—first, does public necessity require any additional accommodation along the route expressed in the petition? second, if public necessity does require the additional accommodation, what corporation should furnish that additional accommodation? The first is essentially a judicial, and the second a legislative question. If it is determined that public necessity requires the accommodation, then the question comes, shall it be done by the old corporation, who have done the business for fifteen years, or shall it be given to another corporation chartered for another purpose? The petition is deficient in that it asks for no power to run over the tracks of the Cambridge Railroad, and the petition will have to be amended in order to carry out the scheme. The question of public necessity before the Board is substantially the same as in regard to the laying out of highways, which are not laid out for the benefit of the inhabitants along the route, but for the benefit of the whole city, and the same moral necessity must be found before this petition is granted. It has not been shown that the Metropolitan Railroad does not run enough cars to accommodate the people at the Highlands who desire to go to the depots. It has merely been shown that it hurts the feelings of some of the residents of the Highlands to ride in the Metropolitan cars. The board do not deal with feelings and sentiments, but they are to consider what, under the circumstances, is a good and reasonable accommodation for the citizens of Boston. Mr. Field gave a brief history of the origin of the Metropolitan road, and the purpose for which it was organized, and its consolidation with the Suffolk road, and of the business which has grown up in the past fifteen years of transporting passengers to and from the depots. About nineteen-twentieths of the people who take the cars at the depots leave them before they reach Boylston street, and generally the people who take the cars for the depots take them north of Boylston street. This business is entirely independent of the conception of the charter of the Highland road. It is in some respects a profitable business, and the Highland Company want a part of it, and that is the main groundwork of their petition. No marked public necessity is shown for it, as was perhaps the case when the Highland Company was organized. It is not pretended that the Metropolitan does not furnish good cars; it is only pretended that certain people prefer to ride in the Highland cars rather than the Metropolitan. They only say they want it, and that their patrons desire it. Mr. Field then gave some statistics of the number of cars now run by the Metropolitan road to the northern depots, substantially as follows:

By way of New Washington street, from 7 A. M. to 7 P. M.—From the Norfolk House, 91 round trips, or 182 single trips; from Lenox street, 24 round trips, or 48 single trips; from Columbus avenue, 24 round trips, or 48; from Tremont-street Crossing, 25 round trips, or 50—in all 164 round, and 328 single trips, in twelve hours.

Through Court street—From Warren street, (where the Highland cars will come from) 70 round trips, or 140; Boston Neck line, down Washington street, 16 round trips, or 32; from Lenox street, down Tremont street, 25 round trips, or 50—in all 111 round trips, or 222 single trips.

This makes in all 550 trips in 12 hours.

In addition to that there are 70 round, or 140 single trips of the West End cars through Charles, Cambridge and Court streets, and back to Lenox street by way of Washington street.

All these Court-street cars pass over the single track 470 feet long, in a street 22 feet wide, crowded with travel—326 trips, or a car every two minutes.

Mr. Field next showed the number of passengers carried to and from the depots, stating frankly that he believed more accommodation is furnished than is required. The numbers were taken on Saturday, Sept. 8, from 7 A. M. to 7 P. M.

Number of passengers who got in at the northern depots to come up into the city—In Metropolitan cars 1370 passengers took 170 cars, about 8 to a car; and 657 passengers took 144 South Boston cars, or between 4 and 5 to each.

Passengers to depots—On 275 Metropolitan trips there were 1607 passengers; and 548 on 144 South Boston trips. This shows the accommodation greater than is needed.

The law gave every one a right to a transfer check over another road, and recently the Metropolitan established a system of checks over their own lines for one cent additional.

Mr. Field contended that the Board had no right to undertake to apportion the cars upon any proposition of equity when no public necessity demands it, and it is an abuse of power to attempt it. One of three theories must be adopted: If they let every road run ad libitum over any tracks, the result would be more cars than are necessary, and finally consolidation into a giant corporation controlling all the tracks. They might permit a road to select its location where there is a good business, and where they will not be obliged to run any cars at a loss; and such a system would ruin the old companies and discourage the investment of capital in horse railroads. The third system is the one established by law—that a road takes a route with certain limits, and should be held to do the business within those limits, and be protected therein. The Board are not bound to furnish a public exigency for any one; it is not their office to furnish business for any man or his capital. In conclusion, Mr. Field discussed the question of compensation, which he claimed was wholly inadequate to the loss of business.

In reply to questions by Alderman Fitzgerald, Mr. Richards said his road are not now running any more cars on the circuit than before the Columbus-avenue route was established, except the addition of that line.

Mr. Emery, president of the Union Railway Company, alluded to the crowded state of Green and Court streets, as has been before shown, and the Union Railroad, bringing in and taking out 10,000 people, would be greatly inconvenienced if any more cars are allowed. For this reason he objected. He repeated the statistics presented at a previous hearing, showing the crowded state of Green and Court streets. He claimed that the term public necessity included every one using a street, and their wants should be considered. He had declined to press the petition to run the East Cambridge cars farther into the city, because of the crowded condition of Court street. If any more cars are to be allowed in Court street, the Union road should have the preference rather than a new corporation. He produced figures to show that there is more accommodation furnished there now than is required.

E. W. James said they had a coach in Green street every 2½ minutes, and if the Highland road is allowed to come there, he hoped the Board would order off a few of the Cambridge or Metropolitan cars, or else make the Highland cars go through North Charles street, which they could do in much shorter time than through Court and Green streets.

In closing the case, Mr. Merrill called a few more witnesses.

Ashabel Earl testified that, as a police officer, he patrolled Court street, between Sudbury and Green, for seven years; that there were no blocks there since the opening of New Washington street, which proved a great relief to Court street.

Policeman Perry, whose beat takes in Court street, said he had not lately noticed any blocks there. The cars average about forty-five seconds in going from Sudbury street to Bowdoin street.

Police Sergeant Eastman said he was around Court and Green streets a great deal and had never noticed any blocks.

Policeman Foster, whose beat is in the vicinity of the northern depots, thought there would be no trouble about blocks if the cars did not stop except to let a passenger in or out. [To Alderman Burnham]—Had known cars to wait five and seven minutes; one car will get in and wait till nine cars are on the track between the Lowell depot and the Boston & Maine track. This has been more since the South Boston cars went there. [To Alderman Robinson]—They used to stop on the crossing, but not now. [To Alderman Fitzgerald]—They stop longer now than formerly. [To Mr. Field]—Never see over two or three cars filled by the Eastern morning trains. [To Mr. Richards]—Think there is more holding of the cars at the depots than before the South Boston cars went there. [To Mr. Merrill]—If the cars were kept moving, there would not be more trouble than elsewhere. [To Alderman Fitzgerald]—There is a great deal of effort by drivers, conductors and starters to get passengers on the cars. Think the Metropolitan road runs more cars to the depots than before the South Boston cars went there.

To Alderman Fitzgerald Mr. Merrill said his company run four less cars on the circuit now than before the Columbus-avenue route was opened; when the avenue line was opened they took four cars off the circuit.

Mr. Powers, president of the Middlesex road, said he ran no more cars on the circuit than before.

Mr. Richards said to Alderman Fitzgerald that the Metropolitan ran no more cars on the circuit than before.

In closing the hearing Mr. Merrill said they had petitioned for this location in part for the purpose of completely remedying the blockade at the northern depots, and it will partly remedy the block on the circuit. He fully accorded with the argument of Mr. Field, but when the Metropolitan was allowed to run to the depots, the Alderman reserved the right to allow other companies to run over the same tracks. The Metropolitan got its right to run to the northern depots by making a fight with the Suffolk company, getting the location, and compelling them to sell out. The Highland wanted this location, to enter into a fair competition with the Metropolitan, which has earned more since the establishment of the Highland than it ever did before, for the conductors do not make such large dividends. The Board should equalize the travel on the circuit and on the tracks leading to the depots; and the whole thing can be equitably arranged satisfactory to the public. They intend to run by the depots, stopping only to take in and let out passengers, and return by Beverly and New Washington streets.

Alderman Fitzgerald called Mr. Paige, Superintendent of Wagons, who has occasion to watch the wagons and cars; had noticed an increase of the blocks within two or three months. There is considerable competition on Causeway atreet, and he had seen one car hold a whole line of cars for several minutes. The only way to prevent the block is to have less cars. People often want the first car in a line. There are more cars on Tremont street than there were three months ago. If the cars could turn out on Tremont street and the horses turn the other way, it would cause a great relief. [To Alderman Clark]—Think that if the limit of thirty feet apart was observed, there would be a greater relief. [To Alderman Thompson]—A double track to Scollay square, and the shifting take place there, would be a great relief. [To Alderman Robinson]—One trouble is the running on time; the starter holds a car till the time for starting comes.

Rufus C. Marsh, Superintendent of Hacks, said he had noticed the blocks, and thought the turning at the burial ground and the crossing at Temple place are among the chief causes of the blockades on Tremont street. Do not think cars should stop at a depot to wait for a train to come in.

The subject was recommitted to the Committee on Paving.

REPORTS OF CITY OFFICERS.

Fires and Alarms. The report of the Fire Commissioners of fires and alarms in August was received. Sent down.

Auditor's Exhibit of the appropriations on Sept. 1, sent down.

DEPUTY SEALERS OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

The Chairman submitted an order—That the Auditor or Accounts be and he hereby is authorized to transfer from the Reserved Fund the sum of $1400 to the appropriation for Sealer of Weights and Measures, for the purpose of paying during the present financial year the salaries of the Deputy Sealers of Weights and Measures as established by an order of the City Council, approved Aug. 13, 1877.

In reply to a question by Alderman Slade, the Chairman said the order came from the Auditor and was necessary to enable him to pay the deputies' salaries.

The order was read twice and passed—yeas 11, nays 0. Sent down.

POLICE.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Police:

Report that Andrew L. Johnson have leave to project a lantern at 212 Friend street. Accepted.

Report on the Executive appointments of Aug. 27, recommending the confirmation of the appointments of Owen T. Winn to be a lieutenant of police, and James J. Kane to be a police officer; and that the appointment of Joseph Givens to be a police officer be rejected.

Alderman Fitzgerald desired to know the cause of the rejection, having no doubt it was all right, but believing it should be stated, the same as reasons for other committee decisions are stated; and then a man rejected for physical disability would not be subjected to any moral stigma.

Alderman Robinson said the policy of the committee had been to do no one any harm where they could do no good. The individuals know all about it, and there was no necessity for the public knowing it. This person was rejected because he could not obtain the doctor's certificate of his physical ability.

Alderman Fitzgerald said the only reason for making it public was that the good might suffer with the bad.

Alderman Thompson thought the committee were right in not making the cause known; for any member could see the testimony.

To a question by Alderman O'Brien, Alderman Robinson said most of the candidates were rejected for physical disability, and Alderman O'Brien said that was generally understood.

Alderman Robinson said there had been other reasons, but he never wanted to injure any one by telling them.

The report was accepted, and the appointments confirmed and rejected as recommended.

PAVING REPORTS AND ORDERS.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Paving:

Reports that leave to move wooden buildings be granted to John Quirk, Ezra Abbott, Cornelius Cotter, (two buildings each.) Accepted.

Report of leave to withdraw on petition of Michael Moley for leave to move wooden building from North Harvard to Cambridge. Accepted.

Reports of leave to withdraw on petitions of George Dennie et al., that stone crosswalks be laid on Columbus avenue; South Boston Railroad Company et al., for a crosswalk on Broadway at I street; Hiram Ames et al., that the Ferdinand-street Bridge be widened and rebuilt.

Report in favor of granting petition of John M. B. Reynolds et al., that crosswalks be laid at junction of Mount Pleasant avenue with Vine and Fairland streets. Accepted.

Order to repair the bridge on Albany street over the Boston & Albany Railroad; estimated cost, $500. Read twice and passed.

Reports and orders for edgestones in front of estate of First Congregational Society of West Roxbury, on Centre street; and for edgestones and brick sidewalks in front of estates of Frances V. Barlow, 7 Claremont park, and Frances V. Miller, 11 Claremont park. Orders read twice and passed.

Schedules of the cost of sidewalks on Sherman, Akron, P and Washington streets, with orders for assessment and collection of the same. Orders read twice and passed.

SUPERINTENDENT OF PRINTING.

Alderman O'Brien submitted the following: The Joint Standing Committee on Printing respectfully represent that a vacancy exists in the office of Superintendent of Printing, and that the ordinance in relation to the department does not provide for filling the vacancy. The committee submitted the following questions to the City Solicitor:

1. Whether or not the existing ordinance in relation to the appointment of a Superintendent of Printing provides for the appointment of a Superintendent after the expiration of the first term?

2. The term of office of the Superintendent of Printing having expired, is it not necessary that the ordinance should be amended before the vacancy can be filled?

The committee received the following answer: "In my opinion the ordinance provides for one term only, and that the ordinance should be amended so as to authorize subsequent appointments before the office can be filled.

J. P. HEALY."

The committee therefore recommend the passage of an order—That the Committee on Ordinances be requested to report an ordinance providing for the appointment of a Superintendent of Printing.

Order read twice and passed. Sent down.

PUBLIC LANDS.

Alderman O'Brien submitted the following from the Joint Committee on Public Lands:

Order to declare forfeited to the city for non-payment and breach of conditions of sale the lot sold to Burrill & Whitney on June 15, 1869, situated on East Third street and in the rear of the street, and to cancel bond No. 2318 given for the same. Severally read twice and passed.

NORTHAMPTON-STREET DISTRICT.

Alderman O'Brien submitted the following:

The Joint Standing Committee on Public Lands respectfully represent that by an order of the City Council, and approved by his Honor the Mayor June 1, 1877, the sum of $16,451.90 was appropriated to pay Joseph H. Hunneman and others for land surrendered by them and taken by the city in the Northampton-street district (so called). Since that time it has been found that said Hunneman cannot give a good title to a portion of the premises surrendered by them; they have therefore requested the committee to deduct this portion, which contains 2030 8-10 square feet, and to negotiate a new settlement for the remainder on the same basis as the former settlement. The committee have, therefore, agreed to pay them for the remainder of the land, which contains about 7417 2-10 square feet, the sum of $13,409.25, and we recommend the passage of the following order:

Ordered, That the order passed by the City Council, approved by his Honor the Mayor June 1, 1877, to pay Joseph H. Hunneman and others the sum of $16,451.90, in full settlement for the estates surrendered by them on the Northampton-street district (so-called), be and the same is hereby rescinded.

Ordered, That there be paid to Joseph H. Hunneman and others, the sum of $13,409.25, in full settlement for an estate containing 7417 2-10 square feet, situated on Hunneman street, on the Northampton-street District (so-called), being a part of the estate surrendered by them to the city of Boston, upon their giving a deed and release of the same satisfactory to the City Solicitor, and an acquittance and discharge for all damages, costs and expenses connected with said surrender; said amount to be charged to the appropriation for the Northampton-street District.

Ordered, That his Honor the Mayor be and he hereby is authorized to execute a release for a nominal consideration to Joseph H. Hunneman and others of a parcel of land situated on Plymouth court, containing 2030 8-10 square feet—being a part of the estate surrendered by them and taken by the city of Boston by an instrument, a copy of which is recorded with Suffolk Deeds, lib. 1356, fol. 90—said parcel being shown on a plan made by Thomas W. Davis, City Surveyor, dated Sept. 1, 1877, and deposited in the office of said City Surveyor.

Alderman Bnrnham—Is the sum named in the order greater or less than the assessed value of the land?

Alderman O'Brien—A month or so ago we passed an order paying Mr. Hunneman a certain sum for land on the Northampton-street district. The arrangement made with Mr. Hunneman was this: The committee selected by the Committee on Northampton-street District, fixed a price for the land. The assessed valuation was also taken at the time the city took possession, and we split the difference. The price was less than the assessed valuation, and rather more than the valuation put upon it by the referees. This arrangement fell through because Mr. Hunneman could not give a perfect title. We now deduct the property to which he could not give a perfect title and pay him on the same basis. The whole matter has been carefully gone into by the committee.

Alderman Thompson—Are the sums named in this order the same as in the original order to pay Mr. Hunneman?

Alderman O'Brien—They are the same, only the amount is reduced by giving him the land for which he cannot give a title. The city is relieved from taking the portion omitted, so that there is a gain, no matter which way you look at it.

The orders were read twice and passed. Sent down.

LICENSES.

Alderman Dnnbar submitted reports from the Committee on Licenses, as follows:

Hack License Revoked—John F. Nagle, 635 Washington street.

Passenger Wagon Licensed—J. H. Marshall, to run from Winthrop Junction, through Saratoga and Meridian streets, to South Ferry.

Auctioneers Licensed—W. K. Ritchie & Co., 37 Roxbury street.

Wagon Licenses Granted—William H. Ransom, 29 Pleasant street; Daniel Sullivan, Jr., Oliver street, near Milk; Josiah C. Merriam, 110 Chambers street; Robert H. Smith, 383 Atlantic avenue; John McDonald, Highland express; K. A. Livermore, 382-4 Atlantic avenue; E. H. Cummings, 215 State and 42 Oliver street.

Severally accepted.

SEWERS.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Sewers:

Reports and orders of notice for hearing on Monday, Sept. 24, at four o'clock P. M., on expediency of constructing sewers in Rockland street, between Wakulla and Dale streets; in land of Morrill et al., from Blue Hill avenue to Warren street; in Warren street, between land of Samnel Little and Crawford street, and in Crawford street; in Jenkins street, near Dorchester street; in Dorchester street, between Tnckerman street and the Old Colony Railroad Company, and through private land at the foot of Jenkins street to Vinton street. Also for hearing at the same time on expediency of taking land of George V. Woodman for sewer purposes. Severally passed.

Order to take land of Old Colony Railroad Company et al. in Jenkins street for sewer purposes. Read twice and passed.

Ordered, That the assessment for a sewer on Fairfield street, confirmed by the Board of Aldermen on Feb. 8, 1875, be declared null and void, the same being, in the opinion of the City Solicitor, not collectable by law. Read twice and passed.

Report that no action is necessary on petition of Richard Swallow for sewer in Commercial street, Ward 24. Accepted.

Ordered, That the Superintendent of Sewers be hereby directed to rebuild the sewer on Canal street between Causeway and Travers streets, and in Haymarket square.

STABLES.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Health on the part of the Board:

Reports that leave be granted, on the usual conditions, to occupy stables by Highland Railroad Company on Blue Hill avenue; estate of William Seaver, on Moreland place, Ward 23; Jenness & Glover, rear of Mather street; David Scott, 16 East Eagle street. Severally accepted.

Reports of leave to withdraw on petitions for leave to occupy stables by Peter Garvin, corner Winter and Church streets; L. F. Pollard, 317 West Third street; Thomas Igo, Greenwich street; Sheppard & Chester, Washington street, Ward 23; James Galvin, 37 Bolton street, Ward 23; Edward Murphy, Greenwich street, Ward 24; George W. Park, Olive place, Ward 17; Phineas B. Smith, 42 Marcella street; Jacob Bancroft, 82 Cabot street, Ward 19; Metropolitan Railroad Company, School street, near Washington street, Ward 23; M. Farll, Chelsea street, Ward 3. Severally accepted.

Report on petition of Metropolitan Railroad Company for leave to keep 120 horses at 927 and 957 Tremont street—That leave be granted on condition that the windows on southwesterly side shall be closed up with solid brick, and the doors on Tremont street to be kept closed (other than those in continued use) and the stable to be thoroughly ventilated to the satisfaction of the Committee on Health and Superintendent thereof. Accepted.

LYING-IN HOSPITAL.

Alderman Viles submitted a report from the Committee on Health on the part of the Board of leave to withdraw on petition of Mrs. S. W. Jones for a hearing in relation to her petition for lying-in hospital at 80 Dover street. Alderman Viles explained that last fall the Board of Health unanimously gave her leave to withdraw; she then petitioned for license for hospital for invalids, but admitted that she intended to accommodate women in labor, and she was given leave to withdraw. Last week she had a full hearing and the committee are of the same mind. The matter properly belongs to the Board of Health. The report was accepted.

MANUFACTURE OF FIREWORKS.

Alderman Bnrnham submitted a report from the Committee on Fire Department on the part of the board—That leave be granted A. D. Williams to erect a frame building on the southerly side of Swett street for the manufacture of fireworks, provided the proposed building be situated 100 feet from any other structure. Accepted.

THE WATER WORKS.

Alderman Thompson submitted the following: The Joint Standing Committee on Water, to whom was referred the communication of the Boston Water Board asking for an appropriation of $20,000 for an additional pumping engine at the station on Elmwood street, and an appropriation of $27,000 for a second line of force main pipe for the Mystic Water Works, having considered these subjects would respectfully recommend that both appropriations be granted.

The committee would call the attention of the City Council to the recommendations of the Water Board and the City Engineer in relation to these two objects submitted in the report of the Boston Water Board for the present year.

The City Engineer says, "It will be noticed that the average consumption has increased largely. The consumption in the cold months, when large quantities are wasted to prevent the service-pipes from freezing, is considerably above the average, and at such times it has required the full safe capacity of one pump to keep up the supply during the past winter. To maintain a full supply during the coming winter it is essential that both machines should be in good working order, and safe from serious accidents. The valve chests of the pumps have for some time been considered rather weak for the service required of them, and, recently, one has cracked—not to an extent to throw it altogether out of use, but sufficiently to weaken it materially. The damage can be repaired at a moderate cost by substituting a new valve chest for the broken one; but the most complete, and by far the most satisfactory, remedy is to add a third engine of a capacity of about 3,000,000 gallons per day. The estimated cost of such an engine, with a new boiler and the alterations in the buildings that must be made to accommodate them, is $20,000. I would therefore recommend that a third engine of a capacity of 3,000,000 gallons and a new boiler be purchased and erected this season."

In relation to a second line of force main pipe for the Mystic Water Works the Water Board say, "Particulars in relation to the improvements made [Mystic Works] will be found in the report of the Superintendent. In addition to these changes the Mystic Water Board called attention specially to the need of a second line of force main pipe, and an enlargement of the gate house at the pipe chamber on Mystic River. The remark in their report that with the large quantity of water now required to be pumped into the reservoir it does not seem to be well to rely upon a single line of force main pipe has so much meaning in it that this board seem called upon to make a positive recommendation that a special appropriation for a new force main be made by the City Council this season. The estimated cost is $27,000."

Your committee fully indorse the foregoing recommendations, and would recommend the passage of the following orders:

Ordered, That the Boston Water Board be authorized to expend a sum not exceeding twenty thousand dollars for an additional pumping engine at the pumping station on Elmwood street, connected with the high-service department of the Cochituate Water Works; and that the Committee on Finance be requested to provide the means.

Ordered, That the Boston Water Board be authorized to expend a sum not exceeding twenty-seven thousand dollars in constructing a second line of force main-pipe for the Mystic Water Works; and that the Committee on Finance be requested to provide the means.

Severally read twice and passed. Sent down.

STREET DAMAGES.

Alderman Thompson submitted the following from the Committee on Streets on the part of the Board:

Orders to pay William H. Quigley $158.50 for his undivided interest in land taken by the widening of Beach street, and to rescind an order of June 1, 1875, to pay him $594 for said land, etc. Read twice and passed.

THE CELEBRATION ON THE SEVENTEENTH.

Alderman Robinson, from the Committee on Police, offered an order—That the Chief of Police be directed to close against the passage of street cars and other vehicles the streets through which the procession will pass on the 17th instant during the progress of said procession. Read twice and passed.

Alderman Slade offered an order—That Faneuil Hall Market be closed at and after nine o'clock A. M. on Monday, the 17th instant. Read twice and passed.

Alderman Thompson offered an order—That on Monday, the 17th of September, the several departments of the City Government, with the exception of the Fire and Police departments, be closed, and that the employes be allowed a general holiday without loss of pay. Read twice and passed.

On motion of Alderman Thompson it was ordered—That when this Board adjourn it be till Monday, Sept. 24, at four o'clock P. M., and that all orders of notice returnable on Tuesday, Sept. 18, be postponed till Sept. 24.

BRIDGES.

Alderman Thompson submitted the following from the Committee on Bridges:

Orders authorizing said committee to replank the draw and repair the sidewalk of Mt. Washington avenue Bridge at not exceeding $1200 expense; to rebuild Neponset Bridge at not exceeding $19,000; to be charged to the special appropriation therefor. Severally read twice and passed.

INSPECTION OF LIME.

Alderman Fitzgerald presented the following: To the Honorable the City Council of the City of Boston—The undersigned dealers in lime in said Boston respectfully represent that Daniel Higgins, one of the inspectors of lime in said Boston, has seized and libelled large quantities of lime in the possession of dealers in said city for an alleged violation of law, in that the casks containing said lime do not strictly conform in size, number of hoops, etc., to the requirements of the statute of this Commonwealth. And said Higgins threatens that he will seize and libel all the lime contained in such casks wherever found within the limits of said city. And your petitioners represent that since they have been engaged in the business they have bought and sold lime of good quality, and in casks and quantities satisfactory to consumers. That most of said lime comes from without this Commonwealth, and the casks and quantities contained therein conform to the laws of the respective States where the same are manufactured, which laws differ slightly from the requirements of the statute of this State relating to lime. That during all these years no inspection of lime has been demanded by any one interested in buying or selling lime, and none is required or requested now. That it is impossible for your petitioners to obtain, during the current year, the quantity of lime needed in the Boston market, in packages of the exact size required by the Massachusetts statute, and that the casks which they can obtain lime in are in size, capacity and strength satisfactory to purchasers and sellers, as well as safe and convenient. That it would be a serious public injury and great oppression to permit prosecutions and seizures by said Inspector according to the strict letter of the law. That your petitioners have requested said Inspector to suspend prosecutions and seizures until the assembling of the next General Court, in order that the amendments suggested by the experience of years may be made to the present statutes in respect to the size of casks, etc., but said Higgins refused to do so, and declares that he will prosecute every dealer in Boston; that said Higgins is not a proper person to fill said office, that he is oppressive, unreasonable and actuated by greed of gain rather than a desire to promote the public welfare. Whereof they pray that your honorable bodies will remove said Higgins from said office.

COBB LIME COMPANY,
D. H. INGRAHAM, Agt.
J. S. HOBBS & Co.
D. ROBY & Co.
H. B. EMERSON.
HENRY CRAFT'S SONS.
GEO. CURTIS.

And ten others.

Alderman Thompson—This seems to be a little violation of law which requires some whitewashing, and I move the petition be referred to the Committee on Licenses.

Alderman O'Brien—We ought to take more immediate action. This Board will probably adjourn for two weeks, and this man can do a great deal of mischief in the meantime. All the lime used by builders in Boston comes from the State of Maine, and in nearly every building contract it is specified that this kind of lime shall be used. Our statutes were originally the same as those of Maine; but they have been experimenting in barrels. It is difficult to handle and ship lime, and the size of the barrel now made for lime is exactly the size in which lime will keep the best. It is apt to become damaged in a larger barrel. Our builders and dealers in lime all feel that building operations may be suspended if the gentleman is allowed to go on as he is now doing. An order suggested itself to me as the proper one, and—

Alderman Thompson—I withdraw the motion.

Alderman O'Brien offered an order—That Daniel Higgins be and he is hereby removed from office for cause satisfactory to the City Council.

Alderman O'Brien—If we pass such an order as that, this matter can be settled this week.

Alderman Wilder—The facts in relation to handling lime have been properly stated; but I want to ask if it is n't rather a summary way of treating a culprit—to grant the prayer of the petitioners without giving the delinquent an opportunity to say a word? If the petitioners state facts, and the man is an obstruction to business, the passage of the order would be proper; but I am not prepared to vote for it now. Instead of passing the order, I hope a special committee will be appointed to permit this man to tell his side of the story, and that they will recommend what is the proper action. I don't believe it is right to deal with this man upon the first intimation of his guilt, giving him not the slightest opportunity to defend himself. The petition looks all right, but I cannot vote for the order now.

Alderman O'Brien—It is well known that a hearing has been had in City Hall in relation to this matter. Mr. Higgins was requested to suspend operations by the Mayor, and he agreed to do so for the time being. But he resumed operations the very next day, and why? Because every barrel he seizes is forfeited to him and to the attorney who is putting him up to this business. If he is allowed to go on, it may stop building. After he had agreed with the Mayor to suspend operations, as I understand, he commenced work in precisely the same way and seized a cask of lime; and he has done the same thing today. The longer you delay, the more lime he will seize, because he is strictly within the statute. The sooner you put an end to his work, the better it will be for the city.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The case, as stated by the petitioners, is, that we have appointed an Inspector of Lime whose business it is to see that the statutory regulations with regard to barrelling lime, and the making of the barrels,—especially when it comes from the State of Maine—shall be in a certain way; that the casks or barrels shall be of a certain size, and with a certain number of hoops; and that this man, in the exercise of his functions as Inspector of Lime, performs the duty which the statute prescribes he shall do. And because he does do it, we are going to discharge him. I am not going to put myself in such a position as that. The statute reads—

“Each city and town in which lime is manufactured, or into which it is imported, may, annually, choose one or more inspectors of lime, who shall be sworn, and shall inspect all lime manufactured in such place at the time when it is filled at the kiln, and all lime imported or sold therein.

“Every cask of lime so inspected shall be branded with the word inspected, with the first letter of the Christian name and the whole of the surname of the inspector, and with the name of the place where it is manufactured.

“The inspectors shall receive for the inspection and branding of each cask of such manufactured lime, four cents, to be paid by the manufacturer or owner; and for the inspection of each cask of lime so imported or sold, the same sum, to be paid by the purchaser.

“No stone lime manufactured within this State shall be sold or exposed to sale, or shipped on board of a vessel in casks, unless it is well burnt and pure, in good and sufficient new casks, containing either fifty or 100 gallons each, made of well seasoned heads and staves, with ten good and sufficient hoops on each cask, well driven and sufficiently secured with nails or pins.

“When an inspection is demanded of lime manufactured in and imported from the State of Maine, the inspector shall require that such lime be in casks manufactured from sound and well-seasoned lumber, with at least ten good hoops, well driven and secured upon each cask; the staves of the cask shall be thirty inches in length, and not less than half an inch in thickness; the heads shall be not less than three-fourths of an inch in thickness, and shall be well crozed in; each cask to be not less than twenty-six and one-half inches between the heads, and seventeen inches between the chimes, with a good and suitable bilge, and made in a workmanlike manner; and the same rules, regulations, restrictions and liabilities, except as to the size of the cask, shall apply to lime imported from the State of Maine as are provided respecting lime manufactured in this State.”

The petitioners say the Inspector of Lime has never performed his duty for the last ten or twenty years, and therefore because this man has performed his duty we shall discharge him. I have no doubt this man is acting officiously, and doing what men who want lime cannot have done at present. I have no doubt the statute can be changed to conform to that of the State of Maine, and that if this board requests the Inspector to cease his enforcement of the law,—that is what it is,—he will do it. If he does not, then he should be removed from his office. But I shall not say, We will discharge you because you have confiscated lime, which has never been done before. I sympathize with the gentlemen who put in this petition, but I shall not consent to the summary dismissal of this man until we have some official announcement of what he has done. I think he must be given a hint to allow violation of the law for six months.

Alderman Wilder—While I still shall hesitate to vote for the order, I should be happy to have an expression from this Board in the form of a resolution or request, unless the Alderman can give us further light upon this hearing. If the Alderman can assure us that the Inspector promised to cease annoying dealers, but continued his operations, then I am willing to vote for the order.

Alderman O'Brien—There was a hearing last Friday before the Mayor on this matter, and I understood the Mayor to say he requested the Inspector to suspend matters until things could be arranged, and the Mayor understood that he would suspend seizing lime; but the very next day he commenced work again, and today he has been out seizing every barrel of lime he can find; and I believe he has a right to do it, and the only way to deal with him is to dismiss him. The Inspector of Lime is about as useful as the fifth wheel to the coach. Every builder knows what lime he needs, and seven-eighths of the lime consumed in this vicinity comes from Maine. Every builder knows what lime he buys, and which is Maine-inspected lime. I believe he has acted officiously and ought to be dismissed. If we enforced all the statutes to the letter—such as removing all bay windows and smoking in the streets—we would be in a queer fix.

Alderman Robinson—I saw a paragraph in the daily papers about Mr. Higgins, but I understood the Mayor to say he had nothing to do about it, and he thought the casks ought not to be seized. It seems to me the best course would be a special committee of this Board to take this matter into consideration and give good reasons. I therefore move that it be left with a committee of three of this Board.

Alderman O'Brien—A committee of this Board will have no power to regulate it.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I have no doubt this man is acting officiously, but the argument of the Alderman from Ward 21, as applied to all the statutes, would make them all null and void, simply because we don't care to enforce them. I rather like the suggestion for a committee. If they report persecution under a technical violation of the law, then this Board can be called together in an hour and an order removing him can be passed here and sent to the Council. I do not believe he should be discharged on a simple petition admitting a violation of the law. I should be willing to abolish the office, after a conference with this man; but I think we ought to hear what he has to say.

Alderman O'Brien—I am satisfied that if there is any unnecessary delay about this matter, building operations will have to be suspended. There is no lime in Boston now to meet the demand, and it is impossible for a dealer to buy lime in Boston. Unless you deal summarily with this man, building must stop in Boston.

Alderman Thompson—Has this Board power to suspend this officer?

The Chairman—It would require a joint vote. He is appointed by joint action.

Alderman Thompson—I understand that he agreed to suspend seizing, and I don't propose to allow him to continue two weeks until this Board meets again.

Alderman O'Brien withdrew his order, and offered the following:

Ordered, That Daniel Higgins, Inspector of Lime, be and hereby is suspended from duty, pending an inquiry into the conduct of his office.

Alderman O'Brien—By passing the order, we can appoint the committee. To suspend him will do no great injury to him, and allow the business of the city to go on as usual.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The only question is whether we have the power to suspend him. We have elected him for one year, and we cannot suspend him any more than we can the City Clerk. We can discharge him. Is the Alderman satisfied that we can suspend him?

Alderman O'Brien read from section 48 of the City Charter in regard to appointments, etc., which it appeared was a special provision and an exception to the general statute; and after some discussion, the City Clerk, being requested to express an opinion, said the Inspector did not come within the provisions of the section.

Alderman Fitzgerald said he would favor suspension if they could do it, but he hesitated to dismiss the Inspector for doing his duty. He felt sure the matter could be settled by the appointment of a committee. No court of justice in Suffolk County would confiscate those casks which were not intended to violate law.

Alderman Slade—As we know what the law in Maine is, and as we cannot make our law any different for six months, I move that the office of Inspector of Lime be abolished. I think there is good reason for it.

Alderman Burnham read from the law to show that the establishment of the office is imperative.

Alderman Wilder—The only way to abolish the office is to remove the present incumbent and refuse to appoint another. I am more than ever in favor of the committee of three to investigate; they can call a special meeting, if necessary, for the order to go to the Council.

Alderman Slade—The two laws cannot be made to agree, and my impression is that the best way is to abolish the office.

Alderman Fitzgerald—It is evident we do not know enough to act intelligently upon the subject. We simply hear rumors of some hearing; but we have not the correct facts. I hope he will not be discharged on such evidence. The man's fees amount to four cents a barrel, and he is not going to throw away his office against the sentiment of this Board and the public.

Alderman Slade—If this man knows anything, he knows the law is unjust; and yet he has performed the work as we know he has done. Shall we let the thing go on? The dealers cannot sell lime after they get it here, and the builders cannot buy it.

Alderman Fitzgerald—He is sworn to obey the statutes of Massachusetts, and because he does not observe the statutes of Maine, we propose to turn him out. If he does not stop, then I should say remove him. I know nothing about it. We ought to have an official account from a committee appointed by this Board.

Alderman O'Brien—We cannot abolish the office or suspend him, and the only way is to discharge him. If we do him injustice we can reinstate him. I doubt if he will listen to a committee, because he has back of him a legal gentleman who will tell him we have no authority, and he may refuse to answer any questions. The City Council alone can dismiss him, and I believe it ought to do so. I believe this Board will do great injustice to the builders if they refuse to dismiss him.

Alderman Wilder—I have learned within a few moments that the lime is not inspected unless the dealer asks for it. We appointed Mr. Higgins, and some not very much over-worked legal gentlemen looked up the statute and suggested to Mr. Higgins that he had a right under the law to make a good deal of difficulty and disturbance and make a good deal of money out of the lime dealers. It looks very much like an effort to produce just as much confusion and annoyance as possible to the lime trade for the purpose of making fees out of them. But I still hesitate to act until after we hear from a committee.

Alderman Fitzgerald called attention to the fact that Mr. Higgins was sworn to carry out the law, and contended that with such a difference of opinion they should appoint a committee, and not summarily dismiss the man from office for doing his duty.

Alderman O'Brien withdrew the second order and renewed the first one.

The question was taken on the order removing Mr. Higgins, and it was rejected—yeas 4, nays 7.

Yeas—Aldermen Breck, O'Brien, Slade, Thompson—4.

Nays—Aldermen Burnham, Clark, Dunbar, Fitzgerald, Robinson, Viles, Wilder—7.

Absent—Alderman Gibson—1.

Alderman Thompson explained that he had voted to remove Mr. Higgins, because of his promise to the Mayor to suspend, and his not doing so.

Alderman Robinson's motion to refer the matter to a special committee of three was adopted

(a motion to refer to the Police Committee being lost), and Aldermen O'Brien, Fitzgerald and Slade were appointed said committee.

EDGESTONE ASSESSMENT ABATED.

Alderman Slade submitted the following from the Committee on Paving:

Ordered, That the edgestone assessment, amounting to $289.44, against the estate of Richard W. Robinson, on Bowdoin street, Dorchester, be and the same is hereby abated.

The order was read twice and put upon its passage.

Alderman Viles asked for an explanation.

Alderman Slade—Two or three years ago the street was widened against the estate of Mr. Robinson, and in the settlement it was distinctly stated that when they paid Mr. Robinson the amount of damages, it covered all the expense, and that he was to be at no more expense whatever. The edgestones were set at the time, and were to be of no expense to him, as he supposed. I understand it was brought before the committee last year, and that they agree that he should not be called upon to pay the amount, and according to the best knowledge of the present committee they believe that an abatement should be made.

Alderman Fitzgerald—As I understand, the widening completely disfigured his home, and destroyed four or five trees which he would not have had destroyed for any amount of money, and it made him almost disgusted with the home in which he had lived, so that he left it for some time. His dealings were altogether with the Street Commissioners and not with the Paving Department. The edgestones were laid and Mr. Robinson was under the impression, and he was told that that was the end of everything he would have to pay, and that the amount he received was the final settlement between him and the city. It is surprising that the Paving Department sent in this assessment. Mr. Harris, the Superintendent, knows something about the facts, and that the order would have undoubtedly been reported last year. When the question came up last year, the committee thought it was an act of justice to Mr. Robinson to take off this assessment, as he was under the impression at the time that the city had no charges against him and that that was the final settlement between him and the city. Legally, I presume Mr. Robinson would be obliged to pay this assessment; but equitably I think he ought not to be called upon to pay it, especially as he received that money as a final settlement and with the understanding that there would be nothing for him to pay in the shape of betterments or anything else. That is why the Committee on Paving reported it. They saw no reason why they should refuse to do an act of justice to the chairman of the Committee on Paving any more than to a private individual. Mr. Robinson had nothing at all to do with the whole affair, and took no part with the committee.

Alderman Slade—We had the facts from the Superintendent of Streets, and he explained the whole matter to us.

The order was passed.

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman Burnham and stood adjourned to Sept. 24, at 4 P. M.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen,
SEPTEMBER 12, 1877.

Special meeting at one o'clock P. M., called by his Honor the Mayor, who presided.

PETITIONS REFERRED.

To the Committee on Paving. James M. Brigham et al., that the grade of Washington street, Ward 24, between Park street and Wheatland avenue, be raised; Mary E. Leach, to be paid for grade damages on Spring Garden street.

To the Committee on Health on the part of the Board. Petitions for leave to occupy stables by George Holmes, new brick, one horse, rear 549 East Seventh street, Ward 14; A. M. & C. M. Wood, new wooden, two horses, Winchester street; George W. Farwell, new wooden, one horse, Leander street; J. G. Shillaber, new wooden, three horses, Washington, corner Tremout street.

To the Joint Committee on Public Buildings. Samuel Downer and 470 others, that the wardroom of Ward 24 be removed to the police station at Field's Corner.

To Joint Special Committee on Improved Sewerage. M. F. Lynch, that none but citizens of Boston be allowed to contract for and work on the new sewer to Moon Island.

THE INSPECTOR OF LIME.

Alderman O'Brien submitted the following:

The committee appointed to consider the petition of the Cobb Lime Company and others, asking for the removal of Daniel Higgins, Inspector of Lime, after hearing the petitioners and the Inspector, who were also represented by counsel, respectfully report—

That the statute regulating the inspection of lime, since its enactment some forty years ago, has been a dead letter—that the law has never been enforced, and that no one has ever asked for its enforcement.

That there is not a barrel of lime in Boston today, whether the product of Maine or Massachusetts or Connecticut, that comes up to the requirements of the statute. That no lime could be obtained for some months to come that would conform strictly to the letter of the law, and that its strict enforcement would seriously embarrass all building operations; might be the means of turning out of employment hundreds of mechanics and laborers; would interfere with the completion of contracts, and seriously embarrass dealers in lime by confiscating their property.

That it was not shown that dealers had any intention to defraud; that at least ninety per cent. of the quantity consumed was bought and sold as Maine inspected lime, buyers knowing precisely what they were purchasing; that the Inspector has seized about 1100 barrels of lime, for which the owners have given a bond; that after the bond had been given the Inspector allowed the owner to do what he pleased with the lime; showing that the object of the seizure was more to obtain the bond than to protect the public; that the Inspector has overlooked small lots of lime, where the law was as clearly violated, in the size of the package, and turned his attention wholly to large lots; that of the numerous dealers in lime he only notified four of his intention to enforce the statutes; and that the Inspector sought no advice or instruction from the Mayor, or from the City Council, to whom he was indebted for his election, and who can dismiss him at their pleasure; that no lime is now being shipped from Maine to this port; that there is only a sufficient supply on hand to last for a week or two; and that no more lime will be shipped from Maine until the owners are assured that their property will not be confiscated. An inspection law which has never been enforced since its enactment, it appears to the committee, should not be sprung upon the business community without due and proper notice, in justice to our citizens engaged in this trade, and in justice to the citizens of other States who forward the lime to this market in good faith. It is certainly taking an unfair advantage of what has always been considered a dead inspection law.

In regard to Mr. Higgins, the committee would state that he has acted within the limits of the statute; that it was a mistake on the part of the City Council to elect an Inspector of Lime until such time as our laws could be so changed as to allow the importation of lime from other States, as we are dependent almost wholly on other States for a supply.

In view of these facts it appeared to the committee that there was only one course to pursue. The statutes provide that inspectors of lime may be elected by the City Council, and it is also in the power of the City Council to remove the Inspector.

The committee would, therefore respectfully recommend the passage of the following orders.

HUGH O'BRIEN,
JOHN E. FITZGERALD, } Committee.
LUCIUS SLADE,

Ordered, That Daniel Higgins, Inspector of Lime, be, and he hereby is, removed from office for cause satisfactory to the City Council.

Ordered, That his Honor the Mayor be requested to petition the General Court at its next session for such a change in the laws as will allow our citizens engaged in this branch of trade to import lime from Maine and other States without coming in conflict with the statutes of this Commonwealth.

Alderman Fitzgerald—When this matter came before the Board last Monday, I very strongly objected to the summary removal of this Inspector of Lime until he had an opportunity of explaining his position. I felt sure he had acted within the strict construction of the statute in seizing lime, because it was admitted by the petitioners for his removal that the lime which came from Maine, Connecticut and the West was all barrelled not in accordance with the statutes of Massachusetts, and was all liable to be libelled and forfeited by the Inspector of Lime. We simply heard the Inspector himself. He was four months in office. The law provides that all lime shall be inspected; but he inspected none, because he said he could not get a chance to. One firm that he went to told him they would let him know when they needed him, and whoever bought lime from them should pay for the inspection. He said he did such things and performed such acts as to give reasonable notice of his appointment to the office, so that all the dealers were acquainted with the fact. One difficulty in this case is that no barrelled lime that comes into the city of Boston is in accordance with the statutes of this State. Another difficulty is that if the lime is barrelled in Maine, the barrel has to be inspected there. The law of Maine prescribes that a barrel shall be of certain dimensions, and if the barrel is not of those dimensions, but of the dimensions of a barrel which the State of Massachusetts prescribes, the lime in Maine can be confiscated. If, on the other hand, the men who have lime kilns make the lime in accordance with the statutes in Maine, when it arrives here it is liable to be confiscated. And so it is in other States. In either case the manufacturers of lime, if their lime is not libelled and forfeited in the States in which it is manufactured and barrelled, it is liable to be libelled and forfeited when it arrives here. Then, the most ridiculous and the strangest thing in connection with the whole thing is that the libelling and forfeiture of the lime benefits nobody but the Inspector himself. For instance, a gentleman had 700 barrels of lime seized the other day because the barrels were not made in accordance with the statute. In order to get that lime out of the hands of the keeper or seizer, the owner gave a bond of double its value; and he can take that lime and sell it, so that the public are as liable to get cheated, if there is cheating in it—because there is not, for it is not a malicious intention to break the law. The man takes his 700 barrels and the Inspector takes his bond, and after deducting expenses all the money goes into the Inspector's pocket. The lime is sold and the public are not benefited. That is the case. The Inspector seems to be a man who knows his own duty and thinks he knows more than any one else about this lime business, and about the statutes. I asked him why he did not, when he found this conflict between the statutes of Massachusetts and the other States of the Union, and found that all the lime imported into the State was liable to seizure and forfeiture, why he did not consult somebody connected with the City Government, or why he did not present a report to the City Council setting forth the facts and asking for instructions; and he said that there was the law, and he thought he was not liable to anybody, and he was elected and it was his business to enforce the law; though he acknowledged that he consulted several lawyers as to whether he had the authority. There is no doubt about his authority. He consulted the Attorney General and City Solicitor about the law, but he never consulted anybody, after waiting four months, as to whether it was advisable, under the circumstances, to make all those seizures, and he did that upon his own account. But I have reason to believe that it was n't altogether upon his own account that he did it. In such a case as that, where there is no intention to break the law, and where the law is to be strictly enforced, as he intended to do, he should have consulted some member of the City Government. After leaving the Mayor's office and after consultation with some six or seven lime dealers, he went out, and, in an hour afterwards, seized a hundred barrels of lime; and he gave as a reason that he wanted to show the Mayor and everybody else that he was master of the situation, and could do what he pleased under the law. Now, if that be the state of the case,—if no lime can be imported into Boston unless under the pains and penalties of seizure; if the City Council can by any means prevent it,—it seems to me that it is the plain duty of the City Council to do so. You cannot keep any of these Inspectors of Lime in office, and say they shall not enforce the law, because they are sworn to do it. If you enforce the law all the lime will be forfeited. When the lime is seized, the bond is given, the lime is released and sold the same as if it had never been seized; all the profit goes into the pocket of the Inspector, and the public are not protected. What should we do under those circumstances? All we can do is to discharge the Inspector. We can discharge the Inspector, and I think we should include the other one with Mr. Higgins. The office is more honorable than profitable, for Mr. Higgins seems never to have earned anything unless he can capture two or three thousand barrels of lime—and he has shown how to do that. I move that the other Inspector of Lime be included. No harm has been done by the violation of the law; none can be done. Every purchaser knows what kind of lime he gets. If the law is enforced, no buildings will be put up in Boston; nobody will be benefited but the Lime Inspectors themselves. As the report says, there are several cargoes of lime awaiting importation to this port, and they will not be brought here until they find whether this zealous officer of the law shall cease trying to get any more bonds into his own pocket for his own benefit. I understand that the other inspector of lime is dead—I suppose his duties were so arduous—and that there is only one left. I shall vote to discharge Mr. Higgins, not because he performed his duty, but because it is absolutely necessary, from the nature of the case, to discharge him. If we allow him to remain in office, he will have seized all the lime barrels, and when the bond is given and the lime restored, the lime is sold again; he has the benefit of the bond, and the statute becomes a dead letter.

The orders were passed. Sent down.

CHELSEA BRIDGE.

A communication was received from the Mayor transmitting a notice from the city of Chelsea of petition to the Legislature to be released from the care of the portion of Chelsea Bridge within Boston. Referred to the Committee on Bridges.

SEWERS.

Alderman Viles, from the Committee on Sewers, submitted an order to build a common sewer in St. James avenue. Read twice and passed. Adjourned.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Common Council,
SEPTEMBER 13, 1877.

Regular meeting, pursuant to adjournment, at 7½ o'clock P. M., Benjamin Pope, President, in the chair.

PAPERS FROM THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Auditor's monthly exhibits for July and August; reports of fires and alarms in July and August; quarterly reports of Superintendent of North Scales, Overseers of the Poor and City Clerk. Severally placed on file.

Resolution of thanks from city of St. John for a donation of school desks, etc., from this city. Placed on file.

Sundry petitions and other papers were referred in concurrence.

Reports of leave to withdraw on petitions, viz.: Mary McCarthy, to be compensated for damages from a defective sewer.

James D. McNeil, for compensation for injuries received on slips of East Boston Ferry.

Bridget M. Hernan, to be compensated for personal injuries from a defect in Way street.

Margaret S. McCarthy, for leave to surrender an estate on Indiana place.

Severally accepted.

Report and order to allow $1000 to Erving F. Graves, as compensation for personal injuries from a defect in Washington street. Order read twice under a suspension of the rule, on motion of Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20, and passed in concurrence.

Order for repair of old, and purchase of new, furniture for the new Dorchester Everett School-house, estimated cost $2500. Order read twice under a suspension of the rule on motion of Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20, and passed in concurrence.

Order to consider expediency of employing physicians to visit the houses of the poor and crowded sections of the city, for the purpose of aiding in the prevention of the large mortality among young children. Read twice and passed in concurrence.

Order to release to Richard E. Cochraue the title of two parcels of land on Walk Hill street, as therein set forth. Read twice under a suspension of the rule, on motion of Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20, and passed in concurrence.

Order to plank Huntington-avenue Bridge and erect fences on the sides of said bridge. Ordered to a second reading. A motion by Mr. Wilbur to suspend the rule was lost.

Order to forfeit to city a certain lot of land on East Third street in rear of M street, and to cancel bond therefor. Read twice and passed in concurrence.

Order to close the several departments of the City Government on the 17th of September, except Police and Fire departments, and to allow the employes a holiday without loss of pay. Read twice and passed in concurrence.

Report and orders to expend not exceeding $20,000 for an additional pumping engine at pumping station, Elmwood street, and not exceeding $27,000 in constructing a second line of force main pipe for Mystic Water Works; the Committee on Finance to provide the means. Severally referred to the Committee on Finance. Sent up.

Report and order for an ordinance to be reported providing for the appointment of a Superintendent of Printing. Order read twice and passed in concurrence.

Order of a transfer of $1400 from Reserved Fund to pay salaries established by City Council to Deputy Sealers of Weights and Measures. Ordered to a second reading.

NORTHAMPTON STREET DISTRICT.

A report came down, with orders to pay Joseph H. Hunneman and others $13,409.25 for an estate on Hunneman street, as therein set forth, to rescind former order on the subject, and for a release, to be executed for a nominal sum, of a certain parcel of land on Plymouth court, as therein set forth.

The question was upon giving the order a second reading.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I should like to know if there is any one here who can explain these orders. They are rather long and appear to be important, and I should like to know something about them before voting for them.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—it seems that the chairman of the Committee on Public Lands on the part of this branch is not here tonight. I was not at the meeting of the committee at which this order was passed, but it was explained in the other branch, and from what I know of the matter I believe the explanation given there was correct and that the order is one that ought to be passed. Mr. Hunneman had a claim against the city for land taken on the Northampton-street district. The question came up about how much he should be allowed for that land, and the Committee on Public Lands reported in favor of a certain sum, about $16,000, and an order to pay him that sum was passed by both branches of the City Government. Afterwards the City Solicitor examined the title to that land, and it was found that he had not a good title to the whole of it, and therefore the order passed before was not carried into effect. It is now proposed, as I understand, to pay him a proportionate price for the rest of the land, and I am quite confident it is a proper order to pass.

Mr. Thompson—My question was directed more to the order to execute a release for land for a nominal sum in Plymouth court; but after the explanation I have no doubt it is all correct.

Mr. Crocker—In regard to the release, Mr. Hunneman and all the other parties claim that the city had taken this land, and had got to pay for the whole of it; and the city had made up its mind to pay $16,000 for the whole of Mr. Hunneman's land; and now they propose to pay him $13,000 for thirteen-sixteenths of it, and give him back the other three-sixteenths without any consideration.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I was on the Committee on Northampton-street District last year and was familiar with those cases, and the gentleman from Ward 9 has correctly reported the facts. At that time we took the land and agreed to pay $16,000 for it. Since then a defect in the title has been discovered. Mr. Hunneman is to receive $13,000 for the part to which he has a good title, and the remainder of the land is to be released to him.

On motion of Mr. Sampson, the rule was suspended and the orders were read twice and passed in concurrence.

THE INSPECTION OF LIME.

A report and orders came down for the discharge of Daniel Higgins from the office of Inspector of Lime, for cause satisfactory to the City Council, and that his honor the Mayor be requested to petition the General Court at its next session for such a change in the laws as will allow our citizens engaged in this branch of trade to import lime from Maine and other States without coming in conflict with the statutes of this Commonwealth.

The question was upon giving the orders a second reading.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—There is something so novel about this matter that I confess I hardly know how to get at it, or what to say concerning it. We have here an Inspector of Lime, who was appointed on my motion. As his friend who obtained his appointment, I previously had never known him; and after ascertaining, as in duty bound, that the man was honest and reliable and had a good character in every way, so far as I could find out, I made the motion, and he received the appointment. I find that, after executing the law, which he was bound to do, and it is admitted that he has not gone beyond the limit of the law, it is proposed to discharge him. Now, I am told on what I consider good authority, and I have no question about it in my own mind, that at the time he was first appointed Inspector of Lime he suggested to the lime dealers that he intended to enforce the law, and that one of the prominent lime dealers told him that if he dared to make an attempt to enforce the law they would have him removed. Other dealers laughed at him and sneered at the law, and I confess that I, for one, cannot blame him for getting a little vexed, although he went a little more strongly than I would. It appears to me that the action of the other branch is unparalleled. We find that a special committee was appointed to investigate the subject. Alderman O'Brien, who made the motion that the Inspector be discharged for reasons satisfactory to the City Council, was appointed chairman of the committee, and Alderman Slade, who expressed the opinion in debate that he should be discharged, was also a member of the committee; and that is a committee, the opinion of a majority of whom had been expressed in debate, appointed to give this man a fair hearing. They went through the form of a hearing and reported that he be removed. It is like taking on a jury in a trial for murder men who have expressed the opinion in open court that the man was guilty. In my belief no precedent can be found for any such action. Now we are told that no law is necessary; that a man buys lime for what it is, and he knows what he is getting. I would not say this law should not be changed; and I do believe this action is going to cause the law to be changed. If the lime dealers can make the casks any size they choose and send them here half and two-thirds filled and sell them for full casks, then I think the law should be changed. But if the members of the Council will talk with the masons and builders and the men who buy the casks of lime, they will find that there are two sides to the story. If this matter is to be investigated, I believe it should be done by an impartial committee, and I should be happy to vote for the report of such a committee. Now, in regard to New York lime, no lime can be imported there unless it conforms to the law; the head of a barrel is knocked off, and if the cask is not plump, solid full it must be filled before the head is put on. If the law works well in New York, why not so here? While I admit that the law is not satisfactory at the present time, and it has not been for many years,—it is practically a dead letter, and should be changed; but here is a man who was pledged to do his duty; he has seized eight hundred dollars' worth of lime, and we are told that he is going to make a fortune out of it. There is the $800, and out of all that comes the personal and court expenses and the legal fees, which gentlemen in this Council know is no small matter. I imagine that if the Inspector gets a couple of hundred dollars in making a test case he will be a fortunate man. We are told that building cannot go on if he continues in office. Now, I am willing to make for him a pledge that if the matter is allowed to remain just as it is, he will make no more seizures until the General Court settles the matter finally. He understands it to be the wish of the City Council not to have this law enforced. The question is whether we shall make an example of a poor man, and disgrace him perpetually by discharging him for simply following the letter of the law, or whether we will leave the matter as it now is until it is fixed by the General Court.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—In the discussion of this matter in the Board of Aldermen, and in the remarks of the gentleman just before me, there has been a misconstruction upon two points of the law which I think should be corrected before we can discuss this matter fairly. It has been stated and assumed by the Inspector himself that the penalty which is referred to in one section of the law goes into the pocket of the Inspector. I apprehend that that is not the object of the law. The law says that any person who sells lime within this State without inspection shall forfeit one dollar and fifty cents, or, that is, he shall be fined one dollar and fifty cents; and it not being expressly designated to be for the use of the Inspector, it must go to the treasury of the county of Suffolk, which is the treasury of the city of Boston. For instance, in section 8, of the same statute, under the head of bread, there is a provision that—

“Whoever violates either of the provisions of the three preceding sections shall forfeit ten dollars for each offence, to be recovered in an action of tort to the use of the party suing therefor.”

There is a difference. If, under that provision, a man is fined $10, it is to go to the man who brings the suit; but in the case of so much of the law as relates to lime, it goes to the county of Suffolk. Then, it was assumed further in the debate in the Board of Aldermen, that if this lime is libelled and seized, that the parties owning it and giving a bond can get the lime back and sell it again. If it is forfeited, it must be forfeited to the county of Suffolk, and if sold again it must be sold by the county of Suffolk, and the purchaser will have fair notice of what he is buying. I have not had time to go into the action of this man, but I have been told by two or three masons that there is a great and serious cause of complaint in regard to the way in which this lime is sold, and I know two or three masons who are inclined to support the action of the Inspector. Now it seems to me that before we go into this matter, we should have a little more definite hearing than was this one before the Board of Aldermen. We should have a hearing at which the masons could be heard, for some masons do claim that there should be a more rigid inspection; and we should have a hearing at which the masons can come and state their case. The Inspector may have acted injudiciously, but he has acted in strict compliance with his oath, and done nothing more than he was directed to do by the law of the State. That being the fact, it does not seem to me that he can be removed for reasons that are satisfactory to the City Council, unless we say that carrying out the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts is a reason satisfactory to the Council for removing a man from office. He has said that if the City Council expresses the wish that he shall not enforce the law, he will suspend; and I am going to move a resolution—that it is the sense of the City Council that it is inexpedient to enforce the law until the matter can be acted upon by the Legislature. And I shall also move that the subject be referred to a special committee of five members of this Council to give all the parties a hearing. I move the following as a substitute for the order for the removal of the Inspector of Lime:

Resolved, That in the opinion of the City Council further action by the Inspector of Lime should be deferred until the next meeting of the General Court.

Ordered, That the subject be referred to a special committee of five on the part of this branch, with such as the Board of Aldermen may join.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I would suggest that the Aldermen have already acted upon it.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5—As I understand that motion, it is that the Inspector suspend operations until the meeting of the next General Court. I suppose it is not intended to cover the case of any man who wants his lime inspected.

Mr. Thompson—The intent of the order is that it shall affect the subject which has been under debate.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—Statutes like that to which this order relates are passed for protection and not for oppression. It has not been shown by any one here tonight, nor was it shown in the evidence before the committee on the part of the Board of Aldermen, that there is any useful duty under the sun for the Inspector of Lime. It was said by the gentleman from Ward 3 that it is a novel thing we have before us. The only novel thing I see in the matter before us is, the Inspector was appointed on the motion of the gentleman from Ward 3, and that when it is shown and confessed by the gentleman himself that the action of the Inspector has been such as to make his removal, or a change of the law under which he acts, desirable, he should then desire to have nothing done about it. Now, it is well understood that the best lime in use in Boston comes from Maine, Rockland lime being considered the best; and in the evidence here it is shown that three-fourths of the lime in use in Boston comes from Maine. We have two other ways to get out of it besides passing the order originally presented here. Either we can compel the importers of lime here to have their lime sent to New Hampshire or some other neutral State, and re-casked to suit an antiquated law of Massachusetts, or we can have all the supply of lime from Maine suspended for three months. Now I say, when we find a statute of this sort, involving no protection to the people of Massachusetts, but which is an oppression to the people, there ought to be something done toward relief as a matter of practical wisdom. It would not be practical and wise, certainly, in these extraordinary times, when there is a better feeling in business, to suspend building operations for the year, or put an embargo upon lime so that it cannot be used in Boston. One other point, and I am done. It has been suggested by my friend from Ward 3 that the reading of the order as presented here is to throw obloquy upon Mr. Higgins. I don't understand it so. I did not suppose any citizen of Boston would understand it so. It reads, “for reasons satisfactory to the City Council.” The reason is not that the gentleman enforced the law. I admit that he has enforced the law, but that is not the reason why we propose to abolish the office. The reason is that the statute under which he acted is an antiquated one, which, if carried into effect, works oppression. We have the option to fill the office created by statute, or not fill it, and we have the option to vacate it after we have filled it; and for the reason that it is inexpedient that there should be an Inspector of Lime in Boston we excuse the incumbent from further service. Now, sir, all the lime that comes from Maine is inspected. The Maine Legislature has finally adopted the opinions of experts and determined upon the particular size of casks. Nobody can import lime from Maine in any other cask than that which is authorized by the statute of Maine. The builder is protected; the consumer of lime is protected here under the Maine statute; and I submit that rather than compel the suspension of the use of Rockland lime in Boston, rather than compel a circuitous method of getting it here from some place where it can be re-casked, we should remove the gentleman from office. Make the office entirely vacant, so that no one will feel unsafe. One word about the substitute. I am generally glad to agree with the gentleman from Ward 9, but I cannot in this matter. It does not seem necessary to spend further time in investigating this matter. The party who can give the best evidence has been examined at length, and his evidence covers several pages. It is upon his own evidence that the report and orders are based, and I can see no reason for making any further to-do about this matter. I hope we shall reject the substitute and pass the original order.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I hope the original order will pass. It seems to me that the argument of the gentleman from Ward 3 is a puerile one, and that he cannot find any authority for it under the statute. The gentleman from Ward 3, who introduced the name of the Inspector to the Council, says if we will not pass the order, the Inspector says there will be no more seizures. But the Mayor of Boston called the Inspector to his office and showed him the effect it would have upon dealers, and requested him to desist from his operations. I find by the evidence here that the Inspector, instead of heeding this suggestion, seized a quantity of lime that same day, and went on performing his duties, as he undoubtedly had a right to do, up to the time of the investigation by the Board of Aldermen. It seems to me that the enforcement of this law is having an injurious effect upon the city, and I trust the order will be passed, and the gentleman suspended from further duty.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—It is very embarrassing to decide upon the proper course to pursue in this matter. It is certainly very unsatisfactory to pass a vote to remove a man from office for simply having performed his legal duties. It is something that I think we should be unwilling to do unless there was a necessity for it under serious circumstances. On the other hand, I can see that this gentleman, if he proceeds in his course and enforces an obsolete law, the only good apparently will be to himself, and it will cause a great deal of embarrassment to many people; and to allow him to go on would be equally unsatisfactory. It seems to me we have a short and simple way out of the whole trouble—one by which we can end it here and now. The gentleman from Charlestown, who first proposed this Inspector's name for office, says that he is ready to pledge—as I understand, and if I state him incorrectly, I hope he will correct me; but if this gentleman's removal is stopped, he will make no further seizures until the Legislature has had an opportunity to act upon the subject.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—Until they do act.

Mr. Crocker—They might not act.

Mr. Webster—Until it is disposed of in some way. His term expires next April.

Mr. Crocker—It is to be supposed that this gentleman represents the gentleman whose election he obtained, and can control his action; and if he does that, all further trouble about this matter will be stopped, and no further seizures will take place. The man will hold a nominal office, perform no duties and collect no fees. If, as seems to be admitted on all hands, some change in the law is desirable, that change will be considered by the Legislature, which is the proper body to make the change; we shall be relieved from further bother about it, and the whole matter will be brought to the end to which it should have been brought sooner. It seems to me that we shall be relieved of a disagreeable duty in removing a man from office for performing his duty under the law. If we pass the second order that came up from the Board of Aldermen, and refuse to concur in the first one, the matter will be disposed of and not trouble us any more this year.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I am in favor of the substitute of the gentleman from Ward 9. It covers the whole question. The logic of the gentleman from Ward 21 is strange, that when there is an obsolete statute, because we have a man with backbone enough to bring it out before the people, that there is something wrong in their lime cask, therefore that man ought to be discharged for enforcing that law. That is very strange logic. That man has done his duty, and if we discharge a few more city officials who do their sworn duty perhaps we might get better ones, and perhaps we might not. I think the substitute covers everything we need. The gentleman says it will suspend building not to have lime from the State of Maine. I hope we shall follow the State of Maine in some other things, but I don't believe that we get what we pay for when we get lime from the State of Maine. I don't believe there is a builder in this house but who, when he has opened a lime cask, has found it from a quarter to a third gone, and the barrel never full. If the Inspector can work upon this matter and get us what we pay for, he will do a good thing. I believe, as the gentleman from Ward 3 said, that the Inspector will not seize any more lime; and I am glad this matter has been brought to the attention of the people.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—I know something about this lime business; I have bought some lime, and in the last thirty years I have knocked in a good many heads of lime barrels. I am not afraid to say it here before this Council, that of the lime you get in Boston one-fifth of it is gone—the barrels are never full, and they will not average more than three-fourths full. I opened a whole load of lime not many days ago, and the owner refused to take it, and sent it back to the parties who sold it, and they said that is the way they get the lime, and they had to take it. Now, is the city of Boston to discharge this man for doing his duty? We recently found a man who was not doing his duty honestly, and he was discharged; and now we are going to discharge a man for doing his duty honestly. I should like to know what sort of logic there is in that? I have known this man twenty years. When he asked me the question about this lime, I will say that I had worked at my business since 1845, and had never taken the pains to measure a cask, never knew the size of a cask, never knew that there was a law to protect us, and thought that all the privilege I had was to grumble at not receiving a full cask of lime. I believe the masons of Boston should have some protection. No mason in Boston can take his oath that he receives a full cask of lime, for they will not get nine full out of ten. A gentleman on the other side says the law is no protection to masons, and that it is of no use. I say that if a man buys a bushel of potatoes, would he want to take three pecks for a bushel? As a mason I don't want to take three-fourths of a barrel of lime for a barrel. We have Inspectors of Marble, Provisions, etc., and why not have Inspectors of Lime to make them give us full barrels of lime. But we should not remove a man for doing his duty.

Mr. Hibbard of Ward 17—I know little about this matter, but I certainly cannot see the necessity of retaining a man in office who is not going to do anything. I look upon this matter as I do upon the Sealers of Weights and Measures. The complaints against this man were not for seizing lime because the casks were not full, but because they were not the right size. By looking this testimony over, I cannot see that the casks were not full. The State of Maine prescribes what size those casks shall be, and they have been sent here for years, and it does look to me as if this man had done this more for personal interest than for the benefit of the public.

Mr. Spenceley—It seems to me that the gentleman from Ward 17 has been a little dull of comprehension. He wants to know what this man has done. I think he has done a great deal, save putting money in his own pocket; for, according to the gentleman from Ward 9, it goes into the county treasury. I want to know his authority for that, for the Inspector says it goes into his pocket. I hope he will explain that.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I will say that I had a conversation with the City Solicitor this morning in regard to the construction placed upon the statute, and he placed the same construction upon it that I do—that the fines and forfeiture go into the county treasury. Since I made that statement, my attention has been called to a clause in another statute which will undoubtedly modify my statement of the effect of selling the lime. If the lime is labelled and sold, after paying the legal and other expenses, the balance will go to the Inspector; but so far as the fine of $1.50 is concerned, I think that it will go into the county treasury. While I am on my feet I wish to state more correctly the reasons I had for offering the order I did. Without having time to investigate this matter myself, I was called upon by two or three masons who stated to me, as has been stated here by gentlemen familiar with the course of the lime trade, that there has been cause for serious complaint against the lime dealers in this city; and I judge from what has been said here that the Inspector has represented not only himself, but the feelings of a large number of the purchasers of lime. Now, we are called upon to take action upon what is practically an ex parte hearing. I believe we should not go ahead and allow a branch of trade to be seriously crippled under a law passed thirty years ago, and which has been in disuse for some time, and my motion will prevent this: I offer a resolve to be passed by the City Council declaring that in the opinion of the City Council the Inspector of Lime should cease prosecuting any further claims against parties who have sold lime in those packages until after the meeting of the General Court, and to see if the General Court will take action and change the law. The Inspector has stated to the City Government, through the gentleman from Ward 3, that he will cease action. Then I offer an order for a hearing on the part of this Council, that, proper notice being given, both sides may come in and this committee hear them and report the facts of the matter to us. I believe we will do well to pass this order in this shape, and avoid putting ourselves on record as removing a man for doing his duty.

Mr. Pratt—Why should we keep a man in office merely for ornament? It isn't contended by anybody here that the Inspector should do anything with this lime. It is contended, on the other hand, that if he has n't anything to do, he can step out of office. Which is more consistent? It is well known, and it ought to be admitted here, that the hearing was fair enough on this question. What does the gentleman from Ward 9 mean when he says it was an ex parte hearing? It is such an ex parte hearing as he is accustomed to hear in court where the plaintiff is heard and the judge finds that he does not state a case strong enough to make it necessary to call upon the defendant. The hearing was a public one. The committee gave a hearing to the Inspector of Lime, who was interested to continue in his office and promote the importance thereof—and very sharply interested, too, it seems. After giving him an opportunity to explain all the interests at stake, and all the reasons for continuing him in office, and all the reasons why he executed the statute, they found it necessary to hear nobody else. I don't wonder that they did n't find it necessary to hear anybody else. What are the facts? Let me state them again, as they do not seem to be understood. The State of Maine passed a statute in regard to the inspection of lime. Nobody can send lime out of Maine except in the prescribed cask. All our dealers who get lime from Maine must get it in this sort of cask. When this statute was passed, the spirit of it, as suggested by the gentleman on my left—it is seen on the face of it—was to make the statute conform to the laws of Maine, and the whole spirit of our statute was to cooperate with the legislation of Maine in throwing a sort of protection about the manufacture and sale of lime. Now, sir, we are simply wishing to carry out the spirit of that statute. I am informed that for the last twenty years there has been practically no inspection of lime in Boston; nobody has called it up, and nobody has been bright enough to see that he could make a dollar. The Inspector who held the office so long without doing anything is, I believe, deceased. Now, then, this Inspector finds that he can make something by enforcing this statute which has not been done before. In passing the original order I cannot see how we are discharging the man because he enforced the statute. That opinion was stated by two gentlemen here. We turn him out because he is executing a statute which has become obnoxious. We have the option whether we shall have an inspector of lime or not. It has been shown that that is an oppressive statute. The law is out of joint under the present condition of things, and the abolition of the office is as far as we can go—that is, we send the incumbent out of office. We do not send him out with any opprobrium. The reason we send him out, as shown in the order, is because the statute works oppression. Now, sir, I do not find anything—and I would ask the gentleman from Ward 3 if he can point out anything—in the statute which regulates how full a cask shall be? The buyers are not protected in receiving a full cask. The statute prescribes how many hoops the cask shall have, the length of the staves, and all that; but the inspector cannot compel the dealers to furnish a full cask, and it would be ridiculous to undertake it. There is no injustice in it, and I don't see why the builders should whine about it. Why not have a law to protect retail dry-goods dealers against jobbers, and make them give so much cloth in a piece? As it stands now, the statute makes oppression to business in Boston, and will practically put a stop upon the importation of lime from Maine until the Legislature meets, which will not be for several months; and meantime the office will be vacant.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—It seems to me that the last point made is the most absurd one I ever heard. You might say that when the sealers of weights and measures determine the size of a quart of milk; that it is a quart if the can is not full, and the same in regard to the quantity in a pound of groceries. The law determines the size of the cask, and it is supposed to be full. The gentleman's point may be metaphysical, but it is entirely devoid of common sense. I object to the substitute, in that it hardly seems proper for the City Council to compel an officer not to execute the law. If we lay the matter upon the table and leave it precisely as it is, I will vouch for the Inspector that no more seizures will be made. The City Council should not oblige anybody not to enforce a law; but there can be an understanding that it will not be enforced. If we are to have any action now, I should insist upon the committee as a matter of justice to ourselves and to the Inspector. If it is left till the next General Court, I fail to see any necessity for a committee. I would suggest that some move be made to end the matter right here.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—I don't see any more correct way to act in this matter than to vote for the order. It cannot be any greater hardship to remove a man than to keep him in an empty office in which he cannot do anything. It would seem to be an insult to a man to keep him tied to an office, with all the moral responsibilities of its requirements, and at the same time tell him he cannot do anything. It seems to me that a man of honor would not stand such an inconsistency. Then the other position is that the man shall hold the office, and yet, by an agreement with a private individual—I don't care if he is a member of the Council or Board of Aldermen or any body else—he shall not perform the duty. It seems to me that would be a precedent of the utmost danger, because if it can be done with regard to this office, why not with regard to any office? It will be a bad precedent. I cannot conceive how any member of the Council would wish to put himself in that light before the public by saying "Here is a man whom I got in this office, but I will agree that he shall not perform the duties." There has been a public hearing; the Inspector was represented by counsel in open court; both parties were represented; arguments were made, and to place the matter before us the evidence was printed. If this evidence is quoted correctly, the gentleman is not qualified to hold the office. If any one will read the evidence on pages six and seven, the Inspector's own answer—he substantially stated to his Honor the Mayor that he would suspend, and then went off in an hour and made a seizure—shows that he is unfit, in my judgment, to hold any office; and, although he may promise, and take a private oath to the gentleman from Ward 3—for I have no doubt his promise to him will be as binding as to anybody—if, after what he said to the Mayor he did not observe his promise, I have no confidence that he will observe any agreement with my friend from Ward 3. I think we are making a great deal out of this small matter. It has been stated here that parties who buy the lime are dissatisfied. Why, that is n't true, if this petition is true. Take the petition we see on page 3, that this man shall be removed. It is signed by Thomas J. Whidden, who, over his own hand, states that this man has exercised this office in an oppressive and unreasonable manner, and is actuated by greed of gain rather than a desire to promote the public welfare. In substance, the public welfare does not require it. The lime dealers and builders agree that this is an obsolete statute, which has lain unnoticed for a generation, and is now brought up at this time and enforced in this manner for private gain. I was about to say to the gentleman from Ward 9 [Mr. Thompson], who made the point that the result of these complaints and forfeitures does not go into the pockets of the informer, that it is not so, as the gentleman afterwards corrected himself. By section 8, chapter 103, of the General Statutes, the title to which chapter is, "Of Seizing and Libelling Forfeited Goods," provision is made that, after paying expenses, the residue shall be paid to the party making the seizure. So far as I can see, if the lime is condemned under these complaints the proceeds will go into the pocket of the seizer, or, in other words, the Inspector. Now, here is another absurdity about this law. The statute in one place says it shall be sold, and yet in another part of the statute it says a certain person may sell it and pocket the proceeds. He has taken bonds to allow dealers to sell the lime over again. The statute prevents merchants from selling lime, but allows the informer to sell it. For myself I don't see any other way out of it. All seem to admit that the carrying out of this statute at the present time would work great hardship; and I don't see the propriety or consistency of keeping a man in office and telling him he should not do anything. It would be adding insult to injury. Nor should we allow a man to hold office and yet agree with a private individual not to perform the duties. Every feature of that is bad. It puts two parties in a bad position. After I have read this evidence I am ready to vote for this order. I have listened with attention to all that has been said on the other side. See how he has conducted his office. There is a statute against smoking in the streets of Boston. Suppose a policeman, tomorrow or at any time, should undertake, strictly and rigidly, by the letter of that law, to enforce it? Everybody knows it is n't called for, and that man would be removed before noon. There would be no other way to do, and, if it could be done, the law would be repealed at once.

Mr. Day of Ward 4—I don't think it would be a very good idea for us to discharge this man simply because he did his duty. There may be cases where an Inspector would be required. For instance, in the matter of disputes between buyer and seller, an inspection may be demanded. In that case the Inspector would be called upon to arbitrate between the parties. It is the general understanding that no more seizures shall be made, and I think it will be the best policy to indefinitely postpone the whole subject, and I make that motion.

The President ruled that the motion to indefinitely postpone was not in order while the amendments were pending.

Mr. Crocker—The gentleman from Ward 10 has said it is absurd for us to desist from proceedings against this man because he has said he will not execute the law any further. Now, I admit there is something unsatisfactory about doing that; but it seems to me it is the least unsatisfactory way of dealing with this matter. It seems to me it will be more unsatisfactory for us to remove a man because he has fulfilled the duties of his office. It is also objectionable for us to vote that he be requested to desist from making seizures according to law, and for that reason I dislike the resolution of my colleague. We do not want to vote formally that he be requested to desist from obeying the law. It is rather an awkward predicament for us to put ourselves in. As I said, we are in an awkward predicament, and cannot do anything that looks just right on the face of it, any way. The best way, after the representations that have been made—for I for one have no doubt they will be carried out—is to drop the question of removing him. I feel so because I don't believe we can legally remove him, and on that ground I would not vote to do so. It is a town office, that is to be filled annually; he has been chosen for a year, and we cannot turn him out of office before the year expires any more than the selectmen can be turned out. I believe it will be an illegal and void act, and therefore I am unwilling to vote to remove him.

But as we have been informed that he will not go on with these objectionable seizures any longer, it seems best to leave him in office to perform any proper duty, and not attempt to do what I believe we cannot do. As suggested by the gentleman on my left, there may be some ordinary duty for an Inspector of Lime to perform. There may be some inspection of lime needed. But it has been agreed and represented, in a manner upon which we can rely, that no more seizures will be made. The representation is not made upon our expressing a desire that no further seizures shall be made, but that the matter shall remain as it stands now. He is satisfied that the City Council do not desire him to go on making seizures; he don't want us to express any desire, and it would be quite objectionable for us to do so. It seems to me it would be better to omit that vote.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5—This question of lime is very important, and requires great consideration. Lawyers disagree, and what are we to do? I talked with several builders today and did n't learn that anything terrible was going to be done by this gentleman who has been down on the wharf among the big fish. He has hunted up a law passed before he and the most of us were born. He seems to be a man who digs down to the bottom. He has found a law, and in executing it we find it is all wrong. How are you going to get out of it? The gentleman from Ward 3 says this Inspector was elected on his motion, and that he has a private agreement about what he will do. I don't want any private agreements. How are we to get out of this muddle? I think the safest way is to adopt the substitute of the gentleman from Ward 9, and that we shall certainly learn something by the report of the committee.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I hope this substitute will prevail. It seems to me to be a great hardship to pass this order. Lawyers disagree, and if I correctly read the evidence given by the Inspector, the Chief Magistrate of this city gave him to understand that his duty was to go and inspect lime when called upon by the dealers. If this is the case, he can do so, and that is the interpretation put upon it by the chief magistrate of the city. A great deal of hardship has been expressed by gentlemen because this man seized a few casks of lime; and they want us to take the matter into our hands, vote away statute law and discharge the Inspector. I only wish we could discharge the State police when they make a seizure under the prohibitory law. There is no more justice in one than in the other. This is an absurd law, and no one would enforce it if the Chief Magistrate's idea is right. If the Inspector has to be called upon by the dealers the lime will never be inspected. The consumers are the sufferers. The dealers put just what they please in a cask, and who is to change it? The statute says the lime must be inspected, and branded with the Inspector's name in full; but it would puzzle the dealers of this city to find a cask of lime with an Inspector's name upon it. It has not been inspected for many years. The dealers have gone on and got rich and sold half a cask of lime and the builders have bought it. I think it no more than fair to give this party a fair hearing. I wanted to raise the question whether, this being a matter for concurrent action, when one branch has made an investigation and voted to discharge the man, can it be properly before the Council?

Mr. Coe of Ward 23 moved the previous question, but withdrew it at the request of Mr. Thompson, who promised to renew it.

Mr. Thompson—The propriety of this resolution has been questioned, and I wish to call the attention of the Council to the fact that so much of the statute as alludes to inspection is imperative, and that so much as relates to seizure is permissive. There being certain duties which the statute makes imperative, if we remove him, no person will perform that duty. But if we say we don't want him to do that which we may do, we do nothing out of the way. According to the promise I made, I now move the previous question.

The main question was ordered.

The motion to substitute was adopted, and the resolve passed—31 for, 17 against—in the following form:

Resolved, That in the opinion of the City Council the Inspector of Lime should not make any further seizures of lime until after the meeting of the General Court.

Mr. Day moved to indefinitely postpone the order for a special committee, but no one objecting, Mr. Thompson withdrew it.

The order to petition the Legislature was passed in concurrence.

Sent up.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Report and ordinance (new draft) for the occupancy of streets for building purposes. Ordinance ordered to a second reading.

ADJOURNMENT.

On motion of Mr. Sampson, it was ordered that when the Council adjourn it be for two weeks.

DRAW OF CHARLES-RIVER BRIDGE.

A report was received from the City Engineer in response to the order to examine into the condition of the draw of Charles-river bridge—

That the draw is now in good condition, and that with the exception of adding a hand apparatus for moving it, when the horse gear is out of order, I know of no action that can be taken to prevent the interruption to travel, short of building a new draw and draw foundation. According to the records of the draw tender, travel has been stopped but eight times since October, 1871, for repairs upon the draw. It appears, therefore, that the evil to be obviated is hardly of sufficient magnitude to call for rebuilding. A new apparatus for moving by hand would not cost more than $500. Sent up.

PETITION REFERRED.

Petition of J. H. Marshall, to be paid for injuries done to his wagon by a projecting tree on Meridian street. Referred to Joint Committee on Claims. Sent up.

EAST BOSTON HIGH SCHOOL.

Mr. Pearl of Ward 1 submitted a report from the Committee on Public Instruction with an order—That the Committee on Public Buildings be authorized to provide suitable high school accommodations in East Boston by fitting up the old Lyman Schoolhouse for that purpose; the expense, not exceeding $2000, to be charged to the appropriation for Schoolhouses, Public Buildings. Read once.

EXTRA PAY FOR SEVENTEENTH.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19 offered an order—That inasmuch as the members of the Police and Fire departments are to be deprived of the holiday on the 17th inst., there be allowed to each and every member of said departments on duty on that day the sum of $3 as compensation for extra labor; the expense to be charged to the appropriations for the said departments.

Mr. Spenceley—I want just to leave that order to the good sense and judgment of the Council. During the year we have five holidays, and here is an extra one. I would like to ask any member of this Council when a fireman or policeman has had a holiday given to him during the year? Every policeman is ordered on duty on the 17th, and those away are ordered home. It used to be the saying with us boys, years ago, when a holiday came, it is fifty cents or play. It is no more than right, when those men do double duty, when all the rest of the departments are closed, that they should have extra compensation for extra work.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—This is opening the door to a large additional expenditure by the city. It is also rather novel. It is simply voting and giving an extra number of dollars to your city officials who, by reason of their regular duties, have to work on holidays. It is simply increasing their salaries just so much. In every office there are certain advantages and certain disadvantages, certain good things and certain evil things, certain gains and certain losses. One of the losses of members of the Fire and Police departments is that they have to attend to duty on holidays. It seems to me it is rather absurd, when that is a part of the regular duties, to pay them extra for the awkwardness of it. The next attempt will be that every time they really have to work hard enough to bring out the perspiration they should have three dollars extra.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—I should like the gentleman who introduced the order to explain what he means by double duty. It may be harder on that day than the day before, but I don't understand what he means by double duty. No other day is put into the calendar of the year, and they don't have to work any more days than they agree to when they receive the office. He asks that they be paid double because they do double duty. I propose to work on that day and don't expect to get any more than I earned the day before, or shall the day after. If I earn the same I shall consider myself fortunate. I don't know what is meant by double duty.

Mr. Spenceley—Our legal friend is like all his brethren in the profession. They only see one side of the case, be it pro or con. He only sees his side. I should like to ask the gentleman why the order was put in "to close the several departments of the City Government on the 17th of September, except Police and Fire departments, and to allow the employes a holiday without loss of pay." Why did n't he say, they are allowed a full day's pay, and ought to work. I took a better stand than that. I did n't say that those men should be deprived of this holiday; I voted for it. But here are men deprived of the holiday—not only this one, but every holiday during the year. I say that if they are doing work on that day, while all the other departments have a holiday, they are doing more work than the others, and we ought to compensate them. What more right has a clerk in City Hall to go away than a member of the Fire Department? The gentleman from Ward 9 speaks of the ins and outs in City Hall; but he sees only one side. Perhaps it is n't the popular side, but I believe in right and justice. I believe we ought to deal with them just as we do by others.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—The gentleman will admit that these firemen are employed with the direct understanding that they are to work on holidays. The gentleman will recollect the story told in a certain book of the man who hired a number of laborers and paid those who came late the same as those who came early, and some of the latter grumbled; and the employer said he had a right to give away that which is his own. The city of Boston has the right to release certain of its servants and clerks on that day; but if it does not see fit to release the police and firemen they have no right to complain. I doubt the justice and right of giving away the city of Boston's money in that manner.

Adjourned on motion of Mr. Barnard of Ward 24, and stood adjourned for two weeks.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen,
SEPTEMBER 21, 1877.

Special meeting at 12 M., called by his Honor the Mayor, who presided.

CONSTABLES.

On motion of Alderman Fitzgerald, the executive nominations of constables, submitted at the last meeting, were taken from the table.

Alderman Fitzgerald—It is important that this matter should be decided as soon as possible. The term of office of all constables expired on the 18th of the month, and they can perform no more duty. The position of constable is a very important one, and in it we should have men of good judgment and good honesty, and who should be equal, at least, to the deputies whom the sheriff appoints to execute civil process. In the hands of a dishonest and imprudent officer a writ of ejectment, execution or attachment can be made a source of great hardship and tyranny to the individual upon whom it is levied, whether upon his person or property. In my capacity as master in chancery I have an opportunity to know more about such officers than lawyers generally; and certainly more than any member of the Board of Aldermen. I am surprised that constables are not put to the same crucial test, at least, that police officers are put to. Year by year they have increased in numbers, until today they number about a hundred and fifty or sixty. I believe that many of the nominations on that list are such that I should under no consideration vote to confirm. I believe that the Mayor has not had, and could not have had, an opportunity to scrutinize the characters of some of those men. I believe that we should act cautiously, but in order that the public may not suffer, and that civil process may be served by some constables outside of the Sheriff's office, if people deem it expedient, I, with the assistance of Mr. McCleary, have selected all the names on the list of constables who are in the Collector's office, the Health Department and the truant officers, and those who hold office under the courts, and I move that those nominations be confirmed. The positions they hold are a sufficient guarantee that their characters are good; they are selected by the judges of the courts, by the School Board, the Collector and the Board of Health, and I am confident they would make no bad selections for these several offices. Outside of those officers I think that from twenty-five to thirty men would be quite sufficient to perform all the duties required of constables here, and it would, at the same time, afford them an opportunity to get a decent livelihood. There are several constables outside of the courts, whom I know to be very efficient, and I should propose their names now, but I think it would be better to leave them to a future meeting. I hope the remaining sixty-six or seven will be referred back to the Mayor, that he may select twenty-five or thirty of those whom he thinks are the most competent to fill that position.

Alderman Thompson—I heartily agree with what the Alderman has said. While there are some names that I would like to see added to the list, yet I shall wait till another time to do that. After the persons named in the Alderman's motion are confirmed, then we can select the best men from the remainder.

Alderman Viles—I have not that knowledge of the duties of constables that the Alderman who made the motion has, and I have no doubt there are too many lawyers as well as too many constables; still, it looks to me to be rather a hardship to turn out so many men.

Alderman Robinson—I move to add the names of Sarell Gleason and W. W. Williams to the list to be confirmed today. They have been highly recommended to me, and I hope their names will be added to the list.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I shall oppose that motion. If we begin with persons outside of the departments named, there is no knowing where we shall end. While I heartily indorse the character of those two men, whom I personally know, yet if the Board is going to confirm them, we might as well bring forward every man on that list whom they know and whom they can recommend. To take such action would destroy the very object I have in view, which was to lessen the number of constables and select the best.

Alderman Burnham—I hope the name of each person will be checked on the list which the Aldermen have, and if any Alderman has any objections to any of the names that are to be confirmed, I hope he will jot down the name and have it passed over.

The Mayor read the list of names included in Alderman Fitzgerald's motion, and said nominations were confirmed in accordance therewith.

Alderman Fitzgerald moved that the remainder of the names be recommended to the Mayor.

Alderman Clark—It is rather a delicate matter for the Mayor to select twenty-five or thirty names from the sixty-six or seventy that remain, and I would suggest that the list be referred to the Alderman from Ward 21, as he appears to know more about constables than any other member of the Board, and that he be requested to report the twenty-five names next Monday.

Alderman Thompson—I move that the Mayor, the chairman of the Board of Aldermen and Alderman Fitzgerald be a committee to consider the nomination of constables, and to select twenty-five names.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I hope the motion of Alderman Thompson will prevail. I hope the Chairman of the Board of Aldermen will serve upon that committee. In the "sweet by and by" he may probably be called upon to nominate these twenty-five or thirty men, and my knowledge of these constables may be of infinite service to him. I hope he will be upon the committee, that he may have the benefit of my practical experience with constables to enable him to nominate a good list of such officers when that time comes.

Alderman Clark accepted the amendment of Alderman Thompson, and the remaining nominations were referred to the Mayor, Aldermen Clark and Fitzgerald.

THE BLACKSTONE-SQUARE ACCIDENT ON THE 17TH.

Alderman Fitzgerald offered an order—That a committee of three on the part of this Board, with as many as the Common Council may please to join, be appointed for the purpose of investigating the cause of the late accident on Blackstone square, on the 17th of the present month, and also what person or persons are responsible for the same.

Alderman Fitzgerald—It is well known to everybody that this disaster, this lamentable and unfortunate accident, has occurred, and that somebody is to blame for it. The City Council having erected the stand, it becomes our duty to investigate the cause of this accident and report to the City Council and the public the facts in the case, so that the responsibility can be placed where it belongs. I understand that some other committee has taken some action in this matter. While I do not intend, by the order which I have introduced, to criticise the course of the committee in doing what they have done, yet I feel that the proper authorities, and those who alone could legally investigate this matter, are the City Council, or a committee appointed by them, and no committee of the City Council has now any authority to appoint anybody to make the investigation. In saying what I do, I do not intend to reflect upon the Committee on the Army and Navy Monument, for under the same circumstances probably nine out of ten members of the City Council would have done the same thing.

Alderman Thompson—No one deplored the accident more than did the Army and Navy Committee. They thought they had contracted with responsible parties to do the work, and with the approval of the Inspector of Buildings, they thought they were doing all that was in their power to do. With that view, I on Tuesday notified the Chief of Police to allow none of the debris to be removed from Franklin square. The committee met on the following morning and acted according to their best judgment in the matter; and I regret that their action did not meet with the approval of some of the press. It ought to be known, however, that it was impossible for them to consult everybody, and if they acted as the dictates of their consciences suggested to them, it was all that could be expected.

Alderman Wilder—I noticed in one of the morning papers, a day or two ago, an article headed "Wilder's Inquest," and in order to give a correct idea of what has been done toward investigating the cause of the accident, I should like the privilege of stating a few facts in regard to the selection of the commission which has been alluded to. I came to the City Hall on Tuesday morning to consult with the members of the Army and Navy Committee in relation to an investigation, but I found none of them here except Captain Flynn. I stated the case to him, and suggested the subject of an investigation. I mentioned the names of several well-known gentlemen, and urged that it was due to the public that there should be the fullest investigation possible. Without seeing any one else, I went to the office of Mr. Lee, the Clerk of Committees, and directed him to write to Messrs. N. J. Bradlee, Nathaniel Adams and Benjamin Whitcomb, and request them to examine the premises and ascertain and report to the committee such facts as would be important in an investigation which I had no doubt would be due to the public. I have not seen Mr. Bradlee, and I do not know that either of the gentlemen has accepted the position they were requested to take. The committee had no purpose in view but to secure a thorough investigation by responsible parties in whom the public had confidence. They desired the most complete and entire and satisfactory investigation.

Alderman O'Brien—While I approve of what the committee did, at the same time I feel that the proper thing to do is to pass the order offered by the Alderman from Ward 21. It does not need any great scientific men to find out the cause of this accident, and I believe that a committee of the City Council can easily get at the facts in the case.

Alderman Robinson—I move that two citizens at large be added to the committee. All those who held tickets procured them from members of the City Government, and a committee might be accused of being prejudiced against those who put up these stands.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I hope that motion will not prevail. The City Council are competent to take care of any business which legitimately belongs to them. With regard to the issuing of tickets, I hope that if this disaster has taught no other lesson it will teach City Governments hereafter the propriety of erecting no stands exclusively for the benefit of themselves and their friends on public holidays and fête days. They can have a grand stand on the sidewalk, or in the window of some neighbor, for their friends, and the City Government had better give up erecting those stands (which, at all events, to say the least, are illegal). If these things are not done hereafter, it will take away a source of annoyance from the members of the City Government, as they would not be importuned for tickets which they never could procure.

Alderman O'Brien—I have been referred to as a great sufferer in connection with this matter. My little boy had a leg broken, it is true, but I consider it very fortunate that it was no worse, as in the course of four or five weeks he may be nearly well. I only wish that all the others had suffered as little as he will. Compared with some of the others, I do not consider that he is a great sufferer.

Alderman Gibson—I supposed that the investigation of such a matter rested with the Committee on the Survey and Inspection of Buildings. This committee has not commenced an investigation as yet. I read in the paper that the Army and Navy Monument Committee had appointed a committee to investigate the matter, but did not believe it, supposing it was put into the paper as a joke.

Alderman Thompson—The Army and Navy Monument Committee had taken prompt steps in the matter, and I think its action should be approved. As far as newspaper comments were concerned, no notice should be taken of them. The committee did not go around and consult every one; it could not do so if it would. The committee was conscious that it had done perfectly right.

Alderman Burnham—I certainly commend the committee for their prompt action in selecting three experts to investigate the matter; but I think the order is a proper one and ought to pass.

Alderman O'Brien—I think it would be more appropriate for the City Council to look into this matter, because the question of putting up stands for the accommodation of the public, as suggested by the Alderman from Ward 21, is a doubtful one. The stands not only on Franklin and Blackstone squares were dangerous, but also the stand on the Common. If it had not been strengthened a short time before the people assembled, it would in all probability have gone down as did the one on Blackstone square.

Alderman Burnham—I would ask what authority the gentleman last up has for saying that the platform on the Common was insecure. I think that would be an unjust reflection on the Inspector of Buildings.

Alderman O'Brien—If I should tell the whole story I would say that the safety of the stand on the Common was owing to the steps taken by the Inspector of Buildings that the platform on the Common was made secure by additional props.

Alderman Wilder—Mr. Marston, the builder of the platform on the Common, had asked for an inspection. The Inspectors examined the platform and reported certain defects, and subsequently reported that these defects had been remedied. This report I had handed in to Deputy Quinn, on Monday morning, and this was the only report on any of the platforms of which I have any knowledge. No one had been allowed to go upon that platform upon the Common until it had been inspected by the Inspectors, and until they had reported that it had been altered to their satisfaction.

Alderman Fitzgerald suggested that the safety of other stands would be more properly discussed after the report of the committee had been made.

The order was passed, and Aldermen Fitzgerald, O'Brien and Breck were appointed on said committee. Sent down.

Adjourned.

CITY OF WASHINGTON

Department of Public Works

Office of the Engineer

Washington, D.C.

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen,
SEPTEMBER 24, 1877.

Regular meeting at four o'clock P. M., his Honor the Mayor presiding.

JURORS DRAWN.

Forty traverse jurors were drawn for the Superior Court, Second Session, and thirty-four traverse jurors for the same court, First Session.

EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENTS.

Police Officers Without Pay—Michael Farnham, James B. Mason, Bernard Madden, Patrick Falvy, D. Waldo Swallow, John H. Adams, Daniel Conners, Edward Whiting. Confirmed.

HEARINGS ON ORDERS OF NOTICE.

Hearings were had on orders of notice on expediency of constructing sewers in Jenkins street; in Rockland street; John A. Andrew street; Warren street and Blue Hill avenue. No objections, and severally recommitted to the Committee on Sewers.

A hearing was had on the order of notice on petition of Butchers' Slaughtering and Melting Association for leave to lay down tracks across North Beacon street, near Parsons street. No objections and recommitted to the Committee on Sewers.

PETITIONS REFERRED.

To the Committee on Paving. Benjamin James et al., that East Fourth street, between Dorchester and Atlantic streets, be paved with granite blocks; W. K. Lewis & Bros. et al., that Broad street, between Custom House street and Atlantic avenue, be paved with granite blocks; Solomon P. Stratton, for a crosswalk across Canton-street court.

Francis Burr et al., for a brick sidewalk on Chelsea street, from No. 143 to Marion street; Isaac Jacobs of Ward 23, for relief from curbstone assessment on Burroughs street; W. E. French et al., that Essex street be paved with granite blocks; E. F. Clapp et al., for edgestones and brick sidewalk on Blue Hill avenue.

Petitions for edgestones and brick sidewalks in front of estates of Samuel Snow, 615 East Ninth street; Katherine Anthus, 43 and 45 Gates street; Levi B. Gay, Huntington and St. James avenues; for edgestones in front of estates of Florence T. Chickering, Quincy street, corner Bellevue, Dorchester; for brick sidewalks in front of estates of Jane Hubner, 109 Seventh street; Sabrina T. Ryder, 245 to 251 Lexington street; Abner Coburn, Stoughton street, Dorchester.

To the Committee on Faneuil Hall. Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, for use of Faneuil Hall, Sept. 26 and 28, and Oct. 1, for drill; H. D. Cushing and fifty-five others, for the use of Faneuil Hall Sept. 27 and Nov. 5, for political meetings.

To the Joint Committee on Streets. T. F. Burns, for leave to occupy vacant land on Congress street, corner Post Office avenue, for sale of fruit, cakes and confectionery; W. C. Strong, for use of strip of land on Congress and State streets, for sale of trees and evergreens.

To the Committee on Lamps. Edward W. Nash et al., for lamps in Mather street, Ward 24; H. G. Burgess et al., for lamps on Bailey street; S. B. Shapleigh et al., that Arlington Heights, a private way off Cambridge street, Ward 25, be lighted; B. F. Bean, that Fountain Hill, leading from 24 Fountain street, be lighted; F. H. Deering et al., that Revere street, between Garden and Irving streets, be lighted; J. B. Maynard et al., for an additional street lamp, etc., in Wesley street, Charlestown; G. M. Starbird, that a lamp be placed on the corner of High and Walker streets, Charlestown; J. Kehew et al., that Gramplan way, Ward 24, be lighted.

To the Committee on Streets on the part of the Board. David W. Foster, that a betterment assessed upon his estate, corner of Shawmut avenue and Warrenton street, be refunded to him; Charles Davenport, for abatement of assessments for extension of Washington and Devonshire streets.

To the Committee on Armories. South Boston Iron Company, for payment of rent of armory of Company F, Ninth Regiment, for the year 1874.

To the Joint Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings. Albert P. Stearns, to erect wooden building rear of Taylor street, near Water street, Ward 24.

To the Committee on Health on the part of the Board. Petitions for leave to occupy stables by Henry J. R. Gatz, new wooden, one cow, on Haven avenue; heirs of William P. Snow, old wooden, three horses, on Plain street, Nepouset; Joseph Reidell, new wooden, two horses, on German street; John L. Dakin, new wooden, one cow, Lamartine street; Asa P. Potter, new brick, two horses, rear Commonwealth avenue; William Lovett, new wooden, one horse, Lincoln street, Ward 25; John C. O'Callahan, old wooden, three cows, Columbia street.

To the Joint Committee on Assessors' Department. Isaac L. Rich, assignee of James Knowlton, for abatement of a certain tax of 1876.

To the Committee on Sewers. Sarah E. Danforth, for a sewer in Thornton street, near her estate; C. Ellery Stedman et al., for a sewer in Dudley street, between Hancock and Humphreys streets; Louis Bonnie et al., for a sewer in Ferry street.

To the Joint Committee on Claims. Anu Collins and Hannah J. Lynch, to be paid damages for injuries received on Blackstone square, on Sept. 17, 1877; Thomas Goggin & Co., for payment of claim for construction of the mason work on the new city hospital.

CONSTABLES' BONDS.

The bonds of William A. Fort and twenty-six others, constables, being presented duly certified, were approved by the Board.

LYING-IN HOSPITAL REFUSED.

A report was received from the Board of Health that it is unable to give the certificate required by law on the petition of Orinda Webber for leave to keep a lying-in hospital at 63 Hammond street. Accepted, and said application refused.

DISCHARGE OF LABORERS.

Alderman O'Brien presented and had read a petition of Martin Murphy, James Burns, John Foley, John Magee, Robert White and James Fay, representing that they are citizens of Boston, living in Roxbury; that they have been employed by the city as laborers in the Paving Department; that they were discharged a short time ago, and they believe that they can show that the cause thereof was that they were witnesses before a committee of the Board of Aldermen; that they are married men, and that men who have no families are retained in the employ of the city since the petitioners have been discharged; and they ask for a hearing, and that they may not be allowed to suffer because they obeyed a summons from a committee of the Board of Aldermen. On motion of Alderman O'Brien, the petition was referred to the Committee on Paving.

BRIDGE FROM COMMERCIAL POINT TO SQUANTUM.

A petition was received from C. E. Folsom, W. P. Hunt and 101 others for a bridge from Commercial Point to Squantum.

In connection with this subject Alderman Clark offered an order—That the Board of Street Commissioners be appointed to consider the expediency of building a bridge to connect Commercial Point with Squantum, in North Quincy, and ascertain upon what terms the existing charter can be obtained, with authority to consult with the County Commissioners of Norfolk County, and to determine how the expense of building and maintaining the same shall be apportioned. Passed. Sent down.

PAPERS FROM THE COMMON COUNCIL.

Petitions, etc., were referred in concurrence.

The report and orders to expend not exceeding $20,000 for an additional pumping engine at pumping station, Elmwood street, and not exceeding $27,000 in constructing a second line of force main pipe for Mystic Water Works—the Committee on Finance to provide the means—came up referred to the Committee on Finance. Concurred.

Report of the City Engineer on the condition of the draw of the Charles River Bridge. Referred to the Committee on Bridges.

THE INSPECTION OF LIME.

The order for the removal of Daniel Higgins from the office of Inspector of Lime came up with an amendment, "that in the opinion of the City Council no further seizures of lime should be made till after the meeting of the next General Court."

The question was upon concurrence.

Alderman O'Brien—I am very much surprised at the shape that this lime business comes back to us. To pass the resolution would, I think, put the City Government in a wrong position. To request a sworn officer of the city to set aside and not enforce a statute law that he has sworn to enforce, I think, would be rather humiliating on the part of the City Government. I believe that this order ought to have passed the Common Council precisely as it passed the Board of Aldermen; but I don't want to send it back to the Council, and have it come back to us in this shape. I would consent to lay this whole matter on the table and let it rest there; and meantime, if the Inspector of Lime sees fit to interfere with the business of the city and act so as to deprive mechanics and laborers of work, we can take it up and dispose of him summarily. As he has pledged himself to remain passive, I think it would be better to let it lie upon the table. But perhaps we had better first take the vote on the question of non-concurrence with the Common Council. The Board non-concurred with the Common Council in the passage of the resolve. Sent down.

INVITATION ACCEPTED.

An invitation was received for the Mayor and City Council to attend the Caruey Hospital fair. Accepted. Sent down.

JAIL EXPENSES.

A requisition was received from the Sheriff of Suffolk County for $1861.82, for expenses at the jail for September. Ordered paid.

CHARGES AGAINST AN INSPECTOR.

The following was received and read:
The undersigned, a citizen of Boston, builder and carpenter, and interested in real estate in this city, respectfully represents that Thomas P. Sweat, an Assistant Inspector of Buildings, is an incompetent and unfit person for the position he now holds, inasmuch as he is ungentlemanly in his dealings, and is a man of strong prejudices; that he uses his office to the disadvantage and injury of others, in consequence of his need of mechanical knowledge and information; and also that he is in all ways an improper person for the office that he occupies, having had very little, if any, practical experience as a mechanic, thereby disqualifying him as an Inspector. Your petitioner therefore prays that some suitable person may be appointed in his stead.

WILLIAM B. QUIGLEY,
18 Cobden street, Highlands.

Referred, on motion of Alderman Clark, to the Joint Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings. Sent down.

LICENSES.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted reports from the Committee on Licenses, as follows:

Minors' Applications Granted—Six newsboys.
Wagon Licenses Granted—James F. Burnett, Navy Yard; Cresson's express, Court square; Patrick Coyle, Linden street, Dorchester; H. & J. Graham; C. Germesson, corner Pleasant and Fayette streets; Andrew Smith, 66 Prince street; Jones & Co., East Boston Express; C. F. Andrews, South End Express.

Dealers in Second-Hand Articles Licensed—William Howard, John O'Connor, Patrick Griffin, Edward Doherty & Riley, P. Hoge, Charles A. Ballou, M. Brophy, Patrick O'Brien, Cornelius Lane, L. Harris.

Pool Table Licensed—Charles Nelson, 269 Hanover street.

Victuallers Licensed—Frank J. Ham, 11 Dock square; Martha Crowell, 165 Commercial street; N. F. Packard, 1144 Tremont street; Philip Marzinski, 104 Eliot street.

Pawnbroker Licensed—Isaac M. Frissell, 10 Brattle square.

Shooting Gallery Licensed—Frederic Rudolph, Boylston street, Jamaica Plain, to close before seven o'clock P. M.

Passenger Wagon Licensed—William W. Burnett, to run through additional streets in East Boston.

Intelligence Office Licensed—Jennie A. Forsyth, 673 Washington street; Mary Kelley, 1 Mt. Vernon avenue; Mary E. Whitney, 687 Washington street.

Auctioneers Licensed—Jacob M. Ezekiel, 765 Washington street.

Amusement License Granted—George E. Lothrop, Boylston Museum, during season of 1877-78.

Billiard License Transferred—W. P. Stahl to David Hooper.

Report that Charles S. Higgins have leave to convey and ring a chime of bells through the streets, as a means of advertising, for a period not exceeding ten days.

Severally accepted.

FANEUIL HALL.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted a report from the Committee on Faneuil Hall in favor of granting the use of said hall to the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company on Sept. 26 and 28 and Oct. 1, for drill. Accepted.

SEWERS.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Sewers:

Reports and orders of notice for hearings on Monday next on expediency of constructing a sewer in Beacham street, Charlestown. Order passed.

Orders to build sewers in Rockland street between Wakulla and Dale streets; in Jenkins, Tuckerman, Dorchester, and through private land at foot of Jenkins street to Vinton street; through private land of Morrill and others from Blue Hill avenue to Warren street, and in Warren and Crawford streets. Severally read twice and passed.

Order to take land of George F. Woodman in J. A. Andrew street for sewer purposes. Read twice and passed.

CONSTABLES.

Early in the session the Mayor submitted a communication nominating the following-named persons to be constables of the city of Boston:

Richard F. Andrews, Ellery S. Ayer, James Ball, William S. Bangs, F. J. Baxter, Charles S. Blood, Charles A. Booth, James M. Carter, Lemuel Clark, H. R. Darling, Alvin S. Drew, Ephraim W. Farr, Thomas Fee, Jr., William T. Gardner, Sarell Gleason, John C. Harrington, John M. Hodgate, Frederick P. Knapp, Russell R. Knapp, Nicholas G. Lynch, John May, Jotham E. Munroe, Samuel Nash, Alonzo F. Neale, Isaiah Paine, Jr., George B. Proctor, Joseph R. Rowe, William Sherburne, Asa Southworth, Barry Sullivan, William H. Swift, George W. Tuckerman, William H. Warren, Jr. Wright W. Williams, David L. Fagin, Frank H. Butler and W. M. H. Copeland.

The question was upon confirmation of the appointments.

Alderman O'Brien—The Committee on Ordinances have had the subject of the appointment of constables before them for some time, and I believe they are prepared to make a report this afternoon. I therefore move to lay the confirmation on the table until such time as the Committee on Ordinances make their report.

The motion prevailed.

Later in the session Alderman Breck submitted the following:

The Committee on Ordinances who were requested to consider the expediency of providing by law the maximum number of constables to be appointed by the Mayor for the service of civil processes, and what rules and regulations are necessary to protect the public from the frauds and impositions practised by a few of these officials, having considered the subject, beg leave to submit the following report:

The committee are of the opinion that in addition to those who are appointed or designated for a special duty, viz., truant officers, constables in the Health Department, Collector's Deputies and those on regulation duty in the Supreme and Superior Courts, the number of constables appointed to serve civil process in the city of Boston should not exceed fifty.

They are also of the opinion that a violation by any constable of either of the provisions of chapter 17, section 64, chapter 18, section 65, or chapter 121, section 4, of the General Statutes, should be deemed sufficient ground for his removal. In view of the fact that the appointment and removal of constables is vested by law in the Mayor and Aldermen, the committee are of the opinion that it is not within the power of the City Council to limit the number; but they believe that it is competent for the Board of Aldermen to establish the maximum of constables that may be required for the public service, and by a rule of the Board provide for the appointment of that number only.

Accepted. Sent down.

During the session a communication was received from the Mayor appointing W. A. Wright a constable in connection with his duties as truant officer. Confirmed.

Near the close of the session, on motion of Alderman O'Brien, the executive communication nominating constables was taken from the table.

Alderman O'Brien—Since the last meeting of the Board, I have thought that the cutting down of the constables to twenty-five in number was too radical a change; but as the gentlemen to whom it was referred have increased the number to thirty-five or six, I do not see but it is a great improvement. The reason why the Committee on Ordinances reported fifty as the limit is the fact that we have twenty-five wards in the city, and on election days it is understood that two constables are stationed in each one of these wards; and in order to give two constables to a ward it required fifty outside of those connected with the courts. There are four lawyers on the Committee on Ordinances, and they have also considered this matter very thoroughly, and they feel that fifty ought to be the limit of the constables appointed every year. But I have no objection to the confirmation of the appointments now presented. I would ask for information what the meaning of this clause is in the bond given by the constables: "Having been appointed by the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Boston one of the constables within said city for one year only, and until another be appointed in his place." I understood, during the discussion here at the last meeting, the time of service of these constables had expired; but, according to the bond that they give to the city of Boston, they continue in office until their places are filled. I don't know whether it has any binding force or not.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Not the slightest. They were appointed on the eighteenth day of September, 1876, and hold office until the eighteenth day of September, 1877. Their term of office is for one year simply. Perhaps it is better that the bond should remain so; there may be a reason for it.

The nominations were confirmed.

POLICE.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Police:

Reports recommending the confirmation of the executive appointments of Charles A. Moncrieff, Bernard Murray, Andrew Maguire, M. P. Daley, Edward F. Flannigan and Williams Burns to be police officers. Accepted, and said nominations confirmed.

Report that leave be granted the Faneuil Hall Temperance Reform Club to project a transparency in front of 21 Hanover street.

Report recommending that the executive nomination of John Doherty to be a police officer be rejected.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Are physical causes the reason why this confirmation is not recommended?

Alderman Robinson—I have a line from that individual asking and begging me not to state the reason for his non-confirmation.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Do I understand the chairman of the committee to say that he won't tell why? I ask whether they are physical or moral causes why he should not be confirmed.

Alderman Robinson—At the last meeting I expressly stated that it was not the intention of the Committee on Police, any more than any other committee, to state the reasons why they do not confirm the appointment. That was approved by the Board of Aldermen, I think, and besides this I had a line from the individual asking and begging me not to explain it.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The chairman of the Committee on Police says that they will not give their reasons any more than any other committee. There is not a committee of this Board but, when they recommend that a matter should not be passed, always give the reasons when they are called upon. When a nomination is made, it is always presumed that it will be confirmed unless there are good reasons to the contrary. If any man comes before this Board of Aldermen as a candidate for office, and thus places himself in a position to be criticised, he should not find fault if that criticism is made. If there is anything in his physical condition that renders him unfit for this position, he should find no fault if he be criticised and the reasons given. He had better not have applied for the office. I can see a very good reason for giving the cause of rejection in all these cases. The Mayor and every member of this Board and the Committee on Police may be dead fifteen years from this time, and if this same person comes up for examination there will be this report against him, recommending that his nomination be non-confirmed, and he may be rejected on that account. That is why I say that every man who offers himself as a candidate for office should be sure that his moral and physical condition is good. If we report that a man's moral and physical condition is not good, I tell you it will deter a great many from offering themselves for the position of policemen.

Alderman Robinson—The Alderman's remarks are very good, but they don't apply to the case. If the gentleman had gone and looked at the rules of the Police Department he would have seen that all this eloquence was for nothing. There is something that people who apply have that they are tenacious about keeping away from the knowledge of the public. Therefore, unless instructed by this Board of Aldermen, I shall not tell why persons are rejected. Of course, if the Aldermen choose to dictate, the records are open to them.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I have no doubt the report of the committee will be accepted; but I simply state, as a rule we should stick to and stand by, that there is no good reason why this committee should not give the reasons for their report, as well as any other committee. That is what I say.

Alderman Robinson—We have applications for the widening and paving of streets, and for all sorts of things, and the chairman of the committee simply reports leave to withdraw. If there is any objection to the same report in the case of policemen, the members of the Board of Aldermen can go to the records and see what it is. As I said the other day, if we cannot do a man any good, we will not do him any harm. I thought that the opinion of the Board of Aldermen had settled this thing forever.

Alderman O'Brien—This appointment was referred to the committee, and it is now in the hands of the Board of Aldermen, and—Alderman Robinson—Is is a nomination, not an appointment.

Alderman O'Brien—It was referred to a Committee of the Board of Aldermen, and it was their duty to report it back to us with their objections to the appointment. But what settles the matter in this man's case is, that he don't want the objections—whether physical or moral—named. I should consider that the best way to dispose of this matter.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The way for a man to do in such a case as that is to ask the Mayor to withdraw his name. I think that if the Committee on Police were to adopt the rule of giving the reasons why they reject nominations—whether physical or moral—I venture to say you would n't see half so many persons applying for the position of policeman. The Alderman says we never give reasons for street widenings or paving. Why, no Alderman would be so foolish as to refuse to give his reasons for or against any such measure. Every member would give it. The proper course for a man who is brought up for policeman, in such a case as this, is to request the Mayor to withdraw his name. But I think that if the Committee on Police and this Board adopt the rule of reporting the reasons why the committee do not recommend this Board to confirm any nominations referred to them, you will have persons applying who are more particular about their physical and moral characters. They will examine their consciences more before coming up here and asking you to appoint them.

Alderman Thompson—It seems to me that the better way to remedy this difficulty would be to return to the old custom of having these examinations made before the appointment is made, and then when the appointments are made the committee are ready to act upon the confirmation. I think that would be the better course hereafter.

Alderman Viles—As the person whose name is before the Board lives in my section of the city, and as he does not wish to have it known why he is rejected, I would say that I have known him for some time, and that morally he is all right.

Alderman Clark—I fully agree with the Alderman from Charlestown, that every man who applies for the position of policeman should be examined by the Mayor, the committee and the Chief of Police before his name is brought before this Board of Aldermen. Then if there are any moral objections to a man the Mayor will not send his name in. During the whole time that I had the honor to serve upon the Committee on Police, there never was a man appointed that was n't first examined by the Committee on Police as to where he was born, and as to his previous character; and he was examined by the Mayor and the Chief of Police and the entire Police Department before his name was put before the Board of Aldermen for confirmation. After undergoing an investigation of that kind, there is but little chance of a man's name being presented for confirmation if there is anything against his moral character. He may be physically disabled, but if he is morally disabled his name will not be put before us. Now, here is a man with a reflection upon his character. Morally he is all right. I had reason to suppose that morally he is all wrong, but the Alderman says his moral character is all right. There is no objection to saying that a man could not pass the medical examination. Had it not been for the explanation I should have supposed that he had been before the courts for some misdemeanor. That question is always asked—whether a man uses intoxicating drinks, whether he has been before the courts for any misdemeanor, and everything of that kind. I believe, with the Alderman from Charlestown, that the safest way for the appointee is to return to the old custom of having men examined before they are appointed.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I don't care how the thing is accomplished; but what I care about is that I am obliged to give my vote, and as a member of this Board I want to vote intelligently, and I shall never give my vote against any man unless I know why I am doing so. I do not know this man. I am very glad the Alderman from Ward 6 has spoken as he has. I am glad to know that there are no moral objections to him. From the report of the chairman of the committee any one would come to the conclusion that the objection was of such a nature that it would cast an odium upon him before the public. I don't care in what way you arrive at it—whether by examination before the nomination or not—but I say that if a man comes before this Board of Aldermen every member of this Board should know what are the defects in his character, if there are any; and if the Mayor makes a nomination we should know the reasons why it should be rejected. I agree with the Aldermen opposite that the man should be examined before he is appointed, to see whether he has varicose veins or not, and whether he stands five feet eight in his stockings. If a report is to be made to this Board, I think it is quite proper that we should know all about it. I don't care how the conclusion is arrived at, so we have the report. I am very glad the gentleman has got up and said there is no objection to the character of this man. Then it must be on account of his physical condition. No man need be ashamed of that, because it is something over which he has no control.

Alderman O'Brien—I suppose, like every member of the Board, I have had quite a number of applications to use my influence and assistance for an appointment upon the police force. I believe I have introduced two or three parties to your Honor for a position of that kind. I am sorry to say that they were not appointed in every instance. But I have understood your Honor to say that every question which the gentleman opposite says ought to be propounded to applicants for positions on the police, has been propounded to every applicant before you put the nomination before this Board. I have understood that you asked them every question suggested by the Alderman, and that your Honor sent in the nomination when the answers were satisfactory. I do not suppose, Mr. Mayor, that you are expert enough to go into the physical examination of the party; and I suppose that you cannot answer so well for his physical ability to perform the duties; but I presume that every appointment that has been rejected by this Board has been for some physical disability. I believe I mentioned that fact the other night. When an application is indorsed by two or three Aldermen and twenty or thirty Councilmen, and by a Governor and an ex-Governor, it is almost impossible for such a man's character to be anything but all right—so far as his moral character is concerned.

Alderman Clark—I have not the slightest doubt about all these questions being asked by the Mayor; but I have known a case where the Mayor investigated a case that some questions came up after his character had been thoroughly investigated. I have no doubt that the utmost care has been taken, but there is no danger of giving this matter too thorough investigation. So far as an applicant having been recommended by Governors and ex-Mayors, I have known some of the poorest characters presented having the recommendations of some of the best men in the community.

Alderman Gibson—I can readily see why the committee desire to keep silent and not give their reasons. Perhaps they have evidence that the moral character that a man bears debars him from being a police officer, although he may not have been convicted in any court, for a man is always deemed to be innocent until he is proved guilty. I suppose that the committee has such evidence before them as convinces them that the man is not fit to be a policeman. They may be so certain of it that they feel it their duty to recommend that he be not confirmed; but in the absence of positive evidence they cannot get up here and state that this man did a certain thing on a certain day. It is known to be the case where parties, having a large number of persons in their employ, have set traps for some of them, and although they have not obtained any positive evidence of crime, they have learned sufficient to warrant them in discharging their employes. I have known parties discharged because their services were not wanted any longer, for there was good reason to believe that they took the funds of other persons. They apply to know the reason, and we give them no reason. We simply don't want their services any longer. Now I can see that this committee are in the same position. They drop a man off and let him down as easily as they can. But so far as this matter is concerned, the Alderman opposite has said that there is nothing against his moral character. If there was, and I was on that committee, I should state it.

Alderman Clark—I wanted to say that this year confirmations have been rejected on account of moral character. I thought so; and I am substantiated in that by a member of the committee. Some two years ago an appointment was made, and it was laid over one week; some citizens brought in a charge against the party, another examination was gone into, the charge was found to have been correct and the nomination was rejected. So that this year there have been rejections on account of a man's moral character, as well as physical disability.

Alderman Gibson—I think it is well for all these nominations to lie over one week, so that the public may know about them. I would move that hereafter they lie upon the table one week, so that the whole public may know and have an opportunity to come in and state their objections to a man. There are so many seeking the position that we shall always hear the objections.

Alderman Robinson—I am happy to say that in this case there is not a single flaw in the man's moral character, and it was with some considerable degree of feeling that I was obliged to report against him.

Alderman O'Brien—I think that ought to be satisfactory, and I hope we shall go on and act upon the nomination. I have no doubt that a policeman might be put through all kinds of cross-questioning, and still there might be a flaw in his character. There are exceptions to every rule, but I maintain that the great number of the rejections by this Board are on account of physical disability. There are few men who are perfect both physically and morally.

Alderman Clark—in regard to appointments lying over a week, I understand that they are to be referred to the Committee on Police, and if any one desires to make objections they have an opportunity to do so during the week they are in the hands of the committee.

The report was accepted and the appointment rejected.

PAVING REPORTS AND ORDERS.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Paving:

Report that petition of H. S. Bean et al., for cross walks on Warren street and Blue Hill avenue at Woodbine street, be granted. Accepted.

Reports and orders for brick sidewalks in front of estates of Charlestown Five Cent Savings Bank on Sterling street, and for edgestones and brick sidewalks in front of estate of Delano & Little, 534 Fifth street. Orders severally read twice and passed.

Report and order of location for a railroad track by the Butchers' Slaughtering and Melting Association, with the usual conditions. Order read twice and passed.

Report and order to abate the sidewalk assessment of $74.04 against the estate of the heirs of Isaac Callbeck, on White and Eutaw streets. Order read twice and passed.

Report and order for a hearing on Oct. 8 next, on expediency of changing the position of the tracks of the Cambridge Railroad Company, on Washington street, Brighton, between Foster street and Oak square, from the side to the centre of the roadway; and any person objecting thereto may then appear and be heard. Passed.

Report of leave to withdraw on petition of the Highland Street Railway Company, for leave to run their cars to the northern depots. Laid on the table on motion of Alderman Fitzgerald, until the question of the blockade is settled. Alderman Fitzgerald gave notice of intention to submit a minority report.

Report of leave to withdraw on petition of Highland Street Railway Company to rescind part of location granted March 19. Accepted.

Report that leave be granted M. Ellis & Co. to move wooden building from Beunington street to Church street, Ward 1. Accepted.

Reports of leave to withdraw on petitions of Mary E. Leach to be paid for grade damages on Spring Garden street; Bridget McMamarny for abatement of assessment for sidewalk at 205 London street, East Boston; Bridget Clay for abatement of sidewalk assessment. Severally accepted.

Order to pave Richmond street, between North and Hauover streets, with small granite blocks; estimated cost $2000.

Alderman Thompson—I cannot vote for the acceptance of the report of this committee. I desire to know why this committee do not answer the petition of a large number of citizens in Charlestown, when they petitioned early in the year for the paving of Main street, which is one of the thorough avenues of this city, and which, I venture to say, is in a worse condition than any other street or avenue in the city. I have inquired of the committee why they do not report something of this kind, but I have been told that there is no money. I find that there is money enough to pave side streets which I know do not compare with the condition of Main street in Charlestown. If members of this Board would visit that section of the city they would see that the condition of that street is such as to endanger the city for damages in consequence of its being in an unfit condition for the travelling public. Here every week we have appropriations for this street and that to be paved, which do not compare with that thoroughfare in importance or in its bad condition. I would like a report from this committee why they should not pave that street. It certainly is in a worse condition and needs attention more than any other street in the city. Now, sir, I have been accused by a certain paper in this city of representing a certain ward. I desire to say that the ward in which I reside has not had one dollar for paving, or any such thing. The district which I reside in—and which I don't represent any more than I do the whole city—has had one street paved, and that at the expense of leaving Main street in its present dangerous condition. I hope this report will be laid upon the table this afternoon, and that the committee will report the reason for not paving Main street.

Alderman Robinson—The appropriation for paving—and I was told by the chairman that it was by the instrumentality of the Alderman from Charlestown—was cut down one hundred thousand dollars. There was a small amount to be divided between the five hundred miles of streets in this city. The only just course for the committee to do was to divide it around honestly and fairly, so far as the committee could do. In Charlestown there was quite enough to do to take the whole of the appropriation; the paving of Bunker Hill street was urged upon it as hard as anything could be. There is Main street, which would cost a hundred thousand dollars to pave; and there is Cambridge street, which we did do at an expense of twenty thousand dollars, and Charlestown has had its proportional part of the money which the City Government gave to the Committee on Paving. They complain in South Boston, in Roxbury, in West Roxbury, and everywhere, that there is not enough done on the streets, when the fact is there is not half enough to do with. Now, the committee went over to Charlestown and looked at Cambridge street, and in the opinion of the committee it needed repaving most, and consequently they did it. It will cost nearly a hundred thousand dollars to pave Main street. It is not the fault of the committee; they would be glad to do these things, but they have not got the money to do it with, and the City Government did not give them money enough. They would be glad enough to pave Main street or any other street in Charlestown, if there was a special appropriation for it. If they had been given that extra hundred thousand dollars, they would have been able to do more about the city.

Alderman Thompson—I am very glad the Alderman has given me an opportunity to answer him in public as to my being punished, or as to the district I live in being punished because I voted in the Committee on Appropriations to reduce the appropriation for Paving from $950,000 to $850,000, because it was represented that this year eight hundred and fifty thousand would go as far this year as a million did last year. But that amount was increased, and nine hundred and fifty thousand was appropriated for the Committee on Paving this year against a million last year. Now, sir, that has been thrown at me two or three times because I voted thus; and so the district in which I live was not to be noticed, but was to go on in its present dangerous and unfit state. My idea is that it is the duty of that committee, as well as of every other committee, to attend to that section of the city that needs attention the most. If Main street, in Charlestown, needs paving more than any other street within the city limits, it should be paved and attended to this year; not that a certain portion of the money must go here where it does n't need attention particularly, but simply because it is one section of the city. If one section of the city is in a dangerous condition, it should receive the attention of the Paving Committee, and they should spend their money where it will do the most good, rather than apportion it out in order to satisfy this or that party; that is what I complain of. The chairman says we have not got money enough to do this, that and the other, when day after day orders come in here to pave this and that street. Now, in regard to paving Cross street, there is nothing like the need of paving that that there is of paving Main street; and I question the wisdom of spending so much money in the paving of Cambridge street. Why, sir, Cambridge street is merely an avenue off Main street, with which there are four other avenues connected, to carry off the travel that comes through Main street. Main street has to take the travel from these four avenues, of which Cambridge street is but one. All the travel from those four avenues passes through Main street. It has n't been paved for thirty years, and is in a most outrageous condition. When the Alderman says they cannot pave it, I say that if we cannot pave the whole of it, pave all you can. They say there is no money; yet orders come in here to pave all those streets, and I object to it. If they cannot attend to it, I want them to give the reason why, and then we will answer the objection.

Alderman Viles—The Committee on Paving have judiciously and wisely reported in favor of repaving Richmond and Cross streets, in my section of the city. This is the third year that the people have petitioned for the repaving of Richmond street, and they have had leave to withdraw every year. A captain of a steamer tells me that he has to avoid that street, and it takes two or three minutes longer to reach the steamer. Cross street is an up-grade. One of the largest iron firms is located there. The street is very much out of repair, and the paving of both streets costs less than $4000. I hope the Board will adopt the report of the committee.

Alderman Robinson—I am surprised that the Alderman from Charlestown said I wished to punish him. I distinctly said that there was not money enough, and that Charlestown had had her portion of what money there was. Now, I went through Main street, the other day, and if you were to compare it with many avenues in New York, you will find it is much better—I think much better. If the committee had money enough they would be glad to do it. But you know that the appropriation is divided into certain parts—not certain localities, but certain kinds of paving—so much for repairs of streets, so much for bridges, so much for edgestones, so much for crosswalks, so much for macadamizing, etc., etc. There were petitions in for twelve hundred and fifty thousand dollars' worth of paving, for which there was only three hundred and fifty thousand dollars. Since that time there have been a hundred and fifty or two hundred thousand dollars more of expense that we did not know anything about at the commencement of the year. The Columbus-avenue bridge had to be built—we did not know that that had got to be done. All that is so much out of the appropriation for paving. Columbus avenue required to be paved with asphalt. Charlestown has had as much of the appropriation as any other part of the city, in proportion to the condition of the streets; and they have had considerable going on in the several wards. They have had as much as any other part of the city.

Alderman Fitzgerald—What is the question before the Board?

The Mayor—The passage of the order to pave Richmond street.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Then I raise the point of order that no other question is in order here except the paving of Richmond street.

The Mayor—The Chair thinks the point well taken.

Alderman Thompson—I think I made a motion that the report of the committee be laid upon the table in order to give them an opportunity to report why they did not answer the petition made in the early part of the year, and I am sure every year since Charlestown has been a part of this city, in regard to this street.

The motion to lay on the table was lost, and the order was passed.

Reports and orders to pave Marginal street, between Lewis and Clyde streets, with small granite blocks; estimated cost, $8000; and to pave Cross street, between North and Hanover streets, with small granite blocks; estimated cost, $1800. Severally read twice and passed.

Reports and orders for edgestones in front of estates of A. J. Tibbets, 90 and 92 Blue Hill avenue; Howard Clapp, Fifth street, corner of Jay street; Timothy McCarthy, Everett street, corner of Cottage street. Orders read twice and passed.

PUBLIC GROUNDS.

Alderman Clark submitted the following from the Joint Committee on Common and Public Grounds:

Reports of (leave to withdraw) on petitions of Young Men's Christian Association for leave to hold religious meetings on the Common; and Eliza T. Clapper for the reopening of the well on the Eaton lot, Dorchester. Severally accepted. Sent down.

PETITION FOR COMPENSATION FOR INSPECTION OF A CHURCH.

Alderman Clark presented the following: The trustees of the Charles-street Baptist Society, while making general repairs upon the church corner of Mt. Vernon and Charles streets, this summer, were visited by Inspector Shaw, who condemned the cupola, and ordered it either to be taken down or strengthened in such a manner as to meet his approval. It has been repaired and pronounced by Mr. Shaw entirely safe and satisfactory to him.

The town and city of Boston have had the use of the bell for seventy years. The city has the entire control of the bell and cupola no other parties having access to it. The bell was used in experimenting upon the present system of fire alarms, and, feeling satisfied that the city desired to continue the use of the bell in connection with the clock and fire alarms, we believed that the city would willingly pay for any necessary repairs rather than have the cupola and bell taken down; thus necessitating the city to put up a tower and purchase a new bell at a much larger expenditure of money than the amount expended for repairs. Mr. L. M. Burgess, the carpenter who made the necessary repairs, has rendered us a bill for $481.74, which is annexed, and is entirely for the work upon the cupola under the direction of Inspector Shaw.

We therefore respectfully ask your honorable Board to allow and have paid this bill after examination of the items and facts above stated, or allow so much of the bill as in your judgment is just and equitable (under the circumstances) for the city to pay.

Respectfully submitted,
BENJAMIN F. BROWN,

Treasurer of the Trustees of the Charles-street Baptist Society, 163 Devonshire street.

Referred to the Joint Committee on Claims. Sent down.

THE ARMY AND NAVY MEMORIAL.

Alderman Clark offered an order—That the Clerk of Committees be requested to prepare and print an account of the ceremonies attending the dedication of the Army and Navy Monument; and that 1500 copies be printed for the use of the City Government, to be distributed under the direction of the Committee on Printing; the expense to be charged to the appropriation for Incidentals.

Alderman Fitzgerald—What is the cost going to be? Are we ever going to get through with this Army and Navy Monument? Is there any expenditure connected with this volume?

Alderman Clark—No amount is named. It is simply to have prepared and printed 1500 copies, as is usual in cases of this description, where there has been a celebration which has given such general satisfaction to the community as the dedication of the Army and Navy Monument has given. An account of the celebration, together with the addresses made on that occasion, will be an interesting volume for coming generations. It is necessary and important to preserve in some form the speeches and oration delivered on that occasion. I should imagine the expense would be about a thousand dollars. Memorials of the celebration of the Seventeenth of June, and of Charles Sumner have been printed, and form a valuable part of the libraries of the members of the City Government of those years. I hope the same courtesy will be extended to the Committee on the Army and Navy Monument.

Alderman Fitzgerald—While I have no objection to the order, I think it ought to be referred to some committee who can report to this Board the cost. It may be that there will be no need at all of taking it from the incidental expenses; perhaps the appropriation for the dedication of the Army and Navy Monument might be quite sufficient to pay all the bills. The President of the United States did not come to the celebration, and as I understood, it was calculated that four or five thousand dollars would be saved—fifteen hundred, the Alderman [Alderman Wilder] says—by the non-appearance of the President of the United States at this celebration. The banquet given on the night of the celebration, which the chairman of the committee said no one had in contemplation, or thought about—that banquet, that frugal banquet, indicates that there must still be something left of the appropriation for the Army and Navy Monument. I presume that the fifteen hundred dollars intended for the President of the United States and his entertainment may not be spent, and probably that would pay for the printing of this little volume. As the members of the City Council had not the privilege of sitting upon the stands, perhaps they would publish that part of the programme of the day. It would be well that they should have a memento or memorial of what occurred; but I should wish to see the Committee on Printing investigate and report what fund this should be taken from, how much it would probably cost, and how many copies it would probably require. The Army and Navy Committee must have something left of the appropriation still. I think that if the money that was given for a banquet, and which the members of this Board, by their speech and private conversation, showed to the Committee on the Army and Navy Monument, would be out of place on that evening—I think a great many of the members so expressed themselves—I think if that money had been devoted to the purpose which this order covers, it would be better than giving a banquet at the close of the day devoted to dedicating a memorial to those who fell on land and sea. I think the money would have been better spent than in a banquet on such a solemn day, which brought sorrowful memories to the hearts of so many fathers and mothers. I think the Army and Navy Committee must have something left still.

Alderman Thompson—I do not propose to advocate the publication of the doings of the committee, or the sayings of those who took part in the ceremonies of that day. If the City Council do not choose to preserve the account of the dedication of the monument, it makes no difference to me; it is only in conformity with the usual custom. An account of the centennial of Bunker Hill was published, and I am sure that the citizens were well satisfied with it, as the demand for the copies of that record will testify. There was also a memorial of the celebration of the anniversary of the siege of Boston. I presume we have not more interesting works in our libraries than those. The President of the United States was not present last year, to be sure, but the City Government deemed it of sufficient importance to preserve the record. Now, the Alderman proposes to ascertain the cost of this. I presume it would be impossible for the Committee on Printing to estimate the cost, because it will take some time to prepare the work. My idea is that there are many letters that the committee received from distinguished men in the United States, and

I should wish to see preserved the sentiments they contain. All that will take time. Then again, the Alderman refers to a balance that may be left in the hands of the committee. If there is any balance left it will go into the city treasury, and it makes no difference whether this expense is paid from one appropriation or another. Now, a great deal has been said about this banquet; it was not a banquet. It was one of the most economical entertainments ever given by the city. The Committee on Monument saw that it would be impossible to get through with the celebration before dark. The members of the City Government and the invited guests were invited to be here before nine o'clock, and we knew it would require until late in the afternoon before the ceremonies were concluded. Then the question came before the minds of the committee, whether or not this was a proper way to treat the guests of the city—keeping them in the hot sun without anything to refresh them. It seems to me it would be a rude thing to do; and for myself I am willing to bear my share of the blame for preventing rudeness to the guests of the city, which I consider would have been the case had not some refreshment been provided for them. But, sir, there was no banquet. It was as simple as could be. The Alderman referred to the sorrow of those whose friends died; but I am sure that all returned officer enjoyed themselves as much as possible at meeting their old friends.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I did not refer to the gentlemen who took part in the jollity of the banquet. I have no doubt it was a very pleasant entertainment. But I think the Committee on Printing should have charge of this matter. I move that it be referred to the Committee on Printing, and that they report the cost of each volume. I don't think this general order should be passed.

Alderman Clark—I have not the slightest objection to the order being referred to the Committee on Printing.

The order was referred to the committee, with the request that they report to the Board the cost of each volume. Sent down.

Subsequently Alderman Thompson offered the following, which were severally passed by a unanimous rising vote:

Ordered, That the thanks of the City Council are due and they hereby are tendered to Colonel Augustus P. Martin, for the very acceptable and successful formation and management of the military and civic procession on the 17th inst., in honor of the completion of the Army and Navy Monument on Boston Common.

Ordered, That the thanks of the City Council be presented to Hon. Charles Devens for the very eloquent and patriotic oration delivered by him before the municipal authorities of this city at the dedication of the Army and Navy Monument, upon Boston Common, on the 17th day of September, A. D., 1877; and that he be requested to furnish a copy of the oration for publication.

Ordered, That the thanks of the City Council be presented to Commodore Foxhall A. Parker of the United States Navy for the valuable services and assistance rendered, by his permission, to the Committee of Arrangements at the dedication of the Army and Navy Monument on the 17th inst., and especially for the escort furnished to the City Government by the Marine Corps and sailors which formed so conspicuous a feature in the procession on that day.

Severally sent down.

STABLES.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Health on the part of the board

Reports that leave be granted, on the usual conditions, to occupy stables by George W. Farwell, Conder street; A. M. and C. M. Wood, Winchester street; Bartholomew Hickey, Downer street; Josiah H. Carter, on street between Commercial street and Neponset avenue; F. V. Balch, Centre street; L. H. Jones, Pleasant street; A. Hutt, Frankliu street; William Dolon, Baker street; J. G. Shillaber, Washington, corner Tremont street; George W. Tnxbury, Clapp street; R. P. Paine, Jr., four stables on rear Buckingham street, each one-story high; James E. Bowe, Douglas street, Ward 14. Severally accepted.

COLLECTOR'S DEPARTMENT.

Alderman Gibson offered an order—That there be paid to D. G. Quirk the sum of $52 from the appropriation for Collector's Department; to Edward W. Dolan, $23, and to John Pierce $20, the last two amounts to be charged to Real Estate Advertising. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

IMPROVED SEWERAGE.

Alderman Birnham offered an order—That the City Engineer, under the direction of the Committee on Improved Sewerage, be authorized to employ such assistance and incur such other expenses as may be necessary in the construction of the improved system of sewerage. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

PERMIT FOR STEAM ENGINE.

Alderman Gibson submitted a report from the Committee on Steam Engines in favor of granting a permit to Frank J. Nelson to locate and use a steam engine and boiler at 173 and 177 Sumner street. Accepted.

NEPONSET BRIDGE TO BE CLOSED.

Alderman Thompson offered an order—That Neponset Bridge be closed to the public travel on Monday, Oct. 1, 1877, and remain closed until the repairs thereon are completed. Read twice and passed.

MESSENGER FOR TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

Alderman Gibson submitted the following:

The Joint Standing Committee on Treasury Department respectfully request that they are in receipt of a communication from the City Treasurer (herewith submitted), in which he makes application for a messenger to be attached to his office, and duly sets forth the necessity existing for the employment of such an officer.

Your committee having conferred with the Treasurer, are in favor of granting his request, and respectfully recommend the passage of the accompanying order:

Ordered, That the City Treasurer be authorized to appoint, subject to the approval of the Joint Standing Committee on Treasury Department, a messenger to be attached to his department, who shall furnish a bond for the faithful performance of his duties in the penal sum of ten thousand dollars, with sureties satisfactory to said committee; and that the compensation of said officer be established at the rate of one thousand dollars per annum, beginning with the date of his appointment and continuing until otherwise ordered.

Read twice and passed. Sent down.

PUBLIC LANDS.

Alderman O'Brien submitted a report from the Joint Standing Committee on Public Lands, on the petition of Henry Norwell and James M. Smith, for the renewal of the conditions placed in deed given by the city of Boston to Abner Kingman, dated Jan. 17, 1863, recommending the passage of an order—That the Mayor be authorized to execute an instrument drawn in a form satisfactory to the City Solicitor, whereby the city shall, so far as it legally may, release the parcel of land on Springfield street, described in a deed from the city to Abner Kingman, dated Jan. 17, 1863, and recorded with Suffolk Deeds, lib. 822, fol. 37, from the conditions contained in said deed; provided that the owners of said estate at the same time execute a proper instrument, whereby the said estate shall be made subject to the following restrictions: That no building erected, or to be erected, upon said premises shall be used for a livery stable, or for foundry or manufacturing purposes, or for any other business which shall be offensive to the neighborhood for dwelling houses, and that no building shall be erected thereon within ten feet of said Springfield street.

Read twice and passed. Sent down.

LICENSE COMMISSIONERS.

Alderman Clark presented a communication from the License Commissioners, requesting that, on investigation, their salaries may be fixed at more adequate rates, and submitting the following statement for information:

Last year the commission paid to the city $173,000. This year the commission paid, estimated, $250,000; expenses last year (leaving out the pay of thirty police as below referred to), $29,000; expenses this year, estimated, $30,000; city paid State last year one-quarter, $42,999.87; city will pay State this year about $64,000; net income to city last year, about $100,000; net income to city this year about $157,000; excess this year, $57,000; city paid for legal services to parties outside the commission, $3165.45; this year the members have done all legal work, will save the city $3165.45; last year the commission had on an average eight officers at its rooms, $8000, and two at each station, $30,000, making the whole expense of office really $38,000; $30,000 was charged to Police Department; this year the Board have had fifteen officers, none others permanently detailed, costing $15,000; licenses last year, 1400 odd, this year, 2000 odd, 180 cases in court thus far. We have one clerk less this year than last. In the expense of last year are included salaries of commissioners, $3000 each; in the expense of this year same salaries at rate proposed, $1000 each; last year 1400 licenses, 2400 places where liquor was sold.

Alderman Clark—I hardly know what disposition to ask to have made of that; but it seems to me that for the work the License Commissioners are doing a salary of $1000 is a mere pittance for these three men. They make a very excellent showing as compared with the work done last year, turning in some $50,000 more into the city treasury, and doing the work of members of the Law Department. It is a subject worthy of investigation at least, and I move that it be referred to the Committee on Salaries.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The Committee on Retrenchment made a report in February last, which was acted upon in March; they reduced the salaries of the License Commissioners to one thousand dollars each; and it was understood that that would be the salary of the License Commissioners for a year. Now I, as a member of the Retrenchment Committee, cannot vote for the increase of any of the salaries which we decreased but two or three months ago. The gentlemen who are members of the License Commission are all particular and special party friends of mine. I am well acquainted with them. Whenever an effort has been made in this Board to increase the salaries of any of the heads of departments I have risen here as chairman of the Committee on Retrenchment, as I feel it my duty to defend the report of that committee, and oppose the increase of these salaries. The Committee on Salaries reduced these salaries to $1000 a year. While I feel that the present commission are as efficient—yea, sir, I would say more efficient—than any other commission that has ever been there, yet as a member of the Committee on Retrenchment I cannot vote to increase the salaries of these gentlemen. We marked the limit and I think we ought to stick to our report for at least one year. The act says the salaries shall be fixed each year. They go out of office at the end of the year, and no license commission can be created again until an order passes the City Council that it is expedient to grant licenses; and as the salaries of the commissioners die at the end of each year, they must be fixed with the nomination of the men. But the opinion of this City Council, as expressed by that vote, was that the salaries of the License Commissioners should be at the rate of $1000 a year. I know the gentlemen well. They have performed their duties excellently, and in accordance with the public sentiment of the city of Boston, and have given more satisfaction than any other commission who have occupied the position they now hold. While I respect them, and give them credit for what they have done, at the same time, as chairman of the Committee on Retrenchment, I must vote against increasing their salaries.

Alderman O'Brien—As one of the Committee on Retrenchment, I hesitate to go back on any of the recommendations they made. But nearly six months have elapsed since that report was made, and it appears to me that in some instances we did injustice. It is only a month or so ago that the Committee on Public Library presented a statement to the City Council that we would have to lose the services of Mr. Winsor, or vote him a larger salary. I believe the order to increase the salary of Mr. Winsor passed unanimously, and that the three Aldermen of the Retrenchment Committee voted for it. There is one instance where we have gone back on our record. Now, as chairman of the Committee on Claims, I am aware of one fact. When the License Commission was first appointed, the Mayor came before the Committee on Claims, with the chairman of the commissioners, and told us that it would be impossible for them to do their work unless some lawyer was connected with that department. The Committee on Claims authorized the Mayor to employ a lawyer; and during the two years before the present commissioners came into office, the city of Boston paid that lawyer—if I remember rightly—$250 a month, or $3000 a year, for services rendered that commission. Well, now, we pay the License Commissioners $1000 a year each—no more for all three commissioners than we paid the lawyer connected with that department last year. I look upon it in this light: We will do an act of justice if we pay these three men $1000 a year more than we voted them early in the season, when they actually show that they have saved the city of Boston that amount in doing the work of the lawyer that was attached to their department last year. I believe I can still maintain all that the Retrenchment Committee did, and conscientiously vote $1000 a year more to the License Commissioners, because they are actually doing the work of the lawyer attached to that department last year, and who received $250 a month for his services.

Alderman Clark—The remarks just made are all very well; but it seems to me they are premature, inasmuch as there has been no report made. I was requested to present this petition, but I do not know that I shall vote for an increase of the salary or not when it is reported upon by the committee. This is a question of reference for a committee to see whether any injustice has been done; and I propose to act upon it when the case comes from a committee who have investigated it fairly, as my judgment may dictate. I have no preference whether it be referred to the Retrenchment Committee or the Committee on Salaries, if the Committee on Retrenchment is still in existence. I presume it is—the chairman of that committee shakes his head; then I presume it will go to the Committee on Salaries.

The matter was referred to the Salary Committee. Sent down.

COMMERCIAL STREET.

Alderman Thompson presented the following: The Committee on Finance, to whom was referred by the City Council an order requesting the Committee on Finance to provide an appropriation of $1,000,000 for the widening of Commercial street between Eastern avenue and Charles River Bridge, would respectfully report that they deem such widening at this time inexpedient, but, if the City Council decide that a public necessity exists for said widening, and a loan for the same can be legally made at this time, then the following order providing the means for the accomplishment of that object should be passed.

For the Committee,
FREDERICK O. PRINCE,
Chairman.

Ordered, That the Treasurer be and he hereby is authorized to borrow, under the direction of the Committee on Finance, the sum of one million dollars ($1,000,000) to constitute a special appropriation for the widening of Commercial street, between Eastern avenue and Charles River Bridge, said amount also to defray the cost of grading and repaving said street and all damages arising in consequence of said widening, grading and repaving thereof.

The question was on the acceptance of the report.

Alderman Viles—Do the Finance Committee report on the expediency of a measure, or simply report on the ways and means?

The Chairman—Under the rules and orders, the Committee on Finance can report upon the expediency of an expenditure as well as to provide the ways and means.

The report was accepted and the order laid over, at the suggestion of Alderman Viles.

THE HORSE-CAR BLOCKADE.

Alderman Fitzgerald moved that the Paving Committee be requested to report on the street blockades within two weeks from today.

Alderman Thompson hoped that final action would not be taken on that day, as he would be absent.

Alderman O'Brien—If it was n't so late in the year, I think I would offer an order that a special committee of the Board of Aldermen be appointed to consider the question of these horse railroads and their blockading our streets; but it is so late in the year that the present members of the City Government would scarcely be able to attend to the work. I believe the Paving Committee have too much work on their hands, between this horse-railroad business and the general matters relating to the department. I also believe that there is too much pressure brought to bear upon this Board by horse railroads. I believe it would be a good thing for this city of Boston if this question were taken out of this Board and put into the hands of some permanent commission. The Alderman on my right [Alderman Viles] suggests the Street Commissioners, and I think it would be a good thing to put it into their hands to tell these horse railroads where they should or should not go, and not allow them to block up our streets.

Alderman Fitzgerald—No question created so much lobbying and log-rolling and wire-pulling and pipe-laying in the Legislature as that of horse railroads of the city of Boston.

Alderman Thompson—There was the Hartford & Erie Railroad.

Alderman Fitzgerald—That was a bankrupt corporation, and only came once. These things became so annoying that the Legislature passed the general steam and horse railroad laws, so as to get rid of them, and they threw it upon and gave all their powers to the boards of aldermen of cities. Now, the Board of Aldermen are troubled week in and week out, and one-third of their business for the last nine months has related to horse railroads. If the pressure has been so strong upon a Legislature with 240 members in one branch, and if the pressure is so strong upon twelve men here, who are supposed to be independent in their action, how would it be with the Street Commissioners? You will have two Street Commissioners elected with a view of fulfilling the interest of two horse railroads against the other. My idea is that there should be a joint special committee on horse railroads, who should have nothing else to do, and that the responsibility for horse-railroad locations should be divided between the Common Council and the Board of Aldermen. Then no horse railroad could get any track through a street until public necessity was so strong that the City Council could not get out of granting a location; and the Common Council should share the responsibility. I agree with the Alderman that the Committee on Paving have too much to do. If the general horse-railroad law could be so amended as to relieve us of the necessity of having the public hearings we have here, and which two-thirds of the members of the Board of Aldermen pay no attention to—and I say this with all due respect to the members of the Board—and if a special committee could be appointed on horse railroads, I think we would be relieved of a great deal of trouble and bother. I think that at the proper time the Legislature ought to be asked for authority to appoint a special committee on the horse-railroad petitions that are brought in here; but I should object to placing in the hands of any three men the authority to grant locations, and then have a pressure to elect Street Commissioners in the interest of horse railroads and not of the citizens of Boston.

Alderman Robinson—I have spent some considerable time during the last two months and a half, or thereabouts, in trying to solve this question, which is as perplexing as the most difficult problem in Euclid. But I have got somewhat in my head the manner in which the horse cars run, and I hope to be able to make a report a fortnight from tonight, and one which will alleviate the matter somewhat. The great trouble seems to me to be that there are too many cars on the streets. I should have been glad to do something earlier, but I shall be compelled to be absent two or three days, and could not attend a hearing before the earlier part of next week. I trust that we shall be able to make such a report a fortnight from tonight as will alleviate the matter, if it does not relieve it entirely.

Alderman Fitzgerald's motion was adopted, and the committee were directed to report in two weeks.

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman O'Brien.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Common Council,
SEPTEMBER 27, 1877.

Regular meeting pursuant to adjournment, at 7½ o'clock P. M., Benjamin Pope, President, in the Chair.

MISCELLANEOUS PAPERS FROM THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Petitions, etc., were referred in concurrence. Reference to the Committee on Printing of an order concerning the printing of a memorial of the dedication of Army and Navy Monument. Concurred.

Invitation to attend the Carney Hospital Fair. Accepted in concurrence.

Reports leave to withdraw on petitions, viz., Eliza T. Clapp et al., for reopening of the well on the Eaton lot; Boston Young Men's Christian Association, for leave to hold religious meetings on Common. Severally accepted in concurrence.

Resolution of thanks to Colonel Augustus P. Martin, the Chief Marshal, and his aids and assistants, for their services on occasion of the dedication of Army and Navy Monument; order of thanks to Hon. Charles Devens for his oration on said occasion, and requesting a copy for publication; order of thanks to Commodore F. A. Parker for the escort and other assistance furnished on above occasion. Severally read twice and passed in concurrence.

Order to pay D. G. Quirk $52, Edward W. Dola n $23, and John Pierce $22, to be charged as therein set forth. Ordered to a second reading.

Report of Committee on Ordinances on the subject of the maximum number of constables, etc. Accepted in concurrence.

Order for the appointment of a joint special committee to investigate the cause of the accident in Blackstone square. Read twice and passed in concurrence, and Messrs. Felt of Ward 13, Richardson of Ward 10, Wolcott of Ward 11, Thorndike of Ward 2, and Jackson of Ward 16 were joined to said committee.

MESSENGER FOR CITY TREASURER'S OFFICE.

A report came down with an order authorizing the appointment of a messenger for the Treasurer's office, at a salary of $1000 per year, said messenger to furnish bonds of $10,000.

The order was passed to a second reading, and Mr. Stone of Ward 3 moved a suspension of the rule, that the order might be passed tonight, stating that it was important that the officer should be appointed and enter upon his duties at once.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I hope some explanation will be given of the necessity of this officer before we pass the order.

Mr. Stone—The Treasurer has large sums of money coming in, particularly at this time of the year, which he has to send to the bank for deposit. Heretofore he has trusted to a police officer to do this duty. He had perfect confidence in the officer, and he did it at his own risk. That officer has been removed or sent elsewhere, and there is nobody that he feels like trusting, and he would like a special officer appointed for the purpose. Some days the deposits come up to a hundred thousand dollars, and he wants an officer who is under bonds, and who will have and feel that he has some responsibility. That is all the explanation that I can give. I would also state that he has been in the habit, since this officer has been removed, of detailing one of his clerks to take the deposits to the bank; but when the pay rolls are being made up, as they are just now, it is impossible to detail a clerk without detriment to the work of the office.

Mr. Thompson—Would it not do as well to direct the Chief of Police to detail the officer whom the Treasurer has confidence in, and return him to his old station and save the city the extra expense?

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—Has not a police officer been doing that duty within the last month?

Mr. Stone—I think not. The officer who formerly performed the duty has been assigned to duty at the rooms of the School Committee.

The President read the communication from the City Treasurer to the Committee on the Treasury Department, explaining the need of additional assistance in the department.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—I should like to inquire if any one can tell me whether or not the appointment of this officer would not relieve the Treasurer of his present responsibility in that respect. If it relieves the Treasurer of his responsibility to see that the moneys of the city are properly deposited in bank from his office, I should hesitate before appointing an officer who is to be intrusted with a hundred thousand dollars a day on a bond of $10,000. My own impression is that the appointment of this officer by a power independent of the City Treasurer, by whom the Treasurer must send that money to the bank, would relieve him of all responsibility in that respect. It ought to be so, and I think it would be so, because he is compelled to use that messenger to transfer that money. If that is to be the result, I should hesitate before voting for that order. At least, I hope the order will lie over until that question is decided.

Mr. Stone—This does not relieve the Treasurer; the Treasurer is still responsible under his bond for every dollar that comes into his possession until he deposits it. This bond runs to the Treasurer and not to the city. The order only gives him a responsible, instead of an irresponsible, party to take the deposits to the bank, and prevents his detailing one of his clerks, whom he can ill afford to spare at this or at any time.

Mr. Richardson—I do not want to go into a discussion of a question of law, even with my learned friend; but it is my opinion, without examination, that the appointment of an officer by the committee and the Mayor, who is to be an officer for the purpose of carrying these moneys from the City Hall to the bank, must of necessity relieve the Treasurer of that duty.

Mr. Stone—Does the appointment of the Deputy Collectors, who give bonds of $5000 each to the Collector, relieve the Collector of any responsibility?

Mr. Richardson—They are in his office under his direction. The other man is not under the direction of the Treasurer, except to take the deposits to the bank. After this appointment the Treasurer cannot intrust it to anybody else. If this person, whom it is proposed to appoint under this order, should embezzle the money on the way to the bank, I should like to know in what sense of right you could call upon the Treasurer to be responsible for the acts of a man whom he does not appoint, and whom, in this respect, he cannot control.

Mr. Stone—The order contemplates the appointment of this man by the Treasurer subject to the approval of the committee, the same as the Collector appoints his deputies, subject to the approval of the Committee on the Treasury Department.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—Is the appointment of any other employes of the Treasury Department subject to the approval of the committee?

Mr. Stone—I should think so; yes, sir.

Mr. Danforth of Ward 10—I do not think this is exactly understood. The Treasurer came before the committee and asked for extra help. He calls this officer a messenger, because he intends to employ him as a messenger and send him with checks for indorsement. He has been employing the policeman stationed on the lower floor to show strangers over the building. He is short of help, and he proposes to employ this man to get checks for indorsement, and take deposits to the bank, and employ him in writing at other times in the office. He appoints this officer himself, and he gives bonds to the Treasurer. The City Government does not appoint the officer; he is appointed as all the other clerks in the Treasury Department are appointed. I do not see how he is in any different position from the rest. All the clerks in the treasury are responsible to the Treasurer in a bond, which they bring to the committee for approval. I think the order is a proper one, and I hope it will pass.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24—After the statement of the last gentleman, I think it would simplify the matter to authorize the Treasurer to employ an assistant clerk at a salary of a thousand dollars a year. The Treasurer could detail him for such duties as he chose.

Mr. Richardson—That will do.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—It occurred to me that probably the point suggested by the gentleman from Ward 10 [Mr. Richardson] might be avoided by amending the order by adding after the word "department" the words, "and for whom he shall be responsible in like manner as for other officers appointed by him." I see in the ordinance a provision that the City Treasurer shall give bonds for the faithful performance of his duties, and the safe custody of the money and other property intrusted to him and the other officers appointed by him. Now, if we say that a messenger shall be attached to his department, and for whom he shall be responsible in like manner as for the other officers appointed by him, we avoid all possibility that any such question may be raised. I therefore move to amend in that way.

The President ruled that the question must first be put on the motion to suspend the rules.

The Council refused to suspend the rule, and the order was laid over.

PROPOSED BRIDGE TO SQUANTUM.

An order came down to appoint the Street Commissioners to consider the expediency of building a bridge to connect Commercial Point with Squantum, and to determine what shall be the city's proportionate expense of maintaining the same.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—Does that order say how those Street Commissioners are to be appointed?

The President—The order says they are appointed.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—What is the effect of the latter part of the order authorizing them to confer with the Commissioners of Norfolk County how the expense is to be apportioned? Does that mean that they can make a binding contract for the building of the bridge?

The President—They are to consult with them.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—I move to amend by erasing the word "appointed" and inserting the word "requested," and also by erasing the word "shall," and inserting in place of it the word "should."

Mr. Pratt's amendment was adopted, and as amended the order was passed. Sent up.

IMPROVED SEWERAGE.

An order came down for the City Engineer to employ assistance and to incur other necessary expenses in construction of improved system of sewerage.

The order was read twice and put upon its passage.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—Before the order passes, I should like to have a little light on the subject, whether or not this is an appropriation we have already made, or whether it is some new work to be done. It seems to give them permission to spend an indefinite sum in carrying on this sewer.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—It will come out of the appropriation already provided, and will be done as all the work of the city is done, by committees. The committee supposed they had authority to authorize the City Engineer to employ such assistance as was necessary to carry out this work, but under the advice of the City Solicitor this order is brought in here to get authority from the City Council. It is no new expenditure, but simply to carry out the work already begun.

The order was passed in concurrence.

THE INSPECTION OF LIME.

The report and order for the removal of the Inspector of Lime came from the other branch, with non-concurrence in the amendment adopted by the Common Council.

The question was on receding or concurring.

Mr. Day of Ward 4—I move that the subject be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I hope the matter will not be indefinitely postponed, but be laid upon the table, so that if this man seizes any more lime from Boston dealers it can be acted upon. If it lies on the table it is safe until he commits some other misdemeanor in seizing lime from those people. I move that it be laid on the table.

The subject was laid on the table.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Order to plank Huntington-avenue Bridge and erect fences on the sides of said bridge. Passed in concurrence.

Order to fit up old Lyman Schoolhouse for high-school purposes in East Boston; cost not to exceed $2000. Passed. Sent up.

An ordinance (new draft) for the occupancy of streets for building purposes. Passed. Sent up.

Order of a transfer of $1400 from Reserved Fund to pay salaries established by City Council to Deputy Sealers of Weights and Measures. Passed in concurrence—yeas 50, nays 8:

Yeas—Messrs. Barry, Beeching, Blanchard, Blodgett, Brintnall, Brown, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Cox, Cross, Danforth, Day, Dee, Duggan, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Ham, Hibbard, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, Morrill, Mowry, Mullane, Nugent, O'Donnell, Pearl, Perham, Pope, Pratt, Reed, J. B. Richardson, Roach, Roberts, Ruffin, Sampson, Souther, Spenceley, Stone, Thorndike, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster, Wilbur—50.

Nays—Messrs. Barnard, Coe, Crocker, Felt, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, Thompson, G. B. Webster—8.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Doherty, Fagan, Hiscock, Howes, Kelley (Ward 3), Loughlin, O'Connor, M. W. Richardson, Shepard, Sibley, Smardon, Upham, Wolcott—13.

EXTRA PAY FOR FIREMEN AND POLICEMEN.

The order to pay $3 to each member of the Police and Fire departments on duty on the 17th of September, as compensation for extra labor, was considered under unfinished business.

The question was upon giving the order a second reading.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—In putting this order in I had but a single point to make, which I did, and I was very ready to let it go then by the vote, whether it was defeated or not. But it seems to me, after the celebration we have had, if any gentleman here has given this matter a thought—perhaps it is a matter that they don't consider—they must see that these men did double duty. The procession on the 17th of September was fully as long as the one on the 17th of June, 1875, and at that time there were three hundred extra policemen on duty, while on the 17th of September there were no extra men, and many of the regular men were on extra duty for twenty-four hours. I say that when we give all the help in the other departments of the city a holiday, and reserve these men and give them no holiday, and compel them to do double duty, it is no more than right that they should be paid for it. Of course, I have nothing in view but the mere matter of doing them justice. If a man is deprived of what the employes in other departments have, it is no more than right to compensate him for what extra duty he has to perform.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I would say that the Committee on the Celebration received a bill from the Police Department for refreshments for police officers.

Mr. Spenceley—Many of these men were on duty from seven o'clock in the morning till nine o'clock at night without anything to eat. I don't know but the committee had a bill for refreshments for the police, but many of the police officers did not have anything to eat.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—As I said at the last meeting, it is absurd to pay these men extra for doing what is part of their regular duty. It would be just as reasonable to offer an order to pay them three dollars extra whenever they go to a fire. Last night the firemen had to go to two fires, and it is just as reasonable to say that they ought to be paid five dollars extra for it.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 23—Does the gentleman from Ward 19 know that there were three hundred extra policemen on duty in 1875? My impression is that the Chief of Police did not employ any extra help on that occasion.

Mr. Spenceley—I saw the order today, sir.

The question on giving the order a second reading was put and declared lost. Mr. Fraser of Ward 6 doubted the vote, and on his motion the yeas and nays were ordered.

The order was refused a second reading—yeas 19, nays 39:

Yeas—Messrs. Cannon, Duggan, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, Fraser, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, Mullane, Nugent, O'Donnell, Roach, Souther, Spenceley, Vose, E. R. Webster—19.

Nays—Messrs. Barnard, Barry, Beeching, Blanchard, Blodgett, Brintnall, Brown, Burke, Clarke, Coe, Cox, Crocker, Cross, Danforth, Day, Dee, Felt, J. J. Flynn, Ham, Hibbard, Morrill, Mowry, Pearl, Perham, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, Pope, Pratt, Reed, J. B. Richardson, Roberts, Ruffin, Sampson, Stone, Thompson, Thorndike, Warren, G. B. Webster, Wilbur—39.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Doherty, Fagan, Hiscock, Howes, Kelley (Ward 3), Loughlin, M. W. Richardson, Shepard, Sibley, Smardon, Upham, Wolcott—12.

BRIGHTON SCHOOLHOUSES.

A request was received from the School Committee that the grounds of the high-school building in Brighton be graded and put in suitable condition, and that proper walks leading to the schoolhouse be constructed. Referred on motion of Mr. Warren, to the Joint Committee on Public Buildings. Sent up.

A request was received from the same board for some immediate action whereby the Allston School may be provided with suitable accommodations, as the increase in the number of pupils belonging to the school has already outgrown the rooms provided by the city. Referred to the Joint Committee on Public Instruction. Sent up.

PETITIONS PRESENTED.

A petition was received from Henry J. Nazro and others for the completion of the park on Bowdoin street, Ward 24. Referred to the Joint Committee on Common and Public Grounds. Sent up.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8 presented the petition of the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy for permission to use a room on the second story of the Franklin Schoolhouse for purposes connected with the college. Referred to the Committee on Public Buildings. Sent up.

WATER WORKS.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17 submitted a report from the Finance Committee on the report of the Committee on Water, in favor of granting the request of the Boston Water Board for an appropriation of $20,000 for an additional pumping engine for the Cochituate Water Works high service, and $27,000 for constructing a second line of force main for the Mystic Water Works. That it is against the present established policy of the city to borrow money for so small sums as those asked for. They therefore report the orders in a new draft, so that the expenses to be incurred by the above-mentioned undertakings be defrayed from the revenue to be received from each of said works, the excess of which revenue is set apart to pay debt created for the respective works. The revenue will be sufficient for the purpose, and meet other required expenditures.

Ordered, That the Boston Water Board be authorized to expend a sum not exceeding $20,000 for an additional pumping engine at pumping station on Elmwood street, connected with the High Service Department of the Cochituate Water Works, and that the expense thereof be defrayed from the revenue received from said Cochituate Water Works.

Ordered, That the Boston Water Board be authorized to expend a sum not exceeding $27,000 in constructing a second line of force main pipe for the Mystic Water Works.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6 said it was very necessary that this work should get under way as soon as possible on account of the lateness of the season, and on his motion the rule was suspended, and the orders were read a second time and passed. Sent up.

THE POLICE BOAT PROTECTOR.

Mr. Stone of Ward 3 offered an order—That the Committee on Police report why the Harbor Police boat Protector was at Marblehead on Saturday, Sept. 1; also the number times the boat has been taken from her regular beat this year for pleasure purposes, and the amount the city has paid for refreshments furnished aboard of her since Jan. 1, 1877.

The order was passed to a second reading, read a second time and put upon its passage.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—Does the order contemplate a reference of the subject to the Committee on Police on the part of this branch? If it does, I have no objection to it.

The President—As the Chair understands it, it is to go to the Committee on Police on the part of the Council.

Mr. Stone—It was intended to be referred to the Committee on Police on the part of the other branch. I move that it be sent up.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I understand that it is now proposed to send this order up to the Board of Aldermen. I fancy that if that is done, we shall not get the information. I do not fancy having it sent where we shall never hear from it again. I am not prepared at this moment myself to suggest any other way to get the information, but it seems to me that we shall not get the information by such a disposal of it.

Mr. Stone—I believe we have authority to direct the Mayor to do certain things, such as petitioning the Legislature for the passage of bills, etc., and I don't know any reason why we have not authority to direct the Police Committee to report the facts called for by that order. My reason for putting the order in is that it is currently reported on State street—or pretty generally reported there—that the city of Boston is running a pleasure boat for the benefit of the chairman of the Committee on Police on the part of the other branch and his friends. They go down to Marblehead once or twice a week, and refreshments are furnished pretty liberally. They not only take the boat from her beat, but take the Harbor Master from his duties to pilot them down and back. If we can dispense with the boat two or three times a week, it seems to me we can dispense with it altogether and turn it over to the Harbor Master, where I think it belongs, instead of giving him a row boat in which to attend to his duties.

The President—The Chair understood the order to mean the Committee on Police of this branch.

Mr. Pope of Ward 14—The Committee on Retrenchment.

Mr. McGaragle—The Committee on Police on the part of the Board of Aldermen, being a standing committee of that Board, we have no right to pass an order calling for information from them, as they have entire control of all matters relating to the Police Department.

The President—The Chair thinks the Council has no power to refer it to the Police Committee, except the committee on the part of this branch.

Mr. Stone—Perhaps we shall get more information from the committee on the part of this branch.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I would suggest that it be referred to the Joint Committee on Police.

Mr. Stone—It is not a joint committee.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—If there is a Joint Committee on Police, I should have no objection to the reference of the order to that committee. Otherwise, I shall move that the whole matter be referred to a joint special committee.

Mr. Spenceley—I withdraw my motion.

Mr. Thompson—I move that it be referred to a joint special committee of three members of this branch and such members of the Board of Aldermen as they may see fit to join.

Mr. McGaragle—I would ask the ruling of the Chair on that point. This is a matter entirely within the control of the Board of Aldermen, and I don't think we can pass an order for such a joint special committee.

The President—The Chair is of the opinion that it would be in the power of the City Council to appoint such a committee.

Mr. McGaragle—To investigate a matter within the control of the Board of Aldermen?

The President—The Chair so rules.

Mr. Crocker—It seems to me that we can make an inquiry into what the other branch of the City Government is doing. But I suggest that it would be better to amend the order, so that instead of referring this matter to a special committee of this branch, with such as the Board of Aldermen may join, that such a committee be appointed to report.

Mr. Thompson—I accept the amendment.

The amendment of Mr. Crocker was embodied in the following: Strike out the words, "Committee on Police," and insert "Special committee consisting of three members of this branch, with such as the Board of Aldermen may join, be appointed to report," etc.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—It appears to me that the proper committee to make this investigation is the Committee on Police on the part of the Common Council. It is a matter which pertains to their duties, and I don't suppose their duties have been very arduous this year. They have been called together once this year by the chairman of the Committee on Police; they have had no other duties to perform, and I think they are the proper committee to refer it to. I move as a substitute that it be referred to the Committee on Police of the Common Council.

Mr. Thompson—The matters referred to in the order which the gentleman introduced—if the charges intimated are true—are fit subjects for the serious investigation of both branches of the City Government. It is not for this branch alone to investigate if the Board of Aldermen are in fault; but it is a matter for the investigation of both branches of the City Council. As there is no Joint Committee on Police to refer it to, it seems to me to be proper that it should be referred to a joint special committee of the City Council.

Mr. Flynn's amendment was lost.

Mr. Thompson's amendment was adopted, and the order as amended was passed to a second reading and read a second time and put upon its passage.

Mr. Crocker—I think the order wants one more word in it. I move to amend so that the committee will be instructed to inquire and report. There is no order for them to make any inquiry.

Mr. Crocker's amendment was adopted, and the order as amended was passed in the following form:

"Ordered, That a joint special committee of three members of the Common Council, with such as the Board of Aldermen may join, be appointed to make inquiry and report why," etc.

The President appointed Messrs. Stone of Ward 3, Blodgett, of Ward 8, and Spenceley of Ward 19 on said committee.

A motion to reconsider the vote whereby was passed the order, by Mr. Stone, hoping it would not prevail, was lost. Sent up.

ARRANGEMENT OF TELEGRAPH WIRES.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19 offered an order—That the Committee on Ordinances be requested to report an ordinance requiring that all telegraph wires which are now or may hereafter be stretched across any public street shall be placed in such a manner as will not interfere with the elevation of ladders in case of fires.

Mr. Spenceley explained that the Chief of Police could not make people conform to the order which had been passed on this subject, and that it would have to be done in the form of an ordinance.

The order was passed. Sent up.

MYSTIC VALLEY SEWER.

Mr. Brintnall of Ward 5 offered a resolve—That it is the opinion of this Council that the Water Board should not deduct from the laborers that have been and now are employed on the Mystic Valley Sewer twelve cents per day as fare to and from the works, as it is the opinion of this Council that $1.50 per day is as small compensation as they can possibly support themselves with and their families.

Referred, on motion of Mr. Brintnall, to the Committee on Water. Sent up.

REFRESHMENT BILLS.

Mr. Barnard of Ward 24 moved to take from the table the substitute order concerning the approval, e. c., of refreshment and other bills; with a notice of motion to reconsider the vote whereby the same was adopted for the original order.

Declared lost. Mr. Thompson of Ward 9 doubted the vote, and the Council divided—22 for, 26 against.

Adjourned, on motion of Mr. Fraser of Ward 6.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen,

OCTOBER 1, 1877.

Regular meeting at four o'clock P. M., his Honor the Mayor presiding.

JURORS DRAWN.

Thirty-six traverse jurors were drawn for the October term of the Superior Criminal Court.

EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENTS.

Police Officer—David F. Harkins. Referred to Committee on Police.

Police Officers without pay—A. B. Bradstreet, John F. Madden, G. H. Williams. Confirmed.

Inspectors of Elections for Three Years (Chap. 246, Acts 1876)—Ward 1, Isaiah Whitten; Ward 2, George O. Parker, James E. Fitzgerald vice George L. Thorndike, disqualified; Ward 3, Nathaniel D. Toppan; Ward 4, Alonzo Hall; Ward 5, James F. Dacey; Ward 6, John F. Kelley; Ward 7, John P. Swift; Ward 8, David A. Latham; Ward 9, J. B. F. Thomas; Ward 10, A. Kendall Tilden; Ward 11, Henry W. Daniell; Ward 12, Joseph S. Olds; Ward 13, Edward M. Wescott; Ward 14, Francis James; Ward 15, William H. West; Ward 16, Patrick M. Denon; Ward 17, William H. Cundy; Ward 18, William H. Thomes; Ward 19, Romanzo M. Wiswall; Ward 20, Charles Erskine; Ward 21, Arthur M. Keith, resigned, Arthur W. Willard vice C. H. Hovey, resigned; Ward 22, Samuel D. Crafts; Ward 23, Cyrus M. Marshall; Ward 24, John H. Dillon; Ward 25, Richard B. Smart. Severally confirmed.

CONSTABLES.

A communication was received from the Mayor nominating the following-named persons for constables:

Morrill P. Berry, for duty with Street Commissioners; Hiram A. Campbell, George G. Drew, Caleb S. Emery, James G. Harrington, Thomas A. Jackson, Isaac Jacobs, Daniel J. Holland, John D. Reed, James Miskelley, William D. Rockwood, Lebbeus W. Smith, William H. Badlam (the latter for duty in Collector's Department).

Alderman Fitzgerald—I do not rise to oppose the confirmation of the persons, Mr. Mayor, whom you have brought forward, but I do rise to ask the Board to stop right here with confirming any more, because I think we have enough. If the pressure is so great for the confirmation of these men, I think the consequences will be that we might as well take up the whole list, and instead of the Mayor nominating, and we confirming them by piecemeal, Monday after Monday, we might as well take the whole list as originally submitted, because it looks as if the whole of them are to be nominated and confirmed before we get through with them. I hope the Board will adopt some order limiting the number to be appointed, so that this pressure will be taken away from the Mayor, and the Board of Aldermen will take the responsibility of limiting the number. We have now gone beyond the number recommended by the Committee on Ordinances at the last meeting. They recommended that fifty be the maximum number of constables to be appointed, outside of those appointed for duty in the Superior and Supreme courts, the Collector's and the Health departments. With these out we have fifty-four officers, and I think that is sufficient to do all the work for the city of Boston. If no other Alderman will do so, I will introduce an order limiting the number to be appointed to the number already appointed, so that this continual pressure upon the Mayor shall not be continued.

Alderman O'Brien—As I understand this matter, the number of constables appointed is only thirty-six, outside of the courts and the Collector's and the Health departments. Well, now, Mr. Mayor, I feel that we have proceeded very hastily in this matter. I do not believe in discharging a single man from the list of constables, if that man's character for integrity is all right. If we wish to adopt a list, I should rather proceed in this way—that we might fix the number of constables that we ought to appoint and then not appoint a single new constable until the number came down to that list by death or resignation. I think, as I said before, that we have proceeded too hastily in this matter. We have always considered this matter every year, Mr. Mayor. It was the custom of the previous Mayor to call a meeting of the Board of Aldermen in his private room; the printed list of constables was submitted to the Aldermen, and they were given a week to inquire into the character, standing and integrity of the constables appointed. A week after that another private meeting was called, and if any objections were made to the integrity or standing of any constables on that list they were generally rejected. For my part, I was not acquainted with any of the constables, and I submitted my list to a well-known lawyer of this city, upon whom I could rely, and I asked him to mark any objectionable name upon the list. I suppose that every Alderman at this Board asked men acquainted with the constables if any objectionable man was on that list. Now, this year not a single Alderman has scarcely had anything to say about the appointments. When I asked the Chairman of the Board this week if he had looked into these new appointments, he answered that he did not know any of them. I understand that the Mayor scarcely knows the constables he has appointed, and I think we have proceeded altogether too hastily in this matter. For my part, I would rather see the whole list adopted than to see injustice done to one or two or three of the constables that have been left off. I do not think it is our business to cut the heads of these men off if they have faithfully performed their duty, in order to make work for the balance. I hope we shall go into this matter more thoroughly, and I think we ought to appoint fifty constables outside of the courts and Collector's and the Health departments. Before the Ordinance Committee submitted that report the subject was looked into and inquired into by one of the clearest-headed lawyers in this city, and it was his opinion that we ought to have fifty constables outside of those in the courts and the Collector's and the Health departments.

Alderman Fitzgerald—It is very evident that the Alderman has not read the recommendation of the Committee on Ordinances. The substance of their report is that the number of constables shall be fifty, and shall exclude those who are in official positions, either in the Health or the Collector's departments, or in Superior or Supreme Court. The report reads—

"The Committee on Ordinances, who were requested to consider the expediency of providing by law the maximum number of constables to be appointed by the Mayor for the service of civil processes, * * * are of the opinion that in addition to those who are appointed or designated for a special duty, viz., truant officers, constables in the Health Department, Collector's deputies, and those on regulation duty in the Supreme and Superior courts, the number of constables appointed to serve civil process in the city of Boston should not exceed fifty."

Now, we have in addition to that list of thirty-six constables, eighteen or twenty who do service in the Superior and the Supreme courts, and also in the Municipal District courts of the city of Boston—in Brighton, in Roxbury, in West Roxbury, Dorchester, East Boston and in Charlestown. These constables number about eighteen. In addition to the short work that they perform in court, about an hour and a half each day, they also serve civil process in West Roxbury, Brighton, and the other districts. Those constables are excluded by this report, and they make the number about up to fifty-four, as I find by examining the list in the hands of the City Clerk. This will make the number about sixty-two or three, so that we really have had nominated about twelve or thirteen more than the Committee on Ordinances recommended. I think that the Committee on Ordinances, and the clear-headed gentleman who drafted this, did it designedly. I know he did it designedly. He intended that they should be excluded from the list of officers, and that they should be included in the list of fifty to be appointed as constables for serving civil process. I know that to be the case, and I know it is so. However, I don't object to confirming these men, if we are going to stop here. The Alderman says that nobody knows anything about these men. If nobody knew anything about them it was their own fault. This matter has been under consideration two weeks. I hardly think the Alderman meant what he said, when he said that the Mayor did n't know anything about those persons when he appointed them. I think the Mayor must have known something about those men when he appointed them. As I said, the practice has grown up, year by year, of appointing these men; from fifty to sixty are appointed during the year on account of the pressure of friends, so that the number of constables has swelled entirely out of proportion to the business, and some of them are starving. My object is to get such a class of men as will be equal to the deputies of the Sheriff, if we can find them, and to make the number so small that they can earn a decent livelihood. I grant you that all the blame should not rest upon the constables who perform their duties according to law, and in doing so they make the process oppressive upon the defendants. A great deal of the blame rests upon cheap lawyers, as well as upon cheap constables, in attaching property for the mere purpose of squeezing a claim out of a man. I want such a class of men appointed that when a lawyer says he wants a constable to do so and so, he will say, "I like your business, but I cannot do so, because it will be oppressive upon this man. That is the kind of a constable we want. Where the number of constables is small, and if we have somebody over them here in City Hall, to whom people can appeal for redress when the constables do not perform their duty properly, I venture to say that we will have a set of constables who will be a credit to the city, and who will do a great deal of good to those upon whom they serve civil process.

Alderman O'Brien—I did not mean to say, and don't think I said, that your Honor appointed those men without knowing something about their standing and character and position. What I wanted to say, and what I think I said, was, that you were not acquainted with them personally. Of course they come to you very highly recommended. You have to appoint many men to prominent positions upon the recommendations of others; but you don't know them personally. I still contend and believe that it was the intention of the gentleman who framed that report to take in the number of constables scattered around in the courts in the outlying districts of the city, because, as an argument to induce us to accept it, he said we had twenty-five wards in the city, and it required two constables at the polls in each ward on election day, and that they should be outside of those who held official positions in the courts, the Collector's and the Health departments. Now, I am willing to admit that the Alderman from the Highlands knows more about the character and standing of these constables than any member of this Board; but I say again that we have proceeded hastily in this matter. At a special meeting of this Board, called for another purpose, this matter was introduced, and the Alderman selected some twenty-five names from the list. We had no voice in this matter. After the selection of the twenty-five constables this same Alderman made a motion to appoint a committee to select a list of constables from the other names left, and that committee was composed of the Alderman from the Highlands, the Chairman of the Board, and the Mayor. The list submitted at the last meeting was their report. So far as the Aldermen of this Board are concerned, we have had nothing to do with it. Heretofore we have had a printed list given us, and have had an opportunity to look into the characters of those men.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The memory of the Alderman is very short. I did not select any twenty-five men. I simply suggested that the number ought to be limited to twenty-five. I selected nobody. I made no such motion as he states. I asked that it be referred back to the Mayor, because he was the person who should assume the responsibility of nominating these men. But the Alderman from the Charlestown District made an amendment to the motion of Alderman Clark, that the matter be referred to me; that it be referred to the Mayor, the Chairman of the Board and myself. I did not make any such motion at all. The motion to refer to the committee was passed with the vote of the Alderman; at least, he did not vote against it; and when the nominations were reported to the Board, he did not get up here and state that he had not had time to consider the subject, and he voted for their confirmation; or if he did not vote for it, he did not raise his voice and ask that they be laid over one week. So that his claim that the Aldermen had no voice in this matter is mere nonsense. Whatever was done was by unanimous voice and vote, and by the wish of this Board. The committee to look over the list were appointed by the unanimous vote of this Board, so that I had as little to do with that as the Alderman from Ward 21 himself. I was simply appointed by this Board to look over the list. The list was reported, and the Alderman had a splendid opportunity, if he was not satisfied with it, to speak of the characters of the men appointed; and I should have been only too glad for some one to have gotten up and said that they did not see those men in the character that they were presented. It is rather late now, when all these men are nominated by the committee appointed not by their own volition, but by the unanimous vote of the Board, to come forward and criticize the committee for what they have done.

Alderman O'Brien—I still contend that we have proceeded too hastily in this matter. I am willing to stand the consequence of it; but I say we have proceeded too hastily, and have allowed the Alderman from Ward 21 to do about all he pleased, or that suited his views in relation to this matter. If I understood the members of the committee aright, he not only pointed out what men we ought to nominate in the first place—those connected with the courts—but he selected all the other candidates. I think the Chairman of the Board stated the fact, or somebody stated that fact, that he selected all the other names reported on that list. Now, I believe we have proceeded too hastily in this matter. I am willing to take the blame for not standing up and objecting to it. I did stand up and object to it in the Board. I believe that on last Monday I said I considered this too radical a change to make; but as the committee appointed to investigate the matter had reported thirty-five names, instead of twenty-five, as instructed by this Board, it was one redeeming point in the matter. I do not believe in cutting off the heads of innocent men for no cause, and I feel that in this act of the Board they have cut off the heads of innocent men for no reason except to give work to those whom we do appoint. I would rather thin out the number by death or resignation. If I did not get up and object at the last meeting, I have no hesitation in doing it now.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The Alderman says he would rather thin them out by death or resignation. We take a more merciful course than that. He says we cut off their heads. Their terms of office expired and we appointed new constables. He charges that I nominated all the constables, and that appears to be the whole of his charge in this matter,—that I did the whole business, and therefore we should not swallow it. Now, the Alderman did not make that objection the other day. Further than that, the Mayor was present, for the Mayor had to make the nominations of all these persons. To be sure, I had my share in the business, as I always do in any committee I am on, because I know the constables as well, and perhaps better, than any other Alderman. I am personally acquainted with nearly all of them, and for that reason, perhaps, I did my share, and perhaps more than any other member of the committee. They were the nominations of the Mayor, and not mine, although I happened to be on the committee. The Mayor had to assume the responsibility of making these nominations. Nobody objected. I think the Alderman himself asked if some certain person was on, and I told him that some certain person was on, and he appeared perfectly satisfied.

Alderman O'Brien—I would say to the Alderman that I never asked him such a question.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The memory of the Alderman is very short, but I remember distinctly that he did.

Alderman O'Brien—I don't remember the conversation. Will the Alderman state the name?

Alderman Fitzgerald—I cannot state the name, but I remember the fact quite distinctly. And so it was with some other persons. As members of this committee, I supposed that we could not please everybody; and I know that since the appointments were made, there has been a pressure for me to intercede for certain persons. It is far easier for an Alderman to rise up here and make a speech in behalf of injured innocence, it is always more pleasant to do that, than it is to rise up here and endeavor to bring about what somebody considers a reform, and one very much needed by the lawyers and others. I did that portion of it. I know that I have incurred the sharp criticism of a great many persons, the friends of constables who were left off, and some others. It is far pleasanter to make a tirade against those who cut short the corps of officials; it is much easier to do that than to make an appeal for the better service of civil process and the administration of the law, and for the unfortunate individuals who come under its thumb. It is far easier to ask for the extension of officers, than to rise up here and protest against it, and say thus far shalt thou go and no farther. Our committee have done it; and they only did what the Aldermen asked us to do. We should not be blamed for that. I protest that I did not do it, for the Mayor had as much to do with it as I had. The Mayor nominated some that I should not have nominated. The Alderman opposite had something to do with it. If that be the only crime I am guilty of—the cutting down of the list of constables—I am willing to stand the consequences.

Alderman O'Brien—I regret prolonging this discussion, but the Alderman upon the committee himself got up here and made a tirade against the men whom we have cut off, and he hoped that not one single more constable would be confirmed than has already been confirmed. He stood up here and made a tirade against those men, and I stood up here in their defence, because I don't want to cut off the heads of innocent men, even if it does give more employment to others. It is not a question of how much it will injure the men we cut off. I would like to ask the Chairman of this Board if he was present at the meeting of the committee when these constables were selected—that is, this last batch of thirty-six introduced at our last meeting.

Alderman Clark—I was late at the meeting of the committee. Most of the appointments had been made up, but they were submitted to me. I knew but very few of the constables personally or by sight. Several names had been sent to me as being very excellent men, by different attorneys in the city. I noticed that every name recommended to me by first-class attorneys had been put upon the list by his Honor the Mayor and the Alderman from Ward 21. I therefore made up my mind that they had used a great deal of discretion in making the selections. Every name that I had upon my list was presented to the Board. Although I was not present when the list was made up, yet it was presented to me and received my approbation. Now, I believe that the appointment of constables belongs to the class of men represented by your Honor and the Alderman from Ward 21. You are about the only class who come in contact with constables, except the poor debtors. I have heard it said by a great many lawyers that we had too many constables, and that we had a great many among the number who should not be appointed. I am not personally acquainted with them. Two names were left off that I have since asked to have appointed. One of them is the officer who does work for the Street Commissioners, and if this list is to lie over I shall ask that he be confirmed, as there is work in the hands of the Street Commissioners which should be done. If this list is not satisfactory I shall ask that it lie over, so that we may have a private meeting of the Board in the Mayor's room.

Alderman Fitzgerald—In whatever I said I did not mean to impugn the character and honesty of the men left off. I did not mean to say because those men were left off that they were not honest. I did not intend any such thing. The Alderman says his object is to help those poor men. Our object is to do good to the public, and not help a few in the selection of those men.

Alderman Viles—I am of the opinion, and always have been, that we should not leave off any constable who has done his duty faithfully and well. I believe I was the only Alderman who rose in his seat and so stated the other day. I believe we should appoint every constable who has been in office before, unless there is something against him, instead of leaving him off. And if there is anything against an officer, let his name be dropped. I move that the subject be laid upon the table for further consideration.

Alderman Clark—I would ask that the nomination of Mr. Berry be confirmed, because there is work in the hands of the Street Commissioners waiting to be done.

Alderman Viles—I shall not object to that.

Alderman Thompson—I hope the matter will not be laid upon the table, but that we shall confirm the appointments submitted to the Board. There are some names that have been left off in the wisdom of your Honor and the committee, that can be appointed hereafter. But I have been visited by certain parties who asked that certain names on the list you have submitted may be confirmed this afternoon, as the parties wish them to do their business. I hope the list you have submitted will be confirmed.

Alderman Viles withdrew the motion to lay on the table and the nominations were confirmed.

PETITIONS REFERRED.

To the Committee on Police. Mary J. Jones, for permission to place a lantern in front of 144 Pleasant street; Rebecca Greene, for leave to project a lantern from 34 Temple place.

To the Committee on Health on the part of the Board. Petitions for leave to occupy stables—James O'Brien, new wooden, one horse, 606 Parker street; Bates College, old wooden, two additional horses, Ward 22; James O'Neil, for change of location of stable for one horse on Greenwich street, Ward 24; Laurin A. Noyes, new brick, forty horses, Sumner street, corner Orleans; H. C. Curtis, new wooden, one horse, Savin street, Ward 21; Thomas Brady, new wooden, one horse, Dorchester avenue; William White, new wooden, one cow and two horses, Chestnut Hill avenue.

To the Committee on Common on the part of the Board. C. J. Spenceley et al., that the tree standing in front of 776 Shawmut avenue be removed.

To the Committee on Sewers. Joshua M. Sears, for leave to lay an iron pipe under the roadway of Court street, between Sears Building and the opposite side of the street, through which to conduct steam pipes.

To the Committee on Lamps. W. B. Foster et al., for lights on M street, from Eighth to Ninth street, and on Ninth street, from M to K street, South Boston; George Warren, et al., for an additional street lamp on Adams place, Ward 19; Charles J. Grinnell et al., that Parker place be lighted.

To the Committee on Sewers. Robert R. Rose, et al., for a sewer in Thomas street, Ward 23.

To the Committee on Market. Warren K. Blodgett, for leave to transfer lease of stall No. 30, Faneuil Hall Market, to J. H. Russell.

To the Committee on Paving. Petition for edge-stones in front of estate of Alanson Kelly, 611 and 613 Ninth street.

Petition of F. O. & J. T. Reed, for leave to move a wooden building from Main street, Ward 4, to Fred street, Ward 4.

T. F. Fitz Gerald, et al., that West Fourth street be paved with granite blocks between D and E streets; Peter Fay and others to grade and light Avon place, Highlands.

OLD RECORDS OF SUFFOLK COUNTY COURTS.

A communication was received from W. H. Whitmore, Record Commissioner, reporting that the records of the Suffolk County courts, prior to the Revolution, are at present inaccessible to the public, and even to those persons especially interested in such matters. The old court files are kept in drawers in the Clerk's office, without order or arrangement, and are thus practically useless. This confusion is owing to the lack of proper care in the past, and it is understood that, owing to this neglect, many valuable papers have been taken away. Of late years, in other counties, care has been taken to arrange and index all these interesting relics of the past. The Commissioner is confident that these Suffolk files can be put in good order at a very small expense, and that the results will fully justify the expenditure. Referred to Committee on County Accounts.

CONSTABLES' BONDS.

The bonds of James M. Carter and sixty-two others, constables, being presented duly certified, were approved by the Board.

HEARING ON ORDER OF NOTICE.

A hearing was had on an order of notice of intention to build a sewer in Beacham street, Charlestown. No objections, and recommitted to Committee on Sewers.

REPORTS OF CITY OFFICERS.

Inspector of Lighters. Quarterly report for Sept. 30: Vessels inspected, 215; fees received, $858.85. Sent down.

Paymaster of State Aid. Report for quarter ending Sept. 30: Receipts, $20,045; payments, $19,580; balance, $465. July applicants, $1300; August applicants, 1286; September applicants, 1359. Sent down.

PAPERS FROM THE COMMON COUNCIL.

Petitions, etc., were referred in concurrence.

The order for the appointment of the Street Commissioners to consider the expediency of constructing a bridge to Squantum, came up amended so as to request said commissioners to consider that subject. Concurred.

Request of the School Committee for increased accommodations for the Allston School. Referred to Committee on Public Instruction in concurrence.

Request of the School Committee that the grounds around the high schoolhouse in Brighton be graded, etc. Referred to Committee on Public Buildings in concurrence.

Report and orders for expenditure of $20,000 for an additional pumping engine at the station on Elmwood street; and of $27,000 for a second line of force-pipe on the Mystic Water Works. Orders passed in concurrence.

Order proposing the enactment of an ordinance to regulate the construction and location of telegraph wires over the public streets. Passed in concurrence.

An ordinance (new draft) for the occupancy of streets for building purposes. Passed in concurrence.

A resolve that the Water Board ought not to make any deduction from the wages of laborers on Mystic Valley Sewer on account of expenses of their conveyance to and from their work. Referred to Committee on Water in concurrence.

EAST BOSTON HIGH SCHOOL.

An order came up to fit up old Lyman Schoolhouse for high-school purposes in East Boston; cost not to exceed $2000.

The question was upon the passage of the order in concurrence.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I should like to ask the chairman of the Committee on Public Instruction to explain this order to the Board.

Alderman Thompson—This subject was brought to the attention of the Committee on Public Instruction. The people of East Boston petitioned the City Council to fit up the upper part of the Lyman Schoolhouse for the purpose of establishing a branch of the high school. It was represented that it would be a great inconvenience to the pupils in that section to attend the school over here. They contended that if that school was fitted up for certain branches, the pupils could attend that school three years, and then complete their studies here the fourth year with a great deal less expense. The committee considered the matter very carefully, and the sub-committee of the School Committee recommended it so strongly that the Committee on Public Instruction were, I think, unanimous in recommending it.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The Board of Aldermen must understand the meaning of the passage of this order. It simply means—and I want the Board to understand it—nothing more or less than the beginning of a high school in East Boston and of a high school in every other section of the city where the people may think it is needed. Now, if the City Council are complaining, as they have been, of the enormous expenditure of the School Board, of the enormous salaries paid to our teachers in our public schools, if they are complaining of that—and that seems to be a chronic complaint—here is an opportunity for the City Council to stop the beginning of what is going to be an annual expenditure of at least thirty thousand dollars for high-school apparatus for at least two sections of the city. In the city of New York, with a population of over a million, they have, away up in Sixty-ninth street and Fourth avenue, a school for some fifteen hundred girls—what they call a normal college; and these girls come to it from all sections of the city. The master, Mr. Hunter, told me that they came from the Battery, and from the other side of the city, and that they came five or six miles. When I asked him why it was that the city of New York did not provide high schools down in the Battery and midway from Fourth to Fifth streets, he said that the people thought that if the education was good enough, the distance was short enough to travel. I saw in the New York papers of last week that there was an intention of calling upon the School Board to abolish the Girl's Normal College, because of the enormous expense it is to the city of New York. Now, the question for us to determine is, whether we shall increase these high schools, or rather these nominal high schools, for that is all they can be. An appropriation of two thousand dollars would not buy the chemical apparatus necessary to carry on a high school. The place in which this is going to be kept is unfit to take girls and boys to. It is over a Police Court, where criminals are brought every day. That is where you will bring your high-school boys and teach them education, I suppose, on the same principle that the Prussians taught their children sobriety, by showing them drunken men and women. But I do not object so much to the location as I do to the measure itself; and the question for us to consider is, whether we have not done enough in this high-school business. We have bought land on Warren avenue, assessed for two hundred and eighty thousand dollars, and five years ago we paid three dollars and fifty cents a foot for it, and before the children get into it the land will have cost nearly five or six hundred thousand dollars, and the building must cost three hundred and fifty thousand dollars more, and it will cost from thirty to forty thousand dollars more to furnish it. We will have accommodations there for two or three thousand boys. If we are going to divide up the whole city into high schools, I see no necessity for building this high school at all. If you pass this order it is but the beginning of the high school in East Boston and some other sections where one is demanded, because it is urged that we must bring the high schools to the doors of all the people of this city. Now, I want to bring this question before the Board, so that they may understand it when the School Board bring this matter before the City Council for teachers, the City Council cannot say that the School Board is extravagant in its expenditures. East Boston would not be satisfied with poorer accommodations than Charlestown or Dorchester, or West Roxbury and Brighton; and the salaries alone of the teachers in those districts amount to $29,550. We have two thousand boys and girls attending our High and Latin schools, and the salaries of the teachers of the Latin School are $29,150; for the High School for boys, $25,318; High School for girls, Newton street, $29,000; Normal School, $6614, Dorchester High School, $9533; Charlestown High School, $13,408; West Roxbury High School, $7479; Brighton High School, $5483—making a gross sum of somewhere about $160,000; so that the cost for teachers alone for each pupil, and not including the interest on the school buildings or the books given to poor children, or the drawing books and chemical apparatus, is $80 per capita for every boy and girl taught in the high schools; and the other expenses must be double that amount, including interest at five per cent., and that is putting it too low. Now the question for this Board to decide is whether we shall go further in this work. The order simply asks for an appropriation of $2000 to fit up the old Lyman School to have a few classes meet there; but it really means $30,000 for salaries; and if you have a high school in East Boston you must have one in South Boston, for there is no reason why they should not have one there if they want it. What I object to is that the gratification of the wishes of a section is not made subservient to the good of the whole. If we want a good high school, that would be worthy of the city of Boston, we must have it in such a location, with such a corps of teachers and such apparatus of all kinds, as will make it worthy the name of a high school. This dividing of our high schools around is detracting from the central high school, and if it is to be done it is a question whether it is worth while to complete this central high school. When the city annexed the territory of the outlying districts, the high schools there were left, and the policy of the old School Board was to contract instead of extending them. The question for us to consider is the extension of this high-school system, with the enormous salaries that will have to be paid to the teachers. It means not merely the fitting up of these rooms with a corps of teachers, but the erection of a high-school building at a cost of forty or fifty thousand dollars. Shall we begin it? I know some members of this Board and the School Committee are in favor of it. I know there is so great pressure here for all these things that the general good of the whole city is apt to be lost sight of in the gratification of the wishes and desires of a few from a certain section. I hope the Board will think this matter over seriously, because the $2000 means the beginning of a large expenditure for that section of the city. I am not opposed to East Boston having a high school; but I want our central high school so good that they will all come to it. If the education is good enough to get, it is good enough to come to.

Alderman Gibson—I can indorse the remarks of the Alderman. I do not know how many high schools there are, but as our city is small, and the distance is not very great from any portion of it to the centre, if there is room in this large school, the children could go there. But if we are going to establish high schools out in every section of the city, and if we are building one now at the South End, it seems to me it would be better to put them all into one high school. I know nothing about the merits of this order, and I ask that it be laid over.

Alderman O'Brien—I hope that order will pass. This subject was before the Board some years ago, and as we were about to change our school organization at that time, it was referred to the new School Committee. I believe the City Council was in favor of it at that time; but they preferred to leave it in the hands of the new School Board to decide. Now what is the position of things? You have a high school in Charlestown, one in Brighton, in West Roxbury, in Roxbury and in Dorchester; and a Latin school in Roxbury. East Boston and South Boston are left out—if I may use a vulgar expression—in the cold. East Boston, with 30,000, and South Boston with 60,000 inhabitants are left out, and in order to obtain the advantages of a high-school education children have to travel several miles every day. The gentleman talks about sectionalism, but I should like to know how you could plan out a sectionalism that would compare with this? If East Boston is not entitled to a high school, Charlestown, Roxbury and Brighton are not; and will you abolish the high schools in those districts, and establish one large central high school that will rise in magnificence and educate all our children? Is that the way you want to educate your children? Do you want to make them travel by ferries, and then by horse cars, three or four hours a day? Do you want to educate your sons and daughters in that way? I supposed there would be no debate on this question today, although I agree with the Alderman that it is an entering wedge for high schools in East and South Boston, for I believe these sections of the city ought to have their high schools; but every time this question comes up I cannot help thinking of the remark Mr. James Sturgis made before this Board when he came to testify about the horse car blockades on Court street. He said he didn't care about the car blocks, but what he did care about was the fact that every block caused such blasphemy and swearing that he dreaded to have his children and friends in the neighborhood. Just think of sending your daughters to the extreme South End of the city by horse cars, day after day and week after week! Is that the way you want to educate your children? The Alderman refers to this grand high school in New York. A large portion of the citizens of New York have the advantages of private schools, where their children are educated in the higher branches. You cannot compare Boston with New York in educational matters. There is no comparison. But I look upon it, that if we have our high schools in Charlestown, Brighton, Roxbury, West Roxbury and Dorchester, and in East and South Boston, with this central high school to accommodate the children of Boston proper, then we will have a perfect system of education. I believe the order ought to pass, even if it is an entering wedge for new high schools in these districts.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I do not want to address myself to the maudlin sentimentalism of the gentleman who spoke about not allowing our daughters to go through the streets of Boston, for I think they are as free from plaspheamy as are the streets of East or South Boston; and that portion of the argument simply amounts to nothing. The Alderman simply says that if we have a high school here and there, and then another big high school in the centre, then it would be a grand system. Well, it would be so in a measure; but it would be a grand system in appearance. The great difficulty with the Alderman's argument about the sectional portion is this: When the city of Boston annexed those outlying territories, there was a harmonious system between the grammar and high schools, which the School Board did not want disturbed, and it took a year in some sections to make them conform to the school system of the city of Boston. The School Board wisely concluded that, although they were opposed to the establishment of new high schools they would allow those in the annexed portions to remain as they were. But the policy of the old School Board was in opposition to the extension of these high schools. The Alderman says that New York is n't to be compared with this city. Why should n't it? They have the same grammar and high school system; only they say if you want a high-school education it is worth going three or four miles for. But we do not propose to fit up a school in every street, misname it a high school and support it; we will have a high school that is one in nature as well as in name; and so they established this high school in Sixty-ninth street, that contains 1500 girls, which, in proportion to population, is as many as our high school for girls contains. They go four, five, six or seven miles, and are there at nine o'clock in the morning. The distance from East and South Boston to the high schools is not three or four hours. This City Council ought to decide whether they are in favor of the extension of the high-school system. You are providing a central high school that will accommodate two thousand pupils, and after we have provided those magnificent accommodations, with all kinds of apparatus to illustrate every subject, shall we say that we want to accommodate you a little further, and if you don't want to avail yourselves of this education, we will establish a school in East and South Boston and at the North End, and we will call it a high school. It will cost $19,000 to $27,000 a year for teachers, and four or five years from now there will be an expense of $60,000 or $70,000 for a new schoolhouse? It is a question for this City Council to determine whether they will enter upon this expenditure as long as they are beginning this central high school.

Alderman O'Brien—I don't feel like discussing this question any longer, but I would merely call the attention of the Board to the fact that this high-school arrangement is on the same plan with our Public Library. We have a branch library in the city that is superior to any other library in the country; and yet we are extending its branches to every section. If we want to cultivate our children, I don't see why we should n't do the same thing with our high schools.

Alderman Fitzgerald—That argument is not pertinent. The Alderman might as well say, because we have a water cart in some street we must have a water cart in some other street.

Alderman O'Brien—I allow the Alderman to use the argument he has made to illustrate this matter with. That was his argument, not mine.

Alderman Thompson—I desire that the members of the Board should understand this question, as well as the members of the committee. It was represented to the committee that there should be an intermediate school where pupils, for two years after leaving the grammar school, could be taught in this room, and then complete their education in the high school in Boston proper. It was supposed by the committee, in their conference with the members of the School Committee, that it might be a step towards a high school there; but if I remember correctly the members of the School Committee disclaimed anything of that kind, and they don't care anything about a high school. In regard to the location, in the judgment of the committee, it is a very poor one; but with all that, there is a desire on the part of the people of East Boston for this school. The expense was so trifling, comparatively speaking, that the committee thought they would recommend it, although the location is not a proper one. It is over and has the same entrance as the Police Court; but the argument was so strongly in favor of fitting up the room for the purpose, that the committee, with the exception of the Alderman opposite, voted in favor of it.

Alderman Fitzgerald—If this is laid over I hope it will be referred to the Finance Committee to provide the means, as the Superintendent of Public Buildings informs me that the appropriation for Public Buildings will not be sufficient to do this and the necessary work of the department.

The order was laid on the table—7 for, 4 against.

POLICE BOAT PROTECTOR.

An order came up for appointment of a committee (Messrs. Stone, Blodgett and Spenceley to be joined) to inquire why the police boat went to Marblehead on Sept. 1; how many times said boat has been taken from her regular beat this year, and the amount paid for refreshments on said boat since Jan. 1, 1877.

The question was upon concurrence.

Alderman Robinsou—I hate at all times to speak on matters of a personal nature; but that order, followed as it has been with some little squibs in the papers, reflects somewhat upon the chairman of the Police Committee and his associates.

Alderman O'Brien—If the Alderman will allow me to interrupt him for a moment I would like to say a word. Mr. Stone, the Councilman from the Charlestown District, called upon me today and stated that he regretted that he offered that order in the Council on facts that have subsequently not been substantiated, and he regretted very much that he had ever introduced it. I would suggest to the gentleman that, after that explanation, an indefinite postponement of the order would be a proper disposal of it. If the Alderman from Dorchester does not intend to go on with his explanation, I shall move the indefinite postponement of the order.

Alderman Robinson—After the explanation made by the Alderman, perhaps it would not be in good taste, or proper for me to say much more on the subject, as far as a personal nature is concerned. Therefore I will let that go. But, with the permission of the Board, I will simply say that neither myself, as chairman, nor my associates, have ever spent one single cent of the city's money in any outside excursions on this boat. That I state here; and although there may have been some other gentlemen who have gone down on the boat and made the circuit around the harbor to enjoy the cool breezes and a sail, it has been of no expense whatever to the city, because the bills would have been brought before me as chairman of the Committee on Police, and none have been presented. As hard as the men here work, if they have an opportunity to enjoy a sail down the harbor it ought not to be denied them. After working at City Hall for two or three hours I have gone down to the boat; I have taken some members of the Council and sometimes my family, and sometimes invited a gentleman to go with me; and we have sailed and smoked our cigars, and come home very well satisfied with the beauties of Boston Harbor. But as for furnishing refreshments, we never dreamt of charging the city one cent for it. But we considered that we have precisely the same right to enter upon that boat, as the Committee on Police, that we have to enter a police station. I will say nothing about the personal matter, so that we may have no more reflections of that kind.

Alderman Breck—I only rise to say that I fully indorse what the Chairman of the Police Committee has said. I have been down with him several times—possibly two or three times; but never at any time has the city been subjected to any expense. He is entirely free from blame in the matter.

On motion of Alderman O'Brien, the order was indefinitely postponed in non-concurrence.

WIDENING OF COMMERCIAL STREET.

The order for a loan of $1,000,000 to constitute an appropriation for the widening of Commercial Street.

The Mayor read remonstrances from Patrick K. Hughes and a large number of others, citizens of Wards 2 and 6, against the widening, alleging that it would ruin the property of those wards.

Alderman O'Brien presented petitions from Patrick Haverly et al., Wendell Phillips et al., and Patrick Malone et al., in favor of the widening of Commercial street.

The question was on the passage of the order.

Alderman Clark—I was not present at the meeting of the Committee on Finance when that report was made. I believe they do not deem the widening advisable at the present time; but if the City Council deem it advisable they recommend the passage of a certain order. Now, as a member of the Finance Committee, I should have dissented from the report of the committee, because I believe that public necessity and convenience require the widening of Commercial street at the present time. I hope the Board of Aldermen will at least come to that conclusion, as it is but the carrying out of a system inaugurated by the laying out of Atlantic avenue many years ago, by the widening of Broad street to a hundred feet; and the widening of Commercial street in conjunction with this great improvement will give to the city such facilities for travel as no other city on this continent possesses. Any member of the City Council can see the importance and the wisdom of laying out Atlantic avenue and widening Broad street, even in this slight revival of business, by going down there and seeing the crowded condition of the street by the transportation of merchandise. In 1872 the Board granted permission to the Marginal Street Railway to lay down tracks in Commercial and in other streets for the purpose of connecting the northern and southern depots, and to grant facilities to the shipping at Constitution, Battery, Central and Rowe's wharves; and, in fact, extending around the southern part of the city. The street is used almost exclusively by the railroads, and travel is blocked by the cars. Unless Commercial street is widened, this Board should order the railroad tracks to be taken up. It is wrong to take away the property of citizens by granting the use of a street to the detriment of the citizens. The wharf owners desire that street widened, and I believe it will be a most excellent thing for the business of the city, and that the increased valuation will repay the cost in a short time. There is no occasion for me to go into an elaborate discussion at this time. The ground has been very thoroughly covered by the Alderman opposite [Alderman O'Brien], and I believe every member has made up his mind how he is going to vote. There is no question about the necessity; it is only a question whether this is the proper time. The Committee on Streets and Street Commissioners have considered it very carefully, and I hope the order will be passed.

Alderman O'Brien—The petitions which I presented this afternoon were in addition to those that have been previously presented to the Board, and they represent at least one hundred millions of capital of the city of Boston. I think I can show the remonstrants, by a few facts and figures, that they need not be apprehensive of any injury to Wards 1 or 2 or 6—that there is business enough for all, and it only requires action on our part to cultivate it. As the Alderman opposite has said, I don't intend to detain the Board by any lengthy remarks, because this subject has been fully considered before. I believe that it is of the greatest importance to the commercial prospects of Boston that our water front should be improved, and I am surprised at the report of the Finance Committee. When we consider that the completion of Atlantic avenue has been indorsed and recommended by the Board of Street Commissioners, who have given this subject much of their attention for some years past—that it has been thoroughly investigated and unanimously indorsed by the Committee on Streets, after six months' consideration—the report of the Finance Committee, who have hardly had time to look into the matter, is even more than a surprise. This improvement, so long neglected, has also met with your approval, and I am satisfied that the brief report of that committee, without assigning any reasons, will not change your minds or your votes. I could not help asking the question, after reading this report, if Boston was an inland city, like Worcester, or Springfield, or Lowell, or Lawrence? If our commercial importance is anything more than a dream? Here we have a water front that other cities would consider a priceless jewel, and not a single dollar has been expended on it for fifty years. Here we have an improvement, commenced, I believe, some eight years ago, and when it reached a point where the improvement was most wanted, there it has stopped, and the citizens of that thickly-settled locality have petitioned in vain, year after year, for its completion. Is this doing justice to that section of the city? Is this the way to increase our business, by refusing to give facilities to our merchants to compete for the export trade of the country? Should we legislate as if Boston was only an inland city, and adopt the report of the Finance Committee, that says it is inexpedient to improve our water front?

We should remember that of whatever importance Boston has been in the past, and of whatever importance Boston will be in the future, it is on account of her maritime position. A few hours' sail from the deep water of our wharves, in one of the best harbors of the country, places our mercantile marine on the ocean, and our merchants are able to enter into competition for their share of the commerce of the world, provided we give them proper terminal facilities. Our export trade is increasing beyond all precedent, and what are we doing to get a fair portion of it? Do the Aldermen know the magnitude of this trade? Last year our crops were a partial failure, far less than an average, and we had 36,059,793 bushels of wheat to spare for export, 61,293,394 bushels of corn and rye, and immense supplies of other material. This year, in the West and Southwest our crop of wheat alone exceeds the crop of last year some 100,000,000 bushels, and we have at least 130,000,000 bushels of wheat to spare for export, and markets abroad are ready to pay us a good price for it. If we allow 40,000 bushels to an ordinary cargo, this would load 3250 vessels. Our corn crop promises to be immense, and can be landed in Europe at a fraction over one cent per pound. We exported last year, from September to September, 59,000,000 bushels, and this year we will add largely to this amount. A large crop of corn is followed by a large crop of pork, and there is no limit to the quantity of pork and hams and cut meats that will find an outlet in the markets of Europe, because every year they are more dependent on us for supplies. The steamer that left this port on Saturday last had 125,000 pounds of fresh beef in a new patent refrigerator, and this is believed to be the beginning of a very large trade, because shipments of fresh meats, it is believed, can be made in this way even in the warmest weather. The shipments of petroleum will amount this year to 300,000,000 gallons, filling up at least 1000 good-sized vessels, and this trade is yet in its infancy. The shipments of cheese will amount this year to at least 100,000,000 pounds, and American cheese is known throughout Europe as an article of food that cannot be dispensed with. American butter is exported quite largely, and has found its way even to Denmark. Leather is now a very large article of export, while a few years ago there was not a side shipped. The United States consul at Rotterdam reported to the State Department only a few weeks ago that a large firm in that city, formerly large shippers of leather to America, are now not only large importers of American leather, but also of New England shoes, finding that European manufacturers cannot compete with them either in price or quality. We are, in fact, fast becoming independent of foreign countries for supplies, while largely increasing our export trade. Russia leather is made in Connecticut, Bordeaux wine is manufactured in California and in the West, Italian macaroni is made in Philadelphia, superior to the imported article, Italian marble is produced in Kentucky and Vermont, Marseilles lichen is produced in Massachusetts, English cassimeres are made in Massachusetts, Maine and New Hampshire, Havana cigars are made in every city, so that the genuine article is difficult to find; Brussels carpets are made in Philadelphia, and Parisian art work is now a Boston production. We have already driven iron and coal almost from the list of imports, and American iron and coal must soon become articles of export. There is scarcely a ton of iron now received from Great Britain, where thousands of tons were received a few years ago. The Alderman from Charlestown must be aware of this fact. We scarcely appreciate our position, but to others at a distance it is quite apparent. The London Times of the 11th, commenting upon the abundant harvests in the United States, says, "It has been anticipated by those versed in United States commercial affairs that the gloom which has overspread the trade of the world for so long would be first dispersed on the other side of the Atlantic, and there seems to be a probability of this prediction being verified. Of all things there is nothing like a good harvest to help a country to turn the corner of its commercial depression, especially when such an opportunity as the present presents itself for selling the surplus produce."

I have alluded only to a few of the leading articles of export to show to the Board how immense this trade has become, and I would ask again, what are we doing to secure a fair portion of it? The Finance Committee can see no necessity for improving our water front and increasing our facilities for shipment, because their eyes appear to be closed to the magnitude of this trade. You, gentlemen of the Board of Aldermen, will have to take this matter in hand and pass the orders to complete this improvement outside of any recommendation of the Finance Committee that it is inexpedient. The deep-water fronts of the North End, East Boston and South Boston are of more importance to our trade and commercial prosperity than all other interests combined, but without proper terminal facilities they are almost useless.

Through what ports will this immense export trade pass on its way to the great consuming markets of Europe? You can count them on the ends of your fingers. Portland, Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore. The race is between these five ports. New York takes the lead, because the men of New York appreciate the situation, and do all they can to encourage and foster this trade. Philadelphia and Baltimore have already outstripped us in the race, because this trade receives more encouragement in each of these cities, and the result is New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore almost monopolize the business. Our increase has been remarkable the past few years, but with increased facilities would be still more remarkable.

Are we too poor to complete this improvement, and do justice to a section of the city that has been neglected? Boston today is the wealthiest city in the country, and it will not do for us to speak of poverty. But it is said that this City Government is running the city hopelessly in debt, although not a single new bond has been issued, and no money has yet been expended for any improvement. We have had the courage to commence work on an improved system of sewerage, a work that ought to have been commenced years ago, a work that will take years to complete, and the expenditure for this improvement will run over a series of years. Does any member of this Board regret that we have commenced this work? For one I am willing to stand on that record. We have made provision for a one-hundred acre park on the Back Bay territory, and will pay the owners about one-half the value of the land, or about one-half the assessed value we have put upon it; and in doing so we abate a nuisance and redeem $100,000,000 of property that has been pledged there. If any one who voted for that measure regrets it, let him visit this territory, and he will find that it has already imparted new life to improvements in that locality, and costly dwelling houses are being erected on all sides. I am not afraid to stand on that record, and am willing to be denounced for voting for and advocating it, because every year will show the wisdom of the measure and the shortsightedness of those who opposed it. The honor of the city has been pledged to the completion of Atlantic avenue, an improvement that has been too long neglected, and I feel I should fail in the performance of my duty if I did not vote for it and advocate it. No one who visits that locality but must see its necessity.

I still contend that our limit of indebtedness is $6,900,000, but all who assert that we are running the city hopelessly into debt had better turn to pages 198 and 199 of the Auditor's report, and they will find that the debt maturing for the next four years is as follows:

In 1877-8.....	$1,165,500
1878-9.....	1,242,705
1879-80.....	3,018,300
1880-81.....	724,500

Total in four years.....$6,151,005

All of which has been provided for by our sinking funds. Now, the improved system of sewerage, the park on the Back Bay and the completion of Atlantic avenue will not cost so much, while these improvements are in progress, during the next four years, as the debt that will mature and be cancelled during that time, so that there is no probability of adding one dollar to our debt during these years. I should like to see every dollar of our debt paid off in a few years, but to accomplish that we must stop all improvements and admit that Boston is a dead city. Besides, why should this generation pay in full for improvements that are made for all time?

We should remember that every improvement that we commence will give employment to the professional man, the mechanic, and the laborer. When these improvements are a necessity and must be commenced, if not today, next year or the year after, this is an important consideration. I know that when any scheme of improvement is urged because it will give employment to men who are greatly in need of employment, it is denounced as buncombe, but that will not deter me from saying that it is a good reason why these improvements should be commenced now. Who is there in this Board, after witnessing the pressure for employment during the year, by men who are willing to work and cannot find work, who will stand in the way and block every improvement that will give them employment, when it is generally admitted that all these improvements are necessary not only for the health of our citizens but for the future prosperity of our city? No improvement has been brought forward and acted upon but has been admitted as a necessity, has been asked for time and time again, and the people of the North End now demand the completion of Atlantic avenue as a right. I have no hesitation in acknowledging the justice of their claim.

As the second commercial city of the country, I believe that it is of the greatest importance that our water front should not be neglected, that Atlantic avenue should be completed, and that the order for its completion should be passed without delay.

Alderman Viles—I believe with the Alderman opposite, that quite enough has been said on this question. Every member fully understands it and has made up his mind, and all the talk from now till tomorrow will not change a vote. I am somewhat surprised to hear that remonstrance read. I have been in the ward twenty-three years, and this is the first time I have heard of business men objecting to this widening. The person who heads the petition is a stranger to me. I say that in justice to the people on that street we ought to settle this question, for they can neither sell nor lease their property. The Fitchburg has under consideration a plan of leasing two of the wharves, but they cannot utilize them as the street now stands. The street should be widened or the tracks removed. This is no new improvement. It was commenced six years ago, and we of Ward 6 hope to see the child born this afternoon, and we will christen him Atlantic-avenue Extension.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Two reasons seem to be urged for promoting this widening; one is that one section of the city shall get its fair share of the improvements going on; and a petition comes in here to the effect that the laboring men require it in order that they may get work. The laboring man has been made a tool of in and around City Hall for the last nine months by those who want to make improvements in parks and streets. I do not yield in my desire to see laboring men get work; but I say it is time to cease using that argument. Now as to the sectional argument. It is a question whether the whole city demands the widening, and not whether the North or West End demands it. I am not opposed to widening Commercial street; I believe the time will come when it must be done. But I oppose it for the same reasons I opposed all the improvements coming up this year—that they can afford to wait, for we are not financially in a condition to do it; that we can wait until the times come. But, as I have not had time to prepare anything upon this question, I cannot do better than read the remarks of the Alderman [Alderman O'Brien] last year:

I regret that the state of our finances will not permit me to vote for it, for it is an improvement that must be made at some future day. With a debt of $45,000,000, the interest on which has to be raised by taxation every year, I believe that it is time to stop expensive street-widenings, and in fact all street-widenings for the present. * * * I hope the Board; by their vote on this matter, will give our taxpayers the assurance that no street-widening projects will be entertained this year. It is not a matter of necessity. It will not add to our facilities for doing business, for we have now all the avenues that the business public require connecting the railroads that line Causeway street with other sections of the city. A street-widening not demanded or required by the public generally, or not wanted to facilitate business, is nothing more or less than taking money out of the treasury to improve the property of real-estate owners. I trust that the good sense of the Board will reject this order, and that no more street-widenings be commenced until the times are more propitious and the debts already incurred for these improvements are paid in full, or at least until our debt is considerably reduced.

I am also convinced that street-widening as it has been carried on in the city of Boston for the past ten years, has been the poorest investment the city has ever made. I have no doubt that hundreds would be glad to be back today in their old buildings on the old streets; and that many would be glad to be back today in their old warehouses instead of paying taxes now that are perhaps more than equal to the rents that they had to pay at that time. I believe we ought to check these street-widenings.

I think I might have alluded very properly to a document published in the morning papers. I don't know how many columns it occupied; but those several pages of the morning papers were for lands to be sold for non-payment of taxes—taxes brought about by these very street-widenings such as we are now entering upon. And you see the effect of it too. Today the Alderman presents a petition, or rather an order, for the widening of Brimmer place; and I have no doubt gentlemen will come before this Board, or before the Committee on Streets, and the Street Commissioners, and prove point-blank that there is a real necessity for the widening of those streets. There is n't a scheme of the kind but men will come up and say that a necessity for it actually exists, and that it ought to be carried out. I again contend that a fifty-foot street is wide enough for any business in Boston. I don't care how many teams and vehicles you put in South street; make it fifty feet, and under good police regulations, as the Alderman suggested, there will be no blocks there. I believe that a fifty-foot street is all that is required under the circumstances.

These were speeches delivered here in opposition to the widening of Portland street and South street, and I make them a part of my speech in opposition to the widening of Commercial street. The same reasons the Alderman urged in opposition to the widening of those streets are applicable to this measure. I have no doubt Commercial street will be widened some time, but until some portion of this debt of $44,000,000 is paid it is time for us to pause. I am sorry the Alderman has changed his views so suddenly, because, of all champions against street widenings last year and the year before, he was the strongest, and all because of the enormous debt which the city had incurred. What Board of Alderman have so generously responded to all calls made upon them? Ask and you shall receive; knock and it shall be opened unto you. That seems to have been the motto, and we have passed all the orders when they have come and knocked. Is n't it time for us to stop? Is n't it time to let the next City Government do something? Is n't it time to let the City Government after the next do something? There will be some others in the seats we occupy. Three short months from now my seat will be left warm for somebody, and there should be an opportunity left for our successors to distinguish themselves by street widenings. In justice to the City Treasury I think we have done our fair share.

Alderman O'Brien—When the Alderman said he did not come prepared to make a speech, and commenced reading his speech, as I supposed, I thought he had better write out his speeches all the time, because I never thought he could make a better one. I indorse everything that has been read of what I said last year: but this is not under such an argument as that. Here is a work that the city commenced and has not completed; and I say the city is in honor bound to complete it, and that it is not honorable and creditable to have neglected this improvement so long. I opposed South street last year, but I would not oppose another widening there today, because when the City Council passed an order to widen South street, when it was an open question, I fought it just as hard as I could; but if a continuation of a widening already begun comes up, I feel in honor bound to vote for it, because the city has pledged itself to carry it through. So with Portland street. When School street was brought up I opposed it, and I should oppose it again, because it is a new widening. This City Government is not committed to any new act of that kind, and that is the reason why I shall vote for the completion of Atlantic avenue.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The argument seems to be, because I give a man half a loaf I am in duty bound to give him the whole of it. It is no reason because the city widens a street two or three hundred yards one year, it will widen it the remaining 600 yards the year following.

Alderman Viles—I am informed that the remonstrance was not intended to come before this Board. It was got up to see if it could be sold out, and it was stolen from a gentleman's store this morning.

Alderman Gibson—I am in favor of the extension of Commercial street. In the first place, the property holders have been injured by the City Government chartering the railroad there, and all travel through there by small carriages is virtually abandoned. There is n't more than three feet to spare between the cars and the carriages. All property there is tied up on both sides.

Alderman Viles—The Legislature chartered the railroad, and the city cannot take it up.

Alderman Gibson—Had not this street been widened and the railroad chartered, I would not vote to commence any new widenings; but here are people who have been injured, and this widening will gradually restore property to its original value.

The order was passed—yeas 10, nays 1—Alderman Fitzgerald voting nay. Absent—Alderman Dunbar. Sent down.

STABLES.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Health on the part of the Board:

Reports that leave be granted, on the usual conditions, to occupy stables by A. F. Quigley, New Seaver street; Joseph Reidell, German street; John L. Dakin, Lamartine street; H. J. R. Gotz, Haven avenue; heirs of William P. Snow, Plain street, Neponset; William Lovett, Lincoln street, Ward 25; Asa P. Potter, rear Commonwealth avenue; Edmund C. Frulan, Highland street, Ward 24. Severally accepted.

Reports of leave to withdraw on petition of Dennis Sullivan, for leave to occupy old brick stable for twenty-five horses at 85 Cove street, in rear, and Charles E. Paige, for stable at 612 Fifth street. Severally accepted.

SEWERS.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Sewers:

Reports and orders of notice for hearing on Monday next, on expediency of constructing sewers in Washington street, near Blue Hill avenue, Dorchester; in Dndley street, between Hancock and Humphrey streets; in Ferry street; in Thornton street, between Valentine and Ellis streets. Severally read twice and passed.

Reports of leave to withdraw, on petition of John Gilhenney et al., for a sewer in Wendell street, south of Preble street; and that no action is necessary on petition of M. F. Lynch for a sewer in Wesley street, Ward 15. Severally accepted.

ARMY AND NAVY MEMORIAL.

Alderman O'Brien submitted a report from the Committee on Printing on the order to print a memorial of the dedication of the Army and Navy Monument—That as nearly as estimated the memorial will make a book of 136 pages, royal octavo, similar in style to the Bunker Hill memorial, and will probably cost $1.33 per volume. This includes the printing of General Devens's oration, which the City Council have voted to print, and which will cover about twenty pages of the volume. The committee are of opinion that not less than 1500 copies should be printed. They recommend the passage of the order referred to them.

Alderman Fitzgerald moved that the number printed be one thousand instead of fifteen hundred.

Alderman O'Brien—The reason why the committee recommended fifteen hundred was on account of the demand for such volumes by historical societies, public libraries, etc., throughout the country. Even now, the Committee on Printing receive calls for the Seventeenth of June memorial, almost every week, from some historical society, or some city institution, that we ought to accommodate if it was in our power; but the edition is completely exhausted, and we can supply no more copies. I think the memorial we are about to print will be one of the most interesting memorials that has ever been printed by the city of Boston. It is not only the dedication of this monument to our dead, but we also ought to remember that the work of art that perpetuates their memory is the work of a Boston artist, who, a hundred years from this time, will be better known than he is today. We ought at least to have fifteen hundred copies of this little volume, because I think that number will not more than supply the demand.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Beyond the dedication of the monument the day has no special significance. As for perpetuating the memory of the artist, I think he will survive the book, and if he goes on as he has begun I think he will, and will not need the publication of a book to hand down the name of Martin Milmore to future ages. It did not need a book to perpetuate the name of Phydias, and it will not need a book to perpetuate the name of Martin Milmore. It seems to me that one thousand copies will be quite sufficient to meet all the demands that we ought to supply. If each member of the City Council receives one book, and if the others are distributed around, I think that will be quite sufficient. I can see no good reason why each member should receive six or seven books. If each member gets one it will be quite sufficient to add to his library. I have no doubt, many others will want it to add to their libraries; but not having the good fortune to be members of the City Government this year they will have to do without the book. Besides, the day is not like the 17th of June, which was the celebration of a great day in American history. It brought together men from the North and the South; and it was the first act of reconciliation that occurred before the eyes of the American people. It was a great and a grand day; and I am not surprised that the books are called for which gave a history of it. But beyond the dedication of the monument and the procession, there was nothing extraordinary to mark the day in the history of the country, as was the case with the Seventeenth of June, 1875. I think that 1000 copies would supply not all the wants, but all we ought to supply.

Alderman O'Brien—I would merely call attention to another fact—that distinguished generals who fought during the war visited the city on that day quite numerously. I think it would be just to send each distinguished general a copy of the volume, and I feel more convinced than ever, after listening to what the gentleman has said, that fifteen hundred copies would be as small a number as we ought to print.

Alderman Slade—What would be the difference in the expense of fifteen hundred and a thousand?

Alderman O'Brien—The difference in the expense would be perhaps four or five hundred dollars. One thousand copies would cost more, proportionately, than fifteen hundred would.

Alderman Fitzgerald's amendment to make the number one thousand was lost—yeas 4, nays 7.

Yeas—Aldermen Fitzgerald, Gibson, Viles, Wilder—4.

Nays—Aldermen Breck, Burnham, Clark, O'Brien, Slade, Thompson, Robinson—7.

Absent—Alderman Dunbar.

The order to print 1500 copies was then passed unanimously.

LICENSES.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted reports from the Committee on Licenses, as follows:

Minors' Applications Granted—One bootblack, eight newsboys.

Auctioneers' Licensed—Washington A. Coles, 37 Hanover street; Calvin Bird & Co., 3 Tremont row.

Innholder Licensed—C. A. Hackett, Superintendent, 36 Harrison avenue (Friendly Inn).

Wagon Licenses Granted—C. H. Doherty, corner Tremont and Hammond streets; C. H. Gavett, 75 Kilby street; James H. Quinn, 625 East Second street; William Carey, 1361 Tremont street; John Currier, 100 High street.

Billiard License Granted—C. L. Allen, treasurer, 13 Province street.

Victuallers Licensed—J. H. Griffin, 18 Travers street; Stewart & Macomber, 26 Portland street.

Intelligence Offices Licensed—Jane C. Elder, 52 Leverett street; Eliza A. Roberts, 20 Garden street; Carrie L. Belcher, 33 LaGrange street; Maria J. Bent, 27½ Carver street.

Amusement Licenses Granted—Jarrett & Palmer, to exhibit a magical entertainment at Horticultural Hall for two months from Oct. 1.

Severally accepted.

COMMON AND PUBLIC GROUNDS.

Alderman Clark submitted a report from the Joint Committee on Common and Public Grounds, representing that an additional appropriation will be required for that department for the remainder of the financial year. The expenditures for the six months ending Oct. 1 are as follows: Labor, $32,131.68; trees, plants and shrubs, $3205.60; teaming and hire of horses, $3870; red gravel, $3538; loam and gravel, $3073.15; tools, repairs and sundry items, $2739.65; repairs on fountains, fences and walks, $2661.23; sods, $2280.45; manure, $1215.00; care of South End squares, $1200; care of East Boston squares, $700; watering streets, $625; total, $62,239.76. The total appropriation for the Department of Common and Public Grounds for the present financial year is $65,100, thus leaving a balance of $2860.24. The committee estimate the sum required to cover the expenses of the remainder of the financial year at $15,000, a portion of which will be needed to pay the bills incurred in grading the grounds around the Army and Navy Monument, lately dedicated by the city. They recommend that the subject be referred to the Committee on Finance, with a request to provide the means. Accepted and referred to Committee on Finance. Sent down.

THE BACK BAY IMPROVEMENT.

Alderman Clark offered an order—That the Joint Standing Committee on Streets be authorized to sell by public auction the building now standing near the junction of Boylston street and West Chester park, on the land recently purchased from Lydia Ellis by this city; the removal of said building being necessary to complete the improvements on said street and park. The proceeds of such sale to be paid into the city treasury. Passed. Sent down.

CLAIMS.

Alderman O'Brien submitted the following from the Joint Committee on Claims:

Report of leave to withdraw on petition of John Danehy to be paid for personal injuries received by an alleged defect in Cambridge street, Charlestown. Accepted. Sent down.

MARKET.

Alderman Slade submitted a report from the Committee on Market in favor of approval of the transfer of lease of stalls Nos. 87-89 Faneuil Hall Market by Albert A. Kane to L. D. Nichols. Accepted.

PAY FOR WATCHING THE MONUMENT.

Alderman Thompson offered an order—That there be allowed and paid to Thomas J. Anderson the sum of one hundred and thirty-five dollars, for services as night watchman at the Army and Navy Monument; to be charged to the special appropriation for the Army and Navy Monument. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman Thompson.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Common Council,
OCTOBER 4, 1877.

Regular meeting at 7½ o'clock P. M., Benjamin Pope, President, in the chair.

PAPERS FROM THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Quarterly reports of Inspector of Lighters and paymaster of State aid. Severally placed on file.

Report of leave to withdraw on petition of James Danahy to be paid for personal injuries from a defect in Cambridge street, Charlestown. Accepted in concurrence.

Order to sell by public auction the building near junction of Boylston street and West Chester park. Read twice and passed in concurrence.

Report in favor and passage of order for preparation and printing of an account (1500 copies) of the ceremonies attending the dedication of Army and Navy Monument.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—Why was it decided upon this number of copies?

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24—It has been found that that was the number usually needed to answer the requirements of such publications. Some of them have already become very scarce and difficult to obtain, and the committee have been unable to grant all the requests which they thought might well have been granted if the copies had been in hand. We therefore thought best that that number should be printed. Of course it is not a matter that the committee have any particular preference about.

The order was read twice and passed in concurrence—yeas 47, nays 0.

Order to pay Thomas J. Anderson $135, for services as night watchman at Army and Navy Monument.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—As this is to be charged to the special appropriation for the monument, and as the party who has done the service there has not had any money since he commenced, and is in great need of it, I move a suspension of the rules in order that it may take its second reading at the present time.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—I do not rise in any opposition to the order, but to ask why, if this is to be charged to the special appropriation for the monument, why it comes before us in the shape of an order?

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—This gentleman is a Second Assistant Assessor, and the order is obliged by the ordinance to come before the City Council for any extra services that he may do outside of that duty.

The rule was suspended, and the order was read a second time and passed in concurrence.

COMMON AND PUBLIC GROUNDS.

A request of the Committee on Common, etc., for an additional appropriation of $15,000, came down for reference to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Coe of Ward 23—I would inquire of some member of the Committee on Common how much is likely to be spent in the care of the grounds around the monument. I am asking for information.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—As a member of that committee, I should say that I had not the slightest idea how much should be spent around the monument. The estimates seem to vary greatly. At one time it was thought the work would cost about five thousand dollars, at another time fifteen thousand and at another time it was said that it could be done for between five and six thousand. At present I am not prepared to give any definite statement.

Mr. Coe—I asked because I supposed it was necessary for the Council to have information in regard to it. The Committee on the Auditor's Estimates cut down the appropriation for Common and Squares only $5000, and yet, notwithstanding this, the Committee on Common are asking for ten thousand dollars in excess of what they asked from the City Council at the beginning of the year, and I was hoping to get some information from them that might justify me in any vote I might be called upon to give.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—If I understood the report, no particular reason was given why the committee had exhausted their appropriation for this year. It seems that they have exceeded the amount appropriated by about one quarter. That is rather a large amount to overrun. If it was due to the Army and Navy Monument, that might be considered a special reason for an extra expense; but it don't appear, from what we can learn, that that is the reason, and it seems as though it is due to the Council that the reasons why they have overrun the appropriation should be given. If they deliberately used more money than they were authorized to use, it seems to me that the Council might have something more to say about it. If it was an accident arising from unforeseen causes, we should not be very strict; but if they used more money than was appropriated simply because they chose to use more—and so far as I have heard it may be that—it seems to me it ought to be taken notice of.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—I should like to ask the committee wherein and for what they have exceeded the appropriation.

Mr. Howes—The appropriation has not yet been exceeded. There is still a balance on hand. In reply to the gentleman from Ward 9 I would state that the probable reason for this expenditure arises from the fact that a very great pressure has been put upon Mr. Galvin during the past year to employ laborers. It is my personal opinion that he has employed a great many more laborers than is necessary, and the employer has been due to the pressure brought to bear by the members of the City Government. Whether he was right or wrong in that I am not in a position to state. But I should say that I am as much surprised as any other member of the City Government to see that committee obliged to ask for an additional appropriation, and it was not with my vote that this matter came before the City Government.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—The sixteenth joint rule provides—

"In the present and every future financial year the specific appropriation for the several objects enumerated in the general appropriation order shall be deemed and taken to be the maximum amount to be expended by the several committees, boards and officers having the charge thereof, for the entire financial year, and shall be expended with a proper regard thereto."

Now, some person has not only blundered, but they have done more than blunder; they have deliberately disregarded the law of this city, and I, for one, say here that I shall vote against this order passing. I would rather see the Common and the Public Garden abandoned for the remainder of this year than to vote one cent more to be put upon them. The money has been expended improperly, because a proper expenditure would have been such as to carry the department through the year. The only way to bring the head of that department to a realizing sense of what is due to the City Government is to stop the expenditure.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—We have derived some information so far, and perhaps there may be room for more. I should like to inquire of some gentleman representing the committee whether this extra help has been employed by Mr. Galvin on his own responsibility, or by the authority of the committee or of the chairman of the committee. It is well to know where this responsibility lies. From what the gentleman says we don't know.

Mr. Howes—So far as I am aware, the employment of the laborers that have been engaged in the work upon the Common and other public grounds has been left solely in the hands of the Superintendent.

Mr. Felt of Ward 18—I notice that the appropriation read $65,000, and I see it is put down in the record as $75,000. I should like some explanation of that.

Mr. Coe—I think the estimates submitted by the Committee on Common and Squares to the Committee on the Auditor's Estimates has been stated by the gentleman from Ward 18 as $7500. The Committee on the Auditor's Estimates reduced that amount $1000, leaving the amount of the appropriation $65,000. But it seems that the committee are likely to spend not only the amount appropriated, but $15,000 in addition to that—$10,000 more than they asked for in the first place.

The question on the acceptance and reference of the report to the Committee on Finance was put, and the Chair, being in doubt, was about to divide the Council, when, on motion of Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20, the yeas and nays were ordered. The Council refused, in non-concurrence, to accept and refer the report—yeas 26, nays 30:

Yeas—Messrs. Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Cross,

Dee, Duggan, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Hiscock, Jackson, Kelley of Ward 3, Kelley of Ward 6, Kidney, McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, Mullane, Nugent, O'Donnell, Reed, Roach, Ruffin, Sibley, E. R. Webster—26.

Nays—Barnard, Beeching, Blanchard, Blodgett, Brintnall, Brown, Coe, Crocker, Danforth, Fagan, Felt, Hibbard, Howes, Morrill, Mowry, Perham, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, Pratt, J. B. Richardson, Roberts, Sampson, Spenceley, Stone, Thompson, Thorndike, Upham, Vose, G. B. Webster, Wilbur—30.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Barry, Cox, Day, Doherty, Ham, Loughlin, O'Connor, Pearl, Pope, M. W. Richardson, Shepard, Smardon, Souther, Warren, Wolcott—15.

Sent up.

WIDENING OF COMMERCIAL STREET.

Petitions for and remonstrances against the widening of Commercial street came down with report of inexpedient to widen Commercial street, between Eastern avenue and Charles River Bridge, at this time; but, it public necessity requires it, recommending an order for a loan of $1,000,000 for said widening, and also for grading, repaving and damages.

On the question of passing the order to a second reading, Mr. Pierce of Ward 18 called for the yeas and nays, which were ordered, and the order was passed to a second reading and laid over—yeas 30, nays 27:

Yeas—Messrs. Beeching, Blodgett, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Crocker, Cross, Dee, Duggan, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Hiscock, Jackson, J. Kelley (Ward 3), J. Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, McClusky, McGaragle, O'Donnell, Perham, Roach, Sibley, Thompson, Thorndike, Upham, Vose, E. R. Webster, Wilbur—30.

Nays—Messrs. Barnard, Blanchard, Brintnall, Brown, Coe, Danforth, Day, Fagan, Felt, Hibbard, Howes, McDonald, Morrill, Mowry, Mullane, Nugent, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, Pratt, Reed, J. B. Richardson, Roberts, Ruffin, Sampson, Spenceley, Stone, G. B. Webster—27.

Absent or not voting—Barry, Cox, Doherty, Ham, Loughlin, O'Connor, Pearl, B. Pope, M. W. Richardson, Shepard, Smardon, Souther, Warren, Wolcott—14.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Order to pay D. G. Quirk $52, Edward W. Dolan $23, and John Pierce $20; to be charged as therein set forth.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I would ask what this order means.

Mr. Stone of Ward 3—That these men are Second Assistant Assessors, and they were employed because they were better acquainted with the ward than new men would be, and it is necessary to have a vote of the Council on the payment of the bill.

Mr. Thompson—What were they employed for?

Mr. Stone—For distributing notices of sales.

The order was passed in concurrence.

Order authorizing the appointment of a messenger for the Treasurer's office, at a salary of $1000 per year, said messenger to furnish bonds of $10,000, with amendment that the Treasurer be responsible for him the same as for other officers in the department. Amendment adopted and order passed as amended. Sent up.

PETITIONS PRESENTED.

By Mr. Burke of Ward 2—Petition of M. H. Leonard, for compensation for injury to his horse by alleged defect in Trenton street. Referred to Committee on Claims. Sent up.

Petition of John H. Walsh for leave to enlarge a wooden building on Cambridge street, Ward 25. Referred to Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings.

PRISON POINT FLATS.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5 submitted the following:

The Joint Committee on Health, to whom was referred the petition of S. D. Sawin & Co., that Prison Point flats be filled up, submit the following report:

Your committee, from a careful examination of the locality and the testimony of many residents of different sections in the Charlestown District, find that a great nuisance exists on the premises referred to in the petition, and consider the same dangerous to public health; and whatever may be the cost of abating this nuisance, it should not be suffered to continue there another summer, and they would earnestly recommend the passage of the following order:

Resolved, That in the opinion of the City Council, the Board of Health should take immediate measures to abate the nuisance created by the Mill Pond Flats and adjoining flats in the Charlestown District.

The resolve was read twice and passed. Sent up.

IMPROVED SEWERAGE.

Mr. Sampson submitted the following:

The Committee on Improved Sewerage respectfully represent that in their opinion it is necessary that measures should be taken for obtaining the most complete and latest information respecting the intercepting systems of sewerage now in practical operation, in order that the most valuable features of each system may be applied to the works now under construction in this city, and that we may profit by the experience of other cities and thus avoid introducing any features which are not of any practical utility. During their investigation of the subject the committee have been impressed that any fuller information than they have now cannot be obtained in this country. They have been compelled to rely upon reports which, while giving a general knowledge of the subject, do not enter sufficiently into details to warrant their being depended upon for the purpose of construction. This is especially the case with regard to the elaborate machinery required for the construction and operation of the works about which little is at present known. The committee believe that the desired information can only be obtained by an inspection of the works in actual operation, and as no intercepting system of sewerage is in use in this country it will be necessary to send an agent to Europe for the purpose. The committee therefore unanimously recommend that the City Engineer be granted leave of absence for a sufficient length of time to enable him to visit the several cities in Europe where the intercepting systems of sewerage are in operation, for the purpose of studying the details of said works, and obtaining plans and other information. The committee believe that the expense of so doing will be fully justified by the knowledge which will be obtained and applied to the construction of a system of improved sewerage adopted for this city. To that end the committee recommend the passage of the following orders:

Ordered, That the City Engineer have leave of absence for a term not exceeding four months, for the purpose of examining the systems of sewerage in Europe, and that the expense of so doing, and also such other expenses incidental thereto, as may be authorized by the Joint Special Committee on Improved Sewerage, the City Treasurer be authorized to furnish a letter of credit for an amount not exceeding one thousand pounds sterling; the sums drawn against the same to be charged to the appropriation for Improved Sewerage.

Ordered, That during the absence of the City Engineer, Assistant Engineer Henry M. Wightman be authorized and empowered to discharge the duties belonging to the City Engineer.

The orders were ordered to a second reading, and Mr. Sampson moved a suspension of the rules that they might be put upon their passage tonight.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I hardly like this. This is an expenditure of $5000, and it is rushing it through in a pretty lively manner for the City Engineer to take a trip to Europe. I should like to look into this thing, and it wont hurt any by looking into.

Mr. Sampson—It is not an expenditure of $5000. The committee ask for a letter of credit, and it comes out of the regular appropriation for Improved Sewerage. The engineer who went to Europe is not the engineer who is to build the works, and this is one of the measures contemplated when the appropriation was made. I have no desire to press this, but the work has so far progressed that, if Mr. Davis is to go, the earlier he goes the better. The earlier he goes the earlier he will get back, and the earlier he will be ready to begin work in the spring.

Mr. McGaragle—I have no objection; but I thought when we appropriated three or four millions for a system of sewerage that the committee had considered the feasibility of the plan.

Mr. Sampson—The feasibility of the plan was considered. The Engineer has among his plans the pumping works of London, but they have been in operation twelve years, and other works have been established since then, and he is unable to get the plans except by a personal inspection. It is no additional appropriation. It is merely authorizing Mr. Wightman to act in his absence. The committee have already sent Mr. Davis to various parts of the country, and could have sent him abroad. They come here for authority for Mr. Wightman to act in his absence.

The rule was suspended and the orders were passed. Sent up.

THE USE OF THE POLICE BOAT PROTECTOR.

Mr. Thompson said that he had to leave the city in a few moments, and obtained permission, although not in the regular order, to offer the following:

Whereas, It appears that members of the City Government have been in the habit of using the city police boat for pleasure excursions in the harbor for themselves and their families and friends;

And Whereas, Such use of the city property for the private advantage of individuals has been publicly avowed and justified:

Resolved, That in the opinion of the Common Council all such use of the police boat or any other property of the city is without right and unjustifiable and should forthwith be discontinued.

Mr. Thompson—I offer the resolve on account of the course which was taken with the order introduced here at our last meeting. I knew, and still know nothing of the facts which induced the bringing in of that order. When it was brought in, it seemed to me to be a matter for investigation. It was met in a trifling manner, so to speak, in the other branch; there was no attempt to explain it. A part of the facts were admitted, and it seems to be conceded that the Committee on Police have taken the ground that they have the right to take the police boat down and use it for purposes of their own pleasure. Now it seems to me that that is a principle in the use of public property that is entirely inadmissible. No member of the Committee on Police has any right to go upon that boat and divert it to his own use any more than any citizen of Boston has. If it were once admitted that any citizen had the right to go down and make use of that boat, its usefulness would be entirely destroyed, and we should cease to make an appropriation for its maintenance. I hope this resolve will pass as an expression of the opinion of the City Council.

Mr. Stone of Ward 3—When I offered the order last Thursday to investigate the use of the Protector, I considered I had good and sufficient reasons for believing that the boat had been misused, and at the expense of the city for refreshments. The next day I was accused of putting in an order for political buncombe, and two days after I ascertained that the boat had been used for private purposes no more than the Bradlee or any other boat has been used in the same way; that its use was indefinite, and that it had not been taken off its beat but once at Marblehead; and that all refreshment bills had been paid by the gentlemen themselves. I thought we had had newspaper talk enough about certain members of the Board, and I came to the conclusion that the investigation would do no good; and I therefore requested Alderman O'Brien to move to indefinitely postpone the order.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I must say I was rather surprised at the conduct of the Aldermen in dropping all inquiry upon this subject, when it seems to me that if they had not been doing anything that they were ashamed of, an inquiry which would bring out the facts and show their innocence, would be just what they wanted. But their conduct in refusing to make an investigation rather tended to create a suspicion that there was something that they wanted to keep behind. I do not mean to say that there was anything; but it seems to me to be an unfortunate way of disposing of the matter. It seems to me, however, to be a matter calling for remark when an Alderman claims that it is proper for the Aldermen, after being exhausted by the labors of the day in City Hall, to use the police boat as a pleasure yacht, when it ought to be on duty as a police boat, and to go sailing in it with their families and friends around Boston Harbor. It seems to me that that was an extraordinary doctrine to avow in City Hall, and still more extraordinary that no member of the Board of Aldermen was found to say a word against it, but that all acquiesced in it. It therefore seems to me to be very proper that this branch should have something to say about it. The Aldermen seemed to think, that because they did not partake of any refreshments at the expense of the city, their pleasuring was all right. It strikes me that if the use of the boat in that way is admitted to be all right this year, next year we may find them adding champagne and the luxuries of the season. It ought to be stopped now. The Alderman said—

“We considered that we had the same right to enter upon that boat, as the Committee on Police, that we have to enter any police station.”

He seems to think that that disposed of the whole matter, and that he was doing as straight, upright, and proper a thing in going upon that boat as he would be in going into a police station. Now, if the gentleman thinks that does cover the whole case, it does seem to me that he stands in need of enlightenment. Every member of the Committee on Police has no doubt the same right to go into that police boat that he has to go into a police station; but when they take this boat and go down the harbor for pleasure, they do the same thing they would do if they went into a police station and said, We don't want this used as a police station tonight; we want to have a dancing party here; we will furnish our own provisions and refreshments, and it will be a nice place to entertain our friends and have a dance. I think that everybody will admit that that would be an improper use to make of a police station; and I think that this taking of the police boat from its proper business of patrolling the harbor, and using it in going down the harbor for pleasure excursions for Aldermen and members of the City Government and their families and friends is entirely improper and ought not to pass without notice.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5—I have felt very much interested in this matter, but I don't see that there is any great matter to investigate. The Aldermen stated openly and fairly that they have done it. One Alderman says that they passed several very pleasant times on the boat, and that he received some benefit. It is cool and pleasant down the harbor. But, above all, you must remember that the Aldermen are a very laborious body; that they work hard for the city, and get up an extreme heat, both of brains and muscle; and that they, perhaps, don't have the time to go into the country, as other gentlemen do. Their vacation is not so long as ours, and where should they go? They thought they had the right, and they have done it; and what is done cannot be helped, and what is there to investigate? They openly state that it is just so; that they paid their own bills. They don't say what they did; but one said they enjoyed their cigars. It seems to me the less said the better. If it is a bad egg, let it pass. They have done it; if it is wrong, it cannot be helped. If there is any way we can put any restriction upon it in the future, I should be glad to vote for it.

Mr. Brown of Ward 23—I do not think it is proper or necessary to criticise the action of members of the other branch on matters wholly within their control, and I move that the resolve be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I should like to tell the gentleman from Charlestown one way in which his plan can be carried out, and that is by taking the police boat from the Committee on Police and putting it into the hands of the harbor master, and making it of some practical use. At present the money expended on the police boat is thrown away. She is not of the slightest use to the city, and has not been since she was first built. The sooner some change is made to put her to some use, the better.

Mr. Ruffin of Ward 9—I don't know that we have enough to act upon in this case. All the facts we have have been given by members of the other branch. I don't know that it has been shown that this going down the harbor is of frequent occurrence. I think the Alderman said they made a circuit of the harbor on several occasions. That was his language, or something like that. I don't believe it was of so serious a nature as some are disposed to look upon it at present. I understand that it is the custom of the police boat to make two trips a day down the harbor. As I understand it, they go down as far as the Great Brewster; that they go to Hull, and have to board any inward coming foreign vessels and make some inquiries. That is a sail which the boat must make twice every day, morning and afternoon; and if members of the Police Committee are passengers, I don't see that any great harm is done, if they do not take the boat off its duty. It is in the line of its duty; the boat is large enough to take the Police Committee and any friends that they may have. I don't believe it would be a very serious thing for the members of the Police Committee to go aboard of that boat. It would certainly give them an opportunity of seeing what the duty to be performed by the boat was and whether it was well done. They would have better knowledge on the subject; they would be able to manage the police affairs, so far as that boat is concerned, very much better after getting that information; and if nothing more than that has been done, I don't look upon it as a very grave offence, and it certainly is not one which ought to engage our attention here. If there is anything behind this—some cat in the meal—which I have n't heard of, and if this is a mere pretence and the boat has been taken off its beat, that is another thing. But from the information we have today, I cannot see why it is n't a very reasonable thing, on a summer afternoon, for the members of the Police Committee to go on that boat and make a circuit of the harbor, while it is making a regular trip.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—The gentleman says it don't appear that the boat has been taken off her regular beat. If she has not, and if all this excursioning has been going down the harbor and not taking her from her regular duties, I don't think we have any cause to find fault. But the charge originated from the fact that she went to Marblehead once. She has no business in Marblehead. One occasion like that is perhaps not worth talking about; but the charge has been that she has been off her regular beat; and when the chairman of the committee answered the charge in the Board of Aldermen, he did not say she has not been taken off her regular beat. It would have been easy for him to say so. I think that, as he has not denied it when he had the opportunity, it may fairly be assumed that she has been. The gentleman from Charlestown seems to think there is no need of an investigation. This is not an order for an investigation. That has been nipped in the bud. This is a resolution expressing our disapproval of such use of city property. It is about all we can do, and if there is anything more that we can do, let us do it. It seems to me that it is proper for us to resolve that this is a thing that should not be done any more, and that is all that the resolution amounts to.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—As long as this order was simply for an investigation, I voted for it, for of course I cannot refuse to investigate any man. But I cannot support it in this shape and I think it ought to be postponed. In my judgment, reform, like charity, should commence at home. This matter is entirely foreign to the duties of this Common Council, and is entirely in charge of the Board of Aldermen. I would state that to my personal knowledge there are many worse abuses than this that occur on the part of the Common Council. If we could have a resolve including ourselves as well as them, I will vote for it. People in glass houses should not throw stones; and while many similar things like this do exist, I think it is something like self-righteousness and political humbug for us to take charge of matters belonging to the Board of Aldermen.

On motion of Mr. Beeching of Ward 9, the main question was ordered.

The resolve was declared ordered to a second reading. Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8 doubted the vote, and on motion of Mr. Barnard the yeas and nays were ordered. The resolve was refused a second reading—yeas 20, nays 32:

Yeas—Messrs. Barnard, Blodgett, Coe, Crocker, Cross, Danforth, Felt, Hildard, Howes, McDonald, Morrill, Mowry, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, Pratt, J. B. Richardson, Sampson, Stone, Upham, Wilhnr—20.

Nays—Messrs. Beeching, Blanchard, Brintnall, Brown, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Dee, Duggan, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Hiscock, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, McClusky, McGaragle, Millane, Nugent, O'Donnell, Reed, Roach, Ruffin, Sibley, Spenceley, Thorndike, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster—32.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Barry, Cox, Day, Doherty, Fagan, Ham, Longhlin, O'Connor, Pearl, Perham, Pope, M. W. Richardson, Roberts, Shepard, Smardon, Souther, Thompson, G. B. Webster, Wolcott—19.

SCHOOL SESSIONS.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19 offered the following: Resolved, That in the opinion of the City Council the change in the sessions of the schools from one session on Wednesday and Saturday to two sessions on Wednesday is highly injurious and detrimental to the health and requirements of the pupils, and in consideration thereof the City Council most respectfully petitions the School Committee that the sessions may be established in accordance with former custom.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I believe this Council should attend to its regular duties, and that the School Committee can well be allowed to attend to theirs. I move that this resolve be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—I hope, unless some extraordinary reason is given, that the motion to postpone will prevail. The question to which it relates is one that was agitated very considerably and for some length of time before the School Committee; that board gave it very careful and intelligent consideration. I think that any candid man who will take the pains to give it the consideration it deserves, before any action is taken upon it, will come to the conclusion that the School Committee acted wisely in doing as they did. I agree with the gentleman from Ward 3 that it is a matter which would be an impertinence to come from us, as instructing the School Committee.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I don't object to the City Council instructing the Fire Commissioners; but when we attempt to instruct the School Committee I think we carry it too far, and it is time to stop.

Mr. Spenceley—I think this is a matter that concerns me and my fellow-citizens to consider whether it is wise and judicious for my children to attend school from Monday morning until Saturday night. I have a little boy who has more books than he can carry, and I say this way of crowding children in the schools is worse than anything else, and I say it is wrong to keep children in school all the week without any vacation. I have here what the Superintendent says upon this subject:

Our primary and grammar schools have ten sessions a week, namely, six forenoon sessions and four afternoon sessions, no sessions being held on the afternoons of Wednesday and Saturday. This has been the custom for very many years, and it is a custom which has certain advantages. The break in work in the middle of the week affords relief to both teachers and pupils, which is no doubt beneficial. In years past I have not been quite willing to see this arrangement changed. Nor am I now thoroughly convinced of the expediency of a change.

That is what Superintendent Philbrick says, and I think he knows something about this. I have not heard of any good argument for the change; but I do know this, and I feel a certain responsibility upon myself, and many other gentlemen with whom I have talked about this matter for several weeks past believe in the old system. I think we have a right to bring this matter before the City Council. The gentleman has well said that we can attend to our own duties. I think the School Committee have gone a good way out when we cannot bring a resolution of this kind into the City Council and pass upon it yea or nay. I think we have something to do with the City affairs. I don't know but it may be better to give all the city affairs into the hands of commissioners and do away with the Common Council and Aldermen.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—The School Committee derives its power from the same source from which we derive ours, and is equal with and independent of us. While I agree with the gentleman on the general merits of this question, I differ with him seriously in regard to the action proposed. I would also add that in case he sees fit to depart from this Council, and wish to take a seat upon the School Board, I will use my influence in the Bunker Hill District in attaining that end.

Mr. Spenceley—Thank you. I don't want it.

The motion to indefinitely postpone was lost—22 for, 22 against, and the question came on giving the resolve a second reading.

Mr. Pratt—I don't know but we have a right to pass resolves like this, as the gentleman claims. We have a right to do a great many things that are not expedient. Among other rights that belong to us, is that of making fools of ourselves. The inimitable Bilings says that nature seldom makes a fool; she merely furnishes the raw material. I think very probably nature has furnished this Common Council cil with its fair proportion of raw material for making fools, and if we choose to finish the job we have a right to do so, individually and collectively. Now I think that the gentleman in his solicitude for the welfare of the children who are brought under the care of the School Committee would have shown himself much wiser to have got his resolution introduced into the School Board. He cannot be without sufficient influence to get a resolution presented there. If he is at present without such influence, he had better see that such a committee is elected as will give him a respectful hearing. It is a very short time since the School Committee came to the conclusion to change the sessions so as to give a holiday all day Saturday. I am very sure that with a large proportion of our citizens it has given very general satisfaction; and so far as my memory of school days goes, it would have been very grateful to me if I could have had a holiday all day. So far as I understand the feelings of the children from observation and conversation, they are very much pleased with the change. I think the teachers prefer it, and I think a large portion of the parents like it, because schoolable children are not easy to take care of, and they prefer to make a business of taking care of them for one whole day than of having two days' work divided by it. Beyond all this, I think one of the principal reasons why the School Committee acted as it did, and why we should hesitate to ask it to do otherwise, is the fact that a portion of our fellow citizens, who furnish a large number of children, desire Saturdays to be kept in some other ways than in schooling. So long as the schools are open on Saturday, that part of the scholars will be kept away. It is a question of principle and conscience with a large portion of our fellow citizens, and as such is entitled to respect; and I think it was out of respect to that feeling that the School Committee acted as they did. It was found impossible to keep the schools up to the proper standard with so many pupils absent on Saturday forenoon. I am entirely unprepared to fully express my opinion on such a resolution to-night; but I am certain of this, that no thinking man will presume to vote on such hasty notice as this upon such a resolve when he reflects that a body elected by the people for the express purpose of regulating the schools, and composed of eminently respectable gentlemen, have given a great deal longer time to it, and come to a conclusion exactly the reverse of what the resolution contemplates. Out of respect not only to the School Committee, but to ourselves, I think that we are required not to pass it hastily, and I therefore move that it be laid upon the table.

Mr. Spenceley—I hope it will not be laid upon the table. I think the gentleman's argument is on the principle of judging other people by themselves, and that he has quite a quantity of the raw material. I put this resolve in not on my own consideration alone, and after talking with some members who did not vote, but who agreed to it not ten minutes before. I look at it just as I look at my own children going to school day after day, from Monday morning till Saturday night, without any cessation from study. Gentlemen know very well nowadays that children in a city like Boston have active brains and study more than we used to in the country schools. A gentleman told me the other day that when his boy graduated at the public schools he fell on the floor and never rose again, simply because he had so much study, and died of brain fever. It is in the mind of every child in this city to excel and be at the head of his class, and a child cannot stand such brain work all the time. Now, the Superintendent of Schools has said that it is good to have a little vacation in the middle of the week, on Wednesday, when they can go away and forget their studies and their laborious duties, and then go to school again Thursday morning. The gentleman has raised the argument of religious toleration, and I don't believe that that is a good one to be made in this city. Suppose the Arminians should come here; their Sabbath is on Thursday, and they would not want to go to school on Thursday. Suppose some other denominations come; they will want another day, and I believe that there are denominations which have a Sabbath on each of the days of the week. I should prefer to see no school on Wednesday and Saturday rather than see it go on as it is now.

Mr. Barnard of Ward 24—I hope the motion to lay on the table will prevail unless something more extraordinary can be given by the gentleman from Ward 19 to show that the old system works better. He has not given the new system a chance. It is something new; it has been in operation but about four weeks, and if we have complaints from children and teachers that it does not work to their advantage, then will be time enough to do something.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6—I hope it will not be laid upon the table. I entertain as high an opinion of the eminent qualifications of the School Board as any gentleman here, and have no doubt they have given this matter very serious consideration. But the question for us to decide is, whether or not we have a right to petition. We have no right to dictate to them. Under the present law they can run the public schools even if we do not vote them one dollar. They are a perfectly independent body, and out of our control; but surely we have not become so humble that we have not the right to petition. This is merely an expression of opinion, and I hope it will pass. I believe the absence from school on Saturdays is beneficial only to the teachers who live out of town and want to go away on Friday evening to remain till Monday. Not a man in this Council who has seen children in school from Monday morning till Tuesday but will see that it will benefit them to have a holiday on Wednesday afternoon. Let any gentleman go into our schools and see five, six or seven pupils asleep because they are exhausted and require more rest. I have noticed it quite often. I hope the opinion of the Council will be taken on it. I don't think it will do any harm, and I believe it will be a benefit. I know the honest, hard-working teachers of Boston, if their opinions were fairly taken, would not vote for the change; and the class benefited by it is those who live in the country.

Mr. Pratt—Nobody questions our right to petition. I do not stand here opposed to the right of petition. If anybody desires to petition the School Board for a change, a simple way is to pass a petition around here. The proposed petition is nothing that the School Committee would need to take any notice of. I should be very glad to have the gentleman circulate a petition and see how many signatures he would get. It would be a curiosity to find children who sit in a schoolroom from Monday morning till Wednesday.

Mr. Fraser—I am afraid they would take no notice of the petition. It is not many weeks since we passed a resolve of which they took no notice.

The resolve was laid on the table.

CARE OF HOT ASHES.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18 offered an order—That the Committee on Ordinances he requested to consider the expediency of so amending section 51 of the ordinance relating to health, that the regulation of the storage of ashes be transferred to the Fire Department.

Mr. Howes—It was called to my attention some time since that a large number of the fires that had occurred in Boston within the past year in manufacturing establishments were due to the fact that ashes were stored in barrels, or on the floor in unsafe places. There is an ordinance covering this, which is section 51 of the ordinance relating to health, which says—

"Ashes kept for removal by the Health Department shall not be mixed with other substances, but shall be kept separate and apart, in a convenient locality, in suitable iron or other metallic vessels, and in such a manner as to prevent the spread of fire."

The fact was also called to my attention that there was some mistake in drafting the ordinance, as this matter should have been left in the hands of the Board of Engineers or the Fire Commissioners, as might be best. All that needs to be covered in that respect is the storage of ashes in large manufacturing establishments, which I know is the cause of a large number of fires, and of great loss to our citizens.

The order was read a second time and put upon its passage.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I always believe in adding more firemen, but I don't know how many this is going to add to look after all the ashes in Boston. It seems to be a new departure. Because a fire may be caused by lucifer matches, must all the matches in the city be placed under the disposition of the Fire Department? It might be well to pass an ordinance to keep ashes in wooden vessels, and then carry it out.

Mr. Howes—The gentleman has misconstrued my remarks. I spoke of manufacturing establishments, and avoided saying anything of buildings at large.

Mr. Spenceley—I simply said I did not see how the Fire Department could care for all the ashes.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10 thought the order was merely for investigation, and the committee could better ascertain the facts than the Council.

Mr. Sibley said the Health Committee had had considerable trouble about it, and hoped some more satisfactory arrangement would be made.

Mr. Spenceley said he wished it placed where the law could be enforced, and suggested that the police was the proper department to have the care of it.

The order was passed. Sent up.

WINES, CIGARS AND LAGER AT CITY ENTERTAINMENTS.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21 offered a resolve—That it is the opinion of the City Council that no wine should be furnished or used at any entertainment which is to be paid for out of the city treasury.

Mr. Pratt said a great deal of scandal had arisen in the papers on this subject, and although there may have been no great depletion of the treasury, yet it is well to avoid the appearance of evil. He was a total abstainer, but thought members could take wine at their own expense. He hoped to be able to point to this Common Council as foregoing the expense of champagne and wine at dinners. He hoped the resolution would not be met in the spirit of levity which previous resolves of the kind had received. The entertainments recently given by the Directors for Public Institutions were very satisfactory and pleasant, though wine was absent.

Mr. McGaragle thought that as they would have only three months more of feasting it was rather late to bring in such an order. He moved its reference to the Retrenchment Committee.

Mr. Spenceley moved to add "and cigars" after "wine."

Mr. Clarke moved to add "or lager" after "and cigars."

Mr. Spenceley said that although we read in scripture that we can take a little wine for our stomachs' sake, it nowhere says we can smoke for our stomachs' sake. He considered the smoking of a piece of rolled-up tobacco the height of folly.

Mr. Jackson asked Mr. Spenceley what he would do with the millions of capital invested in tobacco and the thousands employed in the trade?

Mr. Spenceley replied by making a familiar quotation as to the Indian origin of tobacco.

The two amendments were adopted.

Mr. Pratt had no objection to the amendments. The fact is the taxpayers look at the items of a bill, and while they do not object to paying for dinners of members of the City Government, they think members should dine at the city's expense as they do at home. In order to have a sober view taken of the subject, he moved that the yeas and nays be taken on the passage of the resolve.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Adjourned on motion of Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen,
OCTOBER 6, 1877.

Special meeting at one o'clock P. M., called by the Mayor who presided and said he had called the Board together to lay before them the propriety of offering a reward for the arrest of the persons who committed the highway robbery yesterday. If it is to be offered at all it should be done as speedily as possible, and there will be three days before the Board could act upon it in regular session.

Alderman Robinson offered an order—That his Honor the Mayor be and he is hereby authorized to offer a reward of $500 for information which shall lead to the detection and conviction of either or both of the parties who committed the highway robbery of Mr. Asa A. Breed, near Fort Hill square, in this city, on the 5th inst.

Alderman Viles said it was a bold outrage to be committed in our streets, and suggested that $1000 would be more apt to catch the parties.

The Mayor said any reward over $500 would require concurrent action and cause delay.

Alderman Robinson said the Chief of Police had all the force on the case that could be spared. It was strange that in such a crowded locality so few persons were found to take an interest in the matter. The chief thought the reward would be the best means of securing the arrest.

The order was read twice and passed.

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman Robinson.

OCTOBER 8, 1877.

Regular meeting at four o'clock P. M., his Honor the Mayor presiding.

JURORS DRAWN.

Nine grand and six petit jurors were drawn for the October term of the United States Circuit Court.

EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENTS.

Police Officers without pay—P. M. Dennon, Henry Weltch, William R. Gray, William S. Denny. Confirmed.

Undertakers—James Mullens and James B. Shannon. Confirmed.

Inspector of Elections in Ward 9—James J. Snlivau, vice J. B. F. Thomas, who declines to serve. Confirmed.

PETITIONS, ETC., REFERRED.

To the Committee on Paving. John McCall et al., that certain streets in Ward 23 be called Everett street and Starr street. John F. Bispham et al. and Nathau Carruth et al., that the recent extension of Dix street, Ward 24, be graded and put in proper condition for public travel; Atlantic Works, for leave to move a steam street car from the Eastern Railroad tracks at East Boston to their works; Andrew McDermott et al., for cross-walks on Dudley street at Hampden street.

To the Committee on Markets. James F. Cooper, to be refunded the rent of stand No. 4, Faneuil Hall Market for April, 1877.

To the Committee on Lamps. Joseph B. Bra man, administrator, to be compensated for a lamp post taken from the estate of Isaac G. Bra man, deceased; B. E. Perry et al., for street lamps in Jess street, Ward 23; William Raymond Lee et al., for street lamps on Boylston and Amory streets in Ward 23.

To the Committee on Police. W. L. Lewis et al., for a permit to drive at the rate of twelve miles per hour between the hours of 4 and 7 P. M. on Swett street, between Hilton and Ellery streets.

To the Committee on Sewers. Mary M. Hnghson et al., for a sewer in Summit street; Elizabeth A. Unshing et al. for extension of sewer in Northampton street, west of Tremont street; Stephen Hull, for a sewer in Parker street, Charlestown; Thomas Dowd et al., that the sewers in Magazine street and Norfolk avenue be enlarged.

To the Committee on Health on the part of the Board. Michael H. Leonard, for leave to occupy new stable for two horses at 301 Bennington street.

W. H. Baker, M. D., for leave to establish a hospital for women at 60 East Springfield street, in place of the one now located at No. 16 same street.

To the Committee on Bridges. Notice of proposed petition of city of Chelsea to be relieved of the care of a certain portion of Chelsea Bridge.

HEARINGS ON ORDERS OF NOTICE.

Hearings were had on orders of notice as follows:

Sewers. On proposed construction of sewers in Ferry street; in Thornton street, between Valentine and Ellis streets; in Dudley street, between Hancock and Humphrey streets, and in Washington street, Ward 24, near Blue Hill avenue. No objections, and orders severally recommitted to Committee on Sewers.

Cambridge Railroad. On proposed change of location of track of the Cambridge Railroad from the side to the centre of the roadway of Washington street, between Foster street and Oak square.

Alderman Breck—The President of the Cambridge Railroad called upon me this morning and stated that he had not been able to have a full meeting of the Directors of the company, and would not be able to do so until next Saturday, and he would like to have the hearing postponed for one week. I therefore make that motion.

The hearing was postponed for one week.

PAPERS FROM THE COMMON COUNCIL.

Petitions were referred in concurrence.

Report and order for Board of Health to abate the nuisance on the Mill Pond and adjacent flats in the Charlestown District. Passed in concurrence.

Order proposing an ordinance to place the care of ash barrels and contents in charge of the Fire Department.

The order for the City Treasurer to appoint a special messenger for his department came up amended by the addition of the following words: "And for whom he shall be responsible in like manner as for other officers appointed by him." Concurred.

VISIT OF CITY ENGINEER TO EUROPE.

A report of Committee on Improved Sewerage came up, with order to allow Joseph P. Davis, City Engineer, four months' leave of absence to examine the several systems of sewerage in Europe, and to allow him the sum of £1000 sterling to meet the expense of such visit; also an order to authorize Henry M. Wightman to act as City Engineer during the absence of Mr. Davis.

Alderman Bnrham—As set forth in the report of the committee, it is well understood that this system of intercepting sewerage is entirely new in this country. The reasons for recommending this measure are perhaps fully set forth in the report and in the discussion in the other branch. The committee feel that the expense is comparatively small and trifling, when taken in connection with the large outlay which we propose to make for the intercepting system of sewerage. It is to be understood that this is no pleasure trip for our City Engineer. In the construction of large works of this and other characters, other cities have sent their engineers to Europe to obtain information bearing upon the subject—notably Chicago, Brooklyn, and other places. The sum of $5000 is named; but it is not necessary that so large a sum shall be expended, as we all know the economical habits of our City Engineer. To see the works in actual operation is certainly a proper thing to do in order to gain all the information; and it is a proper thing to do to obtain all the information we can. It seems to the committee that the information can best be obtained from cities where the works are in operation. This information may prevent the making of mistakes which other cities have made. It is well known that all the information which can be gained here is, to a certain extent, from the plans published by the engineers abroad, and the best information can be gained by witnessing the works in actual operation, and studying the various parts of the system. It is no additional appropriation, but comes before us in the form of a request for a letter of credit and for authority for Mr. Wightman to act in the absence of the City Engineer. The committee have already sent Mr. Davis to other cities to witness what may be seen in actual operation in this country, and they trust the order will pass this Board as it has been passed by the other branch.

The order was passed in concurrence.

REPORTS OF CITY OFFICERS.

Chief of Police. Quarterly report to Sept. 30. Arrests, 7247; males, 5536; females, 1711; American, 3048; foreigners, 4199; non-residents, 1313; minors, 1309. Placed on file.

Auditor of Accounts. Monthly exhibit for Oct. 1. (City Doc. 81.) Total appropriations, $13,757,454.71; expended, $5,510,415.09; balance unexpended, $8,247,039.62. Sent down.

City Registrar. Annual report. Sent down.

Fire Commissioners. Report of fires and alarms for September. Sent down.

RELOCATION OF WESTERN AVENUE.

The following was received:

IN BOARD OF STREET COMMISSIONERS, }
Oct. 3, 1877. }

The order of the City Council of the city of Boston of July 13, 1877, represents "That the Street Commissioners be requested to relocate Western avenue, in Brighton, between Charles River and the bend in said avenue west of and near North Harvard street."

This petition was presented to the commissioners and duly entered upon their records at the meeting of said commissioners held at the City Hall in Boston on the sixteenth day of July, 1877, and the twentieth day of August then next at eleven o'clock in the forenoon at the schoolhouse on North Harvard street, in that part of Boston formerly Brighton, and now a part of the county of Suffolk, were appointed by the commissioners as the time and place for commencing and proceeding to view the premises and to hear and act upon the subject of said petition; and they thereupon caused a copy of said petition and of this order thereon to be served upon the City Clerk of the city of Boston thirty days at least before the time appointed for said view; and also caused copies of said petition and order to be pasted in two public places in said city; and also gave notice to all persons interested, by causing a like copy to be published three weeks successively in the Boston Daily Advertiser, a newspaper published in said county, said pasting and the last publication of said copy having been fourteen days at least before the time appointed for said view; that all persons or corporations interested for or against said petition might then and there appear and be heard if they saw fit.

And on the said twentieth day of August the commissioners met at the time and place specified in said order, when and where the petitioners appeared by Thomas W. Davis, City Surveyor of the city of Boston, and the said commissioners then viewed the route and premises and heard all persons and corporations interested, and said hearing was then continued and adjourned to a meeting of the commissioners held at the City Hall, in Boston aforesaid, on the 21st day of August, 1877, when and where the said commissioners proceeded to consider and adjudicate upon the prayer of said petition, and thereupon the said commissioners did adjudge that common convenience and necessity required that said Western avenue, in Brighton, between Charles River and the bend in said avenue, west of and near North Harvard street, should be located anew, for the purpose of establishing the boundary lines of said avenues, as prayed for the petitioners.

And upon the adjudication aforesaid, the said commissioners appointed Wednesday, the 26th day of September, 1877, and three o'clock in the afternoon, at the schoolhouse in North Harvard street, in that part of Boston formerly Brighton, and now a part of said county of Suffolk, as the time and place when and where they would proceed to further view the premises, and take such order in relation to said adjudication as by law they might be authorized to do.

And having given notice of such adjudication, and of the time and place appointed, and for the purpose aforesaid, in the same manner as the notice and publication were given and made before the first proceeding to view, the said commissioners met at the time and place appointed, and then and there heard all persons and corporations interested, and said hearing was then adjourned and continued to this meeting.

And now the said commissioners do lay out and locate anew said Western avenue, between Charles River and the bend in said avenue, west of and near North Harvard street.

And said relocation is as follows: Southwardly by a line beginning at a stone monument at the westerly corner of land now or at one time of Michael Barry, at the junction of Western avenue and a street leading northeastwardly from it to North Harvard street, and marked A on a plan of said relocation of Western avenue, prepared for the purpose by Thomas W. Davis, City Surveyor of the city of Boston, said line thence running eastwardly, crossing North Harvard street, straight to a stone monument at the southerly corner of Western avenue and North Harvard street, marked B on said plan; thence continuing eastwardly, with a slight change of direction, by a straight line, to a stone monument on the division line between land now or at one time of Roxana Eaton and land now or at one time of John Fuzzard and Warren Sawyer and marked C on said plan; thence continuing eastwardly with a slight change of direction, by a straight line between land now or at one time of said Fuzzard and Sawyer and land now or at one time of Joseph O. Bullard, and marked D on said plan, to Charles River; eastwardly by Charles River; northwardly by a line shown on said plan as parallel with and sixty-five feet distant northerly from the above-described southerly line; and southwestwardly by another portion of Western avenue by a dotted red line running from a stone monument marked E on said plan to the first above-mentioned stone monument marked A.

And it is determined by the commissioners that the city of Boston shall within one year from the date of this order complete said way in accordance with and upon the line herein established.

And having heard the proprietors of land and property, rights and interests, taken or affected by their proceedings, the commissioners direct that all said proprietors shall have the right to take off and remove their buildings, structures, trees, hedges, walls and fences from the lands so taken at any time within six months from the date of this order.

And the commissioners estimate the damages sustained in the premises under these proceedings at nothing.

Ordered, That the foregoing order be accepted, passed and recorded, and that an attested copy thereof be transmitted to the City Clerk of the city of Boston, within the limits of which said highway described therein lies, that the same may be recorded by said Clerk within ten days in the Clerk records.

NEWTON TALBOT.
JOSEPH SMITH.
ISAAC S. BURRELL.

Street Commissioners.

A true copy.

Attest:
Placed on file.

J. H. JENKINS, Clerk.

LOCATION ACCEPTED.

A communication was received from the Butchers' Slaughtering and Melting Association, accepting the location of railroad tracks granted by this Board on Sept. 24, ultimo. Placed on file.

BONDS APPROVED.

The bonds of Nathaniel P. Kemp and twenty-four others, constables, being presented duly certified, were approved by the Board.

POLICE.

Alderman Robinson submitted reports from the Committee on Police, recommending the confirmation of the appointment of David F. Harkins to be a police officer; Patrolman George Munroe to be a sergeant, and Sergeant Joseph H. Bates to be a lieutenant. Reports accepted and said appointments confirmed.

Report that Reuben Greene have leave to project a lantern at 34 Temple place. Accepted.

SALARIES OF LICENSE COMMISSIONERS.

Alderman Duubar submitted a report from the Committee on Salaries on request of License Commissioners for an increase of salary—That, having carefully considered the subject, they are of the opinion that the position of License Commissioner should command a salary of $2500 per annum, and that such a sum is not more than an adequate compensation for the labor which has been performed by the members of the present board. They recommend the passage of an order—That the salaries of the members of the Board of License Commissioners shall be at the rate of $2500 each per annum, from the date of their service until otherwise ordered, payable monthly, subject to the deduction of any and all sums due from said officers to the city.

On motion of Alderman Dunbar, the order was read twice and put upon its passage.

Alderman Fitzgerald—As chairman of the Committee on Retrenchment, I feel it my duty to oppose this order. As I said before, when the petition was presented to the Board, the gentlemen whose salaries it is proposed to raise are gentlemen with whom I am politically and socially acquainted; but if we begin with the salaries of the License Commissioners there is no good reason why we should not go through the whole of the departments and raise the salaries of the heads of them. The City Council lowered the salaries of the heads of the several departments, and the reasons for doing so four months ago hold good today; in a fit of economy and retrenchment the salaries of the heads of the several departments were cut down. Now, sir, if we are to begin with these officers, the easier and better way to do it, in order to avoid any more trouble, would be for this Board and the other branch to pass an order restoring the salaries of all the city officers to their salaries of last year. I heard the petition of these gentlemen read. It was stated that $3000 are spared this year from what was spent last year for legal expenses. Now, that is not so. Four months before these gentlemen were appointed there was no such office as the legal officer for the prosecuting of liquor cases, and there is no reason why there should be. There is no more reason for appointing a special attorney to look after liquor cases than there is to appoint one to prosecute burglars, thieves or any other of the whole range of criminals. In my opinion, it was wrong from the beginning to appoint this special officer to prosecute liquor cases in court. I was in the Common Council when this officer was first appointed, and it was the understanding that it should be a temporary affair; but, much to my surprise, he was continued month after month and year after year. When the gentleman who was first appointed was made Assistant City Solicitor, some three or four months before this City Government was inaugurated, there was no such officer known as a prosecutor for liquor cases, and if he had had any existence at the time that the Retrenchment Committee were looking up the salaries of officers, I feel that they would have abolished the office, the same as they did some other offices connected with the License Department. So that their claim that $3000 in legal expenses is saved all falls to the ground, as there was no such officer, and no such money was paid for five months before those gentlemen came to be License Commissioners. Now, I say that if we begin here, there is no knowing where this thing shall end; and I think that, after lowering the salaries, as we did, they should remain as they were fixed for one year, at least. If you raise this salary from $1000 to $2500 you will have others coming in here asking for an increase. I was asked by one gentleman if a petition was presented from his department for an increase of salary to the former amount, whether such a petition would not be entertained; and I told him I did not know what the City Council would entertain; but I knew what I would do—I should vote against it. I shall vote against this order because I do not think it is in exactly the line of conduct which this Board marked out at the beginning of the year.

Alderman Thompson—The Alderman who has just taken his seat knows I would go as far as anybody in his economical recommendations, especially so when they are tempered with justice. The Alderman forgets that two years ago the compensation of these commissioners was $3500, and last year, after a great deal of exertion on the part of the retrenchment members of the Board, the compensation was reduced to $2500. That was a great reduction, and his reasons for not increasing their compensation this year will not apply to the License Commissioners as it does to other officers, because they have been reduced so much, whereas the other heads of departments have only been reduced ten per cent. The License Commissioners are doing double duty, not only as commissioners—and as far as I can understand they are very acceptable in that respect, and perhaps more so than any commissioners we have ever had, and I think we ought to take that fact into consideration, and they are not only doing duty as License Commissioners—but as attorneys. Now, the Alderman says that there was no attorney attending to this duty last year. I was a member of the Committee on Claims last year, and remember that his Honor Mayor Cobb came before the committee on two occasions advocating—

Alderman Fitzgerald—The gentleman misunderstood me. I said for five months before this Board of License Commissioners came into office, that such an officer had no existence, and that he had no existence at the time the Retrenchment Committee were considering this matter, and if there had been such an office it would have been abolished and that money saved to the city treasury.

Alderman Thompson—So much the more reason for increasing this compensation, because I know that there was allowed for this attorney for this special duty a salary of $2500 last year. The chairman of the Committee on Claims will bear me out in this statement, I think, and I am not quite certain that that was not the second occasion that the Committee on Claims were petitioned to make an allowance for the services of this party to be employed by the License Commissioners. Now, nobody questions the ability of the present commissioners. They have done their duty faithfully and well, their returns to the city treasury warrant that statement, and they have certainly given satisfaction to the citizens generally. We know that $1000 is no kind of a compensation to give them, and the reduction from $2500 to $1000 a year was really not intended, in my judgment, to be lasting. It was done on the spur of the moment, and passed through because it was considered that if an error was made it could be corrected afterwards. Under all the circumstances, I think the recommendation of the committee just and proper, and I shall cheerfully vote for them.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I don't know what this double duty which the commissioners have performed is. I know what their duty is. If they have assumed any other duties, it is entirely gratuitous on their part. If they have assumed the rôle of prosecuting officers, it is no part of their duty, and they should not ask for compensation from this Board for it. I say there is no more reason for paying for special officers for the prosecution of violations of the liquor law than there is for the violation of other statutes. The District Attorney and his assistants are paid by Suffolk County to do that work, and if the District Attorney thinks it of sufficient moment he will look after them; and it is not the duty of the License Commissioners to become prosecuting officers in the Police Court and then demand additional compensation for having performed a duty that the law does not impose upon them and which nobody asks them to do. Their duty is to examine each petition presented to them, and see whether the petitioner has the necessary appliances to carry on the grade of business which he asks a license for, and to grant him the license; and if he violates the provisions of the license, then it becomes the duty of the police officers, and not the License Commissioners, to prosecute him; and when the case comes in court it is the duty of the District Attorney of Suffolk County and his assistants to look after the prosecutions there. I hold that it is not the duty of the License Commissioners to be grantors of licenses and prosecuting officers at the same time, and that that position should not be assumed by the License Commissioners of the city of Boston. I think it would be better for the License Commissioners if their office would be purely executive. They are executive and not prosecuting officers, and they should confine themselves to the duty which the law imposes upon them—the granting of licenses; and the seeing that persons comply with the provisions of their licenses, after the license has been issued, is an interference which they should not undertake, and they should not claim compensation for it from the city of Boston. I grant you that they have performed their duty well. They have performed their duties as License Commissioners in accordance with the public sentiment of the city of Boston. The law is so framed that they can go between both free rum and extreme prohibition, and the sentiment of a community can regulate the enforcement of the law. I grant that the commissioners have carried out the law in Suffolk County in accordance with the sentiments of the community. We knew all that five months ago when we fixed their salaries. I think that other officers here have worked as hard as the License Commissioners. The Superintendent of Streets and the City Engineer have had more work thrown upon them this year than ever before, and there is no reason why their salaries should not be increased as well as the License Commissioners. If we raise one there is no reason why we should not raise the other.

Alderman Slade—I am unfortunate enough to be on both the Salary and Retrenchment committees. When the salaries of the License Commissioners came before the Retrenchment Committee, I was very much in favor of reducing it to the figure at which it now stands, and my reasons for that were principally from the idea that I had that the commissioners had not done their duty, although they were respectable men. It seemed to me, from my knowledge of their doings, that some liquor dealers were selling rum without a license just as freely as those who paid for a license; and it seemed to me to be a hardship that a man, one man paying for a license and keeping a bar-room, should have another man two doors from him doing the same amount of business and paying for no license at all. There was great complaint among the dealers about the way the law was executed, and I had the idea—and I guess I was not far from right—that the office was one of pleasure more than of hard work. In fact, gentlemen offered to take that office and run it as well as it was done for nothing, for the simple privilege of having an office where they could go and stay when they were down town, as they expressed it. I believed that the office was not carried on as it should be, and I was satisfied that the salary should be reduced very materially. That salary was reduced very much more below what the salaries of other city officers were reduced. The Committee on Salaries were not in favor of cutting the salary down so low, and reported in favor of twenty-five hundred dollars. Now, it seems to me that at the present time the commissioners are doing their duty in every respect. I don't hear the complaints this year that I did last year of the injustice done to liquor dealers, and the Sunday and other laws seem to be faithfully executed. I was not in favor of making this salary so high as the committee recommend; but all the committee except one were in favor of making it twenty-five hundred dollars, and I did not make any objection. Therefore, after looking the matter over, I don't see how I can very well help voting for this increase.

Alderman Fitzgerald—While I am willing to concede to the License Commissioners of this year what everybody else concedes—that they have performed their duty faithfully and well—I wish to say at the same time that the License Commissioners of last year performed their duty conscientiously, as they understood the law. I have no doubt that they were faithful and painstaking, and in order to reject some thousand or more applications they were obliged to examine each and every case, and it required a great deal of scrutiny to distinguish between when they should grant a license and when they should not, and in consequence it required a great deal of investigation. They interpreted the law very stringently and strictly, and did not grant so many licenses as there have been granted this year. I think they executed the law as they interpreted it. And it required a great deal of work to decide when they should give and refuse a license. The measure of the work is not the amount of fees turned into the city treasury. If it is measured by that, the License Commissioners who sat in their offices and said to all who came along that all they had to do was to pay their money would be the best commissioners so far as the money is concerned. I feel that this order is going to pass. I am not foolish enough to think that it is not; but I want to enter my protest against it and stand by the report of the committee.

Alderman Gibson—What time do those gentlemen spend in their offices, and between what hours?

Alderman Dunbar—According to the statement of the chairman of the board, I think they spend about six hours a day in the office. He appeared before the committee and made that statement.

Alderman Clark—I presented the petition of the License Commissioners, asking for an increase of salary, not because I had investigated the subject or had made up my mind clearly as to what additional amount they should receive. But at the commencement of the year I was opposed to cutting down their salaries to a thousand dollars. I believed then that if the office was of any value to the city it was necessary to have competent men in it, and if they did their duty, not less than $2500 should be paid them for their services. It is admitted by all—even by those who are opposed to the increase—that the office has been well filled; that the gentlemen who occupy the position are competent and honest, and have perhaps performed the duties with as much satisfaction to the community as any three men who could possibly have been appointed. If this is so, I believe that the salary recommended by the committee is none too much, and that they earn that amount, whether they go there at nine o'clock in the morning and remain till nine o'clock in the evening, or whether they spend only as much time as may be necessary to perform all the duties which devolve upon them with satisfaction to the community. I know the gentlemen, and they happen to belong to a different political party from what I do, although two of them are personal acquaintances of mine. But I look upon that office as I do upon all other offices in City Hall—that political considerations should not enter into any of the heads of departments; and that whether a man is a Democrat or a Republican should not affect the amount of the salary which he receives. I believe, furthermore, Mr. Mayor, that the License Commissioners of last year fulfilled their duties as faithfully and as ably as any other men could have done it under the circumstances. It was a new office; there had been no office of that character before in the city; it was beset with many trials and tribulations, and I believe that the old commissioners did their duties as well, perhaps, as any three men could have done at that time. If the present commission is an improvement upon the old one, I am very glad of it, for I believe in progress in commissions and heads of departments and everything of that kind. Now, I see in the Auditor's report that twenty-five hundred dollars was paid to Mr. Nettleton for the service which he rendered to the License Commissioners during the term of service of the commission prior to the present one. If the present commissioners are able to render that service without the employment of an attorney, it seems to me that the city is saved the salary which was paid to that attorney to do the identical work which the present commissioners are now doing. I don't know whether they have a legal right to perform the duty or not; but I believe that men who occupy this position earn $2500 a year, and that if the office is of any service to the citizens they should be paid that amount. I am inclined to think that the license commission has been a good thing for the people. So far as my observation goes, there is less disorder, a less number of dram shops open, especially on Sundays and late in the evening. I am inclined to think that the morals of the city have been somewhat improved since the establishment of the License Commission. There is one thing very sure—the city is in receipt of quite a fund which arises from this commission—from $150,000 to $200,000 per annum, and the salaries of the commissioners and all other expenditures for the office are paid from the receipts for licenses. I believe that the proposed salaries are no more than the commissioners should receive if they are able and competent men; and if they are not they ought not to hold the position.

The order was passed. Sent down.

THE HORSE-RAILROAD BLOCKADE.

Alderman Robinsou submitted the following from the Committee on Paving:

To the Honorable Board of Aldermen of the City of Boston—The Metropolitan Railroad Company respectfully petitions for leave to construct an additional track in Washington street, from Dover street to Summer street, there to connect with the track of the South Boston Railroad in Washington street, with suitable curves and connections.

Also, for leave to construct a track in Milk street, connecting with the tracks of the South Boston Railroad in said street, to Devonshire street or Congress street, and through Devonshire or Congress street, across State street, to connect with the tracks of the Middlesex Railroad in Washington street, with suitable curves and connections.

Also, for the right to enter upon and use with its horses and cars the tracks of the South Boston Railroad in Washington and Milk streets.

METROPOLITAN RAILROAD COMPANY,

By C. A. Richards, President.

Boston, Oct. 8, 1877.

Upon the foregoing petition it is hereby ordered, that notice be given by the petitioners to all persons interested that the Board will on Wednesday, the 24th day of October, at 4 o'clock P. M., take into consideration the expediency of granting the prayer of said petition, when any person objecting thereto may appear and be heard. Said notice to be given by the publication of a copy of said petition with the order of notice thereon in the Boston Post, Journal, Traveller and Transcript.

Alderman Clark—Why cannot the hearing be had on Monday, the day of the regular meeting?

Alderman Robinson—It is a petition in regard to laying down additional tracks. The Committee on Paving have had several meetings, and the question of the horse-car blockade has been one of a very difficult nature for us to consider. They had conferences with the railroad managers, all of whom seemed to be actuated by a sincere desire to relieve the blockade on Tremont street; and that petition was put in consequence of those several meetings which we had with the railroad presidents. The law requires that there should be fourteen days' notice. If the order is passed tonight, it would not be possible to publish it before tomorrow morning, and the fourteen days will not have expired until after our regular meeting two weeks from today; and it was thought best to call a special meeting for that purpose. In view of all the matters connected with the street blockades, the presidents of the horse railroads met us in a fair and cordial spirit, and seemed to be governed by a desire to relieve the blockade and of all the circumstances connected with it. It is a very difficult question to manage; but if the proposed plan is accepted by the Board of Aldermen, each president of a railroad is placed upon his honor as a man to get rid of the blockade in the streets of Boston. I do not say that it will do for all time, because, making due allowance for the increase of population (which statisticians say doubles every twenty-five years), some gentlemen around this Board may see the city of Boston with seven or eight hundred thousand inhabitants. Between now and then the location of the retail trade will no doubt be changed. But I think the passage of this order, with its accompaniments, which can be arrived at hereafter, will relieve the blockade in this city for several years to come. It is not possible to have the hearing two weeks from today, in consequence of the law requiring fourteen days' notice.

Alderman Clark—For one I cannot see why we should have a special meeting for a hearing of this character. We have given certainly twenty-five per cent. of the year to horse-railroad hearings on Monday afternoons. Now, if this cannot take place in two weeks from this afternoon, what is the great hurry? Why not three weeks from this afternoon? Aldermen wish to go away on special business. I am in the same position. I wish to be home to attend every meeting of the Board, and I do not want to come here to special meetings unless it is perfectly convenient, or absolutely necessary. If it cannot be held two weeks from this afternoon, I do so see why it cannot be held three weeks hence. I hope the Alderman will not press this. I have no doubt they have had an harmonious meeting of the presidents of the horse railroads. They are always harmonious when they ask the privilege of laying down tracks. They have done nothing to this Board of Aldermen that they have not done to every Board of Aldermen since 1871. They are the most harmonious class of people in the world when they ask for tracks; but when they get the track they will pull each other's hair the same as they did before. Every Board of Aldermen since 1871 has refused the privilege of laying down another track in Washington street, from Dover street to Summer street. There are other ways of getting rid of this blockade besides this, and before the committee recommend that the prayer of the petitioners be granted, I hope they will devise and report some other plan, because the travelling public between here and Roxbury have some rights in Washington street. To lay down another track where it is utterly impossible for a two-horse team to pass between a car and the curbstone is a project which it seems to me this Board of Aldermen should not adopt. In my opinion, these harmonious petitioners can wait three weeks instead of having us come together in a special meeting. The Alderman [Alderman Robinson] frequently has occasion to go to Maine, and the Alderman on my right [Alderman Thompson] would like to go to New York. I have been trying to get an opportunity to go to New York for some time. I move to amend the order so that the hearing will be given three weeks from today at four o'clock.

Alderman Robinson—The reason the hearing was fixed at the earliest possible moment was in consequence of the pressure that has been brought to bear upon the committee by public sentiment and feeling to relieve the blockade on Tremont street as soon as it could possibly be done. In regard to the harmonious meeting, it is not very often that you get a number of gentlemen together in a colloquial manner, that you cannot bring them to matters of common sense and realize that there is only one object in view, that they cannot agree upon something necessary to be done. In the first place it was necessary to make those persons believe that there was a blockade on the streets, and that it must be removed in some shape or other; and the only question that came up was what is the best way to do it. It may be all very well to say that this Board has a perfect right to pass an order taking off cars, restricting the number, and doing what they please with the cars on the streets; but they don't like to do those things, because the whole city is interested in the matter. Dorchester, where I live, and Roxbury, Charlestown, Brighton and West Roxbury are all interested; and all the lines of cars which come from different sections of the city seem to centre upon this particular spot. A few weeks ago I made some remarks here showing that there are 136 cars an hour running from Boylston street to the Tremont House, and I showed how absurd it is for cars to pass out as they do. If you will calculate, you will see that the same number of cars, in passing from the Tremont House to the Museum, allowing only four stops, and fifteen seconds only to a stop, the cars will have to go at the rate of nine miles an hour to keep out of the way. You see that it is absolutely impossible for them to do that. Now, if this track is laid in Washington street, it will take something like seven or eight hundred cars a day off Tremont street. It is proposed to send those cars in another direction—on Washington street, and the cars will all be going one way. Considering all things, the committee thought it was probably the best way of getting rid of the blockade. There may be other ways, but the committee have not seemed to have found them, without taking a large number of cars out of the streets. There are some few cars which might be taken off—some of the Columbus-avenue cars, for instance—but they are not sufficient to meet the question. More cars cannot be taken off the streets without injuring the trade of the city. The blockade is pretty serious and it was thought best to get rid of it at the earliest possible moment. Of course if it is objected to by the Board of Aldermen I shall not oppose it. It is for them to take the matter into consideration.

Alderman Clark's amendment was adopted, and the order was passed as amended, fixing the hearing at three weeks from today.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following petitions appended to which were orders for hearings as in the previous order, but the time of the hearings was changed to three weeks from today and the orders passed as amended.

To the Honorable the Board of Aldermen of the City of Boston—The Highland Street Railway Company respectfully petition—

1. That a location of tracks be granted your petitioners on Eliot street, between Park square and Tremont street, either by single or double tracks, with suitable curves, switches, connections, to unite the same with the tracks of the Metropolitan Railroad Company on Park square, Columbus avenue and Tremont street, and across Tremont street with your petitioners' tracks on Eliot street.

2. That a location for an additional track be granted your petitioners on Eliot street between Washington street and Tremont street, with suitable curves, switches and connections to unite the same with the tracks already authorized to your petitioners on Tremont street and Washington street, and with the tracks above petitioned for.

HIGHLAND STREET RAILWAY CO.,

By Moody Merrill, President.

To the Mayor and the Aldermen of the City of Boston—The Cambridge Railroad Company respectfully prays that, in addition to the location of tracks already granted, they may be granted a further location as follows: Beginning at the junction of Lowell and Causeway streets; then by a single track in Merrimac street as far as Portland street; then an additional track beside the track of the Metropolitan Railroad in Merrimac street to New Washington street; there connecting with the tracks laid in that street; and for a curved track in Leverett street to connect with that in Causeway street. And they further ask for leave to run their cars from East Cambridge as follows: Coming in through Leverett street to Causeway street; through Causeway street to Portland street; through Portland street to Merrimac street; through Merrimac street to Washington street; through Washington street to Milk street; through Milk street to Devonshire street; through Devonshire street to Dock square and Washington street to Merrimac street; through Merrimac street to Lowell street; and then by their present tracks to Canal Bridge.

CAMBRIDGE RAILROAD COMPANY,
By its Attorney.
THE UNION RAILWAY COMPANY,
By James W. Emery, President.

When the petition of the Highland road was presented, Alderman Clark asked if this was for leave to run to the northern depots.

Alderman Robinson replied that it was for a location in Eliot street.

Alderman Clark—I thought that if it was I might get in a suggestion as to how Tremont street might be slightly relieved, and that is by running down North Charles street and take off about one-half of the Metropolitan cars, which now average ten passengers to a trip. Tremont street would be relieved to a great extent.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The great difficulty in that case is that the Alderman is not president of a horse railroad company. They will not offer to petition for the location. They refused to petition for that route. We will have ample opportunity to discuss the harmony of the horse-railroad presidents, and I think we had better spare our speeches till we come to consider the different routes presented.

THE BLACKSTONE-SQUARE ACCIDENT.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted the following:

The joint special committee appointed to investigate the cause of the accident on Blackstone square on the 17th of September, and also what person or persons are responsible for the same, having considered the subject, beg leave to submit the following report:

The committee gave a public hearing, and heard the testimony of a number of persons, relative to the construction of the stands, etc. From the evidence presented, the committee believe the following to be a correct statement of the facts: The committee appointed to make arrangements for the dedication of the Army and Navy Monument, having in view the erection of spectators' stands upon Franklin and Blackstone squares, were waited upon by Mr. Joseph F. Paul, who, at a meeting of the committee, held on the 6th of September, offered to erect a spectators' stand on each of the above-named squares for the sum of $300. Subsequently at the same meeting, the committee, relying upon Mr. Paul's good reputation as a mechanic, voted to employ him to erect the stands at the price named. The clerk was directed to notify Mr. Paul that his offer was accepted, but deferred sending a notice until the next day. On entering the City Hall on the morning following, the clerk met Mr. Paul, and was informed by him that he had already been notified. There being a great demand for seats on the stands, Mr. Flynn, who was on the sub-committee to whom the subject of spectators' stands had been referred, accompanied by the clerk of committees, went to Blackstone square on the 13th of September, for the purpose of seeing Mr. Paul in relation to enlarging the stands. They found workmen engaged in erecting the stands, and on inquiring for Mr. Paul were told that he had been there a short time before, but had gone away. The object of their errand was stated to a person who appeared to be the foreman, but who it now seems was Mr. Warren Hayford, and he was asked if he could get Mr. Paul. He replied that he could, and was told to take the carriage and bring him to the place. In a short time Mr. Hayford returned with Mr. Paul. Mr. Flynn stated the object of the visit, and Mr. Paul explained the manner in which the stands could be enlarged, and gave the price for which he could make the alteration. He also gave a price for some additional work to be done at the South Burying Ground. At a meeting of the committee, later in the afternoon, Mr. Flynn reported the result of his interview with Mr. Paul, and a telegram was sent to that gentleman, requesting him to do the work. Throughout the whole transaction the committee negotiated with no one except Mr. Paul, and relied solely upon him. On the 15th of September the Inspector of Buildings detailed

Assistant Inspectors Frye and Sweat to examine the spectators' stands which had been or were to be erected along the route of the procession, south of Dover street. They were instructed to see that all such stands were constructed in a thoroughly safe manner, and were authorized to forbid the use and occupancy of any that might be, in their opinion, in any way unsafe and dangerous. On the same day Mr. Frye reported that the stands on Franklin and Blackstone squares were all right, with the exception of some cleats which he required to be nailed on the back posts, under the stringers, and which Mr. Paul promised to have done. On Sunday afternoon, Sept. 16, Mr. John W. Fraser informed the Chief of Police that he had reasons for believing that the stands on Franklin and Blackstone squares were unsafe. The Chief of Police notified Alderman Wilder and the Inspector of Buildings that he had been so informed. These notices were delivered Sunday evening. Upon receipt of the notice the Inspector ordered Assistant Inspectors Frye and Emery to examine the stands the next morning (Sept. 17). On the same morning he himself started to examine a stand at the South End which had been reported unsafe, hoping to meet his inspectors, but with no intention of stopping at the squares, as his time was limited. On his way he did meet Messrs. Frye and Emery, who reported to him that the stands were perfectly safe. Mr. Shaw, after receiving this report of his assistants, drove to the squares, got out of his buggy and looked at the stands, and then drove on to examine the stand to which his attention had been previously called. Alderman Wilder, on arriving at City Hall on the morning of the 17th, inquired at the office of the Inspector of Buildings, and was told there were no reports of inspection of stands, excepting of the one on the Common. On the 18th of September Alderman Wilder requested Messrs. N. J. Bradlee, Nathaniel Adams and B. D. Whitcomb to examine the stands and report their opinion regarding their construction and the cause of the accident. These gentlemen reported that, in their opinion, the accident was caused by the unworkmanlike manner in which the stands were constructed. The opinions of these gentlemen were sustained at the hearing by the testimony of Messrs. George Nowell and A. S. Ripley, both practical builders. It was also in evidence that the stand on Blackstone square fell when the seats were only about half or two-thirds full. The committee are satisfied that the accident was caused by the unworkmanlike manner in which the stands were constructed. Mr. Paul claims that throughout the whole transaction he only acted as the friend of Mr. Hayford, who was in reality the builder of the seats. He admits, however, that the committee probably believed him to be the contractor. Mr. Hayford testified that he did not know whether he or Mr. Paul had the job. Mr. Paul designed the seats, made the price, furnished the lumber, and in all things acted as the principal throughout the whole transaction. The committee knew only him, and Mr. Paul must, therefore, be held responsible for the defects in the construction of the stands. The Inspector of Buildings claims that he was misled by his assistants, who reported the stands to be safe, and that he had such confidence in their ability that he deemed it unnecessary to make a personal examination. He claims that when he stopped at the stands, on the morning of Sept. 17, he did not inspect them, but merely took a hasty glance at the additional seat, which attracted his attention when driving by. He also claims that under the building law he was authorized to delegate his authority to his assistant inspectors, and that having done so he has fully complied with the law. The opinion of the City Solicitor to that effect is submitted. Sections 11 and 12 of chapter 298, acts of 1873, provide that whenever any building, staging or other structure shall from any cause be reported dangerous or unsafe, it shall be the duty of the Inspector of Buildings to inspect the same, and, if in his opinion, it is dangerous, he shall notify the owner, agent, or other party having interest therein, to cause the same to be made safe or removed. And in cases where the public safety requires immediate action, the Inspector is authorized to enter the premises with such assistance as may be necessary, and cause the unsafe structure to be made safe or taken down without delay. The Inspector could delegate his assistants to perform this duty, and, under the circumstances, would have been justified in accepting their reports as final, especially as he was pressed for time in attending to other duties, which, at the moment, appeared to be of greater importance; but, having gone in person to a structure which had been reported as unsafe, the committee are of the opinion that it was his duty, notwithstanding the reports of his assistants, to inspect the same. The assistant inspectors frankly admitted that it was an oversight on their part in not requiring proper braces to be put upon the stands, and do not attempt to give any explanation. It was in evidence that Assistant Inspector Sweat did not examine the stands subsequent to four o'clock on the Saturday preceding the accident, at which time the stands were unfinished.

The committee arrive at the following conclusions:

First—That the accident was caused by the unworkmanlike manner in which the seats were constructed.

Second—That Mr. Joseph F. Paul, as the builder of the stands, is responsible for their defective construction.

Third—That the Inspector of Buildings, who visited the stands on the morning of Sept. 17, and the assistant inspectors who inspected them, did not use sufficient care in a matter of so much importance to the public safety.

For the committee.

JOHN E. FITZGERALD, Chairman.

The report was accepted.

Alderman Fitzgerald—If it is accepted, is it adopted?

The Mayor—The acceptance of the report is the adoption of the conclusions of the committee.

Alderman Fitzgerald—That is why I want the members of the Board to read it. It is given with the verbatim report of the testimony taken by the committee. Perhaps some members want to read the full report of the investigation before they vote to adopt the report, and if they do I shall ask that it be laid over for one week so that members can read the report and come to an intelligent conclusion. Some members of the committee had views different from those of others as to the degree of responsibility; but they all finally agreed upon that report as the one which they could unanimously make. After reading the testimony I have no doubt members will come to exactly the same conclusion that the committee did, and place the responsibility exactly where it belongs.

Alderman Robinson said it had been his experience that the acceptance of a report merely discharged the committee, but it did not necessarily mean the adoption of the report. He had not known what the practice of the Board had been.

The Mayor said he was informed by the Clerk that the practice of the Board had been that the acceptance of a report was the adoption of the recommendations of the committee.

Alderman Fitzgerald said it was for that reason that he wanted members to read the reports so that their acceptance of it should carry some weight.

On motion of Alderman Fitzgerald the vote of acceptance was reconsidered, and the matter was laid over till the next meeting.

CLAIMS.

Alderman O'Brien submitted a report from the Committee on Claims of leave to withdraw on petition of Patrick H. Roden to be compensated for personal injuries caused by an alleged defect in Blackstone square. Accepted. Sent down.

BRIDGE CLOSED.

Alderman Thompson offered an order—That Albany-street Bridge, over the Roxbury Canal, be closed to all public travel on Thursday, Oct. 11, 1877, and remain closed until certain repairs thereon are completed. Read twice and passed.

ROXBURY CANAL.

Alderman Clark asked if the Committee on Health had not a petition before them for the filling up of Roxbury Canal, and what progress had been made.

Alderman Viles—The committee have it under consideration. They had one enthusiastic hearing, and will probably report in a few weeks. The question is connected with the building of the system of improved sewerage. If we take away the sewage from this canal, it will cost three or four hundred thousand dollars, and we want to know where the new sewer will go.

Alderman Burnham—The location of the intercepting sewer in this immediate vicinity is not as yet definitely settled, but it unquestionably will be before a long time.

STREET DAMAGES.

Alderman Clark submitted the following from the Committee on Streets on the part of the Board:

Order to pay for land taken and damages occasioned by laying out and widening streets, as follows: Joseph G. Russell and Everett Torrey, assignees of John A. Power, $40 for land taken in the name of John A. Power by the widening of Adams street. Read twice and passed.

Report on order of notice of proposed relocation of Western avenue, that the city was properly represented at the hearings before the Street Commissioners on the subject; that the avenue has been accordingly relocated in due form by the commissioners, and that no further action is required on these notices. Accepted.

Report on petition of Charles Davenport for abatement of assessment for extension of Washington and Devonshire streets—That settlement was made with the petitioner by the committee of 1876, upon terms to which he then agreed, and the City Solicitor was instructed to take judgment in the court for such terms in the suits the petitioner had brought for a revision of his betterments, which was accordingly done, placing the matter beyond further interference of this committee in it, and rendering unnecessary any further action thereon. Accepted.

SEWERS.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Sewers:

Order to construct a sewer in Thomas street, West Roxbury. Read twice and passed.

STABLES.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Health on the part of the board:

Reports that leave be granted, on the usual conditions, to occupy stables by Thomas Carey, on passageway, near Codman park, Ward 21; Metropolitan Railroad Company, (30 additional horses) Dorchester avenue and Park street; Bates College, (two additional horses) on Ward street, Ward 22; Laurin B. Noyes, Sumner, corner Orleans street; Henry C. Curtis, Savin street, Ward 21; Thomas Brady, Dorchester avenue; William White, Chestnut Hill avenue; James O'Neil, rear Greenwich, near Davenport street. Severally accepted.

APPROPRIATION FOR SALARY OF TREASURER'S MESSENGER.

Alderman Clark offered an order—That the Auditor of Accounts be and he hereby is authorized to transfer from the Reserved Fund the sum of $500 to the appropriation for Treasurer's Department, for the purpose of paying, during the present financial year, the salary of the messenger as established by an order of the City Council approved Oct. 8, 1877. Read twice and passed—yeas 12, nays 0. Sent down.

FIELD DRIVER AND POUND KEEPER.

Alderman Burnham offered an order—That William T. McChesney be and he hereby is appointed Field Driver and Pound Keeper at South Boston. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

IMPROVED SEWERAGE.

Alderman Burnham offered an order—That the Joint Special Committee on Improved Sewerage be authorized, whenever they shall deem it expedient, to accept sufficient collateral as security for the faithful performance of contracts awarded by them in the construction of the system of improved sewerage; said collateral to be deposited in the city treasury, and the Treasurer to duly receipt for the same and to return it to the owners when the contracts are satisfactorily completed.

Alderman Burnham—I don't know that any explanation is necessary. In the proposals for building the various sections, the committee are required by the provisions of the contract to see that sureties are residents of Massachusetts. We have found that favorable bids have come to us from other sections of the Union, but there is great difficulty in gentlemen from remote sections furnishing bonds in Massachusetts. We find that by accepting collateral as security we can obviate a difficulty that might be hard to overcome. If we accept collateral, it seems to be necessary that some one should receive it. In the case under consideration the committee find that the proffered collateral is better than any bondsmen, and more satisfactory; and they therefore thought it proper to put in this order. I ask that it may take its second reading.

Alderman Clark—I hope it will not be pressed this afternoon. I think some change can be made for the advantage of the city.

Alderman Burnham—I would not press it, but the parties with whom the committee are dealing are gentlemen of standing. The bondsmen offered are alone sufficient, but they do not come under the requisition. The parties are here from New Jersey; not only the contractor, but an ex-Mayor of Jersey City and a gentleman who is a resident of Massachusetts a part of the year. When the contractor not only offered bondsmen that are satisfactory, but also offered collateral sufficient, we thought we ought to have the privilege of accepting them. I ask that it may be passed at the present time for the convenience of the contractor and his bondsmen. It is well known that there has been quite a pressure upon the committee, and that some of the contracts are ready to be put in operation immediately; and as we are approaching the winter season, it seemed to be the opinion of the committee that we could save time by the passage of the order immediately.

On motion of Alderman Fitzgerald the order was laid on the table for the time being.

Subsequently it was taken from the table, on motion of Alderman Burnham, who amended the order, inserting after "authorized" the words—

"In addition to the bond accepted by the committee."

As amended, the order was passed. Sent down.

LICENSES.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted reports from the Committee on Licenses as follows:

Auctioneer's License Granted—Martin Van Nason, 41 Temple place.

License for Intelligence Office Refused—C. S. F. Nieper, 88 Dover street.

Billiard Licenses Granted—Henry Sartoris, 626 Broadway; R. W. Harding, 109 Court street.

Bowling License Granted—William H. Moore, 66 Portland street.

Intelligence Offices Licensed—Anna E. Pope, 69 Church street; Annie S. McDonald, 43 Roxbury street (renewal); Elizabeth Ruck, 2945 Washington street; Ann Ripley, 125 Dudley street.

Wagon License Granted—William Appleton, 382 Commercial street.

Dealers in Second-hand Articles Licensed—Helen Caldwell and seven others.

License for Intelligence Office Transferred—Julia R. Wood, 415 Washington street, to Mrs. H. S. Folsom.

Severally accepted.

Ordered, That the licenses to keep intelligence offices in this city heretofore granted to George Brown, 11 Montgomery place, and to Henry Lincoln, 28 Sudbury street, be revoked for cause. Read twice and passed.

MARKET.

Alderman Slade submitted a report from the Committee on Market, recommending the approval of transfer of lease of stall No. 30 Faneuil Hall Market, by W. K. Blodgett to J. H. Russell. Accepted.

DRESSED POULTRY.

Alderman Slade submitted the following:

The Committee on Markets respectfully represent that section 14 of the ordinance in relation to Faneuil Hall Market, which requires that all poultry sold or offered for sale in said market shall be dressed, by removing the heads, crops, entrails and feathers, is operating to the disadvantage of the dealers in poultry located in said market, and should be repealed. The requirement does not extend to poultry sold without the limits of the market, consequently poultry dealers doing business in other localities have an advantage over the occupants of the market, which enables them to sell at lower prices. During the season of the year when poultry is brought to market in a frozen condition it is impossible to comply with the regulation, and if it were to be enforced it would practically put a stop to the sale of poultry in Faneuil Hall Market. The public are not benefited by the regulation, and it is something which is unknown in any other market in the country. The committee recommend the passage of the following:

An Ordinance

To amend an ordinance in relation to Faneuil Hall Market.

Be it ordained, etc.,

Section 1. The ordinance in relation to Faneuil Hall Market is hereby amended by striking out the fourteenth section thereof.

Alderman Slade—The poultry dealers in the market appeared before the committee and represented as stated in the report. In a large portion of the country poultry is not dressed suitable to be sold in our markets. A dressed chicken or turkey is not known in New York, further than the taking off of the feathers. In fact, any one acquainted with the poultry trade knows that undressed poultry will keep longer than dressed poultry. The ordinance requires that no poultry shall be sold in the market unless it is dressed; but it has not effect outside of the limits of the market, which subjects dealers in the market to a hardship, and in the winter season they have to thaw out poultry and dress it before it can be sold. Canvas-back ducks have to have their heads cut off, and it is not possible to comply with the law, because very few can distinguish that kind of duck except by the head. Then again the heads of poultry are as much sought for as the body. Parts of the head have become very valuable, and dealers in the market have great difficulty in getting as many as are needed by the hotels. Further than that, immediately after this ordinance was passed dealers from Canada, who bring large quantities of poultry, venison and game here, went to New York. They used to take the feathers off and sell the poultry in South Market street; but when they were thrown out of the street they went to New York; and the whole trade has gone there simply because of the passage of this ordinance. It is a hardship upon the dealers in the market, is of no advantage to anybody, and tends to drive away trade that would come here.

On motion of Alderman Slade, the report and ordinance were referred to the Committee on Ordinances. Sent down.

REMOVAL OF HORSES FROM SOUTH RUSSELL STREET.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted a report from the Committee on Licenses, on petition of Robert E. Apthorp, recommending the passage of an order—That the Union Railway Company be notified to remove their tow-horses from South Russell street, as their occupation of said street has proved to be objectionable to the neighborhood.

Read twice and passed.

Subsequently the vote passing the order was reconsidered on motion of Alderman Robinson, who said the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals required the company to keep these horses on the street; that they were placed there with the consent of most persons on the street. He thought that sufficient time should be allowed to find some other place, rather than order them to be removed at a moment's notice.

Alderman Viles asked if they were to be removed from the street entirely, or only from South Russell street.

Alderman Fitzgerald said Mr. Apthorp owns a respectable tenement house there and the tenants object to the nuisance made by the horses standing there. No one would like to have them in front of his house. It is not for the Board to get another place; the railroad company must do that.

The order was passed.

EAST BOSTON HIGH SCHOOL.

On motion of Alderman Gibson, the Board took from the table the order to fit up the Lyman Schoolhouse for a high school in East Boston, at an expense of $2000.

Alderman Gibson—I have been informed that there are seventy to eighty scholars who will patronize this school, which seems to be quite a large number. They represent to me that they propose to run it for two years. I did not know but that another house there might be fitted up; but I find that it is not possible to do it, and there is no other suitable place without building a new schoolhouse. This seems to be the best place for it.

Alderman Fitzgerald—My objections to the passage of the order were stated last week. It is not the two thousand dollars which we spent fitting up a place that is unfit for the education of boys and girls—over a police court. It can have none of the accommodations and appliances which a high school ought to have, and it is simply a question whether we are to have high schools in the different sections of the city. I think East Boston ought to be content with what this City Government has done for it. The English High School is as near East Boston as it is to the southern part of the city or South Boston Point: while they propose to get as good an English high-school education in East Boston for the paltry sum of $2000 as you can at the central school for boys and girls. In view of the fact that we have spent so much money this year, this City Government ought to hesitate before making this entering wedge for an expenditure of $50,000 for a high school in East Boston and ten or twelve thousand dollars for salaries for teachers. We are building a large high school for the accommodation of 2000 pupils, which is intended to accommodate the wards of the city for a great number of years, and I want this Board to understand what they are voting for. It means not only this school in East Boston, but a petition for another such school in another section of the city; and if you grant it to East Boston, the same argument will apply to this section of the city. Two years ago they asked for a high school in South Boston, and that petition will come here again if this one is granted. We have expended quite enough upon all these improvements and conveniences so far, and I think we ought to allow our successors to take up a few matters of this kind. There is no absolute necessity for the passage of this order—none whatever. I oppose it not because I am antagonistic to East Boston, or any other section of the city, but because I am opposed to the establishment of local high schools. If we are to have so many little high schools, we had better consider whether we had not better divide the whole high-school system into little schools.

•Alderman O'Brien—I don't know that anything I can say upon this subject will enlighten the members of the Board, because this question has been discussed year after year for a long series of years. The Alderman says there is no necessity for the passage of this order. A great many citizens differ with the Alderman on that point, because petitions have come here year after year showing that there is a necessity for it. The people of East Boston, who are no insignificant portion of our population, have petitioned for it year after year. I believe that our local high schools are fixed facts. You cannot revolutionize the system, destroy them and erect two or three grand central high schools to take the place of these local high schools. They are fixed facts, and will continue just as they are. The only places in the outskirts of the city where we do not have these local high schools are East Boston and South Boston. The Alderman ought to bear this fact in mind. I might ask the Alderman from Brighton if he is willing to vote against the establishment of a high school in East Boston, and by that vote strike a blow at the high school in his own section, because the defeat of this measure means the establishment of this central high school to take the place of all the local high schools in the city. By the by, I will say that the people of Dorchester appreciate high-school education more than any other class, for according to population Dorchester has more scholars in the high school than any other section of the city; and I presume that is what makes the people of Dorchester so intelligent and enterprising. I don't believe the Alderman from Dorchester can vote against this order, because it will strike a blow at his own high school. I might say the same of the Alderman from the Highlands, but I am afraid it would not change his mind, because he only looks at one side of a question; but I suppose that is owing to his professional training for a long series of years. Is the Board aware of the injustice it is doing to East Boston by depriving it of a high school? Let me tell them what they are doing. Charlestown, with a population of 33,000, has 261 scholars in the high schools; East Boston, with about the same population, has only 157; Roxbury and West Roxbury, with a population of 62,000, have 427 scholars in our high schools; South Boston, with precisely the same population, has only 272—about one-half. I don't suppose that the people of East or South Boston appreciate high-school education less than the people of Dorchester, West Roxbury or Charlestown. The only reason why three or four hundred of their scholars do not take advantage of a high-school education, year after year, is because you do not furnish them the means for doing so. You send them travelling two or three or four miles from their homes; and that is the only answer to that. Dorchester has 208 high-school scholars to a population of 15,000, and I attribute that to the fact that she has her own high school in the midst of her other schools, and the people are ready to take advantage of it.

In relation to our local high schools I would like to read what our superintendent says;

"The petition of citizens of East Boston in 1874, for the establishment of a high school in that section of the city, raised the question as to the future policy of the city in respect to the maintenance of this grade of public schools. Nobody openly questioned the necessity or expediency of providing high-school instruction as a part of the system of public instruction. It is too late to raise that question in this community. But the substance of the question to be decided was this: Shall all the instruction in this grade of schools be limited to two or three central schools of different descriptions, or shall provision be continued for district or local high-school instruction? And if local provision is continued, shall it be in branch schools or in independently organized schools? The responsibility of settling this important question fell upon the present board, and, in my judgment, it has been wisely disposed of by deciding to continue the local schools, with some limitations as to the length of the courses of study."

The School Board approve of this measure. I know there is a difference of opinion among them, but they approve of it. Now, in relation to this grand central high school, I guarantee it will never lack scholars. The great difficulty will be too large a number of scholars, and that question is already before the School Committee. From the discussion in that board on the union of the Latin and High schools, I will quote a few brief remarks, because it also has a bearing upon this question:

"It is to be considered, also, that the number of pupils in a high school ought never to exceed the limit at which the proper influence of the head master over them, individually, ceases to be effective. A good man ought to impress himself strongly upon the whole school,—the more strongly the better. This personal influence will have very much to do with the formation of individual character, and is of the highest importance, intellectually and morally. It is plain enough that it will be diluted and weakened in proportion to the numbers in the school, and it is equally plain that the opportunities of exerting this influence in a public day school cannot be compared with those enjoyed by a college president in this country, or by a head master of a great public school in England."

You see that every year there is great danger of increasing the number of scholars in a high school so that it will be completely unmanageable, and it will be impossible for the head master to superintend all the doings of the school. You can imagine it yourselves, Mr. Mayor and gentlemen of the Board. Take a high school with 2000 scholars. Just imagine the responsibilities and cares that would fall upon the head master of a school with 2000 scholars under him. How can he have the oversight, and how can he know all of the doings of that school? But, Mr. Mayor, I think the board understands this question, and I believe they will favorably dispose of it.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The report from which the Alderman has read is one which I signed when in the School Board, and I know all about it. The object of writing it was in response to an order offered in the School Board to consolidate the Latin and English High schools. It states that it would be utterly impossible for any master to devote his time to two separate schools whose objects and aims are entirely different, without doing injustice to one or the other; and that his time should be wholly devoted to one of these schools, in order to impress his personality upon these schools, and we reported against their consolidation. The Alderman asks what master can take care of that number of scholars? The high-school house on Warren avenue is intended for both the Latin and English High schools; they are in the same building, but the accommodation for the 2000 pupils and the responsibility are to be divided between two masters. But we have grammar schools in the city in which there are twelve or fourteen hundred children, with one master over them. He speaks of Mr. Philbrick, and says they wisely concluded not to change this local system. The School Board left things as they found them; but you have found no instance in the history of the School Board where they began, de novo, the establishment of a high school where one was not already established. When towns with high schools were annexed, the School Board let them remain, and made them conform to the system of Boston. That was the case with Dorchester, Brighton, West Roxbury and Charlestown. But there is no instance in the history of the School Board where they established a new high school in addition to the one originally established. This thing has been up for years, and has invariably been refused. One of the best educators that, perhaps, we have ever had in our schools, and who has resigned his position [Dr. Eliot], came before the Committee on High Schools twice and pleaded in behalf of this high-school arrangement, that the teaching might not be spread all over the surface so thin that it would amount to nothing. The change asked for is not a high school. They propose a one or two years' course, and that the boys and girls shall then come up to the central high school and finish the course there. It is to be a little branch, away from the impress of the head master; but the little stream will become a mighty river if they can make it so—mark my words. It is modestly asked to have it misnamed a high school. They do not propose to have a master over it; they propose to have a man make his impress upon it a mile and a half away from the high school. I have paid attention to the subject for four or five years. The Alderman made a specious argument to the Aldermen from Brighton and Dorchester, and to myself, and I am surprised that he don't turn to the Alderman from South Boston and ask him if he is going to vote against this high school. If this is passed, perhaps the request will be put in here for $1500 to fit up a high school in the upper story of the Harris School in South Boston. That cannot be called an argument. It is what is called in the South a bull-doing argument. I want to see this matter tried upon its merits, and not by saying that because Dorchester and Brighton have high schools we want one in East and South Boston. With equal propriety could the people of the North End say their children cannot go to Warren avenue and we must turn one of our grammar schools at the North End into a high school. Never before have the City Council established a high school outside of the central one; this is the first instance of it. I have no doubt the arguments of the Alderman will be potent with the Aldermen from Dorchester and Brighton, and that the same argument will be used with the same force against the Aldermen from South Boston and Charlestown. I am sorry this City Council is going to initiate the establishment of a high school in East Boston. It will be no high school. It will only be a class, and away from the supervision of the master and teachers who ought to be there; it will only be a high school in name, and not such a high school as I should want to send my child to; and I know that the people of East Boston, with their energy, will not be content with it. It is but a crumb from the table, and they will want a loaf by and by.

Alderman O'Brien—East Boston has 157 pupils in the high schools, and as soon as the high school is established there there will be an increase of forty per cent. Now they have to go three or four miles by cars and ferries to the central high school. This location is satisfactory to the people there; and perhaps in three or four years it will take the place of the Police Court, which can be transferred to the police station at comparatively small expense.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The Alderman thinks that by and by this high school will grow until the Police Court will be removed and a large school established at an expense of $12,000 or $14,000 for teachers. It is time for us to pause, and, as we have done so generously, to let this go over to a future City Government to decide whether they will have these small high schools. I know it is no use pressing this matter, because the arguments of the Aldermen have been potent with the Aldermen from Dorchester and Brighton and other sections.

Alderman Robinson—My friend, Alderman O'Brien, has alluded to me in connection with the Dorchester High School, and my other friend, Alderman Fitzgerald, has said that the city did not build the high school there. I differ with my friend, Alderman O'Brien, that it is impossible for a man to take care of 2000 scholars. How does a general command an army of 200,000 men? It is not supposed that the general drills each soldier in the manual and in all the evolutions; nor is it supposed that the head master drills all the scholars in the rudiments of education. I supposed that this central high school was to give a higher grade of education and be more like a college for the city of Boston. I feel that this $2000 will do no good to East Boston, and shall oppose it; not that I have any feeling against East Boston, but that it is not a proper place for a high school, so far as I can judge.

Alderman Slade—This subject was pretty generally discussed in the School Board when I was a member of it. The School Board have once or twice passed an order for it, but the City Council did not furnish the means. A gentleman appeared before the Committee on Public Instruction this year and said he had a daughter twelve years old that he wished to send to a high school; he lives a mile from the ferry, and she has to go by car to the ferry, then by boat and then by car. If the cars could carry them all the way, I don't think this would be forced upon us at all. The great argument is that it is dangerous for such young people to go so long a distance unless they have some one to go with them. They desire to have a school where their children can go one or two years—and, by the way, that is as long as most girls go at all. If the school is established I think more girls will go. The entrance to this schoolroom is different from the entrance to the Police Court. I don't think the court amounts to much any way; the people don't object to it. I don't take much stock in the bugbear of a $50,000 schoolhouse; I don't think it is contemplated in East Boston. It is simply to have a school where they can send their children for a year or two until they arrive at the age to go to the central school; and I think they ought to have it.

Alderman Gibson—There is no trouble about the entrance to the high school; it is separated from the Police Court. There are some disadvantages about the location, and my idea was that the Webster Schoolhouse would be better, as it is much nearer those who have no cars. This plan will be entirely satisfactory if it can be carried out.

Alderman Thompson—The question is whether we shall appropriate $2000 for this school, and not whether we shall make an appropriation for a high school to be built in the future. The petition came before the committee in regular course and the people did not ask for a high school there. It will be three or four years before our new high school will be built, and this is proposed as an intermediate school for temporary relief. I don't think the people of East Boston desire a high school; if I lived there I should not. In view of the incomplete accommodations now furnished, the committee thought it wise to recommend this appropriation as a temporary relief.

Alderman O'Brien—The branch of the Public Library occupies this same building; a primary school is within eighty feet of it, and a large grammar school within three or four hundred feet of it. If it is so objectionable for a high school it ought to be objectionable to the branch library and the primary and grammar schools.

Alderman Fitzgerald—It is not the Police Court; the place is not fit; the accommodations are insufficient, and it is not going to be a high school. It will be impossible to give boys and girls a high-school education there. I venture to say the masters of the English High School would oppose it. The distance is not so great to the Central School as other Aldermen and myself walked when we were boys. The setting off of a colony of boys and girls and calling it a high school is what seems sheer ridiculousness to me. Would the Citizens' Trade Association of East Boston be content with anything of that kind? Of course not. They want a high school, and have been saying so for the last three or four years.

Alderman Burnham—The section of the city where I reside has been referred to. I have no prophetic vision by which I can tell what the residents of that section may do; perhaps some one from there may stand in this Board and claim a high school; but I have suggested that the citizens of South Boston are content. They appreciate the advantages of our high school, send their children there, and I think they are content. The means of communication are very easy. This matter simmers down to a small point, and the trouble is with the ferry. The Alderman opposite spoke of a gentleman and his twelve-year-old daughter; and I think that is a point to be considered by this Board.

Alderman Viles—Perhaps it is not well-known that East Boston is made up of intelligent mechanics who can ill afford to send their children to school at the South End by cars. It is quite a tax on their hard earnings. I think the location is all right, and that the court will die a natural death in a year or two. The people of East Boston are so moral they will get rid of it in that way.

Alderman O'Brien—A very small percentage of the children who enter the Central High School go through; but they will go two or three years to these local high schools. That is an important consideration. I believe that but about fifty per cent. of all the children who enter a high school ever go through the whole course.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The Alderman does n't state it properly. When girls graduate from the grammar schools they go to the high school for a short time and then get tired out; but those who go through the second year generally go through the whole course. No girl can be admitted under the age of fourteen years of age, and the average age of admission is between fifteen and sixteen.

The order was passed in concurrence.

PETITION FOR CONSTABLE.

Alderman Clark presented a long petition signed by P. A. Collins and many other lawyers urgently requesting the appointment of John A. Duggan as constable. Referred, on motion of Alderman Fitzgerald, to his Honor the Mayor.

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman O'Brien.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Common Council,

OCTOBER 11, 1877.

Regular meeting at 7½ o'clock P. M., Benjamin Pope, President, in the chair.

PAPERS FROM THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Auditor's monthly exhibit for September; annual report of City Registrar; and report of fires and alarms for September. Severally placed on file.

Reference to Committee on Ordinances of an ordinance to amend an ordinance in relation to Faneuil Hall Market.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9 stated that the Ordinance Committee, at a meeting today, voted to authorize him to state that they were prepared to recommend its passage. On his motion the Council non-concurred in the reference of the ordinance, and the rule was suspended and it was read a second time and passed. Sent up.

Report of leave to withdraw on a petition of P. H. Roden, to be paid for personal injuries from an alleged obstruction in Blackstone square. Accepted in concurrence.

Order that William T. McChesney be appointed as a field driver, etc., at South Boston.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I would like to ask who knows anything about Mr. William T. McChesney and the reasons in favor of electing him?

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—If he is going to make as much trouble for us as did the Inspector of Lime, I think it is well for us to know all about him before we pass this order.

The order was read twice, and, on motion of Mr. Howes of Ward 18, laid upon the table.

Order for Committee on Improved Sewerage, in addition to the bond accepted by them, to accept, when expedient, sufficient collateral or security for the faithful performance of contracts, as therein set forth. Read twice and passed in concurrence.

Order for a transfer of $500 from Reserved Fund to appropriation for Treasurer's Department, to pay the salary of the Messenger, for said department, during the present financial year. Ordered to a second reading.

SALARIES OF LICENSE COMMISSIONERS.

Report came down with an order that the salaries of the License Commissioners be at the rate of $2500 each per annum, from the date of their appointment.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—This looks to me like a gross outrage, and I believe the citizens of Boston share my view of it very generally. I intend to move that it be indefinitely postponed, but propose to first give a few reasons, talking to the point and saying just what I mean. In the inaugural address of His Honor the Mayor, we were informed that the present City Government were elected upon the issue of urban reform, and that partizanship should have no place in city affairs—or words to that effect. How genuine has been this urban reform, and how persistent the efforts of the present City Government in behalf of retrenchment, has been shown in regard to the department of License Commissioners during the entire year. In the first place the Retrenchment Committee reported that two clerks in City Hall could be dispensed with; but when the new commissioners were appointed they elected two clerks, and the one which was employed in Mr. McCleary's office has been continued. In the second place, the same committee reported that the special police for the License Commissioners would be entirely unnecessary; and while we saved $5000 we turned around a few weeks afterward and voted them fifteen regular policemen—not the men who could be dispensed with at the end of the year and were dropped out, but the regular policemen—which made a permanent outgo of $15,000 a year. In the Commissioners' communication requesting more salary, they seem to make odd misstatements—if I am correctly informed in regard to the fifteen regular police officers now doing what the other special police were doing, that two policemen at each station did so entirely in connection with their other duties. We get the impression from their communication that these two officers did the duties of the commissioners only, while that was a very small part of their duties, and that they did not increase the force in the least. So I don't see but the idea of saving anything by dispensing with the services of these men at the police station is a false one. The argument was used very freely about city hall that the place was merely nominal; that any number of first-class men could be found to fill it just as well as the Overseers of the Poor and Directors for Public Institutions, and that $1000 salary was enough for an ornamental office of one or two hours' duty a day. Whatever were their failings I venture to say that the old board of License Commissioners was composed of three men who were appointed without any regard to party services. While they were in office, the cutting down of the salaries to $1000 was the most popular feature of the entire retrenchment bill; no gentleman will deny that it did more to carry that bill than any other feature. It was one I disliked to swallow, and I came near bringing in a minority report, because I believed the salary ridiculously small for any three competent men who would assume the responsibility; but I accepted it in order to bring in a unanimous report. I contend that what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander, and what was an ample salary then is an ample salary now, and that we shall stultify ourselves by making a change. Show me any gentlemen whose salaries were cut down unnecessarily low, and I will go as far as anyone to make it right; and on that account I have already been put in an awkward position. I might add that when his Honor wanted to find three men for License Commissioners at that salary he only had to step outside of his own office to find them all three in the same building. I think their request is the clearest example of "cheek" I ever witnessed. Another thing—I was informed at the Auditor's office that they have not drawn their salaries, though they have drawn that of their subordinates. It goes to show that the whole thing was a mere dodge, and that it was expected and understood by them that the salary would be raised after a while; if otherwise, why should n't they do as the other commissioners do. I oppose this order because I want to be consistent; but I hope it will pass, because I am an honest opponent of the present Administration, and believe that its whole scheme of economy is a humbug. If this order can be passed the honest citizens will see what a humbug it is, and I believe it will be one of the best campaign documents for a citizens' government that can be had.

Mr. Danforth of Ward 10—I hope it will pass, but not for the reasons given by the gentleman who just sat down. When the Salary Committee first investigated the duties of that office, they fixed $2500 as a fair salary for the duties, and not for any men; when this request came before them—all the members being present except one, who was out of town, and one member is a member of the Retrenchment Committee. After another investigation we came to the conclusion that the liquor and Sunday laws had been better executed than before; that although there are more licensed places, yet there are fewer places where liquor is sold; that the streets are much more quiet Sundays and late at night. The committee were unanimous in the opinion that the salary should be increased. The gentleman says the salary of $1000 was passed in a fit of retrenchment and not economy. Two wrongs do not make a right; I think the commissioners have done their duty, and I hope this order will pass.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—I hope this order will not pass. Although I am well acquainted with the present commissioners, have had business to do with them, and acknowledge that they have faithfully performed their duties, I cannot vote for this order. I claim that there was a contract made at the outset, when their salary was established and they entered upon their duties, and it will establish a bad precedent to make this increase. Within the last few weeks I have had one member of a department approach me and ask if I thought they could get their salaries restored. If this is passed it will be a precedent for others to come here to get their salaries raised to the former figures.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—When this matter came before the Salary Committee in the earlier part of the year, we looked over the duties required by law of the License Commissioners. The former commissioners had $3000 and we thought we would reduce the salary to $2500, and that that was as low as the city could consistently ask three competent persons to attend to that duty for. We know nothing about their politics. These three men were appointed and have attended to their duties in a proper manner, giving them a great deal of time and attention. I have nothing to say against the last Commissioners, having no doubt they did their duties as they understood the law; but there is not one here but will say the present Commissioners have worked faithfully for the interest of the city. The reason the Commissioners have not drawn anything is because their salaries have not been fixed according to law, which requires that the City Government shall vote every year whether or not they will have License Commissioners, and the City Government has never established their salaries in such a way that they could legally draw one dollar from the city treasury; and now they request the City Government to legally decide upon what salary they should be paid. It was well known that last year's commissioners employed legal attorneys to attend to their business in the courts at a salary of $2500; but this year the commissioners decided that to properly carry out the law it was necessary to attend to cases in Brighton, Roxbury, Charlestown, South Boston and the city proper, and no one lawyer could attend to them all. No one questioned what we all know was the construction of the law by the commissioners last year; and under the construction of the present commissioners they decided that it was best to watch all the cases and prosecute those who did not take out licenses, which they have done and saved the city $2500. Considering that this is the lowest sum paid to any commissioners, we cannot in justice ask these gentlemen to work for less than $2500.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—It sounds rather curiously to hear the gentleman talk about this being the lowest sum for which these commissioners could be expected to work for the city. If I am not mistaken he was one of those who thought competent men could be obtained for $1000.

Mr. Clarke—If the gentleman alludes to me I will correct him. I voted for $2500.

Mr. Crocker—Then I am mistaken; but I know that many gentlemen did not favor $2500, which I then thought was a proper salary for officers performing such duties. But I am not prepared to change the salaries so precipitately. The gentlemen who filled that office were not party men, and as soon as this City Council got into the hands of the Democratic party the salary was reduced to $1000; but three Democratic partisans were put in, and now gentlemen turn around and ask us to raise the salary. It is too thin, and I am not prepared to vote for it. I cannot find that they perform any more duties than the men did the year before. More licenses are granted, but it is easier to grant all asked for than to review the merits of each applicant and determine whose request should be granted and whose refused. I cannot understand that it is any part of the duty of the commissioners to turn themselves into prosecuting attorneys; and if they volunteer as such, I am at a loss to see why we should pay them for it. They took the office just after the salary had been decreased, and when the pretence was that it was to stay at a low figure, which was all it was worth; and I do not care to be in such a hurry to turn around and increase the salary.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—It is very evident that the object of certain gentlemen in this discussion is to make political capital for somebody. I am justified in saying so from the remarks of the gentleman from Ward 3, who, after abusing the order, hopes it will pass; and for what purpose? To show up this Democratic Administration! Since this Government was organized, he, as a member of this Council, has been as ready as any one to vote money for different purposes. It is not because he believes that those men do not earn their money, but for the purpose of making political capital, and that is all. The gentleman from Ward 9 believes they are entitled to $2500; everybody who has any knowledge of the duties knows they have earned that sum; but still the gentleman wants it passed because he thinks it will upset this Democratic Government, and wants to show that they have been putting their hands into the treasury, or doing something they were not justified in doing. I did not intend to say a word on this subject. I am as much interested as anybody in Boston, and have had some dealings with those men; but I do not want to see his Honor the Mayor abused because he saw fit to appoint three Democrats. A year ago there were three Republicans on the Commission; nobody objected to those gentlemen having $3500 for doing not half the duty performed by these men. If this is brought in for the political purpose of stigmatizing the Mayor and the Board of Aldermen, I am not going to vote against the order. I believe, from my own knowledge, that those men earn $2500, and shall vote for it.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—I fail to see why it is more inconsistent to refuse to raise a salary for political effect than it is to cut down a salary in the first place with the purpose of putting it back before the year closes. If my action tends to make political capital, I am willing to be so regarded. As to my record, I should like any gentleman to scrutinize it, and should be glad to compare records with the gentleman from Ward 13. I voted against free ferries, and I think he did not. I intend to vote against Commercial street, and he may vote for it. I admit that the salary is ridiculously small; but they had no reason, morally or legally, to expect that the salary would be raised during the year. I am opposed to it myself, and don't think the money should be spent in that way; but, nevertheless, from a partisan standpoint I hope it will pass. As feeble as my eloquence is, I think I can tell that story in the wards of Boston with some effect.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—For the sake of giving the gentleman from Ward 3 that opportunity, I hope the order will pass. I understand that he belongs to a debating society whose meetings are not very interesting, and that he comes here to exercise himself before this Council. He says it will be political. I can assure him that after his first election by begging for Democratic votes, he will have to use some other argument than an increase of the License Commissioners' salaries. The gentleman from Ward 9 conveyed the impression that the former commissioners investigated the licenses themselves; but that is not so, and everybody knows it. I came here to vote against it, but after the arguments raised I shall vote for it.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5—I never have been much in favor of these boards, and thought they would return to plague the gentlemen who established them. When these commissioners were appointed in 1875 they had $3500 a year. I thought it was too large, but was voted down. One year ago it came down to $2500. I don't care about their politics, only if they perform their duties. I thought the Retrenchment Committee reported some salaries too large for the times, but I voted for it. The law says the commissioners' salaries shall be fixed each year. If they have performed their duty, I think $2500 is not too much; I shall vote for it.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—I hope we shall discuss this order without personal feeling. One feature of it I do not like, and which will establish a bad precedent—and that is, to have the order date back from their appointment. Such a precedent will come back to vex us. I do not know but the commissioners have performed their duties as well as any officers in Boston, and perhaps better; but if this order passes I do not see why we cannot increase every salary under the City Government. If I am correctly informed, these gentlemen sought this office at $1000 a year; they have served a little more than half the year; and to give them back pay for their services is wrong. I move to amend by striking out the words "from the date of their appointment," and inserting "after the date of the passage of this order."

Mr. Clarke—If I understood the Chief of Police, the two policemen detailed at each station were only to carry out the Sunday law.

Mr. Danforth—In addition to the regular force two policemen are detailed to carry out the Sunday law. I think the duties of the commissioners are worth $2500. The duties are better performed, and the liquor business is under better regulation than ever before, and the committee were unanimous in their report.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—Did they not agree to take $1000 when they accepted the office?

Mr. Danforth—I cannot say what they agreed to do. When the bill was passed, I think this salary was one of those mentioned that probably would be corrected.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—This is a subject of which we have cause to be ashamed. I was fully convinced that the salary was below what should be paid for competent men to perform the duties. An amendment to make it $2000 was refused. The gentleman from Ward 10 places this upon the only ground which can be occupied in deceuy. We do not want to be called salary grabbers. We do not want people coming into office for one salary and then get an increase when their friends are in power. I shall vote against the order as originally introduced.

Mr. Ruffin of Ward 9—I cannot vote for the amendment, because I do not understand that the salary has been fixed in accordance with law, which provides that they shall be appointed every year before the first of May. Until we do that, there is no necessity for fixing the salary. We have always treated this question unfairly. Very many gentlemen who have spoken upon this subject tonight, have previously spoken on the other side and argued that $1000 was ample for the duty. I thought then and I think now that those gentlemen were actuated by prejudice, and I charged it upon them. I know something of the duties. We ought to make it a respectable office, like the other salaried offices of the city, which expects to pay sufficient salary for well-performed services. There is no necessity for making a discrimination against one set of officers. Last year they employed Mr. Nettleton at $2500 a year to prosecute the cases; this year the commissioners have attended to the duty, and the force in the City Solicitor's office has been reduced. I don't care what party will be benefited; I still think $1000 ridiculously insufficient, and $2500 not too much.

Mr. Thompson—The Committee on Retrenchment reported an ordinance fixing this salary at $1000 [City Doc. 20, page 12]; that was changed to an order. Mr. Pratt offered an amendment to make it $2500, and it was lost, and the order was passed March 2.

Mr. Flynn—Those men were not appointed until May 3.

Mr. Thompson—That makes no difference. If an assessor or commissioner died or was removed, and his successor appointed, I don't think we would be obliged to establish a new salary. Nothing can be plainer than that the salaries were established. If the gentlemen have not chosen to draw their salaries and are not satisfied, it is not our fault. I am opposed to going back and giving them a different salary.

Mr. Ruffin—Can a salary be legally established for an office which does not exist?

Mr. Thompson—We can provide by order that if we afterwards establish an office, the salary shall be thus and so.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I should be in favor of voting for the amendment, for I don't think it is right to extend it back to their appointment.

The question was put on Mr. Richardson's amendment; the Chair was in doubt, and on motion of Mr. Spenceley the yeas and nays were ordered. It was rejected—yeas 21, nays 40.

Yeas—Messrs. Blodgett, Brown, Coe, Crocker, Felt, D. A. Flynn, Fraser, Kidney, Mowry, Pearl, Perham, J. H. Pierce, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Sampson, Shepard, Spenceley, Thompson, E. R. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—21.

Nays—Messrs. Barnard, Barry, Beeching, Brintnall, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Cox, Cross, Danforth, Day, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fagan, Fernald, J. J. Flynn, Ham, Howes, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), McDonald, McGaragle, Morrill, Nugent, O'Connor, O'Donnell, O. H. Pierce, Pope, Roach, Roberts, Ruffin, Sibley, Smardon, Stone, Thorndike, Vose, Warren, G. B. Webster—40.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Blanchard, Hibbard, Hiscock, Loughlin, McClusky, Mullane, Pratt, Reed, Souther, Upham—10.

Mr. Danforth—One of the commissioners said they considered that the salary had not been legally fixed.

Mr. Thompson—Three or four months ago the Council voted to pay these men $1000 with all the information they now have, and now gentlemen vote to make it $2500. I cannot help expressing my surprise that gentlemen will put themselves on record in that way. I would vote against equalizing salaries rather than stand in the position they do tonight.

On motion of Mr. Coe of Ward 23, the yeas and nays were ordered on giving the order a second reading.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—The salary of these commissioners has always caused very great dispute. After two years' deliberation, I concluded the salary was too high, although I voted for the highest amount last year and the year before. When the Retrenchment Committee made the reduction, I should have been willing to vote for $2000. It has been said that the present commissioners took the office knowing the salary was to be $1000. If I am not mistaken, they took it under the impression that they could make the salary to suit themselves, and they endeavored to so construe the law, and found themselves mistaken, after a decision by the City Solicitor. They thought they were not going to serve for less than $2500, and perhaps more. I think $2500 rather high, and therefore move to make it $2000.

Mr. Howes's amendment was lost—11 for, 38 against.

The order was refused a second reading.

Yeas—Messrs. Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Cox, Cross, Danforth, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fernald, J. J. Flynn, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 6), McDonald, McGaragle, Nugent, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Roach, Ruffin, Sibley, Stone, Thorndike, Warren—24.

Nays—Messrs. Barnard, Barry, Beeching, Blodgett, Brintnall, Brown, Coe, Crocker, Day, Fagan, Felt, D. A. Flynn, Fraser, Ham, Howes, Kelley (Ward 3), Kidney, Morrill, Mowry, Pearl, Perham, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, Pope, Pratt, J. B. Richardsou, M. W. Richardson, Roberts, Sampson, Shepard, Smardon, Spenceley, Thompson, Vose, E. R. Webster, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—38.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Blanchard, Hibbard, Hiscock, Loughlin, McClusky, Mullane, Reed, Souther, Upham—9.

COMMERCIAL STREET.

The order for a loan of $1,000,000 for widening, grading and repaving Commercial street, between Eastern avenue and Charles River Bridge, and for paying damages occasioned thereby, was considered under unfinished business.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 said the friends of the measure intended to invite the Council to visit the street, and as there was no hurry about it he moved to lay it on the table. Carried.

WINES, ETC., AT CITY ENTERTAINMENTS.

The resolve that no wines, cigars or lager should be furnished at entertainments or with refreshments paid for by the city, was considered under unfinished business.

On motion of Mr. Pratt the main question was ordered, and the resolve was ordered to a second reading—yeas 38, nays 13:

Yeas—Messrs. Barnard, Barry, Beeching, Blodgett, Coe, Crocker, Danforth, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fagan, Felt, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, Fraser, Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, Mowry, Nugent, Perham, J. H. Pierce, Pratt, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Roach, Roberts, Smardon, Spenceley, Stone, Thompson, Thorndike, Vose, Warren, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—36.

Nays—Messrs. Burke, Clarke, Cox, Cross, J. J. Flynn, Howes, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), McDonald, McGaragle, Morrill, Pearl, Pope, E. R. Webster—14.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Blanchard, Brintnall, Brown, Cannon, Day, Ham, Hibbard, Hiscock, Loughlin, McClusky, Mullane, O'Connor, O'Donnell, O. H. Pierce, Reed, Ruffin, Sampson, Shepard, Sibley, Souther, Upham,—21.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 moved to indefinitely postpone the resolve.

The President was in doubt, the Council divided, and the vote was declared 12 for, 25 against.

As the President was declaring the result, Mr. McGaragle doubted the vote and called for the yeas and nays.

The President ruled that the doubt came too late, as the result had been declared.

Mr. McGaragle appealed, but the appeal not being seconded, Mr. Webster of Ward 13 raised the point that it could not be entertained. The President ruled the point well taken.

Mr. Howes opposed the resolve. He wanted publicity given to all bills he or any one else contracted; but they owed a certain respect for themselves. An order of this kind implies that, in the eyes of the Council, a large number of members are not to be trusted. Let us stop it by making public those who incur the expenses, and what the expenses are.

Mr. Pratt advocated the resolve, saying that there was not so much objection to cigars or lager as to champagne, which was expensive, and the taxpayers had a right to grumble, just as a client would if he, as counsel, went to New York and ordered champagne at dinner. They have got along very pleasantly two or three times without wine.

Mr. McGaragle moved to include all mineral waters and "excelsior."

Mr. Thompson raised the point that the amendment was frivolous, and the President ruled that it was.

Mr. McGaragle said that he offered it in good faith, and the Chair accepted the explanation and entertained the amendment.

Mr. McGaragle's amendment was adopted.

On motion of Mr. Coe the main question, and on motion of Mr. Barnard the yeas and nays, were ordered.

The resolve as amended was passed—yeas 36, nays 19:

Yeas—Messrs. Barnard, Beeching, Blodgett, Coe, Cox, Crocker, Danforth, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Felt, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, McDonald, Mowry, O'Connor, Perham, J. H. Pierce, Pope, Pratt, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardsou, Roberts, Smardon, Spenceley, Stone, Thompson, Vose, Warren, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—36.

Nays—Messrs. Barry, Brintnall, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Cross, Fagan, Howes, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), McGaragle, Morrill, Nugent, O'Donnell, Pearl, Roach, Sampson, Thorndike, E. R. Webster—19.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Blanchard, Brown, Day, Ham, Hibbard, Hiscock, Loughlin, McClusky, Mullane, O. H. Pierce, Reed, Ruffin, Shepard, Sibley, Souther, Upham—16.

Sent up.

THE ADDITIONAL APPROPRIATION FOR COMMON AND PUBLIC GROUNDS.

Mr. Dee of Ward 5 moved to reconsider the vote whereby was refused the reference to Committee on Finance of a request of the Committee on Common, etc., for an additional appropriation of $15,000.

Mr. Howes—At the last meeting I stated that I was unprepared to give any estimates as to completing the grading near the monument; but the committee have met since and made certain estimates. My reason for voting against the reference was that I did not believe in a committee if it exceeds its appropriation—asking for a lump sum without any particular knowledge of the amount required. So far as I can find out, the expense will be as follows: There is a balance of $2800 to the credit of the committee. The labor around the monument thus far has amounted to $1200; the material supplied for grading, etc., is said to amount to $7000, and it will require about $800 to complete it, so that some $9000 will have been spent in grading, etc., around the monument. It was the supposition of the committee that this expense would be about $500, and how it has got up to $9000 I am unable to say. The superintendent seems to have understood that he was directed to go ahead and perfect this improvement, and the vote of the committee, as I afterwards found it, was somewhat ambiguous. He was authorized to grade around the Soldiers' Monument; but the conversation at the committee meeting seemed to indicate that the expense would be something like $500, but that is not entered upon the vote, and the committee is committed to a very large expense. This is an expense which the city will have to meet some time. The committee's idea was to take away the stones and rubbish that the architect or builder had left around there. There are now employed about sixty-five men on the public grounds, and the superintendent seems to think that to place it in anything like good order will require most of those men till the last of the month, when he can reduce the number to forty. The bills contracted have not been paid. A contract of $800 for early bulbs, in anticipation of the early spring planting, has been made. As far as I can make out it will require $16,000 for the remainder of the current year. The alternative is to discharge all the men now employed. At the close of the season there will be a balance of $1200 for playgrounds, only some $800 of the $2000 having been spent; so that there is nominally to the credit of the committee about $4000, and they wish $16,000. If the City Council sees fit to appropriate $12,000, the department can be carried on till the 1st of January; if not, all the committee can do is to discharge the laborers, and they will have to lay their demands before the Committee on Claims. The actual extraordinary outlay has been almost entirely brought about by this work about the monument. While I am sorry that it is so, I don't know that the superintendent is wholly to blame, and it may be the fault of the committee in not being more explicit. I am exceedingly sorry for it, personally, and can only leave it in the hands of the Council.

Mr. Pratt—The appropriation to carry on the department was $65,000, and they have expended all of it within the first half of the financial year. With such an extraordinary condition of things some further explanation is due before we can vote intelligently upon this matter.

Mr. Thompson called attention to and read the latter part of the sixteenth joint rule:

"Whenever the amounts designated and appropriated as aforesaid have been expended, and an additional sum is required, or whenever the estimates for the completion of any object, or for any purpose, exceed the appropriation specially made therefor, or whenever an expenditure is required for an object or a purpose not contemplated at the time the appropriation was made, the committee, board or officer having charge thereof shall furnish to the City Council a detailed statement, in print, of the expenditures already made, and the necessity for an additional appropriation; and no contract shall be made, nor expenditure authorized in either case, unless provision for the same shall be made by special transfer from some of the appropriations contained in the general appropriation bill, or by loan."

Mr. Thompson raised the point that under the rule the appropriation could not be made until the committee report in print.

Mr. Howes said he had raised that point in committee and had been informed that it was never done, and was therefore not in a position to oppose the report that was made. The expenditures for the department are always in the first six months of the fiscal year, and probably only $10,000 or $12,000 will be required to carry the department through after November 1. When the committee first met, the appropriations were brought in and I understood the superintendent to say, when some one objected to the largeness of the bills, it was only for a few months, and as soon as we go through that it would come down to a small item, and that the bills are not large at the end of the year. I acted on that belief until the monthly bill came in, which nearly exhausted the appropriation. I think more money has been spent for labor than should have been. It was probably an oversight of this committee. So far as the members on the part of the Council are concerned, we were all new, and were obliged to depend upon the superior knowledge of those who had been there before.

Mr. Thompson—If it has not been the practice to comply with the rules, it is time to make a commencement. By the gentleman's own showing, $9000 were spent around the Soldiers' Monument that had not been authorized. I think the City Government are entitled to the details of those expenditures. This Common has been one of the things in the City Government that needs investigating, and now is a good opportunity to get an insight into the inwardness of making this report; and if the committee don't want to do it, I will take the responsibility of offering an order directing them to do so.

Mr. Crocker—It seems to me the proper way is to lay this matter on the table till the committee give us the information. It may be advisable to know how $9000 have been spent in grading the top of that hill, which seems unaccountable. We should like to know the number of loads of dirt, which the engineer could tell us. The gentleman from Ward 21 don't put the case strong enough; they have spent $5000 in addition to their appropriation. Of course, circumstances may be such that it is perfectly excusable; but it is extraordinary upon the face of it, and I think we ought to have more information. I move to lay the reconsideration on the table.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24 raised the point that under joint rule 16 the matter could not be properly before the Council until the committee report in print.

The President ruled the point not well taken, the Council having already passed on the main question.

The motion to table was lost by a division—19 for, 32 against.

Mr. Pope of Ward 14—Gentlemen will allow that in taking care of the Common and squares we are obliged to employ a large number of men whom we are compelled to take by the solicitations of members of the City Council. The work can only be done in the summer, and it is necessary to spend the money in that time. The appropriation was figured as low as possible, and the Committee on Auditor's Estimates reduced it $5000. It was then stated in committee that we could not get along with that sum of money. In making up the estimates we believed that the wages of the laborers would be reduced to $1.50 a day, and we find that we have had to pay off some $8000 more. The Paving Committee did not reduce the pay of the laborers, and the Committee on Common did not feel obliged to. We have money enough on hand to pay what has been contracted for. The only point is, shall we discharge every man and stop at once. By doing so, the plants in the Public Garden will be ruined, and the city will lose a great deal more than is called for. The committee received a communication from the Monument Committee asking that something be done around the monument. I made a motion for an additional appropriation of $2500, and after some discussion the opinion was expressed that three or four hundred dollars would be sufficient. If we had had any idea it would cost $8000 or $9000, I think the majority of the committee would have come before the Council. On the statement that it would not cost more than three or four hundred dollars, the superintendent was authorized to go on and do the work. No one was more surprised at the expense than I was. I made the remark several times that they were doing considerable, but I had no idea it was coming to such a sum of money as that. If the responsibility is placed upon the committee I am willing to take my share of it. I don't understand why that was done to such an extent. I don't know where the instructions came from, unless the vote recorded in the book is taken as instruction to go on. The vote was for the superintendent to go on and grade around the monument. The debt has been contracted, and, as the chairman said, if it is not done this year it has got to be done next year. If the Council lays the matter on the table the committee can discharge every man, and the city's property will go to ruin. It is for this Council to consider whether it is good policy to leave it in that way. We have got into the "box" some way, and I suppose the bill has got to be paid. I don't think any member of the committee had any idea any more expense was to be incurred around the monument than $500.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17 said the question of the wages of laborers was raised last year by this committee, and they were exactly in the same predicament as now, but a little later in the season, they having expended a little more than the appropriation. When the appropriation came before the Committee on Auditor's estimates the chairman stated then and there that they would be compelled to pay $1.75 to the laborers. I think members of the committee will bear me out in this statement. But they have gone on, regardless of the direction of the Council and exceeded the appropriation. I am willing to pass an appropriation for grading around the monument, but there is one of six or seven thousand more asked for, and until an exhibit is made, I think the Council ought to decline to grant this appropriation.

Mr. Pratt—The gentlemen say they have spent eight or nine thousand dollars in grading around the monument. There must have been a great quantity of sand or gravel put on that hill to cost seven thousand dollars. The largest number employed on the Common and squares is sixty-five, and the items given are entirely insufficient for the results to satisfy me so that I can vote intelligently tonight.

Mr. Howes—The number varies according to the time. Sometimes a rain storm requires fifteen or twenty men to be put on. I think the average has been over one hundred.

Mr. Pope of Ward 14—The statement of wages I gave was exactly as given to me by the superintendent and the chairman of the committee.

Mr. Spenceley—I think we ought to know more. If the estimate was $500 and the cost $9000, there must be a great leakage somewhere. I do not believe any head of a department ought to put men to work on account of any pressure, if he does not want them. If this money has been spent in this manner it ought to be inquired into.

On motion of Mr. Thompson the main question was ordered.

On motion of Mr. Thompson the yeas and nays were ordered and the reconsideration prevailed—yeas 41, nays 21:

Yeas—Messrs. Brintnall, Brown, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Cox, Cross, Day, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Howes, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, McDonald, McGaragle, Nugent, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Pearl, Perham, Pope, J. B. Richardson, Roach, Ruffin, Sampson, Shepard, Sibley, Sardon, Spenceley, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster, G. B. Webster, Wilbur—41.

Nays—Messrs. Barnard, Beeching, Blodgett, Coe, Crocker, Danforth, Fagan, Felt, Ham, Morrill, Mowry, J. H. Pierce, Pratt, M. W. Richardson, Roberts, Stone, Thompson, Thorndike, Wolcott—19.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Barry, Blanchard, Hibbard, Hiscock, Loughlin, McClusky, Mullaue, O. H. Pierce, Reed, Sonther, Upham—11.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24 renewed his point that the matter was not properly before the Council.

The President ruled the point well taken.

Mr. Howes said he should have to ask a suspension of the rule.

The President said that required joint action.

Mr. Crocker moved that the order be referred back to the committee, with instructions to report in accordance with the 16th joint rule a detailed statement in print of the expenditures already made by the committee, and of the necessity for an additional appropriation.

The President ruled the motion out of order, in accordance with his previous decision.

PETITION PRESENTED.

Petition of J. W. Waters, for compensation for damages for injuries received by alleged defect in Washington street. Referred to Joint Committee on Claims. Sent up.

CLAIMS.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17 submitted reports from the Joint Committee on Claims of leave to withdraw on petitions of J. H. Marshall to be paid for damage to his wagon by a projecting tree on Meridian street; and of James Kimmet, to be compensated for personal injuries caused by an alleged defect in West Springfield street. Severally accepted. Sent up.

SURVEY AND INSPECTION OF BUILDINGS.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3 submitted the following from the Joint Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings:

Report and order for permit to John H. Walsh to enlarge a wooden building on Cambridge street, Ward 5.

In reply to Mr. Thompson Mr. Kelley explained that it was an L, and some distance from any other building. The order was read twice and passed. Sent up.

Report that no action is necessary on petition of W. B. Quigley for removal of Assistant Inspector Sweat, the matter being in the hands of the Chief Inspector and the Mayor. Accepted. Sent up.

Report and order for permit to erect wooden building by A. T. Stearns in rear of Taylor street, Ward 24.

In reply to Mr. Thompson, Mr. Kelley said the house is distant from any other. The order was passed. Sent up.

Report that no action is necessary on petition of Mrs. Wilhelmina Brown for leave to make alterations in building on Dix place. Accepted. Sent up.

PROPOSED REMOVAL OF SUPERINTENDENT OF COMMON, ETC.

Mr. Thompson offered, and at the same time moved its reference to a joint special committee of five members of the Council, with such as the Aldermen may join, an order—That the Superintendent of Common and Squares be and he hereby is removed.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—What for? Where are you going to take him to?

Mr. Thompson—The ordinance provides that he may be removed at the pleasure of the City Council, and an order of this kind would express the sense of the City Council. [Mr. Thompson read the ordinance referred to.]

Mr. Howes—I should think this matter had gone far enough to await a report of the Committee on Common; after which I should think it would be time to make an investigation, if the report is not satisfactory.

Mr. Thompson—It is a proper matter to investigate, after the statements of two members of the committee. We find that in consultation with the committee the expense of grading around the monument would be $500, and now it is $9000. If that is not sufficient ground for ordering an investigation I don't know what is. I put the order in that form because I do not care to go into an investigation of the committee.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—This is one of the most outrageous orders I ever knew presented here. The superintendent is to be removed because he did his duty. He graded the ground around the monument under a vote passed by the committee without any limit; and now a faithful officer is to be removed because he did his duty. It is an outrage, and ought not to be tolerated by this Council for one moment. I move it be indefinitely postponed.

The President said the question was to refer to a special committee, and the motion to postpone was not in order.

Mr. Wilbur moved to lay on the table.

Mr. Crocker thought Mr. Howes's idea of investigation was very curious. It would be absurd to wait for the report of the committee. This is to investigate whether the superintendent did his duty or not.

Mr. Howes said the investigation depends a great deal on the initiatory order. He would vote for an order to investigate the expenditures, but he would vote against this one.

Mr. Thompson again explained his reason for framing the order as he did, and was called to order by Mr. Flynn of Ward 3, who raised the point that he was not debating the question at issue.

The order was laid on the table.

INVESTIGATION OF COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC GROUNDS.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3 offered an order—That a special committee be appointed, consisting of five members from this branch, with such as the Aldermen may join, to investigate and report whether or not any neglect of duty has occurred in the Department of Common and Squares. If so, who is responsible therefor, and what measures should be taken to prevent similar occurrences hereafter.

Mr. Webster said this would call for an impartial investigation. He voted to lay the other order on the table, because he did not wish to prejudice any man before investigation.

Mr. Howes said he would vote for the order, and if the Council desired to have the case investigated, he was perfectly willing.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3 moved to lay on the table until the Committee on Common reported.

Mr. Webster said the quicker this was disposed of the better.

Mr. Kelley did not think Mr. Galvin wholly to blame; he went according to the orders of the committee.

Mr. Spenceley thought an investigation due to the superintendent, that this matter be cleared up and the blame rest where it belonged.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10 thought they were groping in the dark, and favored the investigation to bring out the facts.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 said it was due to Mr. Galvin to have the investigation.

Mr. Smardon of Ward 10, as a member of the committee, hoped the order would pass.

Mr. Pope of Ward 19 said he would be glad to have all the facts brought out by an investigating committee. If there is any blame he wanted it placed where it belongs.

The motion to table was lost and the order was passed.

Messrs. Ruffin of Ward 9, Wilbur of Ward 20, Brown of Ward 23, Burke of Ward 2, and Vose of Ward 24, were appointed on said committee. Sent up.

DUTIES OF CITY OFFICERS.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19 offered an order—That the Committee on Ordinances be requested to report on the order offered May 16, 1877, in relation to the expediency of offering an ordinance requiring all city officers to devote their time to the city, and not actively to other business. Also an order to amend an ordinance in relation to duties of Fire Commissioners, offered June 7.

Mr. Spenceley said this matter had been in the hands of the committee a long time, and the chairman of the committee don't know anything about it.

Mr. Thompson said the matter had been referred to him as one of a sub-committee, and the proof sheets of a report were in his hands for revision.

Mr. McGaragle moved to amend so that the Committee on Fire Department be requested to report in regard to uniforms of Fire Commissioners.

Mr. Spenceley hoped that would be done.

Mr. Ruffin said it was an important matter, and has caused considerable discussion. In the city solicitor's department extra attorneys are employed, while the salaried officers are attending to their private business.

Mr. Clarke said he understood more money was spent for outside legal assistance than is paid for the Law Department.

Mr. Richardson understood that the committee had decided on their report, and he supposed it had been reported.

On motion of Mr. Thompson the matter was laid on the table.

RELOCATION OF STREETS.

Mr. Felt of Ward 18 offered an order—That his Honor the Mayor be requested to petition the Legislature at its next session for an act authorizing the city of Boston, by its constituted authority, to relocate streets whenever it is deemed expedient to do so, after giving the same notice and by the same methods that are now employed in the laying out and widening of streets.

Mr. Felt explained that great difficulty is experienced in relocating streets in the outlying districts, and this was to simplify the matter.

The order was read twice and passed. Sent up.

LABORERS ON PUBLIC GROUNDS.

Mr. Day of Ward 4 offered an order—That the Committee on Common and Squares be requested to continue in their employ such laborers, not exceeding sixty-five, as may be necessary to keep the Common and squares in order until the question of additional appropriation for that department is disposed of by the City Council.

Mr. Thompson said this was an appropriation, and required a two-thirds vote to suspend the rule. He raised the point that it could not be considered.

The President ruled that it was only a request.

Mr. Pratt moved to limit the number employed to sixty-five.

Mr. Thompson called attention to the joint rule, and urged that this was an additional appropriation. He moved that the men be retained as long as the present appropriation lasts.

Mr. Howes and Mr. Pope both hoped the word "requested" would be changed to "directed," as they would not feel authorized to vote to continue the men under a request.

Mr. Thompson's amendment was rejected.

On motion of Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 the main question was ordered. The order was passed to a second reading—32 for, 12 against.

Mr. Thompson moved to limit the time to a period not exceeding twenty days. Lost.

Mr. Pratt's amendment to limit the number of men to sixty-five was adopted.

The order as amended was passed. Sent up.

VISIT TO COMMERCIAL STREET.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22 offered an order—That the Common Council visit the proposed widening of Commercial street in a body, on some day to be arranged by the City Messenger, previous to the next meeting of the Council.

Mr. Thompson moved to amend by adding, "except that no expense to the city be incurred thereby."

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10 doubted the expediency of the order, and thought that as the place was near, members could go alone or in small companies and get more information.

Mr. Clarke advocated the visit as a means of getting information.

Mr. Thompson's amendment was adopted and the order as amended passed.

SALARIES OF LICENSE COMMISSIONERS.

Mr. Sampson moved to reconsider the vote whereby the Council rejected the order to increase salary of License Commissioners, hoping it would not prevail.

Mr. Flynn moved to lay the motion to reconsider on the table.

Declared carried. Mr. Sampson doubted the vote, and the Council divided. Mr. Spenceley moved that the doubt be solved by the yeas and nays.

Adjourned on motion of Mr. Fraser of Ward 6.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen,

OCTOBER 15, 1877.

Regular meeting at four o'clock P. M., his honor the Mayor presiding.

JURORS DRAWN.

Forty Traverse Jurors were drawn for the September term of the Supreme Judicial Court.

EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENTS.

Undertaker—Charles E. Colbert. Confirmed.
Police Officer—John A. Furdy. Referred to Committee on Police.

Police Officers Without Pay—Justin H. Smith, F. W. Brazier. Severally confirmed.

Inspector of Elections in Ward 16—Edgar W. Washburn, vice Francis M. Smith, who declines to serve. Confirmed.

PETITIONS REFERRED.

To the Committee on Paving. James Prendergast et al., that River street, Ward 9, be graded and put in order for public travel; George A. Kirtledge et al., for street crossings at 76-82 Friend street, and at 44-46 Washington street; Metropolitan Railroad Company, for an additional track in Battery street; R. M. Pulsifer & Co., for leave to place two lamp posts in sidewalk in front of the new Herald building; Christopher J. Spenceley et al., that West Walnut park be graded and put in order, also that edgestones be set, etc.

Petitions for leave to move two wooden buildings, by John Quirk, from Northampton street to Swett street.

John Corcoran, for conveyance of land on corner of Fellows street and Colony place.

Petitions for edgestones in front of estates of James Quinn, A street, corner First; James E. Bowe, on G street; for brick sidewalks in front of estate of John Carew, 60 and 62 H street.

To the Committee on Common on the part of the Board. T. C. & C. F. Newcomb et al., for the removal of a tree on Washington street at the corner of Newcomb court.

To the Committee on Health on the part of the Board. Petitions for leave to occupy stables: Charles Illegun, old shed, one cow and calf, on Coffee court; Metropolitan Railroad Company, car house for stable for seventy-five horses, on corner of School and Washington streets, West Roxbury; Michael J. Ford, new wooden, two horses, Newman street; Catharina Gramer, new wooden, one horse, Dorchester avenue; Hull & Simpson, new wooden, three horses, 5 Willow court; Eliza G. Mulvey, old wooden, one cow and one horse, 88 Heath street; Timothy Walsh, stable for two horses in rear of 36 Northampton street.

To the Committee on Licenses. Frederic A. Wilkins, for license as auctioneer at 39 Old State House. Herman Cohen, for license as auctioneer at 175 Hanover street.

To the Joint Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings. Highland-street Methodist Church, for leave to enlarge a wooden building on Warren street, Ward 21; Maverick Oil Company for leave to erect a wooden building on their wharf on Chelsea street, Ward 1.

To the Committee on Sewers. C. S. Johnson, against the proposed extension of a sewer in Parker street, Charlestown.

To the Committee on Lamps. Charles Dolan et al., for street lamps in Walden street, Ward 22; Hugh Timmins et al., that Arlington avenue, Charlestown, be lighted; William H. Slocum et al., for additional street lamps in Pond street, West Roxbury.

To the Joint Committee on Claims. Sophia N. French, to be paid for personal injuries caused by a sled on G street, near Eighth street.

To the Joint Committee on Public Lands. Thomas W. Carter, that his lease of wharf on City Hospital estate be cancelled.

HEARINGS ON ORDERS OF NOTICE.

Sewers. On expediency of building sewers in Thomas street, West Roxbury. No objections. Recommitted to Committee on Paving.

CAMBRIDGE RAILROAD IN BRIGHTON.

On proposed change of location of track of the Cambridge Railroad from the side to the centre of the roadway of Washington street, Brighton, between Foster street and Oak square.

Mr. Emery, president of the Cambridge Railroad, appeared to object; the track had been there many years, had never paid, the passengers averaging twenty-seven daily in March; the expense of operating and the expense of making the change would be $6000 or $7000, for which there would be no remuneration. The company would make any arrangement, if this large expense could be avoided.

No one else appeared to object, and the matter was recommitted to the Paving Committee.

PETITION FOR ABATEMENT OF TAXES.

A petition was received from William S. Keith for abatement of certain assessments of taxes on his real estate, alleged to be illegal.

Alderman Wilder explained that the land had been assessed by the Dedham authorities and also by the city, and it was believed that the assessment by the latter was wrong; that, because of a small piece having been sold by the city for taxes, the owner was unable to give a good title for it. On his motion, the matter was referred to the Committee on Claims. Sent down.

EAST BOSTON FERRIES.

The Mayor read the following:

To the Honorable the City Council: Gentlemen—Having received from the City Solicitor a communication informing me that legal proceedings had been instituted for the purpose of testing the validity of the action of the city in abolishing tolls on the East Boston ferries, and having been informed by the Solicitor that provision should be made for the defence of the city in the action (if the same was to be defended), as, for reasons set forth in the communication, it was not proper for him to appear in the matter, I solicited for the Committee on Claims, agreeably to the provisions of city ordinance adopted Feb. 13, 1875, authority to procure additional legal assistance, deeming the present case an emergency contemplated by the ordinance. They declined giving such authority. It has therefore seemed to me proper to lay the matter before you for such action in the premises as may seem to you necessary, being myself of the opinion that a question of such grave importance, involving as it does principles of law affecting the chartered rights of the city and the interests of so many of its inhabitants, should be fully considered.

I append hereto the communication of the City Solicitor. Very respectfully,

FREDERIC O. PRINCE, Mayor.

CITY SOLICITOR'S OFFICE,
2 PEMBERTON SQUARE,
BOSTON, Oct. 15, 1877.

My Dear Sir—Proceedings in the name of the Attorney General have been commenced in the Supreme Judicial Court to resist the action of the City Government declaring the East Boston ferries free from tolls after the first day of January next, for the alleged reason that such action is illegal.

If the action of the City Government is to be defended, some provisions must be made for conducting the defence. It will be readily seen, that having given an opinion, at your request, upon the question, and that opinion being adverse to the action of the City Government, and having been published, it would be improper for me to act as the counsel of the city in the controversy.

Very truly yours,

J. P. HEALY.

Hon. F. O. Prince, Mayor.

Alderman Thompson moved the reference to the Committee on Claims.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The committee has already considered that matter and refused to allow additional counsel. It would be no use to refer it to them again.

Alderman O'Brien—There was only one vote for allowing additional counsel.

Alderman Thompson—I was not aware the committee had considered, and withdraw the motion.

Alderman O'Brien—The committee are against granting assistance in this matter; but I think the action of the City Council ought to be defended, and it is but justice to engage counsel.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Unless the ordinance is changed there is no other committee to whom it can be referred. The Mayor recommends and the committee approve the employment of additional counsel. They are of opinion that there has been too much employment of additional counsel, and that this is a good place to put a stop to it. I think some members of the City Council are of opinion that it would be money saved to pay eight or ten thousand dollars a year to a lawyer as assistant City Solicitor. If members knew the amount paid for legal counsel outside of the City Solicitor's office, I think they would be surprised.

Alderman Clark—This is a case that the people can take care of. The people of East Boston and the mercantile community will be so largely benefited that they can afford to employ counsel. I can see no disposition to be made of the communication but to place it upon file. I was not aware that so large an amount had been paid for legal assistance except in regard to water damages, which I believe to have been judicious.

On motion of Alderman Clark, the communication was ordered placed on file.

Notices were received of petitions of John A. Lowell et al. and of the Attorney General for the Commonwealth to the Supreme Judicial Court for writ of mandamus to prevent the abolition of tolls on East Boston ferries. Referred, on motion of Alderman Thompson, to City Solicitor's Department.

Sent down.

PAPERS FROM THE COMMON COUNCIL.

Petitions were referred in concurrence.

Report of "leave to withdraw" on petition of J. H. Marshall to be paid for injuries to his wagon by an obstruction on Meridian street. Accepted in concurrence.

Report of "leave to withdraw" on petition of James Kimmett to be paid for personal injuries on West Springfield street. Accepted in concurrence.

Report, "no action necessary," on petition of Mrs. W. Brown for leave to make alterations in her house on Dix place. Accepted in concurrence.

Report by Committee on Survey, etc., of Buildings, that the subject of removal of an Assistant Inspector of Buildings rests with the Mayor. Accepted in concurrence.

Reports and orders to allow John H. Walsh to erect a wooden building exceeding the legal dimensions, on Cambridge street, Ward 25; also to allow A. T. Stearns to erect a similar building in rear of Taylor street, Ward 24. Orders read twice and passed in concurrence.

Order for Mayor to petition the Legislature for an act to authorize the city of Boston to re-locate streets with the same length of previous notice as is required when streets are newly laid out or widened. Passed in concurrence.

Passage of ordinance to amend an ordinance in relation to Faneuil Hall Market, by striking out section 14. Concurred.

COMMON AND PUBLIC GROUNDS.

An order came up requesting the Committee on Common, etc., to continue in employment a number of laborers not exceeding sixty-five, to keep the public grounds in order.

Alderman Clark—I hope the Board will not concur in the passage of this order. It is absolutely impossible to continue the work any longer until we have money to pay the men with, and by a vote of the committee all the men were discharged except three, who are necessary to take care of the tools and other necessary things about the public grounds. It would be useless to pass the order, for we have no money to pay the men with. I therefore hope the Board will non-concur.

The Board refused to concur in the passage of the order.

An order came down appointing a committee—Messrs. Ruffin, Wilbur, Brown, Burke and Vose to be joined—to inquire and report whether any neglect of duty has occurred in the department of Common and Squares, and who is responsible therefor.

Alderman Clark—Upon that order I hope the Board of Aldermen will concur, and that a committee will be appointed to investigate the action of the committee and the superintendent in the management of the Common and squares during the present year, and make a thorough investigation.

The Board concurred, and Aldermen O'Brien, Viles and Dunbar were appointed on said committee.

WINES, ETC., AT CITY ENTERTAINMENTS.

A resolve came up that no wines, cigars or lager or mineral water should be provided at entertainments, to be paid for out of the city treasury.

Alderman Robinson offered the following amendment:

"Unless the same be of good quality, for it has been amply demonstrated by good chemists and gentlemen of the medical profession that bad liquors and improper beverages are very injurious to health and detrimental to good judgment, and very frequently occasion trouble in social relations."

Alderman Fitzgerald said a Councilman moved a reconsideration of the resolve, and only withdrew it today on condition that a certain amendment would be offered, which the Alderman did, as follows:

"Also that no carriage be allowed at the city's expense to any member of the City Council after the adjournments of either branch."

Alderman Robinson's amendment was rejected—3 for, 9 against.

Alderman Robinson moved to substitute "Common Council" for "City Council." Lost.

Alderman Fitzgerald's amendment was adopted, and the order as amended passed. Sent down.

The Alderman hoped the resolve would pass, only it was a pity it did not come earlier in the year. As the members of the Council—especially those who are supposed to take a glass of lager, for they all voted for it—had acted so generously, the Board ought to follow their example.

Alderman O'Brien thought the order imperfect, as it did not exclude cigarettes.

SUPERINTENDENT OF NORTH SCALES.

The quarterly report of Superintendent of North Scales for Sept. 1 was, Receipts for July, $130.05; expenses, $17.50; August receipts, $159.59; expenses, $6.50; September receipts, $167.00; expenses, $66.80. Forty per cent. of receipts, less expenses, were paid into the treasury. Sent down.

BONDS APPROVED.

The bonds of William H. McIntosh and fifteen others being presented duly certified were approved by the Board.

LICENSES.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted reports from the Committee on Licenses as follows:

Amusement Licenses Granted—J. V. Morrison et al., to give a baby show at Horticultural Hall; S. M. Landis, to exhibit dramatic performances at Beethoven Hall.

Billiard License Granted—Anthony F. Clark, 107 Cambridge street; Frank T. Power, 2 Bow street, Charlestown; Louis Shamb, 46 Hanover street.

Intelligence Office Licensed—Mrs. Anna Wright, 2622 Washington street; Agnes B. Kennedy, 767 Washington street; M. A. Cassidy, Piuckney and Joy streets; E. M. Nutt, 45 Sudbury street.

Hack License Granted—Daniel Cullaghan, 43 Devonshire street.

Victualler Licensed—W. H. Goss, 1141 Washington street.

Auctioneer Licensed—Charles W. Thompson, 176 Atlantic avenue.

Wagon Licenses Granted—M. Donovan, 72 A street; John J. Fox, Springfield street, corner Washington.

Minors' Applications Granted—Three newsboys, one boot-black.

Severally accepted.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted the following from the Joint Committee on Public Buildings:

East Boston High School. The Committee on Public Buildings respectfully represent that, by an order of the City Council passed Oct. 9, they were directed to fit up the old Lyman Schoolhouse for a branch high school at an expense of $2000, to be charged to the appropriation for Schoolhouses, Public Buildings. Before beginning the work they would request the City Council to provide the $2000, as, in their judgment the regular appropriation will not be sufficient for this, together with the other extraordinary demands that have thus far been made upon it. The appropriation for Schoolhouses, Public Buildings for the financial year was $133,000, a decrease of $45,000 from the year previous. The balance of the appropriation unexpended Oct. 1, was $63,037.64. Extraordinary demands upon the appropriation, not estimated for, have been made by orders of the City Council since the financial year commenced, namely, that for repairs, alterations and heating apparatus for the Adams Schoolhouse, at a cost of $15,000; heating apparatus for the Brimmer Schoolhouse, cost $5000,—making a total of $20,000 yet to be paid from the unexpended balance of the appropriation, leaving the sum remaining of $43,037.64. This amount will hardly be sufficient to meet the ordinary demands in the way of repairs and furnishing for schoolhouses for the remaining six months of the financial year. Your committee therefore feel justified in requesting that the City Council furnish the means for carrying on this work. Referred to Committee on Finance.

Alderman Fitzgerald said the committee did not want to undertake this work without an additional appropriation, and on his motion the report was referred to the Finance Committee. Sent down.

Lecture Room for College of Pharmacy. The Committee on Public Buildings, to whom was referred the accompanying petition from the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy for the use of the room in the Old Franklin Schoolhouse, beg leave to report, That a similar request was received from said society a year since, and the city gave them the use of rooms in the Mayhew Schoolhouse. In the early spring of the present year the house was burned, and since that time they have been without a place for school and lecture purposes. In the third story of the Old Franklin Schoolhouse there is a room unoccupied, and your committee are favorable to granting the use of it to said College of Pharmacy, they assuming all expenses attendant upon its occupancy. They recommend the passage of an order—That the Committee on Public Buildings be authorized to grant the use of a room in the third story of the old Franklin Schoolhouse to the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy, the same to be used for school and lecture purposes, and upon such terms and conditions and for such time as they may deem expedient; provided, however, that the city shall have the right to resume the occupancy of said room at any time. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

Offices to be Hired. Ordered, That the Committee on Public Buildings be authorized to hire for a term of five years from Nov. 1, 1877, Rooms 4, 5, 6 and 7, in building numbered 2 Pemberton square, at an annual rental of fifteen hundred dollars; the expense to be charged to the appropriation for Public Buildings. Read twice and passed. Sent down for concurrence.

Wardroom in Ward 24. The Committee on Public Buildings, to whom was referred the accompanying petition from Samuel Downer and 470 others that the wardroom for Ward 24 be removed to Field's Corner; also the order to provide a wardroom for Ward 24 more centrally situated than the present one,—beg leave to report, recommending the Police Station House No. 11, Field's Corner, as a wardroom for Ward 24. They recommend the passage of an order—That, until otherwise ordered, the wardroom of Ward 24 be located in Police Station House No. 11, Field's Corner.

Alderman Robinson said this was not necessary at present. The police station was not a fit place for a wardroom, and would only accommodate a few.

Alderman Fitzgerald said it was only as a means of temporary relief until a more convenient place could be obtained.

Alderman Robinson said it made no difference to him individually. On his motion the matter was laid on the table.

UNLICENSED DOGS.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following:

The Committee on Police respectfully represent that the warrant under which unlicensed dogs have been killed has expired by limitation, and that all proceedings must be stayed until further action by this Board. It will be remembered that early in the summer the committee were authorized to make arrangements for capturing dogs found running at large, and for killing all that were not reclaimed by their owners, after a certain length of time. Upon examining the statutes, however, it was found that such a course was not authorized by law. It was, therefore, thought advisable to make special efforts to destroy unlicensed dogs, under authority of section 7, chapter 130, acts of 1867. By this act the Mayor is required, within ten days from the 1st day of July, to issue a warrant to one or more police officers or constables, directing them to kill or cause to be killed all unlicensed dogs. With the concurrence of his Honor the Mayor, who actively cooperated with the committee in the matter, an officer was specially appointed to perform the work, and he commenced his duties on the 24th of July.

The warrant expired Oct. 1, and up to that time 1016 dogs had been killed, and forty-nine keepers of unlicensed dogs prosecuted. The receipts for dog licenses during that period amounted to $2806. The dogs killed were mostly worthless animals, and their destruction removes a nuisance as well as a source of danger to the public. It is believed that the work has been performed better than ever before, and that public opinion has sustained the manner in which the law has been enforced.

The committee are, therefore, of the opinion that measures should be adopted for the continuance of the work. Notwithstanding the efforts that have been made, it has been impossible to capture all unlicensed dogs, within the limited time covered by the warrant, and it is believed if operations are suspended, many dogs which have been confined for the purpose of ending the vigilance of the officers will again be allowed to go at large.

Under provisions of chapter 167, Acts of 1877, the Mayor and Aldermen are authorized to order that any or all dogs shall be restrained from running at large during such time as shall be specified in said order, and that after publication of such order the said Mayor and Aldermen may issue a warrant to one or more police officers, who shall, after twenty-four hours, kill all dogs found running at large contrary to the terms of said order.

The committee append hereto an order covering the requirements of the statute, and respectfully recommend the passage of the same. If the order is adopted the committee propose to submit a warrant to carry the warrant into effect.

Ordered, That until otherwise ordered all unlicensed dogs be restrained from running at large within the limits of the city of Boston.

Read twice and passed.

PAVING REPORTS AND ORDERS.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Paving:

Order to pay William Dolan $200 for grade damages on Ashland street, West Roxbury. Read twice and passed.

Report recommending to Committee on Lamps so much of petition of Peter Fay and others as relates to Avon place, Roxbury. Accepted.

Ordered, That the sidewalk assessment of $21.81 against the estate of Josiah S. and Naomi G. Potter on London street, East Boston, be and the same is hereby abated, they being unable to pay the same. Read twice and passed.

Order to open and grade Dix street from Dorchester avenue to Adams street. Read twice and passed.

Report that petition of Andrew McDermott et al. for a crosswalk on Dudley street at Hampden street be granted. Accepted.

Report and order to grant permission to Joshua M. Sears to lay an iron pipe from Sears Building to the new building No. 21-25 Court street, on the usual conditions. Order read twice and passed.

Ordered, That the sum of $59 assessed John J. Downey for edgelines and sidewalk on Princeton street be and the same hereby is abated, the lien being lost by alienation. Read twice and passed.

Reports that leave be granted F. O. & J. T. Reed to move wooden building. Accepted.

Report in favor of granting petition of Solomon P. Stratton for a crosswalk across Canton street court. Accepted.

Ordered, That notice be and hereby is given to the owner of the estate on the southeasterly corner of Beach and Lincoln streets, that the area wall in front of said estate on Beach street is in a dilapidated condition, and is insufficient to support the sidewalk and roadway of said street, thereby endangering public travel on said street, and that said owner be and he is hereby directed to cause said area wall to be forthwith rebuilt in a good and substantial manner in accordance with the requirements of the city ordinances. Read twice and passed.

Ordered, That the Superintendent of Streets be authorized to close the sidewalk and roadway of said Beach street adjacent to said estate against public travel, until the area wall shall have been rebuilt. Read twice and passed.

CLAIMS.

Alderman O'Brien submitted a report from the Committee on Claims of leave to withdraw on the petition of Elizabeth Ann McGrath to be reimbursed sums paid for an estate sold for non-payment of taxes. Accepted. Sent down.

ARMORIES.

Alderman O'Brien, from the Committee on Armories, offered an order—That the Committee on Armories be authorized to expend a sum not exceeding $400 in fitting up and furnishing the armory of Company D, First Battalion of Cavalry,

M. V. M., at No. 2185 Washington street; said sum to be charged to the appropriation for Armories. Read twice and passed.

PUBLIC PARK LOAN.

Alderman O'Brien offered an order—That his Honor the Mayor be requested to petition the General Court at its next session for the passage of an act authorizing the city to borrow money for such time, not exceeding thirty years, as the City Council may determine, for the purchase and permanent improvement of land for park purposes.

Alderman O'Brien said it was fully understood that the city could make a thirty-year loan only for water and intercepting sewers, and if it is desirable to make park improvements it is desirable to make a thirty-year loan for the purpose.

Alderman Fitzgerald said there would be time enough after the next Government came in, if the sentiment of the community favored parks.

Alderman O'Brien said nothing would be lost by passing it now, and Alderman Fitzgerald replied that nothing would be gained. He had heard that parks are to be made an issue, and that the clans are gathering for the great fight.

The order was read twice and passed. Sent down.

HEALTH.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Health on the part of the Board:

Reports that leave be granted, on the usual conditions, to occupy stables by Charles N. Rowell, 69 Bower street, Ward 21; Mrs. M. C. Sargent, Bennington street; George Holmes, rear 549 East Seventh street. Severally accepted.

Report that leave be granted W. H. Baker, M. D., to establish a hospital for women at 60 East Springfield street. Accepted.

STREET DAMAGES.

Alderman Clark submitted the following from the Committee on Streets on the part of the Board:

Orders to pay for land taken and damages occasioned by laying out and widening streets, as follows: Almira C. Train, $394, widening Adams street; David H. Blaney, $627.75, laying out of Shelby street; Jonathan I. Rowditch, $1500, laying out of Shelby street; East Boston Company, $1250, laying out of Shelby street; heirs of Patrick H. McGrath, $2000, laying out of Shelby street; James W. Gerrard and J. A. Platt, trustees, $1659.59, laying out Shelby street. Severally read twice and passed.

FANEUIL HALL.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted a report from the Committee on Faneuil Hall in favor of granting the use of said hall to John A. Douglass et al. for a political meeting on Oct. 17. Accepted.

STEALING FLOWERS ON PUBLIC GARDEN.

Alderman Clark submitted a report from the Joint Committee on Common, etc., in favor of granting the petition of Nicholas W. Johnson to be paid the amount of a reward offered for the detection and arrest of persons stealing flowers on the Public Garden. Accepted. Sent down.

LAMP DEPARTMENT.

Alderman Thompson offered an order—That the Committee on Lamps be authorized to visit Providence and New York on business connected with that department, at an expense not exceeding $200; to be charged to the appropriation for Lamps. Read twice and passed.

TAXES ASSUMED.

Alderman Thompson offered an order—That the city assume the taxes for the current year on the parcel of land situated on Cambridge street, near Harvard avenue, Brighton, and containing twenty-two thousand square feet, more or less, bought of the persons represented by Cyrus Dupee as a site for a grammar schoolhouse in Brighton, the amount of said taxes being $68.12; to be charged to the appropriation for Grammar Schoolhouse, Brighton District.

Alderman Thompson explained that this was a part of the original agreement with Mr. Dupee.

The order was read twice and passed. Sent down.

SEWERS.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Sewers:

Reports and orders of notice for hearing on Monday next on expediency of constructing sewers in Northampton street, west of Columbus avenue; in Summit street, Roxbury; in Parker street, Charlestown. Orders severally passed.

Order of notice of intention to take land of Boston Wharf Company for sewer purposes, and for hearing thereon on Monday, Oct. 29, at 4 o'clock P. M. Passed.

Ordered, That $100 be abated from the assessment levied upon William Whitney's heirs for a sewer in Chestnut street on account of land damages; that $62.42 be abated from the assessment levied upon Margaret Sahenger for a sewer in Chestnut street; that $84.67 be abated from the assessment levied upon Bernard Norton for a sewer in Dorchester Brook Valley on account of over-estimate of land. Read twice and passed.

Orders to build sewers in Washington street, southerly from Blue Hill avenue, 300 feet; in Ferry street; in Dudley street, Dorchester, between Hancock and Humphreys streets; in Thornton street, Roxbury, between Valentine and Ellis streets. Severally read twice and passed.

Reports that no action is necessary on petition of William Donaldson, for extension of sewer in Maywood street; that it is inexpedient to build a sewer in Linden street as asked for by George Glover et al.; that Thomas Hesham et al., petitioners for a sewer in Heath place, have leave to withdraw. Severally accepted.

HARBOR.

Alderman Gibson submitted a report from the Joint Committee on Harbor, That it is inexpedient to take action upon the expediency of dredging the front of wharves between Cragie's and Cambridgeport bridges. Accepted. Sent down.

WARRANT FOR STATE ELECTION.

Alderman Viles offered an order—That warrants be issued for the meetings of the legal voters of this city in their respective wards on Tuesday the sixth day of November next at eight o'clock A. M., then and there to give in their ballots for the following State officers: A Governor, a Lieutenant Governor, a Secretary, an Auditor, a Treasurer and Receiver General, and an Attorney General, and for the requisite number of councillors, senators and representatives to which this city is entitled; also for the following county officers, viz.: A Sheriff, a District Attorney, three Commissioners of Insolvency and a Register of Probate and Insolvency in the place of P. R. Guiney, deceased. All the foregoing to be voted for on one ballot. Also to give in another ballot, their vote Yes or No for the ratification or rejection of the article of amendment to the constitution of this State relative to certain officers of Harvard College, as adopted by the Legislature of 1876 and 1877, and recited in the fifty-second resolve of the General Court, approved April 26, 1877.

The polls to be kept open until 4½ o'clock P. M. Ordered, That notice be also given that the registration of voters for the purpose of said election will close on Tuesday, the 30th day of October, at twelve o'clock P. M.

Alderman Fitzgerald said there were many poor people who could ill afford to spare the time, and that an hour more would be a great convenience to them. On his motion the order was amended so that the polls should be opened at 7 A. M., and as amended the order was passed.

THE BLACKSTONE-SQUARE ACCIDENT.

Alderman Clark presented a petition from Joseph F. Paul to be heard before the Board before final action is taken upon the report of the committee on the subject of the Blackstone-square accident.

On motion of Alderman Clark the prayer of the petition was granted, and Mr. Paul, who was present, was given a hearing.

Mr. Paul came forward and introduced Mr. Nathan Morse, his counsel, who, he said, would state the case in his behalf.

Mr. Morse said he had examined the evidence and thought the committee were not justified in the report they made; that they had ignored the evidence of both Mr. Paul and Mr. Hayford. He found by the evidence that Mr. Hayford was spoken to by Mr. Nugent, a member of the committee, to see what he would put up the platforms for; but the committee did not ask Mr. Nugent a question in regard to this; nor of Mr. Hayford. Mr. Hayford went to Mr. Paul to see what the lumber would cost and to draw a plan of the platform to be submitted to the committee. Mr. Hayford went to Mr. Paul as an architect and friend; that everything Mr. Paul did was perfectly consistent with his position as an architect. If any architect had been consulted as Mr. Paul was, not a member of the Board would think of holding the architect responsible for the disaster, unless it was on account of a mistake in judgment in the sketch. Mr. Paul was asked to prepare a sketch for Mr. Hayford and did so; and it was carried to Williams Market to give it to Mr. Hayford. Mr. Hayford was not there, and if he had been there the committee would probably have never heard of Mr. Paul in the matter again. Mr. Paul went down town, came back, and found that Mr. Hayford had gone down to City Hall, whither Mr. Paul followed him, and, meeting Alderman Wilder, stated that he had a plan for Mr. Hayford. The Alderman called him into the committee room. Mr. Morse read from the testimony of Alderman Wilder to show that Mr. Paul said "seats constructed on that plan will cost $300." Mr. Paul did not offer to build them. Mr. Wilder was called out, and when he returned Mr. Paul had left. Mr. Morse had no doubt that the committee labored under the impression that Mr. Paul was the contracting party. Is that sufficient to charge Mr. Paul? It takes two to make a bargain. Can the committee contract with Mr. Paul and make him responsible for it without his consent?

Alderman Thompson did not like to hear Mr. Morse argue from a false basis. The committee had no impression whatever. They knew it was Mr. Paul, and the records show it. Nobody else was there or was mentioned to the committee. They knew nobody else. It was no impression at all; it was what they believed, without any impression.

Mr. Morse said he was proceeding precisely upon the evidence before the committee.

Alderman Thompson said Mr. Paul received notice by telegraph of the vote in relation to the addition, and the work was done by his orders.

Mr. Morse was at a loss to see how Mr. Paul could be held responsible for the vote of a committee passed in his absence. Suppose an architect had done the same thing, and the committee had passed such a vote in his absence; could he be held responsible? When that vote was passed, Mr. Nugent was in the committee room, and he had invited Mr. Hayford to figure on the job. That vote was passed and the clerk was directed to notify Mr. Paul that the job was his. Mr. Paul left his pocketbook on the clerk's desk and returned for it the next morning at half-past eight o'clock; hunted up the messenger, who opened the door; he did not inquire for Mr. Lee. He was hailed by Mr. Lee and asked what he wanted, and replied that he had left his pocketbook in the room and had been in to get it. Does that look as if he was anxious for the job? After the vote passed, Mr. Nugent went from the committee room to Mr. Hayford's and left word with the men that the job was his. Very early next morning Mr. Hayford told Mr. Paul he [Hayford] had the job. When Mr. Lee hailed Mr. Paul in City Hall and said he was to notify him, and Mr. Paul replied that he had heard of it, if Mr. Paul had made the application, would such have been the conversation? Down to that moment there is not the slightest evidence that Mr. Paul had the least idea that he thought the committee were contracting with him. After that, Mr. Paul acted consistently with the idea that he had nothing to do with it. Mr. Hayford employed his own men and furnished his own nails. Mr. Paul furnished nothing but the lumber, which Mr. Hayford procured of him. The lumber was counted out and charged to Mr. Hayford. Mr. Morse challenged the Board to follow Mr. Paul through the evidence and find one particle showing anything inconsistent with Mr. Paul's position as an architect and friend. The permission to construct the platform on Mr. Paul's wharf is no evidence that Mr. Paul was the contractor. But it is said that Mr. Paul contracted for the addition to the platform. Mr. Flynn and Mr. Lee went to the platform on Friday and found Mr. Hayford there. Mr. Paul and Mr. Hayford both say Mr. Paul had not been there that day, although Mr. Flynn or Mr. Lee said Mr. Hayford told them Mr. Paul had just left there. Mr. Hayford was told that they wanted to see Mr. Paul about enlarging the seats; Mr. Hayford went for Mr. Paul, and when they returned he and Mr. Hayford gave the figures. This was perfectly consistent with Mr. Paul's claim of being only the friend and adviser of Mr. Hayford. If an architect had been employed and had done what Mr. Paul did, would the Board say the architect was responsible? There is no evidence of a contract made at City Hall that would justify the committee in finding Mr. Paul responsible for a barrel of flour. Mr. Morse then reviewed parts of the report of the committee, reading extracts therefrom; arguing that there was no evidence that Mr. Paul "offered" to build the platform, and that he did not contract to do so. The telegram to Mr. Paul has no significance, unless the committee can show that Mr. Paul was actually the contractor. Mr. Morse thought it was perfectly inexplicable why Mr. Nugent was not asked as to whether he asked Mr. Hayford to figure on the job, and afterward notified him of the vote of the committee.

Alderman Clark in the chair.

Alderman Fitzgerald said the committee were a committee of investigation, and were not supposed to know anything about the secret dealings of Mr. Nugent with Mr. Hayford. Mr. Paul knew of these conversations, and had an opportunity to ask Mr. Nugent questions, but did not do so.

Mr. Morse said it could not be expected that Mr. Paul would conduct an examination as he [Mr. Fitzgerald], a lawyer, would. Mr. Nugent notified Mr. Hayford that he had the contract.

Alderman Fitzgerald read the following extract from Mr. Hayford's testimony:

Question—Do you know anything about this contract with the city for building this platform?

Answer—What Mr. Paul says about my going to him at one time and requesting him to figure the amount of lumber was true, up to the time he went to City Hall. I know nothing about the conversation he had with the committee, because I was not present. As he was coming down stairs I met him, and he told me that the committee had got the plan and were going to act upon it, and went away.

Q.—Is that all you know about it?

A.—Not all.

Q.—Well, state all.

A.—Then I think it was that night the gentleman of the committee who asked me to figure on the job, Mr. Nugent—

Q.—Asked you to figure on the job?

A.—Yes, sir. He left word with my men. I cannot tell what he said; at any rate, he left the impression that I had the job. He said that we had the job. I cannot tell exactly the words that he used. He left word with my men that the seats were ours or yours.

Q.—At Williams Market?

A.—Yes, sir. I went around to notify Mr. Paul. He said he had left his book down in the committee room; that he was going down after it, and he should probably hear something about it.

Q.—Did he say that he was going to build the seats?

A.—I cannot say how he worded it. I know he gave me the impression that he had got the job.

Q.—Well, which did he say?

A.—Well, he or I, I don't know which. I do not know how he worded it.

Mr. Morse said the evidence was stronger than he claimed. He claimed that Mr. Nugent's testimony that he was not present at any conversation with Mr. Paul could not be reconciled with that of Alderman Wilder.

Alderman O'Brien asked if Mr. Morse could reconcile the last two questions to Mr. Nugent (whether he knew any one else in the work but Mr. Paul, to which Mr. Nugent answered No,) and Mr. Morse said he could not; but Mr. Paul was not to be tried on the impression of the committee.

At the request of Alderman Thompson, Mr. Morse read Mr. Lee's testimony in regard to the conversation on the stairs, and said that Mr. Lee did not pretend to give the exact words, while Mr. Paul swears Mr. Lee said, "Have you heard of the action of the committee?" Mr. Paul replied "Yes," but he had heard that morning from Mr. Hayford that he [Mr. H.] had been awarded the contract. Either Mr. Paul's evidence must be accepted, or he stamped as a perjurer. Is he to be disbelieved when he gives the exact conversation, and when the clerk says he does not give it? Mr. Paul said he had heard of the action of the committee as told to Mr. Hayford by Mr. Nugent, one of the committee. If Mr. Nugent conveyed wrong information (that Mr. Hayford had the job) is Mr. Paul to be held responsible, when the mistake is made by one of the committee?

Alderman Thompson said the committee must have agreed with somebody to build the stands. Mr. Hayford's name was never mentioned until after the accident.

Mr. Morse said there was no evidence that Mr. Paul ever heard, before the accident, that the committee voted the contract to him. He next referred to Alderman Thompson's evidence, and denied that Alderman Thompson had any knowledge that Mr. Paul was the contractor; and there was no evidence such as courts of law recognize. In regard to the additional seats, if it is settled that Mr. Paul was the contractor for the stands, that he was the contractor for the addition followed as a matter of course; but if Mr. Paul was only the architect and adviser of Mr. Hayford, then the claim that he was the contractor for the addition falls to the ground. Mr. Morse claimed that the committee had made a mistake in taking the hearsay testimony of Mr. Shaw in regard to the change in the stand, and disregarded the direct testimony of Mr. Frye that he spoke to Mr. Hayford about the changes.

Alderman Thompson asked who the committee contracted with?

Mr. Morse again detailed the circumstances, as above given, to show that Mr. Paul was not the contractor, had never accepted the contract, and could not be responsible for it. The committee could not contract with Mr. Paul without his consent.

Alderman Thompson asked how Mr. Hayford, a man unknown to the committee, could have contracted with them without their consent.

Mr. Morse claimed that Mr. Hayford was known to and had been solicited to make the proposition by one member of the committee, Mr. Nugent. The committee supposed Mr. Paul came down to make a proposition to build the stands; but Mr. Paul swears he never had any such idea, and never went for that purpose. Mr. Paul is not responsible for all the inferences committees in City Hall can draw.

Alderman Thompson asked, if he was talking with Mr. Ranney, would it be right to infer that he was giving Mr. Morse's views.

Mr. Morse replied by citing an imaginary case of an architect showing a plan for a house.

Alderman Wilder asked Mr. Paul if at the time they had the conversation on the stairs, it were possible that he, as a member of the committee, could have conceived that Mr. Paul was there to represent anybody but himself, from anything that occurred between them.

Mr. Paul—It never entered into my mind at the time, but I can now see that you must have thought so. It was all confusion in the committee room.

Mr. Morse referred to Mr. Hayford's position as being one that he would like to get out; and if he was not the contractor, would he not have said so? He would have walked up with the boldness of a man with truth on his side, and with every inducement to tell it. If he was not the contractor, he would have sought the first opportunity to say so. His expression that he did not know whether he was the contractor or not is not the answer of a man who was not the contractor. The committee were in the same position that Mr. Frye was—under a wrong impression.

Alderman Thompson objected to the comparison, because they saw Mr. Paul in the committee room, but Mr. Frye did not see him at the stands. The committee would not contract with a man whom they did not know.

Mr. Morse said that the trouble was caused by Mr. Paul's getting the plan into the committee's hands instead of Mr. Hayford's. It is of little importance to the Board upon whom the responsibility is charged; but it is a vast deal of importance to Mr. Paul. He wanted them to do justice to Mr. Paul without reference to what the effect would be upon any member of the City Government.

Alderman Thompson asked if Mr. Morse considered Mr. Paul responsible as an architect?

Mr. Morse said the plan was drawn with reference to figuring on the lumber for one section, and Mr. Paul had said he was responsible for the strength of the seats as proposed in the same sense that an architect would be for such a suggestion. In conclusion he thanked the Board for the patient hearing.

On motion of Alderman Fitzgerald, the Board took up the special assignment, viz.:

Consideration of report of Special Committee on Blackstone-square Accident (City Doc. 82).

Alderman Fitzgerald—I moved to reconsider this report after its acceptance by the Board of Aldermen, because I wanted their vote to be an intelligent one after reading the whole testimony. I wanted each member of this Board to assume the responsibility of adopting or rejecting this report after an intelligent reading of the testimony as given in the appendix. To me personally, as a member of the committee, the object was a disagreeable one. It is always pleasanter for any man, unless he has a grudge or a personal pique to urge him on, to bring in a report exonerating individuals from charges made against them, than it is to bring in a report censuring those individuals. It would be much more pleasant for me, as chairman of the committee, to sign a report on behalf of the committee, exonerating all those connected with the transaction which we investigated, than it would be to bring in such a report as we brought in. What effect the verdict would have was not for the committee to consider. It was whether our verdict was to be a just and fair one, and then let the consequences fall where they may. With us, it was simply whether upon the whole evidence, Mr. Paul was the contractor; and whether the Inspectors of Buildings were guilty of carelessness. I might add that so far as Mr. Paul or Mr. Hayford or Mr. Shaw, or the Assistant Inspectors of Buildings were concerned, the committee had no feelings either for or against them. They simply came to their conclusions upon the testimony here reported. Mr. Paul has had every opportunity. Mr. Paul was at the hearing and made his statement; and after it was known outside what our report was to be he had been allowed to appear here as counsel and plead his case—a very extraordinary way, but nevertheless it has been allowed by this Board, and I don't object to it. But it is rather extraordinary to have a case argued after the verdict has been rendered. But I don't object, because I want this Board to be enlightened; and if they support the report of the committee, that report will carry much more weight and have more effect than if Mr. Paul had not been allowed to make an explanation either by himself or through counsel. We gave notice in the papers, and requested all we knew to appear. Everybody was invited to come. Mr. Paul well knew that in the minds of some a certain responsibility was to be directed towards him; Mr. Shaw thought perhaps that some responsibility would be directed towards him. They were all there, and most of the witnesses were examined by me as chairman of the committee. When each witness was through, Mr. Paul was asked if he had any questions to ask them, and he had none. After everybody that we could hear was heard, the committee made up their report, and the result of it is embodied in this document. And now the members of the Board have heard the argument of Mr. Morse as counsel for Mr. Paul. In arguing this question, we have not only to deal with Mr. Paul, but with others. But I will deal with Mr. Paul. The question first to be determined was, Who was the contractor? Who was the responsible party that this committee should look to, to carry out the contract which they had made? If I come to another person, mentally reserving to myself the idea that I am not the principal, but that somebody else is; but after an individual makes a contract with me, which I, knowing, give to a third party, never disclosing that third party to that individual, then, sir, I am as responsible as if I were the principal, and I cannot shirk the responsibility by saying afterward that I went and spoke for a third person, when that third person was somebody whom the party with whom I was talking knew nothing about. In that case I am responsible as the principal, though the third party may have performed all the business. Upon me all the responsibility rests. Now, what are the facts in this case? They are very simple. They simply resolve the question to this—whether Mr. Hayford or Mr. Paul was the contractor in this case? If this Board does not sustain the report of the committee, then Mr. Hayford is censurable. If this Board finds that Mr. Hayford is not the contractor, and was not censurable, that he was a myth so far as the committee was concerned, that Mr. Hayford never would have got the contract except that Mr. Paul put himself forward apparently as the contractor, though he never performed the work, then, sir, I say this Board can come to no other conclusion than that Mr. Paul must be held responsible; and if he tries to shirk the responsibility it is a fraud on the part of Mr. Paul and an imposition upon the City Government, after he had imposed his good name and faith upon the committee for the purpose of getting a job for somebody whom he knew was his friend, and who was to get the lumber from him, and who never would have got the contract if Mr. Paul had disclosed his name as the contracting party. Now, what are the facts in the case? They are substantially as related by Mr. Morse. Each and every member of the Monument Committee testified before the Investigating Committee that they never knew Mr. Hayford; that the contract was awarded to Mr. Paul; that Mr. Paul was in the committee room; that he submitted the plan, stated for what those would be done, that he never mentioned Mr. Hayford, and that so far as the committee were concerned Mr. Hayford was as if he never had any existence. The committee by a vote, which is on record, gave that contract to Mr. Paul. Mr. Paul meets the clerk of the committee on the following morning, as related by Mr. Morse; and though the clerk cannot give the precise language, he states that Mr. Paul told him that he had heard of the conclusion to which the committee had come. The conclusion was that the contract had been awarded to Mr. Paul. Mr. Paul states that what he had heard was what Mr. Hayford had notified him. What is the testimony of Mr. Hayford? The manner and testimony of Mr. Hayford were anything but good. He made the worst kind of an impression on the committee. I must say that. I never saw Mr. Hayford before; but he left an impression upon the committee that he was trying all the time to conceal and keep something behind which he did not want to tell the committee; and his testimony made a very bad impression upon the committee.

The Alderman read from Mr. Hayford's testimony as given above, adding the following:

Q.—Well, come down to the time when Mr. Flynn came up there.

A.—He came, but I did not know who it was.

Q.—What did he say?

A.—He asked where Mr. Paul was, and I told him I presumed he was down at his office. I went down after him.

Q.—What did you state to Mr. Paul when you went down there?

A.—I told him there were some of the committee up there, and that they wanted more seats put on.

He went down to see Mr. Paul, and told him they wanted more seats put on there! [Reading]—

Q.—Did they tell you they wanted them?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Which of them told you that?

A.—I think it was Mr. Flynn.

Q.—Did they tell you where they wanted them?

A.—I will tell you what he said. He asked me if there could not be another row of seats put up there. I think those are just the words he used.

Q.—If there could not be another row of seats added?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—What did you say?

A.—I told him I would go down after Mr. Paul. According to his own testimony, when Mr. Flynn spoke to him, the contractor, who had charge of the work and was to be paid for it, and asked him if he could put more seats on, he says, "I will go down and see Mr. Paul." That is his testimony. [Reading]—

Q.—Why, if you were the contractor, did not you make the contract?

A.—I did not understand whether I was the contractor or Mr. Paul. He asked for Mr. Paul, and so I went after him.

Q.—You did not know whether you or Mr. Paul were the contractor, and you said you would go after Mr. Paul?

A.—Yes, sir; he called for Mr. Paul.

That from a man who did not know whether he was the contractor! Mr. Paul did not take the trouble to tell him. He did not know whether Mr. Paul or he was the contractor. [Reading]—

Q.—Well, did you have conversation with Mr. Paul?

A.—I simply told him that they wanted to know if there could not be another row of seats added.

Q.—That was all the conversation?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—You heard Mr. Paul say that you had a conversation?

A.—After we got up there?

Q.—No, before you got up there; that he figured the whole thing in the carriage.

A.—I think we did.

Q.—You stated just now that you did not.

A.—I would like to recall that; I think we did.

Q.—State what conversation you had.

A.—It was this, as far as I can recollect; that he asked what I thought it would cost.

Q.—Did he ask it of you as an original contractor?

A.—I could not say how he asked it. He asked me, and I told him I thought it would cost about twenty-five cents a seat.

He did not know; this man did not know whether he was the contractor or not, and Mr. Paul left him in such a condition that he could not tell whether the contract was his or Mr. Paul's. That was the condition of Mr. Hayford, according to his own testimony. And so he goes on stating the result of the conference. I asked him if he knew what the contract was between Mr. Paul and the committee, or between himself and the committee, for the additional seats, and he said he did not know until that very night of the investigation, how much money the committee were to pay Mr. Paul or himself; that was the first he knew of the amount of money to be received for the additional seats on either side of Washington street, on the squares, and also on the burying ground; further than that, he said his men did not go to work on the burying ground. I asked him if he considered that he was the contractor for building the stand on the burying ground, and he said Mr. Paul told him he did not think he had enough men and he would send his men. Mr. Paul told him that he [Mr. Hayford] had not enough men and he would send his men over to the burying ground. He did not wait for Mr. Hayford to say "you must send your men." Mr. Paul was acting all through in the matter as if he were the principal—so much so that when he was asked if he was not under the impression that Mr. Lee and Mr. Flynn were dealing with him as if he were the principal, Mr. Paul said he had no doubt they were dealing with him as if he were the principal, and if this accident had never occurred there never would have been any trouble about it. Now, after the testimony of the gentlemen upon the committee; of Mr. Hayford, who was in the habit of taking work for Mr. Paul right along for years; after the offer, which is admitted both by Mr. Paul and Mr. Hayford, and which the committee themselves are ready to indorse, that Mr. Paul was looked upon as the principal in the whole transaction; that the committee thought he was the principal, spoke with him and dealt with him, and telegraphed to him as if he were the principal; after the fact that Mr. Paul admits that the sub-committee appointed to go to the square had no other impression, in their dealings with him, than that he was the principal; after the testimony of Mr. Hayford that he knew nothing about the additional contract or the price fixed upon between Mr. Paul and the committee until the very night of the investigation—he was a contractor who did not know what he was to receive. After all that, what other conclusion can the committee come to than that Mr. Paul was the principal? and if not the principal, that he was a fraud in trying to foist his name upon the committee for the purpose of getting a contract for a man whom the committee did not know, and to whom they never would have awarded the contract except for the name of Mr. Paul? If Mr. Paul was not the contractor for and had nothing to do with these stands, as he says, other than to supply the lumber, then the whole evidence goes to show that Mr. Paul knew and felt all the time that the committee were dealing with him as if he were principal, and that he never disclosed to them that he was only an agent, and allowed them to go along under the impression that he was the contractor; and now, Mr. Paul, having assumed the responsibility, must take the consequences. Even granting for a moment that he is not the principal, and what was really a fact, that Mr. Hayford really performed all the work; if Mr. Paul allowed his name to be used before the committee, and allowed them to get under the impression that he was the contractor, the responsible man, that he was the person who would look after it—he says he had no doubt Mr. Lee and Mr. Flynn were under that impression—if Mr. Paul allowed that, he must be held accountable for allowing the contract to be put into the hands of a man who did not do the work. That was the conclusion of the committee. They had no feeling against Mr. Paul. In appearing to act as principal Mr. Paul must now take all the consequences, and he cannot shirk them off upon Mr. Hayford. He allowed the committee to be under the impression that he was the principal. According to his own testimony he said he had no doubt that two of them thought he was the real principal in the case; and now, unfortunately for himself, he must assume all the responsibility for this unfortunate transaction, and he cannot shirk it by throwing it off upon Mr. Hayford. That is a matter between Mr. Hayford and himself. If he chose to have Mr. Hayford do this work when he was not fit to do it, it is a misfortune for himself. So, after reading this whole testimony through, the members of the Board of Aldermen can come to no other conclusion than that Mr. Paul was primarily responsible for this, either as the original contractor, or by allowing his name to be made use of as if he were the original contractor, and all the while he was using his name for somebody who never did and never would have received a contract from the City Government. The next point was in regard to the Inspector of Buildings. The evidence is so plain that the Board will come to the conclusion the committee did, that sufficient care was not used by the Inspector himself, and the Assistant Inspectors in this matter. In the testimony as given by one of those gentlemen—I don't wish to make any criticism; I appreciate the feeling which prompted him—it came out that the Inspector was at the square on the morning of the accident, and that he got off the buggy and went to both the stands. He does not call it an inspection; but he was there, and a member of the Council testifies that he was some distance behind the stands, looking at them. The committee came to the conclusion that as his attention had been called to the stands he was to blame, as well as his assistants, and that they were either careless or ignorant in their duties. As I said before, I should very much have preferred to report an order exonerating all those gentlemen. The duty was placed upon me and my associates, and we did not shirk it. Some of us would, perhaps, have made a more severe report than this; but it is the unanimous report of the committee, not made up specially by me, but by all the members. It is unfortunate for Mr. Paul. He, perhaps, did not build those stands; but it is unfortunate for him that the accident occurred. He cannot shirk the responsibility by saying that he was the agent, when he acknowledges that the committee were under the impression that he was the principal, and not the agent; and he cannot shirk the responsibility now. I presume that, if anybody else had had the contract, it would have been just as likely to have happened. It is far easier, after something has happened, to see what ought to have been done, than to see it beforehand. It is easier to condemn and blame individuals after a disaster has happened by saying that they were careless and negligent in the discharge of their duty, when perhaps ninety-nine out of a hundred would have done just as they did, and if it had passed off pleasantly nobody would have thought of anything having been done wrong. I can well see how the public would want that somebody should be made a victim; but that was not the object of the committee in fixing this responsibility. It was unfortunate for Mr. Paul. I may say that the very men who criticize the manner in which those stands were put up acknowledge that perhaps they might have done the same thing. I say this in explanation of the report of the committee.

Alderman Gibson—Really this is one of the most singular cases I ever heard of. Mr. Paul is, of course, a gentleman who stands very high in this community. But there is a certain something behind the curtain that has not yet come out. Whether this Mr. Hayford is a responsible man, or whether I should distrust that Mr. Paul was connected with him in some way, I don't know. Whether Mr. Paul meant to be a responsible man or not, we all see that he is the one that we must hold responsible. He let this thing run clear through, and did not mention Mr. Hayford's name, which is a certain dereliction on his part. Now, if Mr. Hayford was the man who was to erect the stands, and Mr. Paul was thereby to get the sale of some lumber—because, gentlemen, I am hunting outside of this testimony; and then suppose that Mr. Hayford was an irresponsible party, why Mr. Paul might bring in the plan and get the contract and make a profit on his lumber, and pay Mr. Hayford for his work. That is the point that staggers me. I should like to know if there was something of that kind, and the whole community must see that there is. There is no evidence that any one but one member of the committee knew Mr. Hayford as the contractor. The gentlemen of the committee acted in good faith. The evidence is that one of the committee goes and tells Mr. Hayford that he was the contractor; but I think it devolved upon Mr. Paul to give the committee to understand that he was not the contractor, especially after they had gone down there, and to show that he was simply an architect. It seems to me it is too late now, after the committee had been led to believe that he was the contractor, and it does not seem exactly consistent for such a man to withhold that information till so late a day. There seems to be something about this that has not been fully brought out, and I am at a loss to know what stand to take in it, and it would be a trying question to vote upon. I think there is something under this that ought to come to the surface.

Alderman Burnham—I feel disinclined at this late hour, after this tedious hearing, to say anything upon this matter; and I feel unable to say anything about Mr. Paul, his case having been so ably discussed by his counsel and the chairman of the committee. In their closing remarks the chairman calls attention to the wording of the report in reference to the Inspector of Buildings. Now I have looked over this evidence and can hardly vote for the report, because the conclusions to which the committee arrive do not seem to be warranted by the evidence; and seeing that lack of evidence the report seems to me to do injustice to a worthy city officer. In their third finding the committee say—

“That the Inspector of Buildings, who visited the stands on the morning of Sept. 17th, and the Assistant Inspectors who inspected them, did not use sufficient care in a matter of so much importance to the public safety.”

This is the evidence upon which they came to this conclusion, and which members of the Board have considered. I want to ask what is to be considered “sufficient care” on the part of Inspector of Buildings? That he was the chief inspector, and in a certain sense answerable and accountable, I suppose we may all admit, and I would in that line hold him accountable for what his assistants did. But I understand that the committee admit that he did his whole duty under the law; and I understand by the quotation from the letter from the City Solicitor, on page 70, that he has complied with the statutes, and the committee do not and will not undertake to say that the definition of the phrase using “sufficient care” is that the Inspector should personally inspect all the stands in the five-mile route of procession arranged for that day. But the conclusion they came to is that (page 5)—

“The Inspector could delegate his assistants to perform this duty, and, under the circumstances, would have been justified in accepting their reports as final, especially as he was pressed for time in attending to other duties, which, at the moment, appeared to be of greater importance; but, having gone in person to a structure which had been reported as unsafe, the committee are of opinion that it was his duty, notwithstanding the reports of his assistants, to inspect the same.”

It seems to me that Mr. Shaw did not intend to personally inspect the whole structure; he said so to the committee. He had a right to put that inspection upon his assistants, and he did so and they reported; and yet the report of the committee says, by inference, that as he visited the stand on the morning of the 17th, he must be classed with the assistant inspectors in not using “sufficient care.” The facts seem to be clear to me that he did not visit the stands for the purpose of a general inspection, and I think he ought to have credit for it. The evidence that shows that he was there at all is just as clear in its proof that he was not there for a general inspection; and why should a different construction be put upon it? There was not time for an inspection. It was nine o'clock. At that time Mr. Emery and Mr. Frye had reported to him that the stands were all right; he was on his way to the Redpath stands, and had to arrive at the office an hour later. There was not time to do it personally, and he did not intend to. Now there is another thing that gives me some trouble. There seems to be an evidence to use this simple incident in the testimony of the Chief Inspector to his disadvantage; and if so, it seems to me to be wrong, and to claim that because he did not tell of his visit to the stands until it was drawn from him, that Mr. Shaw intended to keep this matter back. If there is such an inference it is unfair and Mr. Shaw is not justly chargeable with keeping back anything in his evidence. I have proof that this incident of his stopping at the stands was not intended to be hidden from the consideration of the committee. Mr. Shaw brought that matter before the first commission appointed by the Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings. He told it to Mr. Adams, Mr. Bradlee and Mr. Whitcomb, mentioned it to Mr. Sampson and Mr. Pope, of the Council, and myself, on the Wednesday following the accident, and said he intended to state it to the committee, even after I told him it had a bad look. So it seems to me that Mr. Shaw is not chargeable with any intention of keeping any matter back from the committee. He is certainly a faithful officer, and this report cannot be regarded as giving him credit for being so. He certainly has the confidence of the community. I don't think any man could be more heartily indorsed than he was by all the city architects, the Citizens' Trade Association of South Boston, representing nine or ten millions of dollars. I had a conversation with Mr. Bradlee about this matter, and he told me that he held Mr. Shaw blameless in the matter; and after they made up their report Mr. Bradlee took the trouble to confer with his associates, who agreed with him, and took the trouble to go to the Mayor's office and tell him that such was the opinion of the committee and himself. I had a conversation with Mr. Sears, who may be called the father of the building law, and he expressed the same opinion. He said he had conversed quite extensively with builders and architects, and they did not blame Mr. Shaw. Now, in this very conclusion of the committee, they say that because he visited the stands on the 17th of September he did not use "sufficient care" for the public safety. I believe that they use too strong language toward the Inspector of Buildings, and put a responsibility upon him which did not belong to him; and I should wish to have the report amended in that particular.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I am very sorry that any argument has been got up about Mr. Shaw and his testimony. I should attach no importance to the omission from Mr. Shaw's testimony with regard to his visit to the squares, were it not that Mr. Shaw was painfully minute in detailing all he did from Saturday until Monday at half-past nine. He gave a minute detailed statement where he put his horse, and where he went—so much so that twice I asked him to come to the particular subject in which we were specially interested, and that was the examination of those two stands on Blackstone and the other square. But he wanted to tell everything and we allowed him to go along; and he got as far as Canton street in the history of his doings on Saturday and Monday morning; and when he got to Canton street, in giving his detailed statement, he said he met Mr. Emery and Mr. Frye on the corner, and they told him the stands were all right and perfectly satisfactory, and he took their report as final and conclusive in the matter. Mark you; of all the stands erected, these on Blackstone square and the other were those to which his particular attention had been called as being dangerous; the Chief of Police informed him; Mr. Shaw was particular in giving instructions to his assistants about them; and yet he says he did not inspect the most dangerous stands at all, and relied upon his assistants to do it. He attempted to explain why he did not inspect the stand to which his particular attention was called because of its being unsafe and dangerous. Because why? Because it was reported to him by his inspectors as being sound on Monday morning, and that there were other stands reported unsafe that he thought of sufficient consequence to inspect. What does he say? I am sorry the gentleman brought it up; but let it come out now. He says—

Q.—You did not go up there yourself?

A.—I say I took that report as final and conclusive in the matter, from two such men as they were. I never inspected these stands myself. I did not think about these stands, and I had every reason in the world to suppose that they were perfectly safe. I started off and drove on.

Q.—Beyond the stands?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And passed them?

A.—I did."

I was particular to bring him to these particular stands, and I never dreamed and never knew that he was there; no member of the committee ever thought he was there; and he said he drove beyond the stands and did not think it worth while to inspect them. [Reading]—

"I saw I had just thirty minutes. I had informed my men I would be at the office at half-past nine o'clock. I saw I had just thirty minutes to go up and look at the Redpath stand and get around, and I wanted to stop at the Common; I had that in view, because my men had not got to work when I left the Common."

What was the impression he intended to leave upon the committee's minds? He gave a detailed statement of everything he did; when he got up in the morning, where he left his horse, when he went to the stable, the instructions he gave to Mr. Frye and Mr. Emery, how he went to the stand on the Common, how he left the office and got down as far as Canton street. It could not be an intentional omission or forgetfulness, because I asked him if he passed the stands by and he said he did. When he got through, when his examination was concluded, and when he had put in everything, after he had denied that he had seen these stands, when he had positively stated that he passed them by and never inspected the stands, and I asked, after he had got through with his testimony, how, being the Inspector and having inspected the Redpath stands, his attention having been called to this stand, why he did not examine it, but pass it right by, and he said one of the reasons was that those stands were small, and he was only sorry he did not inspect them; and then Mr. Flynn asked him—

"Were you ever there on the ground? Did you ever see those stands before they were occupied?"

And he hesitated and stopped, and looked around, and began to fumble, and finally he stammered, and I said to him, "Mr. Shaw, a simple answer, yes or no, will suffice for such a question as that"; and then he said he was there upon the stand; and I asked him why he did not tell that before? It made a worse impression upon the committee than the testimony of any man who had been there. I am free to confess that it did upon me. I am obliged to come to the conclusion that he designedly kept from the committee the fact that he was upon Blackstone square until it was forced out of him by the question of Mr. Flynn. Then he said he got off his buggy, looked at the stand, desisted the upper stand, and then raced over to the other side and looked at the other one, and then went off. Mr. Fagan says he was behind the stand near West Brookline street, and that he saw him nearer Newton street than Brookline street. What could the committee think of the testimony of a man who was called upon for the purpose of giving his account of the Blackstone-square seats, who told everything so minutely that the minuteness became painful to the committee, and when it came to the important testimony which he ought to have told to the committee he avoided telling that until it was forced out of him by a gentleman not a member of the committee? The only conclusion that came to is that Mr. Shaw made the same kind of an inspection that he made upon the Redpath stand, and at the stands upon the Common, and he calls it no inspection. If he had never gone near them, I grant you that he would have been upheld in accepting the reports of his assistants. But stands put up in such an unworkmanlike manner, and the Inspector of Buildings going behind them and not detecting their defects, shows that he was grossly careless or ignorant of his duties. I am sorry the Alderman has brought up this question, because of all matters that was the one upon which the committee would disagree, and that was why we came to this mild report. Having gone there and looked at them—although he tried to keep the committee from knowing he had been there—all goes to show that Mr. Shaw made the same kind of inspection of them that he made of the other stands, and the concealment of the fact that he had been there was a willful suppression of the facts in the case. So far as Mr. Paul is concerned, the relations between him and Mr. Hayford were of such a peculiar nature—Mr. Paul supplying the lumber and Mr. Hayford doing the work—I could well see that Mr. Paul thought Mr. Hayford was the contractor, or that Mr. Hayford thought Mr. Paul the contractor, no one supposing that there would be any trouble. I can easily see how those two gentlemen could be confounded. It was a small matter and would have made very little difference who was the contractor, if there had been no accident; and I can see how the testimony of Mr. Paul is thoroughly consistent with the report which the committee make, holding him to a strict accountability to which he thinks he ought not to be held. But I cannot see how the Inspector of Buildings, knowing that we were appointed for the special purpose of giving this Board the circumstances, could unwittingly tell the committee that he passed them by and went up to the Redpath stands, unless he intended to suppress the truth.

Alderman Burnham—I shall not attempt to go over the evidence, as did the chairman; but when he states the painful minuteness with which the inspector detailed his actions, and presents the inspector as standing in that relation to the committee, I shall dissent. I rise to ask the Alderman how he makes it correspond with his theory that Mr. Shaw intended to keep back this matter from the committee, and that Mr. Shaw intended to falsify himself, how he reconciles that with the fact of the mere accident which Mr. Shaw freely narrated to individuals, including myself. It was on account of my relation to Mr. Shaw in this matter that made me think the committee have done him injustice. When I put that question to Mr. Shaw, he said he would never keep it back from the committee or the community. I submit that the Board cannot find anything in the testimony to justify the conclusion of the committee as presented so forcibly by the chairman. I do not find it. If the Board do not find it, I do not see how he can arrive at the conclusion which he has presented in regard to Mr. Shaw's position. I feel conscious that Mr. Shaw did not intend to inspect those stands and they being small, he left them to his assistants; but catching a sight of something upon the end of the stands as he passed by, he got out and looked at them; but in doing that he did not intend to inspect them, having left that to others and trusted to them.

Alderman Wilder moved to lay the matter over for one week.

Alderman Fitzgerald insisted that it should be settled at once, saying he would be very happy if the Board would come to a conclusion different from what the committee had.

The motion was lost.

Alderman Slade—I don't see how I can help voting for this report. No doubt somebody is to be censured, and I think Mr. Hayford and every carpenter who saw those stands are censurable for not seeing the lack of braces. Even the person who gave the first alarm did not see that. It was because of the seats put on top, that nobody's attention was called to it. That was all Mr. Frye saw. In fact, they all saw nothing but the seats on top, and Mr. Frye suggested that some cleats would do all that was necessary. I don't see that this report is very rough. Every carpenter who worked upon it and didn't see that these seats had no braces is censurable.

Alderman Wilder—I don't know that I can do anybody any good. I am sorry that the discussion in regard to the inspector has been opened. I am aware that there must be a victim, and will admit that the committee had a right to censure the manner of the inspector in giving his testimony; but the motives attributed to him proved not to have operated upon his mind. In the first interview of the inspector with Messrs. Bradley, Adams and Whitcomb, he went all over the facts in regard to his brief and hurried visit to the stands, telling the story exactly in the same way—that he had felt a great deal of anxiety about the Redpath stand, because it was so high, and that he had no fears about the lower stands, especially after the reports from his assistants, in whom he had so much confidence. After receiving the note from the Chief of Police, he ordered a reinspection of them. He met the assistants at Canton street, and heard their report. When he got to the stands he noticed something overlapping at the end; jumped out of his wagon, gave a glance at them, making the same mistake that everybody else has; and after making this hurried examination he went on and attended to the rest of his duties. I was not present during the whole of his testimony, and I will admit that he did not tell the story exactly as he told it before; why, I do not know. But it was utterly impossible that the inspector should have expected to conceal this fact, when he told it to the gentlemen I have named and to Alderman Burnham. I can imagine why the testimony was given exactly in that way. Of course the inspector felt under a good deal of excitement. It was a matter of deep consideration to him, and somebody advised him—

Alderman Fitzgerald—Not to tell the truth?

Alderman Wilder—No, sir. He gave that testimony under the advice of somebody, leaving out this until the last, with the fullest intention of giving a full and entire explanation of it, because he wanted it to appear to the committee exactly as it appeared to him in his own mind. He did not want to withhold the fact from the committee that he got out and looked at those stands; but he did want the committee to believe that he did not inspect those stands and did not go there for that purpose; that he accepted the report of his assistants, and that he merely jumped out and looked at them for a moment. These are the facts. If he is censurable for anything, it is for the manner in which he gave his testimony before the committee. But I don't think a man who is a faithful officer, who attends to his duty, who is without reproach, except for the manner in which he gave his testimony, should be censured very much. I am sorry the discussion has been opened, but so long as it has been I could not permit the occasion to go by without stating those few facts, and the motives of Mr. Shaw, and vindicating him from any intention to withhold any of these points which he had stated prior to his examination before the committee, for it was a matter which was entirely public. I only criticize his manner of leaving it out to the last. If the question had not been asked by an outside gentleman, I know the committee would have got the fact, but a little later, and in Mr. Shaw's own way.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I am sorry this discussion has come up. I did not bring it up. It was brought up by gentlemen interested in the inspector. I thought charity would force the friends of the inspector to be silent upon that; but as they did force it here, I am bound to vindicate myself and my position. I said he was very minute. I told him I did not like to interrupt him, but I wanted him to come to those squares, and he said it was due to him that he should tell everything he did. [The Alderman read Mr. Shaw's testimony in regard to his meeting Mr. Frye and his going to the Redpath stand.] He presented the reports of his assistants, Mr. Gargan asks a question, and Mr. Shaw gets through giving testimony; he gets through with everything, and I say to him, "Is that all? Perhaps some members of the committee want to ask you some questions." He was all through except what was to be got out of him by cross-examination. He had stated everything and he did not intend to state any more. Then Mr. O'Brien asked him some questions and asked him why he did not examine a stand to which his especial attention had been called, and he gave his reason, which I have read, and he did not mention that he had been on the ground until Mr. Flynn asked him if he was ever on the ground and did he ever see those stands before they were occupied. He had got through with the examination and had told all he had to tell; so far as relating his travels from Saturday night to Monday morning, we had got all out of him that we possibly could get, including the reports of his assistants. I don't know who advised him; I don't know what he stated to others. My verdict was made up on the testimony before the committee. Whoever advised him, advised him badly. It would have been far better if Mr. Shaw had told it right along in consecutive order, and not waited until obliged to answer a question which forced out of him the most important testimony in connection with the whole affair. I don't know what he told the Aldermen. One of the Aldermen here told me that Mr. Shaw told him he had never been on the stands. That I know.

Alderman Gibson—I think the plain, unvarnished facts ought to be told without covering up anything. I had a long talk with the inspector of thirty minutes, and he never told me that he had been to the stands. I have no objections to Mr. Shaw, but when I see a thing trying to be covered up, I like to see the cover taken off. If a man has made a mistake and admits that his judgment was wrong, that he thought it was all right, I should think as well again of that man. I say it was a proper inspection if he went on that square. He might have known that perpendicular stands would not stand without braces. It would not have done even for a turkey roost. Mr. Shaw has done his duty so far as I know, but after reading his testimony I don't think that any unprejudiced man can stand up and point out why he was not to blame.

Alderman Burnham—The chairman of the committee has conveyed one impression that I would like to correct. As I read Mr. Shaw's testimony I do not get the impression that he was done, but that he had finished that particular subject. He persists in saying that he never inspected the stands because they were small, and because they had been reported safe by his assistants.

Alderman Fitzgerald—It is impossible to convey a photograph of the manner of the man on paper.

Alderman Burnham—I take my photograph from what is here. It does not look to me as if the inspector intended to cover up this matter.

Alderman Fitzgerald—He had got through with his evidence, and Mr. Flynn asked him the question, and he ahem'd and haw'd, and finally I said the question admitted of an answer of yes or no.

Alderman Gibson in the chair.

Alderman Clark—I do not propose to make any extended remarks at this late hour; neither should I were it earlier in the evening. I think there is something due to Mr. Paul in this matter. Mr. Shaw has had his defence here, and I propose to say a word in defence of Mr. Paul. In the first place I think the committee were justified in supposing that Mr. Paul was the only contractor for the work. I should have felt precisely the same had I been one of that committee; and that they were justified in not troubling themselves any further about the work being substantially and faithfully done, because Mr. Paul's reputation as a builder is second to none in the city. But I fail to see in the evidence why Mr. Paul might not have supposed that the Committee thought the work was to be done by Mr. Hayford. His conversation with Alderman Wilder was certainly of a character to lead him to suppose the committee were making the contract with Mr. Hayford. In reply to the Alderman's question, whether he would do it for $250, Mr. Paul said, "I do not know whether he will do it for $250 or not," meaning Mr. Hayford. Mr. Paul supposed he was making a sketch of a stand to be built by Mr. Hayford, he to furnish the lumber, and have an indirect interest in it to that extent. There is not the slightest evidence that Mr. Paul came here seeking the job; but there is evidence to show that Mr. Nugent, a particular friend of Mr. Hayford, anxious to help him, as all members of the City Council are to favor their friends when opportunity offers, told Mr. Hayford that here are platforms to be erected, and that he would use his influence to help him get the job. Mr. Hayford goes to Mr. Paul to make the sketch, and Mr. Paul told the Alderman that a platform on that plan would cost $300; but he did not agree to build it. There is not the slightest evidence that Mr. Paul had reason to believe that he was the contractor to do the work. On the contrary, there is not the least reason for the committee to suppose that Mr. Paul was not the party who was to do the work. It was a small matter for him. He supposed it would be well done, and if there is any negligence on his part it was from the fact that he did not tell the committee that he was not the party who was going to do the work, but was merely going to furnish the lumber, and that Mr. Hayford was to build the stands. It seems to me the argument of Mr. Morse in regard to Mr. Hayford is a good one; that if Mr. Hayford had not considered himself responsible for the failure, he would have absolutely denied that he was the contractor, and would have publicly stated that Mr. Paul took the contract and was the only responsible party. Altogether it is a very mild report; however, in this second clause I think the name of Mr. Hayford should be substituted for that of Joseph F. Paul, and I move to so amend the report.

Alderman Thompson—Will the gentleman state what member of the committee contracted with Mr. Hayford? We did not know such a party.

Alderman Clark—He was known to one member of the committee—the only mechanic upon it.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Was he known in his official capacity as a member of the committee in his dealings with Mr. Hayford?

Alderman Clark—That is a question which none but Mr. Nugent can answer.

Alderman Fitzgerald read from Mr. Nugent's testimony where he said he knew no one else as the contractor besides Mr. Paul.

Alderman Clark—Mr. Hayford testified that his business was done with Mr. Nugent. That is where the figuring commenced. It was in consequence of Mr. Nugent having gone to Mr. Hay-ford and asked him to figure on the job. I don't mean to say that Mr. Paul was entirely blameless in that matter. He should have said the job was Mr. Hayford's and not his. The faulty construction of those seats was owing to the carelessness of Mr. Hayford and not of Mr. Paul.

Alderman Thompson—The proposition is perfectly ridiculous that a person entirely unknown to the committee should be censured. It seems to be perfectly absurd. The committee were not responsible for what Mr. Nugent did. It is sufficient for me to know that Mr. Nugent was present and voted to give the contract to Mr. Paul, and subsequently a telegram was sent to Mr. Paul, who received it and did the additional work. I never heard Hayford's name until the stand fell. The arrangement was made with Mr. Paul, and what arrangements he had with Mr. Hayford the committee knew nothing about. I never knew any party in the transaction but Mr. Paul.

Alderman Slade moved to amend by making the report read "Joseph F. Paul and Warren F. Hayford, as the builders of the stands." Lost.

Alderman Clark's amendment was lost—yeas 1, nays 11; Alderman Clark voting yea.

Alderman Clark in the chair.

The report was accepted. Sent down.

DISCHARGE OF LABORERS IN PAVING DEPARTMENT.

A petition was received from James Kelly, asking for a report from the Paving Committee, in regard to the discharge of laborers in that department who had testified against P. D. Ladd, one of the foremen.

Alderman Robinson said the committee had spent the money given them in the most judicious manner possible, and there was no more work for the men. He saw no chance of employing more than they have at present.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The greater number of these men had been witnesses in a hearing before the committee against one of the foremen. I saw in a paper yesterday an account that I, as a member of the Paving Committee, went in a towering passion to the Superintendent of Streets and demanded of him his reason for discharging the men, and that never again should I countenance anything of the kind. It was put in such a way as to leave the impression that I wanted all the men crammed into the Paving Department whether they were wanted or not, and the evident intent of the article as originally written was to convey an impression of that kind. It is wholly false. A number of men were discharged from the Paving Department in the Roxbury District and came to my office—which, by the by, has been turned into an employment bureau for the last nine months—stating their grievances and telling me that they were the men who had testified against Mr. Ladd. These poor men came to the conclusion that they were turned off because they testified against Mr. Ladd. I did go to the Superintendent of Streets, and ask why the committee, having been in session the evening before, were not notified of his proposed action, and said it was due to the Committee on Paving, because the men were under the impression that they were discharged because they had testified against these men. He said they were discharged because there was no need of them, and I said, I hoped that here after, when men were discharged like that, it would at least be reported to the committee. That was the sum and substance of what I said, and I reiterate it here. The impression has gone abroad that the employment and discharge of the laborers is in the hands of the committee, and I want to perform acts of that kind when I have to take a share of the responsibility for them. Some of those poor men were for five or six years in the employ of the city, some had families dependent upon them; and it is rather a curious thing that the eight or nine who came here and testified against that man should be selected to be discharged, while some that were left were single men. I am glad this petition came in, as it gave me an opportunity to explain this article. Those men naturally feel that they were turned off as a matter of revenge, especially when they had been retained for four or five years. I am not in favor of retaining men when there is no work for them, but always contend that those who have families should have the preference for work; and when men of that kind are discharged, the Paving Committee ought at least to be consulted.

Alderman Robinson—I differ considerably with my associate in regard to these men. There were more men in Roxbury than we could possibly employ, and twenty-four were discharged. I am satisfied there was no reference to the parties who were brought up here. Certain parties had to be discharged, and there happened to be two men out of the twenty-four who testified. There could be no feeling of revenge. There was a universal statement made here that they had nothing against Mr. Ladd. I think the putting on of men ought to be left to the Superintendent of Streets. I have had constant appeals to me that men who had been at work a long time ought to be discharged to make room for others.

The petition was referred to the Paving Committee.

PETITION FOR FENCE TO BE REMOVED.

A petition was received from John McNellis, for the removal of a fence in Cook street, Charlestown. Referred, on motion of Alderman Thompson, to the Committee on Streets on the part of the Board.

Adjourned on motion of Alderman Wilder.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Common Council,

OCTOBER 18, 1877.

Regular meeting at 7½ o'clock P. M., Benjamin Pope, President, in the chair.

PAPERS FROM THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Report of Superintendent of North Scales. Placed on file.

Petitions were referred in concurrence.

Reference to Committee on Finance of a request of the Committee on Public Buildings that the means ($2000) be provided for fitting up old Lyman Schoolhouse for a high-school branch. Concurred.

Report (leave to withdraw) on petition of E. A. McGrath to be reimbursed sums paid for an estate sold for non-payment of taxes. Accepted in concurrence.

Report inexpedient to dredge front of wharves between Cragie's and Cambridgeport bridges. Accepted in concurrence.

Order for city to assume taxes for present year ($68.12) on land on Cambridge street purchased as a site for a grammar schoolhouse in Brighton. Ordered to a second reading.

Report and order to grant use of a room in old Franklin Schoolhouse to Massachusetts College of Pharmacy. Order read twice.

Notice of non-concurrence in passage of order relating to retaining the services of laborers in Department of Common, etc. Placed on file.

Report on Blackstone-square accident. (Printed City Doc. No. 82, 1877.) Accepted in concurrence.

Order to hire for five years certain rooms at 2 Pemberton square, at a rental of $1500 per annum.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—I would ask for an explanation of this order from the proper committee.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—The building has been used by the City Solicitor and the city has been paying some three thousand dollars a year for it.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—Two thousand.

Mr. Wilbur—Two thousand. It has been found that it could be procured at the present time for the sum of fifteen hundred dollars, a saving of some five hundred dollars.

Mr. Spenceley—I would simply add that Mr. Healy has his carpets down and his books and everything is there, and he thought he had better stay there. As this decreases the rent five hundred dollars the Superintendent of Public Buildings thought we could not make a better bargain than hire the room.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22 asked if the City Solicitor could not occupy a part of the building on the corner of Tremont and School streets, leased by the Committee on Improved Sewerage; to which Mr. Sampson replied that they had leased the attic rooms only, and that the lower floors are occupied.

Mr. Mowry said he objected to the lease being for fifteen hundred dollars, as rents have been decreasing in Pemberton square, and he also objected to the lease being taken for five years.

The order was passed to a second reading and laid over.

EXPENDITURES FOR COMMON AND PUBLIC GROUNDS.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I should like to move a suspension of the rules in order to present a report of the Committee on Common and Public Grounds. I notice on the calendar that there is quite a number of subjects which will probably cause a large amount of debate, and on that account I wish to get this report in previous to debating the subjects in the regular order. The committee have discharged all the men in the department with the exception of three, and those who have been discharged are waiting for their money. If this matter can be referred to the Committee on Finance, as I shall move, it might be reported to this Council for debate on the passage of the order at our next meeting.

The rule was suspended, and Mr. Howes submitted the following, moving that it be referred to the Finance Committee, with a request that they provide the means:

The Joint Standing Committee on Common and Public Grounds respectfully represent that an additional appropriation will be required to cover the expenses of the remainder of the financial year.

The expenses from the beginning of the present financial year up to Oct. 15 are shown by the following complete statement:

Schedule of Bills and Pay Rolls charged to the account of Common and Public Grounds, May 1 to Oct. 15, 1877, inclusive.

Date of Bill.	Amount of pay-roll.
Dec., 1876,	$2,415.42
Jan. and Feb., 1877.)	James F. Marston carpenter's labor and stock.....	397.75
	Coch'tte water rates, use of water, Jan. 1, 1877, to Jan. 1, 1878	335.00
1877.
April 23.	Galvin Brothers, trees and plants..	275.00
20.	John Galvin, services, $183.00; tickets for workmen, $7.50; freight, $4 38.....	194.88
Feb., Mar., and April.)	Geo. T. McLauthlin & Co., repairing fence and elm tree.....	98.16
March 15.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark.....	$1.80
	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, Galvin..	2.65
	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Pope, Day, Howes, Galvin	5.80
April 3.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, Robinson.....	2.00
	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, Slade and Hiscock..	5.25
	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, Dee, Galvin, Clapp	15.10
	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, Robinson.....	3.90
April 13.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, Thompson, Talbot, Day, Harris, Perham.....	16.70
	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Galvin, Pope, Dee.....	7.10
March 20.	George Coyle, manure and team work.....	60.30
10.	Rockwell & Churchill, order and permit-books, pay-rolls, etc.	53.50
20.	N. Butters, broom stuff.....	27.96
March 28.	J. P. Barnard, carriage, Pope and Howes.....	17.00
April 9.	S. M. Grant, corn and meal.....	8.00
	Lewis S. Davenport, removing and storing covering of fountain.....	7.92
March 26.	Joseph W. Ripley, binding "permits for stands".....	3.00
		1.00
	Amount of May Draft.....	3,894.89
April 20.	Amount of pay-roll..	3,183.38
May 11.	Owen Nawn, manure, gravel, loam, sods and team work.....	1,622.50
	Stephen Connelly, extra work, sewer on Common.....	34.25
	Owen Nawn, earth, loam, gravel, manure, etc., and team work.....	2,623.00
April 25.)	Galvin Bros. plants and trees.....	1,337.50
May 19.)
and 21.)
May 20.	Hugh Nawn, sods....	1,045.34
May 18.	Fred W. Kelsey, plants and trees.....	991.00
May 19.	H. K. Parsons, red gravel.....	853.00
	A. J. Tuttle, sprinkling Charles street, Boylston to Beacon street, 2 months....	250.00
20.	John Galvin, services, $183.00; freight, $30.60; 2 loads peat,

		$6.....	219.60
		20. Benj. T. Wells, trees	132.25
		15. John Deegan, bird boxes and carting...	116.50
April		20. H. D. Parker, refreshments, Dee, Flynn, Galvin.....	$7.15
		21. H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, Slade, and Galvin....	6.60
		23. H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, Hiscock, Pope, Galvin....	13.40
		22. H. D. Parker, refreshments, Dee, Hiscock, Galvin.....	10.25
		23. H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark.....	1.30
		25. H. D. Parker, refreshments, Robinson, Pope, Galvin.....	12.70
		26. H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, Pope, Howes, Hiscock, Dee, Galvin....	27.65
May		2. H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, Pope, Hiscock, Dee, Galvin.....	20.25
		3. H. D. Parker, refreshments, Howes, Hiscock.....	2.70
		3. H. D. Parker, refreshments, Hiscock, Galvin.....	5.90
		4. H. D. Parker, refreshments, Pope, Dee, Galvin.....	5.65
		5. H. D. Parker, refreshments, Pope, Dee, Hiscock, Galvin....	12.80
		10. H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, Hiscock, Robinson.....	5.45
			131.80
Feb. to May.		George T. McLauthlin & Co., repairing fences.....	95.21
		Amount of pay roll of discharged men....	4,361.46
Apl.		Wm. McKenney, trees	48.00
May.		23. Samnel Hatch & Co., plants.....	81.85
April		20. J. E. Maynard, carriage, Galvin.....	$2.00
		21. J. E. Maynard, carriage, Hiscock, Howes, Galvin.....	8.00
		23. J. E. Maynard, carriage, Dee, Pope, Howes..	3.00
		24. J. E. Maynard, carriage, Hiscock, Pope, Galvin.....	5.00
		25. J. E. Maynard, carriage, Howes, Pope, Galvin.....	10.00
May		3. J. E. Maynard, carriage, Howes, Hiscock, Pope....	8.00
		5. J. E. Maynard, carriage, Howes, Hiscock, Dee, Pope.	8.00
			44.00
		20. Michael Coffee, trees.	44.00
		23. Chelmsford Foundry Company, fence for Common.....	39.00
		20. J. Lamson, trees.....	26.50
April.		J. L. Fairbanks & Co., books and stationery.....	25.20
May		20. Harper & Billings, trees.....	15.75
April		18. } S. M. Grant, corn, oats
May		5. } and meal.....	12.52
April		30. R. M. Pulsifer & Co., advertising.....	11.25
		30. Journal Newspaper Company, advertising.....	8.50
		30. R. Worthington & Co., advertising.....	7.00
May		10. H. T. Johnson & Co.,
		books and stationery.....	6.67
		20. M. Ward, trees.....	5.00
		4. Lockwood, Lumb & Co., plumber's work and stock.....	4.05
		4. J. P. Barnard, carriage, Howes, Pope	4.00
		Amount of June Draft.....	17,380.08
		Amount of pay roll... discharged men....	5,219.43
May 22 to		Galvin Brothers, plants.....	4,412.85
June 16. }		H. K. Parsons, red gravel.....	2,685.00
		20. O. Nawn, binding gravel, loam and team work.....	1,122.25
		20. Hugh Nawn, sods....	685.11
		20. John Reardon, on account of contract for care of sundry squares.....	600.00
Jan.		1. Metropolitan Railroad Company, manure 1 year, 112 horses, at $5.00.....	560.00
June 14.		D. A. Berry, seats, tree-guards and painting same.....	405.95
July 1.		Peter Callahan, on account of contract for care of East Boston squares....	400.00
May 26 to		Samnel Hatch & Co., plants.....	341.90
June 6. }		7. Thomas Arey, trees...	218.50
		23. John Galvin, services, $184; tickets for workmen, $7.50....	191.50
		21. George J. Coyle, manure and team work.	173.00
May and 31. }		7. George T. McLauthlin & Co., repairing fences.....	128.00
June 15.		A. J. Tuttle, sprinkling Charles street, Boylston to Beacon street.....	125.00
		4. The Hillis Archimedeon Lawn Mower Co., lawn mowers..	125.00
April and		James F. Marston, carpenters' labor and stock.....	117.10
May. }		8. Sisters of the Good Shepherd, plants....	110.00
June 8. }		Francis Richards, painting and stock.	95.63
Feb to June. }		15. H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, Howes, Dee, Galvin.....	$7.85
May 15. }		H. D. Parker, refreshments, Dee, Galvin..	2.45
		16. H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, Hiscock, Dee, Galvin, Clapp..	9.05
		21. H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, Pope, Dee, Galvin.....	7.40
		25. H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, Thompson, Dee, Galvin, Hiscock.....	10.90
		28. H. D. Parker, refreshments, Pope, Dee, Galvin, Howes.....	7.40
June 7.		H. D. Parker, refreshments, Dee, Hiscock, Howes.....	12.00
		13. H. D. Parker, refreshments, Howes.....	2.00
			59.05
June 11 }		J. E. Maynard, carriage each, 11th $8, 16th $8,	16.00
and 16. }		Galvin and Hiscock....	55.00
June 13.		Benj. T. Wells, tools, bird-houses, etc..	24.54
Jan. to }		Henry C. Bird & Co., plants.....	14.25
June. }		21. S. M. Grant, corn and oats.....	11.25
May 21. }		S. Burrill, Jr., sharpening tools.....	10.00
		1. A. H. Chapinan, lawn mower.....	9.00
May 25.		Abiel S. Lewis, plants.	7.40
		21. William Lumb & Co., plumbers, labor and stock.....	6.00
April 5.		Henry Munroe, repairing signs.....	5.00
May 28.		J. P. Barnard, carriage, Howes.....
		Amount of July Draft,	21,088.97
		Amount of Pay-roll No. 1.....	$1,504.00
		Amount of Pay-roll No. 2.....	1,858.98

June	25.	Simpson Brothers, concrete walks, and repairing do.....	1,149.30
July	21.	H. K. Parsons, red gravel.....	550.00
July	24.	John Galvin, services, $183; tickets for workmen, $7.....	190.00
	16.	A. J. Tuttle, sprinkling Charles st., Boylston to Beacon street....	125.00
Jan. to July	29 } 16. }	N. Callahan, sharpening tools, etc.....	119.45
June	15.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Dee, Galvin....	$3.90
	15.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Galvin.....	11.00
	16.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, Dee, Galvin.....	11.30
	19.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, Dee, Galvin.....	6.00
	21.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark.....	2.45
	28.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Howes, Pope..	5.95
	28.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark.....	1.55
July	5.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark.....	1.00
	9.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Pope, Dee, Galvin.....	13.95
	11.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Howes, Peters,	2.00
			59.10
June	13.	Steiert Brothers, plants	41.37
	11.	Justus Geist, "	16.00
July	18.	James O'Toole, "	15.84
June	16.	S. M. Grant, corn, oats and meal.....	15.15
	28.	J. E. Maynard, carriage, Howes..	$8.00
	30.	J. E. Maynard, carriage, John Dee.....	4.50
			12.50
	16.	Lampier & Richards, painting tree-guards	7.00
	25.	Sampson, Davenport & Co., directory.....	5.00
		Amount of August Draft	5,668.69
		Amount of pay-roll....	1,867.62
		Amount of pay-roll of discharged men....	2,612.75
July 21 to Aug. 20.		Owen Nawn, stone chips, gravel and team work.....	1,232.40
Aug.	20.	John Galvin, services, $183.00; tickets for workmen, $7.25.....	190.25
	15.	A. J. Tuttle, sprinkling Charles street, Boylston to Beacon street.....	125.00
July	15.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Dee, Galvin..	$5.45
	18.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Dee.....	1.80
	24.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Dee, Galvin..	8.87
	25.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, Robinson.....	2.95
Aug.	1.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, Dee, Galvin.....	6.55
	13.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Dee, Galvin..	5.25
			30.87
July 20 and Aug. 9.		S. M. Grant, corn and meal.....	15.40
July 1 to 18.		George T. McLauthlin & Co., repairing fences.....	14.99
Aug.	20.	James Devine, two oak barrels.....	4.00
	6.	J. E. Maynard, carriage, Galvin.....	2.00
July	20.	Owen Nawn, sods, $450; team work, $757.50.....	1,207.50
		Amount of September draft.....	7,302.78

		Amount of pay roll... 2,579.37
		Amount of pay roll of discharged men.... 2,261.01
Sept.	19.	John Reardon, on account of contract for care of sundry squares.....	600.00
	20.	Owen Nawn, team work, $387.50, and scds, $45.....	432.50
	24.	P. Callahan, on account of contract for care of East Boston squares.....	300.00
Oct.	1.	John Galvin, services, $183; tickets for workmen, $5.50.....	188.50
Sept.	15.	A. J. Tuttle, sprinkling Charles street, Boylston to Beacon street.....	125.00
	18.	Geo. J. Coyle, binding gravel.....	125.00
Aug.	21.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Dee, $4.15; Galvin, $0.75.....	$4.90
	28.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Robinson, Howes, Dee, Galvin, Flynn.	30.35
	29.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Galvin.....	60
Sept.	1.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark and Slade... ..	5.40
	5.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, Howes, Slade, Wilder, Thompson.....	11.80
	6.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, $4.90; Dee, $1.90....	6.80
	7.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, Dee, Galvin.....	8.50
	9.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark, Dee, Galvin.....	9.00
	11.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Dee, Galvin..	3.45
	13.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Clark and Howes.....	4.80
	14.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Dee, Slade and Smardon..	6.65
	15.	H. D. Parker, refreshments, Dee, Howes and Pope.....	11.15
			103.40
June 30 to Sept. 5.		James F. Marston, carpenters' work and stock.....	68.69
June 14 and Aug. 15.		Everett & Small, lawn mowers.....	40.00
August 25.		J. W. Leighton, repairing fountain independence square...	30.00
June 25 to Sept. 10.		S. Burrill, Jr., repairing tools.....	15.75
August 30.		S. M. Grant, corn and oats.....	9.80
"	28.	J. P. Barnard, carriage, Pope..	$4.00
"	31.	J. P. Barnard, carriage, Pope.	2.00
"	31.	Cambridgeport Diary Co., stamps, stationery, etc.....	8.58
Sept.	10.	Rockwell & Churchill, note paper.....	4.00
May	15.	George Billings, trees	3.75
July	9.	Scollan Bros., teaming...	3.00
		Amount of October Draft.....	6,904.35
		Total amount, including October Draft... ..	$62,239.76
		Payments have been made since Oct. 1, by the Treasurer, under authority of an ordinance of the City Council, to discharged men, amounting to.....	684.51
		Total payments to Oct. 15, 1877, inclusive.....	$62,924.27
		Average number of laborers employed, per day, 110.

The appropriation asked for by the committee early in the year was $70,700. This was reduced by the City Council, on the recommendation of the Committee on Auditor's Estimates, to $65,100.

No estimate, of course, was made by the committee, when asking for their appropriation, for work on the Army and Navy Monument grounds, as it was uncertain at that time when the monument would be completed.

Appropriation.....$65,100.00
Expenses up to Oct. 15..... 62,924.27

Balance unexpended..... $2,175.73

The committee estimate that, in addition to the balance unexpended, there will be required the sum of $15,000, divided as follows:

For material used in grading and putting in order the Monument grounds..... $6,000.00
Teaming, tools, bulbs, etc..... 1,500.00
Labor and general expenses..... 7,500.00
$15,000.00

The committee respectfully recommend that the subject be referred to the Committee on Finance, with the request that they provide the means.

Respectfully submitted,

For the Committee,

OSBORNE HOWES, JR.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I should like to ask the Chairman of the Committee what this $7500 is to be expended for? They ask for $15,000 additional. As I understand, this grading of the Monument will cost $6000, and for teaming, tools, etc., $1500, and $7500 for labor and general expenses. I should like to know what that $7500 is for?

Mr. Howes—Probably the greater proportion of that will be spent in labor. That is about the only item of expense which will be incurred during the winter and spring months.

Mr. Sampson—I should like to ask the Chairman where the labor is to be used at this season of the year, and between now and the 1st of May? Seventy-five hundred dollars is a very large item for labor.

Mr. Howes—I believe that it will require the work of some five or six weeks, with a large number of men, to complete the work around the soldiers' monument. That will cover at least about a thousand dollars of the appropriation. The balance of the money would be necessary to pay the men during the six months that will ensue until another appropriation is made. The department has been accustomed to have in their employ during the winter some twenty men—possibly a little more. It will depend somewhat upon the year. Last year they had a large number of men employed during the spring in consequence of the snow being carted on to the Common from the streets—a contingency likely to happen if we have a severe winter again.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—What is meant by general expenses?

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I would draw attention to the fact that the joint rule which was the occasion of the referring of this matter to the committee requires that they shall report not merely in print a detailed statement of the expenditures already made, but a detailed statement of the necessity for an additional appropriation. Now we have no details of the necessity for an additional appropriation. We have a general statement that $7500 will be required for labor and general expenses. It seems to me that is hardly giving a detailed statement such as the rule requires.

Mr. Howes—I should like to ask the gentleman if it would be possible for him to make up a detailed statement of his expenses for the coming year? There are certain expenses that the committee must meet that are not contemplated at present—that no one knows anything about. The bulk of that money will be spent for labor, probably. There is the item. The words "general expenses" are put in to cover possible contingencies.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—By figuring up the expense of labor by twenty men for the balance of the year, I find that it will be about $7000. I would like to ask the chairman of the committee if he thinks that less than twenty men can take care of the Common for the balance of the year?

Mr. Howes—If the committee have n't money enough for the remaining months of this current year, the number of men will be cut down to meet the money, however small that may be.

Mr. Thompson—What I would like to ask is, How many men are necessary to take anything like proper care of the public grounds—that is to say, anything like the average care which they get through the winter?

Mr. Howes—I believe that twenty men have been employed there during the winter—one of the members of the committee says thirty. Mr. Galvin's estimate at the committee meeting on Tuesday was that this amount of money would suffice for the rest of this fiscal year. The estimate was drawn up, and he was questioned, and went over his figures again, and then he was quite sure that that amount would be sufficient.

Just the exact number of men required to keep the Common in proper condition I am not in a position to state. It varies a great deal with the state of the weather. Possibly fifteen men might do; possibly twenty-five would be necessary. He thinks it can be done with something like twenty men.

Mr. Crocker—It seems to me that the figures given by Mr. Galvin are exactly the figures we ought to have here. It seems that he did figure up something. He did make a statement in detail to the committee, and that statement is something that we ought to have here.

Mr. Smardon of Ward 10—This $7000 includes the salaries of Mr. Galvin and his assistant.

Mr. Barnard of Ward 24—Can the chairman of the committee give the details of the expense of putting the monument grounds in order?

Mr. Howes—Thus far there has been a very little over $5000 expended. At my request Mr. Galvin made a statement of the amount used—Martin Hayes, loam, $490.50; George Coyle, $504; Owen Nawn, loam, $2075; Owen Nawn, gravel and chips, $1308, making a total of $5159.50. Mr. Galvin estimated that a certain amount of material would be required—not a very large amount—and he thought this $6000 would cover all the necessary additions to the materials.

Mr. Sampson—As the committee have a balance unexpended of $2175, and the item of labor and general expenses seems to be very doubtful, I move to amend the motion so that the report will be referred to the Finance Committee with the request that they provide twelve thousand dollars instead of fifteen thousand. It seems to me that this is the amount we originally intended to give the committee; but they have gone on and expended more than that without any authority—some four thousand dollars in excess of their appropriation. They now come in ask us to give them $11,000 additional. It seems to me that that is an excessive amount this year, when we have required all committees to get along with closer economy. The sum referred to the Committee on Finance should express the wishes of the Council. Whatever sum is referred to them they will report. I therefore move to amend by making the amount $12,000.

Mr. Crocker—I understood the gentleman to say that the amount spent for loam around the Soldiers' Monument was between $3000 and $4000?

Mr. Howes—$3700.

Mr. Crocker—For loam? I should like to know how much the loam cost per cart load? Or how it is sold, so as to get some idea of the amount that is supposed to be put around that monument. From my experience it seems to me that $3700 for loam would be a great deal to cover that hill with.

Mr. Howes—In making this statement the gentleman must take into account the fact that the committee have incurred bills which have not been paid, and, therefore, they are not on this list. There are outstanding expenses—such as, for instance, the pay of the men discharged on Saturday last, who have to wait for their money until the City Government provides the money. There is a certain sum—not very large—required for that, but more than enough to eat up the balance of the unexpended balance. There are also two bills, one of which is for seeds—about $800. There is some question whether one item was properly put in or not; it was referred to a sub-committee, and the committee, as a whole, have not passed upon it, and therefore it is not here. There is another bill that has been incurred, as I said at the last meeting, for plants on Commonwealth avenue and the Public Garden—

Mr. Sampson—I would call the gentleman's attention to the item of $1500 for teaming, tools, bulbs, etc.

Mr. Howes—I take that back. I forgot it. The other bill is not here. The other bill, as I understand, is for the laborers who are waiting for their pay.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—This report resembles the rising moon in one respect. It grows larger as you look at it. As I cast my eye over the expenses for refreshments and carriage hire, I noticed that for the first six months of the year they have been $700. Now, the gentleman from Ward 9 has figured the expense of twenty men to be $7000 for the remainder of the fiscal year. I suppose, therefore, that the item of general expenses added to the labor must be for refreshments.

Mr. Pope of Ward 14—That is it.

Mr. Pratt—Which the committee have very economically reduced in amount two hundred dollars from what it has been for the last six months. That looks very commendable so far, and it seems to be very clear and plain. But there is this fact to be taken into account; it is forgotten that the chairman of the committee, who seems to be so clear and full in his statements generally, says that it will be necessary to employ a large number of men for some time to complete the grading of Flagstaff Hill. I don't see where he gets any appropriation for that expense. Twenty men during the remainder of the fiscal year, with the ordinary amount of refreshments and carriage hire, will swell this item of seven thousand dollars beyond its present proportions. I would ask where have they made any allowance for the necessary grading around Flagstaff Hill?

Mr. Howes—It seems to me to be exceedingly difficult to satisfy the various gentlemen, particularly on the other side of the house. One gentleman complains that the appropriation is too large, and another that it ought to be cut down. Two others are desirous that it should be increased in order to meet what they consider might be possible expenses. Now, sir, I am prepared to stick by the original motion of the committee. Possibly it will come in between the ideas of the other gentlemen on the subject. The fact is that seventy-five hundred dollars are supposed in the mind of the Superintendent to be sufficient to carry this on. We may employ twenty men during the winter, or we may employ only ten. I am not quite certain. But the Superintendent seemed to think that with that money he could maintain the Department of Common and Squares, so far as labor is concerned, and also finish what work remained to be done around the Soldiers' Monument. I don't think I have any further explanation to make in regard to that. I should imagine that it would be absolutely impossible to make a certain estimate of the exact number of men to be employed, although I think the department has shown its weakness in the past, in being perhaps rather reckless in the employment of men and putting more on than are necessary.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—As there is a committee appointed to give this matter a thorough investigation, I fail to see any occasion for discussing it tonight. This motion is merely to refer it to the Committee on Finance. It will come back here and will require a two-thirds vote to pass it. We shall probably get the reports of the Finance Committee and the Investigating Committee at the same time, and so have something definite to act upon.

Mr. Sampson—It seems to me that this department ought to get along with $12,000 for the balance of the year, having already expended so much money. If we add $12,000, it will be one-fifth of the original appropriation, and it ought to satisfy that committee. I trust the amendment will prevail.

Mr. Thompsou of Ward 9—I for one am not inclined to add any more to the difficulties which already press upon this unfortunate committee. Remembering that about half, or a little more than half, of the fifteen thousand dollars asked for has been already expended, and understanding that some fifteen hundred dollars more are practically expended, because there is a necessity for it out of the usual course, I believe that it leaves six thousand dollars for the care of the Common and squares. Now, the practical question for us is, Do we intend to retain in the city employ during the winter any men to take care of the Common and squares? It seems to me that for the general employment of the men, after paying the necessary amounts, it will leave about five thousand dollars. That will not employ more than fifteen men on an average. During the first five months of the year they employed on an average one hundred and ten men. I do not think they can do with less than fifteen thousand dollars. If they are going to do anything at all I think we had better give them enough to do it with. If we give them too little it is only a waste.

Mr. Sampson's amendment was lost, and the report was referred to the Finance Committee. Sent up.

REFRESHMENTS.

The resolve relating to wines, cigars, etc., came down amended by adding that no carriages be allowed after the adjournment of either branch.

Mr. Coe of Ward 23 moved to amend by inserting after "carriages" the words, "no meals or refreshments of any kind," so that neither carriages nor meals would be furnished after a session of either branch.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I hope the amendment will prevail as it came from the other branch. As I read this amendment just offered it occurs that any gentleman might go down five minutes before the adjournment and order a carriage. I move to add the words "During or at any portion of any meeting, or at the expiration thereof."

Mr. Pope of Ward 14—I think the whole City Government ought to stand on the same basis in this matter. Under this order one member will have a great advantage over the rest of the City Government. He smokes cigarettes and does not smoke cigars, and when the cigars are ordered up he orders cigarettes, and of course don't think of returning those that are not smoked, and of course carries off the half a bunch or more. I don't think he ought to have any more advantage than the rest of us, and I move to insert cigarettes.

The President—That would not be in order.

Mr. McGaragle—I accept that as part of my amendment to the amendment.

The President—Will the gentleman state where he would have it inserted?

Mr. Pope—After cigars.

The President—It is not in order.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—As I think this has gone far enough, and as this was only put in for buucombe and was not intended to have any effect, being only a resolve, I move the indefinite postponement of the whole subject.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I agree with the gentleman, that this is fooling with a subject that ought not to be trifled with, and that we had better postpone the whole subject than carry on the discussion in the tone in which it has been carried on. Still, I think there is need of something to be done on this subject, and I had prepared a substitute for this resolve, which I had hoped that any gentlemen who are desirous of stopping any improper junketing would be willing to vote for. I will read the proposed substitute for the information of the Council:

"Ordered, That the joint rules and orders of the City Council be amended by adding to the twentieth rule the following: No bills for refreshments shall be approved unless accompanied by a full statement of the items composing the same, and any citizen shall at all times be entitled to inspect or make a copy of said bills or statements."

I have had a little experience of my own during the past week, which perhaps I may relate, to show some of the reasons why I offered this particular order. Some two or three weeks ago I dined with the Committee on Public Lands. There were four of us and we had a pretty good dinner. I made some note of what the bill ought to be when it came around, and of what we had had. I was on the watch for the bill, and when it came around at the middle of this month I got hold of it. I found that the bill represented that I and two others had dined at an expense to the city of $18.95, or $6.32 apiece. It seemed to me that that was rather startling. In the first place, by omitting the name of one gentleman, it increased my proportion largely; and in the second place I was utterly at a loss to conceive how the bill could have been so large for the four. I therefore made some inquiries to find out how the bill was made up. The only items I have ever been able to get are two; one of fourteen dollars and forty-five cents for the dinner for four gentlemen, and another of four dollars and fifty cents for cigars. That last item surprised me. I happened not to smoke at all, and I didn't take any cigars, and how the cigars should amount to four dollars and fifty cents seemed to me to be rather strange. I have made inquiries, and as near as I can find out, those cigars must have been charged at twenty-five cents apiece and they must have gone to the other three gentlemen. I am very certain that number of cigars was never produced at the table; and whether any gentleman went to the cigar counter afterwards and had his pockets filled with cigars at the expense of the city, or how that large amount of cigars got charged to the city, I am unable to say. At Mr. Parker's they were unable to tell me what number of cigars were furnished, or at what price. It is impossible for me to say whether there were thirty-six cigars at twelve and a half cents apiece or eighteen at twenty-five cents apiece. That is one reason why it seems to me that these bills should be accompanied by a statement of what the articles were. If this bill had been accompanied with a statement of eighteen cigars for four and a half dollars, we might have been able to judge where the eighteen disappeared to; and if we knew that only three cigars were given to each gentleman around the table, we might have found out where the other nine went to and who got them. Then, in regard to this fourteen dollars and forty-five cents for dinners for four gentlemen, I find that there is apparently no record at Parker's as to how that amount was made up. From my recollection of the dinner, it seems to me it was rather a large item; but still I cannot say positively but it was correct. I feel confident, however, that it included something more than we had at the table at that time. For that reason it seems to me that when all these bills are presented to be approved and paid, they should be accompanied by a statement of what was had. I should not want a statement that A had such and such articles, dividing it up to show what each man had. It seems to me that if a gentleman goes with three or four to a dinner, it is proper enough that he should stand his share of the responsibility for the whole party, but with every bill there should be a little memorandum showing what were had at the time. This would tend to make things plain, and to satisfy gentlemen that they have not been overcharged, and that they are not paying for a dinner eaten by somebody else the day before. I think that this rule will prevent the things which we do not wish to have done. In that way a gentleman would feel that his party would be charged with what they had and with nothing more; and it would be a protection against charges being foisted off from one man to another in a manner that ought to be stopped. I have added a provision that any citizen of Boston may at any time be entitled to inspect and make copies of these bills. If we dine at the expense of the city, I think we ought not to be ashamed to have the citizens of Boston know when we do so and what it costs. I think it all ought to be open and above board. I for one am willing and desirous that any citizen shall know what I eat at the expense of the city and how much I get out of the city in that indirect way. I believe that it is often proper for gentlemen to get refreshments at the city's expense. I believe it is proper that gentlemen who stay here late at night, and who live in remote parts of the city—which I do not—should be taken home at the city's expense. There are a good many of these expenses which I believe are proper; but they should be open and avowed and definite, so that a man who has had something to eat, which he should not have had, cannot avoid the responsibility for it, and so that the responsibility for improper junketing bills cannot be put on those who are not responsible for them.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—I hope this resolve will not be indefinitely postponed. It is a little remarkable how such a simple resolution as that was, when it first was offered here, should grow to such proportions as it has. The principal scandal of city eating and drinking has been in the matter of champagne. Now, in order to meet that, introduce a reform by degrees. I introduced an order here that hereafter no wine should be furnished, simply intending to stop up the bung of the barrel and let the spigot run a little longer, until the moral tone of the City Council was up to the proper degree for the passage of an order such as this has grown to be. Now, I think that met with an almost unanimous approval here—at least an overwhelming majority approved of it. But there are certain gentlemen here who have been very assiduous in offering amendments to this order. I have one gentleman in my mind now who assiduously offered an amendment on the first evening; who followed it to the Board of Aldermen, and there proposed an amendment that it might come back to this Council, and who illustrates the reverse of that well-understood fact, that if you hit a man in his belly it takes him off his feet very quickly. But you hit some men in their bellies and it brings them on to their feet, and they keep coming on. I don't want this order indefinitely postponed. I should not object to the substitute which the gentleman proposes to offer in its place. I think with him that any citizen of Boston interested enough to go to the Auditor's office should be able to see the items for such expenditure, no matter what department it relates to; and as the practice is otherwise, and as I understand there is some instruction to the Auditor which makes his practice otherwise, I think some such order should be introduced here. If this motion prevails, and if the gentleman will offer his substitute, I shall be glad to see it adopted. But this resolution, with the amendments added in this branch, was passed by a large vote. It went to the Aldermen and they made this amendment, which the gentleman urges the adoption of, there, and did not even then satisfy himself, but at the same time he has another amendment with which to clog the wheels of progress. My object in offering that resolution has been attained. Both branches of the City Council of Boston have expressed their opinion through that resolution that it is better to dispense with wines at entertainments at the city's expense, and I am particularly interested, whether the resolution is finally adopted here with the amendment or not. But I think that, to be consistent with ourselves, and show the Board of Aldermen that we are not fooling when we send up such a resolution as this, and that we will accept such an amendment, and are only carrying out the spirit of the original resolve, I think we will do well to adopt this resolve just as it came from the Board of Aldermen.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—While this subject is up I should like to make a personal explanation in connection with this printed report of the Committee on Common and Squares. Among the list of gentlemen dining with the Committee on Common and Squares I find that the name of Thompson appears in several cases, and I wish to say that I am not the man.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—The gentleman from Ward 21 seems to think somebody is laboring very hard to kill this resolve. He says a member of this Council went down to the Board of Aldermen and had an amendment tacked on there for the purpose of bringing it back. I am the party alluded to. I notified the clerk of this branch that I proposed to move a reconsideration of that vote, but at the request of several gentlemen I withdrew it. My object was this—The gentleman who offered this resolve took a carriage and rode home last Thursday night, an expense to the city of $8. That would have bought a pretty good dinner. And in regard to hitting men on the belly, I would say that if this resolve passes there will be no belly on him to knock off.

Mr. Sampson—My reason for moving to indefinitely postpone is because it really amounts to nothing. It merely hoodwinks the public. The order of the gentleman from Ward 9 would be something more substantial in restricting this matter, and I should heartily vote for it. I voted against this because I thought it was a buncombe resolution. We usually have such resolutions offered just before election, and are accustomed to them. I doubted the sincerity of the mover and moved to indefinitely postpone.

Mr. Pratt—I wish to answer the statement of the gentleman who stated that on last Thursday evening I rode home at an expense of $8 to the city of Boston. The session was very late, and I did enter a carriage with three others who were going a greater distance from City Hall than I was, and therefore I became responsible for one quarter of the expense of that carriage. If I had ordered a coach and four and driven out to my house in fine style, and stopped on the way and entertained myself and those who were with me, at the city expense, in a jovial way, before I got there, I should have been doing something that the gentleman might compare to taking champagne after a dinner at the city expense when we were out visiting the line of the proposed parks. I don't mean to intimate that the gentleman from Ward 8 would do anything of that sort, or that he has been just as assiduous in preventing the champagne bottles from being passed around after dinner as he has been assiduous in preventing this resolution from being passed. But I mean to say that I do not see any parallel in the case of taking carriages to remote parts of the city when the street cars have stopped running, and when gentlemen, on stormy nights, must walk some distance before they reach their homes. I have no doubt that when the gentleman urged that amendment he thought that thereby he could nip some poor unfortunate man who lives at a greater distance than he does. He happens to be one of those near-by West Enders; but if he happened to live at Brighton or West Roxbury he would be more tender of carriages.

On motion of Mr. Felt the main question was ordered.

Mr. McGaragle's amendment was lost by a division—4 for, 40 against.

Mr. Coe's amendment was lost—14 for, 28 against. The Council refused to concur in the amendment of the other branch. Sent up.

Subsequently Mr. McGaragle moved a reconsideration of the refusal to concur with the amendment of the other branch in relation to carriages.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—I wish to say now, what I intended to say when this matter was up before. This amendment referring to carriages was moved in the Board of Aldermen for the purpose of pointing out an expense peculiar to this branch. As a member living near City Hall, and, therefore, one not using carriages after our adjournments, I wish to point out the impropriety of adding this amendment to a resolve aimed at abuses and not at proper expenses. This Council meeting in the evening and remaining till late hours, members who live at a distance can only reach home by taking carriages either at their own expense or at the city's. It seems to me that this is an expense directly connected with the proper carrying on of the city's business, and, therefore, not to be connected with extravagant expenditures for wines and cigars. On the other hand, the Board meets in the afternoon, and adjourns in time to eat an expensive dinner at the city's expense. The amendment of the gentleman from Ward 23 would reach this point, and on principle I believe that this amendment is more in the spirit of the original resolve than is that relating to carriages.

It seems to me that the adoption of this amendment by the Board of Aldermen was a trifling with public business, especially unbecoming on the part of a body which should be more dignified and sober than this branch of the City Council.

Mr. McGaragle—I offered the motion because I thought some gentleman would like to move an indefinite postponement.

The reconsideration was refused. Sent up.

LOANS FOR PARK PURPOSES.

An order came down for the Mayor to petition the Legislature for an act authorizing the city of Boston to borrow money for park improvements for a period not exceeding thirty years.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9 moved to amend by striking out the words "not exceeding" and inserting "not less than."

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I trust the amendment will not prevail. The usual form will be the better one, and leave it to the discretion of future Finance Committees how long they want to borrow the money for. An exigency may arise which we cannot anticipate at present, and it seems to me we had better not restrict them; and if we give them the limit of thirty years, it ought to be all that we should ask of them.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—I doubt the expediency of that amendment. It is in effect that you cannot pay your debts when you have money in the city treasury to pay it with. It is inexpedient and impolitic. I hardly feel confident to discuss it this moment and give good reasons which I feel exist against it; but I do not think it a wise amendment.

Mr. Thompson—It has always been conceded that the payment of money borrowed for a public improvement, such as a park, should be extended over at least thirty years, for the reason that the benefit which is conferred is not confined to any one year, but extends over a long series of years, and it has been considered that the payment for such benefits should be continued through a correspondingly long period of time. When this question was first considered a great banking house in London—the Barings, I think—offered to take the entire amount on a fifty-years' annuity; that is to say, the city would pay interest for fifty years and never pay the principal. The reason this order was offered is that the park act provided that a loan might be issued for such time as the City Council provided. The next week the municipal indebtedness act was passed, and it has been so construed that the City Council is confined to borrowing money for ten years. The Joint Special Committee on Parks had a meeting and deemed it expedient that the Mayor should be asked to petition the Legislature to restore the power given in the park act to borrow money on a long loan. As originally drawn, the order was in the form of "not less than" thirty years (I drew it, and I think I am authority on this subject); however, before it was introduced in the Board of Aldermen it was changed to "not exceeding" thirty years, which cuts off the power which it seems to me it might be desirable for the City Council to have taking a loan in the form of an annuity. If it is deemed inexpedient to say "not less than thirty years," it seems to me it would be better to strike out all reference to the number of years, and let future governments have full authority over the subject. I do not see any objections to saying "not less than," because the point raised, that the city cannot pay off its debts, is not a matter of fact, as it already owns a large number of its bonds, which are not due for years to come. We are about to issue bonds for sewer purposes, and it is exceedingly probable that the Sinking Fund Commissioners will take the most of that loan themselves, and it is merely a question of securities held in the Sinking Funds.

Mr. Sampson—The Sinking Fund Commissioners cannot invest in loans that mature beyond the loans for the funds for which they are provided, and therefore it would be impossible for the city of Boston to take the new loan for improved sewerage. It would be highly indiscreet for the city to fix this loan in a shape that it cannot be issued for less than thirty years. In laying out parks, there undoubtedly will be a large amount of betterments assessed, and the policy has been to extinguish so much of the loan as the betterments would cover. If the amendment prevails it will be almost impossible to do that, and we will be paying interest on a larger amount than is necessary.

Mr. Thompson—I don't want to discuss the question of the Sinking Funds now; but one statement of the chairman of the Committee on Finance surprises me greatly. If his construction of the law is correct, I am greatly mistaken. He states that the Sinking Fund Commissioners cannot invest in bonds which mature before the loans for which they are set apart. I don't know exactly what effect this matter of betterments will have; there may be something in it. I have not considered it particularly, and if there is no objection I would withdraw my motion to insert "not less than," and move to strike out the words "not exceeding thirty years."

Mr. Thompson's amendment was lost, by a division—15 for, 26 against.

The order was passed in concurrence.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Order for a transfer of $500 from Reserved Fund to appropriation for Treasurer's Department, to pay the salary of the Messenger for said department during the present financial year. Passed in concurrence—yeas 55, nays 0.

SALARIES OF LICENSE COMMISSIONERS.

The order in relation to the salaries of the License Commissioners was considered under unfinished business, in the form of a motion to lay on the table the motion to reconsider the vote whereby was denied a second reading to the order that the salaries of said commissioners be at the rate of $2500 each per annum, from the date of their appointment.

The question was on ordering the yeas and nays, which were ordered. The motion to table was lost—yeas 3, nays 56.

Yeas—Messrs. Blanchard, Fraser, Kidney—3.

Nays—Messrs. Barnard, Barry, Beeching, Blodgett, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Coe, Crocker, Cross, Danforth, Day, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fagan, Felt, Fernald, J. J. Flynn, Ham, Hibbard, Hiscock, Howes, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), McDonald, McGaragle, Morrill, Mowry, Mullane, Nugent, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Perham, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Roach, Roberts, Ruffin, Sampson, Sibley, Smardon, Souther, Stone, Thompson, Thorndike, Upham, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—56.

Absent or not voting—Brintnail, Brown, Cox, D. A. Flynn, Loughlin, McClusky, Pearl, Pope, Pratt, Reed, Shepard, Spenceley—12.

On motion of Mr. Sampson of Ward 17, the yeas and nays were ordered on the motion to reconsider.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 hoped the reconsideration would prevail, as he understood some gentleman proposed to offer an amendment that would be satisfactory.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10 asked if the sum was named in his amendment rejected at the last meeting ($2000).

Mr. Flynn understood it was, and that it would be satisfactory to the commissioners.

Mr. Sampson said it would open the door for other departments where injustice had been done, and instanced the case of the City Engineer, who has more work and responsibility than ever before, and was reduced $500. It was in the nature of a salary grab.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5 said it was never too late to mend mistakes. This salary was reduced three-fifths, and no other salary was reduced so much. He did not approve of so much appointing power, but these men had worked satisfactorily and he hoped the reconsideration would prevail.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11 said it was in the nature of a contract. The city established the salary, and the commissioners took the office and agreed to perform the duties for that sum. He doubted whether Mr. Sibley would give an employe more after he had worked five months, and had agreed to work one year for the same sum.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21 urged that the Council should be consistent. They had refused an amendment offered by him to make the salary $2000, and should let it remain at $1000.

Mr. Danforth of Ward 10 said the Salary Committee had investigated and found the duties worth $2500.

The reconsideration was lost—yeas 26, nays 41.

Yeas—Brown, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Cox, Cross, Danforth, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, J. J. Flynn, Howes, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 6), McDonald, McGaragle, Mullane, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Roach, Ruffin, Sibley, Souther, Stone, Thorndike, Warren—26.

Nays—Barnard, Barry, Beeching, Blanchard, Blodgett, Brintnall, Coe, Crocker, Day, Fagan, Felt, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, Fraser, Ham, Hibbard, Hiscock, Kelley (Ward 3), Kidney, Morrill, Mowry, Nugent, Pearl, Perham, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, Pope, Pratt, Reed, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Roberts, Sampson, Smardon, Spenceley, Thompson, Upham, Vose, E. R. Webster, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—41.

Absent or not voting—Loughlin, McClusky, Shepard—3.

PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17 presented a communication from the Directors for Public Institutions as follows:

The town of Winthrop tax on the Winthrop Farm for the present year amounts to $1130.82, while the balance of New Lunatic Hospital appropriation, which can be devoted to the purpose of paying the same is but $628.21.

In order to save to the city a discount of six per cent. on all bills paid previous to Oct. 1, amounting to $67.85, the Board of Directors assumed the responsibility of paying the bill, making up the balance of $434.76 from the House of Industry appropriation. They now respectfully request the City Council to sanction that action, and increase the New Lunatic Hospital appropriation by the transfer of $434.76 from the House of Industry appropriation.

Referred to the Committee on Finance, with a request for said committee to make the necessary appropriation. Sent up.

Referred, on motion of Mr. Sampson, to the Committee on Finance, with a request that they authorize the transfer. Sent up.

PETITIONS PRESENTED.

Petition of Mrs. Kate Chamberlain to be paid for personal injuries caused by the accident on Blackstone square. Referred to Joint Committee on Claims. Sent up.

By Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—Petition of Ann E. Porter to be compensated for injuries received on Dudley street. Referred to Joint Committee on Claims. Sent up.

INSPECTION OF REFRESHMENT BILLS.

Mr. Crocker offered an order—That the joint rules and orders of the City Council be amended by adding to the sixteenth rule the following: No bill for refreshments shall be approved or paid unless it is accompanied by a full statement of the items composing such refreshments, and any citizen of Boston shall be entitled at all times to inspect or make copies of any such bill or statement.

Mr. Crocker—I have said all I wish to say in reference to this subject. Even if the resolve we have had before us should be passed, it would be very proper to pass this in addition, though I should prefer to see the resolve shelved in some way, because I do not think it amounts to anything.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I trust the order will pass. It was my duty this evening to present a very full report of the refreshment expenses of one committee in the City Government, and I can say that when the matter was discussed in detail in committee it was very apparent that most of the members of the committee were convinced that they never incurred the charges set down to their names. I know there are charges put down there to my name that I have not the slightest recollection of having incurred, or of having been at the Parker House at the time. However, they were down on the bills, and I was not prepared to state that they were not correct. With other members the charges seemed to be excessive, when they supposed that they had moderate lunches. I don't know that the gentleman in charge of the financial department of Mr. Parker's establishment makes mistakes, but certainly these bills come to us in very large amounts without giving us the means of knowing whether they are right or wrong. In our committee the bills are approved by the committee. It is rarely that a committee meeting takes place when all are there; and more than that every bill is sent in five or six weeks after it was incurred, and it is almost impossible for a member to state what he had for dinner five or six weeks ago without having the date and amount given him; and if a mistake be made in making up the accounts it is impossible to correct it.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—Several gentlemen have spoken to me in reference to the inaccessibility of the bills in the Auditor's office. One gentleman said he had been there, roused by something said in the public prints, and asked to see certain bills. He was informed that he could not see them unless he gave the date of the expense and the bill. That is impossible for outsiders to do, and this will be a proper way to have the Auditor's bills and vouchers kept. Such complaints of citizens are proper, and if they take an interest in the bills they pay, they have the right to get the facts and see the bills at the Auditor's office, within a reasonable time. The bills in that office should be open for the inspection of the citizens at any time.

Mr. Spenceley—It seems to me we are always acting a farce of this kind. At the first of the year I offered an order like this, and after debating it for some evenings it went to the Board of Aldermen and was indefinitely postponed. I am glad that the gentleman from Ward 18 has changed his mind. [Mr. Spenceley read an extract from Mr. Howes's speech in opposition to Mr. S.'s order to furnish the details of all refreshment bills and what each member had, in which Mr. Howes disapproved of going into such details.] Now he has got back to the same point, and that is what we want. I don't suppose the gentleman from Ward 9 thinks this will be passed in the other branch, but I trust it will go down with such a vote as passed the resolve.

Mr. Howes—The gentleman is a little out of the way, as usual. This order is quite different from the one he suggested some months ago. That made it obligatory to give what each individual had.

Mr. Burke—I think we are going pretty fast. I think this is a subject for the Committee on Rules and Orders, and I move its reference to them.

Mr. Crocker—I think the Council can determine this question themselves, but if the committee desire it referred to them I have no objection.

On motion of Mr. Webster of Ward 3 the main question was ordered.

The order was a read a second time, and for the purpose of preventing further delay Mr. Webster of Ward 3 again moved the previous question.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—This requires a two-thirds vote, and if the gentleman attempts to force this thing through tonight I think there are enough here to kill it. I think it should be referred to the proper committee.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—This is just as near right as it can be, and is just as sure to be defeated as I am standing here. My only point is that those who want to vote for it can do so and not lose time discussing.

The main question was ordered. On motion of Mr. Pierce of Ward 24 the main question was ordered, and the roll was called.

Before the vote was declared, Mr. Kelley of Ward 3 and Fraser of Ward 6 explained that they voted as they did because, although they do not drink wine, they are willing that those who do drink it should have the privilege of doing so.

The order was passed—yeas 48, nays 16:

Yeas—Messrs. Barnard, Barry, Beeching, Blanchard, Blodgett, Brintnall, Brown, Coe, Crocker, Danforth, Day, Duggan, Fagan, Felt, D. A. Flynn, Ham, Hibbard, Hiscock, Howes, Jackson, Kidney, McDonald, Morrill, Mowry, Nugent, Perham, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, Pope, Pratt, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Roberts, Ruffin, Sibley, Smardon, Souther, Spenceley, Stone, Thompson, Thorndike, Upham, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—48.

Nays—Messrs. Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Cox, Cross, Dee, Doherty, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), McGaragle, Mnlane, O'Donnell, Pearl, Roach—16.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Fernald, Loughlin, McClusky, O'Connor, Reed, Sampson, Shepard—7.

A motion to reconsider, by Mr. Crocker, hoping it would not prevail was lost. Sent up.

INVESTIGATION OF A FIRE COMMISSIONER.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20 offered an order, That the Joint Standing Committee on Fire Department be directed to ascertain and report to the City Council the number of meetings held by the Board of Fire Commissioners from the first day of May last to the present time, the names of the absentees, if any, at such meetings, and the cause of their being absent.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—Before we vote upon this order I hope the gentleman who offered the order will explain his reason for so doing, or what grounds there are for such action by the City Council. Unless some facts are brought forward showing neglect of duty by the Fire Commissioners, it is merely impertinence to offer such an order.

Mr. Wilbur—That board is composed of three commissioners, and I always supposed they had meetings and passed upon questions with all present. In looking over the records some time ago, I found that from Aug. 1 to Oct. 17 there had been one member of this board absent for thirty meetings, and I thought that sufficient ground for asking by what authority and for what reasons a member was absent from that number of meetings. It is well known that the commissioners hold the members of the department to strict rules, and if they are absent from duty three minutes they are fined. I should like to have this matter investigated, and if they are accountable to no one it is time we knew it. If they are accountable to this City Council it is proper for us to know why they are absent so often in that short space of time.

Mr. Thompson—I have no doubt every member of the commission should be accountable to this City Government for neglect of duty, and that was my reason for inquiring the reason for putting in this order. After the explanation of the gentleman, I am not prepared to say what rights there may be in this matter, but with the explanation I will vote for the order.

The order was read a second time.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—Before the vote, I should like to hear from the gentleman from Ward 19.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I should be so glad to answer the man, or gentleman, from Ward 21. I don't know whether he has seen the new moon coming out tonight or not. I was in the commissioners' office, the other day, and found on inquiry that one of the commissioners had n't been seen there for a week. I don't know where he is. I don't know how often they have a vacation. I don't know but they have a vacation all the time. I don't know whether they are accountable here or not; but I think they ought to be accountable to somebody. I think the City Council ought to know something about it. I am glad the gentleman put in the order; no fireman asked me to do it, but I think some good may be done to the city by it. I did n't believe he was a competent man to be appointed, and I don't believe it today.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I cannot feel satisfied to vote for this order. Unless some plausible reason is shown for supposing that the commissioners have not been performing their duty, I think this is rather an impertinent and unreasonable inquiry. I cannot think there is any justification for it. I know that certain parties in the Common Council are always trying to pick upon the Fire Commissioners. I have reason to suppose that these commissioners attend to their duties as well as other officers, and if one or more of them happens to go outside of the city, I do not think it is becoming for us to start an investigation to find out where he went—what he went for, and how long he was gone. It seems to me to be rather an undignified proceed, ing.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—It is very apparent to the Council that it depends upon whose ox is gored here. Last Thursday night an order was put in asking for a committee to look into the doings of the Superintendent of Common and Squares. Tonight a gentleman puts in an order asking a committee to inquire whether a member of the Fire Commissioners has been doing his duty, and the gentleman opposes it. I cannot see the gentleman's consistency. I shall vote for the order and let it strike where it will.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—I don't see any especial answer to the point made by the gentleman opposite. There are three or four gentlemen in this Council with pretty square-toed boots to take every opportunity to kick the Fire Commissioners. I think their wish would be further embodied in the order if it were amended, and that each member of the Fire Commissioners be required to wear a placard on his back reading, "Cussed be Canaan."

Mr. Crocker—I wish to say one word in answer to the charge of inconsistency. With regard to the Superintendent of Public Grounds charges were made in this Council to the effect that he had deceived and misled the committee, and had led them into an expenditure of $9000, which overrun their appropriation, when they were supposing they were only incurring an expense of three hundred or four hundred dollars. It seemed that that was a serious matter that required investigation. If an official had deceived a committee, it ought to be looked into. I understood that that charge was made. I expressed no opinion of the truth or falsity of the charge; but it seemed to be a serious charge against a city official. But for us to go into inquiries as to how long a city official's vacation should be—

Mr. Spenceley (interrupting)—Are any of the Fire Commissioners on a vacation?

Mr. Crocker—I know nothing about it.

Mr. Spenceley—That is what we want to know. If he is on a vacation it is all right; if not, it is n't.

Mr. Crocker—I suppose city officials take more or less vacation and get away from their offices at such times. I think it is impertinent in this City Council to be picking upon those officials; still I don't wish to make any more talk about the matter. I merely wish to say that I am not willing to vote for such an order.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—Has the gentleman from Ward 20 any reason to believe that the Fire Commissioners have neglected their duties?

Mr. Wilbur—It seemed to me that a member of that board being absent from thirty meetings in so short a time, between Aug. 21 and Oct. 17, it could n't be otherwise than that there must be some duties neglected.

Mr. Mowry—Is there any excuse for this absence, within the gentleman's own knowledge? Was the Commissioner sick or not?

Mr. Wilbur—That is what I want to find out.

Mr. Thompson—Before offering the order did the gentleman take any steps to ascertain the cause of this absence, or make any inquiries as to why the gentleman was absent?

Mr. Wilbur—I did not.

Mr. Thompson—During what part of this time was he absent? Was it distributed over all the time?

Mr. Wilbur—It seemed to be pretty evenly distributed over all the time, sometimes four or five days at a time, and then, perhaps, he would attend a meeting, and then be absent two or three days again.

Mr. Sibley of Ward 5—I believe we have a very good fire commission. I voted for all three of these men, supposing they were good men. I don't pick on them. What difference is it whether you call a man a commissioner, an agent or a hired man? If a laboring man was to be behind in any department, and was n't present to perform his duties thirty times in a given period, would n't he be discharged by a man that hires help. With all respect to this gentleman this is a plain case, and for the good of the fire commissioners I shall vote for the order. If there is anything right, we shall know it; if anything wrong, we shall know it. I shall vote for it in justice to the commissioners.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I said at the last meeting that a great deal depends upon the way in which an order is framed. I don't know that the order is framed so as to hurt the sensibilities of the Fire Commissioners; and if so I shall move to amend it. If they have been negligent of their duties I think they should be looked after. But can any gentleman in this hall tell how long the vacation of any head of a department is, whether three weeks or ten. It very largely depends upon themselves. If there is a case of palpable neglect on their part, it may deserve some censure from the powers who have authority to censure. At all events, if the order is properly framed, I see no harm in passing it; but, as was the case at the last meeting, I did n't believe in prejudging a man before an investigating committee.

Mr. Webster of Ward 3—At the last meeting we had a case similar to this, and a motion was made for an investigation, which will undoubtedly take place. But that motion was put in an unsatisfactory form, and so is this. I don't believe in any commissioner being compelled to make a record of just when he had a vacation, or had lunches. It is carrying the matter to a ridiculous extent. My doctrine is never to refuse an impartial investigation where there is any appearance of wrong, and I therefore offer a substitute which I think will be satisfactory.

Ordered, That the Committee on Fire Department be requested to investigate and report whether or not any neglect of duty has occurred on the part of any of the Fire Commissioners; if so, who is responsible therefor, and what measures should be taken to prevent similar occurrences hereafter.

Mr. Thompson—Reference has been made to the order I offered at the last meeting, and there has been some misconstruction of it. I offered it and at the same time moved its reference to a committee to investigate whether it ought to pass. It was stated that it was prejudging the case, and so it would have been if I had moved that it be put upon its passage at once. The difference between that and the order of the gentleman from Ward 20 is this; that his order aims by innuendo—

Mr. McGaragle—I think the gentleman had better explain that; it knocks me.

Mr. Thompson—I was about to explain it, thinking it might trouble the gentleman. It leaves us to draw the inference that the Fire Commissioners have done something wrong, and without giving us any ground to go upon. When the gentleman from Ward 20 made the statement he did, I said I was perfectly willing to vote for the order. At the last meeting a member of the Committee on Common made a statement which I and other members construed to mean that a city officer had committed gross breaches of duty—either wilfully or neglectfully—and that the committee which trusted to his representations had been mistaken and misled and placed in an unpleasant position. I thought that was just cause for the removal of that officer, and I put in an order to remove him and moved its reference to an investigating committee. Another order was passed which turned the course of the investigation, and calling for some indefinite report about nothing in particular, which was passed. The express question I wanted to see answered was whether the man we employed for Superintendent of Public Grounds is a proper person. I should like to see that question answered for the sake of the city and for the sake of Mr. Galvin. In this case, if any fault rests on the commissioners, I should be glad to see it put there.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—I am in favor of investigating all matters, if any cause is shown for an investigation. But I think the golden rule is a good one to observe here. Unless there is some sufficient statement of a dereliction of duty, I am unwilling to insinuate that there is anything wrong by voting for that order. How would any gentleman here, who has been absent from two or three meetings, like to read in the public prints, without notice, that an investigating committee had been appointed to report whether he was on a vacation or sick? No reason has been given for this order, and I don't know but the best way is to lay it upon the table for another week and see if the gentleman has any charges to make. It seems to be undignified to inquire every time a man is sick or absent. More than that, there is n't the slightest allegation that the public service has suffered in the least. If the gentleman from Ward 19 is correct, the commissioner had better be on his vacation and the public service would be better without him. We are acting upon too slight evidence in a matter that affects the credit and standing of an officer of this city. A man's reputation is the most valuable thing he can have, in the public service, at least, and it is a mean thing to attack him in a public way, and insinuate that there is a dereliction of duty, without any evidence whatever. I therefore move that this matter be laid upon the table.

Mr. Spenceley—I hope it will not be laid on the table. I don't know as I have anything personally against Mr. Greely S. Curtis, for he is the man against whom this is pointed. He may be a good merchant, but I never supposed he was a proper man to fill the position he fills. I understand he has been away on the fire boat testing hose. I don't know what he has learned about hose; he is n't the first man the city has learned a trade by paying him $3000 a year. I was interested in a certain matter and went into the department office and asked what had been done about it, and was told they had not had a meeting on that subject—they had n't had a full meeting. It was told me by a man who knows the ins and outs of that office. I did n't propose to bring this up, but I do so because I know there are men who ought to know where he is. If he is sick or testing hose, they ought to know it. I don't know as we have any right to ask. I don't know but the Council just meets to discuss these questions, as I said the other night. I have had an order for his Honor the Mayor to petition the Legislature, but I felt that we are such a humble body that we would hardly dare to do it. The City Council, the Common Council, or somebody, ought to have something to do with the Fire Commissioners, and if they are not doing their duty it ought to be known. If this man is off testing hose he ought to report once and awhile at City Hall what he is doing. If he is off doing his duty I would be most happy to come here and say so in plain black and white and let everybody see it.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 18 moved to adjourn. Lost.

Mr. Crocker thought it very mysterious that nobody knew where this man was, and thought it ought to be stated who the man is that did n't know where he was.

Mr. Spenceley—Send it to the committee and you will find out.

The President—The gentleman must address the Chair.

The Council refused to lay the order on the table, ordered the main question, on motion of Mr. Thompson, rejected the substitute of Mr. Webster—11 for, 40 against; ordered the yeas and nays on the passage of the original order, on motion of Mr. Thompson, and passed the order—yeas 46, nays 18:

Yeas—Messrs. Barnard, Beeching, Blanchard, Blodgett, Brintnall, Burke, Cannon, Clarke, Cox, Cross, Day, Dee, Doherty, Duggan, Fagan, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Ham, Hiscock, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), McDonald, McGaragle, Morrill, Mullane, Nugent, O'Donnell, Pearl, J. H. Pierce, Roach, Ruffin, Sibley, Smardon, Souther, Spenceley, Stone, Thompson, Thorndike, Upham, Vose, Warren, E. R. Webster, Wilbur—45.

Nays—Messrs. Brown, Coe, Crocker, Danforth, Felt, Fraser, Kidney, Hibbard, Howes, Jackson, Mowry, Perham, O. H. Pierce, Pratt, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Roberts, Sampson, G. B. Webster, Wolcott—19.

Absent or not voting—Barry, Fernald, Loughlin, McClusky, O'Connor, Pope, Reed, Shepard—8.

Subsequently a motion to reconsider by Mr. Spenceley was lost. Sent up.

CARE OF PUBLIC GROUNDS.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24 offered an order, That the Committee on Ordinances be requested to consider the expediency of so amending the ordinance in relation to parks, that from and after the first Monday in January, 1878, so much of the duties now performed by the standing Committee on Common and Public Grounds as pertains to the care and management of said Common and public grounds, shall be performed by the Park Commissioners.

Laid on the table.

Mr. Pierce said he offered the order at this time in order that it might not appear to be suggested by any report which may be made by the investigating committee. It is a matter worthy of consideration. On his motion the order was laid on the table.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION.

Mr. Day of Ward 4 made a personal explanation in regard to two items in the refreshment accounts of the Committee on Common. He had not dined with that committee, and supposed the bills were for refreshments taken by the Committee on Streets, of which he is a member, and that they had been charged to the wrong appropriation.

Adjourned, on motion of Mr. Spenceley.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen,

OCTOBER 22, 1877.

Regular meeting at four o'clock P. M., Alderman Clark, chairman, presiding.

EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENTS.

Police Officers Without Pay—Percival L. Everett, John W. Piper, Patrick McAvena, George H. Williams. Severally confirmed.

TREATMENT OF DRUNKENNESS IN CITY INSTITUTIONS.

A communication was received from the Mayor transmitting the following (City Doc. 85):

To His Honor the Mayor—The commissioners appointed by the Mayor of the city of Boston to consider and report on the treatment of drunkenness in the city institutions and in private asylums, and to ascertain what measures can be taken to reform the intemperate now under confinement in our institutions, beg leave to report—

(1.) Your commissioners have visited the courts in our city before which persons are arraigned for drunkenness, consulting freely with the judges and officers of police. They have also several times visited the city institutions to which inebriates are committed, conferring with the superintendent and other officers in charge.

Similar visits, involving like conferences, have been made to the corresponding institutions and officers in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Worcester, Portland, Quebec, Buffalo, Chicago, and various smaller cities.

(2.) Under a deep sense of the frightful evils of drunkenness, upon which it is unnecessary here to enlarge, the officers of government in all these places appear to perform their duties in the execution of this department of criminal law with great fidelity and much painstaking consideration. With unimportant variations in different places, the laws and their execution are much the same. An inebriate found guilty before the courts is mulcted in a small fine with costs, and, in default of payment by himself or friends, is committed for a term varying from ten days to six months. The usual commitment in our own city is for thirty days.

Results of Present Methods.

(3.) The results of the law as it now stands, however faithfully administered, are extremely unsatisfactory. The fines imposed, if paid at all, commonly fall upon the family or friends already deeply wronged. The brief period of confinement, sufficient indeed to eliminate from the system the alcohol already imbibed, and secure a measure of physical recuperation, is quite insufficient to allay the cravings of appetite, break up the habit of indulgence, or restore any considerable degree of self-respect.

The usual consequence, therefore, on restoration to liberty, is an immediate return to evil habits, re-arrest, re-conviction and re-commitment, with as little hope of profit as before. Your commissioners saw a woman, yet young, who had been thus committed fifty-seven times. They learned that another had spent eleven terms of thirty days each at Deer Island in one year, leaving a month within which to become eleven times amenable to the law, to be eleven times arrested, eleven times tried, eleven times convicted, and eleven times sent down to what would seem to be her normal home. Others have been met with who have spent years within prison walls, and who seem permanently unfitted for liberty and self-care.

Conditions of Success.

(4.) Your commissioners find a general concurrence of opinion in regard to the conditions now wanting in order to secure the best moral and economic results. For the cure of confirmed or habitual inebriety, experience seems to show that at least one year is necessary; while for extreme redeemable cases, two, three, or even more years are required.

An important, indeed an indispensable, auxiliary in this work is steady employment. It not only occupies the mind, tending to prevent the imagination from revelling in indulgence, everywhere a most fruitful source of demoralization, but it develops certain hardy elements of character essential to vigorous self-control. With commitment for longer terms, labor which is now valueless would become highly valuable; and the institutions which are now maintained at great expense might become, in a large measure, self-sustaining. The testimony of the superintendent of our own House of Industry, with that of the superintendent of the well-appointed House of correction at Philadelphia, and of others, is explicit on this point.

A further result, and most important of all, would be the opportunity thus afforded for moral influence; for instructing the inmates in matters pertaining to sobriety, health and character; and for building them up in those patriotic and manly purposes essential to a faithful discharge of personal, domestic and civil responsibilities. Given the time herein contemplated, and means of occupation, and your excellent officers now in charge of this class of persons at Deer Island, keenly alive as they are to the exigencies of the situation, could doubtless show results as honorable to themselves as they would be gratifying to the city.

Separation of Inebriates from Other Classes.

(5.) A great unanimity of opinion is found by your commissioners on another matter. While most of the females committed to the House of Industry, whatever may be the technical grounds of their conviction, have formed habits of indulgence in drink, and may properly be continued in the institution, and while tramps and vagabonds also may appropriately be subjected to the same discipline as inebriates, and mingle with them, thieves, burglars and various others of the more criminal classes should not be associated with inebriates in the same institution. Their presence, it is felt, would tend to drag the inebriates down to their own level, and greatly prejudice the hope of their ultimate improvement. Whether this common estimate of relative character be sound or not, so widespread is the conviction in it that the propriety of such a separation of classes as is here suggested is on many hands confidently affirmed.

Elasticity of Method.

(6.) Another opinion, held with equal confidence, is that some inebriates are much farther removed from, and are, therefore, with much greater difficulty restored to, the responsible condition of self-control than are others; thus requiring, for different persons, treatment through various periods and by various methods. And since many of the elements of the problem cannot be known beforehand, but can only be gained by a discreet and sympathetic study of individual character during many months of administrative experience, it will be found eminently wise to lodge a measure of discretion in the hands of the superintendent, with such advisory authority as may be deemed expedient, to place persons under his care on probation, permitting them to go forth from the institution subject to certain prescribed conditions, and to recall them, without process, whenever those conditions shall be violated, to finish the entire period of commitment. It might be found expedient, also, to maintain a paternal oversight of those thus discharged on probation, not only for the purpose of securing conformity to the conditions, but also for counselling them in their enterprises, and saving their wages to themselves or their families.

Experience of Asylums.

(7.) Your commissioners have also visited most of the inebriate asylums of the country, besides attending the convention of the superintendents of these asylums recently held in Chicago. They have thus enjoyed opportunities for protracted conference with gentlemen of large experience in the reformation of this class of persons. That experience is exceedingly important. It establishes the practicability of the reformation of inebriates. It shows that, with all the disadvantages under which these voluntary institutions labor, forty to fifty per cent. of those resorting to them are permanently restored to habits of industry and sobriety. The elements of weakness common to them all, aside from the question of time, are the lack of sufficient control over their inmates, and of adequate means of employing them. The admirable State institution at Binghamton, New York, which has a voluntary department, illustrates, in its somewhat exceptional experience, both the possible strength and the actual weakness of such asylums. With most excellent appointments, and ample means of employment, its inmates, committed under the laws of the State for a term not less than a year, are easily controlled, and are treated with marked success; while voluntary members are the chief source of difficulty, and present results relatively unsatisfactory.

(8.) Thus by the substantially unanimous voice of the men who have had most experience in dealing with inebriates—judges, officers of police, and superintendents of asylums—your commissioners are led to recommend to the City Government in the treatment of drunkards brought before the courts. Without at all entering upon the question of their criminality or penal deserts, they recommend that the treatment shall aim primarily at their reformation, leaving the matter of their just punishment to be incidentally though necessarily involved. To this end, when brought before the courts, they will not be sentenced to a given punishment, but committed to an asylum for such protracted period, one year or more, as experience has proved to be necessary, with discretion in the hands of the proper authorities to grant probationary absence on well-defined conditions, attended, perhaps, by a continued helpful oversight. With regular occupation and suitable educational and moral influences, a very large per cent. of these slaves of the cup may be restored to the dignity of good citizens.

A New Departure

Facilities at Hand.

(9.) The House of Industry at Deer Island, with slight changes and little expense, could be employed for this purpose. The very considerable territory of the island will make extensive employment of labor in agriculture convenient. Ample workshops can be erected chiefly by the labor of the inmates of the institution.

The superintendent and chaplain indicate a lively interest in the views of your commissioners, and would seem to be suitable officers to guide and administer the new institution. Thus, far better results, in regard both to morality and economy, would seem to be within our reach, and by substantially the same means.

Of course the aid of the Legislature must be invoked. New enactments granting the necessary power must be secured. Should the City Government approve this report, your commissioners will be glad to render any aid in their power in connection with your legal advisers and the judges of the courts in the preparation of a bill that shall more clearly define the necessary powers and provisions, and enable the city to make what it is hoped would prove a successful appeal to our General Court.

The Duty Urgent.

(10.) Certainly the city fathers have a great many erring children, who can be so treated that not a few of them will be reformed and made useful citizens. The cost of dealing with this class can be much diminished. Your commissioners will be ready and happy to cooperate in so noble a work. They are satisfied that such action can be taken as will greatly diminish drunkenness with its dreadful evils. The work is a long one, and not to be done in a day, but it should be begun at once; and we may safely trust that all necessary knowledge and skill will be acquired as the work proceeds. Is it right to go on in the old way, and at great expense, to make the drunkard worse instead of better?

Respectfully submitted.

A. A. MINER.

GEORGE C. SHATTUCK.

JOHN E. TYLER.

Commissioners.

Boston, Oct. 17, 1877.

Referred to Joint Committee on Public Institutions. Sent down.

HEARINGS.

Hearings were had on proposed construction of sewers in Summit street, Roxbury, in Parker street, Charlestown, and in Northampton street, west of Columbus avenue. No one appeared to object, and the orders were recommitted to the Committee on Sewers.

PETITIONS REFERRED.

To the Joint Committee on Claims. Mrs. John McDonough, to be compensated for personal injuries received by falling on the ice in Bowdoin square on Dec. 28, 1876.

To the Committee on Lamps. P. McNaught & Son et al., that Burke street be lighted, between Tremont and Berlin streets; John D. Elms et al., for street lamps in a portion of Norfolk street, Ward 24; Joseph Dorr, that Oriental street, Roxbury, be lighted.

To the Committee on Sewers. Benjamin Burlingame et al., for a sewer in Cunard street, Roxbury.

To the Committee on Streets on the part of the Board. Eliza A. Squires for abatement of betterment assessment on estate 34 Auburn street.

To the Committee on Health on the part of the Board. Petitions for leave to occupy stables—Estate of James B. Dow, wooden shed, five horses, East Chester park; R. L. Brown, new wooden, two horses, Newman street; Thomas Corbett, new brick, one horse, Northfield street; George Hall, old wooden building, one horse, South Margin street; Albert Morse, new wooden, three horses, corner Columbia and Washington streets; William Looney, new wooden, one horse, 17 and 19 First street.

To the Joint Committee on the Assessors' Department. Cornelius C. Brown and sister, for abatement of tax on estate 8 Bowdoin street.

To the Committee on Police. William N. Reed, for leave to set up a barber's pole at 1699 Washington street.

To the Joint Committee on Public Buildings. Jenison Heating and Ventilating Company, for leave to ventilate the room of the Mayor and Aldermen, under the direction of the City Architect, free of cost to the city.

To the Committee on Paving. Lyman O. Dow, to be paid for grade damages on Norfolk street; Rufus B. Carr, that a sidewalk be laid on the Geib estate on Hudson street, Ward 20; Dudley Hall & Co. et al., that State street, between Chatham row and Commercial street, be repaved; Maverick Oil Company for leave to lay a pipe for pumping oil under Saratoga and Bremen streets, East Boston.

Petitions for brick sidewalks in front of estates of John R. Hall, Linwood street; A. J. Tibbetts, 90 and 92 Blue Hill avenue; Honora Devine, corner C and Seventh streets; Bridget Cogan, 191 Cabot street; Michael Doherty, 5 Culvert street; George Leuth, 193 Cabot street; John Moses, Hampshire street; Sarah White, 3 Culvert street; A. McKillop, 51 Everett street.

Petitions for edgestones in front of estates of William B. Quigley, West Rutland square; Henry Whitwell, Gloucester street.

Petitions for edgestones and brick sidewalks in front of estate of Catherine Looney, on Tudor street.

Petitions by John Quirk, for leave to move wooden buildings, one from 52 Swan street to 3 Ontario street, and one from 3 Ontario street to 52 Swan street.

Michael F. Lynch, for flagstone crossing on Adams street, at Dorchester avenue; William H. Peck et al., that Frothingham avenue be put in order; F. O. Clark et al., that sidewalks be laid on the east side of Seventh street, between Dorchester and F streets; William B. Smart, for a sidewalk on the northerly side of Stevens street; Aaron H. Bean et al., for a flagstone crossing at Walnut avenue and Warren street.

MISCELLANEOUS PAPERS FROM THE COMMON COUNCIL.

Request of Board of Directors for Public Institutions for the transfer of $434.76 from House of Industry appropriation to that of Luatic Hospital.

Alderman Viles—Perhaps a word in explanation of this is needed. It is well known that the city purchased what is known as the Winthrop Farm some years ago, and there has always been a balance of the appropriation which has been used to pay the taxes to the town of Winthrop. That is all used up now, and we have not enough to pay the taxes with this year. We have already paid the taxes for the current year to the town, and saved six per cent. We now come here and ask for an appropriation to cover that amount.

The communication was referred to the Committee on Finance in concurrence.

INVESTIGATION OF A FIRE COMMISSIONER.

An order came up for the Committee on the Fire Department to inquire—report the number of meetings held by the Board of Fire Commissioners from May 1 to this time, and the names of the absentees and the causes of absence.

Alderman Burnham—That order is evidently aimed at one member of the commission whom we all know to be a gentleman in all his dealings. At his request I shall offer an amendment, so that the committee shall investigate the subject from the time of the appointment of Mr. Curtis.

On motion of Alderman Burnham the order was laid on the table temporarily, and subsequently it was taken, amended in accordance with his motion, and, as amended, passed. Sent down.

Alderman Clark in the chair.

BOND APPROVED.

The bond of Solomon Hovey, Jr., constable, being presented duly certified, was approved by the Board.

EAST BOSTON HIGH SCHOOL.

The chairman submitted a report from the Committee on Finance on the report of the Committee on Public Buildings, recommending the passage of the following:

Ordered, That so much of the order of the City Council approved Oct. 9, 1877, as provides that the expense of fitting up the old Lyman Schoolhouse, East Boston, for a branch of the English High School, shall be charged to the appropriation for Schoolhouses, Public Buildings, be and the same hereby is rescinded.

Ordered, That the Auditor of Accounts be and he hereby is authorized to transfer from the Reserved Fund the sum of $2000 to constitute a special appropriation for fitting up the old Lyman Schoolhouse, East Boston, for a branch of the English High School.

Read twice and passed—yeas 10, nays 0. Sent down for concurrence.

PAVING REPORTS AND ORDERS.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Paving:

Reports and orders for edgestones and paved gutters and gravelled roadway on Myrtle street, Ward 23. Order read twice and passed.

Reports and orders for brick sidewalks in front of estates of Henry G. Denny and Abner Coburn on Stoughton street; the estates on Blue Hill avenue from Moreland street to No. 85 Blue Hill avenue. Orders read twice and passed.

Report and orders for edgestones and brick sidewalks in front of estate of Levi B. Gay on Huntington and St. James avenues. Read twice and passed.

Schedules of the cost of edgestones, etc., in sundry streets with orders for the assessment and collection of the same. Orders severally read twice and passed.

Report and order that the Cambridge Railroad Company be and it is hereby directed to change the position of its track on Washington street, Brighton, between Foster street and Oak square, from the side to the centre of said street; also to substitute a straight rail for the rail now used, and to pave said track with stone. The above changes to be made immediately, and the work done to the satisfaction of the Superintendent of Streets. Read twice and passed.

STABLES.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Health on the part of the Board:

Reports that leave be granted, on the usual conditions, to occupy stables by the Metropolitan Railroad Company, corner of School and Washington streets, West Roxbury; Hull & Simpson, 5 Willow court; Catherine Gramer, Dorchester avenue; Charles Megan, Coffee court. Severally accepted.

SEWERS.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Sewers:

Orders for the construction of sewers in Thomas street, West Roxbury, and A street, South Boston, between Richards street and Mt. Washington avenue. Severally read twice and passed.

Report that no action is necessary on the petition of Thomas Dowd et al. that the sewers in Magazine street and Norfolk avenue be enlarged. Accepted.

Ordered, That the amounts set against the names of the following parties for a sewer in Haynes street be abated on account of no benefit to their estates.

Michael Havey.....	$19.67
Niles Peterson.....	14.06
John A. Brown.....	14.05
Maria White's heirs.....	16.16

Also, that $8 be abated from the assessment laid upon Spencer A. Comey for a sewer in Greenough avenue, on account of over-estimate of land benefited.

Also, that $7.08 be abated from the assessment levied upon Mary E. Cushing for a sewer in Leverett street, on account of inability to pay.

Read twice and passed.

LICENSES.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted reports from the Committee on Licenses, as follows:

Passenger Wagon Licensed—William Fletcher, to run a passenger wagon from Charlestown, by way of Tremont or Charles street, to the Tabernacle, and return by same route.

Minors' Applications Granted—Eight newsboys. Wagon License Granted—William Scannell, Central square.

Hack License Granted—Johu Hamill, corner Pemberton square and Tremont street; Warren B. Plympton, Pemberton square; C. E. Merrill, 79-81 Causeway street.

Auctioneers Licensed—Martin Donoghue, corner Sumner and Havre streets; Frederic A. Wilkins, 39 Old State House.

Intelligence Offices Licensed—Mary Greene, 256 Cabot street; Mary C. Whitney, 470 Tremont street.

Billiard Licenses Granted—George W. Howland, 26 Kneeland street; Charles Portlock, 530½ Washington street; James Bent, 127 North street; M. J. Brockway, 1166 Washington street; Carl Muller, 68 Shawmut avenue; Elizabeth Zittel, 1984 Washington street.

Severally accepted.

CLAIMS.

Alderman O'Brien submitted the following from the Joint Committee on Claims:

Report of leave to withdraw on petition of J. B. & W. M. Warren, to be paid for alleged infringement of a patent process for putting down pavement. Accepted. Sent down.

DOGS TO BE KILLED.

Alderman Breck offered the following:

Whereas, The order passed by this Board on the 15th instant, and approved by the Mayor on the 17th instant, requiring all unlicensed dogs to be restrained from running at large within the limits of this city, has been duly published three times in two or more papers of this city, it is hereby Ordered, That a warrant be issued by his Honor to the Chief of Police of this city, requiring him to cause to be killed all unlicensed dogs found running at large within the limits of this city.

Read twice and passed.

STREET DAMAGES.

Alderman Thompson submitted the following from the Committee on Streets on the part of the Board:

Order to pay for land taken and damages occasioned by laying out and widening streets—Frances W. Howe, $135.50, for land taken in the name of the heirs of Harvey Howe by the widening of Adams street. Read twice and passed.

STEALING FLOWERS FROM PUBLIC GARDEN.

Alderman Slade submitted a report from the Joint Committee on Public Grounds recommending reference to Committee on Claims, and the granting of petition of Nicholas W. Johnson to be paid the amount of a reward offered for the detection and arrest of persons stealing flowers on the Public Garden. Accepted and referred accordingly. Sent down.

BETTERMENT ABATED.

Alderman Clark submitted a report from the Joint Committee on Streets, on petition of First Baptist Society of Brighton for abatement, recommending the passage of an order—That his Honor the Mayor be authorized and requested to release to the First Baptist Society of Brighton the estate situated on Union square, at the junction of Beacon and Cambridge streets, sold by Collector Michael Norton for unpaid betterment, and by him conveyed to the city of Boston by deed dated June 12, 1876, and recorded with Suffolk Deeds, lib. 1330, fol. 259, upon payment by the said society of the sum of $300.

REFRESHMENTS AND REFRESHMENT BILLS.

The proposed amendment to resolve relating to wines, cigars, etc., by adding that no carriages be allowed after the adjournment of either branch, came up with the concurrence of the Common Council therein.

Alderman Viles—I think quite enough has been said in regard to this resolve. I don't believe it means anything, and I think there has been a great deal of cheap talk in both branches in regard to it. I have been in the City Government three years, and have never yet called a carriage to take me home, and it is well known that the strongest beverage I take at my meals is a cup of coffee.

On motion of Alderman Viles, the resolve was unanimously postponed.

An order came up to amend the joint rules and orders so as to provide that "no bill for refreshments shall be allowed or paid unless it is accompanied by a full statement of all the items composing such refreshments, and any citizen of Boston shall be entitled, at all times, to inspect or to make copies of any such bills or statements."

Alderman Fitzgerald—My objection to the order is its phraseology. If it is intended to mean anything, it should be that the bill of each member of the City Government who partakes of refreshments should show what he takes, and the price should appear in the bill; so that if I dine with two or three members of the City Government, and my bill be four dollars, while that of others shall be only one dollar, details of each will be shown. In that way, if Brown eats two dollars' worth and Jones four dollars, the amount of each will be given, and the one who partakes of a little shall not have to bear the same criticism with the rest. That would be a sensible way of introducing an amendment to the joint rules and orders. If the members of the City Government are to be paraded in the papers week after week, I say that Brown and Jones should not be credited with like amounts while Brown ate four dollars' worth and Jones only fifty cents. I intend to introduce an order which I think will be satisfactory to all those in favor of this matter. I think the only way you can satisfy those who want refreshment is to blot out this refreshment business. I shall vote for it heartily. It will relieve chairmen of committees of great responsibility, because they are obliged to approve the bills. I shall move as a substitute for this order the following:

Ordered, That no bills for refreshments furnished to any member of the City Government shall hereafter be paid out of the city treasury, and the Auditor of Accounts shall not receive or pass any such bill for the approval of the Committee on Accounts.

If such an order as that be passed, I think it will be satisfactory to a great many persons who are nightly introducing into the Common Council amendments to these refreshment rules, while at the same time they will go over to Mr. Parker's or Young's and eat their dinners and drink their wines with as much avidity as if they had never introduced such orders. Now, I am sincerely in favor of prohibiting the partaking of any refreshment. It is merely a custom. The School Board do not partake of refreshment. I am willing to go as far as any one. This continual tinkering is nothing but humbugging. If the members are in favor of this order, and are in downright earnest, they will vote for the substitute. I am only sorry it was not introduced upstairs. Now, Mr. President, that is genuine bona fide retrenchment. It cuts off not only cigars, which some persons prefer to a dinner, but it cuts off the dinner, which some persons prefer to cigars; it cuts off wines, which some persons might prefer, after a long session in a committee room, to taking a plate of soup or bread and butter; and it cuts off the bread and butter, which some might prefer to wine or Apollinaris water. If those gentlemen who are nightly offering orders are sincere, they will vote for this and cut off all.

Alderman O'Brien—I heartily indorse the substitute. I shall give it my vote and hope it will pass this Board. This continual tinkering and talking about refreshments has gone far enough. I think the Aldermen ought to have self-respect enough to put a stop to it entirely, and the only way to stop it is by such an order as this. The Alderman from the North End has stated that his name is not down on bills for carriages to take him home this year. I have no doubt his name is down on bills for carriages a good many times. Why? Because in his capacity as chairman of the Committee on Sewers he has to examine the sewers in Roxbury, Dorchester and other sections. He and his committee have to visit all those sections to see if the necessity exists for sewers; and his name must be down a good many times for carriages for that purpose. But when the statement is made in print, outsiders will say it is some junketing excursion, when the Alderman has given his entire day to the city, ascertaining all the facts in relation to the necessity for a sewer in Brighton, Roxbury or West Roxbury. Now, we have a long report of names of members of the Committee on Common and Squares, who took refreshments at Parker's. I would be willing to bet, or at least I assert, that the names which are not down on those bills are those of the men who were never at a committee meeting on Common and Squares; but the names we see on those bills are those who come here and give their time, hour after hour, to the city of Boston, and who, after working several hours, have gone across the way and partaken of a little refreshment. Those who attended to their duties were present, and that is the reason their names are here. A great deal is said about the junketing of this City Government. The mischief arose some two years ago when the joint rules were amended so as to include the names; and ever since that time we have heard of nothing but the junketing of the City Government. I think the order, as it comes from the Council, might be perfected still more. In my younger days, when the menagerie made its appearance in Boston, it was stated on the bills that the animals would be fed at a certain hour. Now, if the notice of committee meetings also read that such a committee would eat at Parker's at such an hour, and that the citizens of Boston are invited to inspect them, I think it would complete the exhibition. In order to show that this and the last City Governments were not extravagant, I called the attention of the Auditor to the matter, and I was handed this statement for the past few years. What is the result? Under such mayors as Norcross, Gaston, Cobb and Shurtleff, the refreshment expenses exceeded those of the present year. From $45,000 in 1870, the refreshment expenses have gradually diminished to $12,000 in 1876-7. The entire expenses for refreshments, excursions and special entertainments have diminished from $70,000 in 1869-70 to $24,000 the present year; and yet I guarantee that there has not been a year for the past ten years that so much talk has been made about the junketing excursions and dinners of the City Government. The press and the Council allowed all these things to pass with scarcely a word in previous years, and yet this year, where there is a most economical government in this respect, it is nothing but talk, and I hope the talk will be stopped in the manner proposed by the Alderman from Ward 21.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Will you read the figures? I should like to hear them.

Alderman O'Brien—I intended to give them to the reporter, so that they would be printed; but, at the request of the Alderman, I will read some of the items:

"Expenses of the Board of Aldermen, Common Council and Committees of the City Council, and each branch thereof, for refreshments, carriage hire and visiting cities, in the total, during each financial year for ten financial years, ending April 30, 1877—

CITY GOVERNMENT COMMITTEES.

Year.	Refreshments.	Carriage Hire.
1867-68.....	$14,192.35	$1,798.17
1868-69.....	34,147.81	2,751.87
1869-70.....	45,059.76	5,590.01
1870-71.....	31,912.19	4,898.22
1871-72.....	20,205.29	1,353.54
1872-73.....	23,141.32	3,491.05
1873-74.....	14,637.47	3,127.00
1874-75.....	17,737.76	4,365.67
1875-76.....	14,726.80	4,019.90
1876-77.....	12,933.99	3,772.80
	$228,694.74	$35,168.23

Now, the citizens of Boston don't know that carriage hire is to enable the Paving Committee to consider whether a street ought to be graded and paved in Dorchester, Roxbury or Charlestown, or whether a sewer should be built. Next are excursions, beginning with $7915.85 in 1867-68. I presume that means excursions down the harbor on Fourth of July, and various expenses of that kind. The whole amount of it is, that this City Government came here with this fact staring them in the face—that the partaking of refreshments is a time-honored custom in the City Government; and in enjoying them moderately, as they have done, I don't think they have exceeded, and in fact have not come up to, the limit of previous City Governments. But you see how the matter has tapered down, for we have not done justice to our predecessors in the way of refreshments and carriages.

Here is another class of these expenses:

Special Entertainments.
Expenses of Committees of Government not included under head of City Government.

Year.	Excursions of Government and Committees.	Refreshments.	Carriage hire & traveling expenses.
1867-68....	$7,915.85	$2,530.46	$101.25
1868-69....	7,881.45	4,648.10	265.50
1869-70....	10,032.00	5,300.14	1,809.75
1870-71....	7,115.76	1,633.55	297.50
1871-72....	5,519.98	4,918.18	648.02
1872-73....	3,705.68	3,039.20	264.50
1873-74....	3,324.38	1,583.00	124.00
1874-75....	3,077.56	1,411.20	261.50
1875-76....	1,045.87	2,021.50	428.50
1876-77....	1,690.90	1,698.95	279.50
	$51,309.43	$28,784.28	$4,480.02

Statement of the expenses of boards controlling departments.

Year.	Refreshments.	Carriage hire and Trav'g expenses.
1867-68.....	$671.10	$476.93
1868-69.....	1,327.86	731.93
1869-70.....	1,418.24	1,747.58
1870-71.....	3,855.70	923.87
1871-72.....	1,827.45	1,682.49
1872-73.....	7,081.48	631.50
1873-74.....	4,734.85	2,228.04
1874-75.....	2,974.57	1,358.75
1875-76.....	3,081.32	2,486.83
1876-77.....	2,702.18	1,458.69
	$23,674.75	$13,726.61

The totals of the expenditures for the purposes named are as follows, for each year:

1867-68.....	$27,686.11
1868-69.....	51,754.52
1869-70.....	70,957.48
1870-71.....	50,636.79
1871-72.....	36,154.95
1872-73.....	35,354.73
1873-74.....	29,758.74
1874-75.....	31,187.01
1875-76.....	27,810.72
1876-77.....	24,537.01
	$385,838.06

I don't think that is a very bad record for the present and past year, Mr. Chairmau. I hope the citizens of Boston will look into it and not believe all the stories that are now sent broadcast over the city about the present Government.

Alderman Robinson—For myself I don't see what this Board of Aldermen have to do in this matter. If the Common Council wish to reform themselves in regard to junketing, why should n't they have the privilege of doing so? This Board of Aldermen have done no junketing. Their meals and everything else have been moderate, and, in the name of common sense, why should they be hauled over the coals because some members of the Common Council acknowledge that they take too many cigars? I have tried to do my duty and have worked pretty hard. I live a considerable distance out of town, and it is difficult to go home to my dinner; and I don't see why I should n't have a moderate amount of refreshment when I get through with this session, or a lounge meeting of a committee. I have nothing to charge myself with. Can the Board of Aldermen say that they have exceeded their rights and privileges? I don't see why we should. But if the Common Council have, and wish to reform, I don't see why they should not have the privilege. I don't see that the Aldermen have done more than the amount of their labor entitles them to. Now all this last week we have been on what might perhaps be called a junketing excursion. To my surprise and astonishment, the twenty-one Aldermen of the city of New York, as we were told, receive a salary of $4000 each; and without doing one-tenth part of the labor performed by this Board, and they take refreshments besides. If this Board do not do work enough, sitting in their legislative capacity, and in their committee work and in the supervision of departments, to entitle them to some little degree of refreshment, let the city give them a salary corresponding with the work and then there will be no question about it. But I consider the idea ridiculous that the people begrudge the Aldermen some little refreshment after sitting here till nine or ten o'clock at night, and working several hours a day on a committee and in other public capacities. I hope the order will not pass, as I think there is little sincerity in it.

Alderman Viles—It is so near the end of the municipal year, I think the order had better be amended so as to apply to the next City Government; or the adage is true that it is hard to make an old dog learn new tricks.

Alderman Fitzgerald—As I am not to be a member of the next City Government, I want it to take charge of its own affairs. I am sincere in offering this substitute, and as the gentlemen down stairs want to do something in cutting down refreshments, I am only surprised that the Aldermen are not willing to go with them. My substitute was not got up for political effect, because I am not a candidate for reelection, and therefore cannot be accused of having anything of that kind in my mind when I offer such an order. I did it that the members of the Common Council and the Board of Aldermen who want a change may make one that is in the right direction. If it is wrong to have refreshments or cigars, it is wrong to have anything else, and I think the order I have offered is the only one which will meet the approval of those who desire to cut down expenses in that direction. The Aldermen in New York are paid, but I did not know they took refreshments. I suppose that their salaries paid for all their refreshments. I hope my order will pass, so that members of the Common Council shall have an opportunity to vote upon it. I think this is the right step to take; and by and by the members of the City Council will come here to discharge their duties as the members of the School Board do. They would not want any refreshments after they got used to it, although the lesson will be hard while they are learning. I hope this City Government will practise fasting and abstinence, so that when the new Government is inaugurated it will be composed in part of men who know what it is to perform their duties without a bottle of ale, a cigar, or a glass of Apollinaris water. If we stand it the next two months, then I have hope that the next City Government will follow our example. I think the members of the City Council should have some deference for public opinion. I think there is something serious in public opinion in connection with this. If the candidates for this Board find out before the next election that these things are not to be, perhaps it will make some persons hesitate before they attempt to become members of this Board. Perhaps it is worth while for us to pass something of this kind.

Alderman Robinson—I don't believe public sentiment leans in any such direction. I have never heard public men state any such thing; but I have heard them state directly the contrary—that they thought the members of the Board of Aldermen, who do the work they do, are entitled to refreshments, and they should make no objection to it. I have heard no objection to it. But I feel that to pass such an order as this would be acknowledging that I have done something wrong as an individual. It would be acknowledging by this Board that their services were not worth a snap of their fingers. It is acknowledging that they have done something wrong, when the members of the Council have only been getting up something for effect. Therefore I think it is out of place.

Alderman Fitzgerald—My friend from the Dorchester District must have a poor estimate of his services if he thinks they are paid for by the dinners he eats. He says we have done service for the city, and therefore we must take some dinner. He seems to fancy that the payment for services of members of the City Government is the bills they contract at Parker's or Young's. I have a higher estimate of the work done by the Alderman. I have no doubt the time devoted by him to the city of Boston, if given to his private business, would have yielded him five thousand times more than he could get from the dinners paid for by the city of Boston. From what I know of his business, I know that his services are worth more than that. I hope the Alderman will vote for the order, and set a good example to the young men who are to come to the position which he holds.

Alderman Robinson—I certainly don't wish to convey the impression that I thought my services worth no more than the refreshments I take after I get through with a meeting. That is a little acknowledgment of the service, and small favors are thankfully received. But my point is, that in voting for this order, we do acknowledge that we have done something wrong, which I strenuously object to.

Alderman Wilder—I don't see that in voting for that order we admit that we have done anything wrong. I am heartily in favor of the passage of the order. As the Alderman who offered it says, I only regret it had n't been introduced earlier in the year. I don't mean to belittle the service of the Board of Aldermen. I believe, as a class, they all attend to their duties and intend to give to the city their best knowledge and efforts in the management of its affairs. While doing so, it is true that former City Governments have had something to eat and drink, as we have been informed today, as is shown by the bills. But I believe the idea and the principle is wrong, and that it will be immensely for the benefit of the city of Boston to be more careful in the inspection, as it were, of the men we select as Aldermen, and to use the same care that business men ordinarily do in the selection of men to perform a particular duty. I believe that immense benefit would accrue to the city if Aldermen were selected for their peculiar ability for the duties. But it is not the custom, and I don't suppose it will be changed until times change. But in regard to Aldermen and Councilmen feeding at the city's expense, when they are hungry, I believe it is wrong, no matter how much service they have performed. I should have voted for such an order as this at the first opportunity, and I thank the Alderman for giving me the opportunity. If we are going to be in the next Board of Aldermen, I think we ought to say we are going to work for nothing. I hope the order will pass.

Alderman Slade—If this order is passed, Othello's occupation will be gone. It seems to me there has been a good deal of boys' play about this business for the last two or three meetings. I don't believe anybody has been sincere in what has been said, or in any orders that have been offered. I don't think I shall vote for this order, but I will guarantee here that my example will be such that no taxpayer will find fault with what I do in that direction. If the members of the City Council would practise as well as they preach, I don't believe there would be any trouble about it. I don't believe there is a taxpayer in the city of Boston who begrudges a member of the City Council a meal if it is necessary. I don't believe in eating between meals myself. I always take my dinner at noon, and it doesn't make any difference to me whether there is a committee meeting in the afternoon or not; I don't go to dinner because there is a committee meeting. I don't believe there have been two meetings of committees that I am on that I have not attended, but I am not much of a diner at the city's expense, and I take my dinners as regularly as I can. My experience has been like this: After our sessions have ended we have invariably gone and had a dinner; and I have heard plainer and stronger discussions at that dinner in regard to the business of this city than I have heard here. It is more instructing to spend one or two hours in that way than it is at this Board. We talk freer than we do when we expect to see everything printed the next day. I don't pretend to be much of a talking man here, but I am a working member; and after I have worked here I don't feel that I do anything wrong by taking a dinner at the city's expense. I don't partake of a dinner unless I have earned it. I don't believe the citizens would desire us to pass this order; but they will thank us for being more careful of the privileges we have. I don't want to vote for this order—but I will be more careful. I am willing the public should know what I eat at the city's expense at all times. As I said, I don't exactly like this order, for I think there is a good deal of nonsense about it.

Alderman Burnham—This discussion seems to have assumed something of the form of a confession. I claim that I have been on the side of economy, and I mean to commit myself, at all times, upon the side of right and proper economy. But I am going to vote against this order and I want to put myself right. I believe that, as it has come to us from the other branch, it is not sincere. An Alderman has characterized it as boys' play, and a better description of it he could not make. So much for the Council. If we passed the order as it is now before us, I don't believe a majority of the Board would vote for it with any sincerity. I should not, if I voted for it. I believe it is uncalled for and that no good will come from it. Therefore I shall vote against the substitute.

Alderman Breck—I do not wish to take time in discussing this matter, or have much to say about it. I agree with the Alderman who has just taken his seat, and I move that the matter be indefinitely postponed.

The Chairman—The motion to amend takes precedence of a motion to postpone.

Alderman Gibson in the chair.

Alderman Fitzgerald—In offering my substitute for the orders that came up, I did not intend to reflect upon those who take their meals at the expense of the city when there is any necessity for it. I agree with Aldermen who have just spoken, that the citizens don't begrudge the members of the Council a dinner at the city's expense when they are detained beyond their regular meal time. My order is not aimed at any such thing. But it is so hard to keep within the bounds of that law all members of the City Council. There is great question with the members of the City Council, especially the other branch, whether it is not better to abolish the whole affair, so as to keep some from going to the extremes to which they are going. I did not introduce it because I think some members of the City Council have gone beyond the line of duty, or because I believed the citizens of Boston begrudge the members a decent meal at a reasonable price. It is to avoid abuses that I have done so. It is the abuse, and not the use, of the custom of dining at the city's expense that I wish to prevent. I agree with the Alderman opposite, that whatever meals they have eaten at the city's expense they have earned; but rather than run the risk of having the expense go up to $70,000, we had better abolish the whole affair.

Alderman Breck—Have complaints come from any other source except the Common Council and the reports in the papers? I should like to be informed upon that point. I have heard no citizens complain. Citizens say to me they hope I get something to eat when I get through with the long sessions at this Board and on committees. I believe this whole affair is all moonshine, and that we should pay no attention to it. Has the Alderman heard any complaint?

Alderman Fitzgerald—It is a trait of human nature that whatever is received at the public expense, nine-tenths of the people believe the receivers are not legally entitled to it and have no business to have it. I venture to say that nine-tenths of the people outside do not reason on this matter, and when told that such and such a committee dined at Parker's or Young's, at $4 or $4.50 a plate, they would find fault. It is sufficient to place it in black and white before them and say that Smith and Jones and Brown and Robinson are members of a committee, and on the 25th of August a dinner for them cost $17.50. They would naturally count up that the price per plate is as much as the price of dinners for a whole week at a decent boarding house. You cannot reason with people. You put the least of these bills for committee's dinners before the people to read in the Herald or Transcript, or Post or Advertiser, or any other paper in Boston, and you will find nearly every man you meet would say, you had a pretty good dinner on such a day, and $4.50 or $5 for cigars. I find that in the Council some members arose and stated that they had not eaten dinners at the city's expense, but when they looked over the Auditor's bills they found that they did, and they were astonished that they had eaten so much. Nine-tenths the people would say that the bills were unreasonable, although no member of a committee had eaten more than he would have done at his own table. You cannot explain it away. There is the bill for a dinner at Parker's or Young's; you have heard it every day; I have heard it; and the members of the City Council feel it more than outsiders, because their names figure in the papers. I say the only way you can prevent it is to abolish it altogether. I agree thoroughly with the members of this Board that members who perform their duty, and are detained from their homes and meals, are entitled to a dinner at the city's expense. Custom sanctions it, and possibly the taxpayers would; but the difficulty is in preventing the bills from being extravagant. If I, as chairman, take my committee to dinner, I cannot say to Councilman So-and-so "You shall take beans"; but he takes the bill of fare and orders what he pleases, and the bill is paid. Hence, the difficulty is to draw the line between stinginess, economy and extravagance. You cannot draw that line. You cannot say to one member you shall have only one cigar, only one bunch of cigarettes, or only one plate of soup. It is the abuse of our privileges that people complain of, and it is impossible to draw the line.

Alderman Robinson—The main portion of the expenses of the city of Boston is disbursed through the committees of this Board, and they are almost equal to the expenses of the whole United States at the time of the commencement of John Quincy Adams's Administration. The Board of Aldermen have committed no extravagance; but you may take all the expenses for refreshments and "asides" and cigars, or whatever they may have, and the expense is as great, aside from salaries, is as great as it was at the commencement of John Quincy Adams's Administration. But, instead of extravagance, the written statement of the Alderman shows that in 1869-70, when there was only the city proper, and I think, perhaps, Roxbury, when Charlestown, which is a considerable town of itself, had its Mayor and Aldermen, and this, that and the other, when Dorchester had its own schools and selectmen and paid them a certain amount a year, and Brighton and West Roxbury have been annexed, and the inhabitants have increased from 200,000 to 350,000; and yet the refreshment expenses have "increased" from $70,000 to $25,000. I cannot see that it is very extravagant to go up in an inverse ratio. Twenty-four thousand dollars is the round sum of the expenses for carriages, junketing, etc. I cannot see where the question of extravagance comes in. As far as that order goes, I don't believe one member of this Board or the Council would care one sup about the amount they ate and drank. But there is a certain question of right and expediency; and if you pass the order you will acknowledge that you have been doing wrong; and I deny that the Board of Aldermen and a large majority of the Council have been doing wrong.

Alderman Clark—When the Alderman from the Twenty-first Ward offered the substitute, I was under the impression that it was done in an ironical spirit; that he did it because he supposed it would go to the Council and he rejected, on the supposition that they would not swallow an order of that description. But he has either changed his ideas from what they were when he wrote it, or else he has argued himself into the belief that it is just and proper. Now I shall vote against this substitute. This is my sixth year as a member of this Board, and without being egotistical, I think I have devoted some little time in working for or against the city's interest. Prior to coming to the City Government I dined with my family every day, and my dinner hour at home is the same now that it was then. But when I came here I found that the public expected members of this Board to be here about one or two hours during the day, and I found that I had to spend the time here, at work in the interest of the city, that I usually spent at home with my family at dinner. Consequently, during the past few years, when I have been at work for the city at my dinner hour, I have had my dinner paid for by the city. My predecessors in this Board, as you all know, did the same thing. It was supposed they had a pretty good Board of Aldermen in 1869-70. It has been, and still is, the custom of this Board, if deprived of getting their dinners and suppers at home, with their families, to get them at the city's expense. That having been the custom, and as this Board have, without any hesitation, gone freely and partaken of refreshments, as other Boards have done, I shall claim the privilege of doing for the remainder of this year as I have done for the past five years, and I shall not cease to do so to satisfy the public or the newspapers. I smoke no cigars and drink very little wine; and I will agree with any member of this Board not to touch a drop of wine or smoke a cigar. Now, Mr. Chairman, I believe this kind of talk ought to be suppressed, both here and in the other branch. Any one who has read the proceedings of the last two meetings of the Common Council must have come to the conclusion that the interests of the city are not being advanced by that branch. Now, sir, the order which has caused this series of discussions originated with a member of the other branch who has been as ready as any one to partake of refreshments, either on committees or public occasions, such as the dedication of the Army and Navy Monument; and he enjoyed that dinner at the Revere House to as great an extent as any other member of the City Council, if appearance, conversation and actions are an indication of any man's having had a good time.

Alderman O'Brien—I would ask the Alderman what Councilman he refers to?

Alderman Clark—The Alderman does not answer the question of the Alderman from Ward 21. The order originated from a source which, it seems to me, is not sincere. We all know that the amendments attached to it in the Council were not sincere, and neither was the one we added to it here. We have had altogether too much talk about this sort of thing. I am very glad, sir, that the Alderman has read a statement of the refreshment expenses of prior City Governments. It seems that they have been decreasing from year to year; and I find that the expenses of committees have been decreasing from year to year. I hope the Board of Aldermen will continue to do precisely as they have been doing when at work for the city; that they will not hesitate to partake of refreshments in a reasonable amount; and I will guarantee that the citizens will not object to paying the bills. There are some men who come here and live on us during the winter, and go down to Nahant in the spring to pay their taxes, and they object to this sort of thing; but the citizens of Boston, the taxpayers, make no objection. I might say, sir, that I know some members of the Common Council who have served the city faithfully and honestly for years past, who have not hesitated, when at work for the city, to partake of refreshments; and the city is fortunate in having such men willing to accept the position and work in its behalf. Now, there is no need of this thing. No one attempts to cover up what has been done. We go publicly, boldly, and take our refreshments, and every citizen of Boston, if they choose, can tell what the amount is. The Auditor sends out his report every year, and the bills are all there. In looking over the Auditor's report, I find that the refreshment bills, when the city was under the guidance of some first-class men, were a great deal larger than they are today. I hold in my hand the amount of the refreshment bills for 1868-69 of the Committee on Common and Squares, consisting of three members—not eight, as now—and the total is $573.48. In 1869-70, with only three members, they expended $411.45. In 1870-71 it was made a joint committee, with one of the best Aldermen, and one of the best Mayors the city ever had as chairman—Hon. Henry L. Pierce—and the committee spent $1403.23 for refreshments. That was the expenditure with first-class Aldermen and first-class Councilmen, I suppose, as members of the committee. In 1871-72 the bill was $520.83. In 1872-73 I had the honor to be appointed chairman of the committee, and we spent some $958.50; in 1873-74, $734.20. We did a great deal of work, made a great many visits, and worked a great many hours and days for the city. In 1874-75 we spent $453.40; in 1875-76, $685.40; and in 1876-77, $942.25. But, Mr. Chairman, we never got up to $1400—this Committee on Common and Squares that has caused such a tremendous excitement in the chamber of the Common Council. I find, also, that in 1868-69 the Committee on Police spent about $1700—three of them; and in going a little back to 1868-69, I find that the three members of that committee—and you, sir, know who was chairman—spent $802.98 for refreshments.

Alderman O'Brien—Who was the chairman of the committee that year?

Alderman Clark—An ex-Mayor of the city and a first-class man in every sense. In 1869-70 the Committee on Police spent $1711.93; in 1870-71, $203; in 1871-72, $80.85; in 1872-73, $145, which is quite a difference over the preceding year. Next year (1873-74) we spent $409; in 1874-75, $538, and in 1875-76 we dropped down to $82.20, and in 1876-77 it was $250.65. Now, Mr. Chairman, I presume you can remember when it was customary for the Board of Aldermen to have a room at Parker's, and when they went there and dined every day in the week, whether they had a committee meeting or not. I understand that that was the custom as recently as 1868. The figures show that the junketing has been decreasing from year to year; it has not been increasing. I know there were excursion parties where the bills amounted so enormously that a single individual would pull his wallet and pay it himself rather than have the bill sent to City Hall. I have known of such an instance as that. I know that the refreshment bills have been materially reduced since the appointment of the commissions. The Fire, Water, Health and Street Commissions have undoubtedly reduced them. I also find that the Committee on Public Buildings, under first-class chairmen, have expended pretty liberally. Under one first-rate chairman they spent $2600 for refreshments, and I am told that prior to 1870 there were times when they run up bills of ten or fifteen hundred dollars for a dinner at Point Shirley for a single committee. Now, I am willing to stand all the criticism that should justly be put upon any one man. But there has been considerable talk about the Committee on Common and Squares, and I beg leave to make an explanation here, as I may not be on the floor again.

The Alderman explained in detail the expenditures of the Committee on Common for the present year, which are given as a part of the discussion on that subject later in the session. In concluding his remarks on the subject of refreshments, he said—

I have departed a good deal from the subject I arose to discuss. I shall vote against this substitute, and shall not vote to lay the order on the table. If any members of the Common Council do not consider their services of sufficient value to the city to partake of any refreshment from the city, I hope they will conscientiously abstain from so doing, and from taking carriages to ride about the country, or to go home after the adjournment of the other branch.

Alderman Fitzgerald—The order and the substitute are not an acknowledgment that what we have done is wrong. I shall not acknowledge it. But the taxpayers do not sanction going to extremes; but in order to prevent the going to extremes, the only way is to stop it altogether. I introduced it for that purpose, and to give the very economical gentlemen in the Council an opportunity to vote for it.

Alderman Clark—If the order can be amended so that Councilmen shall not be allowed to partake of refreshments unless they wish to, I will have no objection to it. Take my own case: I have been in City Hall since nine o'clock this morning at work for the city, and have not tasted food since 7½ o'clock this morning. For the last six years I have not dined with my family except on Sundays, and I propose to continue taking refreshment, when at work for the city, during the next two months, precisely as I have done for six years past. I hope the order will be indefinitely postponed.

Alderman Fitzgerald's substitute was lost—yeas 4, nays 8:

Yeas—Aldermen Fitzgerald, O'Brien, Thompson, Wilder—4.

Nays—Aldermen Breck, Burnham, Clark, Dunbar, Gibson, Robinson, Slade, Viles—8.

Alderman Clark hoped three of the Aldermen who voted affirmatively would have an opportunity of changing their votes within the next two months if they chose to do so.

Alderman Fitzgerald hoped Alderman Clark would have the same privilege.

Alderman O'Brien—For a week past I have talked with a number of Aldermen, and before we came into this room I asked the Alderman from Ward 21 to offer such an amendment. I voted for it in sincerity.

Alderman Wilder—I voted for the order after mature consideration, and in full sincerity. I thank the Alderman for suggesting the privilege of changing votes; but I shall have to change my mind in regard to the custom before I do so. I believe the custom of city officials eating at the public expense is wrong.

Alderman Fitzgerald—If those were the sentiments of the Alderman for the past nine months, he has been the most criminal man in the city of Boston for sitting at table at the expense of the city. If I believed it wrong, I should consider myself a criminal to do so. I have not stated that I believed it wrong to take a meal at the city's expense after doing work; but I voted for this order because I want to give those members of the Council an opportunity to vote for an order that will prevent the abuse of an old custom. If I considered it wrong I should consider that I had stolen from the City Treasury every dinner I had eaten for the last nine months.

Alderman Wilder—The Alderman must have misunderstood me, intentionally or otherwise. As an individual I don't believe it is wrong, and I did not say that any man had committed any wrong. But the custom, the idea—which we did not make—I believe to be wrong and a bad one. I have eaten at the public expense just as many times as I have felt the need of it, and I don't believe I am entitled to any more credit for abstinence than others. Counting ten hours a day, I believe that many gentlemen have given four full days' work for each dinner they have eaten.

Alderman Thompson—I suppose I ought to state my experience. I voted for the order to show to the Council that if they want this reform we will go as far as anybody. I hope we will have no more of this nonsense. If a member of this Board finds it impossible to leave his public duties and go home to dinner, I believe it right for him to eat a dinner at the public expense, and as good a dinner as can be had in Boston. Take the Lamp Department; the committee often start early in the morning and do not return till late in the afternoon. I don't believe the citizens expect us to pay for our own dinners when we are attending to public business and cannot go home. Still, I think members ought to have a certain discretion and propriety. It is very undignified to bring this question before the City Council, and after the election I hope we shall hear no more about it.

Alderman Robinson—It is impossible for a person to serve on committees and be regularly at home to his meals. Members cannot arrange to have meetings at hours that will suit the convenience of all.

Alderman Gibson—This is my sixth year in the Board of Aldermen, and I have served on many important committees. I have refused to approve extravagant bills for members of the Common Council, and the members had to pay it. But I don't know that I have seen an extravagant bill this year. It is easy to run up a dinner to six dollars apiece. Perhaps we are charged too much. It is well known I eat no animal food; but if I prefer to have a little brandy it is nobody's business. One party will call for one wine and another for another, and perhaps there will be five or six on the table, some nearly gone, some perhaps not a glass taken out. All those bottles are charged to the city. Now, if any gentleman in the Council don't want to enjoy anything to eat or drink, I am willing they should enjoy that privilege; but I am not willing that those who do not do one-tenth part of the work we do should compel us not to eat or drink anything. I suppose some men are so constituted by nature they think it a crime to eat at the city's expense. That is all right from their standard. If I eat at the city's expense I am willing to have it published in the paper. A man who comes to this Board has to get the nominations of four or five conventions, pay each $50 for printing tickets and expenses, and what does he get in return? He is required to spend all his time and talk to everybody. There has been three times as much labor this year as before. It is difficult to settle this matter exactly, but I think this is one of the most ridiculous propositions ever made.

Alderman Fitzgerald—If I entertained the opinion of some gentlemen who voted for the order, I should feel in honor bound to return to the city treasury all the money my dinners had cost.

Alderman Clark called for the yeas and nays, and the order was indefinitely postponed—yeas 9, nays 3; Aldermen Fitzgerald, O'Brien, Wilder voting nay.

EXPENDITURES FOR COMMON AND PUBLIC GROUNDS.

In his remarks on the refreshment order, Alderman Clark made the following statement, in relation to the expenditures for Common and public grounds during the present year:

It was found a short time ago that we were using up our appropriation very rapidly, as I expected we should, and that we should have to ask for an additional appropriation. The 16th joint rule requires that whenever an additional appropriation is required by a department or committee, the details of the expenditures shall be reported in print. That rule was in vogue years ago when the proceedings of the City Council were not printed as they are now. The Assistant Clerk of Committees said it was not necessary to have half-a-dozen items for loam, labor, plants, sods, expenses of committee, etc., printed, and we put it in writing. It went through this Board without any questions being asked. It went to the Common Council, and there, as is often the case, the question was raised as to what had become of the money. Much to my surprise the Chairman of the Committee on Common on the part of the Council did not know and could not tell where it had gone, and was utterly surprised. Now, I wish to state right here that every bill of the committee this year has been approved by a quorum of the Committee on Common; and as matters have turned out I am very glad that that has been the case. Formerly the Chairman was authorized to approve the bills; but this year the committee approved the bills, and every single one has been passed upon by the committee, and every order issued in regard to that department has been in accordance with a vote of the committee; and the action of the superintendent has been by authority of the committee. The committee are responsible for the expenditure of the money, and not the superintendent. I don't propose to stand here and defend the superintendent; he can defend himself here or anywhere else. Of course, the hiring of men is left mostly to the superintendent and the members of the Common Council. Now, in regard to this appropriation. In the first place, the committee were of opinion that it would require $75,000 to carry on this department; but we figured it very closely and asked for $70,700. The Committee on Auditor's Estimates and the City Council cut it down to $65,100. I stated before that committee that the appropriation would n't be enough, and we should have to come in for an additional amount—the Aldermen who are members of the committee will bear me out in this statement—in order to maintain the public grounds as the people want them. A member from the rural districts was tremendously surprised to think that in six months we should have spent more than one-half of our entire appropriation, supposing, I presume, that we set out flowers, sodded grounds, and all that sort of thing just the same in winter as in summer. It so happens that the great bulk of the expenditure of the committee is required, and seventy-five per cent. of the labor is employed, during the first six months of the year. All the loam, trees, plants and shrubs are put out from the first of May to the first or middle of September; so that answers the question as to why the expenditures are so large during the first six months of the year. After the first of November the expenditures are very small; they are simply for taking care of the paths on the Garden and Common, the expense of which and the number of laborers employed depends upon the severity of the season. Last winter we were obliged to keep some thirty men employed in clearing snow from the paths; for they are all streets and sidewalks over which people come from the West End, the Back Bay and the Providence depot to the centre of the city. It is just as necessary to keep the paths and walks of the Public Garden and Common free of snow and ice as it is to keep the streets in the same condition. The request for an additional appropriation not being in print, the Council decided that it was not properly before them; although it had been printed in the proceedings and was on the desk of every member. The committee met and appointed a subcommittee to make a detailed statement of the expenditures, put it in print, present it to the Common Council and ask for additional appropriation for the current year. That committee has presented to the City Council a detailed statement such as no committee has ever before presented. I think in giving the expenditures for materials, labor, etc., and coming down to details of refreshments they have had at the hotel opposite when they have been at work for the city, every man's name is mentioned, the amount and the time of each bill; and I for one am very happy to say that I do not think it is an extravagant bill for the amount of work which has been done by the committee. There is one charge to the superintendent, in regard to which I wish to make a statement, and which I understand has been extensively commented upon. During the past season some gentlemen were here as representatives from a Western city government who wished to go over the Public Garden and see the display of flowers and to inspect the public grounds. I introduced them to the superintendent, and they went over the grounds with him and were very much gratified, as are all people who visit them. It being about lunch time, I requested Mr. Galvin to go with them to Parker's and give them a lunch, as I could not go myself; and that $11 bill is the result of a little entertainment given to two or three gentlemen from the West to see our public grounds. On examining the amount critically, I find that my portion of those hills—provided I smoke cigars, which I do not—is $71; that is, it has cost the city of Boston that for what I have done for the city of Boston this year on the public grounds. It is impossible to keep the public grounds, as people wish to have them kept, on an insignificant sum. The moment they are not kept in order complaint is made. As a general thing I find that those who pay the bills have been satisfied with the appearance of the Common and squares. During the past year or two some suggestions have been made, with which the committee have complied, by the introduction of rhododendrons and other choice plants, which cost $1000 last year. Suggestions were made by gentlemen of economical habits, that we should have spring as well as summer flowers, as many are deprived of seeing summer flowers, because they spend their summers in the country; and the committee have made arrangements for some. All these things require money and labor. People have always taken a great deal of interest in the Common and Public Garden, and both the Superintendent and Committee have been complimented during the year for the beautiful appearance of them both. Strangers returning from Europe have said they had seen no spot on the other side of the ocean that is more beautiful, or which pleased them so much as the Public Garden. I understand that the Mayor of Baltimore was so much pleased with the Public Garden that he intended to send his own superintendent here to get some ideas, notwithstanding that they have some beautiful parks and grounds. Now we come down to the Army and Navy Monument. The committee did n't expect to spend anything like the amount they have spent around the Army and Navy Monument. We did n't suppose it would cost—the chairman of the committee on the part of the Council said five or six hundred dollars; I supposed it would cost one thousand dollars. We proposed to cover up the stone chips, and grade the ground, so that the celebration could take place. We went to work at it rapidly, and the work was continued as late as twelve o'clock many nights, in order to get it done so that the dedication could take place. It could not have been supposed by any member of the committee that the work was going to cost five or six hundred dollars, for one of the members of the committee proposed to put in an order for $2500 to grade around the monument; but it was not done. We went on and the expenditure for materials will cost five thousand dollars. We propose to do all that was necessary to put the grounds in proper condition for the dedication; but the Superintendent and the chairman did not do that without the knowledge of the committee. The vote of the committee was—

"That the superintendent be authorized to have the necessary grading done on the ground near the Army and Navy Monument on the Common."

That is the vote of the committee giving the Superintendent authority to do that work; so that the committee are responsible for that and not the Superintendent. More work was done than was expected to be done; I admit that. But when we had spent five or six hundred dollars, we found that the grounds were left in an absolutely dangerous condition; new paths had to be made, the grounds levelled, and men had to be kept at work to make the grounds safe. Undoubtedly it would have been better to ask for an appropriation. The labor has been done by the Superintendent and his men, and the material has been put in at contract prices. The great bulk of the work was done by contract. We advertise for proposals at the beginning of the year as other committees do, and give the work to the lowest bidder. All of our red sand and gravel was obtained and the work done at contract prices, the same as is done in other departments. That is about all I have to explain. We want $15,000, which will be sufficient to finish the grading about the monument and carry the department through the present financial year. When the grading is done about the monument it will be as beautiful a spot as any on the Common or Public Garden. It is already a most attractive spot, and 10,000 people a day have visited it. I might add, that the expenditures of the committee for labor were larger than we expected they would be, as we made our estimates on the basis of $1.50 a day; but wages were not reduced in other departments, and we did not feel authorized to do so. The expenditure of sixty or seventy dollars for carriages was made in looking up playgrounds for the youth of the city, in visiting places in Roxbury, West Roxbury and other places.

The request by the Committee on Common, etc. (City Doc. 84), for an additional appropriation of $15,000, was considered in the regular order among the papers from the other branch, the question being in reference to the Finance Committee.

Alderman O'Brien said he should vote for the reference, but he did n't like the style and make-up of the document, showing little details of bills of H. D. Parker, all amounting to $425, while no details were given of the large bills, no price being given for loam, sods, etc. The remarks of ninety-nine out of one hundred men have been almost exclusively in regard to the refreshment bills, and but one in one hundred said anything of the others. With all respect to the committee, it looks as if these small items were put in to attract attention. He hoped no such report would be presented again.

Alderman Slade said the only reason the details of refreshments went in was because the members of the committee from the Council declared that unless they were put in no more money would be granted by the Council. He did n't know any other object, unless it was to smirch somebody.

Alderman Fitzgerald — Could details of other bills have been given?

Alderman Slade—Precisely as well, but it would make a big book.

Alderman Fitzgerald — But they insisted that this should go in and the others be left out.

Alderman Clark said full details of everything are given on the bills for labor, etc.

Alderman Robinson said it was not customary to give details in making up the reports of corporations; but all those things are gone into by the committee to audit the accounts.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Why should n't the number of loads of loam furnished by Owen Nawn be given, as well as the number of days Mr. Pope and Mr. Galvin, and others, partook of refreshments?

Alderman Robinson — Because everything of that kind is not required in such a report. It is not customary.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I simply ask why they were so particular about the item of refreshments?

Alderman Robinson—Alderman Slade has explained that.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I wanted to know why the committee insisted that the refreshments should go in.

Alderman Clark said this was an exact duplicate of the report first presented, except the refreshment items. The other expenses were lumped. I thought it was not necessary to put in the refreshment items, but the committee on the part of the Council were very strenuous about it.

Alderman O'Brien—Did Superintendent Galvin partake of refreshments at the invitation of the committee, or not?

Alderman Clark—On all occasions the Superintendent was invited by the committee. It is almost absolutely necessary for him to be present at committee meetings.

The report was referred to the Finance Committee in concurrence.

FREE CONCERTS.

Alderman Wilder offered an order—That the Committee on Free Concerts be authorized to expend the sum of $16.31, in addition to the amount authorized by order of the City Council, approved July 5, 1877; said amount to be charged to the appropriation for Incidental Expenses.

Alderman Wilder explained that the committee in arranging for concerts in Charlestown had not allowed quite margin enough and the appropriation ran short.

The order was read twice and passed—yeas 11, nays 0. Sent down.

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman Viles.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Common Council,
OCTOBER 25, 1877.

Regular meeting at 7½ o'clock P. M., Benjamin Pope, President, in the chair.

PAPERS FROM THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Reference to Committee on Public Institutions of a message from the Mayor transmitting the report of the Commissioners on the Treatment of Drunkenness in City Institutions. (City Doc. No. 85, 1877.) Concurred.

Petitions were referred in concurrence.

Report in favor and reference to Committee on Claims of petition of Nicholas W. Johnson, to be paid a reward for the detection and arrest of a person stealing flowers on the Public Garden. Accepted and referred accordingly.

Report (leave to withdraw) on petition of J. B. & W. M. Warren, for damages for alleged infringement of patent process for putting down pavement. Accepted in concurrence.

Report and order to release to the First Baptist Society of Brighton an estate at the junction of Brighton and Cambridge streets, upon payment of $300, as therein set forth. Order read twice and passed in concurrence.

Report and orders for a transfer of $2000 from Reserved Fund to pay for fitting up old Lyman Schoolhouse for a branch of the English High School; and to rescind so much of the order of Oct. 9 as provides that such expense shall be charged to "Schoolhouses, Public Buildings." Ordered to a second reading. A motion to suspend the rule, by Mr. Beeching of Ward 1, was lost.

Order for an additional expenditure of $16.31 by the Committee on Free Concerts. Ordered to a second reading.

Amendment to order concerning the meetings of Fire Commissioners and the names of absentees therefrom, by making the time "the past twelve months." Concurred.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Order for city to assume taxes for present year ($68.12) on land on Cambridge street purchased as a site for a grammar schoolhouse in Brighton. Passed in concurrence.

ROOMS FOR CITY SOLICITOR'S DEPARTMENT.

The order to hire for five years the rooms at 2 Pemberton square, for $1500 a year, was considered under unfinished business, the question being on its passage.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—At the last meeting of the Council I made an inquiry in regard to the Burnham Building, near the corner of School and Tremont streets. It was then stated that the lower rooms of that building were occupied. Since the last meeting of the Council I have received a communication from Mr. Burnham in regard to the building and his rooms, and I would like to have the Chair read it.

The President proceeded to read a letter addressed to Mr. Clarke stating that Mr. Sampson was in error in saying that the lower rooms in said building were occupied, and describing certain large unoccupied rooms which can be rented for $600 and $700 and smaller ones for $300.

Before the reading of the letter was concluded Mr. Sampson of Ward 17 said—I object to the communication being read further. I stated that the lower floor of that building is occupied, which is correct, and as that communication is not addressed to the Council, I object to its being read.

Mr. Clarke—My reason for calling the attention of the Council to the building was this: I was not aware at the time that the building was occupied any further than by the Sewerage Committee. I thought it very central and convenient to City Hall, and a very admirable place; and if one department is to be located there, I thought it might be well to have another one in the same building. It is a well-known fact that it is very disagreeable to climb up the hill to get to the offices of the City Solicitor, Registrars of Voters and others in Pemberton square. As it is not so desirable a place, I thought that if rooms can be hired as reasonably, and as near City Hall as the Burnham Building, it might be well to call attention to the rooms, and if the Committee on Public Buildings thought it advisable they might make some such recommendation. I understand from Mr. Burnham that only one or two rooms are occupied, besides those rented to the Sewerage Committee, and that he will furnish them at a reasonable rent. They have all the conveniences of water and gas, and he will furnish them without any charge for water or taxes. The tax paid to the city on that building is on a valuation of $140,000; last year he paid more than that. I move that that order be recommitted to the Committee on Public Buildings, with the recommendation that they examine those rooms of Mr. Burnham.

Mr. Sampson—I have no objection to the gentleman making whatever communication he sees fit to the Committee on Public Buildings, or to the committee recommending any rooms for the city to hire. The reason I object to the reading is that it contradicts a statement made here by me which is absolutely correct. If the gentleman wishes to advertise his rooms, he has the public press. I have nothing to say to the recommitment.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—This seems to be a novel method of getting an advertisement of premises to let. It may be very well for the gentleman who has rooms to let; but it struck me that the first sentence of this communication was an insult, by stating substantially that a member of this Council had lied about it. I think the communication ought not to be read here, but returned to the gentleman who wrote it. Gentlemen who heard it read will come to the conclusion that it is nothing more nor less than an attempt to get these rooms rented.

The President returned the letter to Mr. Clarke.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—In order that this matter may not be any further advertised, I move the previous question.

The main question was ordered, and the order was passed in concurrence.

REQUESTS OF THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

Requests were received from the School Committee, for fire escapes from the building occupied by the Latin and English High School in Bedford street; to enlarge the yard of the Andrew School by taking land heretofore approved by that board through the proper committee; to present that board, for approval, a plan of the buildings to be erected for the use of the Allston School. Referred to Joint Committee on Public Instruction. Sent up.

A communication was received from the School Committee respectfully requesting the City Council to inform said board by whose authority and for what reasons steam-heating apparatus has been introduced in the Brimmer School building, at an estimated expense of $5000.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I hope we shall discuss that question very fully. I put in an order the other evening requesting the School Board to do a certain thing. Gentlemen thought it very degrading to send such a communication to the School Board. Recently we put steam-heating apparatus in this school, which is very desirable, and they come here with an order asking by what right we did it. Now, gentleman, just think about it. They want to know by whose authority we did it. I want you to put the two things together. I move that the request be indefinitely postponed.

The motion prevailed.

PETITIONS PRESENTED.

By Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—Petition of B. F. S. Bullard and others, that Sterling street be extended in a westerly direction to Tremont street. Sent up.

By Mr. Reed of Ward 17—Petition of Ellen M. Frazier, to be compensated for personal injuries. Referred to Joint Committee on Claims. Sent up.

By Mr. Webster of Ward 1—Petition of Charles Brooks, formerly driver for Hose 6, to be compensated for injuries received while in the discharge of his duties. Referred to Committee on Fire Department. Sent up.

NEW LUNATIC HOSPITAL.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17 submitted a report from the Finance Committee on the communication of the Directors for Public Institutions in regard to tax on new lunatic hospital in Winthrop, recommending the passage of an order—That the Auditor of Accounts be and he is hereby authorized to transfer from the appropriation for House of Industry to that for New Lunatic Hospital the sum of $434.76.

Mr. Sampson said the money had already been paid; and on his motion the rule was suspended, and the order was read a second time and passed—yeas 56, nays 0. Sent up.

CLAIMS.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17 submitted a report from the Joint Committee on Claims, on petition of Mrs. Annie E. Porter, recommending the passage of an order—That there be allowed and paid to Annie E. Porter, in compensation for personal injuries received by her by an alleged defect in Dudley street, the sum of $1500, upon her giving a release to the city, satisfactory to the City Solicitor, from all damages, costs and expenses incurred by her on account of said injuries; said sum to be charged to the appropriation for Incidentals. Order passed to a second reading.

ADDITIONAL APPROPRIATION FOR COMMON AND PUBLIC GROUNDS.

Under the call for reports of committees, Mr. Sampson of Ward 17 submitted a report from the Committee on Finance on the request of the Joint Committee on Common, etc., for an additional appropriation of $15,000, with an order—That the Auditor of Accounts be and he hereby is authorized to transfer from the Reserved Fund to the appropriation for Common, etc., the sum of $15,000, which transfer of appropriation is to include the cost of grading, etc., around the Army and Navy Monument on Boston Common. Ordered to a second reading.

Under the call for motions, etc., Mr. Howes of Ward 18 moved to suspend the rule in order that the order might be put upon its passage tonight.

The rule was suspended, and the order was read a second time and put upon its passage.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—One matter has occurred to me that I do not understand, and upon which we have had no information. The question has been raised whether the committee need $15,000; but upon looking at the matter it is a question with me whether $15,000 will be enough to carry them through till the 1st of May next, though perhaps it may be enough to carry them through until the 1st of January, when a new committee will have to take the responsibility of attending to this matter. I should like to have some definite statement on that point.

Mr. Howes—I stated at the last meeting, I think, that the estimates had been made on a general basis, and it was calculated that $15,000 would carry them through until the 1st of May. Personally I had my doubts as to whether that sum would be enough, and I thought it might be too small; but at the last committee meeting the Superintendent went over the matter in his mind, or on paper, and stated that it would be enough, provided the Paving Department would put the snow on some place other than the Common, which they did for the first time last year; for in that case it might require some additional men in April to pick the ice and snow to pieces so that it would melt quickly. He would try to prevent it this year; but barring that one item, he thought $15,000 would be sufficient.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—I shall vote for the appropriation, but at the same time I want to make my protest that the amounts appropriated for the Department of Common and Squares are altogether too large. I suppose we are in a certain sense cornered in this matter; that is to say, we will have to allow the city to suffer damage and inconvenience, and prevent the proper conduct of that department for the remaining months of this year, if we do not pass the appropriation. There is a question in my mind whether it would not be better propriety and in better taste not to force this matter to a vote this evening, but wait until the Committee of Investigation, which was appointed some time ago, shall make their report. It may be that the committee will make such a report—I do not mean to anticipate that they will—that we shall think it unsafe to place a very large amount in the hands of the parties at present controlling that department. I don't know but it may require some sort of restraint in the powers of the committee to prevent it from authorizing the Superintendent to incur so large an expense for grading so small a surface. I was casting up in my mind the probable expense of grading up the Back Bay Park, if it is to cost the same in proportion as it has to grade around the Army and Navy Monument. If it cost $9000 to grade somewhat less than two acres, where the deepest filling is not over 4½ feet, it will cost more than $250,000 to grade the eighty-four acres inside of the streets on the new Back Bay Park. There is something a little surprising in the figures when you come to contemplate the mathematics of them, and the possibility of what may be done by the present committee while this investigation is pending. Now, on the other hand, it is possible that this Investigating Committee will bring in a very favorable report on that department, and it may be that after the light which they will give us we may think it for the interest of the city to vote a larger sum than $15,000. I think it would be better to vote enough for that department now, than to vote simply a sum sufficient to get them through until the first of next year. It seems to me that that was all that is anticipated in this order. To be sure it is stated otherwise by a gentleman whose estimates are said not to be always very accurate. As I said I wanted to make my protest against the large amounts which are annually appropriated for the Department of Common and Squares. There are certain items presented by the committee last week which look very large indeed. I think that account shows that certain things were done at a large expense which need not be done; that certain things are purchased from outside parties that ought to be prepared by the city. As I said, while I shall vote for the appropriation to get the city out of the scrape, I think we had better wait until the report of the Investigating Committee.

Mr. Howes—I am not in the secrets of the Investigating Committee, and cannot state how soon their report will come in. They had a hearing, yesterday, and judging by that it may take sometime—possibly two or three or four weeks—to go through the department, as I understand they intend doing. Meantime, the department is, to a certain degree, suffering for want of men to take care of the public grounds. I know that in my own ward I have had some persons come to me and ask if the Paving Department could not sweep off the leaves from Chester square, as its condition was a disgrace to the city; and I said it would be remedied in a short time, when we put a few men to work. I suppose the work around the monument, in its present unfinished condition, would suffer if we had a severe storm. Therefore I trust that the order for the appropriation will go through tonight. It will make very little difference what the Investigating Committee report on the action of the committee and Superintendent in the past; the amount of money we now have is so small that if the committee were very extravagant we could not spend a great deal.

Mr. Ruffin of Ward 9—So far as the report of the Investigating Committee is concerned, it is impossible to state now when they will be able to report. They will not report until they investigate the matter as thoroughly as they can. They meet again tomorrow evening, and possibly that may be the last one. There are some other things for which we will have to wait—among them the survey of the monument grounds which the City Engineer is to make. We cannot tell exactly when that report will be made; but we all recognize the importance of having this matter put through as quickly as we can, and having that in view we will make our report as soon as we are in possession of all the facts, so as to arrive at an intelligent and just decision.

The order was passed—yeas 57, nays 0. Sent up.

EXTENSION OF STERLING STREET.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19 offered an order—That the Street Commissioners be requested to estimate the cost of extending Sterling street from Warwick street to Tremont street, and report the expense thereof as soon as it may be determined. The order was read twice and put upon its passage.

Mr. Spenceley—When the petition which has been presented this evening was handed to me, I received two or three reasons why this street should be extended. If there is no objection I will read them:

“First—That there is no public street leading to the Sherwin School and Madison square, between Ruggles street and Hammond street, and all children attending the Sherwin School on the west side of Tremont street are obliged to walk a long distance to said school. Second—That the expense of the proposed extension of said street at the present time would be very small compared to some future time, and the increase in the valuation of the property benefited by the proposed extension would more than pay the expense in a very few years. Third—That it would open a very much needed thoroughfare across that section of the city."

I don't propose to discuss the matter tonight. The order was passed. Sent up.

OPPORTUNITY FOR CITY EMPLOYEES TO VOTE.

Mr. O'Donnell of Ward 7 offered an order—That the laborers employed on the Mystic Valley Sewer be allowed a half-holiday on Tuesday, November 6th.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—I would ask what is the reason for offering the order.

Mr. O'Donnell—It is generally understood that the laborers employed on that sewer are citizens of Boston. They go out on a train in the morning, and are brought back in the evening. If there is n't some understanding so that they can be brought to the city in order to vote, they will have to walk over to Winchester to take the cars to Boston. I simply offered the order so that the Superintendent may arrange for them early in the day, and bring them in to vote at the election.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—I think some further explanation of the order is due. It would strike one at the first hearing that if those gentlemen desire to vote, whoever has charge of the works will allow them to be absent to come into the city to do so. I am not accustomed to get my time allowed while I go to the polls, and I don't see why the employes of the city should. I suppose the object of the order is to allow them their pay while they are away to vote. I should like some further explanation.

Mr. O'Donnell—The order is intended to give them their pay for the remaining half of the day. The pay is $1.50 a day and from that twelve cents is deducted for transportation. If you take away half a day's pay and deduct twelve cents from the remainder, it will hardly be worth while for them to go to work at all.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—Why should n't it be extended to everybody working for the city?

Mr. O'Donnell—Other city employes can vote at the noon hour and go back to work. Last year I think all the laborers had a half holiday. The laborers in this department cannot come into the city at noon to vote.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—I believe it has been customary for a year or two to pass an order on this subject, and I find the one offered last year by the gentleman from Ward 13 [Mr. Flynn], which seems to be as proper a one as any. The order already offered relates only to certain parties who may or may not have a right to vote; and perhaps it is giving them more time than is needed. The order passed last year was that all persons in the employ of the city be given sufficient time, without reduction of pay, to cast any vote to which they may be entitled. I should think it would be very proper to pass it this year, and I move to offer it as a substitute.

Mr. O'Donnell accepted the amendment, which Mr. Crocker offered in the following form:

Ordered, That all laborers in the employ of the city be allowed sufficient time to vote without any reduction of their pay.

Mr. Fraser of Ward 6 offered as a substitute an order—That all employes of the city be allowed time to vote, without loss of pay, at the coming State and municipal elections.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10—My objection to the original order offered by the gentleman from Ward 7 was perhaps more to its phraseology than to the principle it involved. I should certainly not object, so far as I had any control of the business and finances of the city, to give any laborer, or anybody in the employ of the city, time to vote if he was a voter. But the original order provided that every laborer on this sewer, whether a voter or not, should have a half holiday. I think that everybody here will agree with me that that should be confined to voters. There is no reason why a man should not have an opportunity to vote, if he has a vote. I think that objection applies to the last order. The first order included all, whether voters or not, which is unfair, and the gentleman did n't mean that, I think. I think the other orders are not sufficiently definite. It ought to be confined to those who are voters.

Mr. Crocker—I think the order passed last year will cover the point to which the gentleman refers, and I have written it so that it will cover the point suggested by the gentleman from Ward 6, and making it apply to both the State and municipal elections.

Mr. Richardson—I would suggest an amendment so as to insert the words, "who are entitled to vote."

Mr. Crocker amended the order as suggested by Mr. Richardson; Mr. Fraser accepted Mr. Crocker's amendment, and the order was then formally offered in the following form:

Ordered, That, on the days of the coming State and municipal elections, all persons in the employ of the city, who may be entitled to vote, may be given sufficient time, without reduction of pay, to cast any vote to which they may be entitled.

Mr. O'Donnell—The reason I drew the original order so indefinitely was that I understood, and still do, that everybody employed in that department is supposed to be a citizen of Boston; and I think every citizen of Boston ought to have time to vote on election day.

Mr. Pratt—I agree entirely with the views of the gentleman from Ward 7, and my objection to the order as first introduced was as to the style of favoritism in which it was drawn. I have no objection to the order as it now stands.

Mr. McGaragle—Is this order broad enough to cover the pay? Previous to the 17th of September we passed an order that all employes of the city should have a holiday without reduction of pay, and I have been informed that the employes on the Mystic sewer had a full day's wages deducted.

Mr. Fraser—That was my reason for offering the substitute. I wanted to make it broad enough so that every person in the employ of the city—whether high or low salaried—shall have a chance to vote on that day without loss of pay. As I understand that order, all employes of the city, of whatever position, will be entitled to have time enough to go to their respective polling places and cast a vote without loss of pay.

The order as last offered by Mr. Crocker was passed. Sent up.

COMMERCIAL STREET.

On motion of Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—The order for a loan of $1,000,000 to widen, grade and repave Commercial street was taken from the table and specially assigned for next Thursday evening at eight o'clock.

CARE OF THE PUBLIC GROUNDS BY THE PARK COMMISSIONERS.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24 moved to take from the table the order for the Committee on Ordinances to consider the expediency of placing the care of the Common and public grounds in charge of the Park Commissioners.

Mr. Pierce—As this is simply an order for reference I don't know that it is necessary to take up any time in enlarging upon it in any way, unless it is desired.

The order was taken from the table.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I hope that order will not pass, and that the subject will not be referred to the Committee on Ordinances. I believe the City Council are nearer the people than any Park Commissioners that may be appointed. I don't believe in delegating the powers of the City Council to any commission, and therefore I am opposed, as I have always been, to giving to any commission the power that really belongs to the City Council. I shall vote against the order.

Mr. Ruffin of Ward 9—I don't say just now whether I am in favor of this order or not, but I would simply suggest that, inasmuch as this whole question may be opened for discussion in a very few days, I think it would be better to postpone action on this order for some time. If we have this matter before us comprehensively, I think we can dispose of it better than by piecemeal. We shall have this matter before us at no very far distant day, and I think we had better leave it until then. I therefore move to lay the order on the table.

Mr. Pierce of Ward 24—My idea in bringing this matter up at this time, as I stated a week ago, was that we might have the reference, at any rate, before the Investigating Committee made any report, in order that it might not be affected, so far as the report upon the expediency of the matter is concerned, by the report of the Investigating Committee. It does seem to me that some change might perhaps be made here. At any rate, I think it is well worth consideration; and as attention has been brought to it now, if there is any way to improve the matter it is well enough to devise it. I have worded the order so as to postpone any change in the management of the department until the new City Government comes in. My idea was certainly not to appear to be endeavoring to take away from the present Committee on Common and Public Grounds any power which they now have; and I think that any action of this kind had better be looking to the future rather than to the present. One of the first things in the organization of the City Government, when it comes into power, is the appointment of the standing committees; and if a committee is appointed with the expectation that they are to have certain authority, it is perhaps a little more unpleasant to have to take away from them any of that authority—if such a course is deemed advisable under any circumstances, it seems to me it is advisable to take away the power from an uncertain committee. It may be much better than the present one, and it may be much worse; and if the report of the committee and the action of the Council should be favorable to a change, as I said, I should think it best to take effect in the coming year, rather than in the present one. The order is to refer the subject to the Committee on Ordinances, and as it would give them some time to make their report, when it comes here we can consider it very readily. I saw no other committee to whom it could be referred, because the Committee on Common would hardly be a disinterested party.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I am in favor of referring this to the Committee on Ordinances, because I suppose it is the opinion of every one that sooner or later the care of our public grounds will pass into the hands of the Park Commission, as that is what the commission was established for. We have voted to lay out one park, and that will be commenced soon. This order has reference to no investigation whatever, and it seems to me that it proposes the proper reference of the subject.

Mr. McGaragle of Ward 8—I hope the order will be laid on the table for the present, and for the reason given by the chairman of the Investigating Committee. But it don't seem hardly fair to ask the Park Commissioners to perform this duty, when they serve the city without pay, and I think the Investigating Committee had better take into consideration whether the Park Commissioners want to perform this duty. I don't think it fair to crowd the duty of expending $100,000 upon men who give their time to the city. I hope it will be laid upon the table for the present.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—I don't see any harm in referring it to the Committee on Ordinances. The only trouble is I fear we won't hear anything from the Committee on Ordinances before the new Government gets in.

Mr. Howes—I don't see any objection to the reference if an amendment is made, that they report at the time the Investigating Committee do. As to the statement of the gentleman that the Park Commissioners are working without pay, I would inform him that the Committee on Common are laboring under the same disadvantage, and the Water and other boards have been doing the same until within a few years. I think the Park Commissioners would be glad to take charge of the parks without compensation, and I believe they could do it better than any committee can, for they can give more time to it. I hope the order will pass, but I move to amend by requesting them to report as soon as possible.

Mr. Ruffin—I believe this order grew out of certain statements made at a previous meeting by the chairman of the Committee on Common and Squares, which were considered in the nature of startling disclosures. This body was stirred up, and an order more exciting than this was introduced to remove the Superintendent of Common and Squares. We took no action upon that order, but a more mild one prevailed. I say that it grew out of the discussion arising from information received from the chairman and another member of the Committee on Common and Squares. We appointed a committee to investigate their conduct and see if there had been any neglect of duty on the part of this Committee on Squares. Now, this is supposed to be a dignified body, which moves slowly and only upon cause. We are now waiting for information. We are waiting to get more facts. We don't want to prejudge that case. We don't want to be placed in that attitude. We don't want the Committee on Common or their friends to say that we have moved hastily or acted unfairly. We have nothing to prejudge it, and have nothing which can be construed to a prejudgment of the committee. I say it would be more in harmony with the dignity of this body to wait until we get more information officially, and know more about this matter, because even the reference of the order will be an indirect censure upon somebody or some condition of things. My point is that it grew out of that discussion, and that we are waiting for information upon that subject; and I think it is right to wait until we get full information. I move to lay it upon the table.

The order was laid upon the table.

INSPECTION OF BILLS IN THE AUDITOR'S OFFICE.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21 offered the following:
An Ordinance

To Amend an Ordinance relating to Finance.
Be it ordained, etc.

That section five of the ordinance relating to finance, on page 312 of the Revised Statutes and Ordinances of 1876, be and hereby is amended by adding the following words: "And all books and accounts and bills in the Auditor's office shall at all reasonable times be freely and fully open to the inspection of any taxpayer of the city of Boston."

Mr. Pratt moved its reference to the Committee on Ordinances, with instructions to consider and report within two weeks.

Mr. Ruffin of Ward 9—I don't see the necessity for passing that ordinance, or of having any such ordinance. The law upon that point is quite as full now as is to be desired, and can give anybody the information which is desired. The General Statute of the Commonwealth is that, under the direction of the officers having custody of the accounts and town records and files, the same shall be open for public inspection and examination and any person may take copies thereof. That is the law as it stands in chapter 29, section 10, of the General Statutes; and I understand that this matter has been ruled upon by our City Solicitor, and I think he has given an opinion very recently upon it; and he says that under this chapter any citizen has the right to inspect the records and books in any department of the city.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—It seems to me the question raised in connection with this subject is whether or not the papers referred to in this ordinance are public records. That is just the distinction I should make. This ordinance has reference to bills or papers which are not of a public nature.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—I trust the ordinance will not pass. The practice of the Auditor's office is that any citizen desiring to see any particular bill can go in, demand it and see it. There seems to be no necessity for passing such an ordinance, as all the bills there can be seen. If the general public were to be allowed to go in at any time and inspect every bill in that department, it would require a large extra clerical force. Any citizen can go into the Auditor's office and see any bill he desires to see.

Mr. Crocker of Ward 9—It seems to me this is a very proper matter to refer to the Ordinance Committee. There may be a question as to what the legal rights of a people are. The committee may report that the matter is sufficiently provided by the laws, and gives as many rights as any citizens could wish to have. On the other hand, the Ordinance Committee may report, upon consulting with the City Solicitor, that the statute does not sufficiently cover the case, and that there ought to be an additional provision, if it is desired that citizens should have free access to the Auditor's accounts and papers. It seems to me the gentleman who just sat down errs about the present arrangement in the Auditor's office; and I cannot agree with him that it is sufficient. As I understand it, if anybody wants to know about the bill, he must name the time and specify what the bill is. If he knows what the bill is, he don't want to see it. But citizens may want to know about a bill which they cannot describe, and it is most probable that those are the bills which it would be most desirable to see, and which, under the present ruling, they cannot do. As I understand it, it is rather an impediment in the way of getting information. Even if we did have to keep an extra clerk in the Auditor's office, at an expense of one or two thousand dollars a year, it would not be paying very heavily for giving information to the public. I think that at least one clerk would keep up with all demands for information of that kind; and even if it did not, I think it would be money well spent. It seems to me to be a proper matter to refer to the committee to see if there is any occasion for it.

Mr. Sampson—I intended to say that the Auditor's office is governed by the instructions of the City Solicitor, which are that when any citizen comes in and asks to see a specific bill, naming the amount and date, he can see it; but without stating what those bills are, that he has no right to examine them. Any one can see that the department would be constantly in confusion if the public are allowed to go in and ask to see these bills at any time. The practice of the Auditor's office is under the direction of the City Solicitor, and he says any citizen has the right to go and see a bill, the date of which he can name, and the Auditor must furnish the information.

Mr. Crocker—It is always uncertain to trust verbal statements of what the City Solicitor's opinions are, and it is the business of the Committee on Ordinances to find out what the City Solicitor says. As is generally known, there is now great impediment in the way of people getting information from the City Auditor's office. I don't say he does not do it in accordance with the decisions of the City Solicitor. The question is whether the Committee on Ordinances shall be asked to inquire if there should be any change on that point, and if the law is well enough as it is.

Mr. Ruffin—This ordinance looks to giving an opportunity to citizens to get all the information which they may desire. We have it from the gentleman from Ward 17 that that opportunity does now exist, and that people can get that information by going to the Auditor's office. The statute from which I have just read says that citizens have that right; and it goes on to say that upon the payment of a given fee they shall have a certified copy of the records or anything on the files. I know the City Solicitor has given an opinion that citizens have that right, because I have seen it over his own signature. I don't see that you can have anything more than that; you have the opinion of the law officer of the city, and as I understand all city officials act under and are governed by the opinion of the City Solicitor. If this is so, you have all the opportunity for information that is desired or asked for by the gentleman who offered this ordinance, and you do not want to cumber the records of the city with ordinances, as we have heard the criticisms of the gentlemen who have examined the ordinances, that there are too many of them, and that they are unskillfully drawn.

Mr. Pratt—I did not suppose there would be any debate on the merits of the question as the motion is to refer. I cannot conceive how any objection could be made to allowing the reference of any respectful question to any committee of the City Government. I offered it for the reason that all citizens are not now allowed to inspect the vouchers in the Auditor's office. In saying this I mean no reflection upon the Auditor's office. Whenever I have gone in there he has always shown the books and papers with great courtesy, and I believe that in no department in City Hall is a citizen shown more courtesy than in the Auditor's office, but it is understood that no person can see the books and papers unless he is a member of the City Government or knows all about the bill. With all due deference to the gentleman who has raised the question, there is some doubt in my mind whether the bills in the Auditor's office are records in the sense of those cited in the statute read. On page 159 of the ordinances there is a provision that the records and files of certain institutions and departments in the city shall be open to inspection, and that copies shall be furnished upon payment of the expense; but that provision does not extend to the Auditor's office. There is no explicit law upon the question. Now, I take it that any taxpayer in the city of Boston has a full right to know upon what he pays taxes. Any voter in the city of Boston has a right to know the record of the men in City Hall that he is asked to vote for, and he may think he cannot enjoy that right without an opportunity to see the books and papers in the Auditor's office. Several times during the past six months I have had taxpayers come to me and tell me that they were not able to see the papers in the Auditor's office. Now, the gentleman who is chairman of the Committee on Accounts states that the practice is that, if a citizen states a specific bill he is allowed to see it. That is bringing the matter down very fine, and it is easy to see that any one can be baffled. Objections can be raised that the books are in use, or that the bills are up stairs, or something of that sort; and the consequence is the man don't see what he goes in for. The ordinance provides that the Auditor shall keep on file the bills and books; they become official records, and should be open to the inspection of all citizens. I don't care to go into the merits of the question any further. I did not suppose I would be required to go into them at all this evening. I think sufficient reason exists to ask the Committee on Ordinances to consider the expediency of reporting such an ordinance, and in the first place I moved its reference to that committee. Of course in moving this I did not have in mind any reflection upon the Auditor's office, and I did not intend to give the reporters of the daily press any more opportunities than they have at present.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19 moved the previous question.

Mr. Burke of Ward 2 asked if a quorum was present. A count showed there was not, and the President declared the Council adjourned.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen,
OCTOBER 29, 1877.

Regular meeting at four o'clock P. M., his Honor the Mayor presiding.

JURORS DRAWN.

Thirty-six travers jurors were drawn for the second session of the Superior Court, October term.

EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENTS.

Police Officers Without Pay—Hiram Wentworth, Benjamin B. Trundy, Peter Hobart, G. W. Adams, Peter A. Dowd, Charles W. Rogg, Peter F. Welsh, George R. Curtis. Severally confirmed.

Inspector of Buildings for Three Years—John S. Damrell. Confirmed. Sent down.

Inspector of Elections in Ward 10—William T. Park. Confirmed.

PETITIONS REFERRED.

To the Committee on Paving. Petitions for brick sidewalks in front of estates of Hannah Stark, 468 and 470 East Seventh street; Ann Mahoney, 25 and 27 Prentiss street; James W. Tobey, 133 Newbury street; Union Freight Railroad Company, for leave to lay down a track from Commercial street to Union wharf; R. T. Paine, Jr., for a plank walk on Buckingham street, near Dartmouth street; Mrs. S. T. Hooper et al., for leave to extend a bridge over Milk street, at the Old South Church; W. R. Cavanagh, for leave to move wooden buildings from Cottage street, Ward 24, to Stoughton street, Ward 24, and from north side of West Chester park, Ward 18, to Bay View place, off Rogers avenue, Ward 22; Hall & Whipple, for leave to place a steam boiler under the sidewalk of Court avenue; Joseph D. Elms et al., for the extension of the plank walk on Norfolk street, Ward 24; John H. Reed et al., for a sidewalk on the east side of Berkeley street, near Columbus avenue; Margaret Finnegan, for leave to have a plank hatchway on sidewalk on Ontario street.

To the Committee on Streets on the part of the Board. Abby A. Wright, for abatement of an assessment for betterments on Cottage street, Ward 24.

To the Committee on Health on the part of the Board. Petitions for leave to occupy stables by Horace Farrington, new wooden, four horses, on Bellevue street; P. O. Reardon, carriage house for stable for three horses, on Chelsea street; Patrick H. Barry, new wooden, one horse, Chelsea street; Caroline W. Braman, new wooden, four horses, Washington street, Ward 25.

Provident Wood Yard, for leave to occupy a stable on Foundry street.

To the Joint Committee on Health. Owen Harrington, for leave to open a burial lot in St. Joseph's Cemetery, Brighton.

To the Joint Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings. East Boston Dock Company, for leave to enlarge a wooden building on rear 114 Border street, Ward 2.

To the Committee on Lamps. William Clark, for a street lamp on Clark street; Austin F. Whitcomb et al., that Centre street, Jamaica Plain, from Lowder's lane to Allendale street, be lighted, the distance being about a third of a mile.

To the Committee on Sewers. D. N. Pickering, for drain or sewer in Midland street or Savin Hill avenue; Albert Fellner, for a sewer in Dudley street, between Brook avenue and Harvard avenue, Ward 24.

To the Joint Committee on Assessors' Department. Joachim Guerrini, that the tax paid on a certain estate in Prince street be refunded.

HEARINGS ON ORDERS OF NOTICE.

Sewers. On proposed taking of a strip of land from the Boston Wharf Company for sewer purposes. No objections, and recommended to Committee on Sewers.

Metropolitan Railroad. On petition of the Metropolitan Railroad Company for an additional track in Washington street, from Dover to Summer street, also for a track in Milk street to Devonshire or Congress street, and in Devonshire or Congress street across State street to connect with track of the Middlesex Railroad.

President Richards appeared for the petitioners and explained the location proposed in the petition. In this case they had not come entirely of their own accord, but at the solicitation of the Paving Committee; and it means a plan to relieve the blockade on Tremont street. The plan is not a hasty one, but has been agreed to by all parties. He would wait to hear any remonstrants.

The Mayor read a remonstrance of merchants on Washington street, between Bennet and Winter streets, against the location, urging the narrowness of the street and the crowded state of the streets; also a petition of South Boston Railroad Company in aid of the petition of Metropolitan Railroad Company.

Seth J. Thomas said he appeared specially for Cobb, Bates & Yerxa, who remonstrate against the location. He thought Mr. Richards did not mean to say the Paving Committee recommended this; but that they referred him to the Board. He thought the petitioners should first make out their case.

The Mayor ruled that the petitioners should first make out their case.

Mr. Richards said he had considered it unnecessary to attempt to show by argument or petition that this is the panacea for the evil complained of. Something must be done. He believed the case had strength enough to show the Board that they had to give some other railroad accommodation east of Tremont street. The day had at last arrived when the measure had become full of corn and must run over. He would not ask to put his cars on the Commou; and the only relief is to go on Washington street. The company had carried nearly 23,000,000 passengers, against 10,000,000 ten years ago, and this is of itself a sufficient argument to give them more tracks and more streets. Why they confue them to Washington street is because they can bring two, three or four lines down Washington street and pass off by Milk street and never enter it again. Then the Board can say to the companies, thus far and no farther, which the Board cannot do today, and the only thing that can be said is, take off your cars. He closed by introducing Moody Merrill, president of the Highland Railroad, who could furnish the evidence.

Mr. Merrill said he appeared more as a witness for Mr. Richards, he having examined the subject very closely. He presented a plan of the proposed location, showing the width of Washington street near Summer street to be thirty-two feet and a fraction, which will leave 9.05 feet on each side of the two tracks, between the tracks and the curbstones. The narrowest point is from Boylston street to Temple place, twenty-seven feet, which leaves about six and a half feet between the track and the curbstone. Mr. Merrill showed by the figures that there would be room enough for two tracks and still allow teams to pass on each side. The only difficulty will be between Temple place and Summer street.

On cross-examination by Mr. Thomas, Mr. Merrill said it would not be practicable to back a coal cart up to the sidewalk if there is only seven feet between the track and a curbstone. Mr. Thomas showed Mr. Merrill a plan of Washington street, and asked him as an "engineer" if a merchant could transact his business on Washington street, near the Boston Theatre, as conveniently with twelve feet to spare, instead of six and a half, and he said he did n't think he could. At the Albany bridge the width is forty feet. The only point at which there will be any difficulty will be at the Boston Theatre.

The petitioners rested their case and Mr. Thomas called the witnesses for the remonstrances.

Colonel Long, who does business with Jordan, Marsh & Co., said they wished to remonstrate against the location and gave figures showing the width of the street, and argued that a double track would be a great detriment to business. Very few stores on either side have rear entrances, and even small teams cannot stand between the track and the curbstone. The cars would have to stop while coal and other teams are loading and unloading. Blockades occur there every day now, and in front of his store now it is dangerous for pedestrians to cross, and it would be increased four fold by two tracks. The pianoforte warehouses have to load and unload teams in front. Three-quarters of the stores have no rear or side entrances. Travel would be further obstructed by building, and digging for sewerage and water and gas, and all such delays are destructive of business. [To Mr. Richards.]—He appeared in the interest of Jordan, Marsh & Co. This street is narrower than any other that has two tracks in it. He got the signatures to the remonstrance presented today.

John F. Ham appeared for R. H. White & Co. and said it would be very disastrous to their business. Many people come there in their own carriages, which stop in front. The street is thirty-one feet and six inches wide and the narrowest part of the street is opposite one end of their store. It would drive away a great many people who would come in carriages in pleasant weather. [To Mr. Richards]—Have facilities for loading and unloading in the rear. Desire to have carriages come there and stop and let customers get out and wait a reasonable length of time as allowed by law. The carriages stopping there would block the street. The cars might be blocked all the time. People who come to the store from the North End would come as quick by getting out at Summer street.

Mr. Adams of J. H. Pray & Co.'s, thought a double track there would be a great detriment to their business. Even with one track the cars are now stopped by the teams. The objection in regard to carriages applied to his firm.

Mr. Yerxa, of Cobb, Bates & Yerxa, said they could not do their business with two tracks in the street. Last Tuesday, not an extra day, they loaded ninety-five teams in front of their store between 9 and 5½ P. M. It would be a practical obstruction to their business. They now partially back up their teams so as not to obstruct the passage of the cars on one track. The street is thirty-one feet wide. Any day after a snow storm they would be shut up. If a double track is there they will have to move, and have so informed their landlord. [To Mr. Richards]—They have seven of their own teams. They have no rear entrance that they can take goods in and out of. Their widest team is over seven feet. Think the double track will not bring any more trade to them.

M. P. Kennard, of Bigelow, Kennard & Co., said the proposition was to relieve Tremont street, where there is business on one side, by putting the cars on Washington street, where the street is narrower, and the business on both sides—very much like selecting your neighbor's uck as a good place to have a boil; carriages are in front of his store and Williams & Everett's, opposite, nearly all the time. A few days ago a gentleman's hat was knocked off by a team hugging the sidewalk to avoid a car, and smooched dresses are frequent. He thought the passengers should be disembarked outside of this great retail centre, and save a great deal of the trouble. One teamster told him the blocking cost him $50 a year by the extra wear and tear, and $50 more by the blocks of the cars. [To Alderman Clark]—Think the great block on Tremont street is caused by the unnecessary number of Columbus-avenue cars. There would be no trouble if the corporations would join hands.

John R. Hall appeared for R. B. Brigham who owns 101 feet on Washington street, near Cobb, Bates & Yerxa's. As agent for Mr. Brigham, he had been notified by Cobb, Bates & Yerxa that if a double track is laid there they will have to seek another place for business. It will be impossible to have the buildings occupied as they are now.

Mr. Williams, of Williams & Everett, said it would seriously affect their business unfavorably, by preventing customers from coming in carriages. He agreed with those who preceded him.

John J. Stevens said large teams are constantly receiving and delivering goods in front of his store; the street is constantly blocked by teams and cars.

Mr. Cobb, of C. D. Cobb & Brothers, occupying four stores combined in one, said they had fifteen single and double teams used in delivering goods, and seven teams to deliver goods to retail customers, besides express teams; and another track would be very destructive of their business. If the track is laid they will probably change their location, as they had made inquiry about another store. Could not say he thought the public convenience would be subserved by taking up the present track. [To Mr. Richards]—Don't know that the present track is of any advantage to his business.

Mr. Kennard, being recalled, said the business of that locality would be benefited by taking up the present track. The same reasons apply to Washington street as to Broadway, N. Y.

Colonel Long, being recalled, said he hardly thought the present track was an advantage; the preponderance was against it. [To Alderman O'Brien]—The double track from Summer street to Temple place would make the blockade worse.

This closed the evidence introduced by Mr. Thomas.

E. W. James repeated his arguments for the building of the North Charles-street location, which would save fifteen minutes, accommodate 40,000 people, and relieve the blockade.

Mr. Starkweather, the superintendent of the Metropolitan road, said the location would relieve Tremont street from 250 to 300 trips a day, and will increase in the future, as the demand for cars at the North End is increasing. It would make the time to the depots ten to fifteen minutes quicker. They lose twenty per cent. of depot patronage by not being able to go direct to the depots. [To Mr. Thomas]—The receipts on the depot lines are twenty per cent. less than they were when the cars were not obstructed. If the wagon axles were shortened, the difficulty would be obviated. [To Alderman Fitzgerald]—The depot and ferry cars would continue down Washington street. [To Alderman Viles]—Running ten extra trips to the ferry, since the Chelsea track opened, and there are several less trips on Tremont street. [To Alderman Fitzgerald]—The objection to a turnout and shift at Park street is the heavy grade. The crossing at Temple place and the shifting at the Tremont House are the principal causes of the blockade. Don't think a line from Columbus avenue through North Charles street to the depots would pay. [To Alderman Clark] Noticed the falling off in receipts as fast as cars have been added. Don't think the South Boston road has taken half their depot receipts. The trouble has been more since the Columbus-avenue cars began running than before; and it is also increased by Charlestown cars stopping on Tremont street to pick up their passengers. Think another track on Tremont street to Scollay square would be some relief, although it is a bad place to turn.

Mr. Thomas, in closing the case for the remonstrants, said the Board did not, he supposed, want to pursue such a policy as would injure the railroads on the one hand or the business men on the other. The location would cause a great deal more injury to the property owners and business men than it would good to the railroad. The Metropolitan road should suggest some way of getting rid of the obstruction they create without creating an obstruction in Washington street; for it is merely transferring an obstruction from Tremont street to Washington street. That is the plain, practical question for the Board to determine.

Mr. Richards, in closing the case for the petitioners, said no one could entertain a higher respect to the remonstrants than he, and he deplored any damage that might accrue to them. He spoke not for the Metropolitan road alone, but for a larger constituency than Mr. Thomas had. All admit there is trouble, and that seventy thousand people a day are hindered by it. He challenged testimony to show that railroad tracks in any street injured real estate on that street; and as a business man he believed real estate on Washington street would be increased by granting this location. The petition is not for the road to make more money, but to meet the constantly growing demand for more of the accommodation they furnish. When a block occurs in Tremont street it can be relieved; which can be done with a double track on Washington street. The Board could give the whole or a part of the location asked for, as they saw fit; only let them do something to relieve Tremont street.

The matter was recommitted to the Committee on Paving.

Highland Street Railway. Hearing on petition of the Highland Street Railway Company for a double track in Eliot street from Tremont street to Park square and an additional track from Tremont to Washington street.

The Mayor read a remonstrance signed by Stephen Weeks & Co. and others, against a second track in Eliot street, between Tremont and Washington streets.

Mr. Merrill said the location was not covered by the remonstrants, unless a double track is allowed on Washington street from Dover street to Summer street.

James Dennie remonstrated against a double track in Eliot street, between Tremont and Washington streets. He owned and had paid betterment on an estate there and objected to further inconvenience. He did not object to a track in the other part of the street.

Alderman Clark in the chair.

E. W. James cross-questioned Mr. Merrill in regard to the feasibility of running a line to the West End.

Recommitted to Committee on Paving.

Cambridge Railroad. Hearing on petition of Cambridge Railroad Company for leave to locate a track in Merrimac street to Washington street, then to run cars over the track of other roads in Washington, Milk and Devonshire streets to Dock square and Merrimac street.

Alderman Fitzgerald presented petitions in aid signed by Luther L. Jenkins and 1912 other citizens of the West and North End wards; New England Glass Company and 300 others of Cambridge; Mayor and 600 citizens of Somerville; George H. Woodberry and 233 others, taxpayers of Boston.

A remonstrance was received from Thomas L. Jenks and others.

On motion of Alderman Fitzgerald, the consideration of the subject was postponed until the next meeting.

PLAN TO RELIEVE THE BLOCKADE.

Alderman Burnham—In connection with the solution of the horse-railroad difficulties, and the recommitment of these petitions, I have some matters to bring to the attention of the Board. In the section of the city where I reside there are many who are interested in the subject matter of these petitions. They are gentlemen of clear heads, and it is by their request that I wish to present this matter and ask the indulgence of the Board to offer some further views in relation to this horse-railroad question, which I feel ought to receive our consideration. The simple question involved in these cases ought to be, How shall we remedy the present blockade? and I have to present a plan to this Board now, that from the official record of our doings the Committee on Paving, in connection with the consideration of these various petitions, may give it consideration. I also have to say, I do not claim the plan as originating in my own mind, because the bulk of the plan has been obtained by consulting an ex-horse-railroad man, whom I claim understands this matter as fully as any man in this city, and I present it for what it is worth, claiming that it properly adheres to the recommitment of these petitions. The remedy consists then, first, in a double track through Washington street, from Boylston street to Summer street, and second in establishing two circuits in place of one. Scollay square to be the great central point, where routes of the South Boston and Middlesex cars should terminate. The South Boston company should purchase the tracks in Lincoln street, and the Milk-street cars should run inwardly or outwardly via that route. The Metropolitan and Highland companies should be restricted in the number of their cars, and a percentage of them could be withdrawn without detriment to the public. The Temple place route could be abandoned and will be unnecessary when the second track is laid in Washington street. As many cars as possible of the Metropolitan road should pass through Essex street and thence to the South End via Harrison avenue. In relation to fares, there should be a change in the entire system, and the tickets used by each road should be receivable on any other road, for a ride as far as a six-cent fare now conveys a passenger. And not only this, but a passenger paying six cents should receive a transfer check to ride upon any other road as far as he is now carried for eight cents. Liberality in these respects would be appreciated by the people, and it would result in increased travel sufficient to compensate for the reduction. We need then to have, beside the double track in Washington street from Summer street, a track laid in Devonshire street from Milk street to New Washington street. With these additional tracks, such changes can be made in the routes of the several lines that the crowding of cars in any thoroughfare will be entirely avoided. In the first place, the acceptance of the six-cent transfer check by the horse-railroad companies will shorten the routes and be of advantage to the various companies in lessening the number of miles traversed and in a largely increased patronage, while it will subject passengers to less expense and rid them of the delays now experienced. Passengers are now conveyed by the South Boston and Middlesex companies beyond Cornhill, in either direction, at a loss, and also by the Metropolitan and Highland companies running through Columbus avenue; therefore the routes of the two former companies should cease at Scollay square, and the number of cars traversing Columbus avenue should be decreased. This settled, all Columbus-avenue cars should go around the circuit at Cornhill, and return through Washington and Boylston streets to Columbus avenue again, and thence to the point of starting. The cars of the Highland Railroad which now go through Tremont street around the circuit, should pass on the return trip through Washington, Boylston and Tremont streets to the point of starting. The depot cars of the Metropolitan company, running through Washington street, should go through Milk, Devonshire and New Washington streets to the depots, and thence return the same as now, avoiding Temple place and passing to the South End through Essex street and Harrison avenue. The Tremont-street depot line of the Metropolitan road should run as now, but return home via Washington, Boylston and Tremont streets. All other inward Metropolitan cars which now come down Washington street should pass through Milk, Hawley and Chauncy streets home via Harrison avenue. The East Boston and Chelsea Ferry lines of the Metropolitan road should traverse Washington street, through Milk, Devonshire, New Washington and Hanover streets, thence the same as now, and likewise return by the present route. No South Boston cars should run farther than Scollay square, and those going by this route should return via Cornhill, Washington and Essex streets, thence the same as now. All other South Boston cars should go to Milk street by the same route as at present, and thence home via Hawley, Summer, and Lincoln streets. The Middlesex cars should not be permitted to pass beyond Scollay square, except perhaps ten cars per hour through Washington, Boylston and Tremont streets, then all other lines can run the same as now. By the above arrangement, as I have said, there will be no use for the track in Temple place, for the cars now passing through it are dispersed by three routes.

It needs no argument to convince any thoughtful man that this disposition of cars and change of routes will effectually remove the existing difficulties, providing the number of cars in use is limited to actual business necessities. A purchase of the tracks in Lincoln street, and their use by the South Boston company, as proposed, will lessen the trip by at least six minutes, the saving of which is of great consequence.

At the corner of Washington and Summer streets, where the curves are not parallel, is an important obstruction, which obliges cars meeting there to stop for fear of colliding. These curves should be reconstructed, and then by adopting the other changes we have mentioned, we believe the problem can be solved. It is said that Washington street is not of sufficient width to admit of another track; but this is a delusion, for it is broad enough for a carriage to pass or stand upon either side. This additional track in Washington street is the key to unravel the whole snarl, and without this there can be no plan adopted which will so well accomplish the desired effect.

The whole subject is one of great importance, and I offer this arrangement only that it may be discussed among other plans, with a view to arrive at a proper solution of the difficulty.

PAPERS FROM THE COMMON COUNCIL.

Petitions, etc., were referred in concurrence.

Order for Street Commissioners to report an estimate of the expense of extending Sterling street from Warwick street to Tremont street. Passed in concurrence.

Requests by School Committee—1. That the plan of the proposed building for the use of the Allston School be submitted to that body for its approval; 2. That suitable fire escapes be provided on the English High and Latin School Building, in Bedford street; 3. That the yard of the Andrew Schoolhouse be enlarged by the addition of adjoining land. Referred to the Committee on Public Institutions in concurrence.

Order that at the approaching elections all employes of the city be allowed sufficient time in which to vote, without loss of pay. Passed in concurrence.

Report and order for transfer of $434.76 from appropriation for House of Industry to that for Lunatic Hospital. Order passed in concurrence—yeas 11, nays 0.

Report and order for transfer of $15,000 from the Reserved Fund to appropriation for Common, to include cost of grading, etc., around the Army and Navy Monument on Boston Common. Passed in concurrence—yeas 12, nays 0.

BRIDGE TO SQUANTUM.

The following was received and read:

The Board of Street Commissioners, under instruction of your order, Oct. 1, upon the subject of connecting that part of the city at Commercial Point with Quincy by a bridge to Squantum, have had a meeting with the County Commissioners of Norfolk. They, while withholding any opinion they may have had upon the expediency of such a measure, unhesitatingly stated at the outset their belief in the inability of either their board or the town of Quincy to act under the existing legislation in the matter. The city of Boston its Solicitor considers also entirely unable to undertake the construction of such a bridge, and that the charter obtained by the Squantum Free Bridge Company would be useless to empower it to do so.

Of the utility of such a connection the Street Commissioners cannot speak in such favorable terms as if a street that would carry the travel from the bridge directly to Quincy village either now existed or was to be expected for the future, as the passengers across such a bridge to reach any other point than the locality known as Squantum, must travel back to Neponset avenue (Hancock street in Quincy) which is already bridged over the river at Neponset.

As an additional way to the city's sewer station at Squantum another bridge would naturally be of service, but as an extra hindrance to navigation to Neponset, etc., possibly an injury to citizens.

Concerning the legislation the City Council may think it advisable to obtain to enable the city to build such a bridge, the Street Commissioners suggest that it empower the town or county authorities in Norfolk and the city of Boston to jointly enter upon the work that the administration and expense of it may be shared in some predetermined proportion by the parties in interest.

By order of the Street Commissioners,

J. H. JENKINS, Clerk.

Sent down.

JAIL EXPENSES.

A requisition was received from the Sheriff of Suffolk County for $1803.08 for expenses at the jail for October. Ordered paid.

CONSTABLES' BONDS.

The bonds of Abel B. Munroe and three other constables being presented duly certified, were approved by the Board.

SEWERS.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Sewers:

Orders of notice for hearings on Monday next on construction of sewer in Cunard street, Roxbury. Passed.

Orders to build sewers in Northampton street, west from Columbus avenue; in Summit street, Charlestown. Read twice and passed.

Ordered, That $8.40 be abated from the assessment levied upon George H. Williams's heirs for a sewer in Seaverns avenue on account of overestimate of land benefited.

Ordered, That his Honor the Mayor be authorized to release to Mary E. Cochrane the title of a parcel of land near Walk Hill street, containing 893½ square feet, the same being a portion of the land taken by the Commissioners of Stony Brook of the town of West Roxbury, by an order dated Dec. 11, 1873, and not now required by the city; being shown in blue on a plan dated Oct. 29, 1877, and deposited in the office of the Sewer Department. Read twice and passed.

Order to rescind order to pay Mary E. Cochrane $382.40, for land taken by Commissioners of Stony Brook; and order to pay said Cochrane $211.65 for part of the land taken and all damages occasioned by construction of the new channel of Stony Brook. Read twice and passed.

STABLES.

Alderman Viles submitted reports from the Committee on Health on the part of the Board in favor of granting permits to occupy stables by Albert Morse, corner Columbia and Washington streets; Michel J. Ford, Newman street; R. L. Brown, Newman street; Timothy Walsh, rear 36 Northampton street. Severally accepted.

STONE CUTTING BUSINESS AT DEER ISLAND.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Directors for Public Institutions:

The subject of providing some suitable branch of labor for the employment of the male inmates of Deer and Rainsford islands has lately engaged the attention of the Board of Directors, and has been carefully considered by a special committee of the board. At the last meeting of the directors this committee submitted a report which received the favorable action of this board, and was adopted, and it was voted that immediate steps be taken to establish the stone-cutting business at these islands. The plan proposed is to have the stone delivered in bulk from the Rockport quarries and cut it into paving blocks. The cutting of paving stones does not require what is called skilled labor. It is easily learned and can be commenced immediately. From the facts submitted to the board, we have no hesitation in affirming that the business can be conducted with profit to the city. But even if it were not profitable in a pecuniary sense, the establishment of some branch of manual labor at these institutions would result in gain to the city, not only in a diminished number of inmates, but in great gain to the men so employed. The principal expense in establishing this business will be the cost of erecting sheds for the protection of the men employed and the purchase of tools, trucks and other implements necessary to carry on the business. It was voted to request the City Council for authority to expend from the House of Industry appropriation the sum of not exceeding $5000 for the establishment of this business at Deer and Rainsford islands.

Alderman Viles—The Directors for Public Institutions, not only of this year but of previous years, have for a long time considered what is the best way to utilize the labor at the islands. We have at all times hundreds of able-bodied men there, and especially in winter they have nothing to do. They stand around in the yard like cattle in a pen. Some time ago the directors appointed a sub-committee to investigate and report what could be done in the way of cutting paving stones. They visited Rockport, and reported that large blocks could be delivered at the islands for $1.50 a ton, and that a boy could cut from 100 to 150 blocks a day, which could be sold to the city at from four to four and a half cents apiece for stone paving. It will not only be a saving to the city, but will tend to keep many repeaters from coming back to the institutions. The directors think it is the best way to utilize the labor.

On motion of Alderman Viles, the communication was referred to the Committee on Public Institutions. Sent down.

SOUTH BOSTON RAILROAD LOCATION.

Alderman Robinson submitted a report from the Committee on Paving on the petition of the South Boston Railroad, with an order of location for said road to construct curved tracks to connect its tracks in Kneeland street with a turnout track to be constructed by permission of the Old Colony Railroad Company on the premises of said company lying between the southerly line of Kneeland street and the Old Colony station. The usual conditions are appended to the order.

Alderman Thompson moved to amend by adding "that any other railroad corporation using that street may occupy these tracks when not occupied by the South Boston Railroad.

Alderman Robinson said the amendment was of no use. He understood that this track was for the exclusive use of the South Boston road, and that the Middlesex road had applied for a location on the other side of the depot.

Alderman Fitzgerald said the city has no control over the side track, it being on land of the Old Colony Railroad, and the order simply gives permission to lay curved tracks to connect with it. It was expressly stated before the committee that the exclusive right was given to the South Boston road. If it had belonged to the city the committee would have reported in favor of both roads using the location.

Alderman Thompson said he had understood from the president of the Middlesex road that the grant was given to them previous to its being given to the South Boston road, and if that is the case the committee should not discriminate unfairly between the two corporations. If the other corporation had the tender of the location they should not be ignored.

Alderman Robinson said the Paving Committee received a letter from the president of the Old Colony road granting the right exclusively to the South Boston road.

Alderman Wilder said he would vote for the amendment with great pleasure if Alderman Thompson would add "after having obtained the consent of the Old Colony Railroad"; and then the Board would not be charged with discrimination.

Alderman Burnham explained that the ownership of the street was vested in the Old Colony road, who, some years ago, moved their depot back to get more room. He had been told by the president of the South Boston road that the privilege was first asked for by the South Boston road.

Alderman Thompson thought there must be some mistake, and on his motion the order was laid on the table—8 for, 3 against.

PAVING REPORTS AND ORDERS.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Paving:

The Committee on Paving, to whom was referred the petition of James Kelly et al., for an investigation into the cause of their discharge from the Paving Department, and for their restoration thereto, respectfully report that they have heard the petitioners and have investigated the matter, and find that the most important work ordered by the Government in the Highland District having been executed, and there being no necessity for retaining the whole of the force of men employed during the summer months in that district, the Superintendent of Streets discharged about twenty men whose services could be easily dispensed with. These men were discharged because their services were not needed, and for no other cause. As the force now employed in the department is very large, and the appropriation limited, it is apparent that a still further reduction will soon have to be made in the Highland District as well as in other districts of the city; your committee deem it unwise and improper to restore to the department men whose services are not needed. They therefore recommend that the petitioners have leave to withdraw. Accepted.

Ordered, That the edgestone assessment against the estate of Isaac Jacobs on Burroughs street, West Roxbury, amounting to $26.67, be and the same is hereby abated, he being unable to pay the same. Read twice and passed.

Report and order for brick sidewalks in front of estate of John R. Hall on Linwood street. Read twice and passed.

POLICE.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Police:

Report that the nomination of John A. Fury as police officer be confirmed. Accepted and said nomination confirmed.

Report of leave to withdraw on petition of William N. Reed for leave to set up a barber's pole at 1099 Washington street. Accepted.

POLICE RULES AND REGULATIONS.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Police:

The Committee on Police respectively represent that the edition of the rules and regulations of the Boston police, printed in 1875, is exhausted, and it is necessary that a new edition should be printed in order to furnish the members of the force with copies. The committee have made a careful revision of the rules and regulations heretofore in force, incorporating a number of rules which have been made since the last edition was printed, and submit a copy herewith, together with the opinion of the City Solicitor that they are not in conflict with the statutes and ordinances. The committee respectfully recommend the passage of an order—That the rules and regulations for the government of the Boston police, prepared by the Committee on Police, be and the same are hereby adopted by this Board, and that fifteen hundred of the same be printed; the expense thereof to be charged to the appropriation for Police.

Alderman Fitzgerald desired to examine the rules before they were adopted.

Alderman Robinson explained that the alterations were mostly clerical.

On motion of Alderman Fitzgerald it was ordered that a proof copy of the rules be given to each member, and that the matter be assigned to 5 P. M. at the next meeting.

NEW HIGH AND LATIN SCHOOL.

Alderman Fitzgerald offered the following:

Ordered, That the Committee on Public Buildings be authorized to purchase one-half of the wall and the land under said wall of the Clarendon-street Baptist Church, corner of Clarendon and Montgomery streets, and adjoining the English High and Latin Schoolhouse lot, for the sum of $800, the said wall and land to become the property of the city upon the delivery of a deed of the same from the Clarendon-street Baptist Society, satisfactory to the City Solicitor; the expense thereof to be charged to the appropriation for the English High and Latin School Buildings. Read twice and passed. Sent down for concurrence.

Alderman Fitzgerald explained that the arrangement would save $800 in money and give more space inside the building. To build the wall entire would cost about $2000.

The order was read twice and passed. Sent down.

LICENSES.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted the following from the Committee on Licenses:

Minors' Applications Granted—Five newsboys. Hack License Granted—Thomas Barry, corner Winter place, after 9 P. M. each day.

Billiard License Granted—W. F. Herman, Albany House, Brighton.

Auctioneer Licensed—John McLean, 478 Main street, Charlestown.

Dealers in Second-hand Articles Licensed—William Tracy, John C. Sullivan.

Wagon Licenses Granted—M. Harrington, B street; John Murphy, express; Stephen McKenna, 81-83 Silver street; John P. Morrissey, India street.

Victuallers Licensed—Charles E. Lord, 837 Washington street; Richard Haven, 86 Shawmut avenue.

Severally accepted.

Report and Order—That the licenses heretofore granted to John Flaherty and Morris Nelligan, minors, to sell newspapers, be and they are hereby revoked for cause. Order read twice and passed.

FANEUIL HALL.

Alderman Fitzgerald submitted a report from the Committee on Faneuil Hall in favor of granting the use of said hall to Liverus Hull and others on Nov. 3 for a public meeting, and to George G. Crocker and others on Nov. 2 for same. Severally accepted.

ARMORIES.

Alderman O'Brien, from the Committee on Armories, submitted an order, That the Superintendent of Public Buildings, under the direction of the Committee on Armories, be authorized to fit up the old Winthrop School building, at the corner of Lexington and Bunker Hill streets, Charlestown, as an armory, to be occupied by Company D, Fifth Regiment, M. V. M.; the expense, not exceeding $1000, to be charged to the appropriation for Armories. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

PUBLIC LANDS.

Alderman O'Brien submitted the following from the Joint Committee on Public Lands:

Order to declare forfeited to the city a lot of land on East Fourth street, sold to Stephen Tarbell Feb. 10, 1876, and the Superintendent of Public Lands to take possession of the same for the use of the city. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

Order to declare forfeited to the city a lot of land on M street, sold to Solomon S. Gray Dec. 15, 1866, for non-fulfilment of the conditions of sale, and for the Superintendent of Public Lands to take possession of the same for the use of the city. Read twice and passed. Sent down.

STREET DAMAGES, ETC.

Alderman Thompson submitted the following from the Committee on Streets on the part of the Board:

Orders to pay for land taken and damages occasioned by laying out and widening streets, as follows: Grove Hall Universalist Parish, $582, for land taken in the name of Charles D. and Julius M. Swain, and all damages occasioned by the widening of Blue Hill avenue; Warren W. H. Richards, $411, widening of Adams street; William T. Andrews, $1000, widening of Dorchester avenue. Severally read twice and passed.

Report recommending reference to Committee on Paving of petition of John McNellis, for removal of a fence on Cook street, Charlestown. Accepted and referred accordingly.

MARKET.

Alderman Slade submitted a report from the Committee on Market of leave to withdraw on the petition of James F. Cooper to be refunded the rent for stand No. 4 Faneuil Hall Market for the month of April, 1877. Accepted.

TREE TO BE REMOVED.

Alderman Slade submitted a report from Committee on Common on the part of the Board, on petition of T. C. & C. F. Newcomb, recommending the passage of an order—That the Superintendent of Common and Public Grounds be authorized to remove a tree now standing on Washington street, at the junction of Newcomb street, said tree being an obstruction to public travel. Order read twice and passed.

BROADWAY BRIDGE TO BE CLOSED.

Alderman Thompson offered an order—That Broadway Bridge be closed to public travel on Monday, Nov. 5, 1877, and remain closed until certain repairs are completed. Read twice and passed.

WARDROOM IN WARD 24.

On motion of Alderman Wilder, the order to establish the wardroom for Ward 24 at the police station at Field's Corner was taken from the table.

Alderman Robinson said it was too late to make the change before the election. It would make no difference to him, but the station is not a fit place. He moved to strike out the words "police station," as the old high school building could be used.

Alderman Fitzgerald said it was necessary to designate some place.

Alderman Wilder said he had been requested by residents of Dorchester to have the order taken up, though he had no preference except to satisfy a majority of the citizens.

The matter was again laid on the table, on motion of Alderman Robinson.

VEGETABLE MARKET.

On motion of Alderman Fitzgerald, the order to purchase the market lot of Mercantile Wharf Corporation (80,000 square feet), at a cost not exceeding $4 a foot, was taken from the table.

Alderman Fitzgerald said that in justice to the Board this matter should be settled.

Alderman Slade said he had been waiting for two months for an opportunity to bring the matter up.

On motion of Alderman Breck, the order was assigned to 4½ o'clock P. M. at the next meeting.

VAGRANTS TO WORK.

The Chairman offered an order—That the Committee on Police be requested to confer with the Overseers of the Poor, and report if some practicable method can be adopted to compel vagrants who are furnished with food and lodging at the several police stations to perform some useful work for the city as compensation therefor. Read twice and passed.

Adjourned, on motion of Alderman O'Brien.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Common Council,
NOVEMBER 1, 1877.

Regular meeting at 7½ o'clock P. M., Benjamin Pope, President, in the chair.

PAPERS FROM THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Petitions and request of Directors for Public Institutions were referred in concurrence.

Report of Street Commissioners to the effect that the city is not authorized to build a bridge between Commercial Point and Squantum. Placed on file.

Order to forfeit a lot of land on M street, held by S. S. Gray, and to cancel bond therefor. Read twice and passed in concurrence.

Order to forfeit a lot of land on East Fourth street, held by Stephen H. Tarbell.

Mr. Clarke of Ward 22—I move to lay that order upon the table. I don't remember the order particularly, although I was present at the committee meeting. I would like to have the order lie upon the table until I can make some inquiries about it.

The order was laid on the table.

Order to release to Mary E. Cochrane the title of a parcel of land on Walkhill street, heretofore taken but not now required by the city, as therein set forth. Ordered to a second reading.

Order to fit up the old Winthrop School building, Charlestown, as an armory for Company D, Fifth Regiment, at a cost not to exceed $1000. Ordered to a second reading.

Order for purchase of half of the wall, and the land under said wall, of the Clarendon-street Baptist Church, adjoining the English High and Latin Schoolhouse lot, at $800. Read twice under a suspension of the rule, on motion of Mr. Shepard of Ward 4, and passed in concurrence.

INSPECTOR OF BUILDINGS.

A message from the Mayor came down for concurrence in the confirmation of the appointment of John S. Damrell as Inspector of Buildings.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I move that the nomination be laid on the table.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I hope the nomination will not be laid on the table unless the gentleman gives some reasons. I know no reason why it should be laid upon the table.

Mr. Howes—I believe it is the ordinary custom to lay nominations on the table. Moreover there seems to be some doubt about whether the Mayor has authority to make this appointment. The office is one which requires judicial action, and which may cause a great deal of trouble, and there is no ordinance governing the case. It is a statute regulation, and there is a question whether the Mayor has authority to appoint such an officer after the three years have expired. It is a question whether the power conferred by the legislative act exists after three years.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11—It is certainly a very important matter, and I hope it will lie over. I am certainly not prepared to vote upon it tonight.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19—It seems to me that this matter has been in duration long enough for us to make up our minds before this time. There is nothing to test whether we have the right to appoint or not, as there is no man in the office. We might have gone to work and constructed our presidential laws before a President was chosen; but when the President was elected then the question of law came up. There is nothing to settle now because there is nothing to settle with.

Mr. Burke of Ward 2—I see no reason why any gentleman here should object to laying this matter upon the table for a time so as to give members of the Council a chance to inquire into the qualifications of the gentleman. I suppose it is true that many gentlemen here are acquainted with him, and know in their own minds that he is eminently qualified for the position. The past Inspector of Buildings has caused a great deal of talk this year, and I have heard many members of the City Government say it is very difficult to find a man qualified for this position. If that is a fact, I think we ought to go slow. I am not prepared to act upon this thing, and if it is forced tonight, I shall vote against confirmation. I have no doubt that many members here are in the same position. I hope it will lie over so that we shall have a chance to consider and inquire into the matter.

The motion to lay on the table was declared carried. Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 doubted the vote, and on his motion the yeas and nays were ordered. The subject was laid on the table—yeas 36, nays 24:

Yeas—Messrs. Barnard, Beeching, Blanchard, Brown, Burke, Cannon, Coe, Crocker, Danforth, Doherty, Felt, Fernald, Hibbard, Howes, Morrill, Mowry, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Pearl, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, Pratt, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Roach, Roberts, Sampson, Shepard, Sibley, Thompson, Thorndike, Warren, E. R. Webster, G. B. Webster, Wilbur, Wolcott—36.

Nays—Messrs. Barry, Brintnall, Clarke, Cox, Cross, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Hiscock, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, McClusky, McDonald, McGarage, Mul-lane, Pope, Reed, Ruffin, Smardon, Spenceley, Upham, Vose—24.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Blodgett, Day, Dee, Duggan, Fagan, Ham, Loughlin, Nugent, Perham, Souther, Stone—11.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Order to allow Ann E. Porter, on account of personal injuries from an alleged defect in Dudley street, $1500, on the conditions therein set forth. Passed. Sent up.

Orders for a transfer of $2000 from Reserved Fund to pay for fitting up old Lyman Schoolhouse for a branch of the English High School, and to rescind so much of the order of Oct. 9 as provides that such expense shall be charged to "Schoolhouses, Public Buildings." Laid on the table on motion of Mr. Beeching of Ward 1.

Order for an additional expenditure of $16.31 by the Committee on Free Concerts. Passed in concurrence—yeas 50, nays 4—Messrs. Coe, Hiscock, O. H. Pierce and Smardon voting nay.

INSPECTION OF THE BILLS IN THE AUDITOR'S OFFICE.

The ordinance to amend the ordinance in relation to finance, so that the bills in the Auditor's office shall at all reasonable hours be open to the inspection of the public, was considered under unfinished business. The original motion of the mover [Mr. Pratt of Ward 21] was that the ordinance be referred to the Committee on Ordinances. The pending motion was for the previous question.

The main question was ordered, and the motion to refer was cut off thereby. The ordinance was passed to a second reading, and on motion of Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 was referred to the Committee on Ordinances. Sent up.

COMMERCIAL STREET.

On motion of Mr. Flynn of Ward 13, the Council took up the special assignment for eight o'clock, viz., the report and order for a loan of one million dollars for the widening, grading and repaving of Commercial street.

On motion of Mr. Flynn of Ward 13, the subject was further assigned to the next meeting at half-past eight o'clock.

PETITIONS REFERRED.

Petitions were received and referred as follows:

Of Henry Dudley, for leave to enlarge a wooden building on Elm street, Ward 23. Referred to Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings. Sent up.

Of H. R. Plympton, for the removal of conditions as to the time of building on the corner of Dover and Albany streets. Referred to the Committee on Public Lands. Sent up.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 10 presented the petition of James E. Bowen, to be compensated for injury to his estate on G street. Referred to the Committee on Claims. Sent up.

PAVING OF COLUMBUS AVENUE.

Mr. Mowry of Ward 11 offered an order—That the Paving Committee on the part of the Council be requested to ascertain and report as soon as possible the cause of the seeming delay in the paving of Columbus avenue. Read twice and passed.

LAND TO BE LEASED.

Mr. Felt of Ward 18 offered an order—That his Honor the Mayor be and he hereby is authorized to execute a lease to Sarah M. English and Ann M. Corey, heirs of John English, deceased, all the title acquired by the city under a deed from Michael Norton, Collector of the late town of Brigh-ton, dated June 12, 1876, and recorded with Suffolk Deeds, liber 1330, folio 266, for the sum of four hundred and fifty dollars; and also another deed from said Michael Norton, Collector, dated June 12, 1876, and recorded with said deeds, liber 1330, folio 267, for the sum of one hundred and fifty-four dollars.

Mr. Felt—I will explain in regard to that order. A tract of land was purchased by the Committee on Public Instruction some months ago, for a site for a schoolhouse, and it seems there is a betterment title resting on it. This matter came before the Committee on Streets of the Board of Aldermen, and in order to get rid of this encumbrance they recommend that the city shall receive the betterment tax from the parties owning the land, without costs and without interest, that the owners may have power to give a deed to the city for the land for that purpose.

Mr. Sampson of Ward 17—Is the city to receive the betterment tax first?

Mr. Felt—It is. The parties offer to pay the betterment tax, and the Committee on Streets on the part of the Board of Aldermen think they should do so first, and let the title to the city come in the regular way.

Mr. Sampson—I don't think it is fully understood, and I ask that it go over until the next meeting.

Mr. Felt—The only reason for haste is that the Committee on Public Instruction bought the land several months ago and are anxious to get the deed of it. It has been in the City Solicitor's office until now, but could not be attended to before this, owing to a press of other business. They are anxious to begin the foundations of the building before winter.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—As I understand, the city now own the land, having acquired a title under a betterment; and therefore the persons named have no title. I cannot see any necessity for the present action. It seems to me there has been so long delay there can be no harm to let it remain for a week longer.

The President—The order will lie over under the rules.

Mr. Felt—The only reason for haste is that the Committee on Public Instruction desire to get in the foundation before winter sets in.

Mr. Pearl of Ward 1—This is a matter that I don't know anything about. The Committee on Public Instruction recommended the purchase of a lot in the early part of the year at the corner of Cambridge street and Harvard avenue, Brighton, and it was accepted by the City Council. I don't know anything about this matter of betterment. I don't know anything about the title to the land, which I should think comes under the direction of the Committee on Public Buildings.

The order was passed to a second reading.

Mr. Felt—For the reason that I gave just now, that the Committee on Public Instruction desire to get the foundation commenced before winter, I move a suspension of the rules.

Mr. Shepard of Ward 4—I would state that the plans for that schoolhouse have not been commenced, and I think it will be impossible to get in the foundation this winter.

The motion to suspend the rule was lost, by a division—32 for, 18 against—two-thirds being necessary.

SALARIES FOR MEMBERS OF THE CITY GOVERNMENT.

Mr. Spenceley of Ward 19 offered the following: Ordered—That his Honor the Mayor be requested to petition the General Court, at its next session, for the passage of an act providing that the Aldermen of the city of Boston shall be elected for three years, that they shall devote their whole time to the business of the city and be paid a salary for their services, and that they shall perform the duties now performed by the several boards of commissions.

Ordered, That his Honor the Mayor be requested to petition the General Court at its next session for the passage of an act providing that the members of the Council of the city of Boston shall be elected for a term of not less than three years, and that they shall be paid a salary for their services.

Mr. Spenceley—All I desire this evening is that the order may be passed to a second reading, and then I shall ask to have it specially assigned for consideration at some future time. It is a subject which I have presented to several gentlemen and they think very favorably of it. It may not be just right, and perhaps it may be improved and condensed some. Yet on the whole I think it is something which may be very desirable.

The order was passed to a second reading, and on motion of Mr. Spenceley, was specially assigned to next Thursday at nine o'clock.

Adjourned, on motion of Mr. Sampson of Ward 17.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen,

NOVEMBER 5, 1877.

Regular meeting at four o'clock, P. M., his Honor the Mayor presiding.

JURORS DRAWN.

Thirty-four traverse jurors were drawn for the first session of the Superior Court.

EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENTS.

Police Officers without Pay—Charles Lynde, Charles W. Hart, James Muston, Jeremiah Hoare. Confirmed.

Constables—W. K. Jones, Franklin T. Rose, Norman Farr, Burnham Royce, George Richardson, George H. Royce. Confirmed.

Police Officer—Josiah Van Buren. Confirmed.

PETITIONS REFERRED.

To the Committee on Paving. Nathan Tufts et al., for curb stones on west side of Beach street, Charlestown; William F. Brooks & Co. et al., that Chelsea street, from Porter street to the bridge, be paved or macadamized; W. L. Bradley, to be paid for grade damages on Swett street; Clark Thompson et al., occupants of Clinton Market, for flagged crossing on Clinton street; Thomas L. Smith et al., for cross walks on Commercial street at South Market street; H. F. Whitcomb, for crossing on Warren street at Savin street; M. L. Capen, for a brick sidewalk at 223 Sixth street; Augustus Mason et al., that Warren street, Brighton, be graded and put in order.

To the Joint Committee on Claims. Ellen Smith, to be paid for personal injuries caused by a fall into a coal-hole at 673 Albany street; W. E. L. Dillaway, for compensation for personal injuries received by a fall in South street, Oct. 2, 1877; John O'Connell, physician, to be paid for services rendered to the city by request of the police; Patrick Horan, to be paid for injuries sustained by a fall at corner of Seventh and C streets.

To the Committee on Police. T. P. Williams, for leave to project a lantern in front of his premises, No. 225 Tremont street.

To the Committee on Lamps. R. & P. C. Lockwood et al., that Columbus court, off Brighton street, be lighted; Augustus Mason et al., that Warren street, Brighton, be lighted; S. N. Deckermeir et al., that Allston street be lighted; Samuel Jackson et al., that Jackson avenue, Ward 25, be lighted.

To the Committee on Health on the part of the Board. Petitions for leave to occupy stables—M. Lefstrom, new wooden shed, two horses, 201 Centre street; Alden Bartlett, new wooden, three horses, Green street, Ward 23; Edwin McCullis, new wooden, five horses, Paris street, Ward 1; Henry Dudley, new wooden, twenty horses, Elm street, Ward 23.

To the Committee on Sewers. Universalist Society of Jamaica Plain, for abatement of sewer assessment in Centre street, Ward 23; D. N. Payson et al., for lamps on Broadway in front of M. E. Church; George W. Parker, for abatement of his sewer assessment in Spring-park street.

To the Committee on Licenses. Eli Fernald et al., for leave to run coaches from the Highland Street Railway office on Dudley street to Fort avenue; H. Tannerbaum, for a pawnbroker's license at 2305 Washington street.

To the Joint Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings. Thomas Mayo, to enlarge wooden building on Green street, near railroad, Ward 23.

HEARINGS ON ORDERS OF NOTICE.

Hearings were had on orders of notice as follows:

Sewers. On proposed sewer in Cunard street, Roxbury. No objections, and recommended to the Committee on Sewers.

Cambridge Railroad. On petition of Cambridge Railroad Company for leave to locate a track in Merrimac street to Washington street, then to run cars over the tracks of other roads in Washington, Milk and Devonshire streets to Dock square and Merrimac street.

The Mayor read a communication from E. Worthen James, stating that he was to appear for the remonstrants, that Mr. Judd was absent from the city, and he was sick and unable to be present, and asking a postponement on that account.

But the Board concluding to proceed, Mr. Emery, president of the Cambridge Railroad, explained the location, the object of which is to run East Cambridge and Somerville cars through Leverett street, Causeway, Portland, Merrimac, Washington, Milk and Devonshire to Merrimac street, and out through Lowell street. It had come to their knowledge that the presidents of the other roads had come to an agreement by which they were to ask for new locations in order to take cars off Tremont street. They will run on this line about one-third the cars run to Bowdoin square. They do not purpose to interfere with the East Cambridge stage line; but to accommodate their East Cambridge and Somerville patrons. They do not desire to take away the business of any other corporation, but to do their own business and meet any increase that the location may give them.

Mr. Chase, a surveyor and engineer, was introduced, and explained a plan of the location; and he gave the width of the streets in the narrowest places, saying he esteemed it practicable to locate the tracks without inconvenience to public travel.

Dr. Estes Howe was called by Mr. Emery, and stated that he had been a director in the Union Railroad Company for twenty years, and had been familiar with its operations; and had been also a director in the Cambridge road since its organization. When the first railroad locations were granted, the City Government, deeming it an experiment, stopped the Cambridge road at Union square, the Middlesex at Haymarket square, and the South Boston at Church Green. Matters remained thus until 1863; but meantime the Suffolk road was chartered, and the City Government deemed that some means of bringing all the roads into connection would promote the public convenience. All the other roads were given additional connections and locations, and have since been granted more and more access to the city; but the Cambridge road stood still, and has never received any more than the original grant. They would have urged an extension to Scollay square long ago, but for the narrowness of the streets. The time has at last come when there should be a mode of returning from the actual business centre of the city. The only new location now asked for is in Merrimac street, where a location was granted them in 1863, but they did not accept it then because the cost of cutting off a planing mill was more than the track was worth. The travel over Craigie Bridge has more than tripled since the first location was granted; the business centre has moved south indeed.

The Mayor read a remonstrance from citizens of East Cambridge against the proposed location, they being at present well inconvenienced by the present lines of cars and stages.

Charles J. McIntire, counsel for the petitioners in aid of the petition of the Union Railroad Company, alluded to the large number of petitioners outside of East Cambridge. The people do not desire to do away with either the horse cars or Stiles's coaches; they want more ample accommodations, and he disclaimed any desire to injure Mr. Stiles or his coaches. East Cambridge, Somerville and Brighton are farther from the business centre of Boston than other more distant suburbs. Since the first location was granted, Cambridge has more than doubled in population, and Somerville nearly trebled; and yet they have to take the cars at the same place as they did then. The people of the suburbs help to develop the capital of Boston, and are entitled to the same privileges enjoyed by other suburban residents.

Isaac S. Morse appeared for some of the petitioners in aid of the petition of the railroad, and said Cambridge was the only suburb where people could not get into a car and be landed near the centre of business. That which will accommodate the public generally should be adopted, and private rights must yield to the good of the whole. He appears in behalf of people who want to patronize Boston stores. It will accommodate a very large class of people.

Mr. McIntire called the witnesses in aid.

George L. Mitchell, an assistant assessor of East Cambridge, said the petition in aid represented the principal business men of East Cambridge, all of whom desire the extension.

Mayor Belknap of Somerville said the extension would be a great convenience to the people there, as they all come here to buy goods. In many instances the people pay larger taxes in Boston than in Somerville. They are not citizens of Boston, though they perhaps would like to be, if Boston would smile on them.

O. S. Knapp of Somerville said he lived just above Union square, between the two steam railroads, and he desired the extension to save the expense of paying two fares to the business centre.

W. E. Jewell, living near Inman street, Cambridge, said the people want the convenience asked for, and they asked now because they believed the policy of the city was to grant locations to horse railroads as a means of promoting business convenience.

Ex-Mayor Brastow of Somerville said the bulk of the $30,000,000 valuation of Somerville was engaged in Boston; every house was furnished in Boston; hardly a lady wears a dress that is not bought in Boston. He hoped Somerville will be granted the convenience. The petition in aid fairly represents the business men of Somerville.

Mr. McIntire here rested the case for the petitioners in aid.

J. C. Stiles appeared as a remonstrant, and said there was no need to bring witnesses. The Cambridge road has a better location and higher rates of fare than any other corporation, and they want to crush out all effort to accommodate the people. The biggest pressure is to kill out the little stage line, and the next is to support the high fare.

Thomas J. Gargan, in closing the case for the railroad company, alluded to the testimony and the character of the witnesses. These populous suburbs represent the overflow of the populous North and West ends, and they desire easy access to the business centre. This location will relieve the present crowded Green street. They ask to get nearer the retail stores without cumbering the crowded streets of the city. The company were not running any rivalry with Mr. Stiles's fifteen coaches. The location is petitioned for by two thousand citizens of the North and West ends.

The matter was recommitted to the Committee on Paving.

PAPERS FROM THE COMMON COUNCIL.

Petitions, etc., were referred in concurrence.

Proposed ordinance to allow the "books, accounts and bills in the Auditor's Office" to be open "at all reasonable times" to the inspection of any taxpayer of this city. Referred to the Committee on Ordinances in concurrence.

Report and order to pay Ann E. Porter $1500 for personal injuries received on account of the defective condition of Dudley street. Order passed in concurrence.

REPORT OF THE RECORD COMMISSIONERS.

The third report of the Record Commissioners (City Document 46) was received. Sent down.

BOND APPROVED.

The bond of George B. Proctor, constable, being presented duly certified, was approved by the Board.

OVERSEERS OF THE POOR.

The quarterly report of the Overseers of the Poor for Oct. 31 was received. Sent down.

Balance at last report, $3527; receipts since, $20,605.60; cash balance, $2510.89.

POLICE RULES AND REGULATIONS.

The Board took up the special assignment, viz.: Rules and regulations for the government of the Police Department.

Alderman Robinson—I have received a communication from the City Solicitor, somewhat modifying his approval of the rules as reported by the committee, and I ask that they be recommitted to the Committee on Police.

Alderman Fitzgerald—As I understand it, the communication is simply in relation to one section of the rules, and I am certain that if the City Solicitor had read that portion of the rules carefully, he would not have hesitated one moment to say that the rule was in conflict with the ordinances. I called the attention of the City Solicitor myself to that portion of it. At the end of the rules and regulations as printed, is a letter from the City Solicitor, in which he says that—

"The draft of rules and regulations for the government of the Boston Police, submitted to me, are not, in my opinion, in conflict with the statutes of the Commonwealth or the ordinances of the city of Boston."

I don't know what the letter which the chairman of the Committee on Police has received is about, but I presume it was written in consequence of the Solicitor's attention being called especially to the 15th rule, or to the latter portion of it, which says—

"When the committee find the officer guilty of any irregularity, he shall be subject to reprimand, suspension, deduction from his pay or to discharge, as may be determined by the said committee; and no officer shall be removed from the force unless recommended by said committee, and his removal approved by the Mayor."

The 49th section of the chapter expressly says that—

"In all cases where appointments are directed to be made by the Mayor and Aldermen, they shall be made by the Mayor, by and with the advice and consent of the Aldermen, and such officers may be removed by the Mayor."

The Mayor has the sole power of removal. This rule made a condition precedent to removal the recommendation therefor by the Committee on Police, and that portion of the rules and regulations is not in accordance with the statutes, because it is giving to the Committee on Police a power which they have not got under the charter, and it is taking from the Mayor a power which is given to him under the statutes. It is manifestly wrong, and I presume the letter which the chairman of the Committee on Police has received is in regard to that portion. There are other portions which I would like to discuss before they are recommitted to the committee. The rules and order have had but little change. The changes are little except so far as the changes of words are concerned, but they are extremely important in consequence. They are simply taking the power from the Mayor which he has today, and making the Police Committee a kind of commission over the Police Department. That is the sum and substance to the additions to the police rules and regulations. It is clothing the committee with powers which the Mayor has exercised, and has the exercise of today, and the most important one is that to which I have called attention. I should infer that was the one to which the City Solicitor refers, from my conversation with him. I took that up to him last week, and showed him this section, and he told me that he took rather a cursory view of the matter and should modify his letter. I wanted to call the attention of the Board to the changes which are now taking place and which are taking away that power from the Mayor and centring it upon the Committee on Police. Under the charter the Mayor has the same relation to the police that the governor of the Commonwealth has to the militia of the State; he is accountable for them, and should be held accountable for them. Whatever is to be done by the Committee on Police should be done by consulting with the Mayor, and their consent should not be the primary moving power in connection with the Police Department.

Alderman Robinson—It seems to me the Alderman cannot resist the temptation to talk on every matter that is brought up. The fact of the case is that the Alderman is entirely wrong. Some six weeks ago the Committee on Police were informed by the chief that the edition of books necessary to furnish to the policemen was all exhausted. The committee, wishing to get up a set of rules, and not having the time to attend to them themselves, took the rules we found in the book indorsed by the City Solicitor, and that very rule of which the Alderman has spoken is a part of the past rules of the department. Now, the section of the city charter that he speaks of is rather in conflict with another section. I did not intend to discuss this question, but, as I said, the Alderman cannot resist the temptation to talk on every matter that comes up. Section 33 of the city charter reads as follows:

"Sect. 33. The administration of police, together with the executive powers of the said corporation generally, and all the powers formerly vested in the selectmen of the town of Boston, either by the general laws of this Commonwealth, by particular laws relative to the powers and duties of said selectmen, or by the usages, votes or by-laws of said town, and all the powers subsequently vested in the Mayor and Aldermen of said city as County Commissioners or otherwise, shall be, and hereby are, vested in the Board of Aldermen, as hereby constituted, as fully and amply as if the same were herein specially enumerated. A majority of the members of the Board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. Their meetings shall be public, and the Mayor, if present, shall preside, but without a vote."

If that does not place the police as strongly and forcibly in the hands of the Board of Aldermen, and say that all their powers are derived from the Board of Aldermen, I cannot see how language can be made to make it strouger. In regard to this matter there seems to be a conflict between the statutes. The forty-ninth section of the charter, which the Alderman has just read, does not say that the police shall be removed at the pleasure of the Mayor. But this very clause, to which the Alderman objects, was indorsed by the City Solicitor in 1866, when in reply to a letter of the committee he wrote—

"I have examined the rules you submitted to me, which are proposed to be adopted for the government of the Police Department, and they are severally, in my opinion, in conformity with the laws of the Commonwealth and the ordinances of this city."

Here is one of those to which the Alderman alludes:

"All complaints made against any member of the department by any other member thereof, or by any other person not of the force, shall be reduced to writing, with the specifications, and shall be signed by the party making the complaints before the same shall be investigated.

"For minor offences the punishment shall be determined by the Chief of Police, with the privilege of an appeal to the Committee on Police.

"And any officer whose character has been compromised may have an inquiry as to the truth of any charges made against him; the investigation of all complaints and charges shall be before the Committee on Police, and the evidence shall be taken down by a clerk; the Mayor shall be notified of the investigations; when the committee find such officer guilty of any irregularity, he shall be subject to reprimand, suspension, deduction from his pay, or to discharge, as may be determined by the said committee; and no officer shall be removed from the force unless recommended by said committee, and his removal approved by the Mayor."

That is where Mr. Lee got that rule for the committee. In regard to that rule, my object was that when an officer was examined and found guilty of offences sufficient to cause his removal, the decision of the committee should not be final, but that the approval of the Mayor should be obtained before the sentence was carried out. There was no intention whatever on the part of the committee to infringe upon the rights of the Mayor, and I am sorry that such an idea has been advanced before this Board of Aldermen. Now, as I say, we care nothing about the rules. We had not time to look over them ourselves. A great many rules had been passed since the old rules had been printed in a book. Those were picked up from the records by the clerk of committee, and were reported with the rules. They were sent to the City Solicitor and received his approval. My friend thought there was some cat in the meal and went to the City Solicitor and pointed out those matters, or rather showed that there is some sort of conflict between the old book and those rules. I do not know that any of the committee knew that there was any conflict with that statute, and I am inclined to think that the forty-ninth section was not intended to mean the police force of the city, but other departments. I cannot see how two sections of the city charter could be so in conflict with each other. After Mr. Lee made up the rules, the committee sat down together and spent several hours on them and made some additions. but they were only in the phraseology, and sometimes substituting a singular for a plural, and sometimes a plural for a singular. They did not intend to change them in any way, shape or manner, or to infringe upon the rights of the Mayor in the least.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I would ask the Alderman if he thinks I am infringing upon what belongs to him? The fact is, the Alderman really thinks the whole management of the police belongs to him, and I am not surprised that he thinks it an affront to him for any member of the Board of Aldermen to dare to get up here and question the propriety of the rules which he makes for the government of the police. As a member of this Board I intend to speak upon any question that comes up, and especially upon anything that is illegal, and I don't propose that it shall pass if I can help it. The gentleman says that Mr. Lee did this. Mr. Lee did not do this. The Committee on Police did this. I don't know Mr. Lee in this matter. The Alderman must shoulder the responsibility. The rules of 1866 have been changed to the rules as they have been reported to be adopted for the rules of today. The rules of 1866 were illegal, and that portion should be stricken out because it is in conflict with the statutes. It is a very simple thing, and it is only a little thing; but it is so little and so simple that it makes the chairman and the Committee on Police so strong in their position that the Mayor can remove nothing and do nothing without their consent. I say it is in conflict with the statutes, and the chairman of the Committee on Police has received a letter from the City Solicitor telling him that it was. Let him stand up here and state his opinion in opposition to the opinion of the City Solicitor. He has received a communication from the City Solicitor, and it was on my notification to him that that section was in conflict with the statutes and the city charter. I venture to say that that was the sum and substance of his communication to the Committee on Police. He says there is one law about the appointments to office by the Mayor that was not intended to cover the Police Department. Where does he find that? Who told him that? He gets up a law of his own and interprets a law for himself and to suit himself when it suits his own purposes; and he gets it indorsed by the City Solicitor, as he says, by a cursory reading; and after his attention was specially called to it by me, he sends a communication to the Alderman that that law was in conflict with the statute; but after that the Alderman gets up and tries to say that he is right and the City Solicitor wrong in his opinion, and that the statutes are in accordance with his interpretation and not the interpretation of the City Solicitor after a careful looking into the whole affair. Then the Alderman blames me, and he blames anybody who dares to get up here and interfere with the rules. Now I want to tell the Alderman that his management of the police and the rules which he frames are not so infallible that I or any other member of this Board cannot get up here and criticize them. The Alderman cannot fix them up to suit himself. The whole intent of the committee, in that rule and in some others, is to take away from the Mayor the power which the statutes have given the Mayor in connection with the police. That is the sum and substance of it.

Alderman Robiison—I deny in toto the assertion of the Alderman. My statement here was simply the reason why we came to make the rules. We were called on by the Chief of Police and instructed the Clerk of committees to look over them and draft a set of rules which we looked over, and as such the committee take the responsibility for them. I simply stated why those rules were made. I did not give my opinion that there was not any conflict with the statutes. I never looked at that before. There were the rules laid down in the book, and we sent the whole set to the City Solicitor and he gave them his approbation. Now my associates on the committee can tell how much more I had to do with them than the rest. We sat there together while Mr. Lee read them. The matter never entered our heads, and our idea this afternoon was to have the rules quietly recommitted to the Committee on Police and get them right next time. But the Alderman cannot resist discussing them. I am no lawyer and cannot say what the statutes are; but there are the thirty-third and forty-ninth sections, and let people read for themselves. I simply stated why those rules were made.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Has not the Chairman received a notification from the City Solicitor, and has not the City Solicitor told him that that rule was in conflict with the statutes?

Alderman Robinson—He has told me so, and I did not intend to have any discussion about it.

Alderman Fitzgerald—Will the Chairman please read the letter?

Alderman Robinson—I will. I did not intend to have any discussion about it. Here is the notice to me which I find on my desk this afternoon:

CITY SOLICITOR'S OFFICE,
BOSTON, Nov. 3, 1877.

Dear Sir—In the examination of the new draft of "Rules and Regulations for the Government of the Boston Police," which you submitted to me recently, I find I made one error. I wrote to you that I found no conflict between them and the statutes of the Commonwealth, or the ordinances of the city. In one respect, I find upon a revision of the matter, there is a conflict, and I refer to the ast sentence in the fifteenth rule, which provides that "no officer shall be removed from the force unless recommended by said committee"—that is, the Committee on Police. The power to remove police officers from office is vested exclusively in the Mayor, and it cannot be abrogated or modified by any action of the Board of Aldermen. See Acts of 1838, chap. 123; as amended the 49th section of the City Charter. See also section 1 of the ordinances under the head of police.

I am sorry this oversight has been made by me.
Yours, very respectfully,

J. P. HEALY.

MR. ALDERMAN ROBINSON, Chairman Committee on Police.

Alderman O'Brien—I would ask the Chairman of the Committee on Police if the present committee have added any new rules?

Alderman Robinson—No sir, no new ones.

Alderman O'Brien—These are the rules you found when you took possession of the department?

Alderman Robinson—Yes, sir.

Alderman Breck—The Alderman from Ward 21 has done the Chairman of the Committee on Police a great injustice in ascribing to him motives of which he is not guilty. If he is guilty, then each member of the committee is guilty. There is nothing but what we would have each member of the Board know; there is nothing that we would keep secret; nothing that we would keep in the dark. The statement made by the chairman is just as I have it myself. Some few weeks since the Chief of Police notified the Committee on Police that he was short of copies of the rules and regulations of the department, and had none to give to newly-appointed officers. The committee considered it very important that a new edition of them should be published, and accordingly voted that the Clerk of the Committee be notified to revise the old edition by leaving out some of the old rules that were no longer applicable, but which were, in fact, obsolete, and to make such alterations as he deemed necessary. As a general thing, the rules and regulations remain just as they were, no essential alteration having been made—none, in fact, that would give the Board of Aldermen any more power in the appointments, and none that would curtail the power or the authority of the Mayor in the least. After a careful examination by the committee and with the approval of the City Solicitor, they were presented to the Board of Aldermen last Monday for their adoption, little thinking they would meet with any opposition. And why this opposition should arise I cannot tell, for the committee never dreamed of making any alteration that would in any manner or shape whatever conflict with the old copy. After again looking over the new edition and comparing it with the old, I fail to find any change that will affect the authority of the Mayor or that will increase in the least the power delegated to the committee by the Board of Aldermen, and I hope, Mr. Mayor, that we shall tonight adopt them, as it is of great importance that we shall have them for distribution at the earliest possible moment.

The charge that the rules have been changed so as to infringe upon the rights of the Mayor is accusing the chairman and each member of the committee of what they have not been guilty. We have acted fairly and squarely in the matter. We went over these rules carefully and we spent some hours on them. If we omitted this or that little thing it is not because we wish to take away any power from the Mayor. We would n't take away any power from the Mayor or the Board of Aldermen, and we would n't take away any power from ourselves.

Alderman Burnham—As a member of the committee I am familiar with the matter under discussion. I think the member from Ward 21 has done the committee injustice. Certainly it never had any being in my mind, and I don't think it had any being in the minds of the committee. It must be remembered that the Chairman of the Committee on Police, on the Mayor's presenting this matter of special assignment, arose and stated to the Board that he had received a communication from the City Solicitor, and asked that it be recommended to the Committee on Police. It seems to be a perfectly fair proposition, and on that proposition I can hardly see how my friend on my left should rise in his seat and impugn the motives of the committee, and make charges of the kind that he has made. The Committee on Police, in turning over the rules as they were adopted in 1866, found this same rule 15, not exactly in the same words, but the same in sentiment. And we found that that rule had been approved by the City Solicitor, and consequently we felt, as we looked over the old rules, that we were acting under the approval of the City Solicitor, the highest authority, and that they had kept within the range of the statutes and ordinances. Now, coming down to this matter, we opened to the 33d section of the city charter, which the Alderman has read, and the construction put upon that was that at the time of the incorporation of the city the Board of Aldermen received some kind of an inheritance from the Selectmen of Boston, and among the powers of the Selectmen was that of the appointment of police. Having arranged those rules, as the Chairman has said, before coming to this Board with them, they were again submitted to the City Solicitor, and his reply was—

"The draft of rules and regulations for the government of the Boston police, submitted to me, are not, in my opinion, in conflict with the statutes of the Commonwealth or the ordinances of the city of Boston. Very respectfully,

J. P. HEALY."

It seems to me that under such circumstances as those we are not to be charged with attempting to curtail the powers of the Mayor in a clandestine manner. I think the gentleman has done the committee wrong in making such an insinuation to this Board. I hope it will be recommended to the Committee on Police for their action.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I read the rules very carefully. Some members said they allowed somebody else to compile those rules for them. I read them over carefully, not once or twice only, and compared them with the old rules, and I will give you an instance. That is the most noticeable one which I have spoken to the City Solicitor about as illegal. But by running along the rules you will find, for instance, the thirteenth section—

"No member shall, directly or indirectly, be concerned in making any compromise or arrangement between thieves or other criminals and persons who have suffered with their acts, with a view to permitting the criminals to escape the penalties provided by law," etc.

If you look at the old rule you will find at the end that he shall be "subject to immediate dismissal by the Mayor"; but here it is "he shall be subject to immediate dismissal." The Mayor is left out. In other portions the Committee on Police approve the bills where the Mayor and Committee on Police have done it before. So it runs along, and we found that the approval of the Committee on Police, and where the Mayor had authority that is stricken out; also where dismissals were allowed to be by the Mayor, here it requires as a condition precedent thereto the approval of the Committee on Police. Now, what conclusion could I, as a reasonable man, come to, than that the Committee on Police intended, in what they sent in to this Board—seeing that where the Mayor was vested with certain authority it was taken from him—to take it from him; that they intended to curtail the authority of the Mayor and vest it in the Committee on Police. It is the only rational conclusion which anybody can come to after reading it; and, more especially, when I see the chairman of the Committee on Police trying to work out a conflict between the statutes, and to show, as he has, for the last eight or nine months, that the Committee on Police have all the power within them, and that the Mayor has nothing. What other conclusion could I come to, knowing the ideas of the chairman of the Committee on Police, knowing what he thought about the statutes, and knowing what he has said to me, and knowing the great, extraordinary power which he fancied centred within him as chairman of the Committee on Police? What other conclusion could I come to than that he intended to carry out in the letter of the rules the ideas which he entertained of the powers of the committee as opposed to the powers of the Mayor? I hope this discussion and the letter of the City Solicitor will show the chairman of the Committee on Police that all the control of the police is not vested in him or his committee.

Alderman Robinson—I have n't the most remote idea of what he alludes to as having been mentioned by me about the powers of the committee. I can recall one thing only,—that under the rules all nominations have to be referred to the Committee on Police. Whatever else I have said in private conversation about the statutes, I know nothing at all about it. But what I do affirm here is that his remarks are entirely invidious and shameful, and ought not to have been made, because I never gave him any authority for any such conclusion.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I know he never gave me any authority; but I came to the conclusion from his remarks without his authority.

The matter was recommitted to the Committee on Police.

STONY BROOK IMPROVEMENT.

Alderman O'Brien, from the Joint Special Committee on the Improvement of Stony Brook, made the following report:

Stony Brook drains an area of eight thousand acres, and is 5 4-10 miles in length from the boundary line between Hyde Park and Boston to its outlet on Parker street. Its channel has but a slight fall, and is exceedingly tortuous; consequently a rainfall of more than ordinary duration causes it to overflow its banks. It is subject to an annual overflow in the spring, varying in extent with the amount of snow and ice to be carried off. As long as the land bordering on the brook was unimproved, but little inconvenience was experienced; but, as the territory has been gradually built upon, the subject has grown in importance, until it has become not only a cause of discomfort and annoyance, but also a source of disease.

This will be evident from the report of the Board of Health, dated April 19, 1877. The board reports the examination of one hundred and twenty-four dwellings situated upon the borders of Stony Brook. One hundred cellars were found to be flooded by a sudden rise in the water to a depth of from two inches to three feet, the water remaining in them for a period of from two days to three weeks. The board concludes its report by saying, "It is a well-established fact that wet cellars and damp dwellings are prejudicial to health; and it is the unqualified opinion of the Board of Health that the recent and present condition of the above-mentioned cellars and premises was and is such as to jeopardize the health of those living over them, and that some remedy should be applied."

The proposed improvement contemplates the straightening and widening of the channel of the brook for the purpose of increasing the fall and accelerating the flow of water. It is proposed to straighten the channel in West Roxbury according to the plan made, before annexation, by the commissioners. The land required for this portion of the work has already been taken and paid for, and the expense of making the improvement in this locality, being mostly for earthwork, will be comparatively small.

From Centre street to Tremont street it is proposed to construct a new channel, and take the brook through the estates on the west side of Pyncheon street, midway between that street and the Boston & Providence Railroad. At Tremont street the water will again enter the old channel, which from that point to the outlet is already of sufficient capacity.

The Street Commissioners estimate that the land and building damages on that portion of the line between New Heath and Tremont streets will amount to $53,000. The damages on the remainder of the line have been settled. The Superintendent of Sewers estimates the cost of construction at $80,000, making a total cost for the improvement, not including the amount already paid, of $133,000.

It is difficult, if not impossible, at the present time to estimate the amount of betterments which will be returned. It is believed, however, that the betterments will very nearly cover the cost of the improvement.

The present value of the land flowed by freshets, and which will be greatly benefited by the improvement, has not yet been estimated. The nearest approach to it is the Assessors' valuation of the whole of each estate which borders upon the brook. This valuation in the West Roxbury District varies from one half cent to thirty-five cents per foot, and in the Roxbury District from ten to seventy cents per foot.

A considerable quantity of land bordering on the brook remains unimproved on account of the liability to be flowed, and consequently the annual loss in taxation is no small item. A survey of the territory shows that in West Roxbury 167 9-10 acres and in Roxbury 14 2-10 acres are flowed, making a total of 182 1-10 acres of land which cannot be improved and which must remain at a low valuation.

After carefully considering the subject, your committee are unanimously of opinion that the improvement should be made, and they would, therefore, respectfully recommend the passage of the following order:

Ordered, That a joint special committee, consisting of three members of the Board of Aldermen, with such as the Common Council may join, be appointed to take charge of the improvement of Stony Brook, under the provisions of chapter 196 of the acts of 1874; with authority to remove obstructions in or over said brook or the tributaries thereof, to divert the water and alter the course and deepen the channel thereof, and to take and purchase such land as may be required for said purpose; the estimated cost thereof not to exceed the sum of one hundred and thirty-three thousand dollars.

Referred to the Committee on Finance. Sent down.

HORSE RAILROAD LOCATIONS.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Paving:

Metropolitan & South Boston Railroad.

The undersigned, a majority of the Committee on Paving, to whom was recommitted the petition of the Metropolitan Railroad Company for additional locations in Washington, Milk and other streets, respectfully recommend the passage of the following order of location.

LUCIUS SLADE.

JOHN E. FITZGERALD.

Ordered, That in addition to the rights heretofore granted to the Metropolitan Railroad Company to lay down tracks in several of the streets of the city of Boston, said company shall have the right to lay down an additional track on Washington street from the northerly line of Temple place to the track of the South Boston Railroad on said Washington street north of Summer street; also a curved track at the southerly corner of Washington and Summer streets, to connect the track located by this order on Washington street with the track of said Metropolitan Railroad on Summer street; also a curved track on the northerly corner of Summer and Hawley streets, to connect the track of the South Boston Railroad on Hawley street with the track of said company on Summer street.

Said Metropolitan Railroad Company shall also have the right to lay down a single track on Milk street from the track of the South Boston Railroad to Devonshire street; also in Devonshire street from Milk street to State street, and across State street to that part of Devonshire street lying northerly of State street, and through said Devonshire street to Washington street, and in Washington street to a point in the track of the Middlesex Railroad on said Washington street between Brattle and Elm streets.

Said company shall also have the right to lay down a curved track at the northerly corner of Washington and Milk streets, to connect the track of said Metropolitan Railroad on Washington street with the track of the South Boston Railroad on Milk street. The tracks located by this order being shown on plans drawn by H. A. Case, civil engineer, dated ———, 1877, and deposited in the office of the Superintendent of Streets.

Said Metropolitan Railroad Company shall also have the right to enter upon and use with its horses and cars the tracks of the South Boston Railroad Company on Washington, Milk and Hawley streets.

The right to lay down the tracks located by this order is upon the condition that the whole work of laying down the same, the form of rail to be used, and the kind and quality of material used in paving said tracks, shall be under the direction and to the satisfaction of the Committee on Paving and the Superintendent of Streets, and shall be approved by them. Also upon the condition that the said Metropolitan Railroad Company shall accept this order of location and shall agree in writing to comply with the conditions therein contained, and shall file said acceptance and agreement with the City Clerk within thirty days of the date of its passage; otherwise it shall be null and void.

The undersigned, a member of the Committee on Paving, to whom was recommitted the petition of the Metropolitan Railroad Company for additional locations in Washington, Milk and other streets, respectfully recommends the passage of the following order of location.

R. W. ROBINSON.

Ordered, That in addition to the rights heretofore granted to the Metropolitan Railroad Company to lay down tracks in several of the streets of the city of Boston, said company shall have the right to lay down an additional track on Washington street from the northerly line of Temple place to the track of the South Boston Railroad on said Washington street north of Summer street; also a curved track at the southerly corner of Washington and Summer streets to connect the track located by this order on Washington street with the track of said Metropolitan Railroad on Summer street; also a curved track on the northerly corner of Summer and Hawley streets to connect the track of the South Boston Railroad on Hawley street with the track of said company on Summer street.

Said Metropolitan Railroad shall also have the right to lay down a single track on Milk street from the track of the South Boston Railroad to Congress street: also in Congress street from Milk street to State street, and in State street from Congress street to that part of Devonshire street lying northerly of State street, and through said Devonshire street to Washington street, and in Washington street to a point in the track of the Middlesex Railroad on said Washington street between Brattle and Elm streets.

Said company shall also have the right to lay down a curved track at the northerly corner of Washington and Milk streets, to connect the track of the Metropolitan Railroad on Washington street with the track of the South Boston Railroad on Milk street. The tracks located by this order being shown on plans drawn by H. A. Case, Civil Engineer, dated _____ 1877, and deposited in the office of the Superintendent of Streets.

Said Metropolitan Railroad Company shall also have the right to enter upon and use with its horses and cars the tracks of the South Boston Railroad Company on Washington, Milk and Hawley streets.

The right to lay down the tracks located by this order is upon the condition that the whole work of laying down said tracks, the form of rail to be used, and the kind and quality of material used in paving said tracks, shall be under the direction and to the satisfaction of the Committee on Paving and the Superintendent of Streets, and shall be approved by them. Also upon the condition that the said Metropolitan Railroad Company shall accept this order of location and shall agree in writing to comply with the conditions therein contained, and shall file said acceptance and agreement with the City Clerk within thirty days of the date of its passage; otherwise it shall be null and void.

Laid on the table and ordered printed, on motion of Alderman Clark.

Highland Railway.

The Committee on Paving, to whom was recommended the petition of the Highland Street Railway Company for the location of tracks on Eliot street, respectfully recommend the passage of the following order of location.

For the Committee.

R. W. ROBINSON, Chairman.

Ordered, That in addition to the rights heretofore granted to the Highland Street Railway Company to lay down tracks in several of the streets of the city of Boston, said company shall have the right to lay down a double track on Eliot street from Columbus avenue to Tremont street, and to connect the same with the tracks of the Metropolitan Railroad on Columbus avenue, and also with the tracks of said company on Tremont street. Said Highland Street Railway Company shall also have the right to lay down a single track across Tremont street to connect the southerly track located by this order on Eliot street, west of Tremont street, with the track of the Highland Street Railway Company as now laid down on Eliot street east of Tremont street. The tracks located by this order being shown on plans drawn by Barbour and Hodges, civil engineers, dated Oct. 29, 1877, and deposited in the office of the Superintendent of Streets.

The right to lay down the tracks located by this order is upon the condition that the whole work of laying down said tracks, the form of rail to be used, and the kind and quality of material used in paving said tracks, shall be under the direction and to the satisfaction of the Committee on Paving and the Superintendent of Streets, and shall be approved by them. Also upon the condition that the said Highland Street Railway Company shall accept this order of location, and shall agree in writing to comply with the conditions therein contained, and shall file said acceptance and agreement with the City Clerk within thirty days of the date of its passage; otherwise it shall be null and void.

South Boston Railroad.

On motion of Alderman Robinson, the Board took up the order granting a location to the South Boston Railroad at the Old Colony Depot. Alderman Thompson withdrew his amendment to allow other corporations to use the track, with the consent of the Old Colony corporation, saying he offered it under the impression that the Middlesex road had applied for the same location; but it was another one. The order was passed.

Laid on the table and ordered printed, on motion of Alderman O'Brien.

MISCELLANEOUS PAVING REPORTS AND ORDERS.

Alderman Robinson submitted the following from the Committee on Paving:

Reports in favor of granting permits to move wooden buildings—John Cavanagh, from 52 Swan street, Ward 13, to 3 Ontario street, Ward 13; from north side of West Chester park to Bay View place, off Rogers avenue, Ward 22; and from 3 Ontario street to 52 Swan street.

Reports of leave to withdraw on petitions of Margaret Finnegan for leave to have a plank hatchway on sidewalk on Ontario street; Hall & Whipple, to place a steam boiler under the sidewalk of Court avenue, for the reason that section 4 of the rules of the city ordinances relating to coal holes and vaults prohibits the placing of a steam boiler under any sidewalk in the city. Severally accepted.

Report that leave be granted R. M. Pulsifer & Co. to place two lamp posts in sidewalk of the new Herald Building. Accepted.

Reports and orders for brick sidewalks in front of estates of James W. Tobey, 133 Newbury street; and on the easterly side of Berkeley street, between Columbus avenue and the Boston & Providence Railroad. Orders read twice and passed.

Report and order for hearing on Monday, Nov. 26, on petition of the Metropolitan Railroad Company for location in Foundry street. Order passed.

Report and order for hearing on Monday, Nov. 19, on petition of Union Freight Railway for leave to lay down a track from Commercial to Union wharf. Order passed.

LICENSES.

Alderman Dunbar submitted the following from the Committee on Licenses:

Amusement License Granted—A. P. Peck, to give wrestling exhibitions at Music Hall, Nov. 12.

Intelligence Office Licensed—Mary Ann Tucker, 99 Pleasant street.

Hack Licenses Granted—Henry Jordan, corner Chestnut and Walnut streets; Henry C. Turner, Washington street near Worcester square; F. G. Rhodes, Centre street, Ward 23.

Wagon Licenses Granted—L. D. Durgin, 34 Chapman street; William Hackett, 9 Chardon street.

Victualler's License Renewed—T. & A. Berry, 225-227 Commercial street.

Auctioneers Licensed—W. H. Brown, 35 Congress street; Herman Cohen, 175 Hanover street.

Pawnbroker Licensed—Moses VanDam, 315 Federal street.

Dealer in Second-hand Articles Licensed—W. W. Preby, 28 India street.

Severally accepted.

STABLES.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Health on the part of the Board:

Reports in favor of granting permits to occupy stables by Horace Farrington, Bellevue street; Provident Wood Yard, Foundry street; P. O. Reardon, Chelsea street; John A. Allen, rear 249 Eighth street. Severally accepted.

Reports of leave to withdraw on petitions for leave to occupy stables by William Looney, 17 and 19 First street; George Hall, South Margin street. Severally accepted.

SEWERS.

Alderman Viles submitted the following from the Committee on Sewers:

Report and order for hearing on Monday next on expediency of constructing a sewer in Dudley street, between Howard avenue and Brook avenue. Passed.

Ordered, That the Committee on Sewers be authorized to dredge Roxbury Canal at an expense not exceeding $1000; to be charged to Sewer appropriation.

Alderman Viles said the dredging had already been done, and this order was to approve the bills. The order was read twice and passed.

Ordered, That $15.45 be abated from the assessment levied upon James Ritchie for a sewer in Orleans street, on account of no benefit; that $15.03 be abated from the assessment levied upon Owen Clancy for a sewer in Orleans street, on account of no benefit; also that $8.84 be abated from the assessment levied upon Mary Rogers for a sewer in Greenwich street, on account of overestimate of land benefited. Read twice and passed.

COMMITTEE ON ELECTION RETURNS.

Alderman Viles offered an order—That a committee of three Aldermen be appointed to examine the returns of votes which will be cast tomorrow for State and county officers and for the constitutional proposition. Passed; and Aldermen Viles, Slade and Burnham were appointed said committee.

SOUTH BOSTON FLATS.

Alderman Clark offered an order—That the Board of Harbor Commissioners, acting for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, be requested to commence forthwith the building of B street, or C street, from First street to Eastern avenue, and to complete the same as soon as practicable, in accordance with an indenture between the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, the Boston & Albany Railroad Company, the Boston Wharf Company, and the city of Boston, dated June 24, 1873; and also that the said Harbor Commissioners, in case they elect to build C street instead of B street, be requested to build that portion of Eastern avenue lying between the easterly line of flats belonging to the Boston & Albany Railroad Company and the easterly line of said C street, in accordance with said indenture; and that the Boston & Albany Railroad Company be requested to fill to grade sixteen feet above mean low water that portion of Eastern avenue that is embraced within the limits of the flats purchased by said company of the said Commonwealth of Massachusetts, also in accordance with said indenture.

Alderman Clark explained that it was necessary to make the request that the Harbor Commissioners might ask the Legislature for an appropriation.

At the suggestion of Alderman Thompson the order was made to read, "Land" instead of "Harbor" Commissioners, and passed as amended. Sent down.

VEGETABLE MARKET.

The Board took up the special assignment for 4.30 P. M., viz.:

Report and order to purchase the market lot of the Mercantile Wharf Corporation (80,000 square feet), at a cost not exceeding $4.00 per foot, and for Finance Committee to provide the means.

Alderman Slade—For once I have put some of my ideas upon paper, there being some statistics that I wished to bring before this Board that I probably could not remember unless I put them in writing. When I presented this report I stated that it required considerable courage to offer such an order at the present time, and were it not that I am firmly convinced that the best interests of the city demand that our market facilities should be increased, and that it would be unwise to allow this opportunity for securing what appears to be the only available site for a market to pass by, I should not feel like advocating the measure at the present time. But, sir, while I believe in economy, I am not in favor of that economy which would neglect an opportunity for making a needed public improvement at the most favorable time, simply for the purpose of prating about economy. I am in favor of purchasing this lot of land because I believe that it is for the interests of both the producer and consumer that the markets should be under municipal control, and that the concentration of the vegetable trade in that vicinity will enhance the value of the city's property in Faneuil Hall Market, and also because I know of no other lot, equally desirable and combining equal advantages, which can be purchased for anywhere near the price at which this is offered. That much more land than that on which the market building stood would, with the growth of the city, become necessary in order to carry out the policy of a central market under city control, was seen and the case provided for as early as 1824. In that year the Legislature authorized the Mayor and Aldermen to extend the limits of Faneuil Hall Market within certain bounds, one of which was the harbor on the east, whenever public exigency should require, and in the same year the Mayor and Aldermen availed themselves of the permission and made the extension within two parallel lines to the harbor on the east. Of the land thus acquired, Quincy's "Municipal History of Boston," page 243, says, "The space lying between the new city market and the channel is the only space within which the market itself can be extended or the accommodation of those doing business in it enlarged, should the increasing greatness of the city render it necessary." But in 1852 the step was taken, now generally regarded as a mistaken one, of selling the City-wharf property lying between the market building and the sea. The elder Quincy, when this project was first brought to his attention, wrote a letter of vigorous remonstrance against it to the Mayor, which letter was published in all the papers of the day; and after he himself had purchased the property he formally offered to relinquish his bargain, if the City Government could be induced even then to reconsider their ill-advised action. Had this been done it is safe to assume that the vegetable market would have long since been established on the city's own land. This was the first opportunity and it was let slip; the second now presents itself, involving, as I shall attempt to show, a very moderate outlay for the advantages to be gained both for ourselves and for the Boston of the future. Reject this offer, allow the vacant space to be built over, and when in a few years the farmers and market gardeners for the third time come besieging the City Hall for some place upon which to meet their customers, the folly of such rejection will be evident enough. Into the long and unsuccessful attempt to use South Market street for a market and a highway at the same time, I do not propose to enter at length. The early ordinances were framed upon the supposition that it had never been laid out as a street, and that the public had no rights in it as such. This was found to be a mistake in 1851; when it was proposed to put sheds therein for the accommodation of the farmers, the records were searched and the laying out discovered.

Then it was attempted to keep part of the street clear and to enforce regulations concerning hours of sale, but the attempt resulted in universal complaints, both from the occupants of the stalls and cellars in the market, the abutters in South Market street, and from the farmers themselves, the latter complaining that for trifling infractions of the regulations they were brought up to the stand by the side of criminals in the police court. The whole matter was considered by a special committee, whose report is to be found in city document No. 62, 1851. Allow me to recite a few extracts. After reciting the complaints and evils of the former system, the committee say, "But valid as these complaints may be, a more serious complaint is made by the country farmers, who come here to expose their products for sale, and from whom the city demands twenty or thirty cents per day for standing in the street for that purpose." "It seems to us that the policy of the city should be to encourage the growers of produce to come to the city and meet the customer directly and without the intervention of any third party who, coming between them, shall make one or two or more profits. South Market street should be thrown open as a space specially devoted, not to those who buy in the city to sell again, but to such as themselves produce the articles they desire to sell or who bring produce from a distance." The committee then recommend the regulations which were in substance adopted; that of reserving thirty feet of South Market street and allowing the farmers to stand in the unreserved space during the forenoon. As a reason for encouraging the farmers to come to the city the committee enter into the superior advantages enjoyed by other cities for obtaining cheap provisions, and which the fostering care of our City Government should endeavor in some degree to counterbalance, "by facilitating and encouraging the transportation of provisions to this city for a market."

With the growth of the city the difficulties attendant upon the alternate use of the same ground for a market and a street increased until in 1873 the streets around the market became so much obstructed by the great number of vegetable wagons which were driven from the country, that an urgent demand was made both by the owners of the wagons and those who occupied prominent places of business in the vicinity, that the city would furnish additional facilities for the transaction of this branch of the market business, and it was proposed to hire this very lot of the Mercantile-wharf Corporation at an annual rental of $2500, and establish thereon a city produce market. The advantages of this step were so self-evident that no opposition whatever was encountered, and the leases were within a few days of their execution, when a proposition was received from the proprietors of India wharf to give the city the free use of about 90,000 feet of land, located on what was known as the "dump" for a term of two years from May 1, 1873.

This proposition was accepted, though the advantages of location were confessedly with the Mercantile-wharf lands. During the two years covered by the lease the city received from rent of stands sufficient to pay all the expenses of putting the grounds in order, and produce a net profit of $7100.

When the lease expired, the proprietors of India wharf offered to lease to the city 100,000 feet of their land, for a period of three years, in consideration of being relieved of the taxes, which amounted to about $6000 per annum. The Mercantile-wharf Corporation also offered to give the city the free use of about 80,000 square feet of land for a term of three years from May 1, 1875, paying all taxes assessed thereon during that period, and to give a bond to convey the lands to the city within one year from the 1st of May for the sum of $4.75 per square foot and a proportional part of the taxes for the unexpired term. In spite of a vigorous opposition from the India-wharf interests this offer was accepted, and the necessary orders passed the City Council in July, 1875. It was found that before a market could be established on these grounds some extra filling was required; and by the time the grounds were put in order and a platform built, it was too late in the season to do any business there. It was not until about the 1st of May, 1876, that the grounds were in a condition to be used. In the meantime the farmers got the impression that the Committee on Markets were hostile to the project and did not desire its success; and this impression was strengthened when, later in the year, the committee reported in favor of cancelling the lease, and surrendering the land to the Mercantile-wharf Corporation. They were, therefore, naturally unwilling to leave their locations on India wharf, for which in many cases they had paid bonuses. It is also supposed that strong inducements were held out to them to remain on India wharf.

Vigorous remonstrances against the abandonment of the project were made by abutters and others who had ceded land to the city in consideration of the establishment of the market, and the attempt to cancel the lease was abandoned. Renewed efforts were made to attract the farmers to the grounds, and, towards the close of the season, about one hundred and fifty located there, and things began to look very encouraging.

In view of the fact that nearly eighteen months of the lease had elapsed before the grounds were ready for occupancy, it would have been strange indeed, if on the mere chance of the permanency of the market the farmers should have deserted their present quarters on India wharf; nor is it expected or desired that they shall go en masse as soon as the permanent city market is established. The longer that the India-wharf Corporation, or any other private corporation, can run a competing market the better for the public and the better for the poorer classes. But that the traditional and long-established policy of the city should be abandoned, that the well-considered and deliberately adopted plan for the establishment of a city produce market, for the relief of the streets and the benefit of the farmers and their customers, should now be given up, because many of those who clamored the loudest therefor are for the moment satisfied with quarters elsewhere, seems to me to be a view of the subject so short sighted as to be almost ridiculous. Of course, if the policy of a city market has been a mistake from the beginning, if Boston's prosperity would have been greater had Faneuil Hall Market never been established, then no further step in a wrong direction can be justified; but, unquestionably, the establishment of Faneuil Hall Market was a great benefit to the community, as well as a most profitable investment for the city. It is now paying six per cent. on a valuation of about $50 per foot. We are bound to protect the interests of the city in this property, and in order to do so we should use every effort to concentrate the market business in that locality. People like to purchase all their provisions in one place if possible. They do not want to be compelled to go to one part of the city for their vegetables and to another for their meats. If you allow a vegetable market to be established elsewhere, you will find that other branches of the provision business will be drawn there, and Faneuil Hall Market property will be injured. If, on the contrary, we establish a market on the Mercantile-wharf lot, which is only 400 feet distant from Faneuil Hall Market, it will be an inducement for people who go to the former place to purchase their vegetables to go to the latter to complete their marketing.

The correctness of this view of the case is strikingly shown by the effect which the removal of the market wagons from South Market street had upon business in that locality. Occupants of stores upon that street who petitioned to have the wagons removed have had reason to regret that they did not put up with the temporary inconvenience of a crowded street, for they have seen their business diminish to such an extent that rents on the street have depreciated nearly fifty per cent. I do not doubt but that they would all gladly sign a petition to have the wagons allowed to stand in the street, as in old times. The present market committee have removed the restriction as far as possible, and the effect on business has been most beneficial.

Every measure which tends to increase the quantity of provisions brought into the city is a benefit to the community, for thereby prices are lessened and the quality improved; and here let me say one word in regard to the erroneous statement so often made, that Boston is one of the dearest cities in the country to live in, on account of the high prices of all the necessaries of life. Now, so far as provisions are concerned, I know that the blame for high prices rests not altogether with the dealers, but largely with the purchasers. It is due mainly to the extravagant methods of buying which are pursued by the majority of our citizens. For instance, most of our families, in well-to-do or middling circumstances, expect their butcher to send his wagon in the morning to take their orders for the day's supplies, and later in the day send the wagon again with the goods. They pay their bills, perhaps, once a month or once a quarter. Now, all these things must be paid for; the dealer must get sufficient profit off his goods to pay for the extra help he is compelled to employ, the expense of maintaining his horses and wagons, and the interest on his money. We frequently hear Philadelphia and Baltimore cited as instances of cities having cheap markets. Now, an ox on the block costs no more in Boston than it does in either of those cities; but I understand that there the citizen goes to market and makes his purchases in person, usually pays cash for the goods, and takes or sends them home himself. The dealer has less expenses and runs less risks, consequently he is not obliged to charge an extra profit on his goods. Such was formerly the custom here. Thirty-two years ago it was the custom for our leading citizens to go to Faneuil Hall Market, purchase their provisions and send them home, either by their servants or by one of the numerous handcarts which stood for hire around the market.

An ox that will weigh 1000 pounds, dressed, is worth on the block in Boston today, say from eight to nine and one-half cents per pound. As it is cut it sells in this way: A whole sirloin from twenty-three to twenty-five cents per pound; a rump from fourteen to fifteen cents; the round eight cents; the back half eight cents, and the rattle six cents. The ox is cut up in this way and purchased by those provision dealers who do not take a whole animal. Many dealers purchase but a few of the coarser pieces, because their customers are of that class who do not use them, consequently those pieces are mostly corued and sold for from six to ten cents per pound in the market. Now, all above a fair profit on the above prices is due to the extraordinary expenses which the purchaser forces upon the dealer. Again, people who complain of the cost of living in Boston do not realize the fact that the custom of paying for their provisions once a month or quarter tempts them to purchase many articles which they would dispense with if they paid cash for the goods. Credit is very apt to lead to extravagance. Another thing which tends to make prices high is the method we have of cutting our meat. Purchasers insist upon having what are considered choice parts of the beef cut out for them, regardless of the price. A family purchases a piece of sirloin and pays, say, thirty-five cents a pound for it. There is a great deal of fat upon it, and when it is served, the family will perhaps pick out a few choice pieces of the lean meat, and the rest is often wasted. Now, there are other parts of the ox which are just as nutritious as the sirloin, and which can be bought for from eight to fifteen cents per pound, and some as low as four cents. It is therefore unjust to charge Boston with being a city of high prices, because purchasers prefer to pay twenty-five cents a pound extra for meat to gratify their epicurean tastes. In New York they don't know anything about what are here called "short-rib cuts." There they cut sirloin steak in a long cut the whole length of the ribs and including the flank, while the rump is cut crosswise, giving the coarse and fine meat in a slice. You cannot buy the back of the rump there, and many of our dealers do a lucrative business by sending to people in New York, who insist on living in the expensive Boston style, roasts cut from the back of the rump.

I am confident that whatever truth there may be in the charge that it costs more to live in Boston than in other cities is attributable not to any fault in the management of our markets, or to any extortion on the part of our marketmen, but solely to the wasteful habits of our citizens. In one respect, however, the custom of purchasing the choice parts of the meats has a good effect. It enables the poor classes to purchase meat, in every respect as nutritious, at much lower prices than they would otherwise be able to do, and, therefore, to the poor man, it is one of the cheapest places in the country.

But to return to the subject before us. It seems to me that the success of Faneuil Hall Market proves the wisdom of furnishing suitable market facilities, under proper municipal regulations, and warrants us in continuing the policy. It is a fact that our present market facilities are insufficient. It is only a comparatively few years ago when Faneuil Hall Market could supply the whole city. Within thirty-two years, which is comparatively a short time, I have myself carried provisions in baskets from the market to dwellings on Milk, Franklin and Summer streets and on Fort Hill. Then Dover street was considered the extreme outlying section of the city. With the growth of the city the number of markets have multiplied, yet they are all, to a certain extent, tributary to the old market, and draw from it a large portion of their supplies. In the streets surrounding Faneuil Hall Market you will find a number of markets, bearing different names, but which are in reality only outgrowths of the old market. It seems to me that the demand for additional facilities can be better met by the purchase of the land of the Mercantile Wharf Corporation than in any other manner. The non-success of the attempt to establish a vegetable market there should not be taken as an indication for the future. I consider it entirely owing to the fact that leases could be only given for so short a time that it was hardly worth while for the farmers to establish themselves there, and also because there was no certainty as to the future of the market. Let the city market be once permanently established, so that leases can be given, and the danger of being turned adrift again disappear, with the assurance of the absence of the vexatious restrictions incident to selling in the street, and success is assured, and all classes of the community benefited, with the single exception, perhaps, of the India Wharf Corporation, who may be obliged to seek other uses for their land sooner than would otherwise be the case. I have good reason for believing that the farmers will be glad of the opportunity to secure permanent locations on this land. They are becoming dissatisfied with the India-wharf market. There are now about 120 hucksters permanently located there, and it is rapidly losing its character as a farmers' market. Let us now consider some of the objections which are most prominently brought forward. In the first place, it is alleged that the price, although seventy-five cents per foot less than named in the bond, is excessive, and beyond the real value of the land. In reply to this, I would simply call attention to the following figures:

Prior to the year 1868 the Mercantile Wharf Corporation owned in the shape of docks and piers a space aggregating in all 224,320 square feet, bounded westerly by Mercantile, Richmond and Commercial streets. The frontage on these streets extended in all to the distance of about 758 lineal feet on the westerly side; the estate was bounded on the easterly side by the harbor, on a line with Commercial and T wharves.

In December, 1868, the Board of Aldermen laid out and soon after constructed Atlantic avenue. By this act of the city the property of the corporation was divided into two parts, the subdivisions being as follows:

Outside Atlantic avenue.

The fractional end of one of the piers.....12,000 feet.
Water space around piers.....48,760 "

Total outside avenue.....60,760 "

Inside Atlantic avenue.

Space which could be used for docks and piers, but, owing to a covenant with the Commercial Wharf Corporation it was restricted so that no building could be erected upon it. The action of the city, therefore, in changing it from water space to solid land rendered it worse than valueless to the corporation so long as this covenant remained in force, for the reason that it was taxed as building lot, and yet could not be built upon.

Land thus restricted.....91,743 feet
Land not restricted.....71,817 "
Total inside avenue.....163,560 "
Total outside avenue.....60,760 "

Total.....224,320 feet.

Subsequent to building the avenue, in order to adjust many obscure matters existing between the several owners of land inside the avenue, referees were appointed who awarded to the Mercantile Wharf Corporation, in consideration of their paying to the T Wharf Corporation over $30,000, dock space amounting to 7540 square feet.

The city made an assessment for betterments and filling, amounting in all to $279,304; the bill for filling was over $50,000—the charges being so very unreasonable and based on imaginary values of the improvement, that the corporation could not find means in their property to pay them, so the matter was in dispute for several years, the property lying idle in the mean time and not producing income enough to pay the taxes upon it.

In 1875 a compromise was effected, in connection with a plan for selling a portion of the land for a vegetable market. Streets were laid out, in conformity with the wishes of the market committee, and in concurrence with the Street Commissioners, but quite differently from what they would have been laid out to be used for other business than a market. In consideration of settling all the complications above alluded to, the Mercantile Wharf Corporation deeded for the nominal sum of one dollar to the Commercial Wharf Corporation,

For the removal of the building restriction..... 16,324 square feet.
To the city for Clinton street..... 18,621 " "
" " Richmond street.... 11,506 " "

Total given without consideration. 46,461 " "
Deducting this from the 171,100 square feet inside the avenue, left a balance of 124,639 square feet belonging to the corporation.

As before stated, this land had a frontage of 758 lineal feet in existing streets, and was not, therefore, bettered by the construction of the avenue to the extent of a frontage for the average depths of lots for stores, say 100 feet in depth. Now, taking the land owned by the corporation inside the avenue, 124,639 feet, and subtracting the land fronting on old streets and not bettered by the avenue, 75,800 feet, we have remaining subject to betterment 48,839 square feet. Assuming this to be worth as flats the same as the city paid for the avenue we have—

Forty-eight thousand eight hundred and thirty-nine feet of land at $1.25 per foot $61,053.75
Add amount paid city for betterments..... 75,000.00
Three years' interest..... 13,500.00
Three years' taxes, say..... 10,000.00
Six years' simple interest on the flats at $1.25..... 21,980.00
Cost of 48,839 feet of land..... 182,433.75 or about $3.75 per square foot. If the interest had been compounded, and the interest on taxes and general expenses included, the cost of the land would exceed four dollars per foot.

The Committee on Markets held several interviews with the owners of the property, with a view of getting at the bottom price for the land, and they believe that the sum named in their report is the lowest for which it can be purchased. When the figures already quoted are considered, and the cost of the land to the corporation is understood, the price does not seem unreasonable.

It should also be considered that the debt of the city will not be permanently increased by the outlay. It should be looked upon in the light of an investment, and one which I believe will, as in the case of Faneuil Hall Market, prove a very profitable one for the city. It is alleged that the project is strongly advocated by the Mercantile Wharf Corporation, and other property owners in the vicinity, who will be greatly benefited by the improvement. This is undoubtedly true, and the case would have been the same, with a change of names only, had the India-wharf site been selected.

Every great public improvement benefiting the community at large is sure to find its warmest advocates in those whose pockets happen to be specially filled thereby, and in this way the general public secures many advantages, for which, if it relied on disinterested public spirit alone, it might wait long.

Then it is said that the India Wharf Company, having taken the business off the city's hands, and demonstrated their ability to fill the bill, any further action on the part of the city is uncalled for. If that corporation were in a position to give bond, with sufficient securities, to furnish all the accommodation required for the next half century, at rents as low as those which the city would establish, binding themselves also to exclude hucksters and prevent forestalling; to give the poorer classes of consumers, in short, all the advantages which a city market would afford, then I might be in favor of turning over to them this work, which our predecessors decided that the city should undertake, but until this shall be the case, I cannot see the force of the argument. I am informed that the very title to the ground now occupied under the India Wharf Corporation is in litigation, so that, in fact, no valid lease can be given, rendering the farmers' present tenure a most precarious one. Besides, it is very uncertain how long the market would be allowed to remain on India wharf, under any circumstances, for it is not to be expected that the owners of the property will always be satisfied with the small returns which they now receive from it. On the contrary, as soon as the demands of business render it desirable to improve the property for mercantile purposes, depend upon it, the owners will apply it to the uses from which a larger income will be received. In that case, if we allow the opportunity for securing this reservation to go by, there will be no alternative except to purchase another lot for a much greater sum than this is now offered for, or else to turn the farmers into our already crowded streets.

As I said before, the Mercantile Wharf Corporation and certain other property owners are directly interested in pushing this scheme, while the India Wharf Corporation and certain others are as directly interested in opposing it. Let us try to put these contending parties aside and consider whether on its merits alone, and regarding the interests of the whole community, the carefully prepared and long-considered plan of the establishment of a City Produce Market should be executed or abandoned; for it is the alternative which now presents itself. If we spend this money, will our constituents decide that we have done so foolishly or wisely? that we have paid an extravagant price for a worthless article, or that we have decided a great question in such a manner as to secure priceless advantages to future generations? That the latter will be their verdict I cannot for one moment entertain a doubt.

Alderman Breck—After having listened to the interesting and comprehensive remarks of the chairman of the Market Committee, I hardly feel as though I ought to occupy much time on this subject; but still I feel it to be of very much importance, and I would like to add a little to what has been said, and I will go back to the origin of the matter. The Mercantile Wharf project is one that was commenced nearly three years ago, in consequence of petitions from farmers, market gardeners and others to the city of Boston to establish a market on the lands of the Mercantile Wharf Corporation for the sale of produce by the farmers and gardeners. The result of these petitions was that the corporation leased to the city for a term of three years from the 1st of May, 1875, nearly two acres of its land, at the same time executing a bond to convey the same to the city at $4.75 per foot. It was understood that the land thus secured would enlarge and perfect the market system of Boston, so that it would correspond with the growth of the city in the number of its inhabitants needing increased market facilities, as well as encourage its business in continuing to be the great centre from which the whole of New England is supplied with provisions and produce. In consequence of this movement on the part of the city a great stimulus was given to private enterprise. A large brick stable has been erected on Richmond street, and plans have already been made for its enlargement. A block of six stores has just been completed on Clinton street, a part of which now are, and the rest soon will be occupied for the sale of fruits and produce. An extensive block of two-story brick stores has been erected on Richmond street adjoining the Marginal Railroad in rear of the stores. A portion of the warehouse belonging to the Quincy estate, covering upwards of an acre of land, has been converted into stores for the sale of domestic and foreign fruits and general produce. In the remainder has been established the Clinton Wholesale Meat Market, containing thirty spacious stalls, and already doing a larger wholesale business in beef than any other market in New England. Plans are being matured for receiving and distributing by means of the Union Freight Railroad and the Eastern Packet Pier located directly opposite the vegetable market, bulky produce, such as potatoes, apples, etc. The central position, the great facilities for attracting trade to this locality, the surroundings so intimately connected with the sale of vegetables and other products raised by the farmers and market gardeners, together with the other advantages I have spoken of, would seem to make this as it is in reality the most desirable place in the city for a market of this kind. The city has already expended a considerable amount in filling and grading the land, covering it with a substantial plank floor, erecting quite a number of sheds or stalls, making new sidewalks and setting edgestones. For the betterments charged to the Mercantile-wharf Corporation the city holds a mortgage of $75,000, so that the amount to be paid will be only $245,000 instead of $320,000. After having already cost the city so much by putting the land in order and other improvements to get it ready for occupancy, it seems to be a great pity to abandon it just at this time and not reap the benefits that the city will derive from it in the shape of rents, the increased value of taxable property in the vicinity, and the great advantages it will give to the trade of the farmers and market gardeners, who only want to be assured that the city will purchase the property and make it a permanent market for all time, to locate themselves there. The income that will be received for the rent of the stalls will not be less than $25,000 per annum. Some little time before the Mercantile-wharf market was ready for occupation, the farmers and gardeners were ordered by the city to remove their wagons and stands from South Market street, owing to the great number of them overcrowding and blocking up the street so that the passing through it of vehicles was next to impossible. This order was a great hardship, coming just at the time it did, as the street had always been occupied by them for the sale of their fruits and vegetables, and it was hard to find a place at so short notice to go where they could be together, and which for their business was very important. They at length located themselves at India wharf, or the dump, as it is sometimes called. This place is some way off from South Market street, is not conveniently located, and does not possess the advantages that the Mercantile-wharf market does, and which, as I have already said, has superior facilities for the business, and is closely connected with the other markets. Now, it is very certain that if the city buys this property, the whole produce business of the farmers and gardeners will centre there; this is sure, because, as every one knows, the nearer you can bring those in any particular branch of trade together, the better it is for all concerned. When this market is firmly established, the proprietors of provision stores will be able to supply themselves with all they require for their customers with less trouble, everything they need being so centralized that they will not be obliged to drive far through crowded streets for their goods.

A feeling of uncertainty has prevailed among the marketmen ever since the land was bonded, they having but little confidence in the belief that a market would ever be established there, and this is the only reason why the property has not been occupied, as it would most assuredly have been if the marketmen could have felt sure that the city would buy the land and establish what is most certainly needed, a permanent market which would belong to the city where the producers could dispose of their fruits and vegetables better than they had been accustomed to do from their wagons or stands in crowded streets, or in out-of-the-way places where they could not be sure of a long lease. To buy this property at $4 per foot, the low price for which it is now offered, and to establish a vegetable market that will possess advantages superior to any in the country, will be the best thing the city can do, and will increase the business of the marketmen; there can be no doubt about it whatever, although it may seem extravagant just at the present time to buy that property when so much money has been appropriated to commence and finish so many much-needed improvements which have been for a long time in contemplation and which for want of decision and energy have been delayed until the present Government had the courage to say that the time had arrived for action, and there should be no more vexatious delays or boys' play in regard to them. These times of depression have lasted long enough, much longer than they should have lasted, and the only way to improve business and make the times better is to commence work on as many needed improvements — this with the others — as we can while labor and money are cheap, and while so many deserving men are out of employment and actually in want and begging for something to do to relieve their suffering wives and children. The price of the land at $4 per foot is very low, and if the city buys it all the land in the vicinity will be in demand for building purposes, and real estate in that neighborhood will soon double in value. The city can make no better investment than to take it at once and fit up the market to suit the wants of the farmers and gardeners. When the Faneuil Hall Market scheme was first projected it met with a most determined opposition from the citizens of Boston, and was commenced and finished in the face of this opposition and in spite of the opinion expressed that it was impracticable and beyond the resources of the city, and that it would lay the foundation for a city debt which neither the inhabitants of Boston nor their posterity would be able to pay. Notwithstanding the fact that this market and the land it occupies with the improvements made in the vicinity cost $1,141,272.83, it is true that from the sale of the city's interest the market house and its appurtenances and streets are held by the city free of cost. But with these great improvements made at the time when the population of the city was not much over 60,000 there is not room or accommodations for the business of the present time. The market gardeners and farmers have become so numerous in consequence of the constant growth of the city that there is not room enough for them in North and South Market streets, which had become so overcrowded that a year or two since the city was obliged to create an ordinance against these streets being occupied by them, and they were consequently forced to seek accommodations elsewhere. What is wanted now is to bring them together again in some central position as near to Faneuil Hall and the other markets as possible, where they will have plenty of room and better facilities for transacting their business. Such a place is the Mercantile-wharf market, which is in every way desirable and better than any other that can be found in the city.

Faneuil Hall Market was large enough for the business at the time it was built, fifty years ago, but now, with a population of nearly 350,000, larger accommodations are demanded and are absolutely necessary, as every one knows who has business in the vicinity of North and South Market streets. At the same time we want to keep the trade of the farmers and market gardeners in close proximity to these streets, as it is of the greatest importance to the interests of not only the farmers and gardeners, but also of the occupants of Faneuil Hall and other markets, that the vegetable business should be as closely connected as possible.

This market will also be of the greatest benefit to the merchants who buy produce for shipping, for here they can have it from first hands and ship at prices that will enable them to compete with the merchants of other cities. Every city should and is in duty bound to provide market accommodations for the dealers in produce and fresh provisions at low rents, so that the citizens may be supplied at the very lowest cost, thereby benefiting the poor and allowing them to get the most healthy necessities of living for as little money as possible. Fruits and vegetables are perishable articles that cannot be kept on hand for any length of time, but must be sold without delay, hence the necessity of low rents for the sale of them, which in a large city like Boston can be furnished only by the city itself. The welfare and health of the poor who cannot afford to pay high prices should be looked after, and the city should assist the producers of fruit and vegetables, and while it does this its own interests will not be neglected and no extra tax levied on the citizens; instead of the outlay for the Mercantile Market being a burden and the foundation of a debt, it will be an investment that will prove remunerative in the end as the Faneuil Hall Market has done. Having been in business in that vicinity for about forty years, I think it is for the interest of the market farmers and gardeners that this order should pass, and I hope it will.

Alderman Burnham—The Board of Aldermen, it seems to me, should keep in mind that the order now before us contemplates the expenditure of something like a third of a million dollars. A measure for an expenditure of that amount should make us patient in its discussion, and perhaps this array of figures will possibly make us cover the whole ground in relation to this want, in relation to our whole city.

Mr. Mayor, the chairman of the Committee on Markets has referred to the action of the senior Mayor Quincy, in 1852, on this matter of market extension. I believe it is a matter of history that at the time Faneuil Hall Market was established there was so much opposition to the project that the senior Mayor Quincy called a meeting at Faneuil Hall, and then and there offered to take the market off the hands of the city at cost. The city wisely did not do it, but it was not by any means a clear perception of the market wants of a growing city that prompted the refusal. This was a half century ago, and with a population of 60,000. As has been said, some twenty-five years ago the city wharf property was offered for sale. Then again Mayor Quincy stood up in Faneuil Hall and strove to engage attention to the market wants of our growing city, calling upon the authorities not to make the sale for this reason, among others, that Boston needed the territory for her market wants, but saying if it were to be sold he would purchase. The authorities, in their lack of foresight, sold, and Mr. Quincy purchased. Afterward, in his earnestness to serve the city, seeing so clearly her wants, he again offered to the authorities the property at cost. The result was that it was refused, and, although eighty-three years of age, he lived to see a profit to his estate of nearly three-quarters of a million dollars by the transaction. Mr. Mayor, it is a self-evident fact today, backed up by the history of Faneuil Hall in its relation to the supply of food for our city Market, that it requires large room, and that as population increases its borders must be enlarged. This matter of increased market facilities is no new subject for the consideration of the City Council. In 1870 the Committee on Markets, in a report to the City Government, say (page 24), "Boston is more deficient in respect to its facilities for bringing the producer and consumer together than any other large city in this country. The old portion of the city proper is densely populated, and it has come to that condition without any reservations being made, except in the case of the Faneuil Hall Market, for carrying on the market business, and without sufficiently wide streets to allow any very general use of them by market wagons." Now, whatever may be said of Faneuil Hall Market as sufficient for carrying on the market business in the past, prior to 1870, there is not a member of this Board but believes it was then, and is now, insufficient for the supplying the market wants of our city, which has increased 200,000 inhabitants in the past twenty-five years.

To have increased our market facilities to correspond with this increase of population would require not only this spot of 80,000 feet, but possibly the location known as the India-wharf Market besides.

A special committee of the City Council of 1873, in a report (City Doc. No. 75, p. 11), speaking of this Mercantile-wharf property in its relation to the growth and increased market needs of our city, say—

"Here now is an opportunity to make one of these reservations—one of 80,000 square feet—in the heart of the business part of the city, and in close proximity to the present market and the seat of the produce business; of furnishing a place for bringing the producer and consumer together. It seems to be the part of wisdom for this Government, looking, as it should, not only to the present but to the future necessities of the city, to embrace this opportunity, while this land is as yet unoccupied, and can be had at a much less price than it may command a few years hence."

More, Mr. Mahor. It seems to me that what was an opportunity in 1873 is an opportunity today; and the question of the hour is, Shall the opportunity be improved? I believe that it should, and I am ready to vote for this order. As has been said, the matter was pressed upon the City Government in 1873 because North and South Market streets, Merchants' row and parts of Commercial and other streets became almost impassable during the morning hours of the day, by reason of the obstructions by the market wagons that had come in from the country during the previous afternoon and the night.

Relief was partially obtained then in possessing the India-wharf property, but, if this Mercantile-wharf property had been offered at that time on as favorable terms to the city as was the India-wharf property, it would have been preferred; 1st, because it was nearer and better adapted to the purpose; and 2d, because the wholesale provision dealers are nearly all located north of State street.

Now, as to the price of this land; in June, 1875, $4.75 per foot was thought to be a low price. A special committee of the Common Council, to whom was referred the order authorizing the establishment of a market for the sale of provisions and perishable produce on the lands of the Mercantile-wharf Corporation, on page 7 of their report say, "The chairman of the Committee on Streets, referring to the negotiations in relation to betterments, testified that he had been trying for three years past to make the Mercantile-wharf Company believe that their land was worth $5.00 per foot, and that he thought it would bring very near $4.75 per foot at auction today. One of the Street Commissioners stated that, in 1872, when it was proposed to widen Atlantic avenue 100 feet, the value of the land of the Mercantile-wharf Company was estimated at $4.00 per foot." Note that was before the filling of Atlantic avenue. Again they say, "It is also to be considered that a purchase of land is different from a purchase of merchandise, which, if we cannot obtain at one place upon satisfactory terms, we may at another. There is only so much land in the city, and only two or three lots in the heart of the city adapted to the purposes of a market. These lots are all owned, not by private individuals, who may be compelled to put the land into the market, but by wealthy corporations, who can afford to hold it until they can get their price. If the city desires to purchase a large tract of land for a particular purpose in the thickly populated part of the city, it must pay the seller's price."

If these statements be facts—and are they not so?—then it seems to me that $4.00 per foot for this land is not above its value. Another thing should be considered—this is the choicest lot in the city to be obtained for market purposes. The committee referred to rightly say "there are only two or three lots in the heart of the city adapted to the purpose"; and therefore if we decline to take this now, and in the future necessity require another lot to be taken, it can be had only at a greatly enhanced price.

Another important thing to which our attention has been called should by no means be overlooked, viz., any lot for additional market purposes must be near Faneuil Hall Market, for the sake of maintaining the value of the city's valuable market property in that location; and why? because the centralization of the market produce business has advantages which draw the producer and consumer together to the largest possible extent; and thus only can we expect to sustain Faneuil Hall Market. It is because Faneuil Hall Market has done this in the past, that it has been so marked a success.

This, then, is the time for the City Government to take a view broad enough to make the addition. The city will grow, must grow, and therefore there is an imperative demand for increased facilities; and in securing this valuable reservation for market purposes, we do but in some measure recognize our present and future wants, and also permanently maintain the value of what we now have.

We are to keep in mind, also, that the development of the general produce business has grown beyond the mere farm and garden products of the country surrounding our city, or even New England. Thousands of car loads of produce, fruits, etc., flow in upon us from the West and South as well as the North and East, and so intimately are the different departments of the business that supplies a city of 350,000 inhabitants with food connected, so intimately are the export and import of articles of food related to each other, and also to our home consumption, that it is not amiss to rehearse and keep in mind a few statistics such as were published in the daily papers of this city some three weeks ago, viz.: Boston has received from various sources during the last year, 588,000 tubs of butter, 84,000 tierces of lard, 50,000 barrels of pork, 500,000 packages of fish, 175,000 boxes of bacon, 360,000 live hogs and 70,000 dressed, 160,000 cattle and 350,000 sheep, and so on. But these figures are enough. They were obtained from a reliable source, and certainly no one will deny they have much to do directly and indirectly in dealing with the question of public market facilities.

The city has been committed to the present system of marketing for over half a century, and no one can fail to admit that Faneuil Hall Market has been a success. And the fact so often spoken of, that Faneuil Hall Market stalls always command a premium, if it shows anything, shows that the demand for market facilities exceeds the supply.

Therefore it seems to me that if we increase this supply, our action is calculated to lessen the price of the necessaries of life, and also to make a good permanent investment for the city. I cannot see this matter in any other light than that of a prime necessity—one of the city's wants that meets us with an imperative demand, and, therefore, I trust this Board are prepared to vote for it; and, although adding another outlay we could wish to avoid this year, I believe it will be the wisest and cheapest policy in the end.

There are two ways of viewing improvements like this; for instance, looking only at an unwelcome fact, that the valuation and population of our city for ten years past has failed to keep pace with our increase in debt and taxation, we could wish we might delay it. Looking at the fact that this City Government has just settled upon a plan of improved sewerage that is to cost a large sum of money, we could wish we might delay it. Looking upon the fact that we have in our hands some minor matters, such as the widening of Commercial street, the sewerage of Stony Brook, the filling of Roxbury Canal, and not forgetting that we have committed ourselves to a park system, with other items which might be mentioned, the several expenses of which amount to over $3,000,000, we could wish we might delay it. But, looking at Boston's permanent growth and prosperity, accepting our mission to be to well shape the future by the moulding of today, we only see this order, bringing to us an imperative want, which, although involving an expenditure of $350,000, is a prime necessity, so intimate in its relation to the welfare of our city as to demand of us consideration as careful as any other matters I have referred to, and not to be put aside by any of them; and I have this more to say, that, however strong our desire to reduce our burdens of taxation and keep down our public debt, we should not find in such a feeling an excuse to put off to the future or for failing to give proper consideration to and to vote for a thing like this which claims attention today.

The members of this board have listened to the chairman of the Committee on Markets, and he has given them a presentation of facts and figures, certainly presented in a fair and candid manner. He has been supported by other members of the committee, and I believe we should be convinced that we cannot err in proceeding to enlarge our market facilities by the addition of this eighty thousand feet of land. To be sure, it will increase our indebtedness, but nevertheless it will be a wise expenditure. Like that portion of the public debt already incurred by our water works, and for our public buildings, and for street widening,—like the debt to come upon us for our improved sewerage, and debts of those classes where there is something to show for the expenditure—like those, this debt will carry on the face of it evidence of a value received worthy of the outlay.

Again, in the purchasing of the land at once we remove all doubts as to the policy of our city in this important matter of facilitating the means and measures of supplying food at the minimum cost. We take a manifest step toward bringing the producer and the consumer into the closest relation possible to each other; we increase the quantity of produce to come to us by direct encouragement to a wide circle beyond the farmers and gardeners in the vicinity of our city; we recognize the fact that Faneuil Hall Market regulates the provision business of New England, and is one of the most valuable elements of the business vitality of Boston: and this enlargement, while it will increase the range of trade in food products beyond its vegetable department, and make it to more nearly correspond to our present wants, will also fit the market to meet and to care for an increasing commerce such as our growing city will surely need. I have but this more to add, that, whatever may be said of other outlays, this is surely an expenditure that promotes business. We can also say of it, that, in contrast, it is a small expenditure compared with appropriations for other public improvements; and I can hardly see any investment of the same magnitude we can make for our city which will benefit the masses of our citizens more than this. I therefore believe it is the part of wisdom to pass the order before us.

The Mayor—The Chair desires to say that the question should not be now upon the passage of the order, but its reference to the Finance Committee. That is what the Chair is informed should be the true motion at this stage to make.

Alderman Fitzgerald—I presume the advocates of this measure intend that the vote this evening shall be an indication of the feeling of this Board upon the passage of the order. It will require a two-thirds vote to pass it, unless the money be taken from the Contingent Fund, and as I hardly think it will be taken from that we will have to make a loan for the appropriation. As I was going away in a few minutes, I intended to give my ideas, but I shall not make a lengthy speech. The gentleman who last sat down says it is a simple thing; a small affair. I am not surprised. We have been so accustomed to dealing with large appropriations this year that a little affair of $300,000 is looked upon as nothing. It is a large thing, and it is a question whether we ought to do it this year or next. The figures which the Alderman has just read about the hams and bacon and meat and other things that have been imported here, as an indication of the growing prosperity of Boston, and the prophecies which are always made when questions are brought up here about the future growth of the city of Boston, and the arguments for providing for its growth; and these prophecies are not believed by others who view us from without. I read a speech the other day from the President of the United States in the city of Richmond upon her future growth; and he said Richmond was not looking upon the past, like Boston and other places were, but to the rising sun. So you see the people outside don't look upon us as we in the Board of Aldermen view it. It is a question whether this appropriation cannot be made as well next year as this year. I had the honor to serve upon a committee that led to the passage of the order taking this vegetable market for three years at no expense except the abatement of taxes. We had very long and tedious hearings, and the advocates of both the India and Mercantile wharf markets came before us and advocated their plans. Of course we took this vegetable market because it would cost us nothing. We have had it three years, and it has cost twelve or fifteen thousand dollars to put up sheds, etc.; and I must confess that the bright hopes which I then entertained of the prosperity and growth of the vegetable market have fled into thin air, and it has not attracted the vegetable men to it as I expected it would. Of course the India wharf property will not always be maintained as a vegetable market. Mr. Brown, the wharfinger, does not intend that his property shall produce only one per cent. if he can make it pay nine or ten—and I have no doubt when Mr. Brown turns the marketmen out the marketmen will come to the city for help. The question is whether we will do it now. The market is there and will stay there. We have a lease of this land until next May; and the vegetable men will stay at India wharf until next May, and probably until the May following. I venture to say that things will not change much within the next nine months. I heard from a member of the Board of Aldermen that trade was as dull now as it has been for many years, and that the fall trade has fallen off unexpectedly; and the future growth of Boston would be injured one bit if we allow the vegetable market to remain as it is for the next seven or eight months, and let the next Board of Aldermen take care of it. I don't believe in laying in all the old clothes you require for four or five years simply because you are going to get them cheap. Poor Richard said, "Never buy anything, no matter how cheap, if you don't want it." Now, we don't want this thing. We have six months' more lease of it. How is it those gentlemen are now so anxious and don't want to wait until next February or March, unless they think we are very generous? I am not surprised that they think so. We have another order for the improvement of Stony Brook; but it is very important. It involves the health of several hundreds of people who reside in the vicinity of Stony Brook; and I always contend that you cannot put dollars and cents in one scale and the lives and health of the people of Boston in another, and let the dollars and cents weigh the other down. I suppose this Stony-Brook improvement cannot be delayed any longer. This market should wait. The future growth of Boston would be interfered with, and the Board of Aldermen would have any less cabbages and hams and bacon because we don't buy that Mercantile-wharf property. If the Board of Aldermen contemplate buying it next year they can do it. Last year it was contemplated giving up the whole affair, and an order for that purpose was brought in here. The committee considered it a complete failure. I have not the slightest doubt it is a failure now; but it should be left to the consideration of the next City Council whether, on the expiration of this lease, it will be worth leasing for a longer time or buying it. I venture to say they would not get better customers than the city. The order contemplates an expenditure of $350,000, and we have a mortgage upon the property of $75,000 for betterments. We have expended enormous sums this year, and we had better leave the little ones to the next Board of Aldermen to take care of. We have a lease of the property until the 1st of May, 1878, and between the 1st of next January and the 1st of May the incoming Board of Aldermen, fresh from the people with, the information which they will have received from the speeches on this vegetable market business, and the interchange of opinion among the people, can consider this question better than we. I move that it be referred to the next City Government.

Alderman Thompson—I fully agree with the Alderman who has just taken his seat in regard to what should be done with this measure. The Alderman alluded to Stony Brook, which will require some $120,000. He might have gone further and also alluded to the Roxbury Canal, which, I understand, the committee have voted to fill, and which I understand will cost somewhere in the vicinity of eighty or a hundred thousand dollars. Then, again, I desire to know who asks for this. Do the people ask for it? Does not everybody who desires vegetables have every opportunity of obtaining them? The Alderman who first spoke said that in consequence of this project being contemplated several meat markets had been built up alongside of this tract of land. Why is it that somebody has not proposed that the city buy that land and furnish a meat market. If private enterprise can provide meat markets on that land, why do not provide a vegetable market? Why is this? It is a fact that the committee last year recommended that the whole thing be abolished and abandoned; but it was suggested that the experiment be tried a while longer. The committee completed their improvements and tried to rent the market, but could get nothing for it. They finally offered the stalls to the farmers for no rent at all. Gentlemen know how well it has been occupied meantime. The Alderman states that a large sum can be obtained from this market in rents. The farmers would not take the stalls when given to them; and I also understand that the income from the India-wharf property was less than $5000 for rents. If the farmers can be accommodated just as well at the dump they will stay there; and if they don't pay $5000 there, how can we expect to get $25,000 from them on this tract? There is one thing I cannot understand. At this price of $4 a foot, the purchase will amount to $25,000 a year outlay on taxes and interest. Now, why was $4 selected as the price per foot, when real estate is selling there for $2.50? I don't know how the Assessors value it this year, but I have been told that it was for less than that.

Three years ago the city had the right to take this land for $4.75 a foot. Now, does not any gentleman suppose that real estate has depreciated more than fifteen per cent.? I haven't a piece of real estate in Boston that has not depreciated more than 33 1/3 per cent. Shall we pay more than its market value? In State street and everywhere else you will find that real estate has depreciated more than fifteen per cent. I have no doubt when our successors come in they will find the owners of this land ready to trade with the city, because nobody is going to occupy the land in the meantime. Any one can now get all the stalls they need by paying the taxes on them, and nobody is going to improve this property by building on it. As the Alderman says, business has not improved. It is more depressed than it has been for some time. The banks will tell you you can get all the money you want, and as cheap as you could at any time; while my experience has been that money has been dearer in the fall. I don't know any one who desires the city to buy this land except those who have some interest in it directly or indirectly through friends. The city does not need it, with our high rate of taxation, and with the depression in business which every member of this Board who has any connection with savings banks realizes, not only here but in the surrounding towns and cities. The only salvation of Boston is to reduce her taxation and expenses; and for us now to launch out and buy this piece of land, when you can get it six months hence, and perhaps six years hence, for the same price, is a piece of extravagance. Why is it necessary to spend this money now, when it will keep? The farmers can go to India wharf; and I have not heard of any one complaining of any lack of accommodations for selling produce.

Alderman Slade—The owners of that property asked the Committee on Markets to release them from their obligation to sell. They wanted that most, but the committee were not ready to do that, and after several interviews the owners were finally induced to reduce the price to $4. Tomorrow morning the Alderman would probably find 150 to 200 market wagons upon that wharf. Where are they to stop if this land is not purchased? Before this dump was made by taking down Fort Hill, North Market and Commercial streets, and all about there was so packed that nobody could get around. The storekeepers and merchants have made great complaints, and want a place where these wagons can go. The owners are under a bond of $50,000 to sell the land to the city. The market has been of no great account because the farmers were already established on India wharf and did not want to go away without feeling that they would be permanently located. They are willing to go to Mercantile wharf and pay a good price if they can stay there. It is simply to supply a place where the farmers can go and sell their produce. I hold in my hand a letter from the president of the corporation asking me to offer an order to release them from the bond; and if not, they want to withdraw the offer to sell for $4 a foot. If it goes over to another year the property will remain just as it is, and I do not think it is right to keep them in that way. The city is going to get a bargain from the wharf company, who can get nothing except what they gave for streets at the instigation of the Market Committee three years ago. They gave the land for streets with the expectation that the city would purchase this for a farmers' market. If the city don't purchase that land I think it will regret it.

Alderman Burnham, in reply to Alderman Thompson's statements in regard to the depreciation of real estate, read from the Assessors' valuations of property in the vicinity. On Richmond street it is $3.25 a foot; on the Mercantile-wharf side it is $6, $5, $6, $7 and $8, and at the corner $10. On Clinton street, on the other side, it is $10, $12, $4, $5 and $5.50. This is the value of land surrounding this property.

Alderman Thompson—The Alderman assigns as one reason for purchasing this land the desire of the corporation to be released from that contract. That proposition was made a year ago, and an order was offered, but the corporation withdrew their offer to release the city. The same tactics seem to have been played again. I am not at all alarmed about that. In regard to giving the land for streets, is not it usual for people who have large tracts of unapproachable land to give land for streets, so that it can become marketable and valuable? If they do not sell this land to the city they have got to give land for streets, for it cannot be used otherwise. I say that for a square block of this magnitude the price is too much for the times.

Alderman O'Brien—I don't believe in passing this order over to the next City Government. We ought to take the responsibility and either pass or reject it. When we speak of the wonderful growth of Boston, I always think of this building. Not a great many years ago, when the City Council erected this building, they said, Now we are building a hall large enough for every department of the City Government—large enough to answer all the purpose of the Government for the next fifty years; but before they got it finished they found it was not big enough to hold the departments then in existence. No trade has shown a more wonderful increase than the produce trade of Boston. Fifty years ago Faneuil Hall Market was established, and it was the best investment the city has ever made. It has paid for itself fourfold, and it now pays an interest of ten per cent. on a valuation of three times its original cost, besides having turned hundreds of thousands of dollars into the city treasury. That little spot of some 27,000 square feet is one of the most valuable spots in the city of Boston. Why is it? Because the establishment of that market has made that spot the centre of the produce trade of New England. The sooner we can locate this market trade there the better we will act for the interest of the city of Boston. Some years ago men who were interested in Faneuil Hall Market measured some of the costly banking houses in State street, and they ascertained that more money was paid for the spaces occupied by the market men in Faneuil Hall than was paid for the same space occupied by the most costly banking houses in State street. Talk about that property being worth only $4 or $5 a foot; why, Faneuil Hall Market is worth $50 a foot for the interest the city is receiving from it. This property is 100 feet from Faneuil Hall, and $4 is a low price for it and not a high one. It is not the mere amount of money we get from Faneuil Hall Market that gives value and interest to this business. The $100,000 a year we receive in rents from the market is not the most important fact to look at. It is the growth of the produce trade that imparts an importance to our city. It has occupied North and South Market streets, Chatham row, Chatham street, Commercial street, and it is driving down to the water line on Atlantic avenue. It is one of the largest and most profitable trades of the city today; it has been growing year after year, and will continue to grow; and you cannot prevent it. I don't look upon this as an expenditure of money, or as carrying out the idea in the establishment of Faneuil Hall Market; but as an expenditure that will return to us fourfold. When the people of Boston look back fifty years hence, I believe they will say it was one of the most profitable investments the city has made for the development of the produce trade. Faneuil Hall Market covers only 27,000 square feet, and this 80,000 feet will give us an opportunity to grow a little during the next fifty years. The farmers are only on the dump temporarily. The reason it is not turned to more profitable purposes is because the owners don't know whether they have an equity in it. The courts will have to decide that matter. But if we buy it I have no doubt the farmers will fill it immediately and make it productive. The reason the farmers don't go there is because they don't want to act upon an uncertainty. Let the city own it, and they will go there. I hope the order will pass tonight. It has been before us nine months, and if we send it to the next Government they will consider it nine months more, and somebody in that Government will pass it over to the next Government, which may also be afraid of taking the responsibility. I regret that many of these expensive schemes have been forced upon us; but if it is worth while to establish this market six months hence, there is no reason for rejecting it now.

Alderman Fitzgerald withdrew his motion to refer to the next City Government.

Alderman Slade moved to strike out the clause requesting the Committee on Finance to provide the means, and said he should move to refer it to that committee.

Alderman Clark objected to the amendment as, it would leave the committee to consider the merits of the question, while they should consider only the financial aspects. This matter had been considered by an able committee, conversant with the wants of the marketmen, and he should submit to their opinion. He believed the market had been a great credit to the city and that this would sustain the city's property. He regretted to hear the talk about the dull times introduced in the Board, and thought it better to speak of reviving trade, as he knew many large houses are doing better than last year. A member of the great house of Jordan, Marsh & Co. had just told him their business had increased thirty-three per cent. over what they did in the same month last year. In his own line of trade there has been an increase; but he could not state how much profit there had been. Gentlemen retired from business do not have so much income as formerly; but the business interests of the city have materially improved. He did not like this kind of talk, because our neighbors in Chicago and New York like to get hold of it and say Boston is not a good place to buy goods.

Alderman Fitzgerald said the Finance Committee are the watch dog of the treasury, and if they do not consider the merits of a question they are no use. They are to report whether the financial condition of the city will admit of an appropriation.

Alderman Thompson moved to amend by making the price $3 per foot.

Alderman Slade said that would kill the bill, but it never could be purchased for that.

Alderman Wilder did not want to kill the bill. He would vote for $3, but not for $4, because it is more than the market price.

Alderman Clark said he forgot to add that the streets were laid out there because it was for the mutual interest of the city and the owners of the land, and the latter would have been ready to give their land without any idea of the city purchasing this tract. He would be glad to get this and for $3; but understood $4 was the lowest possible price.

Alderman Thompson called for the yeas and nays, and his amendment was lost—yeas 3, nays 8; Aldermen Fitzgerald, Thompson and Wilder voting yea. Absent—Alderman Gibson.

Alderman Thompson moved that the price be $3.50 a foot.

Alderman Viles believed the property ought to be purchased, and knew it could not be for less than $4, though he should be glad to get it for $3.50. The owners would be glad to have the lease surrendered.

The amendment ($3.50) was lost.

Alderman Slade's amendment was adopted and the order was referred to the Finance Committee. Sent down.

MYSTIC RIVER IMPROVEMENT.

Alderman Thompson presented a petition from the Boston & Lowell Railroad for leave to build an additional track on Mystic wharf. He said the Bridge Committee had considered it and were unanimously in favor of granting it in order to facilitate the work while the bridge was being rebuilt. On his motion the request was granted in the form following, in accordance with the petition:

Ordered, That leave be granted to the Boston & Lowell Railroad Company to construct and maintain an additional railroad track adjoining and alongside on the south side of their present track crossing Chelsea Bridge on Mystic wharf, on condition that said railroad company shall protect said crossing by the erection and maintenance of railroad safety gates to the satisfaction of the City Engineer.

Pending action on the petition, Aldermen Clark and O'Brien both expressed surprise at the petition, and asked Alderman Thompson if he thought the increase of business demanded this expenditure by the corporation.

Alderman Thompson said it was to accommodate the travelling public by keeping the cars off the street, and not for an increased business.

INSPECTION OF BILLS IN THE AUDITOR'S OFFICE.

Alderman Clark moved to reconsider the vote referring the ordinance to allow the inspection of bills in the Auditor's office by citizens.

Alderman Clark stated that there was no necessity for it, as the bills are now open to public inspection, and any citizen can see any bill by calling for it. As an instance, he had today seen a note calling for the refreshment bills of the committees on Public Lands and Public Buildings.

Alderman O'Brien said it was merely for reference, and probably the Ordinance Committee would report that no action is necessary.

Alderman Clark said he had accomplished his purpose by making the statement, and withdrew the motion.

Adjourned on motion of Alderman O'Brien.

CITY OF BOSTON.

Proceedings of the Common Council,

NOVEMBER 8, 1877.

Regular meeting at 7.30 o'clock P. M., Benjamin Pope, President, in the chair.

PAPERS FROM THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Petitions, etc., were referred in concurrence.
Report of Overseers of Poor placed on file.

STONY BROOK IMPROVEMENT.

A report and order for a special committee to take charge of the improvement of Stony Brook, the estimated cost of improvement not to exceed $163,000 (City Doc. No. 86), came down to be referred to Finance Committee.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—This is a matter of considerable importance, and comes before the Council for the first time. I move that it be laid upon the table.

Mr. Brown of Ward 23—It is the desire of the Committee on the Stony Brook Improvement that the report and order should go to the Finance Committee without discussion, and when it returns from them, if they approve the appropriation and provide the money, we propose to discuss the subject upon its merits at that time.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—This matter comes before the Council for the first time this evening, and the members have not had time to look into it. It is one of great importance, which ought to have the discussion of the members of the Council. Certainly there can be no harm to let it lie over.

Mr. Barry of Ward 22—This subject, in various forms, at one time or another, has occupied the public mind for some time, and I do not think it can do any harm to let it go to the committee, and let them discuss it. The people out there are suffering, and something ought to be done for them. I hope the motion will not prevail.

Mr. Coe of Ward 23—I hope this motion will not prevail. It seems to me it should be referred to the Finance Committee, and when it comes back from them it can be discussed upon its merits. I hope it will be referred.

The motion to table was declared lost. Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 doubted the vote; the Council divided and the motion was lost—9 for, 36 against. At the request of Mr. Flynn of Ward 13, the President read the order.

Mr. Flynn—I would ask now what is there in the order to refer to the Committee on Finance? There is nothing directing them to provide the means for this work. What is the need of referring it to the Committee on Finance? Is n't this the proper place for the Council to discuss the matter and ascertain whether or not it is a proper thing to do? It does not request them to provide the means, but refers to them a matter which another committee have already considered. Therefore, in justice to members of this Council who have not considered this matter at all, that it may lie over one week, so that they may judge whether it is proper to make an appropriation for this purpose.

Mr. Brown—I desire to say to the members of this Council that the reference is correct and is approved by all whose interest it is to understand it.

Mr. Flynn—What for?

Mr. Brown—To see if the Finance Committee consider it a proper step for the city to take, and to provide the means for it.

Mr. Flynn—Then, what has been the duty of this committee who have considered it?

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—I don't see what we can do with one part of the order when the other is before the Committee on Finance. The reference seems to be very proper. The first thing will be the question of the means to carry on the improvement; and until we get the report from the Finance Committee we cannot discuss the question intelligently, for that lies at the threshold of the discussion. It seems to me the gentleman's remarks are not pertinent, because nothing can be done until the financial problem is settled. The reference will not prevent any member from examining the merits of the question. It will be virtually laying it on the table, so far as any action of this branch is concerned; whether the question is divided or not, I hope the order will be referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—I would ask the gentleman opposite if, by the terms of the order, the Council will not commit itself to this project by referring it to the Committee on Finance?

Mr. Pratt—I don't understand that we are. If we referred it with instructions to provide the means for that object, it might be committing ourselves to the project. But I do not understand that that is the case.

Mr. Flynn—Then I understand this is to be referred for them to consider the financial expediency of this project, and I say it is the duty of every member to consider this before he votes for this reference. It involves some $130,000. There can be no harm in letting it lie over one week. There is another matter of great importance that will come up after it. Members ought to have an opportunity to look into it. It is a matter of great importance to the city of Boston.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—As I understand the gentleman's point, it is that if we refer this matter to the Finance Committee we are committing ourselves to the passage of the order. As I understand, it has been the custom this year to refer a great many matters to the Finance Committee, and practically get their opinion upon it. They have been an advisory committee this year. Ordinarily it would have been their duty to report simply whether and how the city could provide the means to carry on improvements, but this year we have a very able Finance Committee, and a great many measures have been referred to them for their opinion, and a general reference, without any instructions to provide the means, is nothing more than for them to look into this matter and make a report. It is simply saying, We have here a very important matter; it has been carefully considered by one committee, and it being the special province of the Finance Committee to look after the finances of the city, they can at the same time say whether the city can raise the money. It does n't commit us to anything, and to refer it is in effect the same as laying it upon the table.

Mr. Richardson of Ward 11—This matter has been before a joint special committee, who, after due deliberation, report that this improvement should be made, and it is simply to go to the Finance Committee now to see if they will devise the means to carry out this improvement; and if so, and their committee is to be appointed to take charge of the expenditure of the money, it seems to me it is a proper matter to be referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Pratt—As a member of the committee who offered that order I should be very slow to force the matter, or press it in any way before this body. But I cannot help reminding gentlemen that this is towards the latter part of the year, and it is likely to go slowly with any order that is laid upon the table now, especially if it has to go to the committee afterwards. As this matter has been before the Council some time upon the reference to the special committee, and as it is now getting late in the year, I should hope that it might be considered as rapidly as is consistent with the proper transaction of business. The joint special committee have very thoroughly investigated the practical bearings of the proposed improvement; they have considered and reported upon the character of the improvement and the necessity for its being made. All those practical questions have been, or are supposed to have been, considered by the committee; and I think they have been thoroughly. Now, there is another matter which that committee have not been able to consider, which lies at the threshold of the discussion; and that is the financial expediency of doing it at this time. The special committee having reported on the practical aspect of the question, it seems very proper that it should now go to this Finance Committee on the financial aspect; and when we have their report we can take such time as we see fit to consider and discuss it, and meantime we can consider it as well as if it were lying upon the table.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—My only object in opposing the reference is that the members of the Council may judge for themselves of the feasibility of adopting this measure. We have in the report of the committee one section, which says—

"It is difficult, if not impossible, at the present time to estimate the amount of betterments which will be returned. The Street Commissioners called a meeting of the owners of land bordering upon the brook, for the purpose of learning their opinions as to how much of the burden of the cost of the improvement the lands benefited would bear. The result of the interview was unsatisfactory."

Now, I say this is an expenditure of about $130,000 which will go solely for the benefit of the land owners on the line of Stony Brook—entirely for their benefit—and no agreement can be got from them whereby they will pay one dollar towards the expense of this. Therefore, I say it is a matter of great importance to members of the Government to know whether they will pass a vote giving the Finance Committee instructions to procure the means to carry out the project. All I want is an opportunity for members of the Council to ascertain whether it is a proper measure to vote upon before they instruct the Finance Committee to provide the means.

Mr. Coe—I would call the gentleman's attention to the fact that the committee are not instructed to provide the means, but that the report is simply referred to them to report upon. If the order instructed them to provide the means, it would be mandatory and they could do nothing but provide the means. I hope it will take its reference tonight.

The report and order were referred to the Finance Committee in concurrence.

VEGETABLE MARKET.

A report and order to purchase from Mercantile Wharf Corporation the lot of land now leased for a produce market (80,000 square feet, more or less) on Atlantic avenue, at not exceeding $4 per foot, came down to be referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13—Here is an order, similar to the last one, to appropriate about $400,000 for the purchase of land; it has never been before a committee of this branch of the Government, and yet the Finance Committee are instructed to provide that amount of money. Now, sir, here is a matter of just as much importance as the other, and I move that it be laid upon the table, in order to give the Council an opportunity to look into the matter.

At the request of Mr. Sampson, the President read the order.

Mr. Sampson—That order does not ask the Finance Committee to provide the means; but the whole subject is referred to them. Their report may be such as the gentleman desires. I should prefer a motion to indefinitely postpone to laying it upon the table.

Mr. Flynn—The order is for the committee to provide the means.

The President—That clause was stricken out in the other branch.

Mr. Flynn—This order is similar to the other, and it makes the same reference to the committee. It does not ask them to provide the means; only to consider the matter.

Mr. Sampson—That is just the point I made, exactly—that it refers the whole subject to the Committee on Finance to investigate and report. It does not order them to provide the means on either of those matters.

Mr. Flynn—Then I object to it on the same ground as the other, and because it has not been considered by a committee of this branch of the Government.

Mr. Sampson—One object of sending it to the Finance Committee is that it may be considered by a committee of this branch.

Mr. Flynn—As this order has not been referred to a committee of this branch of the Government, it seems to me it certainly ought to lie upon the table to give members an opportunity to look into the matter.

Mr. Sampson—The gentleman's objection is met by the reference. The Market Committee is composed entirely of members of the other branch, and if it goes to the Finance Committee it will be considered by members of this branch.

Mr. Flynn—Then I withdraw the motion to lay upon the table and move that it be referred to a special committee of members of this branch.

Mr. Danforth of Ward 10—I move as an amendment that this Mercantile-wharf matter be indefinitely postponed.

The President—The Chair thinks that motion would not be in order at this time, the motion to refer taking precedence.

Mr. Flynn renewed the motion to lay on the table, and it prevailed.

SOUTH BOSTON FLATS.

An order came down to request the Land Commissioners to commence the building of B or C street from First street to Eastern avenue, and to complete the same as soon as practicable; and to request the Albany Railroad Company to fill to grade sixteen feet above mean low water a portion of Eastern avenue, as in said order set forth.

The order was read twice and put upon its passage.

Mr. Thompson of Ward 9—Who has charge of this matter? and can some explanation of it be given?

Mr. Felt of Ward 18—There was an agreement on the part of the State to fill one of these streets in connection with Eastern avenue, and this is simply to request the Land Commissioners to fulfil the State's part of the contract.

Mr. Thompson—By the passage of this order is any expense to be entailed upon the city of Boston?

Mr. Felt—Not that I see.

The order was passed in concurrence.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Order to release to Mary E. Cochrane the title of a parcel of land on Walkhill street, heretofore taken but not now required by the city, as therein set forth. Passed in concurrence.

Order to release to Sarah M. English et al. all the title of the city under deeds as therein set forth, by the payment of the sums of $450 and $154. Passed. Sent up.

ARMORY IN CHARLESTOWN.

The order to fit up the old Winthrop School building, Charlestown, as an armory for Company D, Fifth Regiment, at a cost not to exceed $1000, was considered under unfinished business.

Mr. Thompson—I should like some one to explain that. I don't want to vote upon it without some explanation. If it has not been before any committee I move that it be referred to the Committee on Public Buildings.

Mr. Stone of Ward 3—I presume this came from the Committee on Armories of the other branch, which is not a joint committee. There is an old unoccupied school building there. The city has been paying rent elsewhere, and they propose to fit up this building at an expense of $100, and save paying rent elsewhere.

Mr. Thompson—Before we pass the order it should be considered by a committee of this branch, and I move that it be referred to the Committee on Public Buildings.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—This company has no armory now, and the city has ceased paying rent for the building occupied by them for a number of years. The schoolhouse is vacant, and it is proposed to save the city about $600 a year by letting the company have it for an armory. I don't see why it should be referred to the Committee on Public Buildings. It is for the interest of the city to let it to this company and save $600 rent.

Mr. Thompson—The city would not save $600 between now and next Thursday. Merely to do things properly and in order, and follow out a customary routine, I think it had better be referred. The committee may have informed themselves as individuals, but it seems to me we should have the benefit of their action as a committee. If we set the example this time of passing it without a reference, the Committee on Armories might ask for another building, and the city might make a mistake.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—This matter has been before the Committee on Armories almost all summer, and the company have been wanting an armory all the time. The city has ceased paying rent for the armory they occupied, and the company have no armory. I think the Committee on Armories should know something in regard to this matter. They have thoroughly investigated it, so far as I can find out. I live within two houses of the schoolhouse and know there is no use for the building at the present time, and there is not likely to be for a number of years to come.

Mr. Thompson—The gentleman don't meet my point, which is simply that it is improper to pass this order without its reference to a proper committee. The Committee on Armories is not a committee of this body, and we know nothing of what action they have taken. That order comes in the same as if it had been introduced by an individual member of this branch. It is our business to inform ourselves of the facts through the proper channels.

Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—Does not the gentleman consider the Committee on Armories a proper channel for this body from which to learn the facts?

Mr. Thompson—I do not.

The order was referred to the Committee on Public Buildings. Sent up.

REPORTS OF CITY OFFICERS.

Fire Commissioners. Report of fires and alarms for the month of October. Sent up.

Auditor of Accounts — Monthly Exhibit (City Doc. 88). Total appropriations, $13,863,593.32; expended, $6,864,563.77; balance unexpended, $6,999,029.55. Sent up.

PETITIONS PRESENTED.

By Mr. Kelley of Ward 3—Petitions of G. W. Hollis, for leave to erect a wooden building on Westin avenue, near Market street, Ward 25; Butchers' Slaughtering and Melting Association, for leave to erect a wooden building rear of Market street, Ward 25. Referred to Joint Committee on Survey and Inspection of Buildings. Sent up.

INSPECTOR OF BUILDINGS.

Mr. Flynn of Ward 13 moved to take from the table the Mayor's message appointing John S. Durrell Inspector of Buildings.

Mr. Pratt of Ward 21—Under the circumstances which are known to exist tonight, I think it would be better to let that nomination lie upon the table this evening, and I hope it will not be taken up.

Mr. Wilbur of Ward 20—I hope the gentleman will give some definite reason why this matter should lie upon the table.

Mr. Flynn—I hope the gentleman will give some reason why it should not be taken from the table. He says that for reasons known to exist he don't think it proper to take it from the table. I hope he will enlighten the Council.

Mr. Pratt—I do not wish to discuss the merits of the nomination upon a motion to take from the table. It has been before us only one week, and it has been a very busy week for all of us, I presume. I for one would like an opportunity to consider the nomination one week longer, and therefore I asked to have it remain on the table this evening.

Mr. McDonald of Ward 12—I trust this matter will be taken from the table this evening. I consider this one of the best appointments made by his Honor this year. I have not heard one word against the general character of the nominee; on the contrary, I have heard from many persons that he is fitted and capable for the position in every respect; therefore I hope it will be taken from the table tonight.

Mr. Ham of Ward 14 moved that the question be taken by yeas and nays. The motion was declared lost. Mr. Felt of Ward 18 doubted the vote.

Mr. Flynn—I hope the President will enforce the rule that a gentleman shall rise in his place when he doubts the vote.

Mr. Felt (rising)—Mr. President, I doubt the vote.

Mr. Flynn—That 's the proper way to do it.

The Council divided, the yeas and nays were ordered, and the motion to take from the table prevailed—yeas 40, nays 28.

Yeas—Messrs. Barry, Blanchard, Brintnall, Cannon, Clarke, Coe, Cox, Cross, Day, Dee, Duggan, Fagan, Fernald, D. A. Flynn, J. J. Flynn, Fraser, Ham, Jackson, Kelley (Ward 3), Kelley (Ward 6), Kidney, Loughlin, McClusky, McDonald, McGaragle, Morrill, Mullane, Nugent, O'Connor, O'Donnell, Perham, Pope, Reed, Roach, Ruffin, Smardon, Upham, Vose, G. B. Webster, Wilbur—40.

Nays—Messrs. Barnard, Beeching, Blodgett, Brown, Burke, Crocker, Danforth, Doherty, Felt, Hibbard, Howes, Mowry, Pearl, J. H. Pierce, O. H. Pierce, Pratt, J. B. Richardson, M. W. Richardson, Roberts, Sampson, Shepard, Souther, Stone, Thompson, Thorndike, Warren, E. R. Webster, Wolcott—28.

Absent or not voting—Messrs. Hiscock, Sibley, Spenceley—3.

The President read the Mayor's communication and announced the question as upon the confirmation and the appointment of Mr. Damrell.

Mr. Howes of Ward 18—I ask leave to present a memorial from citizens addressed to the City Council.

